World's Greatest Airship Is Easily Anchored After Record Flight

TRIVIAL DAMAGE REPAIRED AND "FLYING HOTEL" WILL STAY ON HER SCHEDULE

British Crew Happy Over Maiden Ocean Crossing Of R-100—Trip Requires Not Quite 79 Hours

ST. HUBERT AIRPORT, Montreal, Aug. 1. (AP)—The biggest airship the world has ever known, the British dirigible R-100, completed its first transatlantic crossing today, delayed and somewhat damaged by storm, but completely triumphant after its first great trial.

Three days and more ago, at 9:45 E. S. T., on Monday night, the R-100 lifted from the ground at Cardington, Eng., and pointed its blunt nose across the sea. At 4:36 A. M. this morning, almost 79 hours after its departure, it was secured to the mooring mast erected here especially for its use.

News of the death in Los Angeles of J. H. Lavender is sad news. Mr. Lavender, during his residence here gave much of his time to public service. The Chamber of Commerce looked upon him as its champion money getter, for when funds were needed he could go out and state that need in a way that would get a response.

Mr. Lavender was voted one of five "Pampa All-Stars" in a poll taken by The News. He was small but dynamic, and his enthusiasm encompassed his friends, his church, his family, and his city. The need for more of his kind remains keen.

As City Manager Gwin summarized the water situation to the Lions club, the local municipal department is producing an ample supply at steadily decreasing cost per thousand gallons, but it is not, in the popular phrase, "coining money."

The current audit report shows that there was a debit margin of $64,000 between total receipts and operating expenses. This gross profit total, however, is deceptive. Remember, in running any utility there must be retirement of bonded indebtedness, payment of interest charges, replacements for depreciation, or in other words a margin of safety and a guarantee that the business will continue to operate at all times at the efficiency it has at present. Measured by this basis, the water department made a net profit of $8,814.40, or 9 per cent on the municipal investment.

We remember living in one city which operated a municipal electric plant. The plant showed a tremendous profit. The rates were just about on a par with neighboring cities, the argument being that the citizens should save money through lowering of taxes rather than of rates. It worked well for several years, then the city discovered that its plant needed new boilers and dynamo. The cost for these replacements was about $200,000. But the plant had been robbed of its profits and it had no surplus. A bond issue was voted and the disappointed citizenship learned that they had only footed themselves by robbing the water funds.

Pampa's water system records show a daily consumption of 450,000 for 1928, 839,000 for 1929, and 1,445,000 for this year. The peak current demand is about 1,600,000 gallons, while the potential production is 2,340,000. The supply is estimated to be large enough for a city 62 per cent larger than Pampa. It is known that per capita consumption increases as size of cities increase.

Pampa municipal properties—streets, water, a sewer department buildings, etc.—have a value of about $1,263,821. Yet a few years ago when the original $60,000 water bond issue was voted many citizens said the bond issue would "break the town." Pampa has grown remarkably through force of favorable circumstances and through

It would have made a far faster trip but stormy weather, encountered after it had crossed the ocean and was on the last leg of its flight here, ripped the fabric covering of one fin. The hurt was slight and was repaired in air, but time was lost while the ship was over Quebec prevented a landing before dark last night and no attempt was made to moor until morning.

Officers interviewed in the most immediately after mooring said the damage was trivial and would not necessitate any change in the ship's schedule, which calls for several flights about Canada during the next ten days before it starts back across the sea for home.

Biggest Cubic Capacity In length the R-100 is between the American Los Angeles and the German Graf Zeppelin but in girth and cubic capacity it is far larger than either. Yet it was handled in the air during the mooring operation with as much apparent ease as a tiny blimp and when its nose was fast at the top of the mast and ropes from sides and rear were secured to the ground it floated gently in the morning sun, as a canoe on peaceful water.

"We never had a bump all the way across the Atlantic ocean and everything went perfectly until we got to Father Point," said Sir Dennistoun Burney, director of aircraft development and designer of the dirigible, as the ship was moored.

"There we ran into a bad bump and the jar tore the fabric on a stabilizing fin. But the damage was temporarily repaired and was negligible."

There were still five tons of fuel left aboard the R-100 when she hooped onto the mast here.

Comfortable Travel To most valuable thing learned on the trip, the officers believed was that the airship was the most comfortable means of transportation. The course over the North Atlantic they regarded as the most feasible for commercial use if larger ships are used.

"It was a very good test of the ship's ability," Sir Dennistoun said. "We ran into one of your thunderstorms last night and rose to 4,000 feet to get out of it. The trip was 3,264 miles from mooring mast at Cardington to mooring mast at St. Hubert."

The chief benefit we derived from this trip was experience. We need long flights to gain the experience in handling light-than-air craft. There was not a movement across the Atlantic, and the ship behaved perfectly. We dodged to get into favorable winds once or twice, but the air was calm.

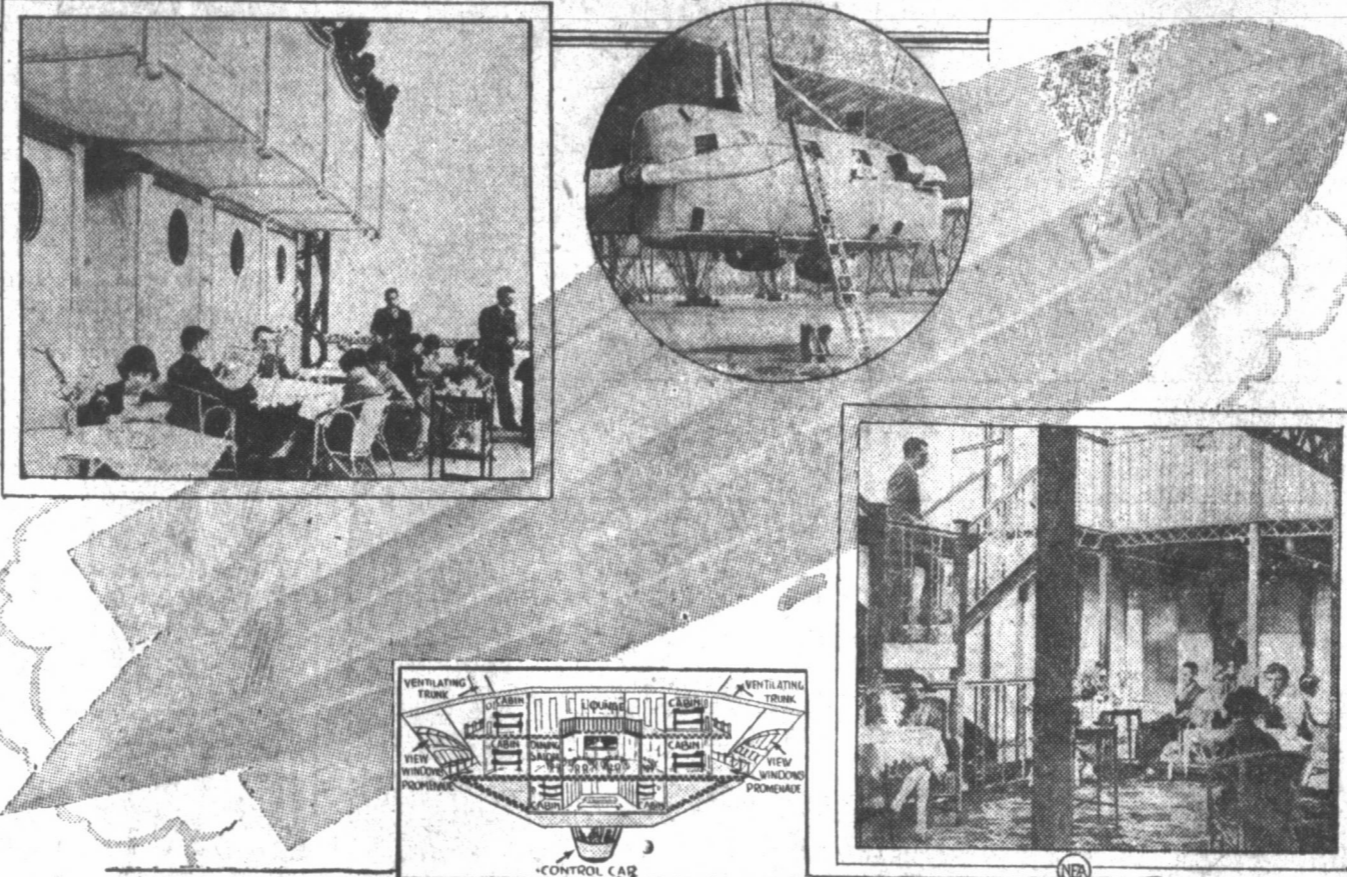

"The most impressive thing about the trip is this: On Monday night I entertained a party at dinner. We left Cardington at 9:46 p.m. and if we had been lucky at the latter end of the trip we would have been here home at Weatherford."

enterprise of the citizenship.

And by the way, Mr. Gwin adds that the water plant is going to be beautified until it looks like a park. There is no reason why a plant should resemble a junk yard, and by this time next year the water property will be as attractive as such things can be. Water and work will do wonders in this regard.

Montgomery & Ward of Wichita Falls, recently employed city planning engineers, likely will arrive Monday to begin their work of planning a better, more beautiful Pampa.

Giant British Dirigible Is Veritable "Flying Hotel"

Voting Privilege in Bond Election Explained Today

Gray county voters will go to the polls tomorrow to decide whether $3,500,000 in bonds shall be issued to pave and improve roads in the county.

All citizens who have paid their poll taxes and who own property may vote, according to Siler Faulkner, county Democratic chairman. If a citizen owns property which might be rendered for taxation, he may vote regardless of whether he pays a property tax. The only two prerequisites for voting in the election are that the voter must have paid his poll tax and must own property which might be rendered for taxation.

Mr. Faulkner illustrated this by pointing out that if a person possesses any personal property, such as a ring or a watch or a car, he may vote if he has paid his poll tax. This practically means that all citizens who have paid their poll taxes may vote in the election. With the exception of the Pampa boxes, voters will cast their ballots at the polling places where they voted last Saturday in the primary election. The ballot is small. The voter has only to mark a line through one of the following phrases: "For the issuance of the bonds and the levying of the tax in payment thereof," and "against the issuance of the bonds and the levying of the tax in payment thereof."

Voting precincts, polling places and presiding officers, follows: No. 1, LeFor school building, E. Bacchus; No. 2, Pampa, Pampa Grain company, T. H. Lane; No. 3, Knorr, Grandview schoolhouse, Willard McAdams; No. 4, Alarred, Baptist church, W. J. Ball; No. 5, McLean, M. D. Bentley's real estate office, John Sparks; No. 6, Laketon schoolhouse, Walter Jones; No. 7, Farrington school, Jess Goad; No. 8, Hopkins school, Ernest Vandenberg; No. 9, Pampa Mutual Hall Ins., Co., C. P. Ledrick; No. 10, Pampa, Chamber of Commerce, J. M. Dodson; No. 11, Kingsmill, Eola Grain Co., G. G. Frasher.

W. L. Mitchell of the McCarty Motor company, and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. McCoy made a trip to Amarillo yesterday, where Mr. McCoy accepted delivery of a Studebaker Commander straight-8.

Mrs. M. J. Cash of Augusta, Kan., her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Kirkwood of Lawrenceville, Ill., and her son, C. O. Cash of Augusta, left this morning, after spending a week here with Mrs. Cash's daughters, Mrs. S. A. Hurst and Mrs. T. A. Perkins.

TULSA AUTO SALESMAN GIVEN DIVORCE FROM INDIAN GIRL AND CASH SETTLEMENT OF $30,000

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 1. (AP)—A divorce from Maude Lee Mudd Gordon Wilson, wealthy Seneca-Osage Indian, together with a property settlement of $30,000 was awarded Earl E. Gordon, Tulsa automobile salesman, in district court here by Judge Owen Owen.

Gordon charged his wealthy wife deserted him soon after their marriage in June, 1925, while the two were in California on their honeymoon. The marriage was performed in Council Bluffs, Ia.

Gordon appeared in court with his attorney. The Indian girl was not present but was represented by counsel.

The court order directed the Commissioner of Indian Affairs to pay the $30,000 settlement to Gordon.

The divorce simplified the marital status of the Indian girl, who Gordon established legal residence in Arizona and obtained an annulment of the marriage. Subsequently she was married to Joseph Wilson formerly of Fairland, Okla. Gordon succeeded in raving the annulment decree set aside. That action left the Indian girl technically with two husbands.

Gordon made several attempts to have Wilson prosecuted on kidnapping charges, but Wilson never was brought to trial.

The Indian girl, a sort of will-o'-the-wisp since her financial and marital affairs began to place her much in the limelight, is reported to be now in Denver, Colo.

KISS COST $11,783

STOCKTON, Cal., Aug. 1.—(AP)—A kiss assumed the value of $11,783 to J. A. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Lucette R. McConnell as the result of a judgment on the here today.

That was the sum awarded Julian Williamson for injuries suffered in an automobile accident, which he testified, occurred when Fitzgerald accepted Mrs. McConnell's invitation to kiss her.

Braly Rules in Favor of Hood in Salary Dispute

That county judges in general and County Judge H. M. Hood of Hutchinson county in particular are entitled to receive $2,250 per year as an ex-officio salary and in addition all fees earned in county court, was a ruling handed down by Judge Clifford Braly of the 114th district court yesterday.

This action was the result of a mandamus petition filed by Judge Hood to compel the auditor of Hutchinson county to pay the county judge a salary of $250 per month or $3,000 per year. The argument grew out of the auditor's contention that the judge's salary could not exceed $2,250, including fees. Judge Braly's decision holds that the ex-officio salary may be $2,250, exclusive of the fees.

The Amarillo Court of Civil Appeals held that it had no jurisdiction in the matter, and Judge Hood filed the petition for a mandamus in the 114th district court.

Pampa Woman To Ride at Amarillo

Mrs. J. L. Van Pelt of Pampa, who achieved wide recognition as a horse-woman in shows at A. & M. college, College Station, where the army sets the standard, at the Livestock Exhibition and Fat Stock show at Fort Worth, and at the Minnesota state fair, tomorrow evening will appear in the mid-summer horse show in Amarillo, showing two horses from the stables of her father, Dr. George P. Groat of Panhandle.

In the five and three-gait classes she will ride Pollyanna Groat, one of the Panhandle's most famous blooded mares, and will show her again in the combination riding and driving class. Although Pollyanna Groat's name is known to horse fanciers throughout the state, the mare is to be shown in a public exhibition for the first time in the Amarillo show. Astrel King G., a colt from Dr. Groat's stable, is the other horse to be shown by Mrs. Van Pelt. He, too, will be making his debut when he is seen in the driving class.

Dr. and Mrs. Purviance have as guests for the week-end Dr. Purviance's niece, Miss June Purviance of Panhandle and Miss Helen Stewart Purviance of Pleasant Plains, Ill.

STERLING HITS AT FERGUSON RECORD

AUSTIN, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Ross S. Sterling, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, opened his campaign here today with an attack upon James E. Ferguson, former governor, whose wife, Miriam A. Ferguson, opposes Sterling in the runoff campaign.

In a statement Sterling relegated his highway bond plan to second place as an issue, declaring the paramount issue now to be "honesty and efficiency in government." He said he believed other candidates in the primary stood for honest government and were opposed "to the return of Fergusonism" and invited "the cooperation and support of all right thinking people."

Sterling then reviewed some of the episodes in the administration of the Fergusons. He referred particularly to Ferguson's pardon record, administration of the road fund, and the facts of Ferguson's impeachment.

"The spectacle of an ex-governor, impeached from office, with his wife as governor in name only, while he, in fact, directs her official actions, is unheard of so far as I have known in the history of any free government except one, and that was in our own great state," the statement said.

"If Ferguson's administration had lasted 90 days longer it would have been virtually necessary to nail up the doors of the highway department. The federal government withheld all federal aid from Texas until that regime was out of the state capitol."

"Will the people of Texas once more permit this man to enjoy immunity from the law while he with one hand practices law and acts as an individual citizen, and with the other hand dominates and controls the highest office within our gift?"

"We do not have to resort to speculation or conjecture to find out what Fergusonism means. It is spread on the records of the state. Elevated to the office of governor in his own name, he was impeached, found guilty and removed from office, and barred from holding any office of honor or trust in this state. His wife then presented herself as a candidate, pleading she desired the office only for one term, in order that the family name might not go down to posterity dishonored. Upon her election her husband took charge."

"If Jim Ferguson is elected governor of Texas we will have a return of petty politics, of factionalism, bitterness and none of the problems which now confront our great and growing state can possibly be settled by the legislature of Texas in peace and in quiet."

"I will go to the people and wage a fight for honest government. I am a native Texan and love her history and her soil. My forebears fought at San Jacinto. I hope for an honest and decent government, for honor at home and respect abroad."

Sterling also stated his position on various issues brought to the fore during the primary campaign. They included advocacy of taxation of natural resources; enactment of a production tax on sulphur; correction of inequalities in the taxing system; improvement of the prison farms; generous support of eleemosynary institutions; support of measures designed to protect the working man; and vigorous enforcement of the law.

Sterling declared his bond issue plan had been mis-stated. He pointed out that it was the right of the legislature to submit, or not to submit this question to the direct vote of the people.

"I want it clearly understood," the statement said, "that I will not favor the submission of such an amendment unless it expressly becomes a charge or liability upon or against the real estate or personal property of Texas citizens, so that homes, farms, ranches or other property shall never bear the burden of such bonds, but they shall be paid, solely out of other tax resources, particularly the gasoline tax. This could be without increase of the present tax."

Charles Burk of Elk City, Okla., of the Diamond C company, is a visitor here today.

PROFESSOR IS NEW SUBJECT FOR PROBE

Dr. Shoch Suddenly Decides Not To Testify

"POLITICS" IS REASON GIVEN Citizens Committee Formed To Watch Valuation

WHARTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Commissioners' court spent a good part of today trying to discover just why Dr. E. P. Schoch of the University of Texas, called here by the court as an expert in the sulphur tax hearing, left Wharton without taking the stand.

Attorneys for both the Texas Gulf Sulphur company and the citizens committee testified that they personally had no objections to the doctor testifying.

Hugh F. Montgomery of the legal staff of the company, said he had a conversation with Dr. Schoch but denied that anything in that conversation would have caused the doctor to leave.

Paul D. Page, counsel for the committee, then took the stand and said he had several conversations with the doctor but declined to say whether this had had any influence on the doctor's return to Austin.

County Judge John Norris read to the court which Dr. Schoch had left with him in which Dr. Schoch declared that the sulphur tax question was "the chief, (not cheap, as he had been quoted) political issue" and stating that he, as a member of the university faculty, did not care to get into any situation in which there were political elements. Wednesday afternoon asked him if there was politics in the case and he said he told him it was "quite a political issue."

"I told him that 'politics was hell,'" Page testified.

R. H. Hancock, chairman of the citizens' committee, testified about an affidavit given by H. J. Russell about a conversation in Judge Norris' office between the judge, himself and Russell, in which Hancock was quoted as telling Judge Norris that if the judge would finally agree to the $32,000,000 valuation he, Hancock, would call the committee off "as there would be no excuse for it."

Mr. Hancock testified that what he told Judge Norris was this: "I said to him that if he were out working for the valuation I personally would quit."

FINDING THE GOOD LIFE

The complexity of modern life is not a curse but an opportunity and a challenge, according to Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States supreme court.

Justice Holmes is well qualified to speak. Now in his 90th year, he can look back on the former age in American life—the age when the pace of living was slower, when there were fewer machines, fewer big cities, fewer great factories. At 23, a twice-wounded veteran of the Civil War, he set out to build a career. Now, still active in one of the highest positions the country can offer, he looks out upon a world that is completely changed.

But he believes the changes have been for the better.

There is a quotation from his new book, "Collected Legal Papers," in the current issue of the Golden Book magazine that is interesting. In it the aged jurist makes this comment:

"When it is said that we are too much occupied with the means of living to live, I answer that the chief worth of civilization is just that it makes the means of living more complex, that it calls for great and combined intellectual efforts instead of simple, unco-ordinated ones, in order that the crowd may be fed and clothed and housed and moved from place to place. Because more complex and intense intellectual effort means a fuller and richer life. They mean more life. Life is an end in itself, and the only question as to its being worth living is whether you have enough of it."

This is a reassuring attitude. Very often the complexity and tumult of modern life seem merely bewildering, useless. A great many people have jumped to the conclusion that life was really better in the old days. The good life, they say, is harder to attain for us than it was for our grandfathers.

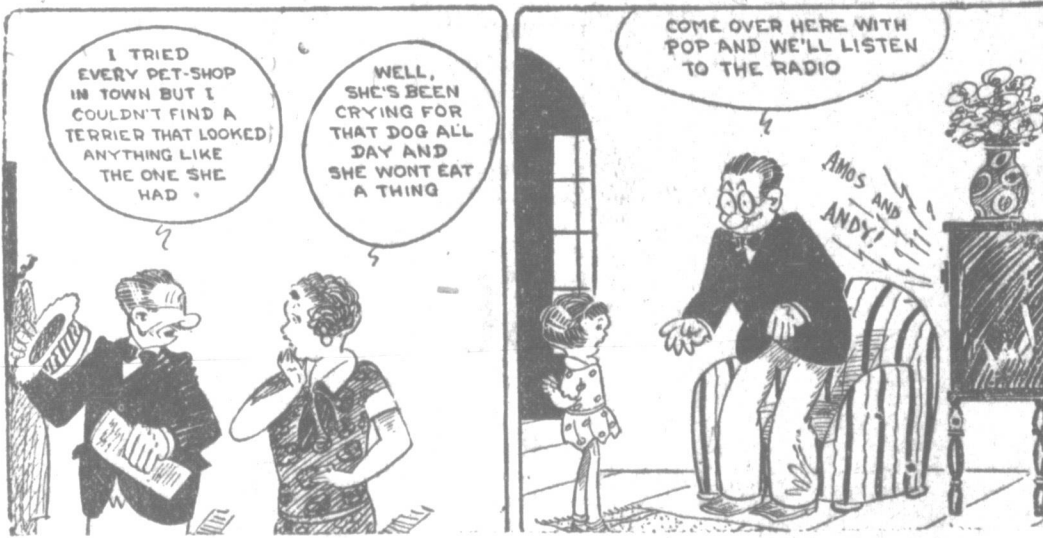

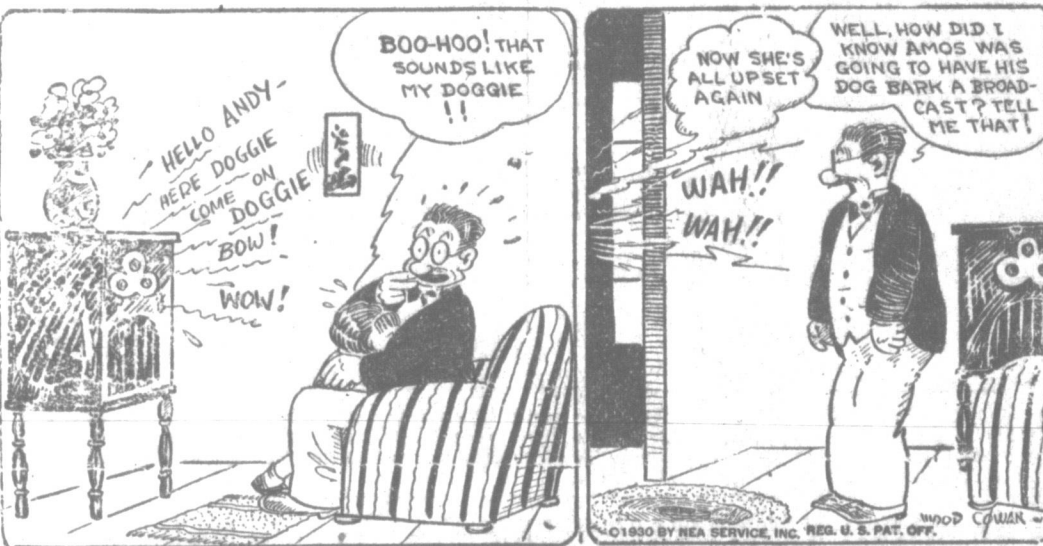

But Justice Holmes, who has lived out of one era into another, does not think so. He is confident and unafraid. May we all come to an understanding of his attitude!—NEA.

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic—Naomi and Ruth: A study in Racial Relationships. Scripture Lesson: Ruth 1:6-10, 14-22.

Ruth 1:6. Then she arose with her daughters-in-law, that she might return from the country of Moab: for she had heard in the country of Moab how that Jehovah had visited His people in giving them bread.

7. And she went forth out of the place where she was, and her two daughters-in-law with her; and they went on the way to return unto the land of Judah.

8. And Naomi said unto her two daughters-in-law, Go, return each of you to her mother's house: Jehovah deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with the dead, and with me.

9. Jehovah grant you that ye may find rest, each of you in the house of her husband. Then she kissed them, and they lifted up their voice, and wept.

10. And they said unto her, Nay, but we will return with thee unto thy people.

14. And they lifted up their voice and wept again: Orpah kissed her mother-in-law; but Ruth claved unto her.

15. And she said, behold, thy sister-in-law is gone back unto her people, and unto her God: return thou after thy sister-in-law.

16. And Ruth said, Treat me not to leave thee, and to return from following after thee, for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge, thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God:

17. Where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried: Jehovah do so to me, and more also, if aught but death part thee and me.

18. And when she saw that she was steadfastly minded to go with her, she left off speaking unto her. So Naomi returned, and Ruth the Moabitess, her daughter-in-law with her, who returned out of the country of Moab: and they came to Bethlehem in the beginning of barley harvest.

Golden text—And He made of one every nation of men to dwell on all the face of the earth.—Acts 17:26.

Time—Conjectural dates (Beecher): Naomi flees to Moab, B. C. 1181 Naomi returns to Bethlehem, B. C. 1173.

Place—Bethlehem. Some town in Moab.

Introduction The Book of Ruth is one of the most delightful stories ever penned. It carries us without an effort into an old world ree'n altogether unlike our work-a-day life. Whilst we read it the customs of that other realm seem quite familiar to us. The story opens in Bethlehem, a village of Judah about six miles south of Jerusalem, the town later to be distinguished as the birthplace of David and of "great David's Greater Son," our Lord Jesus Christ. A famine in the land caused a certain family to leave Bethlehem and go eastward a short distance to Moab, east of the Dead Sea. In Moab they could find food, for in those days it was fertile and highly cultivated, a land of many streams and of generous harvests.

Naomi And Her Family The migrating family consisted of Elimelech, his wife Naomi, and his two sons, Mahlon and Chilion. It was a godly family, and removal to the heathen land of Moab was regarded by them as a calamity. Only the extremity of famine could induce a worshipper of Jehovah to live in that unclean country of idolaters.

There Elimelech died, and his two sons, having become accustomed to Moab, so far forsook their native land and their religion as to marry Moabite girls, Chilion's wife being Orpah, and Mahlon's Ruth. After these marriages a double calamity fell upon the little household, for both Chilion and Mahlon died, and Naomi was left, bereft of her husband and two sons, and with only her daughters-in-law, who were strangers and foreigners. We are at once admitted to one of the loveliest scenes in all the Bible.

Returns To Bethlehem

"Then she arose with her daughters-in-law, that she might return from the country of Moab." She had lived for about ten years in Moab, but it could never be home to a Hebrew woman. "For she had heard that Jehovah had visited His people in giving them bread." Bethlehem, which means "the house of bread," was once more true to its name. Jehovah is said in the Bible to "visit" His people both with blessings and again with penalties for wrong-doing. Naomi, like all Jews, felt herself to be one of God's people under His protection, and receiving from His hands all good things. Christians should have the same sense of belonging to God and so they pray to Him, "Give us this day our daily bread."

"And she went forth out of the place where she was, and her two daughters-in-law with her." It has been suggested that one object of Naomi's return was to sell her land in Bethlehem and thus obtain something to support her, in her old age. Moreover, she had her old friends and neighbors to draw her back.

Orpah and Ruth Both Orpah and Ruth loved their mother-in-law. At first they both intended to accompany her to her old home among the Israelites, but finally Orpah turned back to her Moabite home. Ruth, however, matched Naomi's unselfishness with her own devotion. In a language which has become classic because of its beauty and pathos she declared her unalterable purpose to cleave to her mother-in-law "until death should separate them." vs. 16, 17. "Like David's lament over Jonathan these words have sunk deep into the human heart. As an expression of the tenderest and most faithful friendship they are unrivaled. From this moment a charm lingers about Ruth and she becomes dearer to us than any woman of whom the Hebrew records tell."

Orpah went back to her old home, and there she disappeared from history: Ruth went forward to a new home, and there she won a place among the immortals.

Ruth and Naomi

"And they came to Bethlehem in the beginning of barley harvest." It was April, and in the opening of the harvest season, as barley was the first crop to be gathered in. It was to be a happy harvest time for them, after all. "It is always darkest just before dawn." "Barley harvest was followed a fortnight later by the wheat harvest (Ruth 8:23) and the harvest season lasted seven weeks (cf. Deut. 16:9). It was a humane ordinance of the Jewish law that when a farmer was reaping his field he should not 'make clean riddance of the corners' but leave gleanings for the poor and the stranger, and when he forgot a sheaf he should not go again to fetch it but leave it for the fatherless and the widow (cf. Lev. 23:22; Deut. 24:19). And here Ruth recognized an opportunity of staying off want for the next seven weeks. She could glean in the harvest field in the wake of the reapers. It was a hard necessity for one nurtured as she had been, and Naomi would hardly have suggested it; but when Ruth proposed it she gave her consent.

The Kindness of Boaz

Ruth, as it chanced under the ordering of God's providence, went to glean in the fields of Boaz, a rich man who was a near kinsman of Naomi's husband. None disturb her, and no rural badinage is directed at her; she moves shyly by herself among the fields, as solitary as in her own poor home. In due time the great man whose land is being harvested comes down to greet the reapers; he notices the solitary gleaner, and is told who she is. Boaz at once steps up and speaks to the shrinking stranger, bidding her on no account to quit his fields, but remain among his maidens and refresh herself at his feasts. Boaz lets her know how he has heard of her loving care for her mother-in-law and her preference of Israel for Moab. Ruth's heart is full, for she had heard a word of kindness in the solitude of a strange land. So Boaz saw to it that Ruth's gleanings should be plentiful, and the industrious young woman had a bushel of grain to carry home to Naomi.

Ruth Marries Boaz

It was inevitable that love should spring up under such circumstances, and Ruth's love story, though the differing customs of the time and place make it seem strange to us, is very beautiful. It has the charm of a simple, pastoral life. It illustrates the feeling that "the family was more important than the individual, the clan than the tribe, and that it is the duty and privilege of the individual to surrender himself to the larger interests." Boaz would in any event have married Ruth in order to perpetuate the line of his kinsman Elimelech; his love for the beautiful Moabitess made the task a joy.

Ancestress of Messiah

"No more is said of Ruth. She was only introduced into Scripture to make a link in the descent of the kings of Judah—in the descent of the distant Messiah. For her foreign extraction and the improbability of a worshipper of Chemosh becoming an ancestress of Messiah, and not for her gentle ways of love, and the charms which won the heart of Boaz, does she figure among the women of the Bible. But the hand of inspiration is opulent and delicate in its drawing; and introducing the tale of Ruth for another purpose, it draws the portrait of Ruth in this memorable way, to win the love of the ages, and to be the model for girls to imitate. Her grandson was Jesus, and Jesse was the father of David. Beautiful to us must be every strand of goodness and beauty which made the stock from which, according to the flesh, Jesus came."—Rev. Robert F. Horton, D. D.

A World Brotherhood

Christ's descent from the Moabitess summons all Christians to a world brotherhood. We of all men should never look down on a forsigner nor scorn those whose history customs and ideas are different from ours. We belong to the world religion and we have for our own the World Redeemer. Human brotherhood is the corollary of the Divine Fatherhood.

Ruth's Pledge

The sixteenth and seventeenth verses form one of the most beautiful, eloquent, and memorable passages in the Bible. It is a passage which in all ages has been peculiarly dear to lovers and to husbands and wives. It is charged with strong emotion and is rhythmical, being in the true language of poetry. Ruth said:

"Entreat me not to leave thee, and to return from following after thee; "For whither thou goest, I will go; "And where thou lodgest, I will lodge; "Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God. "Where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried: "Jehovah do so to me, and more also, "If aught but death part thee and me."

Several conversions last night featured the most notable service yet held in the revival meetings at the high school gymnasium, under the auspices of the Central Baptist church.

The sermon by Congressman-Evangelist Upshaw was dramatic in its magnetic impressiveness. He spoke on "Christ, Our Only Hope," from the fourth chapter of Second Corinthians.

With striking illustrations, he brought out the fact that "there are two flags in Pampa—the banner of the Cross, which waves over those who are saved through the miracle of regeneration, and the dingy flag of Satan, under which can be found every man and woman who has refused Christ as a personal Saviour." "If you see no beauty in the gospel of Salvation, if your heart does not thrill over the name of Christ as your own Redeemer, it is because you are lost," the speaker declared, "not going to be lost when you die, but lost now, and you will remain forever lost unless found through the saving grace of the gospel."

Answering those who object to the doctrine of hell, the speaker pointedly said: "All of you who believe that a God-fearing Christian man or woman who dies in the triumph of Christian faith goes to Heaven when they die, raise your hand." Practically every hand went up. "Now," said the speaker, "if those who live for Christ go to Heaven, where do the wicked and impenitent go?"

"Let those who object to the doctrine of hell explain where that black scoundrel should go who killed that poor woman by beating her head into a pulp. I know the name of a white man in Georgia who killed an entire family and burned the house down on them. If you don't believe in hell, where do you think he went when he was hung?"

"I a South Georgia town a weeping willow weeps, indeed, over a little church yard mound that shuts from sight the desolate dust of an unwed mother and her babe. The dissolute son of a wealthy man won the heart, and alas, the body, of this beautiful daughter of a humble home, and then deserted her to die in child-birth, with a broken heart. If there is not a hell, there ought to be for a scoundrel like that."

"I'll tell you," continued the evangelist, "The Godless crowd who object to the doctrine of hell are the people who are going there." An after-meeting was held in which there were several conversions.

DANCING JUDITH

By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN
COPYRIGHT 1930 BY CHELSEA HOUSE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JUDITH GRANT, beautiful artist's model, lives in Greenwich Village with CHUMMY MORLEY, a beautiful girl who lost her memory when her lover, ALAN STEYNE disappeared seven years ago. Steyne returns but Chummy fails to recognize him; he and Judith fall in love, and he tells Judith he never loved Chummy and never knew Chummy loved him. Chummy's memory returns, and Steyne, feeling bound by a tie of honor, asks her to marry him. Judith accepts the offer of ELUCE GIDEON, rich financier, to star her in a musical show, and begins taking dancing lessons. She refuses to listen to Steyne's warning that Gideon's intentions are not honorable. Then, by chance, she hears Gideon tell VINCENT STORNAWAY, a painter, that he admires her immensely but that she "is not the sort of girl one could marry." She runs home in a rage, and finds Steyne there, waiting to meet Chummy.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXI
 "Judith!" cried Steyne. "What's the matter? Don't do that! Oh, please don't!"
 But she went on sobbing.
 "Judith, I can't bear it! Is it only that you're overtired, or is there something else?"
 She burst into a string of inarticulate sentences, her voice muffled in her hands. Alan came nearer, but could not make out the words, repeated over and over again: "Horrible world! Horrible world!"
 His heart stood still for a moment. Then he dropped on his knees beside her and took her in his strong arms.
 "Judith, little Judith, tell me all about it!"
 His voice was as tender as a woman's.
 "Nothing to tell," she blubbered. "I hate everybody!"
 "Oh, no, Judith—you don't hate me! Sweetest, dearest girl, let me tell you what it is! You're killing yourself with all this work, and with trying to pretend you're gay, and having a good time, and all that. Judith, do stop crying, and you'll break my heart! I know what it is—you love me and I love you. I love you, God knows, more than I can ever say. We're trying to live an impossible life, and that's why you say it's a horrible world. It isn't a perfectly beautiful world. Oh, Judith, do give up this foolish, idiotic, utterly impossible life!"

 The crisis passed. Judith's sobs grew less and less violent. Pushing Alan away from her, she got up and went to the tall, walnut-framed mirror that hung between the two windows. Taking out her powder puff, she began to wipe away the tear marks that had made havoc of her face.
 She laughed hysterically.
 "I'm all stripes! What a sight! I'm a fool—that's what I am!"
 "No, Judith—you are the real Judith when you cry and show that you are unhappy," said Alan passionately. His eyes dwelt hungrily on her droll, girlish little face. "You are only a sham when you pretend you are having a good time."
 "I don't pretend!" she exclaimed. "I work hard, let me tell you. That's why I broke down just now. I'm dog tired."
 "Judith, don't you at least owe me the truth?"
 "It is the truth."
 "No, it isn't. The truth is that I love you and you love me."
 "I don't!"
 "Yes, you do. You ought to let me tell Clarissa that I only care for her as a friend, and that you and I love each other and want to get married. You know as well as I do that she'd much rather know; and then it would be a beautiful world."

 Judith had been fighting for self-possession while he was speaking. Now she stood, carefully using the powder puff, her face somewhat restored, her features composed. Only in the pansy eyes still lingered the mistiness of those heart-broken tears.
 "Now, listen, sonny," she said, in a voice that was intended to be very matter of fact. "We'll never talk about this again. I'm not leading an idiotic and impossible life. I'm working very hard. I'm trying to be a dancer, and I'm told I have a good chance."
 "I was silly to cry, but I'm tired, and I've been walking fast, and it's beastly hot. But this is what I want to say—once and for all: If you were to tell Chummy everything, and she were to beg me on her knees to marry you—that's what she'd do, bless her heart—I wouldn't—I wouldn't—I wouldn't! You can't make me see that black's white. I know that Chummy loves you, and I've made up my mind that Chummy's going to be happy, and—goodness me, haven't we said all this before a hundred times?"

But Alan's eager, ardent eyes were looking into hers. He came and held her hands, and his voice thrilled her through and through. He seemed to feel that if he fought it out today he would win.
 "Judith, darling Judith, you're all wrong! Clarissa can never be happy with me. How could she? I don't love her—not like that. She's the dearest, best girl in the world, and I can't say how I admire her. I'd do anything to make up to her for those lost years; but it's not right. It's not fair, to marry her. It's cheating her—can't you see that?"
 "Rubbish!" cried Judith. "Are you such a rotten actor as all that?"
 "That seemed to madden him. He caught her in his arms, crushed her close, and kissed her with wild and desperate passion.
 "You want to drive me mad!" he murmured. "I won't let you! I've got you, and I'll keep you in spite of yourself."
 Judith fought her way out of his arms. Her limbs failed her, and she clung to a chair, trembling. She was white to the lips, but her eyes were full of a starry shine. Heaven knew it was no good pretending she didn't love him—after that!
 Suddenly she listened, open-mouthed, and then turned to Steyne a face tragically alert.
 "It's Chummy!" she whispered. "I hear her on the stairs. For Heaven's sake, don't look like that!"
 In another moment the door opened and Clarissa came in. She looked full of energy and life. There was amazing vitality in her face, in spite of its pale coloring. She flushed with gladness at the sight of Alan.
 He explained rather hurriedly about having let his house in Maine and asked her to dine with him at Gino's. She accepted happily, and turned to Judith.
 "Judith must come, too, Alan—on your first night back!"
 "Sorry, angel," said Judith very decidedly. "I've such a rotten headache. Mr. Steyne was just lecturing me for working too hard. Cheek, I call it!"
 Alan, whose nerves were all on edge, only wanted to get away. He was sure that Clarissa had noticed nothing. Judith was superb, and he supposed he had played up to her.
 As a matter of fact, Clarissa had sensed something unusual. When Steyne had gone she looked anxiously at her friend.
 "Judith, did Alan offend you? I do hope not. You look—I don't know—unhappy. I'm afraid you may think that he's interfering. I know that he thinks it wise for you to do about so much with Mr. Gideon, and perhaps he was talking about that. You see, dear, men do know the world better than—"

 "Oh, Chummy, I'm sick to death of hearing that!" Judith interrupted rather wildly. "I don't care if they do. I can mind my own business, and I say let them mind theirs. I hate Mr. Gideon and the whole lot of them!"
 With that she flung herself out of the room.
 Chummy was decidedly wistful and preoccupied that evening. Steyne was all in agony lest she should suspect what had really passed between himself and Judith. He would have told her, if Judith had allowed him. That would have been fair and honorable, and he was sure it would have been for her happiness, as well as theirs; but the thought that she might find out was hateful. It galled him beyond bearing. It would make him seem low and mean, like being discovered in an intrigue, and by this splendid girl with her noble nature and her faithful heart.
 But he need not have feared, for Chummy had not made the discovery he dreaded. She merely saw that Judith was unhappy about something or other. She jumped at a conclusion, not altogether erroneous which she imparted to Alan.
 "I believe Judith has quarrelled with Mr. Gideon. This evening she said she hated him."
 "This, at least, was good news. As the meal proceeded, they both tried to cheer up. Afterward, at the Cafe Turc, Bastien Dumont joined them and made things easier.
 There happened to come in that night a man who had been in the South Seas for some years. He had left America just before Steyne, and they had been great friends. He had given up painting, and had become one of the foremost novelists of the day.
 As was usual in that unconventional crowd, there was a great deal of moving about from table to table, and Chummy and Bastien found themselves alone at theirs for a few moments. Steyne had been drawn into a heated argument at the big table opposite, where the eager faces of the disputants were all but blotting out by clouds of smoke.
 Chummy suddenly asked the young artist a question.
 "Bastien, I wonder why I should remember you best of them all during these years! You have always seemed a real person to me."
 Dumont did not think the subject a safe one, so he brushed the question aside but in doing so he made an unfortunate admission.
 "My dear girl, you can't account for these things. When you come to think of it, why didn't you know Alan when he first came back?"

I have fed a choice lot of young Hereford cattle on grain and cake that I am selling to the local markets. My meat is killed and cooled at the Ward Packing Plant and goes direct to the local markets fresh and tender with all the flavor of good beef. This saves myself and eliminates the middleman . . . the big packing houses, railroads, etc.

The next time you buy meats ask for some of this superior quality, young home-killed beef. I have sold this beef to the following markets.

PAMPA GUNS COMING HOME FROM TOURNEY; TEAM MADE GOOD SHOWING AT DENVER

The Pampa Guns were eliminated 7 to 3 by the Legion Canaries of Sioux Falls, S. D., in the Denver baseball tournament. The Pampans lost their first tournament game to Ponca City, Okla., 9 to 8. In their second game they eliminated the M. & O. Cigarmen of Denver, 5 to 3.

The Guns are expected to arrive home today or tomorrow, although some of them may stay until Sunday when the championship game will be played. The Pampa team was the sixth to be eliminated from further tournament play. The favorites are Ponca City and the Kari-Keen club of Sioux City, Ia. Yesterday the latter club defeated the Pearly-Wigley team of Denver, which won the championship last year.

Although the Guns entered the tournament with as good batters and fielders as the best of them, lack of an adequate pitching staff handicapped them. Their first hard luck came when Vic Fraser, formerly pitcher for the Dallas Steers, did not report after he had promised to come. It was too late for the Guns to get another pitcher.

Their chance of winning the tournament slipped out of their grasp in their first game when Ponca City staged a comeback in the ninth inning scoring three runs to win the game. Haddock allowed 18 hits in this game and any team that can hold 18 hits down to 9 scores must do some remarkable fielding.

The wonder is not that the Guns were eliminated but that they stayed as long as they did. Considering their opponents and their own pitching staff, they made a fine showing. Pampa was well represented at the Denver tournament. Pampa business men contributed approximately $800 to send the Guns to Denver and while they are well as fans may be disappointed that the Guns did not win, it is to the credit of the Pampa team that it finished ahead of five other teams. The Denver Post described the Pampa-Ponca City and the Pampa-M. & O. games as the most thrilling of the tournament.

The Guns are scheduled to play several games after they come back home. They have games matched with the Bloomer girls team of Wichita, Kans., and two Texas league clubs.

After winning the Amarillo tournament, the Guns came back to Pampa and made preparations to compete in the Denver contest. "Diamond" Sam Fenberg personally conducted a financial drive, assisted by "Rusty" Cahill, which netted $810. As the Guns were without a business manager, and as Mr. Fenberg had been an enthusiastic supporter of the team throughout the season, the Guns drafted him to manage the team at Denver. Seventeen players accompanied him.

Pampa received a huge amount of publicity in the tournament. The entry of the Pampa team in the tournament was heralded with a "streamer" across the sport page of the Denver Post. Every game that Pampa played was similarly featured.

Harvesters Are Eager To Start Football Training

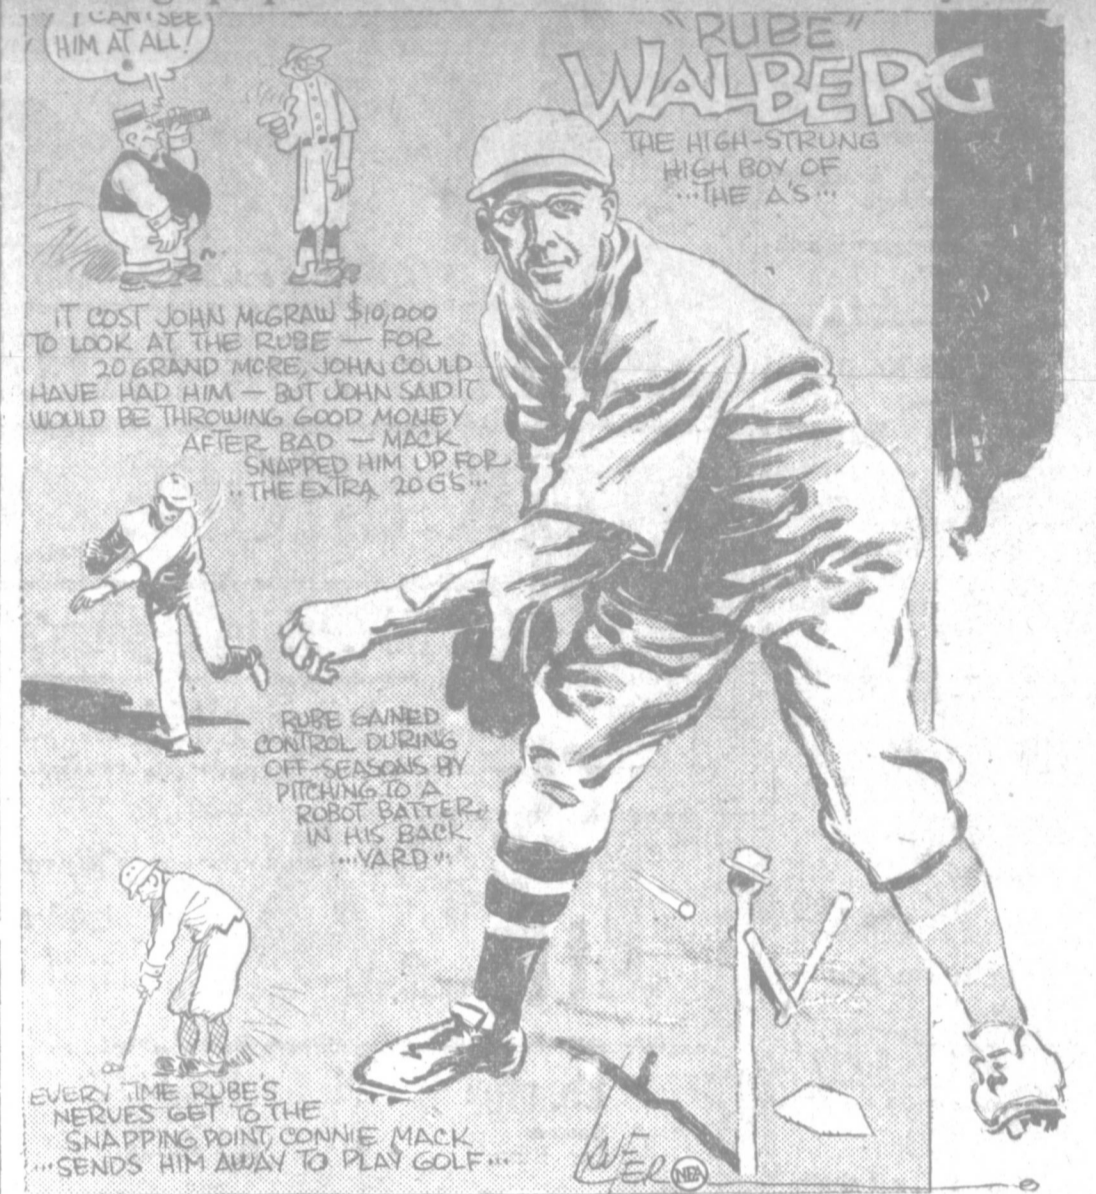

Don Saulsbury, re-elected football captain, and forty Harvesters and near Harvesters answered Coach Oodus Mitchell's call for a grid pow-wow last night.

It was something of a reunion for the huskies, and they made fast talk and compared biceps and tan. The regulars looked better than ever and a lot of the second string Guerrillas had put on weight and looked ready for heavy duty. Quite a number of the lads could not be present, but they sent word that they would be in camp when it opens at the Mel Davis ranch August 20.

There isn't going to be any loafing in Central high grid circles this season. Take a glimpse at this schedule:

- September 7—Spur high here.
 - September 13—to be scheduled.
 - September 19—Perryton high here.
 - September 26—Lubbock high at Lubbock.
 - October 4—Canyon high here.
 - October 11—Amarillo high at Amarillo.
 - October 18—Childress here unless that team decides to accept the open date of November 11.
 - October 25—Plainview high here.
 - November 1—Vernon high at Vernon.
 - November 8—Electra high at Electra.
 - November 11—Childress, tentative, or open.
 - November 21—Wichita Falls here.
 - November 27—Quanah here.
- This schedule is the best that Pampa could secure in her first year of Class A competition. It is very hard, but many of the games will be played here. Lubbock's Plainsmen, first hurdle the Harvesters will have to tackle, will be ranked with the best in West Texas, and there are few Amarilloans who rate very high the Sandies' chances of turning back Lubbock this season. Only three Plainsmen were graduated and that leaves one of the finest potential outfits in the state, if the dope means anything. The Harvesters will play the best of the Class B teams as well as the Class A regulars. Perryton and Canyon are always dangerous.

Brushing up Sports - - - - - By Laufer

Football interest in Pampa is expected to be whetted by the Class A schedule and bringing of big teams here. The bleachers will have to be enlarged to handle the crowds which will be needed to make the season a financial success. The city's fighting youngsters will need a world of community support in their first season in the big conference of high schools.

The Harvester regulars to be available include Captain Don Saulsbury, who will not likely have a peer in this district at the fullback position, Jim Ayres, Albert Lard, Ray Weedman, John Pafford, Gerdis Schmidt, Loyd Moore, Dick Benton, Ray Chastain, and Ralph Poe. Jam, basketball star, will be out and should prove useful. Many of the Guerrillas will be used, beyond a doubt, for they are fighting youngsters and are taking on weight and football sense. Spring training did a lot for them.

Among others at the pow-wow last night were Sam Turner, Norvell Stevens, Joe Kahl, Harry A. Nelson, Walter Walker, Bill Barnett, Louis

PHILLIES HIT HARD TO WIN OVER ROBINS

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer

Philadelphia's National league club, one of the most powerful arrays of sluggers in the National league, has been floundering through the season going from bad to worse as pitchers failed to hold the rival batters in check, but every so often, the Phillies burst out with an exhibition of hitting that holds forth more than one ray of hope for their fans.

It was a rather dismal crowd that assembled at Baker bowl yesterday to watch the Phillies swing their bats against the league leading Brooklyn Robins with every prospect of meeting their twelfth straight defeat. Things were different at the end, for the Phillies gave an effective demonstration of why they are leading the National league in hitting and came out with a 12 to 7 triumph. They got a few "breaks" in ending their losing streak, for Ray Phelps, who started for Brooklyn, was hurt in the second inning and Fred Heimach had to come into the game just in time to meet a five-run rally in the third. Philadelphia proved in the next inning that this burst of scoring was not a fluke by scoring five more times to clinch the victory, and won the game with Lester Sweetland, a "cousin" of the Brooklyn team, pitching the entire distance.

To the Phillies, the victory was a bit of encouragement, but it was a rather serious affair for the Robins. Instead of increasing their lead over the Chicago Cubs, who again were idle along with Cincinnati, the margin was reduced to two games. Likewise the New York Giants, who seem to be threatening the leaders in a serious way, made a big gain. The Giants blasted out 20 hits against the Boston Braves and won an 11 to 5 decision. It placed them five games behind the leaders and only three back of Chicago.

The Pittsburgh Pirates did still better with their third straight one-run triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals and their fifth successive victory. They finally moved out of the second division into a tie with the Cards for fourth place as Lucky French won his own game with a double in the ninth inning that drove in the deciding run of a 4 to 3 game.

With five games on the card, the American league had one of its days when pitching counted heavily and batting comparatively little. Wes Ferrell of Cleveland and Ted Lyons of Chicago were the outstanding mound performers, each winning his 17th victory of the season. Ferrell had a great duel with Sorrell and Cantrell of Detroit and finally triumphed, 5 to 3, as Eddie Morgan hit his 21st home run of the season with two out and one on base in the ninth inning.

Lyons held the St. Louis Browns to four hits in the second game of a double header and won it 1 to 0, after Garland Braxton had pitched Chicago to a 10 to 2 victory in the first. Lyons scored the game's only run, taking advantage of two St. Louis errors and the only extra base hit of the game, a double by Watwood, for an unearned tally. Dick Coffman also gave but four hits.

George Earnshaw of Philadelphia pitched another four-hit game against Washington, but he developed a streak of wildness in the ninth inning and Mose Grove had to come to his rescue to give the Athletics a 4 to 3 victory and place them eight games ahead of their nearest rivals. The pitchers were about as bad as all the rest in Boston where the New York Yankees downed the Red Sox, 14 to 13, in a game packed full of hits and errors. Lou Gehrig's 33rd home run made with the bases full in the seventh inning gave the Yanks the decision although they were out-hit, 17 to 12, and made seven of the game's 13 errors.

CUBS BACK AT TOP AFTER STEERS LOSE

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer

Lanky Bill Harris regained his winning stride last night and the Waco Cubs bobbed back into the Texas league leadership by trouncing the Dallas Steers, 15 to 2, in the second game of their series at AKey park. By trimming the Mavericks which the Wichita Spuds were dropping their second in a row to Houston, the Cublets assumed a full game margin over the field.

Del Pratt's night hawks slugged three Dallas flingers for 15 hits, including homers by Piet and Munson, to run up their topheavy score, while the Steers could bunch their 10 knocks off Harris in only two rounds. Harris struck out six.

Ralph Judd turned in another fine performance as the Buffs captured their second from the Spuds, 8 to 3. The Houston chunker gave up 10 hits, as compared to seven the Bisons were able to garner off Steengrafe, Vincent and White, but was far steeper in the pinches. The three Wichita hurlers issued a dozen passes to contribute to their downfall. Carey Selph, with a double and two singles, led the winners' assault.

After dropping their first six appearances under the floodlights, the San Antonio Indians finally came through with a 6 to 1 victory over Fort Worth, squaring their series. Cotley, recent addition to the Injun staff, limited the Panthers to six hits and blanked them after the opening round. Koti hit a homer for the losers in the third.

The luckless Shreveport Sports barely held on to fifth place as they caught another licking at Beaumont, 10 to 9. Scoring six times in the second inning, the Louisianaans had every reason to believe they had broken their losing streak, but the Shippers kept pecking away until they finally went into the lead in the sixth. Mueller smacked two triples and two doubles for the Sports, while Bouten, with four singles in four trips, was high man for the winners.

Babe Is Happy While Parentage Is In Wrangle

Although he has not seen the woman who declares she is his mother since Tuesday noon, the 8-month old baby boy whose parentage Judge Clifford Braly of the 114th district court said he would decide Saturday morning, is faring splendidly in a top-floor room of a local hotel, oblivious of the wrangle that is being made for his possession.

The only thing, according to Miss Ruth Vance, Kansas City nurse who will have charge of him until the custody hearing, is that curious persons who "want to see him" prevent him from taking his nap. Also, he is perfectly willing to be entertained by anybody, including the porters.

A number of women who saw the boy "fell for him" to such an extent that they have already made requests to adopt him should his name prove to be James Worley, as Miss Woodson, Kansas City juvenile officer, insists, and not H. C. Prince, Jr., as Mrs. Lillian Prince, who claims she is his natural mother, declares.

Mrs. Prince the plaintiff in an alimony suit which came to an abrupt end Tuesday afternoon when the defendant, H. C. Prince, drilling contractor, introduced testimony to prove that the baby was adopted at a Kansas City maternity hospital in December, 1929. After her attorney withdrew from the case a habeas corpus hearing was held to dispose of the child. Mrs. Prince was not present at the hearing but was represented by her attorneys.

Miss Prince testified that the disputed baby resembles its mother—not Mrs. Prince. "I was present when he was born," she stated. "I know his mother well and the baby his big blue eyes just like his mother."

Mrs. Prince testified in the alimony suit that the baby was born to her December 22, 1929, in Kansas City. She also stated that she adopted a baby at the hospital for her sister-in-law, Mrs. P. T. Moore. She said her relative now has the adopted baby and that it will be brought into court. Mrs. Prince further testified that she paid the attending physician $100 not to file a birth certificate.

SOCIETY NEWS

Forty And Eight Takes Over Rink

The 40 & 8 branch of the American Legion has taken full management of the Alamo rink, located on West Foster, for the next two months, and has arranged to have dances at the rink every Saturday night.

Music will be furnished by Dutch Campbell's 9-piece orchestra from Amarillo. Admission will be $1.50 per couple. On the other nights of each week, the place will be open for skating.

Among interesting attractions that will be staged at the rink during the next two months are races, a carnival, block parties, polo games, and indoor baseball.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom E. Rose and their children, Virginia, Rex, and Tom, Jr., are in Colorado Springs for an extended visit, after spending a week in Estes Park.

Hoo-Hoo Club To Hear Crosby

An interesting meeting of the Hoo Hoo club has been arranged for Monday, August 4, when H. C. Crosby of the Kansas City office of the National Lumber Manufacturing association will address the club members and oil company superintendents in a get-together meeting at the Schneider hotel Monday evening at 7:45 o'clock.

Mrs. H. C. Richmond and daughters, Harriett and Jeanne, are to leave today for their home in Omaha, Neb., after a week's visit with Mrs. Richmond's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Mullen.

Twelve pairs of new uniforms for employes were received by the Addison & Gunn Tire company Thursday. The uniforms are of white duck and the lettering on the back reads "Goodyear—phone 333" with the Goodyear emblem; the letters are yellow with a blue border. Initials of the employe and the Goodyear flag are placed on the front of the uniform.

Miss Audrey Watson of Oklahoma City has taken employment with the Pampa Business Mens association.

Miss Katherine Ferguson has returned from a trip to Oklahoma City where she has been visiting relatives.
