

OIL INDUSTRY IS FACING CRISIS

TENSENESS IS NOTED IN TEXAS POLITICAL SITUATION NORTH CAROLINA NEGRO ATTACKER LYNCHED BY LARGE MOB

In these days of political sleight-of-hand passing the buck in other matters than affairs of state is not surprising. The Amarillo News, in attempting to gracefully congratulate Pampa and Childress on the new railroad, blames the I. C. C. for pitting towns against each other. The I. C. C. didn't do it. Amarillo's B. C. D. voluntarily and after lengthy discussion took a step that was as unwise as it was unnecessary.

C. R. McAfee of Amarillo will back up us. Charlie was about the only Amarilloan to protest the action taken opposing the Burlington proposal. When the announcement of the I. C. C. decision was made Saturday, Mr. McAfee called the local law firm of Cook, Smith & Teed and offered congratulations which were unmistakably genuine. For which we congratulate C. R. on his fairness and good judgment.

In politics taxation is the subject for more hokum than most other topics.

Taxation should be studied more thoroughly than it is. False doctrines about about it. Cost of state government is an investment, and as the state grows the cost is bound to increase with it. State taxes, despite many statements to the contrary, are not "higher" to a painful degree. As a matter of fact, under Governor Moody's insistence the ad valorem rate has been set so low that a deficit is expected by legislators. A study of taxation will reveal that city, county, and school taxes compose the bulk of the payments required, and state taxation is not the issue that politicians would make it.

Education and public improvements comprise the major projects to which taxes go. These are tangible, visible assets, and they should be paid for as cheerfully as a person buys an automobile. The taxes for these purposes should be held within reason, of course, but it must be remembered that luxuries bought by the American people cost many, many times more than taxes. Rural folk, moreover, must recognize that their lot is hard not because taxes are high, but because their incomes are low. It is a false idea that city folk are escaping the tax burden, or, more specifically, the tax investment. Try a comparison or two and note the relative assessment in proportion to real value of property, and levy upon valuations. This article is not intended as an argument for nor a justification of high taxes; rather, it is to arouse a keener interest in the true facts of taxation and the theories involved.

In ordinary times, tax authorities by due diligence can find values great enough to keep the tax rate on an even keel. Complaint about taxes varies not with the rates, but with general financial conditions and incomes from which the taxes are derived. If you have little, it takes only a little to "five until it hurts." But many persons desire more cars, more luxuries, more trips, and as a result they fret because they have a responsibility in supporting their municipal, state, and federal governments. And remember that the national tax dollar goes largely to pay for past and future wars and preparation for wars.

It's good to see work start on the new Santa Fe station, which is deserved if tonnage figures mean anything. Railroads spend millions for such investments. They are allowed a set profit, and surpluses go to improvements rather than extra.

BLACK TAKEN OUT OF JAIL BY 200 MEN

Governor Says State Is Disgraced by Action

WOULD PUNISH ALL OFFENDERS

Texas Negro Is Shot After He Kills Woman

TARBORO, N. C., Aug. 19. (AP)—Oliver Moore, 26-year-old negro, charged with criminally assaulting two small white girls, was taken from the Edgecombe county jail early today by 200 masked men, hanged to a tree and his body riddled by bullets.

After gaining admittance to the jail on a ruse, the mob carried the negro to his home, 100 yards across the line in Wilson county and 15 miles from here. There they strung him to a tree and fired scores of bullets into his body.

Deputy R. O. Watson, who lives with his family at the jail, had retired when he heard a voice calling him early today. Believing it to be an officer with a prisoner, he went to the door and called, "have you got a man for me?" Someone in the mob answered affirmatively and Watson unbolted the door. As he did this he saw the crowd of masked men and made an effort to throw the bolt.

The men rushed through, forced him into his office and took all the keys from a peg on the wall. Going down the jail corridor, the deputy related, the men unlocked cell after cell until they found Moore. The negro, apparently realizing his fate, went to his death without a word.

Moore was given a preliminary hearing yesterday afternoon on a charge of assaulting Ethel Morgan, 5, and Lucille Morgan, 7, daughters of an Edgecombe county farmer. He waived examination and was ordered held for trial without bond.

Sheriff W. E. Barden, of Edgecombe county, ordered the negro placed in the county jail pending his trial at the September term of superior court.

Notified as soon as the men drove off, the sheriff went in search of the lynchers. He reached the negro's home after the mob has dispersed and found the body.

Watson said that none of the men in the mob had been recognized. This was the first lynching in North Carolina since 1921.

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C., Aug. 19. (AP)—Gov. O. Max Gardner, vacationing here, today said the lynching of Oliver Moore, negro, near Tarboro, was "a disgrace to North Carolina."

"I am horrified," the governor said. "It is a black blot on a fine record which the state had made for nearly a decade and of which its citizens were justly proud."

The governor said the state would do "everything in its power to find the guilty parties and bring them to justice."

BRENNHAM, Aug. 19. (AP)—Cevalus Ben, 70-year-old negro, killed Mrs. Travis Smith, 40-year-old white woman, with an axe yesterday and was himself shot and killed by Smith.

The slaying took place at the Smith farm six miles south of Brenham. Officials said indications were an attempt had been made to criminally assault the woman.

Mrs. Smith lived about 45 minutes after the attack, but never was able to make a statement. The negro was dead when officers arrived.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Thut returned during the week-end from a fishing trip to Red River canyon in Northern New Mexico.

1930 Mona Lisa

Striking resemblance of this picture of Stella Lacey, of Springfield, Ill., and the famous Mona Lisa painting by Leonardo da Vinci has interested art lovers. The painting of the 15th century Italian beauty is rated by critics as the masterpiece of portrait work.

CHAUTAUQUA IS OPENED BY FINE CAST IN DRAMA

Opened last night by a brilliant cast in the excellent comedy, "Other People's Business," the Redpath Chautauqua sponsored by the Pampa Library association will continue today with three programs.

The first was the Junior Chautauqua directed by Miss Beatrice Glover. The children make up their own programs under her direction, with the activity including music, track meet, parade, picnic, doll show and stories.

This afternoon at 3:30 o'clock Bisson's Philippine "Collegians" were to present a program of native and popular songs and dances. This troupe is from the big-time circuits. A costume concert of island music and settings, will be rendered at 8 o'clock this evening at the tent theatre south of the Methodist church. An interesting and entertaining demonstration of pottery making, with comment on the art, will be another part of tonight's program. Smith Dameron will make his popular appearance in what he calls "The Potter and the Clay."

The Chautauqua will continue tomorrow with the children's hour in the morning, the MacMurray players in a dramatic recital of "Ben Hur" in the matinee performance, and a presentation of "The Big Pond," Broadway success, in the evening.

Pleased by the size of last night's audience, the library association will increase the seating capacity of the waterproof tent today.

Superbly cast was last night's play which based its plot upon an ex-soldier who walked into the office of the general manager of a big corporation and demanded and obtained a job from the protesting executive. His rise from the shipping department to head of the organization and to position of son-in-law of the manager furnished lively action in which a worthless son of the manager, a spendthrift daughter, and a pretty stenographer figured.

The cast, headed by Robert Polard, included J. M. Smith, J. L. Stewart, Ardath Gordon, and Jetta Bee Ann Hopkins.

FERGUSON IS DEFENDED BY COL. OWSLEY

Speaker Attacks Man He Recently Gave Vote

SAYS STERLING TOO IGNORANT

Jim Called Exponent of One-Suspender Group

A crowd that was plainly pro-Ferguson filled the lower floor of the district courtroom and half of the balcony last night while Col. Alvin Owsley, former national commander of the American Legion, "poured it on" Ross Sterling, Pink Parrish, Dan Moody, Walter Woodward "and their crowd" in the caustic Ferguson manner.

About the middle of his two-hour address, the speaker read the following telegram which he said was from J. M. Sanford, George A. Whittenburg, Elliot Sanford, Joe Sneed, and John Biel Sneed, all owners of extensive creek-bed oil properties:

"When the Small land was before the legislature, we personally know that Jim Ferguson diligently worked and assisted us in our efforts toward passage of same, and it was largely due to his untiring efforts that the bill was finally passed."

Willis Introduces
Mr. Owsley was introduced by Judge Newton P. Willis after it was announced that Paul D. Hill, local commander of the American Legion, could not introduce the speaker.

Judge Willis explained that he was "on the other side of the fence but was always interested in both sides." He said that he was supporting Ross Sterling for governor, but felt it to be his duty to show courtesy to all visitors to Pampa. The fiery orator opened his address with an attack on Sterling's qualifications. The Houston candidate was described as the "most ignorant, unprepared man that ever offered himself as a candidate for governor of Texas. Sterling has hired most all the big lawyers in Texas to make speeches for him because he hasn't got sense enough to make them himself."

Admitting that he supported Sterling and voted for him in the first primary, the speaker insisted that he was not mad at the highway commission chairman. "Who in the world could get mad at a little child grown-up?" he declared. "The only trouble with Sterling is that he can't read. Cone Johnson, one of the most brilliant men in Texas, wrote his speech for him but Ross could not pronounce the words."

Attacks Moody
While discussing Gov. Moody's plan for re-locating the penitentiary, Mr. Owsley charged that "Dan never thought of selling the penitentiary."

Brilliant Lawyer Will Speak At Courthouse Tonight For Sterling

John Spurgeon of Paris, Texas, will speak at the courthouse tonight at 8 o'clock in the interest of Ross S. Sterling's candidacy for governor.

He will be introduced by Judge Newton P. Willis, president of the Small-for-governor club in the first primary, who is now supporting Mr. Sterling.

Mr. Spurgeon is known in East Texas as a brilliant lawyer and fiery orator. He was a former member of the legislature and has been a close friend of Mr. Sterling for a score of years, it was said here.

He'll Fly Over Magnetic Pole

Pilot W. E. Gilbert, above, faces one of the most difficult flights in aviation history—a three weeks' expedition from the McMurray, Alberta, seaplane base to the North Magnetic Pole and return with Major L. T. Burwash, famous northern explorer employed by the Canadian government, for whom the trip is being made. They will fly 5,000 miles over the barren region shown in the accompanying map.

KIWANIS CLUB BEING FORMED BY LOCAL MEN

Pampa will soon have a third civic club, the Kiwanis, which is in process of organization.

Frank Keen of Washington, D. C., who is connected with the international headquarters organization at Chicago, has been here several days assisting in obtaining the necessary charter membership of 25 qualified citizens.

T. F. Smaling has been elected temporary president, and E. W. Blair is temporary secretary. The date of the organization meeting will likely be set at a session of those interested this afternoon.

The Kiwanis movement is similar in organization and work to the Rotary and Lions clubs. Justice for the underprivileged child is one of the principal projects of the clubs.

Russia has built 24 ocean going vessels in the last five years.

LAST MINUTE CHARGES ARE BEING MADE

Voting Is Expected to Pass First Primary

MILLER NOW IN JIM'S PARTY

Small Will Speak For Sterling at Waco

By The Associated Press
The climax in the campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor drew nearer today, and as if sensing the day of decision the orators put more vigor into their efforts to gather votes.

James E. Ferguson, campaigning for his wife, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, moved to Naacogoches, still farther in East Texas. Ross S. Sterling turned toward Terrell and Ennis. And, to mention one not a candidate, but raising quite as much dust as the candidates, Governor Dan Moody journeyed to Dallas for a rally in behalf of Sterling.

The speeches last night reflected the 'tense' and the feeling engendered by several weeks of bitter campaigning. Especially was this noted in the rally at Tyler where Governor Moody was bombarded by hecklers, but answered each one he understood to the cheers of his audience.

Miller For "Ma"
An interesting development was the announcement of Lieutenant-Governor Barry Miller that he would take the stump for Mrs. Ferguson with an address at Austin Wednesday night. Previously, state Senator Clint C. Small, like Miller a candidate for governor defeated in the first primary, said he would speak in Waco Wednesday night for Sterling. Former Congressman James Young, also a defeated gubernatorial candidate, almost at the same time announced he would vote for Sterling.

Reports of unusually heavy absentee voting continued to bob up, and political observers in plenty opined the record for primary voting set in the first primary would be broken on Saturday. The Texas election bureau was said to have prepared to handle a vote of more than 900,000. It was certain to be gathered more quickly, however, because of the shorter ballot.

Sterling at Paris, warned his hearers to beware of last minute charges by Ferguson and said:

Replies To Charge
"Old Jim is charging I was a..."

Electric Plant Will Be Doubled In Capacity Here

An electrical generating unit of 600 horsepower capacity has been ordered for the Pampa power plant, and preparation for the installation is already under way.

The new unit will double the capacity of the plant. In addition to local facilities, the plant is interconnected with the Amarillo plant through a 44,000-volt transmission line. This arrangement gives two reliable sources of power.

In addition to providing these plant facilities, the Southwestern Public Service company has in the last few years rebuilt practically all of the distribution system along new and standard lines, keeping pace with the rapid growth of the city. Officials declare the permanency of the community is assured.

Feeder lines are being increased in size, and several extensions are being constructed at this time.

SCHOOL LIKELY WILL OPEN ON SEPTEMBER 15

Opening of local schools has tentatively been fixed for September 15, with teachers' institute to be held the preceding week, but definite arrangements will not be perfected until Supt. R. B. Fisher arrives from New York, where he is enrolled in Teachers College of Columbia university.

Owing to the fact that the Canyon consolidated institute will be held two weeks prior to opening of school here, Pampa teachers will hold their own institute. Supt. Fisher will arrange for institute speakers after he returns late this week.

Appearances are that all ward school additions and the new North ward will be ready for occupancy when classes begin. However, the addition to Central high school will not be completed by that time.

The school system of this special district will enroll nearly 3,000 pupils, who will be instructed by 110 teachers. Thirteen or more school buses will transport children from the various parts of the district to the local buildings.

Van Lear Black Is Lost at Sea

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 19. (AP)—Van Lear Black, publisher of the Baltimore Sun and noted world flier, was found to be missing last night from his yacht, the Sabalo, when the yacht was about 12 miles south of Scotland Light, off the New Jersey coast.

The announcement was made today by his associates. Mr. Black was returning here from New York. The discovery that he was missing was made when his valet went to the cabin about 10 o'clock. A search of the yacht was made immediately by Captain John J. Kelley, but Mr. Black could not be located.

The yacht was turned about and searchlights used, but without avail. Near the place on deck where Mr. Black frequently sat one of his handkerchiefs was found. It was his habit frequently to sit on the yacht's rail, with his feet caught in the guard rail and his hand on one of the upright stanchions. He had been warned by Captain Kelley on a number of occasions, Kelley said, that this was a very dangerous practice, especially when the yacht was at sea.

Women Fliers Safe

TUCSON, Ariz., Aug. 19. (AP)—All six entrants in the Women's transcontinental air derby arrived here safely for their Monday stop today.

Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach, in the lead, touched the field at 10:41:56 with flying time of 41 minutes, 56 seconds from Phoenix.

Aimee Goes Blind

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19. (AP)—Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, was reported by her private secretary, Emma Schaeffer today to have gone blind. Miss Schaeffer said she had spent the night with Mrs. McPherson at her Malibu Beach cottage, where she said the evangelist was fighting to regain her sight. The secretary made the announcement to newspapermen.

The first major window glass plant in Mexico has just been opened.

JULIAN WELL IN OKLAHOMA FORCES ISSUE

Proration in Several States Menaced by "Rebel"

COURT TEST IS ONLY RECOURSE

Price Reductions Are Feared "Around Corner"

Oil operators of the Gray county area regarded with extreme anxiety the completion of the Julian Oil and Royalty company gusher in Oklahoma City yesterday, fearing that it may disrupt the drastic proration program now in effect in that field.

It was pointed out that the statewide proration order soon to be put into effect in Texas was largely inspired by operators in Oklahoma fields who attended the proration meeting at Austin recently. Collapse of the curtailment order in the Oklahoma City field would demoralize the market and would render nearly useless and futile other programs in the mid-continent area.

That field has been and still is the crucial point in prorating production in the mid-continent area, and for several weeks the continuous drilling activities of "rebels" has placed a terrific strain on the curtailment program, according to W. J. Collier of Tulsa, official of the British-American Oil and Refining company.

The Julian well which had an initial production of 4,800 barrels per day, was completed in open violation of the Oklahoma proration law. Mr. Julian declared he never entered into any proration agreement with other operators and expected to continue producing. His wells. He prepared to fight the entire proration rule in the field. The attorney general of Oklahoma today prepared to file a receivership suit.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 19. (AP)—Defiance of conservation regulations by C. C. Julian, Los Angeles oil man, who has just entered the Oklahoma City gusher field, and a 25 cent cut in the price of crude oil from deep horizons in the Oklahoma district of Caddo county, Oklahoma, were added to the problems of the mid-continent area today.

Facing a suit to be filed by Attorney General J. Berry King based on charges of violation of the state proration order and state conservation laws, Julian invited a test of the regulations, asserting he was violating no order inasmuch as he now has a refinery, a pipeline, and is establishing a retail marketing system in the form of a string of filling stations in the vicinity of Oklahoma City.

The Anderson-Pritchard Oil corporation, one of the two principal buyers in the Cement district, announced the reduction in the posted price of crude from horizons below 2,600 feet. For oil from shallow depths no change was made. The shallow oil is bringing $1.25 per barrel and the deep oil, of 38 gravity $1.39 1-2.

For some time there have been recurring rumors that a general crude oil reduction is just around the corner. The other large buyer in the Cement district, Magnolia Petroleum, has not yet changed its scale. Anderson-Pritchard is running Cement oil to its refinery at Cyril, but like other refineries has reduced runs considerably due to the general market depression. The Cyril plant is one of the principal producers of commercial naphthas in the country.

YOUTH—THEN AND NOW

Now and then we regret the passing of the old swimming pool. We sigh a little for the blue-green waters that were so cool and refreshing when the sturdy bodies of little boys went plunging through them.

We talk about the truant days when children went far afield, farther and farther from the small red school house, until finally the echoes of its bell were lost down the long, sunny road.

Those who lived in the happy days have thrown a glamour across them. It is a long way down the memory tangled road and they recall only the dramatic. Those who have not known them thrill to the unreal.

The chances are 10 to one, if a comparison could be made of those days and the present, we would discover that contemporary America is having an exceedingly good time in spite of the fact that its recreation is handed to it on a silver platter, whereas its fathers had to go dig for theirs.

During the month of August the city streets are lined with children's parades in many cities. Gaily and contentedly the children march, showing specimens of the handiwork which they have made at summer playgrounds; showing off their pets, which are caged like those of a regular circus; singing songs, and now and then masquerading like the trapeze performers and clowns of the circuses which have come on gala days.

They seem to be enjoying life quite as much as their fathers did. Maybe it is because they have never tasted forbidden fruit that they are satisfied. They have never had to slip away from a geography class to climb a tree and watch the sky and think long, long thoughts. They are taken on botany excursions and encouraged to scale the heights.

They have never had to slip out of the house when no one was looking, to join the gang diving at the mill pond. The playground provides supervised swimming every day.

Today's plan is much wiser and more sensible, of course. Approved play is very helpful and enjoyable. None will dispute that.

But that old, divine thrill of knowing you were doing something on your own was worth a couple of supervised hours. It gave a boy a feeling of importance. Of being a little bit daring, of approaching the blissful stage of manhood when he could swim at any hour and climb any tree without being reproved.

Forbidden fruit, even the harmless kind, is always sweeter.

We have no fault to find with the modern system. It is developing stronger, healthier boys and girls. It puts its approval on the natural activities of youth instead of making children have to act as culprits who should be ashamed of their exuberance.

But there is a little of the romance of adventure that the tamer order doesn't have, somehow.—NEA.

laments, which are printed in the same volume with private laws and resolutions.

Sometimes it takes hours to find out just what a single law means.

The copy with the marginal notes is sent along to the printing office and comes back with the notations in print. This is then proofread against the copy which was sent. After that it goes once again to the printing office for the correction of any errors detected during the proofreading.

The next step is to check up the correctness of all marginal references to previous volumes. Then it is all sent back for plating, which brings the laws into type in their final form. Each law is referred to in statutes at large as a chapter, numbered in the order the laws were passed.

The plating is checked with the second revised copy, and back goes the works to the printing office once more for binding. The secretary of state is required to produce a bound volume of laws passed by each session at the end of that session. The past session's laws require two volumes. At the expiration of each Congress, every two years, are issued the new stiff-bound volumes of Statutes at Large.

Statutes at Large then takes its place as the recorded laws as therein transcribed.

The signed originals of the laws are bound and placed in steel cases in a room as nearly fireproof as can be found in the State, War and Navy Building, among the State Department's archives.

tentary farms that have oil under them until Uncle Ross came over to Austin and had conferences with him. The first bidder on the farms was the Humble Oil company. When Hobby sold the Blue Ridge farm to the Humble they began to drill for oil the next day and the state never retained any royalty rights."

The speaker said that Jim Ferguson was the only governor who ever made money out of the penitentiary system for the state. In 1915, Governor Ferguson made a million dollars out of the system for the state. "Moody is going over the state saying that he saved the state a million dollars by cancelling Ferguson's road contracts but the truth is that he lost the state $500,000 in special sessions and over a million dollars by cancelling the contracts," he declared.

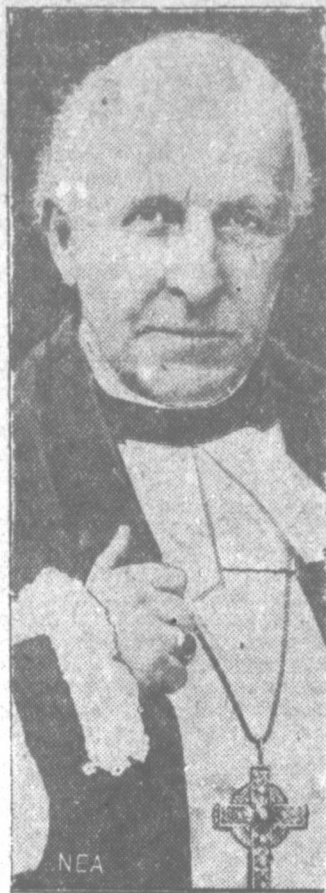

Mr. Ferguson, Owsley maintained, was the first governor to give aid to the rural schools and to "fight the battles of poor folks from the forks of the creek." Jim is for the one-suspender crowd, he said.

Mr. Owsley devoted a great part of his speech to Sterling's platform, "honesty in government." "Don't you know that if Jim Ferguson had violated any law the political tricksters who impeached him would have indicted him and sent him to the penitentiary? They have never been able to put a finger on any law that he has violated. They have lied on him and denounced him, but he is one of the purest men in Texas."

error." While denouncing the bond issue as "a strangle around the throats of the next two generations," the speaker shouted that the cement trusts are the only people supporting the bond issue. "On the night of the Sterling rally, Ross called up the president of the Portland Cement company and asked if he could sleep in his bungalow on top of the Adolphus hotel, Dallas," he told his audience.

Mrs. Owsley reiterated the charge made in Amarillo that Sterling as the chief stock-holder in the Dayton Mercantile company sold whiskey. He said the records in the state comptroller's office show that from Jan. 1, 1910 to Jan. 1, 1913, Sterling's gross receipts for liquor sales was $11,853. "Why, Ross Sterling is just an ex-saloon keeper. No man can ever lay his finger on a drop of whiskey that Jim Ferguson ever sold," he declared.

Mr. Owsley in defending Ferguson's pardon record said that he would support Sterling if any reputable lawyer or citizen of this or any other county in Texas will make an affidavit that he paid Jim Ferguson for a pardon. He gave a detailed discussion of the Langhorne case and said that Ferguson never had anything to do with it until Mrs. Ferguson had been out of office six months. He reviewed the case, mentioning that the Langhorne boy killed one girl and assaulted another, and was given the death penalty by a jury. "But because he was mentally undeveloped a group of Fayette county citizens presented a petition to Mrs.

Attorney Says Bonds In Gasoline Case Too High

A habeas corpus hearing to determine whether the bonds of H. J. Shadwick, A. C. Dale and Walter Moon, charged in connection with the theft of gasoline valued at $10,000 from the Phillips Petroleum company, are excessive is being held this afternoon at Wheeler before Judge W. R. Ewing of the 31st district court.

Through their attorney, Judge Will Saunders, the three men instituted the habeas corpus proceedings yesterday afternoon. Judge Ewing made the writ returnable at Wheeler this afternoon at 1 o'clock and ordered the sheriff to bring the three men before him. The state will be represented by C. G. Engledow, district attorney, and the Phillips Petroleum company by Judge S. A. L. Morgan of Amarillo.

Yesterday morning, C. E. Cary, justice of the peace, assessed bonds totaling $23,000 for the three men, as follows: Shadwick, seven charges $9,000; Dale, three charges, $6,000; Moon four charges, $8,000. Judge Saunders declared the bonds were excessive and instituted habeas corpus proceedings yesterday afternoon. The men will make no effort to post bond until after the hearing, it was said.

County Attorney John Studer, Phillips and Santa Fe officials are continuing their investigations today. After they obtained two signed confessions yesterday, warrants were issued for the arrest of two other men alleged to have been involved in the theft. Both Dale and Shadwick were employed as switchmen for the Santa Fe railroad. Moon was a clerk at the Phillips plant. Another Phillips employe is being held in the county jail as a material witness.

Ferguson to pardon the boy and she commuted the sentence," he said.

A new accusation was hurled at Mr. Sterling by Owsley. The Ferguson supporter said that two insurance companies organized by Mr. Sterling for employes of the Humble and Texas companies went bankrupt, "cheated, maimed and crippled employes of the companies out of $900,000," he said the organizers further violated the law when rebates were paid to the Humble and Texas companies.

The speaker gave a lengthy discussion of reasons why Governor Moody commuted the death sentence of Bob Silver, Fort Worth hi-jacker, who was given the death penalty on a charge of murder.

When A Man 'Phones A Dog—That's News!

Frederick Burton, movie actor (left) regularly telephones from Hollywood to talk to his dog, Boyisie (right), in Norwalk Conn., much to Boyisie's delight.

By ROBBIN COONS Associated Press Staff Writer HOLLYWOOD (P)—When a man telephones his dog—that's news, too.

Especially when the man is a movie actor in Hollywood and the dog is back home in Norwalk, Conn., a continent's width away.

Frederick Burton, who came from the Broadway stage to play in a Hollywood talkie, got in the habit of phoning Boyisie, his two-year-old Irish terrier, from the Lamb's club in New York.

When he came west he couldn't resist the urge to have more "barkie" conversations, although the high tolls prohibited as frequent calls as before.

Mr. Burton and his wife, who remained in Norwalk during his sojourn here, adopted Boyisie, a foundling, just before they moved from a New York apartment to "the country" in Connecticut.

Boysie, says Burton, is not a real Irish terrier—"but he thinks he is."

With Mrs. Burton as Boyisie's assistant in telephoning back home, Burton and his pet have had many a pleasant chat. The dog, after the first few calls, soon began running to the telephone whenever it rang, thinking the call was for him.

Their conversation, says Burton, usually runs like this:

"Hello, Boyisie!"
"Woof-woof!"
"Been getting your rations all right, boy?"
"Woof-woof!"
"And how's Otache?"
"Gr-r-r-r!"

Otache, Burton explains, is the terror of Boyisie's existence—a big police dog in the neighborhood.

After more such small talk, Mrs. Burton takes the phone again, and Burton, a tall, genial fellow, admits he probably gets more fun out of it than Boyisie does.

DANCING JUDITH

BY CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN

COPYRIGHT 1950 BY CHELSEA HOUSE

BEGIN HERE TODAY JUDITH GRANT, artist's model loves ALAN STEYNE, who is also loved by CHUMMY MORLEY, her best friend. Chummy had loved Steyne years ago, and lost her memory when he went away; so, though he loves Judith, Judith insists it is his duty to marry Chummy, who remains her memory when she sees him again. Judith studies dancing and becomes a star in a musical show backed by RICHARD WYON; later, however, she learns Wyon is merely an agent for BRUCE GIDEON, a financier who is infatuated with her. She vows to save money and pay Gideon back so people will not think she is obligated to him. Meanwhile, Chummy learns Judith and Steyne are in love and breaks her engagement on the eve of her marriage. Judith visits at Gideon's home and is asked by MADAME DE TOROS, his sister, if she intends to marry him. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV

Madame de Toros walked in front of Judy toward the door. The girl noticed the little, nervous, jerky movements of her small, dark head, that were due to the weight of her great, pearl-tipped diamond crown. At the door she stopped, and passing Judy, went back to the dress in table, where she removed the ornament, taking out its fastenings—about a dozen platinum hairpins. "It's so heavy," she said, while Judy waited. "I'd rather die than wear a thing like that," the girl replied, adding generously: "but you look awfully smart in it. You remind me of a queen I saw in Rome. She came to the theater. She was awfully nice to me."

Amicably chatting, the two passed down the staircase into the little paneled room where supper was laid. Gideon awaited them alone. "Mr. Glyn couldn't come—was prevented at the last minute," he explained. "And Gossetvitsch has broken his wrist. His man just telephoned. Awkward thing for him isn't it? But I expect he's well insured. I regret you two ladies will have to put up with me. It's too late to get any one else."

"I'm famishing," Judy replied. "I'll have some of that nice stodge-looking pie." Madame de Toros watched the girl narrowly, but found it difficult to analyze Judy's attitude toward Gideon. She was very amiable, in a careless way, laughing often like a merry child. She scarcely touched her champagne, but ate a great many sweets. Gideon, on the contrary, drank a great deal more than usual. The telephone bell rang through the flat. Gideon rose and went out. "You've wanted, Thirza," he said to his sister, when he came back. He accompanied her out of the room, and came back alone. "It's my sister's husband ringing her up. He rings up at home, and they put him through here. Let me give you some of this cold soufflé."

"No thanks—couldn't eat another crumb," Judy replied. "I must be going." "Oh, wait a few minutes, do!" He gave her a cigaret, lit it, and put a light to a spirit lamp on which was a Turkish coffee-pot—an elaborate thing that Judy always admired, made of copper, with gold coins let in at the lip, and a band of turquoise all round the rim. He came and sat down next to her; she leaned her arms on the table. She was getting tired. She hoped Madame de Toros would not be long. "Your sister asked me why you broke off your engagement," she said, for something to say. "What did you tell her?" "That I didn't know."

"You knew very well, Judy. I did it for you." "You never told me so." "That wasn't necessary. You knew it all right." His voice sank. "I broke it off because I couldn't stand the girl. I was mad with love for you. And she made scenes. It cost me a pretty penny—two hundred thousand dollars I had to pay that old scoundrel, her father. Otherwise she'd have sued me." Judy shrugged her shoulders. "What a pot of money!" she said. "You shouldn't have been engaged if you didn't want to marry her."

"I don't want to marry anybody, Judy. It was a fool idea. I think I wanted to make you jealous." "Oh, is, la!" The little careless exclamation, half amused, half contemptuous, had hardly left her lips when, quite suddenly, she felt that something was wrong. She did not know what it was just a feeling. She looked at the man by her side. There was something about his eyes that she didn't like. He was breathing heavily. One large flashy hand was straying on the back of her chair. Judy knew the signs. She kept her head. "The coffee is boiling over," she said coolly. As he went across the room to lift the pot, dripping with the thick brown, strong-smelling beverage, she rose from her seat and walked around the table. She did not think he was drunk, but she knew he had had enough to drink. The flat was very silent. She strained her ears to catch his sister's voice talking to her husband over the telephone. Gideon came toward Judy with a brimming cup. "I thought I had to boil three times," she said. "What does it matter?" he asked thickly. "I like my coffee properly made, thanks," she laughed. "I won't have any. It keeps me awake, anyhow."

"Judy," he said, "you know why I broke off with Luna Colt. I never cared a pin about her. I never wanted her. I only want you, Judy—you know that. You know what the world says about us?" She laughed on a high hysterical note. "Oh, as to that!" "As to that." He repeated her words with a meaning that sank into her brain very, very slowly. At the same time he put out his hand toward her. She eluded him and ran to the door. In the hall it was very still. She ran into the library, where his private telephone was. The room was empty. Nowhere did she hear his sister's voice, or any human voice. "What's the matter?" she cried, her voice shrill pitched, her skin turning to gooseflesh all over her bare arms. "Where is your sister? Where is she?"

Gideon stood bulking in the doorway of the little dining room. "She has gone home, Judy," he said very softly. "She asked me to say good night to you." Judy rushed to the front door. She rattled the handle and found it locked. "The door is locked!" Judy said. "Unlock it!" Gideon did not speak. "Unlock it at once!" The smile on his face maddened her, but she knew that above all things she must keep her head. He was not drunk; for that he was the more dangerous. "Not just yet, Judy," Gideon said. She crossed the hall and ran upstairs into the bedroom where she and Madame de Toros had removed their wraps. She wore a little frock of brilliant tint, between rose red and tomato, and she went up the dark oak stairs like a flash of sunset. She found Madame de Toros' cloak gone. Her diamond crown with the big pearl tips, which she had taken off and laid on the dressing table, was gone, too. Judy ran downstairs again. Gideon still stood in the doorway, smiling. "Where's your sister?" she cried furiously. "A nice thing for her to go away like that and leave me alone!" "Why should my sister suppose that you did not want to stay, Judy?" the man asked. "She knows that you and I are good friends."

"I bet the telephone was all a bluff! You disgusting brute! You got her out of the way so that you her nerve—so that you could play could"—she laughed, rallying all this silly joke on me!" "It isn't a joke, Judy! You've been playing the fool with me! It's got to stop. Why did you go about with me everywhere? Why did you make me get rid of Luna Colt? Why did you drive me mad, so that I could think of nothing but you night and day? What did you mean by it all?" "Nothing! Nothing!" "That won't do, Judy. You've got to mean something, and don't look at me like a little wild cat."

"Unlock the door and let me go, please!" she said, making her voice wheedling, like a child. "No, Judy. Come and be friends." He took a step toward her. "I shall yell the house down," she said suddenly. The words rattled in her throat. "Not the slightest use. There's only my man up at the top, right at the end of the corridor; and whatever he heard, he wouldn't take any notice." The words, softly spoken and compact, frightened her more than anything else. She backed up the stairs. "Please unlock the door!" "No, Judy. You wanted it this way. You've led me on; you've dangled me on a string for months. Now—now it's my turn!" She went very cold and still. She saw him through a mist. He looked like a wild beast. She thought of him as a tiger, locking his jaws. She had seen the wild beast in him before, but never so fierce that it could not be tamed. Fascinated, she stared at him, unable to move. He meant to make her pay! He came up to her and put his hand on her shoulder. He was murmuring a string of words, but she did not hear one of them. She wished that she could pray. Why had no one ever taught her to pray? Why had no one ever told her about God? She felt a dull anger against the world. She remembered that Dan prayed. Words came to her that she had often heard him repeat. They jangled in her brain. Gideon's hoarse voice was close to her ear. Everything was a blur, but through the gathering darkness she saw his eyes, bloodshot, covetous—the eyes of a man who will wait no longer. Quite suddenly and simply, without meaning to, she raised her hand and made the sign of the cross. She had never done such a thing before. It was almost like a miracle. Gideon started back as if some one had struck him a blow. He seemed to reel. Mrs. J. E. Hamilton was elected group captain, succeeding Mrs. Dan McIntosh, who resigned. The next meeting date was announced as Aug. 18.

ROOKIES BOLSTER SPUDDERS AS VETERANS LET DOWN

STEERS ARE RESTING AFTER 10 VICTORIES

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

If a chain is no stronger than its weakest link, a Texas league club is no stronger than its rookies.

Where the veterans of the Wichita Falls pitching staff, Wittse, Steengrate and Caldwell, have been having all sorts of trouble lately, the youngsters attached to the first half champions' staff have been coming through nobly to keep the Spudders out in front.

Freddie Vincent, one of Carl Williams' juvenile slabsters, whipped the Houston Buffs down, 9 to 5, in the deciding game of their series yesterday at Spudderville to put the Brownies a game and one-half ahead of the second place Fort Worth nine. In addition to holding the threatening Bisons to nine blows—and blanking them in seven of the nine frames, Vincent led the Spud attack on Payne, Stout and Rose with a pair of doubles and a single. Sol Mishkin, Buff first sacker, accounted for three of his team's runs with a homer in the fourth that found two aboard.

The Panthers lost valuable ground as they bowed to San Antonio, 19 to 8 in a rousing 11-inning struggle that closed their series. Rallies in the seventh and eighth enabled the Cats to tie the count, but they lost the decision for Hank Thormahlen by poor defensive work in the second extra round. Each side used up three pitchers in the free-hitting mele.

Tiny Owens, awkward looking but effective Sport twirler, had the Waco Cubs eating out of his hand until the last two innings as Shreveport took their final, 8 to 5. It was the ninth loss in 10 starts for the Pestmen, who have exploded even louder than their most critical critics predicted. Wildness of Brancheau, who walked five after relieving Becker in the seventh, contributed to the Sports victory. Cashion, with a triple, double and a single was the big gun in the Louisians' attack.

Ten straight victories behind them, the Dallas Steers enjoyed a day's rest before tackling the Kittens tomorrow at Fort Worth. The Exporters spent the day enroute to home diggings, where today they open a series with Houston.

Terracing Gives Low Land Yield

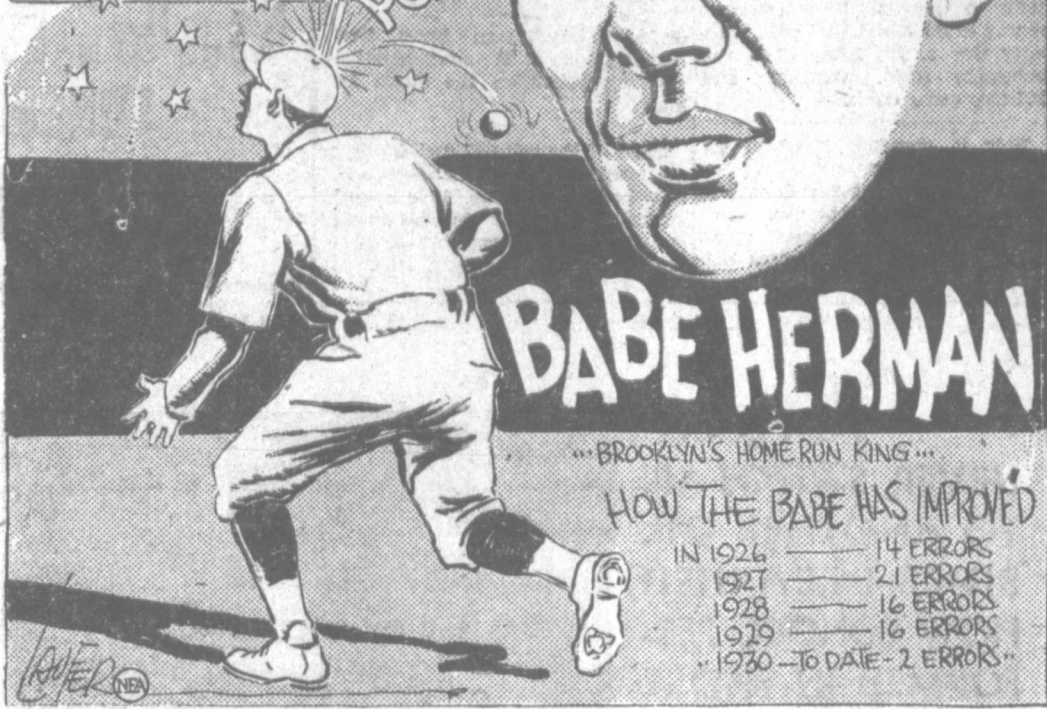

The benefits of terracing were described by a report sent to Ralph R. Thomas, county agent of Gray county, by Charles T. Watson, county agent of Sherman county.

Mr. Watson in his report described an area of 250 acres, that appeared to be level land. Three lakes on this land covered about 50 acres. By terracing, the bottom of the lakes yielded fifteen bushels of wheat to the acre, while the land around the lake made about 25 bushels. Land adjoining the part around the lakes made about 30 bushels to the acre; this land was farmed by the same man and under the same conditions as the other except that it was not terraced.

Mr. Thomas said that when lake bottom lands were sown in wheat, the yield was not at first as large as on other soils, but later would produce more than the surrounding land.

Oklahoma City Field Has Lead In Crude Decline

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 19. (AP)—A decline of 26,270 barrels in the Oklahoma city field led the way for a decrease of 25,254 barrels in the estimated daily average production of oil in the United States for the week ended August 16, the Oil and Gas Journal reports. The total estimated daily average output for the week was 2,483,005, compared with 2,478,259 barrels for the preceding week.

The total decline in the Mid-Continent area including both light and heavy gravity oil, was 25,250 barrels almost equalling the downward movement for the entire country. Production in the Oklahoma City pool dropped to 70,615 barrels and Oklahoma's total was placed at 837,755, a decrease of 22,320. Little change was recorded in other mid-continent fields. Kansas production was down 3,165 barrels at 114,320. The total for the mid-continent area was 1,306,874 barrels.

A noteworthy feature of the weekly report was found in a comparison with the production for the corresponding week of last year, showing that last week's daily average was 512,000 barrels under that of

ROBINS DROP BACK AGAIN—PIRATES WIN

BY ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

A few days ago the Brooklyn Robins were fighting to keep a foothold on first place in the National league pennant race. They failed in a crucial series at Chicago and now they are battling to stave off the mad rush of the Giants.

The Robins dropped a game further out of first place and a half game nearer the idle Giants in third position yesterday when they lost 4 to 3 to the Pittsburgh Pirates. Going into the last half of the ninth Uncle Robbie's boys held a one-run lead by reason of Glenn Wright's homer. Dick Bartell advanced to the plate with the bases loaded and rapped a sizzling double down the 15th base line—a blow that scored two runs and gave the Pirates the game.

The Cubs pounced on two Phillies pitchers for 17 hits to win 17 to 3 and increased their lead over the Robins to three and one-half games. It was the champions' 11th victory in the last 13 starts, with one tie. Big Pat Malone held the Phillies to eight hits and accounted for his fifteenth game of the season while Hack Wilson connected with his forty-second homer, one short of the league record set last season by Chuck Klein, who saw the ball sail into the bleachers from his position in the Phillies outfield.

The three leaders in the American league won. Philadelphia downing St. Louis 6 to 4, Washington turning back Detroit 5 to 4 and the Yankees beating the Chicago White Sox 11 to 4.

An uprising in the eighth inning gave the Athletics the decision over the Browns. Four runs crossed the plate during that session while Walter Stewart took an early trip to the showers. George Earnshaw, champions, hung up his nineteenth which went the route for the world victory of the season and Mickey Cochrane blasted out his eighth home run during the eighth inning.

Irving Hadley was the hero of the Senators' triumph over the Tigers. He handed out just six hits although enough of them were bunched in the sixth to allow the Tigers to count three runs. Hopsget was touched for nine safeties, including a triple and four doubles, over five innings.

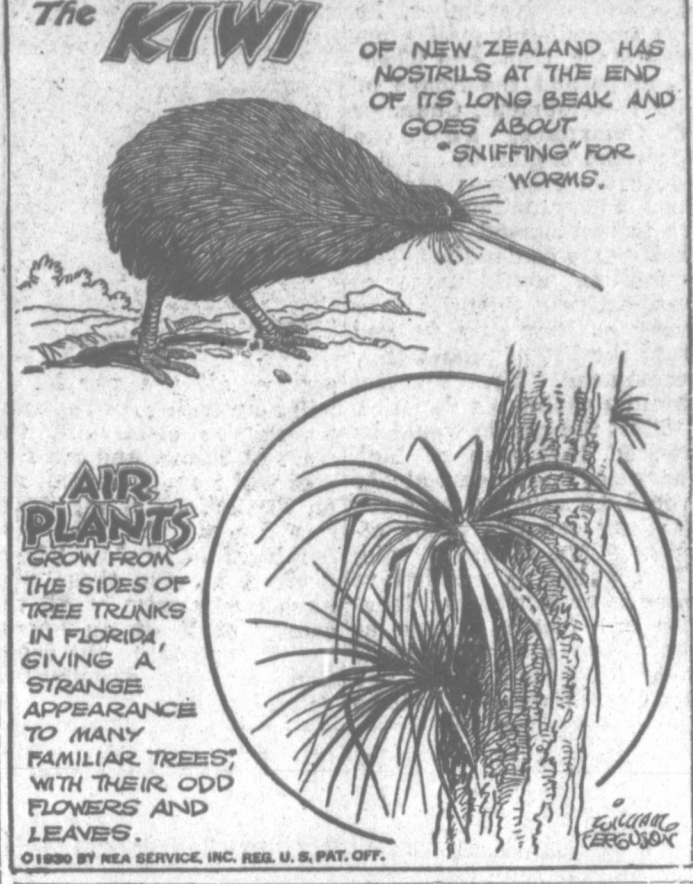

Herb Penneck turned in a sterling performance in the White Sox downfall. The 36-year-old southpaw was hit hard at times but was stingy in pinches while not issuing a base on balls. Meanwhile the Yankees in general and Chapman, Gehrig and Byrd in particular were doing some steady hitting. Chapman collected four hits, Gehrig, three, including his thirty-fifth home run and Byrd the same number.

Cleveland and Boston were rained out. Only two games were scheduled in the National circuit.

MORE THAN FORTY BOYS TO ENTER FOOTBALL TRAINING CAMP AT MEL DAVIS RANCH

Captain Don Saulsbury and more than 40 other Harvesters and would-be first string men will report to Coach Odus Mitchell tomorrow morning to receive football equipment for the coming season.

At about 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon the squad will head for Camp Mel Davis in Central Gra. for 10 days of fun and work—mostly work. Coach Mitchell warned the boys in a meeting last night that the training camp would be no place "just to have a good time."

Getting into playing condition is the big issue now, and the coach has declared war on cigars, late hours, and anything else which would interfere with grid endurance. Several husky newcomers are to report to camp, and competition for places in the starting line-ups will be unusually keen this year.

Reports from over the Class A district show that Pampa will have one of the lightest squads, but doubtless one of the speediest. Almost every Harvester has lost a few pounds during this summer, indicating plenty of outdoor exercise, but the little fellows who needed the pounds have added them thru normal growth.

The boys were asked to take their tooth brushes and bathing suits to camp, with two or three quilts for bedding. There will be an ample quantity of good food, but no luxuries. The coach warned against suffering of blisters and sunburn, for with the first game on Sept. 6 with Spur here, good physical condition will be vital. The best example of football spirit to date is that of Don Reno. Told that some 200-pounders would be faced by the Harvesters in every game, Don said: "Oh, boy, just like diving into feather beds."

After taking a graduated course of outdoor training at the camp, the Harvesters will return here for work-outs in preparation for the opening game. When weather interferes with outdoor work, the gymnasium will be used.

Feather Champ Keeps His Title

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 19. (AP)—Bat Battalino of Hartford, world's featherweight champion, last night outslugged Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., in a 10-round non-title fight.

Referee Gene Roman, credited Battalino with eight rounds. Taylor with one, and ruled one even. The champion weighted 129 1/2 pounds, while Taylor weighted 128.

Clingman Will Make Drive For Wrestling Title

Otis "Baby Face" Clingman, Pampa's favorite wrestler, had a gorgeous dream the other night. He dreamed that he stepped out of the ring with the middle-weight championship belt around his waist. It was so real—until he awoke.

For the last year, Otis has had it in his mind to win that belt, and now he thinks he has a good chance to cop it. Last night at Dallas, Joe Kopecky wrestled George Bonds and regardless of the winner Otis believes he can throw the winner before another year is over.

So next week, he will begin an intensive training schedule that he will follow until he possesses the belt. If Jos is crowned champion, plans to lure him to Pampa and take it away from him this fall or next winter.

Clingman will open his wrestling season at the Pia-Mor in September "and you might tell the Pampa wrestling fans that I'm through with ham and egg wrestlers," he said. "The boys I wrestle from now on have got to be top-notchers and every man I throw is going to be a step toward the championship."

Ferguson spoke in softened voice of farm foreclosures he had seen. He was discussing the equity redemption law sponsored by Mrs. Ferguson. He fairly dripped pity as he said he was "a man before a governor," and "by the eternal Gods" he was "for the home."

Again he attacked the proposed highway bond issue, saying its adoption would be fatal for the state. He challenged Sterling to say where he stood now on the proposal, insisting Sterling had been dodging the issue. He promised Mrs. Ferguson, if elected, would lay 3,000 miles of road a year without a bond issue.

Sterling at Paris flatly said he was still for the highway bond issue, but added he wasn't greatly concerned about any issue except "Fergusonism," because, said he, "what would be the use of any issue if Jim Ferguson should be elected governor?"

Talks Of Pardons
At Lufkin, Governor Moody appeared "in behalf of the boys and girls of Texas" for a Sterling vote that would bury "Fergusonism so deep it never will emerge." He discussed Ferguson's impeachment, and detailed Mrs. Ferguson's pardon habits. He said 6,398 pardons were granted during the administrations of Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson. He declared Ferguson had said the penitentiary was free of debt when it was turned over to the Moody administration, but the records showed it was over two million dollars in the red.

Bobbie Glenn was born in Caney, Kans. The family has lived in this section for the last two years. He is survived by his stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Franck, two sisters, Esther and Laura, and a brother, Delmar. Interment will be at the Pampa cemetery.

Lon Blanscet Proposes Unique Plan in Selection of Deputies

Lon L. Blanscet, candidate for sheriff, has announced his plan for the selection of deputies if he is elected sheriff of Gray county.

In case Mr. Blanscet is nominated next Saturday and elected in the general election in November, he will immediately call upon the Rotary, Lions and Kiwanis clubs and the Board of City Development, Chamber of Commerce, and the American Legion to appoint two representatives each to form a nominating committee to recommend whom he shall name as deputies. This committee would name as prospective deputies as many as they saw fit and from the list of names they recommend Mr. Blanscet would appoint his deputies.

Thus the public would be assured that men of high character and known ability would be selected to serve as Gray county's peace officers. Mr. Blanscet said, "The public is entitled to have a say in who the deputies are just the same as they have a say in who is sheriff. I realize that if I am elected sheriff I will be

I want the very best obtainable, therefore I have decided to give those who have the interest of all the county at heart an opportunity to assist in the selection of my deputies."

American Legion Not In Politics In Any Form

On recent occasions, it has come to the attention of Kerley-Crossman Post No. 334, The American Legion, that insidious, selfish and powerful forces have attempted to involve the American Legion in political affairs. For the information of the public your attention is directed to a part of the national constitution of the American Legion which states:

"The American Legion shall be absolutely non-political and shall not be used for the dissemination of partisan principles nor for the promotion of the candidacy of any person seeking public office or preferment." Therefore, the American Legion, as stated above, is non-partisan, non-political and non-sectarian, and this principle is strictly adhered to, as an organization.

The members of the American Legion have, as their own privilege, their individual rights, as citizens, to vote and support whom might be their choice, a candidate for public office, and the public should not form an opinion that the American Legion members are, as an organization, supporting any political candidate or cause.

We wish also to inform the public that the name of Post Commander, Paul D. Hill, has been used in local publications without authority, to further the cause of candidates and political issues. This practice, of course, will reflect upon the American Legion and it is not right and fitting that any American Legion official's name should be used in any political cause as a Legion representative.

It will not be necessary for Legion members and officials to make further apologies or alibis to the public for persons promoting political propaganda and no publication pertaining to American Legion activities if politics is mentioned therein.

Some of the political spell-binders are quoting from the Scriptures. It is a bad omen. The Bible speaks alarmingly of every sin, and where is a candidate without sin? It were better that they should stick to

Are men without interest in things literary and artistic? It seems rather queer that we of the downtown business circle should relegate study of the best in modern art and literature to the ladies. Maybe, when we "get time," we can investigate some of the wonders the other sex is enjoying.

"YOU COULD NEVER SWITCH ME TO ANOTHER OIL SINCE I LEARNED HOW CONOCO PERFORMED IN THOSE PIKE'S PEAK AND RACING TESTS"

The story of Conoco Germ-Processed Motor Oil, as told in the advertising, and proven on Pike's Peak, at the Indianapolis Speedway and Altoona Flag Day races, has paralleled the story which this oil has been telling in hundreds of thousands of motors.
Conoco's original announcement stated that the virtues of the Germ Process were so radically different from any other refining method, that this lubricant would outperform other popular and nationally known American motor oils. You were told that the metal-penetrative safety factor of this oil was so vital that the film in the "pores" of the motor metal would protect your engine in emergencies where other oils have failed.
Well, it has all been proven in the past 8 months. In addition to sensational achievements on Pike's Peak and at the Indianapolis and Altoona races, scores of satisfactory tests have been made on private cars by enthusiastic users. Now that summer heat is here to intensify and increase motor heat, remember that one of Conoco Germ-Processed oil's outstanding characteristics is heat resistance.
We invite you to begin using this first really new oil today. Just say "Germ-Processed" at the Sign of the Conoco Red Triangle.
