Counties on East Watching Gray

PAVING PLAN WILL SPEED ROAD WORK

Commission Accepts Proposal on Grading

MIAMI, Oct. 22. (Special)—Grading of highway No. 33, (U. S. 60) from the Oklahoma line to the eastern boundary of Gray county this winter has been assured as the result of a trip to Austin by representatives of Roberts, Hemphill, and Lipscomb counties.

These counties, in order to speed up the work and to provide work for idle men during the winter months, offered to furnish the cash for the grading and drainage work, later to be reimbursed by the state when the contract for the paving is let. This plan proved acceptable to the state highway commission. Specifications will be drawn up at once so that the grading contracts may be let. Judge E. F. Ritchie of Miami, in speaking of the plan, said that it would speed up actual starting of paving by nearly a year, and assure laying of the slabs through the three counties next summer with state and federal aid.

He added that the three counties were watching Gray county with the hope that the special road district bonds to be voted upon next Saturday would be approved. The value of the paving on the east of Gray county will depend in part, he pointed out, upon the connecting of the two concrete ribbons by Gray county.

Setting of City Tax Rate Will Be Done Soon

A few more hearings on tax valuations will be necessary before the city tax rolls are completed, and before the rate will be set by the city commissioners. It was announced at the regular meeting yesterday. It is believed that the board will be able to set the rate at next week's meeting.

Valuations tabulated to date indicate that the 1930 rate will not exceed the 1929 assessment which was $1.50 on the hundred dollars. Contract was awarded to the Terrell Supply company of Amarillo to equip laboratories in the new city hall at a cost of $633.81. Paving on the alley back of the rose building was accepted by the commission.

The board is notifying property owners on North Frost from the end of the pavement to the Woodrow Wilson school that protests against the paving of that strip may be submitted at a hearing to be held November 4.

Indictment For Liquor Violation Found by Jury

County officers arrested Bill Baxter last night on a charge of selling intoxicating liquor last January. He was released on a $1,000 bond by Judge W. R. Ewing soon afterward.

An indictment charging Baxter with the offense was returned by the grand jury yesterday afternoon.

An indictment charging Lawrence Kissinger with criminal attack was dismissed this morning by the court on the defendant's motion. It was found that the indictment contained a technical flaw. Kissinger was re-arrested and charged with the offense in justice court, awaiting action of the grand jury.

A jury which heard evidence in the trial of Henry Aiken, charged with possession of intoxicating liquor, was unable to agree on a verdict and was dismissed by Judge Ewing this morning. The jury stood nine to two. Aiken was charged jointly with Fred Meyer and "Ditch" Payne. He testified that he went to Myers and Payne's house "to get a drink of beer." Officers on the stand said that Aiken was "snapping" the beer when they arrested him.

PAMPA, GRAY COUNTY, TEXAS, WEDNESDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 22, 1930

Poultry Thieving Serious

Association Will Be Formed to Fight Menace

Poultry thieves have become so active in this community that attention must be given to it, according to Irvin Cole, president of the Pampa Poultry Breeders association.

Organization of an Anti-Poultry Theft association is planned at a meeting to be held as soon as County Agent Ralph Thomas returns from College Station. Tooting of the fowls and registration of the brands with the county clerk has been arranged. The association will have more than 50 members, and possibly as many as 100, Mr. Cole predicts.

Mr. Cole said that serious consideration is being given to the establishment of a poultry charity arrangement, whereby persons claiming to be "starving to death" may secure chickens without stealing them. "We believe it is more honorable to beg than to steal, and our members would be sympathetic," he said in mentioning that a quota of gifts by members would be established.

Several suspended sentences have lately been given to persons admittedly in need, but this plan is held to be dangerous and illogical.

Borah Comes Out For Russian Recognition Soon

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Oct. 22. (AP)—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho declared without qualification for recognition of the Russian government in a campaign address last night.

"I am not afraid of Communist propaganda," he said. "There is nothing the people of the United States reject more quickly, when they know what it is, than they do the Communist doctrine," he said.

"If I had my way I would trade with every country in the world. I know in due time we will recognize the government of Russia. We don't do it now because that would be regarded in some quarters as an endorsement of the Communist doctrine."

"No one has less use for the doctrine than I, but I believe that Russia, in pursuing her present policy will work out something in the nature of a sane democracy."

Dallas Woman Under Charge

DALLAS, Oct. 22. (AP)—Mrs. Billie Douglas, 35, was in jail here today charged with murder, in connection with the fatal shooting Monday night of C. A. Tiller, 35, of Fort Worth.

Tiller was found at a residence here mortally wounded. He died late yesterday, steadfastly refusing to tell who shot him. Officers reported they found Mrs. Douglas in a room with Tiller, holding a pistol from which one cartridge had been discharged. She also maintained silence.

HAYWARD THOMPSON WILL BE COMPLETELY BLINDFOLDED IN REMARKABLE EXHIBITION HERE

"Will Hayward Thompson be thoroughly and perfectly blindfolded Saturday afternoon when he makes his uncanny driving exhibition in his spanking new Chrysler 'sedan'?"

He will. Twelve folds of inky black silk will cover his head from forehead to chin. This will be accomplished by simply folding a long piece of silk over and over and pinning it, together with small safety pins. It will be fastened in the back of the head with elastic clips and then, to make doubly sure that no light may reach the eyes it is planned to place heavy elastic bands over the bandage at the eyes, so they can not open underneath the bandage and also place an elastic band over the folds under the nose, so as to prevent light from seeping in from below.

This mask will be open to public inspection from 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon until 3 o'clock. This will be directly in front of the News-Post building. At 3 p. m. sharp Hayward Thompson will request that some distinguished operator plaster the bandage over Thompson's normal sense of sight. We have it from T. J. Clanton. (See THOMPSON, Page 2)

W. C. T. U. Speaker Goes Today to Canadian—to Return Thursday

Mrs. L. L. Brewer, national evangelist-organizer for the W. C. T. U., went to Canadian today but she will return to Pampa to conduct a city-wide meeting at the First Methodist church at 2:30 p. m. Thursday.

Friends of the cause of prohibition are being urged to accept the invitation to hear Mrs. Brewer discuss "Present Dangers."

Mrs. Brewer is enthusiastic about the fifty-sixth annual convention of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union to be held in Houston from Nov. 13 to 19.

Delegates will attend from every state in the union and also from territories of Hawaii, Alaska and Porto Rico. In addition, there will be many women from foreign countries representing the W. C. T. U. abroad. Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the National W. C. T. U., has announced the underlying purpose of the convention to be to plan a further educational drive to offset attempts to repeal prohibition. Mrs. Boole in her opening address will deal with the efforts of the W. C. T. U. to organize women in opposition to prohibition and its enforcement. Also the convention is expected to give considerable emphasis to scientific temperance education, the traditional work of the W. C. T. U.

Among those who will address the convention are Sen. Morris Sheppard of Texas, author of the 18th amendment; the governor of Texas, Dan Moody, and Gov.-Elect Ross S. Sterling. There will also be addresses by Dr. Ira Landrith of Chicago, president of the International Society of Christian Endeavor; and by Miss Gracie Leggo Houlder of Australia; by Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington of Westerville, Ohio, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism; and by Mrs. Elizabeth A. Perkins of Ann Arbor, Mich., members of President Hoover's conference on child health and protection.

The liquor problem abroad will be discussed by experts from other countries. Particular attention will be paid to a discussion of the unsuccessful results of government control of liquor traffic in Canada. It is expected that a large gain in membership of the organization will be reported by Mrs. Anna Madden DeYo, national corresponding secretary of the organization, and

ONE REMEDY IS TO CEASE ALL DRILLING

Proration Program Is In Danger of Failing

AUSTIN, Oct. 22. (AP)—Faced with possible failure of the state-wide proration program, and a resulting condition in the oil industry characterized by one speaker as "chaos," the State Railroad Commission met today with representatives of pipeline companies from all over the state to discuss alleged discriminations by the common carriers.

Several "remedies" were suggested. Among these was that all new drilling be stopped in Texas. This, the most drastic step proposed, found support from but three of a score of lawyers present, the others contending the commission did not have the power to take this step. The position of the pipeline companies, as expressed by several representatives, was that they now are taking more oil than the market calls for, and are nearing the capacity of storage facilities. When this capacity is reached, they said, it will become necessary to cut their allocations, resulting in further inequalities between operators and fields.

Need No More Oil No carrier represented agreed to make new connections, all speakers stating they had all the oil they wanted, and all they were allowed under the present program, from present connections. One of the complaints had been that pipeline companies were failing to connect new wells.

Discussion centered principally about alleged discriminations in the Panhandle-Wichita Falls-Ranger districts. H. C. Cochran, umpire in the Panhandle district, said there were 112 wells unconnected there, of which approximately 90 had been unconnected for from 30 days to 10 months. The others, he said, had been brought in since the proration order became effective.

Possibility of suits being filed against operators who have exceeded their allowable production was brought out by Pat M. Neff, chairman of the commission, when the umpire testified that the Wilcox Oil company, Panhandle operators, took 1,000 barrels more oil per day from their leases than was allowed under the proration order.

Neff said he was in favor of bringing suits when such cases were found. The chairman of the Panhandle advisory committee said the district already had an injunction suit, and had thought it best that no further suits be started until it was disposed of, but that he thought, after Neff's statement that all violators would be prosecuted after the meeting of the advisory committee next week.

To Discuss Remedies All the larger purchasers in the Panhandle and North Texas districts agreed that they would meet and discuss a cooperative program. All except Gulf and Magnolia pledged their cooperation, with certain restrictions. It was brought out that despite the proration order, production in Texas still is far in excess of market demand, especially in the districts under discussion, and that in the last 30 days there has been a decrease in the demand for North Texas crude.

The Gulf company representative said his company had "no state-

Draws Suspended Sentence

P. B. Scroggins drew a four-year suspended sentence in district court this morning on a charge of forgery. He was tried a few days ago for the same offense and received a two-year sentence. Scroggins was the chief witness against John Kennedy, who was convicted and sentenced to prison for three years. Kennedy and Scroggins were charged jointly.

The Army's Anti-Aircraft "Ears"

Hostile airplanes are sometimes pretty hard to see, but they can be heard long before they are sighted—and United States army engineers have taken advantage of that fact in perfecting defenses against aerial attack. This picture shows the Sixty-third Coast Artillery's "ears," elaborately camouflaged set up outside of Los Angeles for the southern California war maneuvers. On the truck are Captain A. L. Parmelee and Sergeant G. E. Brunson, who have caught the hum of approaching airplanes in the microphones and are telephoning the position to headquarters; in the Col. Wils Peace, directing the "defense" in the maneuvers.

NO HOPE IS HELD FOR 61 PRUSSIAN MINERS IN DEPTHS OF COAL SHAFT

ALSDORF, RHEINISH RUSSIA, Oct. 22. (AP)—This mining town of 10,000 inhabitants was plunged into new grief today when the realization struck home that there was no hope for 61 miners still under ground in the Ann II mine here.

With a certain death total of 231 and the bodies of 170 victims of yesterday's mysterious explosion all reportedly recovered, there seemed every likelihood that further increases in the death list must be made.

Ninety-nine persons remained in hospitals, many of them in critical condition. When rescue crews, wearing gas masks, penetrated to a pit 1,500 feet below the surface, a ghastly sight met their eyes. All about them the victims lay, apparently asphyxiated. From this pit not one person had emerged alive. It was only then that the would-be rescuers realized hope must be given up for any others in that area.

There were heartbreaking scenes as the dead were taken from the shaft and their families identified them. Many persons came from surrounding towns, some even motoring over the nearby Belgian and Dutch borders. These thronged the town today but a strong force of mounted and foot police kept the crowds at a distance from the mine.

A government commission continued its efforts to learn the cause of the explosion. The blast in fact was attributed to ignition of dynamite. Coal damp also was suspected but it was the belief that this latter deadly factor had not entered into the tragedy that encouraged those above ground for many hours in the belief that large numbers of the miners would be rescued alive from the deep but well ventilated galleries.

No Clues Seen in Texas Murder

FORT WORTH, Oct. 21. (AP)—Lack of a possible motive or other clues puzzles officers today in their search for the slayer of J. C. Canvender, 63, tenant farmer, whose body was found last night covered with oats, in the small granary on a farm northeast of Birdville, near here. He lived alone.

Search for Canvender began when cows in the milk lot at the farm, unattended all day, attracted attention of neighbors by their lowing. Canvender, apparently had been killed Monday night. His skull was crushed by a blow struck from behind and a heavy cord tied tightly around his neck was embedded in the flesh.

GAS PLANT BEING BUILT NEAR PAMPA

Empire Company to Make Fuel at New Pool

Adding another industry to the growing number in the Pampa community, the Empire companies have started construction work on a natural gasoline plant on their 64-acre Sullivan lease in section 136, offsetting the new gusher west of the city.

The capacity will be 20,000 gallons daily. This new plant, to be known as the Sullivan, will treat natural gas from the surrounding acreage. It is approximately four miles southwest of Pampa. The Empire's booster plant, being erected in the center of section 138, will force gas to the new gasoline plant.

The booster plant will be ready for use in a few days, but the week's work will just about finish foundation laying for the gasoline plant. Empire is starting another similar plant in the 6-6 area of Seminole county, Oklahoma to serve a recently extended producing area in the south end of that field. This Konawa field has a number of new locations. Empire already has one gasoline plant in the original pool, which has been operating since March 28 of this year.

Work on both plants is expected to progress rapidly, since materials are available in each area. The Konawa plant will have an initial capacity of five million cubic feet of natural gas daily. The natural gasoline output is indefinite as the content of the gas will be affected by proration, lease, and operating conditions.

Industries to Be Subject Of Local Chamber

Industries will be the subject of the regular monthly luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce next Monday noon. W. H. Curry, chairman of the industrial committee, will be chairman.

According to Mr. Curry, the discussion will hinge around the problems of obtaining new industries and about the influence business men can exert in this regard.

Mr. Curry said that as the result of the discussions a more definite policy will be established. At the same time, several propositions confronting the committee will be described and considered.

RULING IS POSTPONED

Judge W. R. Ewing yesterday suggested to Henry Gerhard, manager of the Gray County creamery, that he make further efforts to reduce noise complained of by citizens living nearby, but a definite ruling was postponed for 15 days. Meanwhile, experiments in noise elimination will be conducted. While expressing the belief that the noise was troublesome, Judge Ewing cited decisions showing that plaintiffs usually have no redress in court in such cases.

AMARILLO, Oct. 22. (AP)—A formal request for a public hearing on application of the Fort Worth & Denver railroad to suspend two night trains operating between Dallas and Amarillo was filed with the Texas railroad commission today by H. G. Hamrick, representing the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

The railroad's request now before the commission asks authority to suspend trains Nos. 5 and 6.

We have it from Mr. Clouston that the terminus of the exhibition will be right inside the show-room of the Clouston Motor company and here the blindfold will be removed from the face and head of Hayward Thompson, after which the bandage will again be open to the public for inspection and then

Hayward Thompson has agreed to tell his amazing story to the crowd first hand. And what a story it will be. One that is stranger than fiction yet based on unvarnished truth.
Remember Hayward Thompson will give the same exhibition in Pampa that he has given in every large city in America. He will convince you that par-optic vision (sight through the hypersensitive nerve ends in the skin is true.)

Just watch him when he enters the Pampa Brown-bilt Shoe store, the home of Brown-bilt shoes for men and women and Buster Brown shoes for boys and girls. Be on hand at this store, operated by Joe Szarus at 123 North Cuyler. Watch for the time of his appearance at the various stops which will be published in the official route of the show, in Friday evenings paper and Saturday mornings paper.
See him when he visits the Diamond Shop, "credit jewelers." Go inside and watch him demonstrate the new Majestic Refrigerator and radios. See him select one of the nationally advertised American-built watches. Watch him go thru the process of purchasing a blue white diamond; a Bulova watch and a set of 1947 Rogers Community silver. . . . this on the popular dignified credit plan. A treat, I tell you. A show in itself.
Following Thompson on this strange venture will be a fleet of official press cars; all Chryslers, furnished by the Clouston Motor company. In these cars will ride official observers, reporters, and Dr. C. V. McCallister and Dr. Arch Meador of the Mineral Wells clinic. It is the intent of the latter to watch the physical reaction of Thompson and we have an idea they are intensely

The department of international relations, presided over by Mrs. May Bell Harper of Connecticut, will present a report which is awaited with interest by members of the W. C. T. U. who are in favor of all measures for peace, arbitration and disarmament.

The convention will pay more than the usual attention to the results of field work for temperance in schools and colleges this past year. A pageant "The Panoply of Youth," in which several hundred young Texas people will take part will have a bearing on this phase of the work; and is now in course of preparation under direction of Mrs. Flora Kays Hanson of Evansston, Ill.
A presentation of "Youth's Roll Call," containing the signatures of several hundred thousand young and women in high schools and colleges, in favor of the 18th amendment and personal total abstinence will be a feature of the convention.

Heart Hungry

CELIA ROGERS, just out of high school, spends a hot July day looking for a job. Her mother, MARGARET ROGERS, is a widow, employed as a seamstress in a dress shop. On the day the story opens Margaret receives a letter which she conceals from Celia. It is an offer, signed JOHN MITCHELL, to provide the girl with every advantage of education, travel and social position if the mother will give her up. Margaret declares she will never do this.

Celia goes for a drive with BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer. Barney tells Celia he loves her and swears that some day they will be married. Next day the girl continues her search for work. She goes to the shop to see her mother and finds Mrs. Rogers has been taken suddenly ill. The woman recovers but is told by a physician she must stop working. Margaret writes a letter to John Mitchell and he comes to Baltimore. After a long interview he convinces Margaret she must accept his offer and let Celia go.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VII

Celia stood before the dressing table, mirror in hand, studying her profile. She turned her head, chin tilted, and tried the effect. She was smiling, half pleased, and half doubtful.
Her soft waving hair was arranged in a new way drawn back from the ears. It looked more grown up, more sophisticated. Would Barney like it?
She pushed back the little curl which insisted on touching her cheek. The curl promptly bobbed forward again.
Celia's eyes were dreamy. She was paying more attention to her appearance these days, thinking more about clothes and spending more time before the mirror since Barney had told her she was lovely looking. Barney said silly things but she liked to hear them.
"Why—mother! I didn't hear you!"
The girl turned quickly. Mrs. Rogers stood in the doorway of the bedroom. Without replying she drew off her hat, laid it with her purse and gloves on the bed and sank into a chair.
"You're awfully late," Celia continued. "They haven't any right to ask you to stay overtime these hot days! I was getting worried—"
"But you shouldn't have, dear," her mother interrupted. "I told you I'd be late this evening."
"Yes, I know. But it isn't fair for Mrs. Foster to ask you to stay," Margaret Rogers arose.
"I wasn't at the shop," she said. Her back was toward the girl. She did not see Celia's startled glance. "Not at the shop," she said.
"No, I—I was talking to an old friend."
There was a pause during which Celia eyed her mother expectantly. After a moment Mrs. Rogers added: "I'll tell you about it later. We'd better have dinner now, hadn't we? It must be nearly six."
"Everything's ready," Celia said, following her mother into the living room which was also a dining room. She took dishes from the cupboard and placed them on the table.
Presently they sat down to the meal. There was a salad of which Celia was proud, rolls and a vegetable and fruit.
"I planned to have everything cold," the girl explained, "so the room wouldn't get heated."
Margaret nodded absently. The precaution had been only partly successful. A slight breeze stirred the warm.
"You're not eating mother!"
"I'm—not hungry."
Margaret cleared her throat then looked at her daughter.
"We're going to have company this evening. I—invited my friend to call."
"But who is it?" Celia could not keep the curiosity from her voice.
"You don't remember him, Celia," the mother said. "I used to know him long ago. Before we lived in Baltimore."
"What's his name?"
"Mitchell—John Mitchell."
Celia drew a sigh and laughed.
"Well—that's a relief, honestly, mother, when you first came in I thought something was wrong. You seemed so mysterious I was afraid you were sick. Who is this Mitchell? I'll bet he's an old suitor of yours! Isn't he?"
For an instant Margaret's eyes held her daughter's. Her cheeks tinged with pink as she answered: "I was fond of him once. He—you must be very nice to him, Celia. I want you to look your prettiest. Wear the rose dress!"
"But, mother, I don't have to be here when he comes do I? Barney's going to take me to the Stanley. It's the new Ramon Novarro picture! You'll want to talk about old times—"
Margaret Rogers' voice was firm. "You will have to go with Barney some other time. I want you here tonight."
"Can't I stay just a little while and be excused?"
Mrs. Rogers shook her head.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22. (AP)—Both wheat and corn averaged higher in price here early today despite initial downturns. The transient declines in grain values were associated with setbacks in Liverpool wheat quotations and with stock market weakness. On the other hand, important Chicago houses took advantage of price declines to acquire ownership of cereals.

"No, Celia. Not this evening. Don't ask it."
There was silence after that. Celia had been in the house all day. She wanted to see the picture and her mother's firm insistence seemed an affront to 17-year-old dignity.
"What time is he coming?"
"Eight o'clock. I'm sorry to interfere with your pleasure, but, really, dear, I have reasons."
The cloud passed from Celia's face as quickly as it had appeared. She slipped around the table, kissed her mother's cheek and laughed.
"All right! Your pride and joy will stay right here beside you. When Barney comes I'll tell him the party's off."
There was a great deal to be done to get the apartment in order for company. The dishes were carried from the table. Celia washed and wiped them while Mrs. Rogers bustled about with a dust cloth, setting furniture at different angles, converting the dining room back into a living room.
"It's after seven!" her daughter reminded her presently.
"That's all right. I'm almost through, now. You'd better start dressing."
"Do you think Mr. Mitchell will stay very long?" Celia paused in the doorway to inquire.
"I don't know."
"Isn't it funny you never mentioned him before?" the girl persisted.
"Oh—I guess I just didn't happen to. Go on, Celia. Get ready."
The girl had just slipped the rose frock over her head when Mrs. Rogers raised the lid of the old trunk and began fumbling through the upper tray. She drew out her jewel box.
"Here—Celia, I want you to wear this."
It was the little gold locket. Celia had never seen her mother wear the trinket, not had Margaret Rogers ever offered it to her daughter before. The locket hung on a narrow black ribbon and Margaret tied it about the girl's throat.
Celia turned to catch a view in the mirror. She felt her mother's arms flung suddenly about her.
"Darling—haven't we been happy together—haven't we?" Margaret murmured brokenly.
"Why, of course! Of course we have!"
"So many things other girls have that you've missed," the mother went on. "But you'll have them too, Celia!"
The girl drew away, eyeing her mother curiously. It was odd for Margaret Rogers to show such emotion.
"Here—let me help you dress," the girl said. She began to undo fasteners of her mother's gown.
Five minutes later a shrill whistle came from downstairs.
"That's Barney," Celia said. "I'll run down and tell him I can't come."
She had not attempted the new coiffure. The brown curls framed the girl's face as usual. The bright dress added color to her cheeks and her eyes were shining as she hurried down the stairs.
"Hello, Barney."
The young man's greeting was a second whistle, low intended to express amazement.
"Sa-ay!" Shields exclaimed. "Somebody's looking pretty swell. I didn't by mistake ask you to dine at the Ritz-Carlton, did I?"
Celia laughed.
"Of course. Don't you remember? I'm terribly sorry, though. I can't go."
He thought it was part of the joke.
"And why not, oh, maiden fair?"
"Because mother's got company coming. Really, I'm serious, Barney. I mean I can't go to the movies with you. She only told me at dinner time. I tried to beg off but it's no use."
"Can't you stay a while and then duck out?"
"No, I thought of that too. It's some friend of mother's she hasn't seen for years and she says I've got to be there."
"Has your company come yet?"
"No."
"Well, you could hop in the car and drive around a couple of blocks, couldn't you? Gosh, I'd like to see you for a minute or two and we can't very well talk here."
Celia hesitated. She glanced up toward the apartment where her mother was waiting.
"I shouldn't," she said softly, "but I will!"
Fifteen minutes later a girl in rose silk with windblown curls and sparkling eyes ran up the stairs leading to the third-floor apartment. She was late and yet her heart was singing.
"Maybe he hasn't come yet," she told herself hopefully.
But as soon as she reached the top of the stairs she knew that she was wrong. Celia saw the stranger sitting beside the window. The light shone on his face. Involuntarily the girl stopped. A curious, terrifying feeling came over her. Celia, standing in the shadowed hallway, felt the tenderness of the room's atmosphere—she drew back, steadying herself with a hand on the railing.
Her mother's voice came to her

WHY are Camels welcomed with cheers in any company—a twosome or a crowd? Because they're mild—not flat or tasteless but naturally mild. They have the marvelous aroma that only choice tobaccos, mel- lowed by golden sunshine, then expertly cured and superbly blended, can give a cigarette. There's nothing artificial about this delightful fragrance. No doctoring, no over-processing can produce it. Camel's refreshing mildness is there from the start.

Swing with the crowd to Camels. Learn the happy difference between true mildness and insipid flatness. Smoke without fear of throat-discomfort or after-taste—just for pleasure!

About $200 is being added to the Episcopal church building fund as result of an auction sale sponsored by the Episcopal Woman's Auxiliary Tuesday evening in the basement of the First Methodist church. Amusu Club Members And Husbands Favored With Dinner At Schneider

Members of the Amusu club and their husbands were tendered a dinner last evening at the Schneider hotel with Mrs. Alex Schneider as hostess.

Supper and bridge tables were decorated in Halloween colors. A novel feature of the evening was a "recess" between supper and bridge, during which members and their husbands went to the auction held at the Episcopal church. Much interest was afforded by the contents of the packages. Mr. and Mrs. Siler Faulkner held high score for the men and women respectively in the bridge playing, which followed, while Alex Rainouard won the prize for low score.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Dodson, Mr. and Mrs. Siler Faulkner, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Hunkapillar, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bratton, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. DeLea Vicars, Mrs. G. G. Rainouard, Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Sills, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Smith, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Lewis, and Alex Rainouard.

FEMININE FANCIES

BY HOLLYVE SELLERS

Yesterday I stated that charm should be studied, so today I'm going to give you a sample lesson. (No need to get out your notebooks, ladies. I think you can remember everything that is necessary without taking it down.)

We read in the Literary Digest that Prof. C. W. Valentine of the University of Birmingham, in speaking at a recent meeting of the British Association, gave 10 reasons why one baby laughed. The last, which did not come until the baby was almost a year old, was this: a mild discomfiture or embarrassment of others, a cause which many psychologists hold to be the chief one among adults.

Keep your eyes and ears open next time you have a conversation with another person. Does that person laugh when there is really nothing funny, or when his eyes portray the fact that he is not particularly happy? If so, is this laugh charming? Does it make you want to laugh with him? Of course not.

Then turn those eyes and ears toward yourself. Do you yourself laugh when there is nothing funny and when you own happiness is not deep enough to produce a sincere laugh? If you do, then there's your chance to put into use a lesson in charm. And insincere laugh is not charming; it takes from your own appearance of sincerity, and it makes those about you uncomfortable, so don't use it.

A smile, in most instances, is more attractive than a laugh anyway. So when tempted to give a nervous laugh, why not try smiling instead? You can actually sense the added poise and charm if you will do this.

Of course, if you are really amused enough, or really happy enough, don't try to suppress a hearty laugh. That kind of laugh will do you good and will do those around you good.

Here are the other reasons for the baby's laughter:

"The first laugh appeared at the age of 39 days and was caused by delight at the approach of food."

"The second was at the age of 10 weeks and was in imitation of the laughter of mother or father. At this age it was noticed that tickling caused laughter. At 12 weeks laughter was caused by sight of a bright, attractive object."

"Six weeks later, when the baby was 18 weeks old, a laugh at some simple, non-painful shock or surprise. At six months the boy's laughter had become frequent, and could be invoked by imitating the child's own actions or by mere repetition of something, as when a stage comedian makes his audience laugh by repeating again and again, some incongruous or meaningless phrase."

"At seven months, the baby laughed for the first time at intellectual surprises. Like the father speaking in falsetto voice. At seven months, also, there were uncertain signs of laughter caused by mere recognition of a familiar person or thing. Between eight months and 12 months appeared the laughter of accomplishment, induced, for example, by success in standing alone."

MACHINE PEELS 'SPUDS' NOW; 'K. P.' RELIEVED OF OLD JOB

Peeling potatoes by hand has been found too costly and wasteful, so this machine skins 'em at a rate of 10 minutes to the 100-pound sack.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20 (AP)—The World war veteran who did some of his campaigning against a stack of potatoes with a peeling knife as a weapon should see how they uncover the "spud" today.

The machine age has relieved the "k. p." of his most obnoxious task. An efficiency expert found that hand peeling was too costly, so a machine now does the job. Each regiment of the Illinois national guard has a peeling machine.

The company "k. p.'s" bring along their potatoes, dump them in the hopper, and carry them back to the cook shack—peeled.

Peeling "spuds" under the old regulation, generally was a punishment. Minor infractors of the military law were given the task. Rookies, too, drew it. It was considered a discipline-promoter.

But too many potatoes were thrown away with the parings, or the parings were too thick—hence the machine.

The typical potato peeler skins 25 pounds in two minutes and disposes of a sack of 100 pounds in 10 minutes. It is frugal about the thickness of the peeling.

During a 15-day encampment it was estimated that the machines saved 10 tons, or 100 sacks of potatoes. Nine thousand men were fed daily at the camp.

VAN RYN TO BE MARRIED THIS EVENING

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Oct. 22. (AP)—John Van Ryn and Marjorie Gladman, two of the nation's outstanding tennis players, will be married tonight in the St. Augustine-by-the-Sea Episcopal church.

The romance began on the tennis courts, where the two met repeatedly at tournaments here and abroad.

Miss Gladman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gladman, of Mar Vista. While a student at the University of Southern California she won the women's intercollegiate tennis championship.

Van Ryn's home is in East Orange, N. J. He gained fame with his racket while playing for Princeton university, and since graduation has appeared in many important tournaments, this year winning a place on the United States Davis Cup team.

Bain to Meet Rosenbloom At Gotham Ring

NEW YORK, Oct. 22. (AP)—Able Bain, Newark light heavyweight, has picked a good spot to make his New York debut. He meets Maxie Rosenbloom, the Harlem clown, in a 15-round match for the light heavyweight championship in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Bain's ring activities heretofore have been confined to Newark and its environs and just how he was selected for the bout with Rosenbloom has been mystifying the experts. His most notable achievement is a decision he received over Rene de Vos, the Belgian Fox.

Rosenbloom rules a 5 to 1 favorite with no takers. The Harlem Harlequin, who won the title by whipping Jimmy Slattery last spring, is one of the hardest battlers in the ring to beat. Bain, on his record, does not belong in the same ring with the champion.

Ball Rules to Be Simplified in National League

NEW YORK, Oct. 22. (AP)—John Arnold would rather keep out of baseball discussions until the football season is over.

The National league's president was asked to comment on the suggestion of E. S. Barnard, president of the American league, that the sacrifice fly be eliminated. He declined but intimated that more important revisions in the baseball rules are under consideration. These changes will be put before the joint meeting of the major leagues in December.

"Scoring rules," he said, "in particular need clarifying so that the average fan can tell the difference, for instance, between an error and a hit. The method of figuring pitchers' records also is in need of changing. A committee of baseball writers is working on clarification of the rules but I can not say just what they will recommend."

For Sheriff

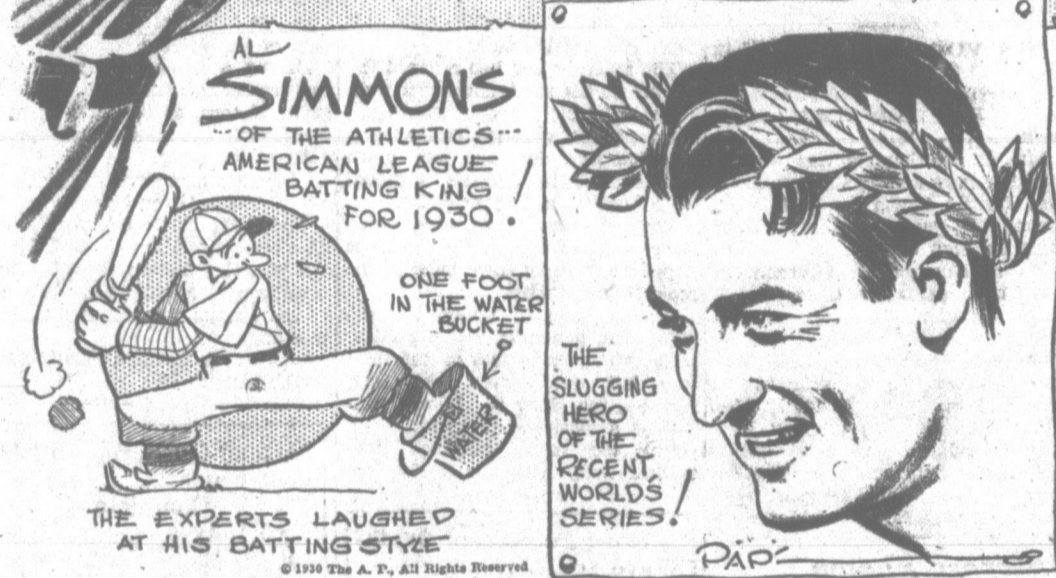

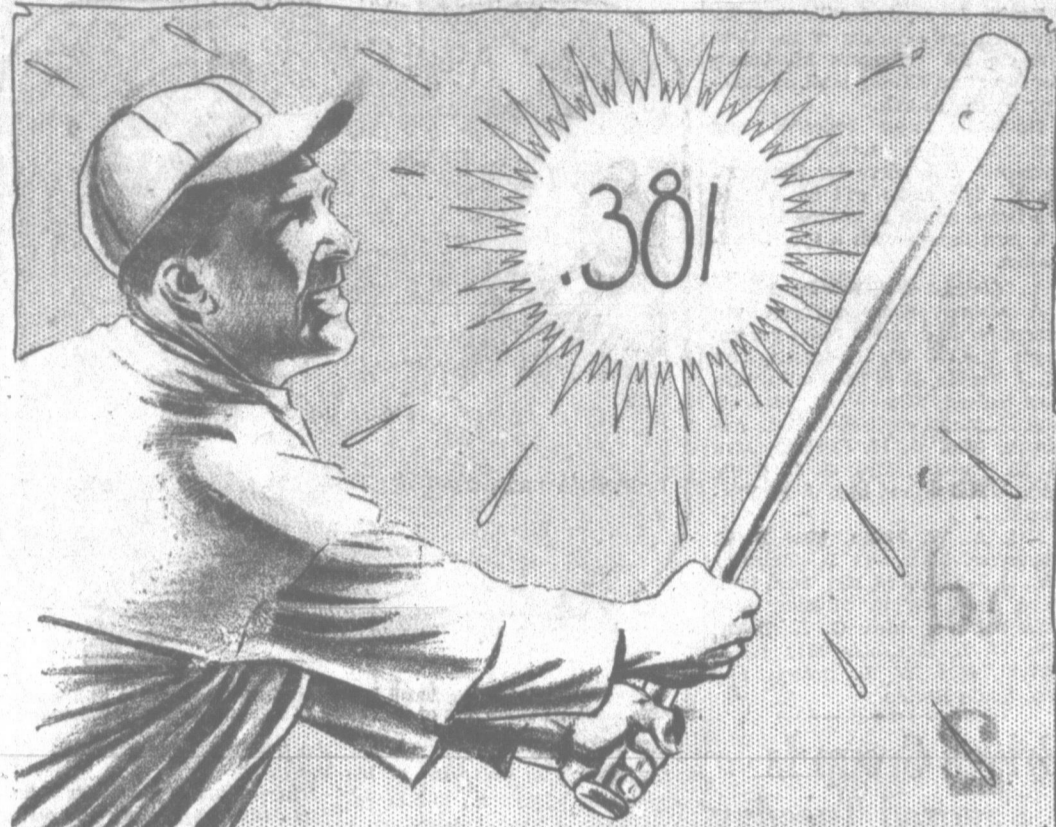

Time when the general election will be had is drawing near. You are to elect, among other officers, a sheriff for Gray county and as a candidate whose name will not appear on your ballot, I am humbly requesting that you vote for me by writing my name in the blank column on your ballot, and by marking through the names of the party nominees in the regular way.

I shall appreciate your assistance and promise faithfully to try to make you as good an officer as may lie within my power. And, with my past experience in this line of work, really believe that I can render good and efficient services.

Please mention it to your friends. Respectfully submitted,

HOME COMING GAME TO BE WITH TECH

CANYON, Oct. 22. (Special)—November 1 will be "Home Coming" at the West Texas State Teachers college, and on this date thousands of former West Texas students are expected to pay a visit to their Alma Mater.

As a feature attraction of the day Coach Reed's stampeding Buffaloes will meet the Texas Tech Matadors in a game of football; the game will start promptly at 3 p. m.

These teams have met annually for the past five years and the fans have always got their money's worth. In past meetings the Matadors have won three and the Buffs have won two games. The Buffs winning in 1927 and 1929.

It is expected that the Tech fans will bring a special train and some five hundred cheering Matador supporters.

A section of the Buffalo stadium will be reserved for the West Texas exes, and it is hoped that all who come will secure seats in this section.

A former "yell leader" will be in hand to lead the exes in their yells, cheering the Buffs on to battle against the scarlet clad warriors from the Hub City.

Honest Hold-Up Man Is Found

CHICAGO, Oct. 22. (AP)—A hold-up man who wouldn't lie has been found in Chicago.

And because he told the truth he was not only free, but his family has food and his sick wife has been taken to a hospital for treatment at the expense of the man he held up.

A. C. Mayerle, manufacturing jeweler, the victim, told the story today.

"I'm afraid," he told the holdup man when the latter pointed a wavering pistol at him, "that this is going to be pretty tough on my wife and kids, so couldn't you spare me part of my money."

The pistol continued to waver, but its wielder managed to say: "I'm not used to this. Never tried it before. Wouldn't do it now for myself. I've got a wife too and four children. Wife's sick. No groceries—no coal. I'll give you back $25. I simply got to have $10."

Mayerle got the address. Next day he checked up and found the man told the truth. As a reward he started a food and fuel fund, got the man's wife to the hospital and is trying to find him a job.

Mrs. J. R. McKinley was taken from her home, 320 West Francis, to the Pampa hospital Wednesday morning in a Stephenson ambulance.

Hank Bruder Can't Be Stopped; Even By Disease

CHICAGO, Oct. 22. (AP)—Be it a football, stonewall or hospital, Hank Bruder cannot be stopped.

Instead of folding up in the customary invalid fashion until he recovers from a slight attack of smallpox, the star jinx hero of Northwestern's football team is training for a comeback daily in the rear yard of the isolation hospital.

With another patient, Bruder passes footballs all over the lot and goes through the kicking and running motions that have made him a terror along the Big Ten football front.

"I'll be back for that Minnesota game November 1," Bruder said.

HARVESTERS WILL BE NEAR FULL STRENGTH TO BATTLE PLAINVIEW FOOTBALL TEAM

The Harvester grid picture took on a more encouraging hue today with the reinstatement of three players suspended for breaking training. The school board approved the step after an investigation and after taking the boys' promise to train hard and rigidly in the future. A sharp warning to the entire squad was sounded at the time.

The backfield will therefore be practically intact for the conference meeting with the Plainview Bulldogs Saturday. The remaining casualty is Albert Lard, who has an infected knee but may be available if needed.

Several good linemen and a reserve back or two are scholastically ineligible this week but will be ready for the Vernon invasion if they make their work heretofore.

Coach Odus Mitchell is taking the Plainview game seriously and will "shoot the works" at the Hale county boys. The reason is that the Plainview boys would like nothing better than to topple the lofty Harvesters. A passing attack is expected, together with a brand of "fighting spirit" like that which made the Amarillo Sandies open up to crash through for scores.

Today's practice was to be of the type which gets results—serious work with a purpose.

GALVESTON, Oct. 22. (AP)—Thomas Reis, a garage employe, today was charged with robbery by assault with firearms in connection with an attack on Mrs. Carrie W. Moeller, who was robbed of $2,000 and bound and gagged by a masked man Saturday.

Semester Rule

Is Under Fire

MARSHALL, Oct. 22. (AP)—The Marshall high school football team is deeply interested in the outcome of the meeting of the Interscholastic committee Monday, when the ten semester rule will be acted on. If a recent ruling of the league is sustained, Chastine Listen, star Maveyjet end, will be barred from conference games.

It was reported that many high schools had protested the ruling because their teams had been built around players which are barred by the ruling. Several teams participated in conference games, using such players.

Pitt Afraid of Irish!

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 22. (AP)—The Pitt goal line has not been crossed so far this season, but it is going to be crossed Saturday and the Panthers are going to lose to Notre Dame.

This was the view expressed by head Coach Jock Sutherland today as he began putting the finishing touches to his squad's preparations for their coming encounter with the men of Rockne.

"We can't expect to beat Notre Dame," Jock said. "Notre Dame has the best team in its history from reports and judging by its performances to date.

"We'll go into the game seriously crippled. Our prospects were none too good even before we encountered the recent series of injuries, without full man power this year's team can't compare with other good Pitt teams."

Jock recalled that before the season started he had predicted Pitt would lose two games. "This is one of them," he smiled sadly. "The best we can hope for is to hold them to a low score. Common sense points to a Notre Dame victory by two or three touchdowns."

Hollywood And Angels To Meet

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22. (AP)—The Los Angeles Angels and the Hollywood stars meet here today in the opening game of the playoff series for the 1930 Pacific Coast league baseball pennant.

Los Angeles won the high honors for the first half of the season and Hollywood finished at the top in the second half. The first team to win four games takes the championship, which Hollywood won last year. The

ROSE AND WATERS TRAIN SILENTLY FOR MATCH AT PLA-MOR ON THURSDAY

Art Phelan to Manage Cats

FORT WORTH, Oct. 2. (AP)—Art Phelan has been appointed manager of the Fort Worth baseball club.

Ted Robinson, president of the Panthers, announced signing of the new skipper today. It has been suspected for weeks that Phelan would succeed Frank Snyder.

For the last four and a half years Art has been directing the fortune of the Shreveport team and although he was never supplied with high powered material he never failed to finish in the first division. This last season, with one of the cheapest ball clubs in the league, he finished third in the full year's standing. In 1929 he was a close second in spite of a hurried split that robbed his team of the first half championship. In '27 and '28 his Sports came in fourth. Before going to Shreveport Phelan was with the Panthers for five and a half seasons.

Frankly speaking, both are egotistic and take losses hard. Each believes he has the stuff to break into the championship contender class. Rose simply will not be defeated if there is any way short of murder to prevent it. Waters certainly had no intention of losing last week, but he was caught napping by the resourceful Shreveporter. Waters took Rose's well known pugilism away from him and administered some very effective rabbit punches.

Catlake, Otis Clingman will be at ringside watching every move of the two grapplers. He will probably enter the ring November 5 in the first bout since a retaining ring in a truck tire almost blinded him.

winning team also will receive $6,000 and the losers $4,000. The prize money was furnished by the circuit.

WHAT WILL WINTER HAVE IN STORE

From the onslaught of the winter winds many persons out of work will be driven to seek shelter of those who nature has treated more kindly. These poor unfortunates will need clothing, food and a place to stay away from the freezing blasts that sweep down from the northlands.

This condition will be more pronounced in the northern industrial cities where many of the manufacturing plants have been closed down during the past few months. Chicago has created a fund to give many persons employment to stave off the crucial grind during the cold months of the year.

Many of the states, stricken by the drought during the past summer, are trying to bring about a situation that will help those who were damaged from the lack of rain. The flood sections have had their grief also and they too will have many who will need assistance to pull through the winter season.

Attempts are being made in various parts of the United States to relieve the unemployment situation. Contracts have been let on several road projects in this state this week. Many of the leading figures of this state are in conference this week to try to bring about something that will help out.

A manufacturing concern in Atlanta, Ga., announced that it had put 1,000 men to work this week. This was a blessing to that city. It means that a thousand homes will be provided with a source of income.

In our own community, there are many without work but not so many as in other sections of the country. There are several seen on the streets occasionally begging for a few pennies to secure food. If there are a few odd jobs to be done, let one of these who is out of work do it for you. Every little boost will help the person get back on his feet.

MOVING VACANT HOUSES

People of Panhandle have witnessed the removal of many houses from this city bodily to other places since the boom days and it is a well known fact that some of the houses have been sold and moved without payment of taxes due on the property. The Herald believes that the removal of buildings should be carefully watched by the tax collectors of the city, school district and the county and that the owners should be required to pay all taxes due before such houses are moved. If houses are located on pavement the paving company should also protect its lien against the property. When houses are moved the value of the lot is usually not sufficient to cover the amount of the past due taxes. Again we say that the city, school and county should be protected in this matter. Judging by the number of inquiries for houses to be rented received at The Herald office there is no very good reason for moving houses from Panhandle to other towns.—Panhandle Herald.

ment to make" but said, when questioned specifically, that he would have no objection to a "round table meeting."

The need for a further cut in production, cited by nearly all pipeline representatives, was emphasized by the Continental Oil company's representative. He pointed out that oil is getting cheaper and that the purchasers have millions of barrels stored, bought at a higher price.

His own company, he said, has a million barrels in storage in the Wichita Falls district—enough to run their refinery for a year without addition of production. "You haven't got to the bottom until you stop some production," he said.

BY BENNETT WOLFE

Associated Press Staff Writer
TULSA, Okla., Oct. 22. (AP)—As Independent refining concerns continue to hammer away at the Mid-Continent Crude Oil market, the threat of a general crumbling of the price structure casts another shadow across the path of producers.

While the first announced reductions in prices had been anticipated because of scattered sales of oil at below posted figures and a drop in the gasoline market, oil men now believe that a general price cut may follow. They say that other independent refiners will be forced to follow the lower schedules and that producers will not be able to shift connections to the larger buyers because the latter have been decreasing rather than increasing their purchases.

The ordering of lower price schedules by several Oklahoma and Texas refiners was explained by them as an attempt to place their prices in line with refinery revenues so they can at least break even in their operations. In statements announcing the reductions, they said posted crude schedules had been out of line with the refinery market for several months. Most of the refiners involved either do not produce crude oil or their production is small when compared to their total purchases.

Uncertainty as to the future of the crude oil market had been felt for the last few weeks but did not become of direct concern to Mid-Continent refiners until the Champlin Refining company announced reductions of from 25 to 31 cents a barrel for higher gravity grades of Oklahoma petroleum. Other independent refiners followed with similar actions in Oklahoma and Texas fields.

Limited quantities of oil from the Oklahoma City field previously had been offered at prices below the posted schedules of the major purchasers. In North Texas several independent refiners had been obtaining their crude supplies at quotations under the posted prices.

While the refining branch of the petroleum industry has been engaged in a concerted move to restore stability by reducing runs of crude oil to stills and thereby bringing a shrinkage in surplus gasoline stocks, refinery executives now are agreed largely that no general improvement may be expected in refinery markets so long as indications suggest an unsettled crude oil price situation.

Some of the responsibility for the present situation is laid at the door of the cut price jobber of gasoline. Selling at cut rate stations, several such jobbers have put into practice a plan of asking for bids, with the result that some sellers, anxious to move the refined product, lower their prices to obtain this class of business.

While observers assert the position of the cut price jobbers is not so strong as in the summer months, they will not venture an opinion as to what may be the consequences of this type of competition.

On the other hand, leaders of the industry, looking farther into the future, regard the reductions in the production of crude oil and its refined products as a factor that cannot fail to be reflected in a stronger market structure in 1931.

The Skelly News, published by the Skelly Oil company, says in the current issue:

"With consumption greater than last year, production much less and stocks lower than in 1929, the crude oil situation is much more favorable than it has been for some time past."

Detectives At Chicago Held

CHICAGO, Oct. 22. (AP)—Caught, police said, in a trap arranged by fellow officers, two detectives were held today on charges of extortion.

Ernest Dallego and John McCarthy, veterans of the department, were stripped of their stars by acting police Commissioner Alcock to whom Joseph Mason, South Side druggist, had told of attempts to extort first $25,000 and later $5,000 from him.

Mason asserted that Dallego and McCarthy told him they would arrest him as a bomb plotter unless they got the money and when he said he could not give $25,000, $5,000 was demanded. The officers falsely accused him, Mason said, of conspiring to have rival drug stores bombed.

After telling his story to the acting commissioner Monday, Mason was instructed to comply with the demand by arranging a dummy package. When Dallego called for the package, he was arrested by a police squad. McCarthy was later arrested.

The department head suspended both officers and said he would press criminal charges against them.

World Flier Is Back In Sydney

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Oct. 22. (AP)—After an eight months' absence, during which he flew nearly round the world and back again, wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith today returned to his fiancée, Miss Mary Powell, whom he will marry late next month.

The pretty girl, modestly clad in black and white, left her sick bed to greet him at Mascot airdrome as he arrived from Sydney, escorted by 18 planes, completing a record breaking flight which brought Sydney to within less than 13 days of England.

She waved as he circled the field once or twice and landed but it was not until he taxied his little single engine machine across the field toward the official dais that he saw her and waved kisses at her.

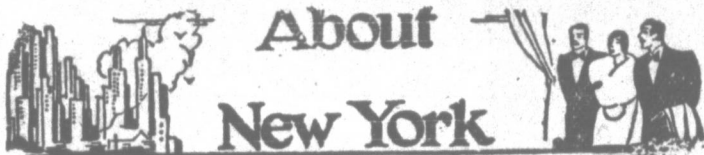

When he stopped his plane and throttled its motor she ran out to meet him, and she took his hand as he stepped from the cockpit. They embraced and talked happily as they walked toward the cheering crowd of 6,000 or more.

She led him to his parents and the official reception committee, and stood by him as they bade him welcome and he spoke into a microphone. Afterward she rode with him in a triumphal procession through the streets of Sydney to the home of his parents at Lane Cove.

"I am very happy," she told newspapermen tearfully.

In a speech before the microphone Kingsford-Smith said: "I honestly believe that what I have done will be of some service to development of aviation as the greatest modern commercial transport. Time is money and with safety of flying under properly organized conditions which can now be established nothing can hold aviation back."

Easy Come, Easy Go
Fortunes that pour into the pockets of racketeers are restless wealth. They are spent almost as fast as they come in. Bank accounts of gangsters are small as compared with those of legitimate business men. The gangster carries his roll in centuries and grands ($100 and $1,000 bills).

Transfers of money in the shady professions are usually made in cash, for obvious reasons. Transactions among the underworld leaders are seldom matters of record. If any record is kept it usually is in the form of cryptic memos.

Heirs of racketeers are losers as a consequence. And gangdom makes a lot of heirs.

The fabulous fortunes of the easy money gentry become myths upon their sudden death. At the time of Arnold Rothstein's slaying his estate was estimated at $10,000,000.

Frank Uale, another assassin's victim, left a gross estate of less than $5,000.

Uale's casket was reported in the funeral accounts to have cost $15,000. Maybe it did. But police reporters of experience say that often the impressive coffin of a slain gangster is really a cheap box, made of a sort of tin treated to give it the look of expensive bronze.

The Uale funeral expenses were $800, the widow reported.

Cooking School Note by Miss Grace Bull

In the cooking school I conducted last week under the auspices of the News-Post stressed modern methods of cooking. Naturally, then, I use and recommend CRISCO—for it's a modern shortening. —Miss Grace Bull

His spelling was awful but his Eggs Polonaise are grand!

IN THE little hotel where I found this interesting recipe it was listed on the menu as Eggs a la Polonaise. And the recipe I coaxed away from the chef was as complicated as his spelling. I simplified the name when I simplified the recipe.

But call it whatever you like—it's particularly appropriate for Sunday night suppers, and not too fussy for any day in the week. Deep fried in Crisco, it comes piping hot to the table as delicately flavored as this sweet fat it was fried in!

POLISH EGGS

6 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup grated cheese
1 teaspoon minced parsley
1 teaspoon minced onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper

1 tablespoon cream
2 tablespoons Crisco (melted)
3/4 cups small bread dice

Mix eggs, cheese, parsley, onion, seasoning, cream and melted Crisco. Add the diced bread. Drop by tablespoonfuls into hot, deep Crisco (300°-370° F., or when one-inch cube of bread browns in 90 seconds) and fry a light brown (about 2 minutes). Serve plain or with Tomato Sauce (1 1/2 cups) or Tartar Sauce (1 cup).

flavor, wrapped in a golden crunchy coating that only frying in Crisco can give. Foods deep fried in Crisco always taste fresh flavored and good, for Crisco itself tastes sweet and fresh—and comes to you in an air-tight can.

1 cup salmon, canned or left-over, boiled
1 1/4 cups mashed potatoes
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper

1 egg beaten with 1 tablespoon water
dried bread crumbs
Mix ingredients thoroughly and shape into croquettes about the size of an egg—roll in dried bread crumbs, dip in egg, then in crumbs again. Fry in deep hot Crisco (390° F., or when an inch cube of bread browns in 40 seconds)—drain on unglazed paper. Serve plain, garnished with lemon rings or serve with cream sauce.

The PERSONALITY OF LONDON

THE ROYAL PALACE OF THE ANCIENT KINGS OF ENGLAND, NOW THE HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT.

London, Inscrutable, Veiled in Fog, Seemingly Simple Yet Marvelously Complex, Fascinating, With Mona Lisa Charm, Luring Us Ever On and On To Deeper Study of Herself.

By LILLIAN HAYDEN HESTON

CITIES, like people, have definite personalities, which we can define only in terms of the sum of all the impressions they make upon us. Some cities, like New York, are easy to read—we sense at once its youth, its self-assurance. Paris holds somewhat jealously to past prestige, is a bit cynical, intellectually brilliant and generous, romantic—with an eye to the main chance, haughty and resentful in her buildings and open spaces, a lady of high estate expecting adoration of her charm.

Who can describe the manifold impressions London gives?—its staidness and its extreme simplicity, its broad boulevards and magnificent parks, its narrow winding lanes, its quaint, hidden-away courts and unexpected nooks, its parade of wealth and fashion, its filth and destitution, its learning and its contented ignorance, its roar of traffic and its leisurely slowness, its smoke and grime and fog, its springtime glory. It would need an inspired pen to tell of its commonplace millions—with their patience, their courage, their love of their ugly little homes, around whose lighted hearths the thick fog wraps a veil of sacred privacy.

London holds in heart and brain the hopes, ambitions, fears, ideals, the courage, superstition, faith, of all the many tribes and nations that have lived and fought and died to make her what she is. Druids and Pictians, Romanists and Protestants, Saxons and Danes, Normans, Romans—a long list of them—all mixed up in London as it is today.

A City of Sentiment

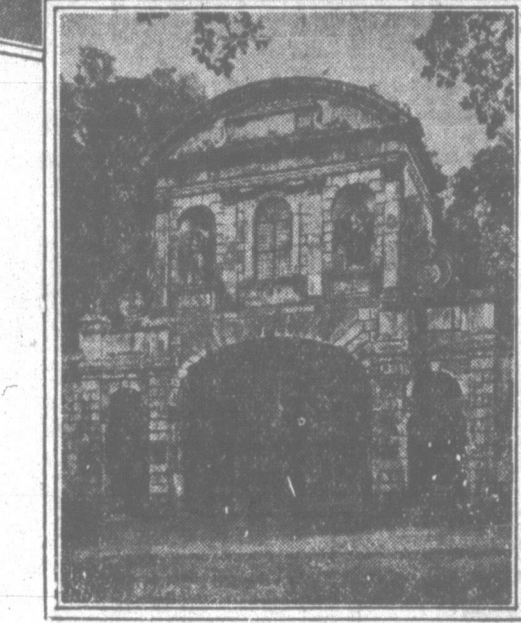

London is chockful of sentiment. We go to Westminster Abbey with its rolling music and its illustrious dead and we go—if we are wise—to the "Dogs Cemetery" in Hyde Park, where more tears are shed than in the Abbey. There are costly monuments here and beautiful flowers.

Queen Elizabeth liked Dutch eels and she gave permission for the eel boats to anchor not so very far from London Tower. They anchor there today—so strong is custom and habit in England—though it is in the heart of the busiest shipping. The wise statesman of "Downing St."—synonym of all that is warlike and powerful—are next-door neighbors of lovely and serene white water-fowl that preen themselves upon the grassy bank of the pond close to the great official home of England's rulers, and look through the bars at statesmen coming and going.

London is chockful, I repeat, of sentiment, expressed frankly on top of every bus and on every park bench by happy lovers, and more poetically in reverent love for haunts of genius, houses in old shady nooks and corners where her heroes lived—her artists, poets, warriors, and still more nobly—in her unconquered worship of open air life, of softly flowing waters, of hawthorn buds in spring and floating clouds. Listen to the thousand cries of London hawkers—"fresh posies, buy a posy fer y'r sweet-art," "ere's y'r pussy-cat meat, buy fer y'r pussy-cat." This sale of rather unpleasant horse-meat is a regular trade and tiny steaks are skewered together and sold rapidly. The cats of all a neighborhood recognize the cry and come from area and back fence or window sill and surround the man. They prefer this delicacy to other meat or milk.

The children of London—of

course, the rich children do not count, they might be the same in any land, having the safeguards and the prison-bars of wealth—are a unique class, completely self-sufficient, possessing an unathomable knowledge of human nature, determined to bait grown-ups and get the best of them, conversant with every phase of life in London, knowing all its crime, all its wonders of every kind, from the treasures of the National Museum to the problems of Downing Street, from the torture chambers of the Tower to the cheapest place to get buns. They bathe with impunity in costumes of their own free choice—or lack of them—in every park pond or fountain basin, and the friendly "hobbies" smile at them. They have innumerable clever ways of imagining themselves the actors in wondrous dramas of their own invention and all London is the stage. These children swarm in parks and slums and broad highways—in spring and summer—do they hibernate like bears in winter or do they pass away like "Little Nell," begging that something be put near them that has loved the light and had the sky above it always.

Queer Old Names

London "City" is a tiny place, the old walled city with its chains across the roads and gates—Ludgate, New-gate, Alders-gate, Cripplegate, Moor-gate, Bishops-gate, Ald-gate, Postern-gate, Billings-gate, Dow-gate, North-gate, Water-gate—all thickly settled districts now. The City is the day-working place of many thousands; men's homes are far away. The vast London of today is the country-villages-of-long ago. The old London began at Ludgate Hill and ended at The Tower. London's streets have queer, old-name reminders of things long passed away. There is at present no bridge to be seen on Bird Cage Walk nor is there even a shop for thread and needles on the street so named. There is however a world-renowned "Old Lady of Thread-Needle Street," grey and severe and very powerful, the famous Bank of England. We can understand that in days-far-ago country sights and sounds gave these names of streets, now busy city thoroughfares, Duck Lane, Cow Lane, Cock Lane, Hog Lane, and some grand dame of fancy dress may have caused the name Petticoat Lane to cling and her manner of walking that of Mincing Lane. Pie Lane may have been the noon-day haunt of boys. Circuses are not what they seem in London; they are nothing much but grassy or paved spaces whence many streets radiate. "Crosses" mark the places where a dead monarch lay at night in state on the last funeral journey—as at Charing Cross.

Church Designed by Wren Buildings have a way of standing where they please in London—if it is in the middle of a street that matters not. St. Clement

SHIPPING IN THE POOL OF LONDON-TOWER BRIDGE IN DISTANCE

ST. CLEMENT DANE'S, DESIGNED BY SIR CHRISTOPHER WREN

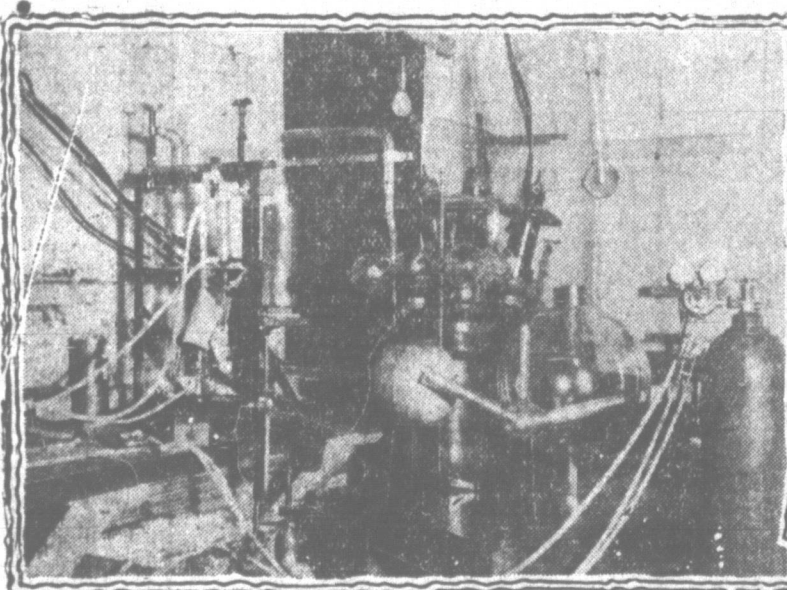

NORTH END OF LONDON BRIDGE

church of St. Dunstan's in the West and beyond that the dome of the "Old Bailey."

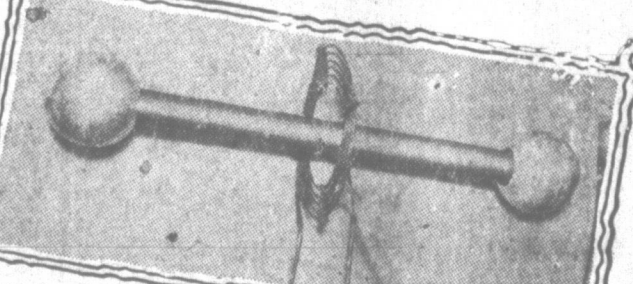

In spite of the fact that the English cannot see a joke they love nursery rhymes and make them about all sorts of things. Who does not know of Banbury Cross from earliest infancy and the fact that London Bridge was falling down? The whole population of London sang the fact and they got a new bridge, a very strong, stone one, but it wasn't picturesque like the old one and had no shops on it nor houses nor a church, as the old one did—no wonder the old one fell down. St. Clement Dane's has a very amusing rhyme about itself and plays the tune even today in its chimes. Quite near this church one enters the "Temple," with its magnificent halls where Elizabeth lunched with the Knights Templars, an order powerful almost beyond belief. One passes through the building out into their own superb garden full of roses—these flowers here gave the name to the War of the Roses, the King's "Lord High Chancellors" use the building now—the highest judicial officers of the crown, the most famous lawyers in England.

London has more than a hundred suburbs that form an integral part of its city, and the residents of all of them are different from each other in habits, speech, manners, and social status. The strangers can even hope to keep track of them. It would take volumes to give even a small idea of London so I leave it now, hoping you will all go there yourselves and learn to love it. Go in spring when the lawns are gay with crocuses and the sky is wine, and every hedge a thing of glory as the Hawthorn blossoms. Forget the shops of Bond and Regent Streets and study London itself and learn to understand its mystery and its fascination.

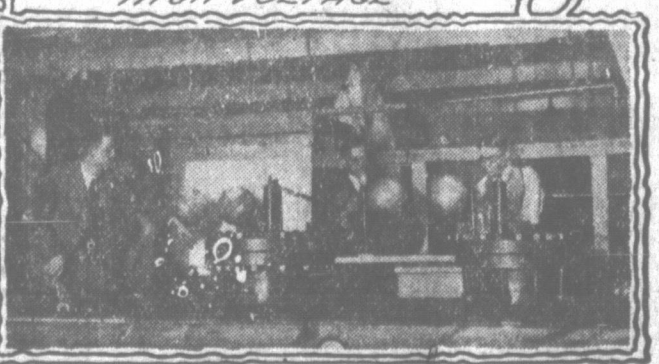

VACUUM TUBES AND APPARATUS DESIGNED FOR HIGH-VOLTAGE EXPERIMENTS

SCIENTISTS ARE UP AND AT 'EM

TYPICAL TESLA COIL AS USED IN DEVELOPING HIGH VOLTAGE

5,000,000-VOLT EQUIPMENT SHOWING HIGH-PRESSURE TANK, CONDENSER, SPARK-GAP AND MEASURING GAP

They've Tackled Atoms With New Apparatus Which Produces Tremendous Electrical Voltage—Up to 5,000,000 of Expectation As To Discoveries.

By DUNCAN CAMERON

SCIENTISTS are standing on tiptoe, as it were, expecting to unearth secrets heretofore hidden from the knowledge of the human race.

Recent research has awakened new interest in the fundamental mysteries of matter. Through the latest discoveries in this line the world of science believes that close approach has been made to the ultimate solution of many things that have puzzled investigators since scientific investigation was originated.

The great secret that is being sought is that pertaining to the structure of the atom—a particle of matter so small that a hundred million of them laid side by side would make a line but one inch in length. These atoms are grouped into molecules, and these, in turn, go to make up the desk, the chair, the frying pan and the various objects that we see. Each tiny atom is built up of unit particles of positive and negative electricity, called protons and electrons.

How Small Is An Atom?

To say that a hundred million atoms might be marshaled into an inch-long line conveys slight idea of the minuteness of these fundamental structures. More vivid picture, perhaps, may be conveyed by the comparison which likens them to drops of water. Scientists tell us that if a drop of water should be magnified to the size of the earth, the constituent atoms would be no larger than an ordinary football.

Another comparison of amazing character starts with the "nucleus" of the atom, or that portion which constitutes the central "mass" of the object. The nucleus is the heavy part of the atom itself. If the nucleus should be brought up to the size of a pea, the single electron in the atom would be represented by a sphere 20 feet in diameter, while the entire atom would have a diameter 600 miles in length.

Can't See 'Em

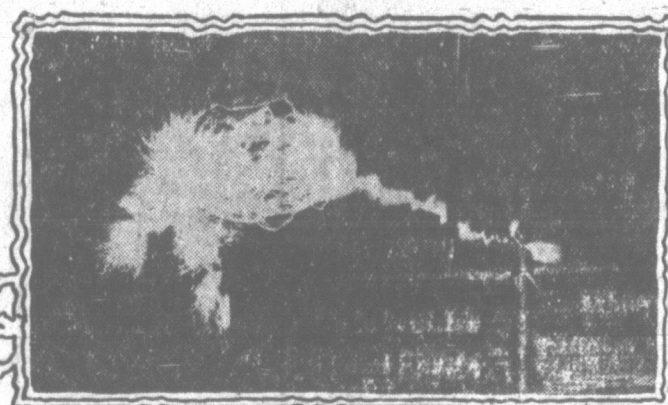

In their studies the scientists have been forced to use instruments other than the microscope. Modern microscopic lenses possess tremendous magnifying power, which extends to multiplying the size of an object several thousand times, but no lens has been perfected which will bring the atom to the point of visibility. For this reason the investigators have been compelled to resort to indirect methods. They have succeeded in disrupting atoms into their constituent particles—the protons and electrons. With this disruption accomplished, they have been able to study the results of the breakdown. In this way they have reached positive conclusions as to the nature, behavior and composition of things too small to be seen.

The disruption did not come through voluntary action on the part of the structure. Scientific effort of untiring persistence was required to bring about the results that have been achieved in this direction. The investigators found that the nucleus of the atom remained totally unresponsive to such agencies as high temperatures, extreme cold, enormous pressures, chemical explosions and the ordinary tools of the physicist.

Bombardment Begins

Nothing happened until Sir Ernest Rutherford began bombarding the nucleus with the projectiles fired off from radium during the spontaneous and uninterrupted disintegration of this remarkable substance. The particles given off by radium move at tremendous velocity. When one of these scores a hit the nucleus of the atom is broken up, producing definite effects which are susceptible of observation.

TESLA COIL IN OPEN AIR—SPARKING AT ABOUT 300,000 VOLTS

Radium particles in flight represent the most concentrated energy known to science, but they constitute an expensive tool for working with atoms because of the extremely high cost of radium itself. Of even greater importance is the fact that radium can not be subjected to control. For these reasons scientists feel that the hope for a suitable substitute lies in the development of methods for securing high electrical voltages and means for handling them safely under laboratory conditions. When these things are accomplished the substitute will be more satisfactory than the original.

High Voltage Produced

Successful work with electrical apparatus has been conducted by scientists connected with the Carnegie Institution of Washington. Operating in the laboratories of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism, Dr. G. Breit and Dr. M. A. Tuve have produced a higher electrical voltage than man has hitherto obtained. The electrical pressure thus generated runs up, as high as five million, two hundred thousand volts. Perhaps the most striking feature of the enterprise is that this voltage has been developed with relatively inexpensive apparatus, so compactly built that it is contained in a small-sized room. The results represent the work of several years, and the scientists are confident that even greater voltages can be obtained by the method which they have developed.

The importance of this forward step in high voltage production is emphasized by comparing the figures with those achieved elsewhere by other methods. One of the great electrical concerns, in a Massachusetts plant, has the largest high voltage installation in the world, built at enormous expense. This outfit was hailed as epoch-making when it produced a voltage of three million six hundred thousand, or slightly more than two-thirds of the electrical pressure generated by the simple apparatus developed in Washington.

How It Was Done

"In the effort to develop a suitable laboratory source of high electrical pressures," I was told by Dr. Tuve, "we adopted what is known as the high-frequency resonance coil. Coils operating on the same principle were constructed back in the '90's by Nikola Tesla and Elihu Thompson. Similar outfits have been used as spectacular demonstration toys for a past 30 years.

"Almost every high-school boy has seen such a coil in operation. Sparks as long as a foot, representing pressures of more than a hundred thousand volts, may be taken into the body from these coils without harm because of the high frequency of the alternating current. The principle is the same that is used in operating the familiar acoustical example of a violin string vibrating sympathetically with a string tuned to the same note on a nearby piano. The same principle of resonance or 'tuning' is also familiar to all radio enthusiasts.

"The high-voltage coil itself consists of 8000 turns of silk-insulated copper wire wound in a single layer on a pyrex glass tube three inches in diameter and 36 inches long. This coil is immersed in an insulating oil, such as is used in all electrical transformers. The ends of the coil are fitted with metal caps eight inches in diameter whose rounded surfaces prevent spark discharges out into the oil when the caps are raised to high voltages by the action of the coil.

"The coil is excited to high voltage by means of a primary circuit consisting of a large plate-glass condenser, a spark-gap, and a primary coil of two turns of copper tubing wound about the middle of the high-voltage coils and spaced some distance from it in the oil. The condenser and primary coil are adjusted to be electrically 'in tune' with the high-voltage coil.

X-ray Machine Used

"The condenser is charged to 50,000 or 100,000 volts by means of an ordinary high-voltage X-ray machine, and when it discharges through the spark-gap the surges of current in this primary circuit by resonance set the high-voltage coil into oscillation and build up the very high voltages between the two balls on its ends. The plan of surrounding the high-voltage coil by oil is an important feature of the method. When operating in the air, an ordinary Tesla coil will not go to voltages higher than 300,000 to 400,000, because of the large sparks and streamers and corona discharges which occur from all parts of the coil. This spectacular display is prevented by immersing the coil in oil, and the energy goes into raising the coil to a much higher voltage.

"It was found that voltages up to three million were obtainable by using a coil of this type in an ordinary open tank. Above this voltage, however, sparks from the caps on the ends of the coil would flash off into the oil. A further step was to place the high-voltage coil inside a large steel tank filled with oil under a pressure of 500 pounds to the square inch. In this way we were able to obtain over five million volts. The pressure on the oil serves to increase its insulating value. By slight changes in the design of the coil even higher voltages can be obtained when they are desired.

The new methods followed at the Carnegie Institution have brought about a demand for vacuum tubes of greater strength than any now in existence. The effort of the scientists is now aimed in this direction.
