No Lotto winner; jackpot $24 million

No ticket correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said.

The numbers drawn Wednesday night from a field of 54 were: 6-12-17-24-35-47. Saturday night's drawing will be worth an estimated $24 million.

Travis County tops in Texas escapes

AUSTIN (AP) — More prisoners have escaped from the Texas capital area than any other county in the state, regulators say.

The escape of two inmates from the jail in Del Valle this week only added to Travis County's unwanted distinction. One of those inmates has not yet been caught.

Recent jailbreaks have brought Travis County's total to 14 since 1996, the most in the state, according to the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

The total includes two men accused of murder who escaped Sunday from the recreation yard of a maximum security psychiatric unit at the Travis County Correctional Complex.

Joshua Johannes, who is considered armed and dangerous, remained at large Thursday morning. Troy Lee Bailey, who escaped with Johannes by scaling the recreation yard wall and getting past two perimeter fences, was in custody Tuesday after an anonymous tip led police to him.

Citizens sign letter against NPD

Missive says company, pigs unwanted here

By NANCY YOUNG
 Managing Editor

Not everyone is welcoming pigs to the Pampa area.

When Susan Tripplehorn, Executive Director of the Pampa Economic Development Corporation, made the July 6 announcement of what was called "an exciting program" regarding National Pig Development of North Carolina plans to locate a genetic research facility 11 miles east of Pampa, some residents didn't roll out the red carpet.

In fact, they are asking NPD not to come to Pampa.

A letter organizers plan to send to John Carter, General Manager of National Pig Development is circulating in the community which states the group does not want them near Pampa.

The letter states:

"We, the undersigned citizens of Gray County, Texas do, by this document, wish to advise National Pig Development that we do not want the proposed pig-breeding facility your company proposes to locate east of Pampa, Texas, nor do we want any other type of swine or swine-related facility in this county.

"Further, as taxpayers, we do not willingly consent to be forced to subsidize the costs of your pig factories, i.e., polluted air, polluted land, polluted groundwater, and eventually a polluted town that no one wants to live in.

$100,000 bond set in shooting House damaged in retaliation

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
 Staff Writer

A Pampa man remained in Gray County Jail today on $100,000 bond after his arrest by sheriff's deputies in connection with a shooting earlier this year.

Meanwhile, city police continue to look for the driver of a Bronco driven into a parked vehicle and a house on Sierra Street in what officials believe was done in revenge for the arrest.

Oscar Ruiz, 37, 425 N. Russell, was arrested by Gray County Sheriff's deputies and Texas Department of Public Safety officers about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday on a felony warrant for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, according to Chief Deputy Kelly Rushing.

Rushing said the charges stem from an incident last March in which a man was reportedly shot twice. He declined to identify the shooting victim for the man's safety.

Campaigning is heating up on both sides as the Nov. 6 date draws closer to decide the future of the Pampa Economic Development Corporation. Pampans who want the PEDC dissolved distributed over 100 yard signs Wednesday urging people to mark the "for" box on the ballot for the dissolution of PEDC. PEDC supporters are urging voters to mark the "against" box to prevent the taxing entity from being dissolved.

It's frightening!

This year, a dollar of every ticket sold to the Pampa Firefighters Association's "House of Fright" will go to the families of the New York City firefighters who died in the collapse of the World Trade Center Towers on Sept. 11.

For the third consecutive year, PFA members are sponsoring a haunted house at the old Baker Elementary School building at Tuke and Barnes streets. Association members decided this year to add $1 to the ticket price for the NYC firefighters in addition to the $3 they charge to help raise funds for needy children. Total ticket price will be $4.

The "House of Fright" opens at 7 p.m., Friday, Oct. 26, and will continue to open at 7 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 27; Tuesday, Oct. 30; and on Wednesday, Oct. 31, Halloween night. Each trip through the "house" takes approximately 20 to 25 minutes.

This year's "House of Fright" will feature two new scary rooms, said Firefighter Tim Walde, a PFA member, adding, "They're a secret." "We don't recommend this for small children," he said.

In the three years since it began, the "House of Fright" has become increasingly popular with older youngsters and adults looking for scary way to spend an evening.

Armed with a chain saw, scary movie character, "Jason," roams the roof of Baker, an old elementary school building at Tuke and Barnes streets. He's getting ready for his part in the Pampa Firefighters Association's third annual "House of Fright" which opens at 7 p.m. Friday. Organizers say the haunted house is not for young children or the faint of heart.

Flag run needs volunteers

"Flag Across America," a nationwide event to support the families of the Sept. 11 tragedy will cross the Texas Panhandle Oct. 31.

Jana Gregory of Pampa, a local volunteer, is seeking more volunteer runners and others to help in the massive project.

As a demonstration of American resolve and in support of the families of victims who died in the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, employees of American and United Airlines, military service members, and hundreds of volunteers decided to carry a United States flag across the country.

This flag was flown over Iraq in the cockpit of a U.S. F-16 in support of Operation Southern Watch on Oct. 2, by the 93rd Fighter Squadron, 482 Fighter Wing, Homestead Air Reserve Station, Fla

While the event is intended to be a symbolic effort of support and unity, fundraising proceeds will benefit selected charities in support of the victims of the tragedy on Sept. 11.

On Oct. 11, a volunteer runner carrying this flag left Boston with the goal to arrive in Los Angeles on Veteran's Day, Nov. 11. These cities represent the origination and destination of American Flight 11 and United Flight 175 which crashed, killing all aboard in the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

The flag will be carried by volunteer runners around the clock from Boston, through New York, Washington, Atlanta, Dallas, Oklahoma City, Albuquerque, Phoenix, and Los Angeles. Military service members and federal employees will also (See FLAG, Page 3)

Pantex officials take papers, cite security

AMARILLO (AP) — Citing safety concerns, Pantex officials have removed boxes of unclassified public documents from the Pantex Plant Citizens Advisory Board's office.

Late Wednesday, Department of Defense officials and Pantex employees in tan coveralls carted out document boxes to a white truck outside the downtown advisory board office.

Plant officials also have cleaned out once-public documents and reports from Energy Department public reading rooms in Amarillo and Panhandle.

Jerry Johnson, a DOE Pantex official, said Wednesday he faxed a letter to the two co-chairmen of the advisory board informing them all public Pantex documents will be reviewed.

"Anything we can return to the reading rooms we will," he said as (See PANTEX, Page 3)

Burglary charges await pair

Gray County Sheriff's deputies drove to Lubbock today to pick up a husband and wife wanted on felony burglary charges here.

Bobby Charles Shaw, 57, of Pampa and his wife April Jeannette Shaw, 21, were arrested in Lubbock Wednesday by the Lubbock police, according to Chief Deputy Kelly Rushing. The pair is being held in Lubbock County Jail in lieu of bond on felony charges, he said.

On Monday, Oct. 22, Deputies Mark Williams and Brad Bengel were called to investigate the burglary of Sivall's Inc., an oilfield equipment manufacturing company west of Pampa on U.S. 60. Their investigation led to an arrest warrant for Bobby Charles Shaw for burglary of a building, a state jail felony.

Further investigation pointed deputies to other property believed to have been stolen in Amarillo, Rushing said.

A second arrest warrant for theft over $1,500 and under $20,000 was issued for April Jeannette Shaw, he said.

Accidents

Pampa Police Department reported the following accidents during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

Wednesday, Oct. 24
3:18 p.m. — A hit-and-run accident was reported at Travis Elementary School, 2300 Primrose. Sometime between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m., an unknown vehicle struck 1995 Buick Roadmaster owned by Kay Crouch, 1526 N. Nelson, and left the scene. The Buick was legally parked in the school parking lot.

3:59 p.m. — A 1995 Oldsmobile Cutlass driven by Sarah Lynn Teague, 17, RR 2, Box 376, and a 1991 Pontiac Grand Am driven by Glenda Ann Kohler, 41, 717 N. Christy, collided in the 100 block of East Harvester. Kohler suffered non-incapacitating injuries and was transported to Pampa Regional Medical Center by Rural Metro Ambulance for treatment. Teague was cited for failure to control speed.

Enron ousts CFO amid questions

HOUSTON (AP) — Enron Corp. may have added another question to the list investors already have by ousting its chief financial officer a day after the company stressed its confidence in Andrew Fastow amid a Securities and Exchange Commission inquiry.

"It could either be viewed as a positive step toward easing investor concern or it could be interpreted as if Enron removed the CFO at the request of the SEC," Prudential Securities Inc. analyst Carol Coale said Wednesday. "Who knows?"

Enron officials hope it will result in increased investor confidence after the energy trading giant's stocks have declined in value each day since Monday's announcement that the SEC had inquired about partnerships that did business with Enron while they were managed by Fastow.

"In my continued discussions with the financial community, it became clear to me that restoring investor confidence would require us to replace Andy as CFO," Enron chief executive officer Kenneth Lay said after markets closed Wednesday. Fastow will take a leave of absence from the company while Jeff McMahon, who has served as chairman and chief executive of Enron's Industrial Markets group, takes over his role.

A.G. Edwards & Sons analyst Mike Heim said it will take more than replacing Fastow as chief financial officer to clear the uncertainty looming in the financial world about Enron and its partnerships.

Terrorism fears mount; officials warn flu deadlier than anthrax

HOUSTON (AP) — State health officials say they expect more people to get flu vaccinations this year because of mounting fears about anthrax, which included a lockdown at part of a Houston area hospital.

But officials say people should be more worried about getting the flu, which kills 30,000 Americans annually.

On Wednesday, the Kingwood Medical Center emergency room was shut down while Houston police and fire authorities tested for possible anthrax contamination.

No one inside the emergency room was allowed to leave and no one was allowed to enter, hospital spokeswoman Mary Nolan said.

"Our patients are well and safe and all precautions are being taken to protect everyone involved," she said.

No information was available early Thursday about whether authorities found any traces of anthrax. So far, no anthrax cases have been confirmed in Texas, despite a number of scares.

Officials are urging people to get flu shots this fall, particularly those who are at risk for contracting the virus such as the elderly.

Officials note that a flu vaccine doesn't prevent contracting the virus but it does lessen its affect. The shot doesn't protect against anthrax, they said.

Security company tests terror response

HOUSTON (AP) — Near the heart of Texas' petrochemical industry, police officers posed as terrorists in scuba gear to help plant operators tighten security. But the Texas City drill also revealed continued weaknesses.

The drills, organized by a consultant, were designed to help Sterling Chemical Co. officials detect weak spots in their security system.

Company officials said Wednesday that members of the Galveston Police Department dive team participated in the drills in late September and October, climbing out of boats in Galveston Bay and swimming to shore to enter the plant grounds.

Police teams that entered the plant by land Oct. 18 reported it was considerably harder than during the earlier drill because of additional security measures, including fences.

But both drills revealed problems that remained even after the company increased its security in stages since the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, company spokesman Mark Kahill said.

They were able to beat some security measures, Kahill said.

The petrochemical plants and refineries that adjoin the Houston Ship Channel, the world's eighth largest port, pump $7.7 billion in the local economy annually and are crucial to the nation's industrial and energy infrastructure.

Better equipment, medicine, improve outlook for inhaled anthrax

UNDATED — A quarter century of medical progress against infectious diseases appears to be giving doctors an edge in treating inhaled anthrax, a medical disaster once thought to be a virtual death sentence.

The disease was long considered grim if victims showed up at the hospital with even the earliest symptoms. Those in the late stages, when breathing and blood pressure collapse, were believed beyond the reach of doctors' care.

But on Tuesday night, the Florida man who became the first hospitalized victim of inhaled anthrax was sent home to complete his recovery, even though his disease had progressed to that dangerous last stage.

Doctors caution that it is too soon to draw many conclusions from the 11 other probable cases so far. Three of those patients have died, but some of them are reported to be stable or improving. Doctors say up-to-date intensive care units and better medicine almost certainly are improving the outlook.

One essential improvement is better intensive care equipment to support patients' breathing. Respirators have grown more plentiful and sophisticated in recent decades.

Another development is powerful drugs called vasopressors. They make blood vessels constrict, so blood pressure rises.

Dr. Robert Haley of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center said it should be possible to save many patients with inhaled anthrax by using this combination of breathing support and blood pressure control.

Sanchez's bank reverses stance, backs crackdown

HOUSTON (AP) — A bank controlled by Democratic gubernatorial candidate Tony Sanchez is now in favor of federal legislation to eliminate money laundering by drug dealers and terrorist organizations, he said Wednesday.

The chairman of the International Bank of Commerce of Laredo said earlier this month that the institution opposed terrorism and drug money laundering, but was concerned about measures that would invade the privacy of law-abiding citizens.

Sanchez, who sits on the bank's board of directors, said he was unaware of the bank's opposition to the Clinton administration's measures. But he said that the bank supports the measure now pending before Congress.

"Everything has changed after Sept. 11. We are very much in favor of the stringent requirements that are being proposed now," Sanchez told the Houston Chronicle in Thursday's editions.

Last week, Time Magazine reported the bank was one of the nation's leading institutions in defeating money laundering legislation aimed at drug lords and terrorists that the Clinton administration proposed to Congress in 2000. Sanchez and his mother own about 26 percent of the bank's stock.

President Bush initially opposed the legislation, but changed positions after the terrorists' attacks along the East Coast.

Cuellar still is getting money from state

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Despite Secretary of State Henry Cuellar's sudden resignation, he reportedly remains on the payroll, collecting thousands of dollars for reimbursement of comp time in what officials describe as an uncommon move.

Texas law forbids employees from being paid for compensatory time with the exception of emergency workers or employees in higher education. But agencies may honor an employee's comp time by letting them remain on the payroll until their comp time is exhausted, one expert said.

People in the news ...

CHANTILLY, Va. (AP) — Filmmakers don't need to avoid sensitive topics because of last month's terrorist attacks — as long as they tell a good story, said Motion Picture Association of America President Jack Valenti.

"I'm a great believer in making a movie that tells a story," Valenti said Wednesday. "There are only about eight plot lines since the time of Sophocles and Euripides that still endure."

He said producers of the Arnold Schwarzenegger film "Collateral Damage," in which a firefighter confronts terrorists, responded to legitimate concerns when they postponed the opening from early October. But, he noted, the film's terrorists are eventually beaten by Schwarzenegger's character.

Valenti is urging filmmakers to continue their daily routines.

"Be fearful. Be anxious. That's OK. But do your job," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice William Rehnquist is now an official "weather weenie." Rehnquist was presented with a plaque Tuesday by the Washington chapter of the American Meteorological Society honoring his interest in weather and climate.

The chief justice served as a weather observer in the Army Air Corps during World War II and described his service in North Africa in a talk to the weather group. Meteorologists use the term "weather weenie" as a good-humored description of people interested in the weather.

Commenting on his decision after the war to leave meteorology and become a lawyer, Rehnquist said he likes to think the switch improved both professions.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Barbara Bush said the war against evil must not only be fought with force, but also with generosity, love and friendship.

Echoing the words of her son, President George W. Bush, the former first lady said the best way to support the country is for everyone to renew commitments to their communities and to each other.

The top priority right now for Americans is to be good parents, and "to not allow ourselves or our children to become prejudiced to a certain race or religion," she said in a speech Tuesday to about 750 American Red Cross volunteers and supporters.

Prejudice would make the horrible tragedies of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks even worse, she said.

Her $100-a-plate appearance helped the Heartland Chapter of the American Red Cross raise money for victims of last month's attacks and for local needs.

Post office urges regular hand washing to guard against anthrax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The post office is turning to the latest in anti-bacteria technology to clean the mail, while urging Americans to take the old-fashioned precaution of washing their hands after handling mail since they can't guarantee its safety.

The Postal Service is struggling to cope with instances of anthrax being sent through pieces of mail. Two postal workers and a Florida man have died and others were sickened by the contamination.

Weather focus

PAMPA — Today, sunny. Highs around 67. North winds 5 to 15 mph., becoming east in the afternoon.

Tonight, mostly clear. Lows in the upper 30s. Southeast winds 5 to 10 mph.

Friday, sunny. Highs around 72. South winds 10 to 20 mph.

STATEWIDE — Clear skies are expected across much of Texas on Thursday with lows in the 30s and 40s in parts of the state.

A cold front moved across Texas on Wednesday, bringing cooler weather. High pressure then brought a cloudless night and light wind.

In North Texas, skies on Thursday should be sunny with high temperatures in the 70s.

In the Panhandle, lows on Thursday night should be in the 30s with mostly clear skies.

Friday should be sunny with highs from 65 to around 72. In the Guadalupe Mountains and Big Bend area, skies should be clear Thursday night with lows from the lower 40s in the north to the mid-50s in the south.

Friday should be sunny with highs from the upper 60s near the Guadalupe Mountains to the upper 80s along the Rio Grande.

In Hill Country and south central Texas, lows are expected in the upper 40s to near 50 in Hill Country and the low 50s elsewhere. Friday should be partly cloudy with highs in the low 70s in Hill Country to the mid to upper 70s elsewhere.

In deep South Texas, mostly cloudy skies are expected Thursday night with lows from near 60 in the west to the upper 60s near the coast. Friday should be partly cloudy with highs around 80.

NPD

"Because we have everything to lose and nothing to gain, we hereby put you on notice that we will resist your invasion by every legal means at our disposal, because it is our way of life that will be sacrificed in order that your company can profit."

Pat Terry is among those trying to keep the pig facility out of Gray County. She was among 160 local residents who attended an information meeting at M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium on July 10 at which time NPD executives told the group about their plans.

She says she believes the plans to locate a swine facility in the county is the reason the election to dissolve the PEDC is being held.

"I guess what really upset me was when Richard Stowers (former PEDC president) stood up there and said it was a 'donte deal.' It wasn't, but he wanted us to think that," said Terry. "It's still not a done deal. They were very misleading."

Terry said she was very upset that the PEDC assisted the NPD in the announcement and at the meeting on July 10.

"The PEDC put the pigs before the people of Pampa and Gray County," said Terry. "They (PEDC) weren't interested in what the residents felt."

Some Pampans said they supported the facility, but many other residents voiced their concerns and opposition to a swine facility at the July meeting, and quickly organized a group of residents to keep NPD out of the county.

In February, 1998, Seaboard Farms' announcement that they were considering Pampa as a location for a pork processing plant was not met favorably by many residents. Two months later the Kansas-based company told the local PEDC the organization would not build near Pampa.

Environmental issues have been the main concerns voiced by residents as they fear eventual contamination of the water by seepage from the lagoons containing hog waste will damage the Ogallala Aquifer.

Terry said she is concerned about the water supply as well as a possible odor problem.

Dr. Louis Haydon, a retired chiropractor, has predicted a large surge of pig farms over the next 10 years in the Pampa area if NPD locates in the Pampa area. He has also said he doesn't think the economic benefit outweighs the environmental problems which would likely develop.

From their offices in Roanoke Rapids, N.C., NPD officials told The Pampa News that afternoon in a telephone interview that NPD plans called for a 3,700 sow operation from farrow to finish, and the operation would develop breeding stock for other farms.

At the July meeting of 160 residents it was learned a farrow-to-finish operation of 3,700 sows would actually mean 50,000 pigs.

Following the meeting a group of residents against the pigs locating in the county organized to make an attempt to stop NPD's efforts.

Several people involved in the anti-pig movement were part of an effort to dissolve the PEDC. Over 1,240 signatures were verified in September on a petition calling for the dissolution of the entity.

The Pampa City Commission, which is to oversee the PEDC, called for the Nov. 6 election after the petition signatures were verified.

the first hour as came out all night the first year," Walde said.

For two weeks, PFA members have been preparing for this year's event. As many as 20 Association members, family and friends work together each night during the haunted house.

Last year, the PFA raised $1,800 from the event, Walde said.

"At Christmas last year, we took $1,500 and got with Payless Shoes to buy shoes for less fortunate children," he explained.

This year, Association members hope to raise even more, not only for the New York City firefighters' families, but also to help needy children right here at home.

Help also comes from local officials along the route to ease the process and generate local support. A database of local runners are needed to cover the distance especially in those remote areas and at night.

"We need volunteers to help cover the 50 miles between Shamrock and Groom," Gregory said. She plans to man the base camp at Shamrock, she said, and will be there when the runner comes through at 4:30 a.m. on Oct. 31.

Local legs of the journey include McLean, Alanreed, Jericho, and Boydston before reaching the next base camp at Groom at 1:56 p.m., Oct. 31.

Volunteer runners and persons to help at the stopping points are all need, Gregory said. Anyone wishing to volunteer can contact Gregory at 669-7121.

Additional information is available at the Flag Across America website, <http://www.flagrun.org>. The site contains volunteer information, corporate sponsorship and media contact. Site visitors can monitor real-time progress of the event and make contributions to the designated charities. Specific charities and links to them are listed on the website.

"This all-volunteer event is a self-initiated effort conducted by the pilots, flight attendants and other employees of United and American Airlines. While the airlines are supportive of the event, the public relations departments of AMR and UAL have no official role—it is truly a from-the-heart effort from the volunteers in support of the country and the victims," said First Officer Todd Wissing, media relations coordinator for the event.

Corporate sponsors are being sought to contribute their resources and add to the success of this event, Flag Run officials said. Cruise America™ has donated the use of a Recreational Vehicle to be used as a mobile command center for the event and to support the runners. Financial assistance to help defray costs or other corporate resources to assist in the event is needed and welcome. Corporate support can be in the areas of communications, T-shirts, local transportation support to help ferry runners, or any other area.

Anyone wishing to sponsor or participate in this event can contact AAmericans United Flag Across America through the web site (<http://www.flagrun.org>).

warrant based on new information regarding the shooting they received Tuesday, he said.

Justice of the Peace Joe Martinez set bond for Ruiz at $100,000 for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

About 9:55 p.m., Pampa Police Officer Shawn Waters was dispatched to the 1100 block of Sierra on a report of "possible shots fired," according to police department records. When he arrived, he found a 1985 Ford Bronco had been driven into a 1991 Dodge and then into the residence at 1133 Sierra. A bumper from one of the vehicles lay in the driveway, according to police reports.

Waters arrived.

Several people apparently were in the house at the time of the incident, Waters said in his report. Witnesses told police that the "brother of the man involved in the shooting" who had been arrested earlier that day had driven the vehicle into the house in retaliation.

Damage to the house was estimated at $10,000. The Dodge reportedly sustained approximately $4,000 damage, according to police reports. Jesus Jordan Carillo, 1133 Sierra, was listed as the victim on the police report.

Col. Terry Young of the Pampa Police Department said no suspect had been arrested in connection with the incident by press time today. Police are continuing to investigate the incident.

"Due to general security concerns, all Web information and internally printed material accessible to the public are being reviewed," Johnson said in his letter.

Advisory board co-chair Paula Breeding said many items taken Wednesday had been distributed to board members for

"Are they going to be coming to board members' houses next? I think this is quite serious. They ought to be worrying about those (plutonium) pits and the safety of those things," Breeding said. "This is worse than the Cold War. I doubt those things will be returned, especially from

On Oct. 4, Richard W. Phillips, director of intelligence and cybersecurity, issued a memorandum to DOE's weapons plants and labs, ordering them to take immediate measures to safeguard information until it can be evaluated.

Texas Editorials

By The Associated Press

A sampling of editorial opinion around Texas Waco Tribune-Herald on free world vs. fear: Now the United States knows who its friends are, and has a very good idea who its enemies are, at least those behind the Sept. 11 horror.

Its friends are quite numerous and faithful, and resolved. Its enemies are isolated and few.

Finding the enemies and dealing with the agents who support them will not be easy and will be full of peril.

The United States has played its cards with caution and acted in a most measured fashion. It entered its military attack with a broad coalition that will serve it well.

It has acted in a way that can only serve the purpose of shining light on the real perpetrators, rather than making this a war against Islam as Osama bin Laden wants the world to believe.

If, as some analysts theorize, bin Laden hoped to provoke a knee-jerk and ill-conceived American military response helping bin-Laden build support in the Arab world he failed.

Rather, the United States has taken its time since the worst terrorist act in history. It has used that time to win friends among Arab nations as well as others with whom relations have been chilly like Pakistan, India and Russia.

As for long-standing friends, those bonds are stronger, too. The British are participating with vigor, demonstrating that this is an international effort, also involving France, Germany, Australia and Canada.

Both President Bush and British Prime Minister Tony Blair took pains to point out that part of the mission in Afghanistan is to help the Afghan people, who have been receiving humanitarian aid from the United Nations and who are under control of a totalitarian, extremist regime.

A civil war has been raging there, and the Taliban's control could be tenuous. Before the Sept. 11 attack, bin-Laden's agents reportedly assassinated one of the leaders of the rebel forces.

This is not a war against the people of Afghanistan. It is not a war against Islam. It is a measured response to a heinous act that was one more in a chain of terrorism felt around the world and linked to one organization.

The coalition backing the United States has been impressed and convinced, judging by Blair's remarks, with the weight of evidence assembled against bin Laden.

In comments directed at Muslims and Americans, bin Laden did all but signed his name to the Sept. 11 attacks.

We have seen the enemy, or at least the mastermind's face, and we have seen the face of resolve in the coalition that has formed against him.

This assault is just the beginning of a mission that could be long and difficult, but it is a road that the United States must travel and, apparently, will not have to travel alone.

Unclaimed Property list worth a look-see

Have you checked the Texas Unclaimed Property list? Your name could be on that list. People from all over the area are listed. Hospitals, doctors, county commissioners, businesses, relatives — there are people in every town in the area listed. And I know many of them, and am related to several.

When I received the advance news release a week or so ago, I automatically scanned the list and found my late mother's name. Going online, I found there was money in the Texas Comptroller's office from an insurance premium and mineral rights. I quickly completed the online forms requesting a claim form to get the money.

The news release from Austin stated that $64 million in properties had been added to the list which has a total value of over $900 million! That is pretty darn close to a billion dollars in value sitting in Austin unclaimed.

My curiosity being what it is, I decided to check for other family members on the list. There are many, many more listed online than there were listed in the Amarillo Globe News. Sixty-four Pampanas have been added to the list, but there are many, many more from Pampa on the list.

As I went through the listing I found my late father-in-law's name and former address. I emailed my brother-in-law in Tennessee to let him know.

Nancy Young
 Managing editor

Continuing, I found many people I knew. White Deer, Panhandle, McLean, Lefors, Borger, Fritch, Stinnett — people from all those towns are there. Even people who lived in towns which no longer exist are there.

Many people are listed in the town of Phillips which ceased to exist in 1987. One young woman I have known all her life was listed under her maiden name when she lived in Phillips.

Finally, as I was getting ready to get out of the web site, I thought I'd put my name in just for fun. It was there! I was listed in a town where we had lived 28 years ago!

Excitement was building. I had some money coming to me! Wondering who it was coming from and, naturally, how much, I was so thrilled. Then, it popped up. I have $5.45 coming from an oil company for mineral rights.

Immediately, I remembered. I had wondered where the check had gone.

All those years ago, I had received a letter from that oil company saying I had money, requesting I fill out a form. At that time, I quickly completed that form, sending it by return mail and never heard from them. Through the years, my family teased me about 'my fortune in oil.' Of course, I didn't know how much it was, but really thought it would be more than $5.45.

Yesterday I received the claim forms from the Comptroller's office. I must send in division orders (where those are, I haven't the foggiest idea, but I will be calling my brother.) Probably, we will find the needed records for my Mother's money long before I do for mine.

Death certificates, affidavits of heir ship, copies of probate records, verification of executors, insurance policies are all needed for claiming your fortunes. Whether it is worth it or not is up to the individuals.

Anyone wanting to find out if they are listed should either go online at www.window.state.tx.us/up or they may call toll free at 1-800-654-3463.

Check it out. Some people I know have several thousand listed as coming to them. I'm just not one of them. It's still exciting to think I have money I didn't know about, and it solved a 28 year-old mystery.

Repentance slogan: Repent and reload

Whatever happened to repentance?

For several thousand years, the advent of disaster has always pushed Christians and Jews toward introspection. Jesus, speaking of a collapsing tower, said, "Unless you repent, you too will all perish." Augustine, commenting on the destruction of Rome 16 centuries ago, wrote, "That you are yet alive is due to God, who spares you that you may be admonished to repent and reform your lives."

American newspapers through the 1830s emphasized the turning to God that typically followed disaster. The Boston Recorder in 1822 covered an earthquake that left "men and women clinging to the ruined walls of their houses," and noted that survivors were repenting and "implored the Almighty's mercy."

When disaster came through human instruments, leaders and journalists criticized the enemy, but also their own people. Virginia minister Samuel Davies lambasted the "treacherous French and savage Indians" who destroyed a British army in 1755. He also opposed those "who enjoy the blessing of the sun and rain, and the fruits of the earth, and yet go on thoughtless of your divine Benefactor. ... You are practical atheists."

American political leaders were similarly weird, by today's standards. In 1861, confronted by an uncivil war, Abraham Lincoln explained in this manner his call for a national day of fasting: "It is fit and becoming in all people, at all times, to acknowledge and revere the

Marvin Olasky
 Syndicated columnist

Supreme Government of God; to bow in humble submission to his chastisements."

Lincoln asked that all Americans "confess and deplore their sins and transgressions in the full conviction that the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom." He wanted all "to pray, with all fervency and contrition, for the pardon of their past offences."

"We haven't heard much talk of that sort recently. Yes, some ministers have pointed a ham-handed finger at selected sins, and maybe those who pretend to know God's will exactly have given repentance a bad name. (It's biblically wrong to say that sin x caused disaster y. We cannot know that.) Maybe we fear that discussion of our own sin will in some way remove the onus from murdering terrorists; it clearly should not.

We can learn a lot from Lincoln, who in 1863 called for a national day of prayer by asserting that all people should "confess their sins and transgressions in humble sorrow." He then became even more pointed: "We know that by His divine law nations, like individuals, are subjected to punishments and chastisements in this world. ... We have grown in numbers, wealth and power as no other nation has ever grown; but we have forgotten God."

And Lincoln, a scoffer early in life but driven to his knees by the death of his son and a hundred thousand sons of others, went even further. He proclaimed: "We have vainly imagined, in the deceitfulness of our hearts, that all these blessings were produced by some superior wisdom and virtue of our own. Intoxicated with unbroken success, we have become too self-sufficient to feel the necessity of redeeming and preserving grace, too proud to pray to the God who made us."

Should any self-criticism be put off until later? Lincoln emphasized in 1863 the "assured hope that genuine repentance will lead to mercy and pardon." Should something that essential be put off? Don't those who have even lost a husband or child need not only human comfort, but a sense that God is still in control and approachable whenever we turn to him? Don't we all need the assured hope of mercy that Lincoln in 1863 was coming to understand?

We should not accept the twittering critiques of the left, but we should also not suppose that we can win a war against terrorism merely with our own strength. President Bush has done well to emphasize both faith and fighting. Our slogan should be, "Repent and reload."

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Oct. 25, the 298th day of 2001. There are 67 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 25, 1929, former Interior Secretary Albert B. Fall was convicted of accepting a $100,000 bribe in connection with the Elk Hills Naval Oil Reserve in California.

On this date:

In 1400, author Geoffrey Chaucer died in London.

In 1760, Britain's King George III succeeded his late grandfather, George II.

In 1812, the U.S. frigate United States captured the British vessel Macedonian during the War of 1812.

In 1854, the "Charge of the Light Brigade" took place during the Crimean War.

In 1918, the Canadian steamship Princess Sophia foundered off the coast of Alaska; nearly 400 people perished.

In 1951, peace talks aimed at ending the Korean conflict resumed in Panmunjom after 63 days.

In 1962, U.S. ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson presented photographic evidence of Soviet missile bases in Cuba to the U.N. Security Council.

In 1971, the U.N. General Assembly voted to admit mainland China and expel Taiwan.

In 1983, a U.S.-led force invaded Grenada, at the order of President Reagan, who said the action was needed to protect U.S. citizens there.

In 1999, golfer Payne Stewart and five others were killed when their Learjet flew uncontrolled for four hours before crashing in South Dakota; Stewart was 42.

Ten years ago: Israel named a hard-line delegation to the Middle East peace conference. Rock-and-roll impresario Bill Graham was killed in a helicopter crash in Sonoma County, Calif.

Five years ago: Federal judge Richard Matsch granted Oklahoma City bombing defendants Timothy McVeigh and Terry Nichols separate trials.

One year ago: Laboring in the frigid murk of the Barents Sea, divers found and removed the first bodies from the wreckage of the nuclear submarine Kursk, which sank on Aug. 12 with the loss of all 118 sailors aboard.

Today's Birthdays: Jazz musician Chubby Jackson is 83. Former baseball player Bobby Thomson is 78. Former American League president Dr. Bobby Brown is 77.

Actress Jeanne Cooper is 73. Actress Marion Ross is 73. Actor Tony Franciosa is 73. Country singer Jeanne Black is 64. Singer Helen Reddy is 60. Rock singer Jon Anderson (Yes) is 57. Singer Taffy Danoff (Starland Vocal Band) is 57. Rock musician Glen Tipton (Judas Priest) is 53. Actor Brian Kerwin is 52. Country singer Mark Miller (Sawyer Brown) is 43. Rock musician Chad Smith (Red Hot Chili Peppers) is 39. Actress Tracy Nelson is 38. Actor Michael Boatman is 37. Singer Speech is 33. Actor Adam Goldberg is 31.

Attacks on U.S. brought out best and worst

Funny, isn't it, how an "insensitive and abrasive" Rudolph Giuliani has become a hero in New York City and how a supposedly "not very bright" George W. Bush is being hailed as an outstanding leader.

I even saw on "Larry King Live" something I thought I would never see: New York Democratic Sen. Chuck Schumer get teary-eyed talking about President Bush. As a matter of fact, I felt something I thought I would never feel — respect and sympathy for Schumer and New York Gov. George Pataki.

There are a lot of lessons in this national tragedy for all of us. Human achievement is always a combination of personal character and external events. There is no question that Giuliani and Bush always had the leadership qualities we all now can see; what was lacking was an opportunity to display them. There's no doubt, too, that Schumer was always a decent human being. It's that in the heat of partisan battles, that quality was hidden by his style of snarling sarcasm. Schumer is obviously touched by the open-hearted, open-handed response of Bush to New York City's devastation.

We have seen spontaneous embraces of political enemies Giuliani and Pataki and Bush and Schumer. Mass murder and mass destruction have a way of putting everything in perspective. Are partisan politics really that important? Are differences on political issues really that important? Not when we all are reminded of our own mortality by the sight of nearly 7,000 people dying helplessly in fire, smoke and cascading concrete and steel before our eyes on television.

Charley Reese

The hard part will be to hang on to these feelings. The terrorist attack has not obliterated our differences, but hopefully it has reminded us of our humanity. Partisanship will inevitably return, but let us hope it returns in a civil and kinder manner and not in the vicious, bitter style that former House Speaker Newt Gingrich introduced to Washington.

Rhetoric plays an extremely important role in human affairs, since words are reflections of thoughts. It is my belief that a person can literally talk (or rather, think) himself into insanity. I've seen people start out with honest questions about the political system and gradually grow more and more extreme in their thinking until they lose touch with reality.

And, in the process, they lose touch with their humanity. They begin to see their political opponents not as human beings with different viewpoints but as evil personified.

Osama bin Laden is a fine example. Here is a man who has so twisted his own thinking that he ignores and violates the basic teachings of Islam in what he perceives as a war in defense of Islam. Adolf Hitler destroyed the Europe that was in mad pursuit of his vision of a "perfect" Europe. That's why I've always been wary of perfectionists and Utopians. They tend to be dangerous and destructive.

In a strange but very real way, the attacks against the World Trade Center and the Pentagon have shown us all the extremes of good and evil. We have seen human beings commit mass murder in a methodical, cold-blooded manner. And we have seen human beings show incredible courage, kindness, generosity and a willingness to sacrifice their personal comforts, even their lives, to help others.

The best and the worst — right there in one package. Let us all strive in the years ahead to retain the memory of the best so that we will never again succumb to cynicism and dismiss our fellow Americans. So many, when the opportunity presented itself, showed true nobility. They were not saps or suckers or whiners or cheap politicians. When the test came, they stood tall. We can all be, as the song says, "proud to be an American."

Comptroller Rylander delivers $220.8 million in October sales tax rebates

AUSTIN — Texas Comptroller Carole Keeton Rylander sent $220.8 million in local sales tax revenue to 1,110 Texas cities and 118 counties. October sales tax rebates are up 3.9 percent compared to October 2000. Year-to-date, sales tax rebates to cities and counties are up 5.3 percent compared to 2000.

The sales tax rebates Comptroller Rylander delivered include $203.2 million to Texas cities, up 3.8 percent compared to October 2000. Texas counties received October rebates of $17.6 million, up 5.1 percent compared to a year ago.

In addition to city and county sales tax rebates, $75 million went to Texas' six metropolitan transit authorities and two city transit systems, and $7.4 million was paid to 59 special purpose districts.

October sales tax rebates represent sales taxes collected in August and reported to the Comptroller in September. This month's sales tax figures do not reflect the economic impact of the events of Sept. 11.

This month's sales tax figures also do not reflect the final results of the Sales Tax Holiday held in August. Retailers who file quarterly sales tax reports do not report August sales until late October. The Comptroller will announce Sales Tax Holiday results in November.

For details of October sales tax payments to individual cities, counties, transit systems and special purpose districts, locate the Monthly Sales and Use Tax Allocation Comparison Summary Report on the Comptroller's website at www.window.state.tx.us/taxinfo/alloscum/compsum.html

Free GED classes being offered in Pampa

Free GED classes are currently being offered through the Pampa school system and Region XVI Education Service Center. The classes meet from 12:45-2:45 p.m. every Monday at Wilson Elementary and from 6-8:30 p.m. Monday and Thursday at Pampa Learning Center.

The GED test will be given in Pampa on Nov. 3 and 13 and Dec. 14. "We encourage every person who needs his or her GED to enroll in these classes," said Pampa ISD Parent Involvement coordinator, Cheryl Lewis. "The test will be changing in January 2002 and there will be no carryovers from the current test to the new test. In other words, if a person needs to pass just one portion of the GED test and does not get that portion completed before the end of this year, he or she will have to start completely over in January."

The Wilson classes are being taught by Mrs. Lewis while Kathy Carter is teaching the evening classes, which are conducted through Region XVI. Free daycare is provided at both locations.

Both entities will continue classes through May 2002 as long as there is sufficient need. Interested parties can just show up for the classes. For further information, contact Lewis at 669-4700, Anna Saiz at 669-4880 or Elisa Zamudio at 669-4930.

CAR CARE

Andretti's life is an open book ...

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Motorsports Writer

Mario Andretti sat in a room crowded with drivers and officials, listening for the umpteenth time to the ground rules of that day's race.

It was the late 1960s, and Andretti's mind wandered as he looked around at his fellow racers.

"I wonder which of these guys won't be around at the end of the season?" he thought.

Fatalities in open-wheel racing were much more common then.

Andretti wasn't worried, though. If anything happened, it would be to the other guy. He was a survivor.

Now 61 and long retired from driving Champ cars, Andretti was right. He not only survived, he conquered his sport, winning a Formula One championship four Champ-car titles.

He was perhaps the most versatile driver in history, winning three of the biggest races in the world — the Indianapolis 500, Daytona 500 and Grand Prix of Monaco.

"It's been a great adventure," Andretti said. "I'm a very lucky man."

That adventure is well chronicled in "Mario Andretti, A Driving Passion," written by Gordon Kirby.

"I really didn't know if I wanted to do this book," Andretti said. "Now that I see it in print, though, I'm very happy it's out there. I hope people get some enjoyment from it."

The book chronicles Andretti's life, from his humble beginnings as a refugee in wartime Europe to his agonizing decision to retire from the sport that defined him for so many years.

Mario — almost nobody thinks of him as Andretti — raced for 41 years and piled up plenty of stories in a rags-to-riches-and-fame tale.

He has become part of the lexicon of America. What motorist, young or old, hasn't heard stories about a policeman asking a speeder, "Who do you think you are, Mario Andretti?"

These days, Andretti is mostly an observer, standing on the pit wall watching eldest son Michael, the winningest driver in CART history.

As much as he enjoys watching the competition, Mario can't help thinking about how the sport has changed.

"Let's face it, everything has become much more sophisticated, more technical, more demanding in that respect, much more professional," he said. "Because of that, you don't have the time to go out there and play practical jokes the way we used to."

Late in his driving career, Andretti noticed he didn't have much free time. The demands made by lucrative sponsorship assured that, and made winning more difficult.

"The more competitive the sport becomes, the more teams gain strength in the field, the tougher it gets," he said.

Andretti remembers a time when auto racing was not as much of a business, specifically recalling an episode in 1969 when he decided to get the better of Bobby Unser.

"I owed him one," Andretti said. "I had him paged to the phone booth in the middle of the infield, and it was three cars before it was his turn to go out to qualify. I sent an emergency call, and he goes out there and I taped him in the booth."

Andretti laments that such mischievous behavior is relegated to racing's past.

"Can you imagine today? I would have a $10 million suite on my doorstep from a sponsor," he said with a laugh. "Somehow, though, we got away with doing those things, a story we'll be able to tell and embarrass the other guy with the rest of our lives."

But Andretti has accepted the modern-day approach to what now is much more than a couple of dozen daredevils chasing a few thousand — in some case hundreds — of dollars.

"Things are changed, and I think they have changed for the better overall," Andretti said. "Let's face it, these guys are earning what they deserve."

He looks at his earnings curve and that of his son, Michael, the leader in career victories on the CART circuit.

"In 1978, my world championship year, what I earned that year is less than what Michael earns in one of his 12 payments in his contract," Mario said. "So, is that bad? It's good for Michael."

But money was never the main goal for the elder Andretti. It was competition that kept him in a race car until after he was 50.

Although he accepted retirement from Champ cars, the desire to race still exists. And he'd like to fill a hole in his resume by winning in the 24 Hours of Le Mans.

Since retiring from CART in 1993, Andretti has taken two unsuccessful shots at victory in the world's premier road race, finishing second in one of them. And there could be another try at the big trophy.

"If the right deal comes together, I'll be there again," he said. "I would love to win that race."

Matt Martin, 9, following father's racing footsteps

By HANK KURZ Jr.
AP Sports Writer

He's tough and driven, just like dad.

He likes to race, but loves to win, just like dad.

Matt Martin, the 9-year-old son of Winston Cup racer Mark Martin, is turning laps and turning heads at Little New Smyrna Speedway in Florida. He's driving his quarter-midget race cars against kids nearly twice his age and more than holding his own.

"He's won quite a few," Mark Martin said, speaking of 15- to 30-lap heats and feature races in the 9-16 age division. "And they are really, really hard to win."

Matt has stopped keeping track, but said he's won about 55 races.

Quarter-midget racing helped spawn the driving careers of such stars as Jeff Gordon, Terry and Bobby Labonte, and Tony Stewart. But Matt said even he was surprised when his son, then 7, wanted to take a shot at racing.

"I don't really have a burning desire for him to do what I do," Matt said. "I have a burning desire for him to be good at something."

"He's my son. ... I want him to be the best at whatever he does, or at something, because I've experienced a little bit of that and a taste of what that feels like."

Matt said the decision to pursue racing was easy.

"My dad's a race car driver and I wanted to follow in his footsteps," he said.

For father and son, racing has become the ultimate bonding opportunity, even though Arlene Martin would rather her son do something else.

"She wants me to be a lawyer," Matt said, giggling with his father.

Martin is treasuring the time he gets with his son.

"It's been really an awesome experience and whether it ended today or he goes on to become Winston Cup champion is not really that important to me," Martin said. "What's important is the time we spend together and the bond we're able to forge."

In the first two years, Matt raced only monthly and mostly for fun, Martin said.

This year, with a new race track near the Martin home allowing Mark to see the races on Wednesday nights, Matt has taken to the competition more seriously.

"He likes it when I can go," Martin said.

Matt also races on Saturday nights, usually with his father sitting in a motorhome at some faraway Winston Cup venue, a cell phone his only link to his son's performance.

"Is that the most ideal situation that I could ever dream up?" Martin asked. "Probably not, but worse than that would be if I didn't have a cell phone."

At one time, when Martin wanted to give his son a tip, he'd grab another adult and ask him to pass the information along. Now, Matt welcomes his father's advice.

"I love it when he comes because he can tell me all the tips and I can win more races," Matt said before tackling a pile of homework. "He tells me everything to make my car go faster."

Martin describes himself as being focused on results, and Matt's racing has given him another thing to dwell on.

"I think about his cars all the time and how we can make them go faster," he said.

Martin has been hampered by a bad back and sore knee in recent years, and has endured a bad season by his own standards. He is 11th in series championship points, hasn't won in 57 races and been frustrated by speculation that he's lost his fire in a cloud of disappointing results, aching bones and Matt's burgeoning career.

The stories have stung, Martin said, because he has a contract with Jack Roush through 2006 and has no intention of doing anything to escape that commitment.

In making his point, Martin also talked proudly of Matt and his dedication.

"We were at the race track a few months ago, and in between his heat race and the features he got kicked in the eye," Martin said. "It was almost swelled shut."

"His mother and I tried to get him to go home, but he said he wanted to race because he wanted the points. He drove the race car, and then we took him home."

Even in pain, the younger Martin raced, just like his dad.

GM unveils car, marking return to Japan manufacturing

TOKYO (AP) — General Motors Corp. marked its return to manufacturing in Japan for the first time since 1939 by unveiling this week the Chevrolet Cruze — developed with local partner Suzuki Motor Corp.

After years of struggling to sell American-made cars in Japan, General Motors is embarking on a new strategy of working with Japanese partners to gain a foothold here. GM owns 20 percent of Suzuki, 49 percent of Isuzu Motors and 20 percent of Fuji Heavy Industries, the maker of Subaru cars.

"We are taking a different tact," said GM Chairman Jack Smith. "We will still import name brands from the U.S. market, but they are not going to give us the kind of numbers that we should be doing."

Cruze looks like a Chevrolet, with the golden cross logo prominently in the front, but its 1.3 liter and 1.5 liter engines are designed and made by Suzuki and will be produced at a Suzuki plant in central Japan. GM and Suzuki are hoping to sell 20,000 Cruze cars in Japan a year.

The car will roll into Suzuki and GM dealers in Japan on Nov. 1, starting at $9,900, considerably higher than compact cars from Japanese rivals. The Toyota Vitz starts at $7,600.

Based on the production of the Cruze compact car in Japan, General Motors' Japan unit is planning to apply for membership in the Japanese Automobile Manufacturers Association, an influential industry group. GM Japan President Mitsuru Sato said.

JAMA includes Toyota Motor Corp., Honda Motor Co. and other Japanese automakers, but no foreign automakers. JAMA spokesman Satoshi Honda said the group has not yet made a decision on GM's membership.

Sato acknowledged the GM's Chevrolet has an image problem in Japan as an overpriced gas-guzzler. But Chevrolet will grow into a major brand through alliance products like the Cruze that respond better to Japanese needs, he said.

Analysts said GM will remain an underdog in Japan. "Cruze is not a product with any outstanding features in a very competitive segment," said Toru Shimano, analyst with Okasan Securities Co. in Tokyo. "GM's situation is not likely to change soon."

Pampa man's vintage truck to be featured in 2002 car calendar

Snap-on Inc., recently announced a 1930 Ford AA 1-1/2 Ton Truck belonging to Dean Elliot of Pampa has been selected for inclusion in the 2002 edition of its "Snapshots" Car Calendar.

The Snapshots Classics and Custom Customer Car Calendar was developed by Snap-on Tools to complement its ongoing program to promote the professionalism and integrity of today's automotive technicians.

It was started in 1995 as a way to feature the skills and loyalty of Snap-on customers by showcasing more than 80 custom and classic vehicles they had created or restored.

Snap-on invites its customers to submit pictures of their project vehicles and working with a team of enthusiasts, selected as many as they can to be included in the 12 months of the calendar. The owners name and the make and model of their vehicle is identified.

Rude Users of Cell Phones Inspire Creative Response

DEAR ABBY: I had to laugh when I read the letter from the cashier who got even with rude customers using cell phones by "misplacing" their merchandise. Her actions were wrong, of course, but I understand her frustration.

I manage a store and frequently work behind the cash register. Believe me, the cell phone problem is epidemic. When my employees complain about rude customers, I advise them to pretend the phone doesn't exist. Little did I know that one of my employees would come up with a solution to the problem.

One Sunday morning when the employee was in church, somebody's cell phone rang. Every head in church turned to see "whodunit." The pastor stopped in the middle of his sermon and announced, "Go ahead. We'll wait — who is it?" The pastor's expression showed he wasn't angry — nevertheless, his point was clearly made. The congregation howled with laughter.

Now, when one of my employees uses this tactic, the result is the same. And not one person has ever come into the store a second time babbling away on the airwaves.

most of us instinctively avoid. My theory is that while immersed in private conversation, the callers feel shielded from the outside world.

I've heard snippets of chatter so inane I can't believe my ears. Don't get me wrong; I'm not eavesdropping. However, sometimes it's impossible not to listen when someone brushes past me or talks incessantly while waiting in line behind me.

Sometimes I suspect that people only pretend to be on their cell phone. They think it makes them appear more important than they really are. It's a snobbish affectation, but they actually believe they're somehow earning respect from those who observe them.

Thanks for letting me vent. Sign me...

FINGERS IN MY EARS

DEAR FINGERS: Those are interesting theories. Technologies may change, but people remain the same. There was a famous hotel here in Los Angeles that was frequented years ago by celebrities. The reservation list in the famous "lounge" was a veritable Who's Who of actors, directors, producers and agents. This was long before the invention of cell phones. People who wanted to draw attention to themselves would arrange to be paged. A uniformed bellman — who had previously starred in the "Call for Philip Morris" cigarette commercials — would stride through the hotel lobby and restaurant calling out, "Telephone call for Mister (blank)!" I suspect it was done more often by people between jobs than people who actually had urgent business.

BASKETBALL

PAMPA — Pampa's Lady Harvesters tipped off basketball practice Monday under new head coach Steve Schmidt.

"We've got a good group, 40 to 42 players out in the 9th through 12th grades," Schmidt said.

Schmidt spent the past seasons as head girls coach at Clarendon High School. He compiled a 131-51 record at Clarendon.

"We'll have about 12 players on both the junior varsity and varsity teams, and we're looking at 15 to 16 on the freshmen team," he said.

The Lady Harvesters open the season Nov. 13 at Amarillo High.

Two scrimmages are scheduled, both at McNeely Fieldhouse. The first one is Nov. 6, starting at 5 p.m. The second one is Nov. 10, starting that morning. Three or four teams will be involved in both scrimmages.

PAMPA — The Pampa boys basketball team has a Meet the Harvesters night set for Monday night, starting at 7 in McNeely Fieldhouse.

The public is invited to attend and fans are urged to make a dollar donation, which would go to the Red Cross relief fund in New York City.

Local fans can also donate bottled water to the local Red Cross. Director Jana Gregory can be contacted at the Pampa Red Cross office at 669-7121 if more information is needed.

The Harvesters will have a short scrimmage, followed by a dunking contest. Basketball schedules will also be passed out to the parents and fans.

OLYMPICS

DALLAS (AP) — The city's bid for hosting the 2012 Olympics is reportedly close to making the cut for finalists in the competition.

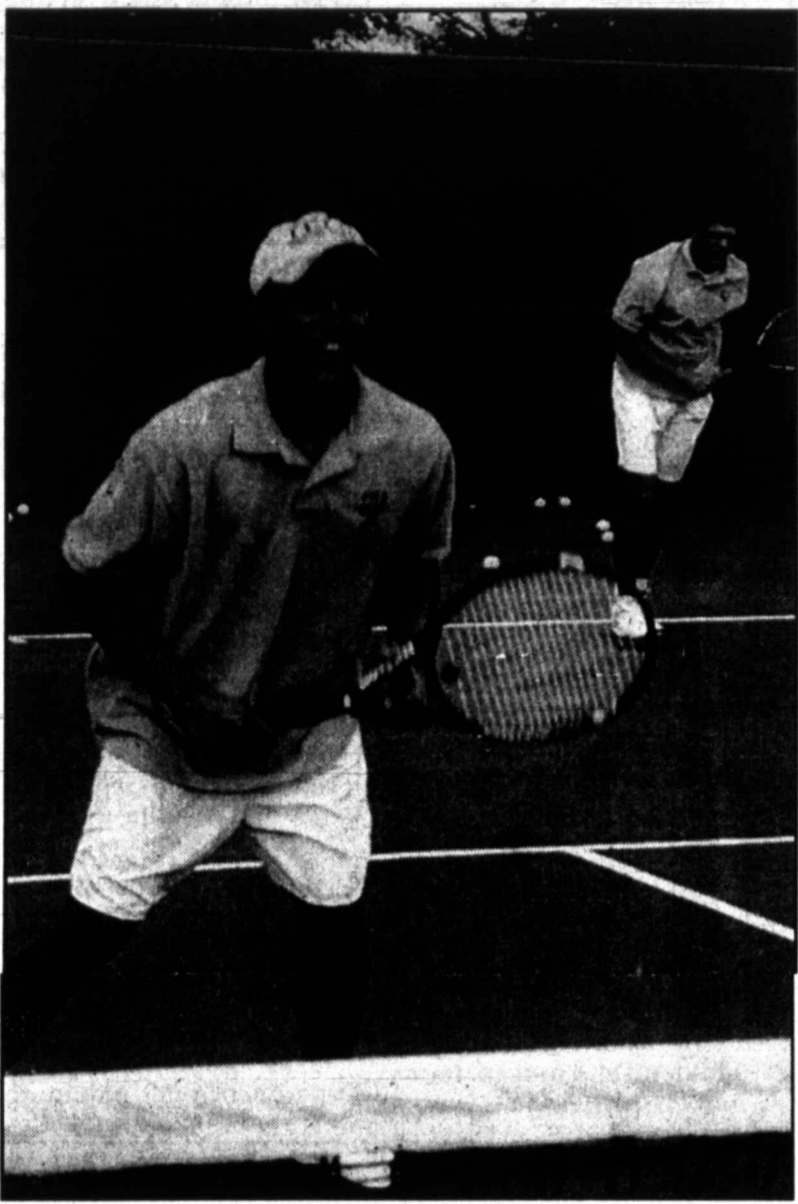

A U.S. Olympic Committee source who spoke on condition of anonymity told The Dallas Morning News in Thursday's editions that New York and Washington were "excellent guesses" as the leaders to advance. Published reports in those cities have indicated those bids have enough support to stay in the hunt.

"That's not a surprise," said Dallas 2012 chairman David Biegler on Wednesday. "I said that four or five months ago."

Hunter Craig was named Player of the Week for the Pampa junior varsity in the Dumas game.

Pampa goes for fourth straight win as Canyon comes to town Friday

PAMPA — Because of early-season injuries and some close losses, the Canyon Eagles may be one of the best 2-5 teams around.

The Pampa Harvesters will find out Friday when Canyon comes to town for a 7:30 p.m. encounter at Harvester Stadium.

The Eagles appear to have good weapons. Swift running back Rusty Shorter, who was averaging 8.5 yards per carry before an injury, appears to be healthy again. Quarterback Dalton Bell has passed for 7 touchdowns and 1,065 yards. Fullback Beau Upthegrove has 8 touchdowns.

Leading the receiving corps is 6-3 Jay Roberts, who has 25 receptions for 370 yards and 2 touchdowns.

Three of the Canyon losses — 27-21 to Plainview, 27-24 to Lubbock High and 35-28 to Randall — if a break or two had gone the Eagles' way. Canyon has victories over Dumas (28-7) and Caprock (42-0) for a 2-2 district mark.

Pampa, at 3-1 in district and 4-3 for the season, has a three-game winning streak going after last week's 21-7 win over Caprock.

the field as the losing team, Jerry Jones was on the other sideline as Pilot Point's coach.

Three years later, Celina is one victory away from tying the state record of 49 consecutive victories held by Abilene (1954-57). Standing in the way of history is Celina's old nemesis, Jones, now the coach at Prosper.

"We're friends, so that makes it a little bit better," said Moore, the state's winningest active coach with 381 wins.

Prosper will try to prevent the Bobcats, the top-ranked team in Class 2A, from breaking the storied state record on Friday in Celina.

There's probably no coach better-equipped to stop the Celina juggernaut than Jones.

Jones worked as a student teacher for Moore in the 1960s at Pilot Point. He later worked for Moore as an assistant in Celina in 1972 and succeeded Moore when the coach returned to Celina from Pilot Point in 1988.

Still, Moore insists this game won't be any different from the others. "We haven't even thought about it," he said.

Meanwhile, Class 5A No. 5 Austin Westlake is one win shy of tying the state mark of 58 consecutive district victories held by White Oak (1941-1948).

Cowboys prepare for third possible starting quarterback in six games

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Clint Stoerner could become the third different starting quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys this season, and Ryan Leaf may not be far behind.

With Anthony Wright's status uncertain because of a swollen right knee, the Cowboys (1-4) are preparing both Stoerner and Leaf for Sunday's game against Arizona.

Coach Dave Campo said that Stoerner, a second-year player from Arkansas, would get his first NFL start if Wright isn't ready to play. And Leaf, a former No. 2 overall pick signed earlier this month, likely would get his first playing time in Dallas.

"I feel comfortable that Ryan can do everything we're asking him to do," Campo said. "The wrist isn't a factor now. But we haven't gone through a crisis, he hasn't been on the field yet."

A final decision on the quarterback status won't be made until after the Cowboys get back the results of the MRI on Wright's knee. That should come Thursday.

But Campo isn't ready yet to commit to Leaf, who got a second-chance signing with the Cowboys after rookie quarterback Quincy Carter tore his hamstring Oct. 7 at Oakland. Wright has started three of five games for the injured Carter.

Leaf made 18 starts during his three seasons in San Diego after he was drafted, but the Chargers gave up on him after last season. Leaf then failed to make Tampa Bay's roster during training camp.

Dallas was prepared to sign Leaf then, but he failed a physical because of a wrist problem. The Cowboys gave him another chance when Carter got hurt again.

Stoerner has played just three games in his two seasons with Dallas, but completed 4 of 7 passes for 44 yards and two touchdowns against Philadelphia this year.

"Clint understands the offense, and knows what we are trying to get accomplished," Campo said. "At this point if Anthony can't go, I don't see that changing before the end of the week."

Stoerner and Leaf split the snaps with the No. 1 offense Wednesday.

Last week, when Wright missed both practices before the Cowboys had the weekend off, Leaf took most of the snaps and the Cowboys accelerated his learning process.

"It's not an easy process, but I've been working on it and trying to get as much of it down as I can," Leaf said. "When they call on me, I have to be ready."

Report reveals Dallas' Thomas violated substance abuse policy

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Cowboys fullback Robert Thomas, who is out for the season because of torn ligaments in his left ankle, has reportedly violated the NFL's substance-abuse policy.

Several sources told The Dallas Morning News on Wednesday about the violation.

One source told the Morning News that Thomas has not been fined any game checks by the National Football League because he is appealing the violation. The league, according to the source, will schedule a hearing to decide if Thomas will be disciplined.

Cowboys spokesman Rich Dalrymple would not comment on the report. "The organization does not comment" about allegations of substance abuse, he told The Associated Press on Thursday.

The nature of the violation was unclear.

A number for Thomas, injured late in the Cowboys' 9-7 victory over Washington on Oct. 15, was not listed and he could reach Thursday by The Associated Press for comment.

Thomas' agent, Steve Weinberg, told the newspaper in Thursday's editions that he could not comment on the report and referred questions to the player.

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones and vice president Stephen Jones also declined to comment.

Thomas, the only fullback on the roster before the ligament tears, was placed on injured reserve on Monday.

Youth, inexperience blamed for Miners' drop

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — At the beginning of the season, Miners coach Gary Nord talked about earning a national ranking for his team in only his second year at the helm.

Now he's just hoping for more wins than losses.

It's been a humbling fall for Texas-El Paso (2-5, 1-3 WAC), which shared the Western Athletic Conference championship with TCU last year.

The Miners have beaten two mediocre teams at home — Texas Southern 52-6, and Tulsa, 26-10 — but were beaten by New Mexico 26-6 in the season opener and 42-17 by Boise State.

The next two weeks were even worse: Alabama beat them 56-7, followed by a 66-7 loss to Hawaii. On Saturday, their homecoming game against formerly winless San Jose State devolved into a 40-28 rout.

There were some notable individual performances.

Wesley Phillips threw for 358 yards and three touchdowns, and Lee Mays had 184 yards receiving, personal game-highs for both players. Mays' seven catches boosted his career total to 179, making him the school's all-time leader in receptions.

Nord said his players have talent, but the team — loaded with freshmen, many of them starters — hasn't come together.

"I may have been naive or stupid going in to think we could get these young kids matured or showing leadership," he said.

Other nagging problems include NCAA sanctions in 1997 for minor but persistent violations that cut the number of scholarships.

Mussina ready to face Schilling

World Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Mussina and the New York Yankees chose each other for moments like this.

Mussina, signed to an $88.5 million, six-year contract last November, was picked Wednesday to be Joe Torre's Game 1 starter in the World Series against Arizona's Curt Schilling.

"I'm glad I got on this ride before it ended," said Mussina, playing in his first World Series. "These guys have been doing it for so long. This was definitely something I thought about when I signed here."

Mussina should be more than prepared for the type of low-scoring game everyone expects Saturday night when he faces Schilling. Matchups with pitchers like Pedro Martinez, Greg Maddux and Mark Mulder left Mussina among the pitchers with the worst run support in the majors this year.

"A lot of the games I've pitched the last couple of years have been like that," he said. "Maybe that's the reason why."

In an era when home run records keep falling and offense dominates, the World Series will be decided by some of the game's most powerful pitchers.

Schilling and teammate Randy Johnson get most of the headlines, but Torre's rotation of Mussina, ALCS MVP Andy Pettitte, Roger Clemens and Orlando Hernandez is as deep as any.

"We're going to have good pitchers going, too," Torre said. "It's going to be our job to match what they can do and keep the game close. That's been our formula. It's worked well for us."

The Yankees have had uncanny success when facing the best. But no duo is as tough as Schilling and Johnson, who combined for 43 wins and 665 strikeouts and formed the most lethal left-right combination since Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale for the Los Angeles Dodgers in the 1960s.

Coincidentally, those Dodgers swept the Yankees in the 1963 World Series behind three complete-game wins from Koufax and Drysdale.

"Drysdale was intimidating from the right side like Randy is from the left side," said Torre, who played against the Dodgers' ace early in his career. "Even though Koufax did not have the reputation of throwing under your chin like Drysdale, he still intimidated with his stuff like Curt Schilling."

The Yankees haven't faced Schilling or Johnson this year, but have had a lot of practice against comparable pitchers. They won five games started this season by Martinez, and also beat Mulder, Tim Hudson, Barry Zito and Freddy Garcia.

They plan on using the same formula against Arizona's aces as they against the others: Stay close long enough to get a break or hope the bullpen decides it.

"We'll try to stay with them as long as we can," pitching coach Mel Stottlemyre said. "Hopefully, they'll get tired before my guys get tired."

"Moose will have to have the same approach as against Pedro Martinez. There are not going to be a lot of runs. He's been training for this all year because we haven't scored him a lot of runs."

Special Youth Season set this weekend at Meredith

FRITCH — Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has authorized a Special Youth Season on Saturday and Sunday at Lake Meredith National Recreation Area.

A six dollar Special Resident Hunting License is required. Licenses may be purchased at locations where regular Texas Parks and Wildlife licenses are sold.

Hunting will be allowed at Lake Meredith under this Special Youth Season this weekend only. Lake Meredith will not participate in the Jan. 19-20 Youth Season.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department rules require that a

The Yankees averaged only 4.1 runs in Mussina's starts this year, leaving him with a 17-11 record that doesn't reflect his 3.15 ERA — second best in the AL.

It's that success with little margin for error, along with two big postseason wins, that led Torre to give his newest starter the nod in Game 1.

"When you get to a seven-game series, every game is important," Mussina said. "It doesn't matter if you start Game 1, 2 or 4. All of those games are important."

supervising adult must accompany licensed youth ages 16 & under. Lake Meredith hunting regulations require both youth and adults to wear 500 square inches of blaze orange above the waist, including hat and vest. During the two-day hunt within Lake Meredith National Recreation Area, the youth will be allowed to harvest 15 quail a day, only 1 buck white-tailed deer, and 4 Rio Grande turkey.

All Lake Meredith National Recreation Area and Texas Parks & Wildlife rules and regulations apply during this special Youth-Only Hunt. For further information, please contact park headquarters at (806) 857-3151.

Mountaineers looking to upset No. 1 Miami

MIAMI (AP) — West Virginia coach Rich Rodriguez has watched plenty of videotape on the top-ranked Miami Hurricanes, and he hasn't found a weakness.

"We're a few bullets shy," Rodriguez said. "We might be going into a gunfight with a pen knife."

The Mountaineers (2-4, 0-2 Big East) will try to upset the Hurricanes (5-0, 2-0) tonight at the Orange Bowl, where Miami has won 12 consecutive games. The Canes hope to make the task even tougher by playing with a confidence level higher than it has been in recent years.

"We are not intimidated. We look at it as a challenge," West Virginia quarterback Brad Lewis said. "This is the best team in America, maybe the best team we will play. It's on national television, and they will be looking to make a statement just like we are."

Miami's statement is simple: Win every game convincingly. The Hurricanes were fourth in the Bowl Championship Series standings released Monday, behind Oklahoma, Nebraska and UCLA. They might need two of those teams to lose, or else they might be left out of the national championship picture again.

"We've got to go undefeated," running back Clinton Portis said.

The Canes beat Florida State 27-24 last year and finished the regular season 10-1, but they dropped below the Seminoles in the final BCS rankings and didn't get a chance to play Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl for the national title.

"You use different things to motivate your team," Miami coach Larry Coker said. "I hope our team wants to go out and play well and get the respect they deserve throughout the country. The only way you do that is you go out, be an excellent, dominant football team."

The Hurricanes have outscored their opponents 224-62, including a 49-27 win over Florida State on Oct. 13 that snapped the Seminoles' 54-game home unbeaten streak.

That game re-emphasized Miami's fearlessness.

OU coach hopes for run at NCAA women's championship

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Only one first team All-American is returning to the court for Big 12 play this season and Oklahoma's favorite status rests squarely on her shoulders.

Senior guard Stacey Dales hopes she can lead Oklahoma, last year's Big 12 champions, to San Antonio for the NCAA Final Four tournament in March.

A Final Four bid for Oklahoma, which many say is likely, would represent the first since the conference's 1996 inception.

The Sooners lost to Washington in the third round of last year's NCAA tournament.

Dales and coach Sherri Coale were among Big 12 players and coaches who discussed their championship hopes Wednesday at the Big 12 Women's Media Day.

Unlike last year's freshman-laden teams, Big 12 play this season will be dominated by upperclassmen — a change that coaches think will increase the caliber of an already tough conference.

"We finally have the seniors and the veterans who have been through the Big 12 that can offer their leadership," said Colorado coach Ceal Barry.

Iowa State is the only exception, with four starters have an inside and out attack. We were not very effective on the second half of that last year," said Conradt, whose team finished seventh in Big 12 play last season. "Injuries changed our style of play dramatically. We were struggling and were worn down physically. This year we've got more depth and that will help get us back up to a more uptempo game."

Iowa State, which finished third in the conference last year, will need to find depth in its freshman class after losing four starters. Angie Welle, last year's Big 12 tournament MVP, says this year's freshman class will step up to that challenge.

"I think the biggest key will be to stay focused and be ready to go every single game," Welle said. "If we keep that mentality, we can win the conference. I think we have a class that can do that. We have better and better players every year."

"It was unbelievable for me," Crockrom said. "I wasn't sure how far Baylor could go, but Coach Kim (Mulky-Robertson) believed in us so much. I was honored to be a part of that turnaround. It was indescribable."

"This was a great win for us," said Richer, a career 400-goal scorer who has three with Pittsburgh. "I feel better, feel stronger every day, but I'm still not where I want to be. I'm still struggling to do everything I can do."

"But we can't depend just on Mario Lemieux to score goals, or Martin Straka or Robert Lang. We have to be able to depend on other guys, too."

Wilson tied it at 15:10 of the second period by steering a long shot past Ed Belfour after Richer and Kevin Stevens put the puck on the net. It was Wilson's first goal with Pittsburgh.

Stevens later set up Richer's game-winning goal at 7:15 of the third. He stole the puck from Donald Audette and fed it to Richer, who beat Belfour with a shot that deflected twice off the goalie.

Johan Hedberg, who stopped 31 shots, preserved the victory by denying Mike Modano on a penalty shot with 7:21 remaining. "It really wasn't that great of an effort," Modano said. "I just wanted to get a shot off and see what happened."

Report: Dallas close to making cut in the 2012 Olympics competition

DALLAS (AP) — The city's bid for hosting the 2012 Olympics is reportedly close to making the cut for finalists in the competition.

A U.S. Olympic Committee source who spoke on condition of anonymity told The Dallas Morning News in Thursday's editions that New York and Washington were "excellent guesses" as the leaders to advance. Published reports in those cities have indicated those bids have enough support to stay in the hunt.

"That's not a surprise," said Dallas 2012 chairman David Biegler on Wednesday. "I said that four or five months ago. The question is, how many will advance?"

The USOC source said Wednesday that San Francisco appeared a good bet for the third spot, with Dallas, Houston, Los Angeles and Tampa, Fla., too close to call. Cincinnati rounds out the field.

A field of eight cities will be cut to between three and five, with an announcement scheduled for 1 p.m. CDT on Friday.

"We have eight great bids," said USOC President Sandra Baldwin said. "It will be too bad to have to disappoint any of them."

Members of the USOC site evaluation task force started two days of meetings Wednesday to compare their scores for each city, based on visits made from June through August. Eleven task force members will vote on the cities, then make their recommendation to the 23-member USOC Executive Committee on Friday morning.

"I think you could have said a year ago that New York and Washington would make it, based on the importance given to a city's international high profile and recognition around the world," said the USOC source. "And San Francisco had an excellent site visit."

Dallas' biggest obstacle, the USOC source said, is its potential perception as too much like Atlanta. That city's 1996 Summer Olympics displeased many International Olympic Committee members, who characterized the Games as too commercial, with souvenir stands vying with Olympic symbolism. The source said Houston and Tampa also face comparison with Atlanta.

But Houston and Tampa have the most solid government financial guarantees of their bids.

Dumas wins 8th grade tilt

PAMPA — Pampa was defeated by Dumas 34-6 in an 8th grade football game earlier this week.

Pampa's touchdown came on a 12-yard fumble return by Jared Moler.

Pampa and Dumas battled to a 6-6 tie in the B team game.

Scoring for Pampa was Chase Brewer on a 28-yard fumble return.

Pampa's A team has a 1-5 record while the B team is 3-2-1.

Pampa hosts Canyon on Oct. 30. The B team game starts at 5:30, followed by the A team game at 6:30.

Stars fall, 3-2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Stephane Richer still isn't in game shape after sitting out last season. No matter. The Penguins convinced Richer to end his one-year sabbatical because when the puck leaves his stick, it often finds its way into the net.

With the Penguins down 2-0 to a team they hadn't beaten in nearly five years, and seemingly out of gas playing for the second straight night, Richer set up the tying goal and scored the game-winner in a 3-2 victory over the Dallas Stars on Wednesday night.

Defensemen Michal Rozsival and Mike Wilson also scored as Pittsburgh followed up a 4-2 victory in Atlanta with their best effort of the season. The Penguins were 0-6-2 against Dallas since Jan. 14, 1997, including an 8-2 home loss last season.

The Penguins are 4-0-0-1 since Rick Kehoe became coach Oct. 15, gaining nine of 10 points following an 0-4 start under Ivan Hlinka.

"This was a great win for us," said Richer, a career 400-goal scorer who has three with Pittsburgh. "I feel better, feel stronger every day, but I'm still not where I want to be. I'm still struggling to do everything I can do."

"But we can't depend just on Mario Lemieux to score goals, or Martin Straka or Robert Lang. We have to be able to depend on other guys, too."

Wilson tied it at 15:10 of the second period by steering a long shot past Ed Belfour after Richer and Kevin Stevens put the puck on the net. It was Wilson's first goal with Pittsburgh.

Stevens later set up Richer's game-winning goal at 7:15 of the third. He stole the puck from Donald Audette and fed it to Richer, who beat Belfour with a shot that deflected twice off the goalie.

Johan Hedberg, who stopped 31 shots, preserved the victory by denying Mike Modano on a penalty shot with 7:21 remaining. "It really wasn't that great of an effort," Modano said. "I just wanted to get a shot off and see what happened."

BY JACQUELINE BIGNER
The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have:
3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 An answer might come without you asking. You hear news from others. Trust that those around you have good intentions. You might need to consider another's words carefully. You will get many different opinions if you put an issue on the table, giving you many options. Tonight: Slow down the pace. TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Bring others together and discuss what could be, at first, an uncomfortable situation. If two minds work better than one, think what many will do. Overwhelmed, you'll find answers. Calls and messages come in left and right. Tonight: Jump into your weekend. GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Your serious demeanor tosses others into confusion, at best. As a result, you might get some offers you can't believe. Money flows in and out of your wallet like a train goes in and out of the station. Take in a different perspective. Think success. Tonight: Burn the candle at both ends. CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Reach out for others. You want expert help with key decisions. The written word travels far — especially within family and personal circles. Not everything needs to be shared verbally. Your brightness brings you many family, home or personal matters. It's a good thing that the workweek is ending. Others act withdrawn but simply might be tired. Finish up work and don't initiate anything new. Let someone pitch in to get the job done. Tonight: Head on home. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

 Speak your mind, and others surely will listen. Different approaches bring unusual results. Put someone on the back for a job well-done. Don't hesitate to delegate if you are an overload. You don't always have to be the main joint at work and at home. Tonight: Frolic with friends. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 Deal with financial instability. You cannot understand what is happening with someone whom you care a lot about. Explore what is going on. It's time for a long-overdue discussion. You offer much more to a work situation than you realize. Listen to another's suggestion. Tonight: Your treat. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 Your smile wins friends, though a family member might feel left out. Your solid approach and dynamic energy appeal to many — perhaps too many. Prioritize your relationships. Honor only those who are important to you. Tonight: Whatever the Fish wants. BORN TODAY

West Texas A&M to host Student Research Conference

■ The conference features eight different categories in which students can compete: agriculture; business; communication; fine arts; humanities; social and behavioral sciences; and natural and physical sciences. The conference is sponsored by the Student Research Conference Committee.

CANYON — More than 75 university students will compete for top honors in research at West Texas A&M University's eighth annual Student Research Conference Friday, Nov. 2 on the WTAMU campus. Graduate and undergraduate students will participate in the conference proceedings, which will include 15-20 minute oral presentations of students' original work. The conference features eight different categories in which students can compete: agriculture; business; communication; fine arts; humanities; social and behavioral sciences; and natural and physical sciences. The conference is sponsored by the Student Research Conference Committee.

"The Student Research Conference is a unique opportunity for undergraduate and graduate students to actively participate in the pursuit of scholarly achievement and to share the results of the work with various academic communities," said Dr. Bonnie Pendleton, chairperson of the Student Research Conference Committee and assistant professor of agriculture.

The public is invited to attend the presentations, which are grouped in 90-minute time periods beginning at 9 a.m., 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. in the Jack B. Kelley Student Center.

Presentations will be judged, and winners in each of the categories will be presented cash prizes for first, second and third place finishes in the amounts of $200, $100 and $50, respectively. Winners will be announced at an awards banquet at 7 p.m. in the Alumni Banquet Facility. Banquet tickets are available to the public.

Dr. Russell Long, University president, will address the banquet attendees. For more information, contact Pendleton at (806) 651-2505 or visit the Student Research Conference website at <http://www.wtamu.edu/academic/faq/eng/wc/src.htm>.

CCHC needs depot photos

PANHANDLE — The Carson County Historical Commission is seeking early photographs of the Panhandle Santa Fe Depot. The depot, which was completed in 1928, was one of the last brick depots built on the Western Line and was one of the largest to serve such a small community.

The Historical Commission is seeking recognition of the depot for the National Register of Historic Places. The depot was named as a Recorded Texas Historical Landmark in 1988.

The discovery of oil in the area in 1926 had caused an enormous amount of business as Panhandle was the shipping point for all supplies going to the oil fields north of town. In July and August of 1926, as much business took place in Panhandle as in Chicago.

Panhandle's citizens petitioned the railroad for a new depot. The depot was built and the first trains unloaded on May 17, 1928. The last passenger train stopped on May 1, 1971. The railway is still an active freight line for the Burlington Northern/Santa Fe Railway. After several years of vacancy, the depot was leased to the City of Panhandle and the Carson County Square House Museum in 1983. It now houses Panhandle City Hall and museum storage.

The Historical Commission is seeking recognition of the depot for the National Register of Historic Places. The depot was named as a Recorded Texas Historical Landmark in 1988.

As yet, no photos have been found of the early days of the depot, although no external changes have been made. The Historical Commission will be glad to have reproductions made and return the original photographs. Contact Mogie R. McCray, Chairman, Carson County Historical Commission, P.O. Box 310, Panhandle, TX 79068-0310 or call (806) 537-5237.

Tralee receives support of UW

This article is one in a series of articles of profiles on the agencies and organizations supported by Pampa United Way. This information is being provided by Pampa United Way as part of its 2001 "The Way America Cares, Community by Community!" fund-raising campaign.

"How have things gotten this bad?" I ask that question to myself every day. I've been living with being a victim of domestic violence for more than six years.

Before moving to Pampa, I moved from shelter to shelter because my abuser always found me. At my last shelter, it happened again, my abuser found me and that's when I called Tralee Crisis Center.

After answering a few questions, the lady on the other end said, "We will see you in a few days." It's now been three weeks and my life is better than it ever has been.

Tralee has helped me get an apartment, deposits and furnishings for my own place. Tralee has also helped me get my teeth fixed, has given me counseling and material things that my daughter and myself need. Friendships to last a lifetime have also been gained.

A lot of women think they are alone out there and no one will help them. Because Tralee is out there waiting to help, we can't use that excuse anymore. I can't thank Tralee enough for all they have done for me, but I have to try.

I want to thank you for showing me I'll be alright and there is a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

Written by a victim of abuse about Tralee Crisis Center, a United Way agency.
