Maple Loses Fight for Life

WRIT DENIED THIS MORNING BY JUSTICES
Only Re-Hearing Is Possible—Not Likely

AUSTIN, Nov. 27. (AP)—Writ of habeas corpus for Jess J. Maple, to prevent his execution early tomorrow, was denied today by the court of criminal appeals.

Maple's attorneys had sought a writ of habeas corpus to stay the execution and a writ of mandamus to force the lower court judge to hold an insanity hearing.

Drought Aids Turkey, Making It Mature Rapidly

CHICAGO, Nov. 27. (AP)—The American family sitting down to its annual bounty today could even find a word of thanks for two of the year's major tribulations—the drought and business conditions.

The excellent favor of the turkey—if you had one—was a gift of the drought, which greatly damaged crops but which provided the Thanksgiving bird with the dry weather needed for the rapid maturing which brings succulent and fatty portions.

GIRLS TESTIFY FOR STATE IN HEFNER TRIAL

Account of Slaying Given by Eye Witness

Repeated threats that they were going to kill Homer Crabtree were made by Carl Heffner, an trial for murder, and Emmett Thompson, jointly indicted with him, on Nov. 5, the day Crabtree died of head injuries, Pearl Andrews and Peggy Dawson testified this morning in district court.

Mrs. Andrews and Miss Dawson who live in a house about 400 yards from where Crabtree was found in a dying condition, said the defendant Heffner, and Thompson, came to their house that day and stayed about an hour. "They said they were hunting for Homer Crabtree and asked if we knew him," Miss Andrews stated. "They both said Crabtree was on Heffner's horse and that they were going to get the horse and kill Crabtree. Both repeated the threats several times."

Congratulations Due Harvesters on Success in Class A Football

With the game today the Harvesters will close their initial season in Class A football. There is a record to boast about, and this newspaper wishes to extend congratulations to coaches, team, school, and loyal fans.

There are few of us who expected the team to do as well as it did. The writer, who saw the boys from the first day of their training, well knows the hard work it took for coaches and boys to reach the state of perfection that was attained. Going into a higher class imposes obligations and brings up immediate difficulties. For the Harvesters it meant that they were "put on the spot" early in the season with Lubbock as the executioner. It is history that the husky Pampa lads refused to play underdog and returned with a 12-9 victory.

There is nothing in the season to cause regret—not even the Amarillo game. It is true that the loss in the mud was a disappointment, but the breaks of the pastime cannot be avoided. Victories have been plentiful. Big scores have been almost monotonous. Publicity which the Harvesters have brought has been favorable and valuable.

On this Thanksgiving we can be thankful for a fine team, a coach whose life and methods are above reproach, and a school with a fighting spirit.

The test of the fan is whether he will be as good a sport losing as he is winning. For win or lose, they are our boys, doing their best in their particular sphere. Power to them!

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—Millions of voters cast their ballots for congressional candidates with the idea that there ought to be a change. No one can guess how many realized that the collective vote of these millions may have no effect on the lineup in Congress until 18 months after the election day.

One consolation the casters of the "protest vote" is that they elected quite a few more of the type of legislators likely to assemble behind the Norris-lame-duck amendment which would get each newly elected Congress into its seats within a couple of months.

Meanwhile the house and senate will have two of the choicest collections of lame ducks you ever saw in the short session of the Seventy-first congress which begins Dec. 5 and ends on March 4. Except for those chosen to fill vacancies for unexpired terms, the new senators-elect and representatives-elect won't get into action before Dec. 5, 1931, unless the senate coalition happens to force a special session before that.

The season's champion lame duck appears to be Senator Charles S. Deneen of Illinois. Early last April, in the primary which nominated Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican voters of Illinois decided that they had had enough of Deneen. But the time elapsing between the repudiation of Senator Deneen and the time his successor, James Hamilton Lewis, takes office, is just 20 months, not so far from two years.

A dozen senators who have either retired or been defeated will be on the job in this short session. And four or five times as many members of the House.

Four Republican senators who refused to run for renomination and re-election will be with us. Three were succeeded by Democrats. Their retirement unquestionably saved them just so much expense. They're lame ducks, too—Gillett of Massachusetts, Goff of West Virginia, and Phipps of Colorado. Gould of Maine, who also retired, probably couldn't have been renominated.

Those who were voted into duckhood during the primary season are Deneen, and Grundy of Pennsylvania, Republican, and Blease of South Carolina, Simmons of North Carolina and Ransdell of Louisiana, Democrats.

The election losers were Pine of Oklahoma and McMaster of South Dakota, Republicans, and Steek of Iowa, Democrat.

The new blood which will be here for the short session includes Senators Morrow of New Jersey, Davis of Pennsylvania, and Carey of Wyoming, Republicans, and three Democrats—Bulkeley of Ohio, McGill of Kansas and Williams of Kentucky. They will all succeed gubernatorial appointees and finish unexpired terms, hence their early arrival.

There are two principal reasons why progressive and others squawk because so many senators-elect and representatives-elect won't be able to help legislate for another year:

1. The long delay in making the will of the electorate effective.

2. The fact that votes of lame duck members are obtained for measures favored by those who are able to bestow political or other rewards.

Under the Norris amendment to the Constitution, each new Congress and each new president would take office early in January. The short three-month sessions which so often end in filibusters would be abolished and members after being defeated couldn't vote for or against any more laws.

Four or five times the Senate has passed the amendment almost unanimously. In 1928 it got to a vote in the House but failed to receive the required two-thirds vote, although it had a majority. Last session, as in other years, the Longworth-Tilson-Shell House oligarchy buried it for many months and didn't let it come to a vote.

But with the lame ducks out and the newly elected Congress seated there is every likelihood that the amendment will receive a two-thirds vote in both House and Senate and thereafter be submitted to the states. No opposition is foreseen in the various state legislatures.

El Paso Woman Shot To Death

WILL COPY RECORDS

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 26. (AP) A young woman, identified by County Attorney R. B. Redic, as Philomena Elmado, 27, was found on a street bleeding profusely from a gun wound in her chest. She died en route to a hospital.

Redic said the woman this morning filed a complaint with his office against a man she said had rudely displayed a pistol. A resident of the neighborhood where she was found said he heard two shots and saw a man running toward the railway bridge across the Rio Grande. Justice police arrested a man on the Mexican side of the bridge and were holding him for investigation.

Circus Animals Roam Mountains

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 27. (P) — Lions, bears, tigers and elephants, wild in a new-found freedom from circus cage and corral, roamed the Guanajuato mountains today as chamo and hacienda owners banded to track them down and either kill or return them to captivity.

At Irapuato, 18 members of the Bear circus, one of the largest in Mexico, lay in hospital beds, badly burned from fire which swept their train yesterday, killing at least 12 of their associates and looting the menagerie. Many injured were not expected to live.

The fire occurred at Guadalupe station, near Irapuato, where the circus train was being switched. Some of the coaches were backed into tank cars filled with gasoline. The fluid, sprayed onto the wooden coaches, caught fire and a few minutes later the entire train was in flames.

Circus performers and employees clad in night clothes, escaped from the coaches as best they could, only to meet a new peril, the maddened animals which were getting loose from their cages as the fire burned the cars about them.

Finally guns were procured and some of the more ferocious beasts were killed. The others fled.

BEAUMONT, Nov. 27. (P) — Jack Beard, 40, was shot and killed yesterday at a store at Daisetta. L. H. Walker, Daisetta merchant, surrendered and made $5,000 bond. An argument over an account was said by officers to have preceded the shooting.

CHURCHES

BAPTIST REVIVAL

The crowd still grows at the Central Baptist church where Dr. Geo. W. McCall is conducting an evangelistic meeting. Each night shows a big increase. He will preach tonight at 7:45 on "What Ails the Church and What Will Cure It."

Last night he answered three questions in his sermon:

- "How to Be Saved."
- "How to Know We Are Saved."
- "How to Make the World Know We Are Saved."

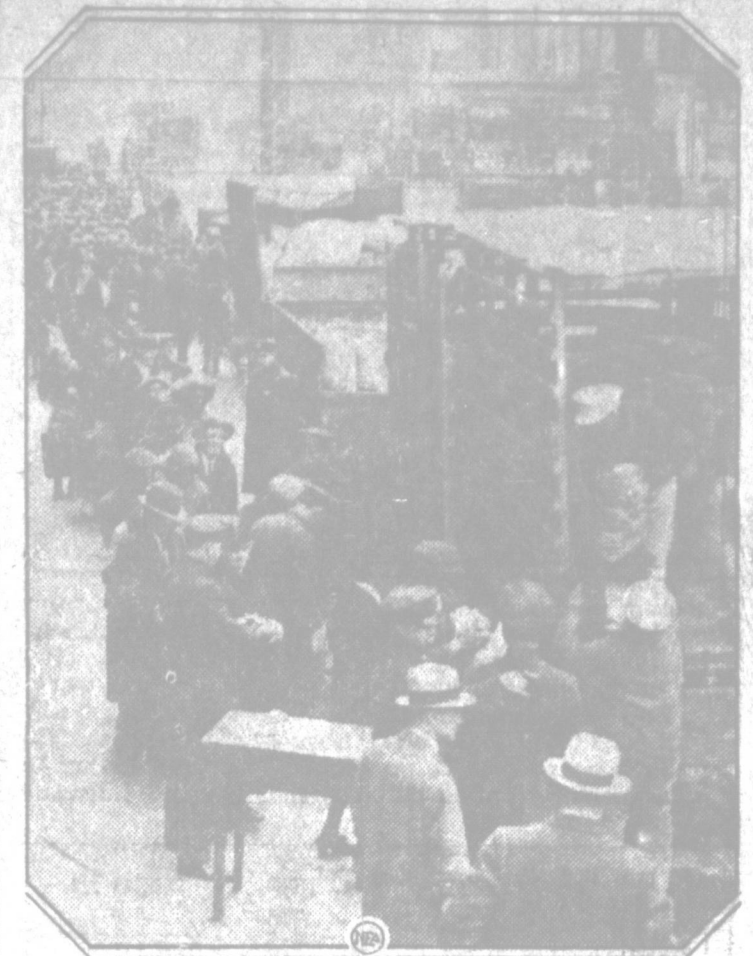

The Apostle Paul answered the question, what must I do to be saved, thus: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." We are not saved by having certain kinds of feelings, nor by our trying to keep the ten commandments, nor by being baptized and joining the church, but by turning our sinful souls over to Christ and trusting Him to save and keep us.

We know we are saved by the witness of the Spirit with our spirit that we are the sons of God. The world knows we are saved by the new life we live after our conversion. By their fruits ye shall know them, for "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature." Our lives will show it.—Contributed.

WOMAN HANGS SELF

GAINESVILLE, Nov. 27. (P)—Mrs. Egbert Bentley, 30, wife of a farmer living near Etsa, 15 miles from here, was found hanging in a barn near her home yesterday when her husband returned from town. He told officers his wife had been in ill health.

Distributing Food to New York's Needy

Packages of food for New York City's needy families now are being distributed throughout the city by police and members of the department of sanitation. This photo shows one of the lines as hundreds of aged and unemployed persons received cartons of provisions from the center of distribution. During the first two days of the new relief plan, 14,000 families were given 800,000 pounds of food. The Mayor's Committee has determined to order an additional 4,500,000 pounds to meet the estimated requirements of the remainder of the year.

About New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK
NEW YORK—Broadway is called a fickle street.

Fame, they say, is short-lived on the lane of lamps.

Maybe there's a reason. Maybe it's because Broadway is just a small strip of big Manhattan, a jigsaw-catch on the surface of America.

A lot of names spelled out in lights—the ultimate sign of Broadway fame — are soon forgotten. How that sort of fame appeals to people! Do they ever stop to think it's local, after all?

It seems to take more than a brief stage turn to make the world remember you.

Eugene O'Neill has been away three years, but he is still remembered. The book version of his play "Strange Interlude" has sold 100,000 copies, more than a play in book form ever sold before — more than most books of any kind sell.

O'Neill has always snubbed Broadway, more or less, although he is one of the few born there. All this may mean nothing. But it's a thought for today.

Camera Lady

Doris Ulmann is a feminine Bob Davie. Which means that, like the veteran magazine editor and columnist, she is an amateur photographer of celebrities.

She goes gunning for literary lions. Joseph Hergeshelmer, Carl Van Vechten, Thornton Wilder, H. L. Mencken, S. B. Van Dine, Julia Peterkin, Sherwood Anderson and others of the book world have been shot for her gallery of portraits.

Mrs. Ulman was born and educated right here in New York and her studio is her Park avenue apartment. She studied to be a teacher, specializing in psychology. She took up photography as a hobby.

She snaps her subjects in natural, informal poses, as Dale Warner describes it in "The Bookman," smoking, reading or pondering silently. She "brings them out" by telling anecdotes and asking questions during the sitting.

Her laboratory is her bathroom. Her usual remuneration is an autographed copy of the author's latest work.

Sometimes she has her chauffeur drive her car to the home of the author. She pictured Gamaliel Bradford, the biographer, as he sat upright in bed, with the wheeled stand that supports his typewriter and other working materials drawn over his knees, his customary writing stance.

Nancy Carroll dislikes closed cars and drives a large green open touring car.

Alfred Harcourt, the publisher, rolls his own cigarettes.

Sinclair Lewis' first name is Harry. His hobby is reading detective stories.

Peter Arno, cartoonist and one of the town's pets, composed his own name out of Arnoux Peters, which is originally was.

Rockwell Kent, the woodcut artist, permits nobody but himself to enter his studio at Aunoble Park, N. Y.

LARGE HOLIDAY CROWD EXPECTED AT FOOTBALL GAME

WEATHER TO BE GOOD FOR THIS OCCASION

Pampa Harvesters were prepared to go into their last Class A game this afternoon against the Quannah Indians, who arrived yesterday afternoon.

Smiling skies gave promise of almost ideal football weather, although a cool breeze was likely. A large holiday crowd was in prospect as fans gathered from many towns of the Panhandle.

Officials today were to be Wyatt of Tulane as referee, Johnson of S. M. U. as umpire, and Henry of Oklahoma A. and M. as head-linesman.

Trick plays, with spinners predominating, were expected to be used. Both Coach Mitchell of Pampa and Coach Stallworth of Quannah. Both squads were in good condition for the clash. Pampa had a slightly heavier eleven.

The game was to begin at 2:30 p. m. Stores were closed for the day.

This Game of GOLF by O. B. KEELER

No matter how extreme a football fan you may be, or baseball fan, or boxing fan, you must admit, if you know anything about it whatever, that golf is the game that has them all sewed up in a sack when it comes to arguments about rules.

So far as I have been able to observe in 33 years, there is a golf rule for everything and there is time to look up and apply that rule while the competition is in progress.

You do not hear, or read, many aftermaths concerning the rules, following a golf match or a golf tournament. I have heard of two in the last 37 national championships I have covered. One was absurd from the jump—a competitor at stroke play being allowed to move and tee his ball at a penalty of two strokes, to one side of an unplayable position. As it was impossible to move the ball back of where it reposed, the application of the rule obviously was correct.

This Game of GOLF

The other matter was a question of fact. The ball either was lost—a penalty of strokes and distance—or was in a parallel water hazard, a penalty of one stroke. That stroke might have a lot of difference in the 1930 United States Open championship, which was won by a margin of two strokes.

The ruling of the official in charge was that the ball was in the parallel water hazard. This certainly was a reasonable assumption, since several thousand persons looked over all the available terrain not in the hazard for the prescribed five minutes.

But they are still writing about the "illegal" Yale touchdown against Georgia, and apparently all the officials were in error.

According to Fielding H. Yost, the correct ruling would have been to give Yale the ball on Georgia's 20-yard line.

As the noted football coach then emphatically points out, the whole course of the game would have been changed. Yale might have gone on to a score. And, equally as likely, Georgia, with the added wear and tear on attack, and time used, might have failed to put over the third and winning touchdown.

In golf, there is plenty of time to see what has happened, and to produce a rule on it. The ball either is in the hole or out of it, if you know what I mean. In case of a stymie, the nearest edges of the balls either are less than six inches apart, or six inches, or more, apart. And they will lie still while being measured.

Yost well says: "The arbiter's decision must stand, where every play is dependent upon conditions produced by preceding decisions. In football the court of last resort is on the chalk-lined gridiron. Officials make human mistakes, but are an important part of football."

True. But it is difficult for even a human being to make mistakes in the application of the rules of golf. When did you hear of a "long count" in golf, for instance?—though you sometimes hear things said about sixteen practice swings!

DO-X TO LISBON

CORUBNA, Spain, Nov. 27. (AP)—The DO-X, German passenger liner, left here today for Lisbon, Portugal, at 2:15 a. m. At Lisbon a decision will be made whether the plane is to continue across the Atlantic to North or South America.

Weather conditions were not very good at the start, but Dutch officials tried to lose so much time, needed to start anyhow.

Sport Slants

by ALAN GOULD ~ ASSOCIATED PRESS ~ SPORTS EDITOR

The flippant guess is that West Point, hearing of Notre Dame's disbarment of "Jumping Joe" Savoldi from the football field, decided to take no advantage of the Irish in their forth-coming battle at Chicago and, in pursuance of this decision, tossed "Crashing Cy" Letzelter from the gridiron squad.

It is more significant that Army, at head on the surface, has suddenly altered its athletic policy in ruling that the technicality over Letzelter's age while sufficient to keep him from totting the pigskin, is not serious enough to end his career as a cadet.

Heretofore, Army has taken the stand that any cadet, in good scholastic standing, was automatically and in all propriety entitled to take his full share in sports activity.

The explanation is that West Point does not desire to spoil Letzelter's ambitions to pursue a military career. Yet he was entered, it now seems, in violation of a specific age rule and the facts were known, or at least suspected, last October. For violation of an unwritten rule, Cadet Christian Keener Cagle summarily was dismissed last June.

The move comes a few weeks in advance of the temporary renewal of gridiron relations between the service academies for charity. It may prove a good talking point when discussions begin as they will for the restoration of the Army-Navy classic to its normal place in the annual football scheme of things by 1931.

Savoldi's banishment tosses additional confusion into the All-America situation. "Jumping Joe" seemed headed for the fullback role in this year's all-star gridiron cast, but his absence from Notre Dame's last three games will cost him a flock of ballots he otherwise might have considered all ready for delivery.

Albie Booth of Yale and Al Marsters of Dartmouth, the east's outstanding trace of ballcarriers in 1929, were outdistanced in the All-America running by November injuries that cut down their chances in the stretch.

This year Booth came down to the grand finale at full stride, easily the most talented of the east's backs, all things considered. Although listed as a quarterback, Little Albie is a halfback by natural equipment and ability. He may not class with Frank Corvallis of Notre Dame or Bobby Dodd of Tennessee, as a signal-caller, but he can do everything with natural skill, including tackling and even blocking, when there is a call for it.

Tennessee's running streak, along with those of Texas Christian and

TEXAS LOOKS TO GAME FOR THEIR TITLE

AUSTIN, Nov. 27. (AP)—Their hopes of a Southwest conference championship depending on the outcome, the orange and white clad University of Texas gridsters were to meet the Aggies of Texas A. & M. here this afternoon in the most colorful game of the season in the Southwest.

The Longhorns were almost universal favorites, but it has become somewhat of a tradition for the dope bucket to be kicked higher than the moon in games between the two schools and fans were prepared for anything.

Thousands of fans invaded Austin last night and this morning for the game. And hundreds came pouring in as 2 o'clock, the hour of the tilt, grew near.

The Texas squad, took a light workout and signal drill yesterday and then repaired to a quiet hotel to spend the night. The Aggies entertained yesterday at College Station and stopped for a light workout and the night at Taylor, coming into Austin this morning. Both Coach Clyde Littlefield of Texas and Malty Bell, Aggie mentor, announced the teams were ready to go.

The game was presaged by smiling blue skies. With a bright sun shining and a light wind blowing, it was an ideal football day and the fans were prepared to make the most of it. A dry, fast field seemed assured and there was enough of a tang in the air to add zest to the occasion.

Austin presented a gala spectacle as crowds thronged the streets and stormed hotels and restaurants. University officials predicted a capacity crowd of 48,000 would be on hand for the game. Forty thousand tickets had been sold when the offices closed last night and Ed Olie, Texas business manager, said he expected to sell the remainder of the pastebards before game time. Warning has been issued by university officials and by city police against the purchase of duets from other than official sources, it being feared that attempts might be made to sell counterfeit tickets.

Should Texas win they will have undisputed possession of the conference flag. If they are beaten, will open the way for S. M. U. and Baylor to tie for the title by winning their games Saturday. If the

Moose Didn't Know 'Em

The bull moose and six buck deer were the trophies carried out of the New Brunswick woods this season by Bob Shawkey's hunting party, which returned to civilization in the disguise pictured above. The moose shot by Shawkey, late manager of the Yankees, had an antler spread of 60 inches. With Shawkey above are Harry Rice, left, New York Yankee, outfielder, and Benny Bengough, former Yankee catcher, now on the Milwaukee Brewer roster.

Stets are tied the conference chase may result in a three way deadlock between Texas, S. M. U., and Baylor.

The game marks the 37th meeting of the historic rivalry between the two schools. Texas has won a preponderant majority of these games but the frays are always so spirited and so crowded with real football that it is looked upon as "the" football game of the season as far as Texas and A. & M. fans are concerned.

The probable line-ups:

Grid Classics on Eastern Program

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (AP)—Four football games which aggregate 114 years in age, top the list of a dozen clashes on today's eastern schedule. Pennsylvania and Cornell offer the most ancient rivalry of the quarter, having been at it for 37 years. Columbia and Syracuse, although they have played only nine games, have spread them over 29 years. Pittsburgh and Penn State have met for the last 26 years in assignment while the Brown-Colgate rivalry dates back 23 years.

Veteran Official Is Without Grid Job This Holiday

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27. (AP)—For the first Thanksgiving day in 29 years, Mr. J. "Mike" Thompson, dean of football officials, today was without an assignment.

Thompson is assigned to the Navy-George Washington game at Annapolis Saturday, and Commissioner Walter Okerson, head of the Officials' association, sought to relieve men with Saturday assignments for Thanksgiving.

Thompson for years officiated at the traditional West Virginia-Washington and Jefferson Thanksgiving day game at Morgantown, but this year that game was played earlier in the season.

Kenneth Solomon, 16, of Enid, Okla., arrived early this morning to spend Thanksgiving with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Solomon.

Charity Game Is Played at Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 27. (AP)—Chicago football fans, 60,000 or more of them, turned out today for the city's first Thanksgiving day game between major teams in 25 years, as Oregon State college and West Virginia came to Soldier Field to play for charity.

The contest was the first of a 10-year series staged by Chicago Shriners for the benefit of their crippled children's hospital. Bitterly cold weather spoiled attendance anticipations somewhat, but around $125,000 was expected to be realized for the fund.

Night of Zero Adds Misery And Deaths

CHICAGO, Nov. 27. (AP)—A night of zero and near zero temperatures in the wake of widespread snowstorms today piled higher the cold wave's drifts of misery and fatalities.

Eleven deaths had been added to the toll and though the weather bureau promised moderation of the severe cold in most of the Chicago forecast district, snow flurries were also predicted to increase the blanket which covered much of middle America.

A night blizzard in Ohio brought five traffic deaths and grounded all planes at Cleveland, three deaths occurred in Indiana and three more were attributed to cold in Chicago as the mercury dipped below zero in the suburbs.

A blinding snow storm at Argov, Ind., caused the death of a woman when her son-in-law drove in front of a train. At West Terre Haute, Ind., a truck driver was killed when his machine skidded over an embankment into a pond. A man at Mishawaka, Ind., was fatally injured when his car skidded and overturned.

A Chicago window-washer slipped from an icy sill 18 floors to his death while a fall on an ice-covered walk proved fatal to a woman. A switchman lost his life when he slipped and fell beneath the wheels of a locomotive.

The zero belt included Iowa where five below was predicted as minimum for parts of the state, sections of Wisconsin and Western Minnesota and the Dakotas where sub-zero temperatures had already been touched as the cold wave started its eastward spread the day before.

Besides several hundred unfortunates who passed the bitter night at Chicago police stations, unemployment shelters cared for upwards of 2,300 jobless and homeless. Throughout the north central states, communications were hampered by snow drifts.

HUNTERS ARE LOST

DETROIT, Nov. 27. (AP)—Coast guardsmen and customs border patrolmen from Detroit to Sault Ste. Marie were searching today for four men who left here Nov. 11 on a 42-foot steel tug for a hunting trip to Drummond Island in Lake Huron.

They had expected to return last Friday. When no word had been received from them yesterday, relatives asked Col. Heinrich A. Pickart, collector of customs, to institute a search. He notified border patrolmen and coast guardsmen on Lake St. Clair and Lake Huron to watch for them.

Uncle Sam's Star Air Bombers

Indian School Will Seek Oil

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Nov. 27. (AP)—Bacone Indian university, which has received several large donations in the past from oil wealthy Indians, now is to seek oil on its own land. It was announced today that a deep test would be put down at once on the school's 200-acre campus northeast of the city.

Mrs. Elizabeth Willis is head of the syndicate which blocked the acreage. J. P. Flannigan is drilling contractor.

An old well on the next section north encountered five oil sands in 1,800 feet, but none of them in paying quantities. Geologists have expressed the opinion, however, that the top formation of Beld hill upon which the university stands, looks promising.

HELD IN SLAYING

EL PASO, Nov. 27. (AP)—Mexican authorities in Juarez are holding a man reported as Abel Hernandez in connection with the slaying here yesterday of Philema Elzalde, 27. The woman was shot as she passed an alley.

Earlier in the day she had filed a complaint against Hernandez charging he had displayed a pistol. The assailant escaped into Mexico after the shooting and was arrested by Juarez police.

ROADMASTER KILLED

LITTSBURG, Nov. 27. (AP)—S. A. Mayfield, 40, of Hughes Springs, was fatally injured yesterday when the railroad motor car on which he was riding was wrecked 12 miles east of here. He was roadmaster for the Louisiana and Texas railroad. Members of a freight train crew who found Mayfield beside the wrecked car said apparently it had struck a railroad spike left on the track.

Used Airplane In Recent Campaign

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Representative Scott Leavitt of Montana, believes he has the modern seven league boots.

He is the only Montana republican in congress. His state has two democratic senators and one democratic representative. His district is about as big as New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey combined. But he was re-elected by a 7,000 vote majority after stumping tours which took him several thousand miles and required that he sometimes speak in mid-afternoon nearly 300 miles from his morning stand.

Where the owners of the seven league boots walked, Leavitt flew. Seven times he was able to maintain his schedule only by using an airplane.

FIRE NEAR DYNAMITE

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27. (AP)—Firemen from two towns were called today to battle a woods fire which burned to within 100 feet of a powder magazine at the plant of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours company near here.

A spark from a locomotive was believed to have started the blaze. It was extinguished by backfires and brooms and shovels by fire companies from Rosedale and Essex, nearby towns.

Chicago Man Is Going to Claim Family Fortune

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (AP)—Louis A. Vargas is bound for Venezuela today to claim his share in a fortune estimated at $1,000,000 and to forget three and one-half years in prison for a crime he did not commit.

Vargas, as Chicago restaurateur, called yesterday to settle his mother's estate, shared by him and three other children. Eighteen months ago he was paroled from Joliet, Ill., prison, and Governor Louis Emerson of Illinois recently granted him a pardon to restore his citizenship.

Entering the country 10 years ago from Switzerland, Vargas took employment as a waiter in Chicago. On Christmas eve, 1925, a friend held up a cabaret without his knowledge while he was standing outside and Vargas was charged with joint complicity. On advice of lawyers he pleaded guilty and was sentenced to from one to 20 years in prison.

After his parole, Vargas married and founded a prosperous business, to take care of which Mrs. Vargas remained in Chicago.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Adventure enters the life of CELIA MITCHELL 17, when she learns the father she has supposed dead is alive and wealthy. She leaves her unpretentious home in Baltimore to live in New York with her father JOHN MITCHELL, and her aristocratic grandmother.

MARGARET ROGERS, Celia's mother, is now a widow, having divorced Mitchell and remarried later. BARNY SHIELDS, a young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl and before leaving Baltimore Celia promised to be loyal to his love. Mitchell asks EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow, to introduce Celia to young people. Mrs. Parsons agrees, considering Celia a means to win Mitchell's affections though she is jealous and at once begins scheming to get rid of the girl.

She introduces Celia to TOD JORDAN, fascinating but of dubious character, and does all she can to encourage this match. LISI DUNDAN, socially prominent, becomes Celia's loyal friend. Mitchell begins Jordan in paying his daughter's attentions and forbids her to see him. Celia, afraid her grandmother and the elderly Mrs. Mitchell fetters illness and departs for a rest. The girl goes to Mrs. Parsons' home and finds her for a lengthy visit. Jordan sails there frequently.

Celia visits the Mitchell home in the city and tries to learn from MARTHA, a trusted servant, why her parents, John and Margaret Mitchell, separated. This attempt is unsuccessful. Meanwhile, Mrs. Parsons finishes with Mitchell and he tells her he has been investigating Jordan's past and that the young man is a gambler. She does not pass this news on to Celia. Next day Celia, Lisi and Jordan attend the race and there Celia encounters Barney Shields. Shields tells her he is working for a New York picture service and she agrees to telephone him next day.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXVIII
When Celia Mitchell opened her eyes next morning she saw at once that her plans for the day were ruined. The first wrinkles appeared in her forehead as she turned on her pillow and gazed out the open window.

Rain! It was falling in gentle monotony, not a downpouring summer torrent that would end as abruptly as it had begun. This rain was sure to last throughout the day. She sat up in bed and considered the dripping outdoors mournfully. Why, of all times, did it have to rain today? Her strategy, carefully studied out the night before, was useless now. She had planned, as an excuse to meet Barney, to stage an impromptu shopping trip. She would tell Evelyn she must have tennis shoes. They would have to be fitted and could not be sent out. Besides, Lisi had told her of a small store which carried the best equipment. It all sounded plausible enough, but who would be so ridiculous as to go shopping in the rain? No, that story would never do today.

Celia dressed slowly. She still was reticent about confiding in Evelyn. By the time she went down to breakfast no solution of her problem had come to mind.

"Your breakfast is ready, Miss Celia," Hilda greeted her. "Mrs. Parsons had a tray sent to her room."

"This was unusual. 'Isn't she feeling well?' the girl asked."

"I don't know. Rose said she wasn't to be disturbed."

Celia ate her lonely meal. It added to the general gloominess of the situation that there was no one across the table to chat with. Hilda moved quietly from kitchen to dining room. The whole house was silent.

When Celia had finished she went out on the porch and watched the rain. Larchwood without its sunshine seemed a different place. No tennis. No gardening. And Barney was expecting her to telephone. She spent most of the morning on the porch. Mrs. Parsons appeared a little before noon and said that she had slept and was feeling much refreshed.

Then a marvelous thing occurred. Evelyn noticed it first. "I believe the rain is stopping," she said. "Look—its much lighter than it was."

"Oh, if it only would!" "I'm glad, too," Evelyn said. "There's a bridge tournament at Fannie Marlow's club and I promised to play with her but I wouldn't think of going if the Shower keeps up. I don't know whether you'd enjoy it or not. Celia, unless of course you care to watch. Everyone will be playing."

The girl shook her head quickly. "No, that wouldn't be much fun for me. What I wanted to do this afternoon was go in town to get some tennis shoes. Lisi told me the place to buy them."

"I'm sorry, dear, but I'll need to go." "Oh, that's all right! I can taxi to the station and take the interurban. They say it saves lots of time."

"Well, of course, if you don't mind the smoke and crowd!" "I like crowds. That was the thrilling thing about the races yesterday."

The day had brightened miraculously. Within 15 minutes the steady tap-tap-tap of the rain had become a sprinkle. Ten minutes more and the sky was clear.

Evelyn had a long telephone conversation after luncheon. At 2:30 she tapped on the door of Celia's room.

"Come in!" the girl called. "Mrs. Parsons appeared in the doorway. She wore an afternoon gown and wrap and her becoming Reboux hat. "I'm going now," she said. "Fannie insists that I must stay to dinner with her. She has some friends coming I met abroad. I'll try to be home by eight or nine, though. I hope you won't be lonesome, dear."

"Never mind about me. I hope you win!" "Thanks. Goodby."

Celia waited five minutes. She saw the motor car move off down the driveway, then dashed downstairs to the nearest telephone.

"I want to speak to Mr. Barney Shields," she told the voice which answered after she had given the number of the Apex Picture Service. "Just a minute. I'll see if he's here."

Celia waited with tightening throat. It seemed so queer that Barney was actually near enough that she could speak to him. "Hello!"

It was Barney himself who answered. "This is Celia," she told him. "I'm sorry I couldn't call this morning, but I'm coming in town right away. Where can I meet you?"

Barney's voice was a series of delighted, somewhat incoherent sounds. He said he could meet her at four o'clock at the station. Yes, he knew all about the train service. He even got a time table and informed Celia when she could get her train. Barney, though new in the city, seemed to be persisting in his habit of knowing how to do just about everything.

There was ample time, but after Celia had put down the telephone she hurried to her room, pillaged dresser drawers and ransacked her clothes closet in frenzied haste. There were so many things she wanted to ask Barney that yesterday, in the suddenness of their encounter, she had forgotten. She wondered when he had last seen her mother. Surely he would have some message from her.

Celia flew into her clothes, thinking little about how she looked. Then she telephoned the suburban station for a taxicab. When she reached the interurban depot there was a wait of 20 minutes, which seemed an hour.

At last she was on the train, speeding toward the city. Along with the excitement of meeting Barney there was the novelty of getting off by herself on this journey. She was amazed when she realized the train was traveling under ground.

There was a tense 15 minutes and then she heard the conductor's raucous shout: "Last stop! All out!" Celia stepped timidly out into the vast railway station. She looked up and down in bewilderment. Someone touched her arm.

"Barney! How did you get here?" He was grinning at her from beneath the rakish brim of his straw hat.

"Feet, my child, feet. And a little good luck, too! I got off early." They smiled at each other, neither speaking. Then Shields asked: "Well, whither from here? You're going to have dinner with me, of course, but we have a couple of hours before that."

"I came in town to buy some tennis shoes." "Oh, was that the reason? I thought possibly you came to see me!"

"I mean—that was what I told Mrs. Parsons." They laughed like school children charmed a joke. Celia produced the address of the store Lisi had recommended. Barney immediately went into deep thought plotting a route to reach it.

"It's not far," he told her. "Would it be beneath your dignity to walk, mademoiselle?"

Celia said she would much rather walk than ride. She could never quite get enough of the entrancing streets of the metropolis. With Barney beside her she would feel secure in the maze of scurrying pedestrians and noisy vehicles.

They bought the shoes. It was after five when they left the shop. "Tell you what we'll do," Barney said. "Take a bus down the Avenue. It'll be cool on top. There's an Italian place down on Eleventh street I think you'll like." "The plan was agreeable to Celia. "But listen, Barney," she said, "you haven't told me anything about yourself or what you're doing here or anything yet! I want to hear about it."

"Come on, here's the bust! Tell you after we get upstairs." "But on the ride down Fifth avenue there was too much to be pointed out to Celia's eager eyes, too impressive a panorama to allow much conversation. Celia had glimpsed the famous thoroughfare from the windows of sedate limousines. Now she saw it as a glamorous, colorful procession between majestic buildings.

When they were finally settled at a table for two in the basement dining room and the girl had reclined over the blazing ovens where roasting chickens turned on spits and over the foreign atmosphere of the place, Barney Shields leaned forward. He clasped his hands together.

"This is what I've been looking forward to for a long time," he said. "You look swell, Celia!" "I guess it's the new clothes." "Are they new? Hadn't noticed 'em. You'd look swell to me no matter what you wore."

Celia smiled. "You're looking pretty well yourself, Mr. Shields. Now tell me about the job. When did you get here? Have you seen mother lately?"

Barney put up one hand. "Now wait a minute. Wait a minute! One at a time. I told you it was a long story. No, I haven't seen your mother very recently. You see it was a month ago I left Baltimore."

"A month ago? Barney Shields, do you mean you've been here a whole month and didn't try to see me?" "But, Celia, you don't understand. Wait—I'd better begin at the beginning. Do you remember six weeks ago about the aerial maneuvers at Washington? Spectacular stuff! I made a bunch of pictures and had good luck with 'em. Shot at unusual angles. You know that's the kind of thing I like. They seemed pretty fair, so after we'd used 'em in the Post I shipped a bunch of prints to Apert Pictures."

"Biggest piece of luck you ever heard of! Wagner—he's the man who runs Apert—is nutty about air stuff. He bought the bunch and wired there was a vacancy on the staff. Guess what your little friend Barney said to that? They were decent about letting me off on the paper. I packed my other suit and tooth brush and here I am!" "But a whole month—"

Shields' face had grown serious. "I had to be sure I was going to make the grade before I tried to see you," he said. "I'm getting twice the salary I did, but of course it wouldn't be considered anything in your crowd. That's why I waited, and why I didn't write. It looks like this job is going to be a real opportunity. Wagner seems to like me—anyhow, he's treating me O. K. You see how it was, don't you, Celia?"

"I—guess so." Barney hesitated. Then he leaned nearer, his clear, gray eyes twinkled.

"You still care, don't you?" he asked slowly. "There isn't—anybody else?"

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

THANKSGIVING IS BIG DAY FOR PAMPA SCHOOL PUPILS

No More Lessons Until Next Week! Harvest Festival Is Observed by Pupils in Their Chapel Programs

No more lessons until Monday! That is one thing Pampa school children have to be thankful for. Some have accompanied their parents to grandma's house to celebrate the harvest festival, and many others are enjoying their turkey at home.

But Thanksgiving is not at all play for Pampa children. For the past week they have been busy in their classes something of the history of the day and have discussed the things for which they were thankful. Some were thankful because of the holidays, while some expressed their appreciation for their homes, their families, their friends, and one little girl, a third grade pupil of Mrs. W. A. Priest at Morgan school, said she was thankful for the God who gave all the blessings.

Thanksgiving has been observed further in chapel and club programs of the various schools. Seniors Direct Program. Seniors directed an interesting Thanksgiving program at the Wednesday morning chapel service at high school. They secured as their principal speaker Mrs. Grace Higgins, who told of her observations of school pupils during her summer European tour, giving amusing descriptions of costumes.

Jim Ayres acted as chairman of the program, and Myrtle Thomas told the story of Thanksgiving. This was followed with two vocal selections by Guy Fagan, playing her own accompaniment on the ukulele, and Virginia Rose led the entire class group in singing the class song and giving the class roll in closing the program.

The primary department of Woodrow Wilson school, under the direction of Mrs. Catherine Wilkerson and Mrs. Mildred Stewart, presented a Thanksgiving program Monday at 1 o'clock. The program consisted of games, readings, songs, and drills, with all children in the department taking part.

Program Held by Historical Club of Junior High

The Historical Research Club, a Junior high organization, opened its meeting at the school Tuesday morning with a prayer and the singing of "Eyes of Texas." Smith Wise gave a reading, and Loris Bryson told of the first Thanksgiving. Lawrence McBee enumerated the things that the Junior high should be thankful for. Superintendent H. E. Fisher gave an interesting summary of what Thanksgiving meant and told of his early school days in Virginia.

An interesting museum which demands the attention of adults as well as children has been started by the group. Already the school has set aside a room for the exhibits, and The Pampa Glass Works is donating a glass case to hold some of the relics. Mr. Parker, father of one of the members, is making a small glass case to hold the foreign coins.

One of the most prized antiques is a stone from a ring worn by Napoleon Bonaparte. It has been handed down in a family ever since it was given to them in payment of a debt. There is a sugar-bowl that is 350 years old and another aged relic is one of the first watches made in Switzerland. It has been loaned to the museum by Paul Schneider. John Hestey recently contributed a Confederate $100 bill. The collection will be open to the public shortly in room 101 at the high school.

NO THANKS FOR HIM
CORSIKANA, Nov. 27. (AP)—A Corsicana man faced the prospect of losing his milk for Thanksgiving dinner. All his teeth disappeared down a drain pipe at his home last night and efforts of a plumber had failed to return the needed instrumenta early today. The man was hoping that some one could fit up a set of molars before noon, when the rest of the family planned to eat turkey.

Program Is Held by El Progreso Club On Tuesday

Seventeen members attended a meeting of El Progreso club Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. C. T. Hunkapillar. The program was featured by an interesting program on the influence of music, given under the direction of Mrs. W. A. Willson.

Favorite composers were given in answer to roll call, and Mrs. Willson opened the program by reading a paper on "Mechanical Music." She gave the history of mechanical music and stated that the victrols and radio had done much toward developing an appreciation of music, since they reached such large numbers of persons.

An effective treatment of "Great Thoughts of Great Minds on Music" then was given by Mrs. Charles Thut.

Mrs. Andrews sings a solo by Mrs. John Andrews, a reading by Mrs. Carson Loftus, and two selections by Mrs. W. A. Willson completed the program. Mrs. Loftus reading was "Sometime" by Mary Riley Smith.

Those present were Mrs. John V. Andrews, Mrs. C. M. Bryson, Mrs. Tom Eller, Mrs. William M. Craven, Mrs. George W. Briggs, Mrs. C. T. Hunkapillar, Mrs. H. L. Ledrick, Mrs. P. C. Ledrick, Mrs. Carson Loftus, Mrs. J. M. McDonald, Mrs. Dave Pope, Mrs. W. Purviance, Mrs. Charles Thut, Mrs. James Todd, George Walstad, Mrs. J. H. Kelley, and Mrs. W. A. Willson.

Business, Social Meeting Is Held By Dorcas Class

A business session, followed with a brief social period, was held by the Dorcas Sunday school class, Central Baptist church, Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. V. Darnell.

Mrs. R. E. Stonesifer was elected the class teacher and arrangements were made for an opening program of the church services Sunday.

Plans were also made for Christmas party which will be given with members of the Madonna class on the afternoon of Dec. 18.

Elaborate refreshments were served to the group at the close of the session. After the meeting visits were made to prospective members and others.

Those present were: Mrs. L. H. Anderson, Mrs. R. E. Stonesifer, Mrs. Ben Genas, Mrs. D. L. Lunford, Mrs. V. Darnell, and Mrs. J. A. Cliff, a visitor.

Many Hungry Mouths Fed Today

New York Social Workers Distribute More Than 50,000 Baskets to Needy; Few Will Go Without Turkey And All The Trimmings

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (AP)—Tanned to a crisp golden brown and stuffed to the bursting point with chestnuts, onions and sage, the bird that made Thanksgiving day famous met the enemy in New York today and succumbed to the lively battle of 6,000,000 knives and forks.

There was turkey for nearly everybody. And when there wasn't turkey there was chicken. For New York is the richest city in the world, and if anybody went hungry within her five boroughs today, it was because New York didn't know about it. First of all, she saw to it that there was plenty of activity today in kitchens where there hadn't been so much going on of late. Thousands and thousands of baskets—social workers say the number would undoubtedly run away beyond 50,000 if all the figures could be got together—were distributed yesterday. In each basket was a real Thanksgiving dinner, enough to give every youngster in the family, no matter how empty his stomach might have been at the start, bad dreams tonight.

Then today the city, through her thousands of civic, social, and patriotic institutions, grabbed every man, woman and child she could find for free Thanksgiving dinners that were served in hundreds of halls, churches and restaurants, all the way from the Battery to Van Cortlandt park. Merely adding up the numbers of guests at a dozen or so of the larger parties brought the figure to more than 30,000.

It was represented by a committee representing bond holders, who also offered to accept refunding bonds and tax debentures.

Peru Government Now in Trouble

ARICA, Chile, Nov. 27. (AP)—The Peruvian provisional government, headed by Lieut. Colonel Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, was said in private messages from Lima today to be in serious difficulties. Messages said there was constant fighting in the streets of the capital. Gunfire in several parts of the city also was reported. The advisers said several persons had been executed by the government, which was holding its own with difficulty. Strict censorship was in effect.

FILES AN APPEAL

AUSTIN, Nov. 27. (AP)—John D. Holland, Jr., convicted in Franklin county of the murder of Hiram Carpenter, today appealed to the court of criminal appeals. Holland was sentenced to four years. He was alleged to have stabbed Carpenter to death with a butcher knife.

and that the two men "flung him to the ground." "Just before I went over the hill, I looked back and both men were still stamping him," he stated. "I drove away as fast as I could. Evans said that he got Charles Cooper, a fellow-employee, and drove back by this place, and the car was gone but Hefner was standing near the man who was lying prostrate on the ground." As they drove along the road nearest the spot, Evans said Hefner "thumped down on his knees by the side of Crabtree." He and Cooper then went to Vance's office at LeFors in search of Constable Bob Wall, but when they couldn't find him, they got into the truck again and drove to where Crabtree's body was lying, Evans testified.

Answers Question

"I wasn't drunk and I didn't try to whip Hammonds. All I said was 'don't send anybody else to my home at 11 o'clock at night,'" Evans answered. In direct cross-examination, Evans said the ditch at the side of the road was about five feet deep and that he was never in it. He said he was scared to go down to where the two men were stomping the other man. Questioned by the state, he said he never had any weapon to protect himself. He said he made a statement two hours later to the district attorney. Miss Andrews said she knew Thompson and had met him at a dance. She said both men stayed at her house about one hour and that they came in a sedan. Ten minutes after they left, Crabtree came to the house and stayed 10 minutes, Miss Andrews said. She testified Crabtree had on a dark suit, boots and a hat. In cross-examination Miss Andrews said she saw Crabtree frequently before his death and had known him since last August. He had mentioned to her that some of his cattle had been stolen, she said. Answering questions asked by Mr. Saunders, Miss Andrews denied that Crabtree had ever told her that Thompson had been stealing his cattle. "Why didn't you tell Crabtree about the threats that had been

Russian Trial of Plotters Is Not Serious in Opinion of Reporter

MOSCOW, Nov. 27. (AP)—A lawyer with a cigarette in his hand shot questions in a firm voice at a black-haired, bespectacled man on trial for his life in the Soviet "House of Columns" today while four judges blowing clouds of smoke over the courtroom bent forward to listen. "This is the way they conduct a trial for treason in Russia. The defendant, as the proceedings resumed today was M. Kuprianov, one of eight men charged with fomenting a fantastic plot to overthrow the Soviet government, with the aid of several foreign powers. Professor L. K. Razmin, apparently the arch-plotter, looked himself more like a judge than a defendant. He sat close to the bench, with a set of sound magnifiers at his ears so that he could more readily hear the testimony. He busied himself continually making notes, and followed every more with eager interest.

Storm Veils Fate Of Distressed Ship

DEAL, Eng., Nov. 26. (AP)—A storm kicked up on the Strait of Dover tonight veiled the fate of a steamer which sent out an SOS this afternoon from a point three and one-half miles off North Foreland. The vessel was near enough shore that her lights were visible, but storm conditions defeated efforts to identify her definitely or to learn just what had happened to attempts at aid. It was understood the steamer's engines and steering gear were out of order. The powerful tug "Lady suit Dubonville" put out immediately in answer to the request for aid. Reports later said the tug had taken the stranded ship in tow for Dover but the rise in sea and wind indicated progress would be difficult. North Foreland is the most easterly point of land in England.
