BEGIN HERE TODAY

CELIA MITCHELL, 17, faces a new life when she leaves the home in Baltimore where she has lived with her widowed mother, MARGARET ROGERS, to join her father, JOHN MITCHELL, and her grandmother in a staid New York dwelling.

The girl had not even known her father was living until the day he came to the Baltimore apartment. Celia had supposed BOB ROGERS, her mother's second husband, to be her father. Mitchell offers the girl a life of wealth and immediately everything changes. She leaves her mother, unaware that Mrs. Rogers is seriously ill, and she leaves BARNETT SHIELDS, ambitious young newspaper photographer, who swears that some day he and Celia will be married.

The girl is lonely and ill at ease in her new home. Mitchell finds her in tears one evening and is worried. He appeals to MRS. EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow whose husband had been Mitchell's close friend. Mrs. Parsons agrees to introduce Celia to the right set of young people through it is obvious she regards the girl as a means to gain Mitchell's affections.

To this end she invites Celia to spend a week-end at her Long Island home and makes every effort to seem charming. Among the other guests is a young man who attracts Celia's interest.

It was characteristic of Evelyn Parsons that she should seek to win her way by pleasant means first. These failing, she was quick to change her tactics.

Evelyn was engaged in such "pleasant" plotting when she invited Tod Jordan to join her weekend house party. Jordan was exactly the type to fascinate an unsophisticated girl like Celia.

They stood near the doorway, Evelyn stammering in a gown of sea green stuff which contrasted brilliantly with her hair, and the young man bending toward her attentively. "Must you always be more interested in other women?" she chided archly.

Jordan's quick answer deepened Mrs. Parsons' smile. She had always been sensitive to flattery.

"The girl you're to be particularly nice to is the little one in pink," she went on.

Celia was designated. Without apparently shifting his gaze Jordan made a hasty appraisal, missing few details of Celia's appearance. One eyebrow rose the merest trifle. Otherwise he offered no comment.

"Who else is there you don't know?" Evelyn asked.

"There's only one I have met—Eve Brooks."

"Come! I'll introduce you."

Celia Mitchell, who had been watching this tableau from the divan across the room, turned her head and began talking to Lisl Duncan. She was curious about the newcomer. Who was he? Evelyn had mentioned the names of all her other guests. And this man looked like someone important. She tried to conceal her interest.

"Celia," Evelyn Parsons was saying, "this is Tod Jordan. One of my shipmates on the boat this last trip. He's violently prejudiced about brown eyes, so I brought him to you."

"How do you do?" Celia said. She looked up to encounter Tod Jordan's cool, quizzical smile. Jordan was just under six feet in height. He was slender, but well built, with a touch of militarism in the way he carried his shoulders. His face was bronzed, not ruddily sunburned, as were the other men. He had dark hair and eyes which seemed faintly challenging.

Perhaps Jordan was 25. Perhaps he was 30. There was a hard, polished surface to his manner which impressed Celia. She labeled it "sophistication."

The man bowed formally.

"I am delighted," he said, taking her. "May I sit here?"

"Of course."

There was plenty of room on the divan, but Celia moved a little to one side. Lisl Duncan, who sat at Celia's left, evidently felt slighted and turned her back. Mrs. Parsons had joined another group.

"Our hostess is very brave," Jordan remarked casually.

"Oh, I think Mrs. Parsons is wonderful," Celia told him.

"Beautiful," the young man corrected her, "and very brave."

"I don't believe I understand."

"No? But it's so obvious. When a woman of Evelyn's age dares to invite into her home such competition—" A meaningful wave of the hand completed the sentence.

Celia blushed. She was embarrassed and yet pleased. While Jordan was speaking there was not a trace of emotion in his face, but his voice had an exciting quality. She knew too that the pink net party dress was becoming.

Lisl Duncan turned, evidently to make a demand on Jordan's attention. She wanted to know if he had seen a certain night club entertainer. Lisl was an amusing girl, not at all like her sister Kate, who was beautiful and dignified. Lisl was boyish, awkward, and wore her red hair cropped short. Her little freckled face (sunburned, too) would have looked more at home on a tennis court than at a dinner party, but she appeared to go everywhere and know everyone. She had a way of drawing original slang which was highly humorous.

Now she launched into extravagant praise of the new saxophone player. Celia felt that she liked Lisl better than the others.

Young Mrs. Brooks, whom on one called anything by "Eve," was blond and pretty in a more fragile way than Evelyn Parsons. Eve wore a gown of lemon yellow and looked like a slender daffodil. There was a young man on either side of her, but Celia noticed Mrs. Brooks' frequent looks at Tod Jordan.

Courtney Brooks was explaining something to Kate Duncan and Mrs. Parsons. Kate's gown was glittering white, with trailing skirt and a bodice which had shocked Celia. The dress was undoubtedly becoming to its brunet wearer. Almost anything, Celia thought, would look handsome on Kate Duncan, but her bored manner was a little frightening.

Dinner was announced. Celia thrilled secretly when she found she was to sit between Tod Jordan and Jimmie Webster. Eve Brooks was at the other side of Webster and promptly monopolized him. That left Jordan to Celia.

Mrs. Parsons, at the head of the table, took note of this. The smile which she turned toward her right-hand guest was not in the least forced.

Evelyn had felt confident about Tod Jordan. That is, she was confident that he would serve her purpose. Of Jordan's actual history she was as much at a loss as four-fifths of his acquaintances.

She had said truthfully that she had met Jordan on the ocean liner. She had chatted with him in a deck chair, strolled occasionally in the moonlight and watched him invariably winning at cards. Being observant Evelyn had noticed Jordan was usually to be seen with young women who had large bank accounts, and with men he met in the card room.

His working hours, she decided, were those he spent at cards. Was his name really Jordan? Evelyn doubted this, but of course there was no proof. He seemed to know the right people, and he was tremendously effective on a romantic deck at night.

The dinner that evening was very gay. The table with its flowers and silver and crystal was more festive than anything Celia had ever seen. The colors of the women's gowns added glamour to the scene. No one in the room realized that this was the first party Celia Mitchell had ever attended.

Jordan talked of the races, polo, and a recent aerial trip he had made which ended in excitement. "But you haven't told me anything about yourself!" he reminded her.

"There's nothing to tell."

"That is quite impossible."

Again Celia's cheeks colored. With out a smile, without the least change of inflection, Tod Jordan managed to convey implications. His dark eyes watched the girl.

"But there really is nothing to tell," she laughed. "You see, New York and everything here is new to me. I've been in school until a month ago. I've never seen anybody it's so wonderful to come to this party."

Again Jordan's eyebrow did the little trick of raising and then lowering itself ever so slightly.

"Are you a relative of Mrs. Parsons?" he asked.

"No, no! Only she and my father are old friends. Father's coming dow tomorrow."

"Really?"

Celia would have been astounded to know that Tod Jordan could quote her father's financial rating precisely. He had considerably more information about John Mitchell than had Mitchell's daughter.

"But all this time you've been in school you must have been doing something!" the man persisted. "How do you amuse yourself? Tennis? Like to swim? Dance?"

"I'm no good at tennis," Celia said, "but I love swimming and dancing."

"Then I'm glad I came. I insist on the first dance."

He turned his head to reply to Kate Duncan. Celia for several moments was neglected.

There was a haze of smoke across the table, dimming the candle light. Jimmie Webster was recounting polo anecdotes in a loud voice. Soprano laughter and ringing bells interrupted. Celia thought Webster was growing a trifle rowdy.

She noticed that Eve Brooks was flirting openly both with Jimmie and Walter Carr. Nobody seemed surprised or even interested in this. Eve's husband had been devoting the evening to Kate Duncan.

"I want to talk to you," Jordan was saying softly. "Can't we get away from this?"

Celia's pulse quickened, but she shook her head. It was near the end of the dessert course.

Suddenly Eve Brooks pushed back her chair and stood up.

"Who's going to dance with me?" she called out, her eyes directly on Walter Carr. "Who's going to dance with me right now?"

She and Carr departed. A few burst on the air.

The others were rising. Jordan caught Celia's arm and led her to the porch. There was a soft breeze, and the lawn was drenched with moonlight. The radio orchestra was playing a waltz now. Jordan sang the words:

"Stars and steel guitars
And luscious lips as red as wine—
They danced in perfect rhythm,
Celia was conscious of Jordan's close embrace, and that her heart was pounding.

"I left her and threw away
The key-to Paradise—
It was an orchestra leader in a night club who was singing the blues,
The tune beat in the girl's ears.

The music ended. The dancers hesitated. There was no one else in sight. For a trembling moment Celia's eyes met Jordan's.

Child's Arm Broken

Pinkie Foster, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Foster, suffered a badly fractured leg Saturday afternoon when she was struck by a truck at the corner of Frost and Foster. The limb was broken in two places. The child was playing on the pile of dirt on the southwest corner of Albert Square. She did not see the approaching truck when she darted into the street. The driver of the truck said he tried to stop before his truck struck the child.

COOKING SCHOOL NOTE

In the cooking school conducted under the auspices of the News-Post recently, Miss Grace Bull stresses modern methods of cooking. Naturally, then, she used and recommended Crisco, the modern shortening.

White Cake that's really white

A white cake that is a white cake is only possible when one uses a shortening like Crisco—pure, fresh and sweet-flavored. A shortening, too, that's so fluffy you don't need to cream it! Think how much time that saves in making cakes!

Featherweight White Cake

1/2 cup Crisco	3/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar	2 teaspoons baking powder
3/4 cup milk	3 egg whites
2 cups flour	1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat Crisco and sugar. (Notice how easily Crisco wraps itself around every tiny grain of sugar. That's why it makes such fine textured cakes!) Stir in alternately milk and sifted dry ingredients. Fold in thoroughly stiffly beaten egg whites. Add vanilla. Turn batter into a greased layer cake pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.). Ice with any desired icing.

(To make it into a Lady Baltimore Cake, use a filling of dates, figs and nuts moistened with lemon juice, and ice with boiled icing.)

In its new air-tight cans—so fresh and sweet as the day it was made.

Will Hold Rites For Dr. Elliott

Flint, Mich., Nov. 4. (AP)—Funeral services will be held in Detroit on Wednesday for Dr. George Elliott, pastor of the Methodist Review of New York, who died here Sunday.

Dr. Elliott, one of the most prominent figures in the Methodist Episcopal church, had been pastor for Presidents Benjamin Harrison, and Grover Cleveland while minister of a church in Washington. He was 59 years old.

Sixteen Cents Is Cost of Butterfat

The average feed cost of producing butterfat in the best producing herd is 16 cents per pound, according to County Agent Ralph R. Thomas, who is co-operating with local dairymen in the demonstrations designed to make dairying profitable.

Mr. Thomas' work in this line has caused the above fact to be mentioned in the new bulletins of extension. The county agent's figure was based on cow testing records kept on several demonstration herds in which figures on 34 cows show that one cow produced fat for 32 cents per pound while costs on another one soared to 40 cents.

Unloaded, But Killed

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 4. (AP)—An "unloaded" revolver brought instant death late Sunday to Pedro Lopez, 15-year-old orphan ward of the Wesleyan institute here. It was reported to officers that the boy was killed with one shot from a pistol held in the hands of a 16-year-old school mate, Honorio Tavares of Montebrey, Mexico.

Oklahoma City Wells Opened Up Around Gusher

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 4. (AP)—Wells in the northern part of the Oklahoma City field, shut down since Friday because of the wild Morgan Petroleum Number 1 C. E. Stout, were to resume operations today, and schools in the vicinity of the outlaw gusher which were closed because of the fire danger, were to reopen.

Although the well was brought under control Sunday afternoon, precautions against fire still were being taken as the ground for blocks around the well was soaked with oil which sprayed for nearly three days, threatening the entire industrial section and much of the residential district of the city.

Flows were at work turning the oil surface under and George Goff, fire chief, asked residents near the

LA BARBA REGAINS LOST PRESTIGE IN BEATING CHOCOLATE

CUBAN FAILS TO STAND UP UNDER FIRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 4. (P)—Regardless of the fact that a fellow-down in Connecticut named Battling Battalino holds the official rating as world featherweight champion, a young man from Los Angeles, rugged Fidel in Barba, can justly claim himself the best of the 126-pounders flinging leather today.

La Barba, once a student of Stanford University and before that champion of all the flyweights, proved his right to titular recognition among the featherweights last night by clearly outpointing Kid Chocolate, the Cuban sensation, in a torrid ten-round engagement that drew 16,000 persons, the biggest crowd of the indoor season so far to Madison Square Garden. Chocolate dropped a decision last summer to Jackie Kid Berg, foremost challenger for the lightweight title, after winning a decision from Al Singer, present 135 pound king, about 18 months ago. Last night, however, was the first time Chocolate has ever been beaten by a man in his own class, the featherweight division.

By the victory La Barba reversed a decision that went against him in his first match with Chocolate here two years ago. Last night, having learned apparently by the previous engagement, Fidel kept up an everlasting bombardment of the negro's body with left hooks that buried deep under the smiling "Kid's" stamina. He fought back only in spurts and won but three of the ten rounds. La Barba won five with two even.

Scatters Father's Ashes
SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 4. (P)—Wing-Com. Charles Kingsford-Smith, using the airplane in which he made his last memorable flight from England to Australia, today scattered the ashes of his father over the waters of the Pacific ocean, which had witnessed his first notable triumph in the air.

On his deathbed last week, William Kingsford-Smith, father of the aviator, expressed a wish that his ashes be cast to the winds over the Pacific, and his famous son thus today performed his last and duty to his father.

Renew Racing Contract
CHICAGO, Nov. 4. (P)—The Chicago business men's racing association which operates the Hawthorne track, believes that horse racing will be a profitable enterprise for at least fifteen more years.

The group believed it to the extent of renewing its lease on the Westside plant until 1945 for $1,000,000—an annual rental of approximately $68,000.

spts.—PAMPA BOWLING 24. L. Borger bowling alleys comprised the scene of another victory for the Pampa All-Stars this week. Husak, Pampa star, rolled the high score of 600. A return match will be played here Friday.

The scoring—
Borger All-Stars: Woods 464; Dutch 437, Tobin 476, Marsh 476, Winnecke 513, total, 2365.
Pampa All-Stars: Baxter 587, Oliver 522, Murphy 502, Powell 572, Husak 600, total 2783.

Scalpers Are In Difficulty On Penn Campus

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4. (P)—They were scalping the scalpers on the University of Pennsylvania campus today, and how.

The boys who hold the rates found themselves unable to purchase good seats for Saturday's Notre Dame-Penn game at almost any price.
Scalpers were said to be canvassing the campus; but the students let it be known that they would much rather see the game. Offers of $50 for seats that originally cost $3 were refused.

Probably in the entire history of the sport in this section no game has compelled a ticket-buying interest equal to this game.

Youth Shot Down
HOBOKEN, N. J., Nov. 4. (P)—While repairing his automobile in front of his home, Samuel Kleinberg 22, described by the police as an alcohol racketeer, was shot and killed last night by several gunmen as they sped past in another machine.

Police expressed belief the gunmen had cut the wires of the car while Kleinberg was in his apartment. He was shot through the heart, arm and chin.

Loan Your Job
OSHKOSH, Wis., Nov. 4. (P)—The "loan your job" move started by Congressman George Oaks in efforts to combat unemployment, has been a success here, he said today.

Twenty-two regular city employees on contract work yesterday gave up their jobs temporarily to needy men. Under the plan, unemployed persons will work a few hours each week on jobs "loaned" out.

Keeler, Golf Expert, Tells How He Came to Write for Britannica

BY G. B. KEELER
I suppose it does sound a bit con-celled but I'll admit to getting a kick out of it. Not long ago, at the Radium Springs golf club, near Albany Ga., I was attending the first Georgia golf championships for women (my wife being president of the association) and I met Mrs. George B. Ashe of Atlanta. She and her husband had moved there recently and I never had met either of them before.
She said they were both enthusiastic about golf and that they had read a great deal about the game and how to play it—everything, in fact, they could find on the theory and technic of golf.

I hope it doesn't damage their game materially. Anyway, the illustrations can be recommended. They are all line drawings from photographs of one of the greatest teachers of them all—the greatest teacher, I fancy; Stewart Maiden. It was sort of funny, the way that article came to be written. The editors invited me to do it; and I was rather shocked at the prospect. They wanted an article on the technic of golf in about 1200 words, they said.
I replied and told them I'd try it, of course—I considered it a very great honor to be invited to do it. But (I wrote) it was something new and alarming, for me. It was something like a surgeon being asked to do an article on the technic of general surgery, in 1200 words. We who wrote golf were accustomed to employ that many words on a detail like the action of the left wrist, at times.
However, I did the best I could, and certainly I never tried harder on anything I ever wrote, and never will try so hard again. Because I felt all the time that this was something that might endure a while.
After the evanescence of newspaper stories and magazine articles—well, I got quite a kick out of thinking that if the Britannica accepted my little article I'd be sort of perpetuated, at least until another edition came out. And the Britannica doesn't get out editions every hour, like a newspaper.
So I was perhaps unparadoxically set up, when the little article was accepted. And, as suggested, I got a kick out of Mrs. Ashe's reminiscence at Radium Springs.

HORNED FROGS ARE AFRAID OF RICE NOW

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS, Nov. 4. (P)—Four conference games on four successive Saturday days is the formidable schedule facing the champion Texas Christian Horned Frogs in their drive for another title. Coach Schmidt's eleven go to speak, goes back to work this week after an extended vacation, meeting those tobacco-laden Rice Owls at Houston.

In other years there was nothing hazardous about invading the Owl's roost. It was considered a "soft spot." But it is far from that now. Coach Schmidt probably has done as much advance worrying in preparation for this week's bout as he will for any on his schedule.

Instead of remaining at home and watching his team smother Abilene Christian college, the purple mentor was reported to have occupied a choice seat at the Rice-Sewanee affair. From all accounts, he must have felt a few qualms as two Sophomore halfbacks, Wallace and Jamerson, ripped through the Tigers in the second half.

One thing in the champions' favor as they open their tough November schedule is the fact that they have not been "pointed" for a single one of their eight preliminary bouts. They have taken them as they came, winning all except that muddy, scoreless contest with the Simmons Cowboys at Breckenridge. They have not been seriously extended but once, that when the Aggies forced them to kick a field goal to win, 3 to 0. They are free of injuries, splendidly drilled, and conditioned by two months of steady play.

Each of their four remaining opponents, on the other hand, has been "pointed" for at least one game and has been beaten at least once. Texas was steamed up to the limit for the Mustangs Saturday; the Mustangs put all they had into their game with Notre Dame; Baylor played at fever heat against South-

Clingman Will Be Ready Thursday For Hard Match With Teddy Waters

Teddy Waters will get the chance for which he has been waiting when he meets Otis Clingman at the Fla-Mor auditorium Thursday evening.

He came here while Clingman was injured and stood for a lot of punishment from Jack Rose and Eddie Challenger. He has disdained ropes and tried to be a well-liked grappler. Now he has hopes of using the well known tricks of Farmer Burns to give him a victory over Clingman.

He hopes that the local man will be in good condition in order that there may be no cloud on the outcome. That he will be satisfied in this regard seems assured as Clingman tosses his ring mates about in work-outs.

Clingman is wrestling and running, especially running, and if he has scared any farmer's fowls it has been unintentional. "I'll be ready to go," he said today as he came puffing into the News office after a cross country jaunt.

Mary Garden Is Praised For Latest Concert

AMARILLO, Nov. 4 (P)—In this city in the heart of the western cow country, where once she was bit-terly denounced and accused of not giving her best as a singer, Mary Garden, opera star, enjoyed today one of the greatest triumphs of her career. Not the least among the 3,000 persons who cheered her at a concert last night was Gene Howe, newspaper editor, who criticized her performance with the Chicago Civic Opera company in Amarillo a year ago so severely that Miss Garden was moved to reply to him thru the press.

New Chevrolet Model to Have Bigger Chassis

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 4.—Definitive assurance that Chevrolet will introduce a new car for 1931 on Saturday was revealed here today during the staging by Chevrolet factory officials of the first of fifty dealer meetings to be held in the next five weeks throughout the country. Included in a carload of equipment brought in for the meeting was a new car substantially bigger than the current model, and extensively changed in appearance. Although the meeting was closed to the public, it was learned that H. J. Klingler, vice-president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co., who attended the meeting here, told the 500 dealers and associated bankers in attendance at the city auditorium that the car would be publicly announced the coming Saturday, and that, despite its increased size and improved appearance, it would be priced comparably below current levels.

ELECTION

Decided "big car" appearance, one dealer reported. If the sentiment among the dealers here is any criterion, the new car ought to prove the most successful product in the history of the company. Morris Sheppard of Texarkana, senior United States senator from Texas, up for re-election to another six year term, who received the party nomination last July without making a single speech, was opposed by Col. William E. Talbot of Dallas, the Republican choice, had considered his election a formality, refusing to make a single public gesture in the general election campaign, while Talbot made an extensive stumping tour, carrying his bid for election to all parts of the state.

Mason Is Missing

DALLAS, Nov. 4 (P)—Efforts to get a statement from Weidon "Speedy" Mason, Southern Methodist university football star, whose name was brought into the divorce hearing between L. C. Turman and his wife at Fort Worth, failed today. At first authorities of the university said Mason was attending classes and could not be called out. They said they were certain the football favorite would not care to make a statement pending the arrival of his father, reported en route here from Lometa. Later inquirers were told that Mason's whereabouts were unknown.

TURMAN

divorce judgment was rendered, this inventory was two-thirds complete. It showed Turman's outstanding obligations to be $400,000, he testified, including a $150,000 note at the First National bank. The name of Mason, star Southern Methodist university football player, was brought into the hearing yesterday shortly after Turman had dramatically appeared at the proceedings. Mrs. Turman, 32, was on the stand and had testified that Tur-
