Youth remains in critical condition
 PAMPA — Tommy Weeks, the 8-year-old boy who was struck by a car Tuesday while riding his bike, remained in critical condition today at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. However, a family spokesman said the little boy is "doing better" today and said the breathing tube has been removed.

Texas suffers largest job loss in a decade
 AUSTIN (AP) — Ripple effects of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks contributed to the loss of 27,800 Texas jobs in October, the largest monthly job loss in more than a decade, the Texas Workforce Commission reported Thursday.

Major airlines based in Texas, including American and Continental, have laid off thousands of workers since the attacks.

A slowdown in air and automobile travel also hurt the state's oil and gas industry that was forced to lower prices, the commission reported.

October's unemployment rate was 5.2 percent, up from 5 percent in September and 4 percent a year ago.

No deaths were reported to The Pampa News today.

Courthouse work reveals ceiling 'gem'

By NANCY YOUNG
 Managing Editor

Crown jewel of the restored Gray County Courthouse is destined to be the original ceiling in the district courtroom.

"The most significant gem uncovered to date has been the original ceiling in the district courtroom," said Project Coordinator John Kiehl.

"For many years, it had been covered by an eight-foot drop ceiling," said Kiehl. "When this facade was removed, workers found that the original ceiling was in remarkably good condition."

The detail in the work reveals the architecture of the time period of the courthouse construction. Kiehl said the historic ceiling will be restored to its original appearance.

Perhaps the most colorful

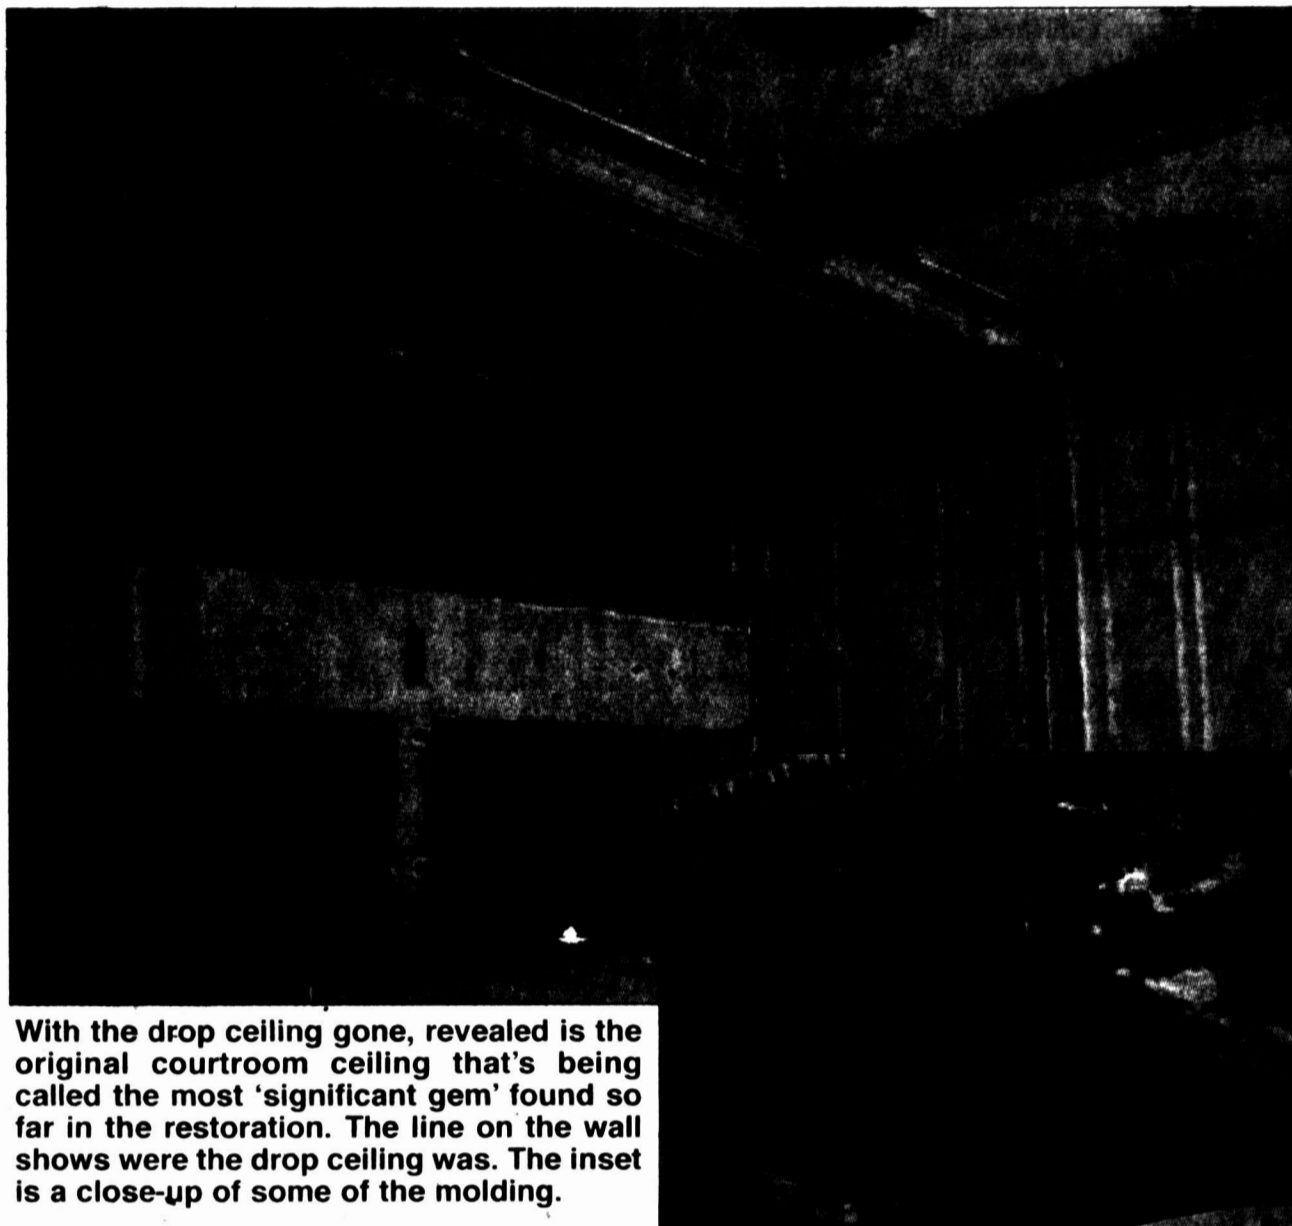

'find' during the demolition work was a circa 1920s 'gentleman's magazine.' Kiehl said the magazine was found behind the walls by a construction worker during the demolition process.

Much progress has been made on the project, said Kiehl. He said much of what has been done is not really obvious to the casual eye.

"The building has been cleared of both asbestos and most of the piping, partitions and drop ceilings that will not be reused," he said.

Kiehl hopes the three-step approach which Gray County is using will avoid the possibility of doing unnecessary work and make the most of the assets that still remain in the courthouse. He said this approach will assist the county's overall project cost to be as low as possible.

With the drop ceiling gone, revealed is the original courtroom ceiling that's being called the most 'significant gem' found so far in the restoration. The line on the wall shows where the drop ceiling was. The inset is a close-up of some of the molding.

Children's book authors pay visit to local schools

Popular children's book authors, Bill and Carol Wallace, visited students at elementary schools in Pampa this week.

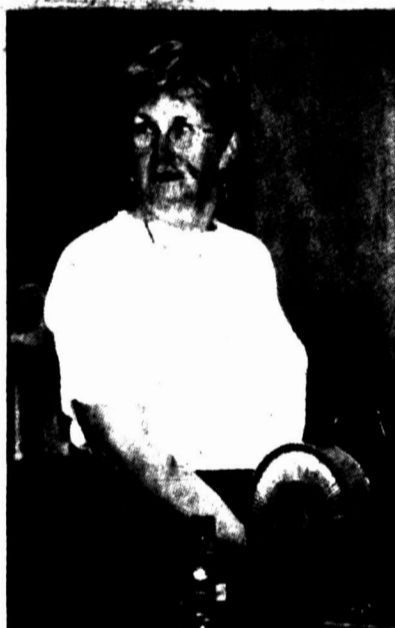

Judy Hansen, elementary library coordinator, invited the couple to Pampa after seeing Bill Wallace at the Texas Library Association's spring conference. Hansen said she knew students would love to hear him tell about his books, his teaching experiences, and his love for writing. Carol Wallace, his wife and co-author, has recently retired from teaching and is joining her husband for the Pampa presentations.

Bill plans to speak to third through fifth grades, while Carol will present a slide show for first and second graders.

PEDC to meet Will elect officers, hear about duties

City Attorney Don Lane will meet with the Pampa Economic Development Corporation board members at 7:30 a.m. Monday, Nov. 19, to outline the duties and responsibilities the board members will have since Pampa residents voted to dissolve the entity.

The meeting will be in Conference Room 203 at Pampa City Hall, 201 W. Kingsmill.

The corporation will continue to exist with a functioning board until all current debt is paid. However, the Corporation will not be allowed to undertake any new projects.

Once the debt is retired, PEDC assets, including any sales tax balance, will be transferred to the city, according to Alfredo Cardenas of the Texas Comptroller's office.

Election of officers on the PEDC board will also be held at the meeting as the board is organized.

Three new board members were appointed by the Pampa City Commission at their Tuesday meeting. They are Gary Sutherland, former city commissioner; Steve Phillips, president and ceo of Pertex

Baylor grads, other aid workers released from Taliban captivity

By ANGELA K. BROWN
 Associated Press Writer

WACO, Texas (AP) — For nearly three months, people gathered day and night in a small room at Antioch Community Church, praying and crying for two of their own jailed in Afghanistan after being accused of preaching Christianity.

But church members cheered, clapped and hugged each other Wednesday after learning that Dayna Curry, 30, and Heather Mercer, 24, and six other aid workers were freed from a squalid Afghan prison.

"I came here to thank God because I've been begging and begging that they would be set free," said Andrea Hardwicke, who often went to the prayer room during breaks from college classes or on sleepless nights. "This has taught me that God answers prayers."

Senior pastor Jimmy Seibert said thousands of people across the world had prayed for Curry and Mercer, both graduates of the Baptist-affiliated Baylor University in Waco.

"No prayer has been in vain; every prayer has been worth it," Seibert said. "God has changed our lives forever."

The Pentagon said the aid workers were taken by helicopter to Pakistan and apparently were in good health. The Taliban had agreed to release the workers but left them behind as they fled from Northern Alliance rebels, Bush administration officials said.

Tilden Curry was standing in line at a church supper in Nashville on Wednesday when he heard his daughter was free.

Bengé suffered from smoke inhalation after the two went inside to see if anyone remained in the house. Bengé was treated and released at Pampa Regional Medical Center.

People in the news ...

LONDON (AP) — Although "Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone" is expected to be one of the highest-grossing films of all time, Steve Kloves, who wrote the screenplay, isn't setting his sights too high.

"I have the lowest bar of expectation of anybody," he told The Associated Press by telephone from his home in Los Angeles. "I'll just be happy if somebody is seen milling about the theater."

The highly anticipated film opens Friday.

Kloves comes by his caution honestly, having until now never been part of a blockbuster movie. He wrote and directed "The Fabulous Baker Boys" and then "Flesh and Bone," and got an Oscar nomination earlier this year for adapting the Michael Chabon novel "Wonder Boys."

And yet, says Kloves, who is 41, "It's been said about my work both as a positive and a negative that it has a European tone to it, which usually equals no box office — so whether they're criticizing or complimenting, what it means is no one showed up."

This time around, his challenge as an American was to do justice to Englishwoman J.K. Rowling's publishing sensation, so that people wish one another a "Happy Christmas," not a "Merry one, and refer to trips "to hospital" instead of "the hospital," in accordance with English parlance.

"I have an absolute love for the way people speak," says Kloves, whose first film-writing credit was the Sean Penn-Elizabeth McGovern movie, "Racing With the Moon," in 1984.

"From the time I was a young boy, if I was in an airport or a coffee shop, I always loved it when I would hear somebody speak in an exotic or interesting way."

That explains, he says, why he got "Happy Christmas" right: "There's no way I would make a mistake on that."

Her Majesty the Queen," said New York City police Lt. Frank Dwyer, who made the presentation on Wednesday.

In the days after the attacks, support for the United States was offered by the queen, Prime Minister Tony Blair and private British citizens.

"The queen said Detective Vigiano was an incredible individual," Dwyer said.

LONDON (AP) — Mick Jagger has taken a good-natured swipe at Britain's royal family for failing to award him any of the nation's coveted royal honors.

While Paul McCartney and Elton John sport the knighted title of "sir" and the Beatles were all declared members of the Order of British Empire decades ago, Jagger remains title-less — an apparent irritation.

In a soon-to-be-released documentary previewed Tuesday, Jagger, 58, jokes about the matter shortly before an encounter with Prince Charles.

In an exaggerated upper-class English accent, he holds a mock conversation with himself: "Is it true that you haven't got anything at all? That is rather odd, isn't it?" "Being Mick" will air in Britain and the United States (on ABC-TV) on Thanksgiving. It will coincide with the release of Jagger's new solo album, "Goddess in the Doorway."

Bono, Lenny Kravitz, Pete Townshend and Wyclef Jean — all contributors to the album — appear in the documentary.

It also gives an inside look at Jagger's new life as a film producer, capturing his struggles to find the right ending to "Enigma" following several test screenings.

"I like to make intelligent films, but they are the most difficult ones to make because people want explosions," Jagger says in the documentary. "Bombs ... are just not my thing."

SAWAHATOSA, Wis. (AP) — Sarah, Duchess of York, says she feels at her exuberant best in the United States and would relocate in a heartbeat — except for her children.

"I think it's important for my children to be brought up in the country where their grandmother is sovereign, and I would never leave them," she said Tuesday. "I like to spend a lot of time here, but I don't think I'll ever move here because of them. Otherwise, I'd be here in a shot."

The former Sarah Ferguson married Britain's Prince Andrew in 1986; they divorced 10 years later. They are the parents of two children, Princess Beatrice and Princess Eugenie.

The duchess, who was at the Mayfair Mall to promote Wedgewood china, told the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel that working in Britain would be viewed as trying to take advantage of her royal name.

"I find it so interesting that when I arrive here, the American people give me my spirit back," she said. "When I get back to Britain with the same exuberance that I have here, people try to put me down or they try to make me something that I am not."

Aid workers in Afghanistan airlifted by U.S. copters

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Eight foreign aid workers held captive for three months were freed from a squalid Afghan prison during an anti-Taliban uprising and airlifted to safety Thursday by U.S. military helicopters.

The aid workers — two Americans, two Austrians and four Germans — landed at Chaklali air base on the outskirts of the Pakistani capital of Islamabad, and all appeared to be in good health.

"It's like a miracle," Georg Taubmann, one of the freed Germans, said upon his arrival at the German Embassy in Islamabad.

The aid workers for Shelter Now International, a German-based group, had been accused by the Taliban of preaching Christianity, a serious offense under the Taliban's harsh Islamic rule.

As the Taliban were fleeing the Afghan capital Kabul early Tuesday, the eight thought they were about to be freed. Instead, the Taliban hastily put them in a vehicle and began driving them south.

The Taliban "put us all into a steel container," Taubmann recounted.

On Tuesday morning, the six women and two men were removed and placed in a fetid jail in Ghazni, about 50 miles south of Kabul. Taubmann said it was the fifth and worst prison they were held in by the Taliban.

In addition to Taubmann, the other aid workers are: Americans Heather Mercer and Dayna Curry; three Germans, Margrit Stebnar, Kati Jelinek and Silke Duerrkopf; and Australians Diana Thomas and Peter Bunch.

Tilden Curry was standing in line at a church supper Wednesday when he heard his daughter was free. Dayna Curry called her father later and they spoke for about 15 minutes.

"This is fantastic. It's a great night for us," Mercer's stepfather, Delmer Oddy, said from his home in Lewiston, N.Y.

Trail of violence leads Rudd to death row

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — It was three weeks after his 18th birthday when a trail of violence that began seven years earlier for Emerson Rudd culminated with a murder that earned him a trip to death row.

"He's an interesting situation because his criminality started so young — at age 11," says John Kreuzot, the former assistant district attorney in Dallas County who prosecuted Rudd for capital murder. "He'd been handled by police agencies, convicted of juvenile offenses, been to (Texas Youth Commission), had a lot of group therapy, had a lot of counseling."

A jury took only 12 minutes to convict Rudd of killing a Dallas restaurant manager in 1988. When the same jury decided he should be put to death, Rudd became the youngest person from Dallas County to be condemned.

Thursday night he was set to become the second condemned killer in as many evenings to receive lethal injection in Texas. Wednesday night, Jeffery Tucker was put to death for gunning down a 65-year-old Granbury man while trying to rob him of his truck 13 years ago.

Rudd, in a death row interview last week, took some responsibility for the shooting death of Steve Morgan, 23.

Bush, Putin eat, talk but still differ on missile defense

CRAWFORD, Texas (AP) — After a festive barbecue, intimate breakfast and one-on-one talks in between, President Bush and Russian President Vladimir Putin were wrapping up their three-day summit with differences over missile defense an "enduring issue."

The two presidents and their wives were visiting the high school in this one-stoplight hamlet Thursday before Putin and wife Lyudmila head on to New York City.

At Crawford High, students were given the rare opportunity to question the leaders whose talks at Bush's ranch and earlier in Washington left unanswered questions about the fate of Bush's missile defense plans.

Despite the snag over how those plans will proceed, White House officials said U.S.-Russia talks overall remained firmly on track, helped along by the wealth of personal time that the presidents shared on Bush's secluded, 1,600-acre spread.

With Putin riding shotgun, Bush took the wheel of a pickup truck and chauffeured his guests around the ranch for 45 minutes as soon as the Putins arrived Wednesday.

Thunderstorms chased their picnic dinner into one of the protected breezeways of the Bush ranch home, where a country-western swing band accompanied cowboys serving guacamole, mesquite-smoked beef and pecan pie.

Digs not quite presidential for news conference

CRAWFORD, Texas (AP) — It was a brief, hasty detour from summit business: President Bush in a messy two-car garage, announcing that foreign aid workers held hostage in Afghanistan had been airlifted to freedom.

The quickie news conference at his ranch had none of the hallmarks of a presidential event. Water cooler jugs lined the garage walls, oil stained the cement floor, and the spot where Bush should stand was marked by an aide's muddy shoe before duct tape could be found to lay a more proper "X."

His backdrop: dark thunderstorms outside the flung-open garage doors.

A car outside started with a roar nearly drowning out the second half of Bush's remarks, which interrupted the indoor barbecue that Bush and his wife, Laura, were throwing back at the house for Russian President Vladimir Putin.

In the "great room" of the Bushes' low-slung ranch house, the Austin country-western swing band Hands Band had the 27 VIP dinner guests rocking.

Dan Fried, the National Security Council's director of European affairs, taught his boss, national security adviser Condoleezza Rice, how to do a traditional Texas line dance called the Cotton-Eyed Joe.

One-time hippie guru Ira Einhorn granted new trial

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Former counterculture guru and longtime fugitive Ira Einhorn is to get another trial in the 1977 murder of his girlfriend, but it is unclear who his lawyer will be.

On Monday, lawyers will meet with Common Pleas Judge D. Webster Keough to determine whether Einhorn can afford a lawyer. His longtime attorney Norris Gelman said he will no longer represent Einhorn because of an already-heavy caseload and the fact that Einhorn is broke.

"He can't afford me, no ... I don't think he can afford anybody," Gelman said, citing a $907 million wrongful death judgment against him from Maddux's family.

Assistant District Attorney Joel Rosen, the lead prosecutor at Einhorn's 1993 trial in absentia. He plans to serve the same role for Einhorn's retrial. Rosen said Wednesday that getting a new lawyer for Einhorn will delay the start of the retrial "at least a few months."

Einhorn, 61, jumped bail and fled the United States in 1981, shortly before his trial was set to begin. He was convicted in absentia in 1993 and sentenced to life in prison for the murder of Holly Maddux, 30, formerly of Tyler, Texas. Her mummified remains were found stuffed in a steamer trunk in the couple's Philadelphia apartment 18 months after Einhorn said she went to the store and never returned.

Einhorn was apprehended June 13, 1997, at a converted windmill in the south of France.

Tiny 'smart bomb' can invade, kill cancer cells with radiation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A single atom of radioactive material in a microscopic cage can be injected into the body and act like a cancer "smart bomb," finding, invading and zapping tumor cells, according to laboratory studies that may lead soon to human trials, researchers say.

Dr. David A. Scheinberg of Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York said tests of the smart bomb technique in mice show that it selectively kills cancer cells and substantially prolongs the life of lab animals with tumors.

Friday night, cloudy. A 20 percent chance of showers. Lows around 50.

Rainfall measured 1.14 inches as of 6 a.m. today.

STATEWIDE — Strong thunderstorms dumped heavy rains on parts of Central Texas, where at least one tornado warning was issued.

Some roof damage was reported near Boerne and debris was spread across the city by high winds that also knocked down phone lines, blocking some roads. The warning for Kendall County, just northwest of the San Antonio area, ended early Thursday morning with no injuries.

Boerne Police dispatcher Norma Prendergast said one resident reported seeing a tornado, but that had not been confirmed.

Rainfall amounts up to two inches were measured in the area.

The large storm area dampened sections between Abilene and the Hill Country as an upper-level low pressure system remained anchored over the Southern Rockies.

Heaviest rain occurred from the Edwards Plateau and lower Trans Pecos region into portions of the Concho Valley and Permian Basin, including the Del Rio and San Antonio areas. Numerous showers moved from the Permian Basin through the South Plains into the Panhandle.

Early-morning temperatures ranged from the upper 40s in the Panhandle and far western mountains to 50s and 60s elsewhere, except for 70s along the coast.

Extremes were 46 degrees at Guadalupe Pass and 64 degrees at Killeen.

Other readings were 51 at Longview and 58 degrees at Childress.

Winds were generally from the east and northeast at 5 to 15 mph.

The National Weather Service issued a flash flood warning for Kendall and Bexar counties and a watch over the western third of the area through Thursday.

Daytime highs through Friday should range from the 50s and mid-60s to lower 70s, except for mid-40s in the Guadalupe Mountains and lower 70s along the Rio Grande.

Lows overnight were expected in the 40s and 50s in the north to near 60, except for 30s in the Guadalupe Mountains.

COURTHOUSE

The first two steps taken involve the removal of the asbestos found in the building and the demolition of most of the items (walls, piping, etc.) which will definitely not be a part of the completely restored courthouse.

Kiehl said the asbestos abatement work is generally the initial phase of any construction project. "This material has to be removed first so that it will not pose a health risk to the construction workers that will eventually be doing the restoration work," he said.

Abatement work, by law, has to be designed and carried out under the direction of a licensed environmental consultant, he said.

EcoSystems Environmental, Inc. of Carrollton was hired as the consultant for the project and worked closely with the architect, ArchiTexas, on this project.

"Abatement has been completed on schedule and the demolition project will probably be about two weeks ahead of schedule," said Kiehl.

At the last meeting of the commissioners court, he told them ArchiTexas is requesting the county do an analysis of the electrical wiring in the courthouse structure by tracing all of the electrical circuits throughout the building to determine their precise location and condition. If possible, he said, some of the existing conduit will be reused.

He said the electrical exploration work could probably be completed late November.

The consultant said conducting the analysis will prevent change-orders during the construction phase.

Kiehl said the drawings must first be approved by the commissioners court and then reviewed and approved by the Texas Historical Commission. The THC process will take approximately three to four weeks to complete.

"Once the THC approvals have been obtained, the county will be allowed to begin bidding the project. Given the scope of the project, this bidding phase may take five to six weeks to complete," said Kiehl.

If the bid process runs the full length, he said the commissioners court may be in a position to award the contract in late February or early March, 2002. Kiehl estimates the construction phase will take approximately one year to complete.

After the programs, the Wallaces will autograph the books that have been purchased by students and staff.

Bill taught fourth grade and then became a principal. He began writing books while still teaching, reading his stories to his students. His first book, "A Dog Called Kitty," won the Texas Bluebonnet Award, the Oklahoma Sequoyah Children's book Award and the Nebraska Golden Sower Award. He is one of only four authors to win the Texas

Bluebonnet Award twice, the second time for "Snot Stew."

After retiring from 26 years of teaching second grade, Carol came up with the idea for the first book that she and Bill would write together, "The Flying Flea, Callie and Me," from watching their cat irritate mockingbirds. They have since written four books together.

The couple visited students at Austin and Travis Elementary Schools on Tuesday, Nov. 13, and Wilson and Lamar Elementary Schools on Wednesday, Nov. 14.

Dayna Curry called her father later and they spoke for about 15 minutes.

"It was almost like a miracle," Tilden Curry said. "It could have gone the other way."

Dayna Curry said opposition forces had driven the Taliban out of an unidentified town and then set the workers free, according to her stepmother, Sue Fuller.

When U.S. helicopters arrived in darkness to pick them up, the group had to set their head coverings on fire to attract the pilot's attention, Fuller said.

Mercer's grandmother Norma Andersen said she was relieved to hear of the rescue.

Andersen said Mercer had sent daily e-mails from the schoolhouse where she taught orphans, writing that she had grown close to many Afghans and lamenting the living conditions under Taliban rule.

"She had a kindred spirit with the Afghan people. They were so destitute. She wanted to help," said Andersen, who lives in Youngstown, N.Y., and was at Walt Disney World on Wednesday to attend a convention with husband Carl.

From his home in Lewiston, N.Y., Mercer's stepfather, Delmer Oddy, said he couldn't talk long because he wanted to keep the phone lines open while he and Mercer's mother, Deborah Oddy, waited on a call from Islamabad.

"This is fantastic," he said. "It's a great night for us."

A service planned for next month in Mercer's hometown of Vienna, Va., has been changed from a prayer vigil for her release to a praise celebration, residents said.

Dayna Curry's mother, Nancy Cassell, and Mercer's father, John Mercer, have spent the past month in Pakistan waiting for the young women's release. They went to Afghanistan after their daughters' arrests, but were moved to Pakistan for their safety after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

Along with Curry and Mercer were Germans Silke Duerrkopf, George Taubmann, Margrit Stebnar and Kati Jelinek; and Australians Diana Thomas and Peter Bunch. They were all employees of the German-based Christian organization Shelter Now International.

Their trial concluded in September, but the Taliban Supreme Court last week indefinitely postponed the legal proceedings. Judges said they feared their anger at the United States over the relentless airstrikes would cloud their ability to make a fair ruling.

Seibert said both women knew the dangers but were drawn to Afghanistan out of their love for the poor.

"To them it was worth risking everything ... in order that people might be helped," Seibert said.

After howls of protest, San Francisco softens on fencing for off-leash dogs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco's parks department backed away from a plan to fence all canine play areas, an idea proposed after vicious attacks on two area residents and loudly protested by dog owners.

The new proposal would still restrict unleashed dogs to fenced areas at the vast majority of the city's parks. Bigger spaces, however, would use landscaping or paths to designate off-leash areas, and the largest parks would offer off-leash "trail and meadow experiences," parks spokeswoman Becky Ballinger said.

"We made a lot of compromises," Ballinger said Tuesday after a meeting to announce the revisions.

The parks department has sole authority to clarify how the city's long-ignored leash law is enforced over its 3,400 acres of parkland. The law requires dogs to be leashed except in 19 designated areas, but the animals run freely in most parks, and tickets are generally given only in response to complaints.

The original proposal to fence all play areas caused a citywide furor in June. Hundreds of people protested outside City Hall with their dogs, and angry letters appeared in local newspapers.

But proponents pointed to the maulings of Diane Whipple and Shawn Jones and said children need safe places to play. Whipple, 33, was killed in January by two mastiffs that lived with her neighbors. In June, three pit bulls attacked 11-year-old Shawn in nearby Richmond.

The parks department spent 300 hours studying more than 2,500 public comments before fashioning the new policy. It could go into effect as early as December.

A spokeswoman for the San Francisco Dog Owners' Group said the revamped policy was "not as much of a compromise as we would ultimately like to see."

"It's obvious they heard a great deal from the public that they didn't want fenced-in areas. I don't think they've put what they've heard into action," spokeswoman Laura Cavaluzzo said.

Parks officials had not yet determined how many off-leash areas the city would have under the new policy.

Long-lost Johnson tape transcript magazine feature

AUSTIN (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson's unique storytelling style and his memories of key moments in his presidency are highlighted in a long-lost tape recording transcript featured in the upcoming issue of Texas Monthly.

Johnson reflected on the 1960 presidential race, the John F. Kennedy assassination and Vietnam, among other subjects.

The magazine's December issue contains excerpts from a transcript of the recording found by LBJ Library director Harry Middleton, who is retiring in the next few months after 30 years in the job.

The recording took place on the one occasion Johnson allowed a tape recorder to run while he worked with aides on his memoirs after leaving the White House.

"People say there's nothing worse than Vietnam. Well, I think there are lots of things worse than Vietnam. World War III would be much worse," Johnson said, adding that he "constantly walked on eggs" to keep the peace with China and the Soviet Union.

"One misstep could have kicked off World War III. 'So help me God' were the happiest words I heard. When Nixon took the oath, I was no longer responsible for Vietnam or the Middle East," he said.

Johnson described the tragic moments after Kennedy was fatally shot in Dallas in 1963. But he also offered some funny anecdotes about the happy spurts during the Texas trip before Dallas.

At a stop in Fort Worth, Johnson explained, First Lady Jackie Kennedy didn't want to go to a certain breakfast gathering.

"Her stomach was just not conditioned to raucous Texans so early in the morning," he said.

Recalling his selection as Kennedy's running mate in 1960, Johnson spoke of then-House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, who at first didn't want Johnson to join the ticket and give up his Senate leadership.

"The vice president is generally like a Texas steer — he's lost his social standing in the society in which he resides," Johnson said.

Some al-Qaida leaders believed to be killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. warplanes destroyed a building in Afghanistan where top al-Qaida operatives were believed to have gathered, American officials said, as the Pentagon began to zero in on leaders of the terror network and its Taliban hosts.

The strikes also used missiles from a remote-controlled spy drone, a U.S. official said Wednesday, speaking on condition of anonymity. Although the building was destroyed in Tuesday's attack, American officials have not determined how many or which al-Qaida leaders were inside, the official said.

Texas Editorials

By The Associated Press

A sampling of editorial opinion around Texas:
 Austin American-Statesman on Phillips brings stability to court:

Texas Chief Justice Tom Phillips' decision to run for re-election next year is welcome news to those who look for stability and continuity from the state Supreme Court.

Phillips, who has served on the court since 1988, is unlikely to have any serious opposition in the Republican primary next year and has proven his ability to overwhelm Democratic opposition in two previous elections. He also has a statewide reputation and an intimidating campaign war chest to help return him as chief justice.

His decision was important because after several years with only periodic changes, the state's highest civil court is undergoing a major transition. Two justices left earlier this year, a third has been nominated for the federal bench and two others have announced they will not seek re-election when their terms are up at the end of next year.

With possibly five new justices on the nine-member court, Phillips' steady leadership, serious legal scholarship and good humor will be valuable commodities. While this page has not always agreed with the chief justice on issues both within and before the high court, it has never wavered in its respect for him.

Under Phillips' leadership, the Texas Supreme Court has recovered a reputation for professionalism badly battered by scandals and unprofessional conduct in the 1980s.

That restoration occurred even though the judges still must run for office in partisan elections and raise money from the lawyers and firms with cases before them — the same conditions that produced the earlier embarrassments. Phillips has vigorously opposed partisan elections.

Already exited from the court are Al Gonzales, now legal counsel to President George W. Bush, and the highly respected Greg Abbott, who resigned to run for attorney general. Justice Priscilla Owen has been nominated by Bush to serve on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, though she has not yet been confirmed by the Senate. Justices James Baker and Deborah Hankinson have said they will not seek re-election next year.

The court is periodically branded as an all-Republican club with a conservative, pro-business tilt, but it has been anything but ideologically pure and monochromatic. It has been home to a paraplegic, a former special education teacher, a Hispanic striver and now the first black justice, Wallace Jefferson. Jefferson was appointed by Gov. Rick Perry to replace Gonzales. Perry also appointed Xavier Rodriguez to succeed Abbott.

Texas' Supreme Court will look quite different a year from now, when voters choose new faces to replace the old. But Phillips' long service on the court and his highly personal brand of leadership will be a calming influence in this period of change.

Life, death and high-inside fastball

Terrifying. Menacing. That's how batters describe Arizona Diamondback pitcher Randy Johnson, who has hit 18 batters this year with pitches that cross home plate at almost 100 miles per hour.

Johnson and his teammate Curt Schilling assaulted New Yorkers recently, deliberately propelling potentially deadly missiles close to the heads of nine uniformed Yankees. The occasion, of course, was the World Series, which even under heavy security remained a festive event.

The sports pages related how the New Yorkers lost both games, managing only three hits against each of the power pitchers. But they and all the other batters who stand in against major league fastballers impress me. Since my own baseball career was like the state of man according to Thomas Hobbes — nasty, brutish and short — I'm no expert on this. But batting against a Johnson or a Schilling strikes me as not only a test of eye-hand coordination, but a feat of courage.

The natural tendency of a batter in such situations is to back away from the danger zone. If he does that, though, a good pitcher can throw over the outside of the plate and garner a strikeout. So a batter has to bully his emotions to get them to obey his will. And that's what all of us have to do in the face of anthrax-via-envelope terrorism.

Major League batters need to be aware of the facts. The chance of getting badly hurt by a fastball is small, and the prospect of death even more remote. In over a century of Major

Marvin Olasky
 Syndicated columnist

League Baseball, only one batter (Ray Chapman, in 1920) has been fatally beamed, and that incident came in the days before batting helmets.

We need to check the facts similarly concerning our current anthrax scare. The Philadelphia Inquirer provided a public service by comparing the total of three deaths from anthrax during the Oct. 6 to Oct. 26 period with deaths from other causes during an average three-week period. Over 20,000 die from smoking-related causes. Over 2,000 Americans die from auto accidents. Nearly 1,000 are murdered. Nearly 500 die from prescription-drug errors.

I don't want to ignore the sorrow of the anthrax deaths and the concern of those who have to stride up to the plate each day in Washington, aware that not a Schilling or a Johnson, but someone who wants to kill them is on the mound.

I also don't want to minimize the potential for much greater harm. Fully aerosolized, weapon-grade anthrax dispensed in a crowd is scary, because we might not know about the attack until weeks afterward, when infected people are already mortally diseased.

But let's realize that anthrax sent in envelopes is akin to a high inside fastball: There's generally time to react (in this case by taking antibiotics) and avoid a fatal beaming. With anthrax, we should not back up at the plate and become easy outs. Columnist Maureen Dowd, other journalists who have written panicky columns and some Washington politicians, as well, have all been easy outs.

The great biological warfare danger is yet to come. Smallpox has brought down civilizations in the past. Nearly 500 years ago, smallpox was unknown in the Americas, but Spanish conquistadors introduced it and the disease devastated both the Aztecs and the Incas. What is now Mexico had about 25 million residents when the Spanish arrived in 1518. A century later, the number was 1.6 million.

Every day that goes by without a report of smallpox or some other contagious disease unloosed is a day for rejoicing. Think about the unthinkable, and it's likely that a brain dwelling on destruction has thought about it first. So let's hold the scare headlines for what is really scary.

Just as New York gave us a lesson in how to respond to an attack like that of Sept. 11, so the New York Yankees, even in defeat, showed us how to hang in against ordinary baseballs. To very loosely paraphrase Shakespeare, "Better to have swung and missed than never to have swung at all." But maybe the better phrase to keep in mind is what God told Joshua: "Be strong and courageous."

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Nov. 15th, the 319th day of 2001. There are 46 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: Seventy-five years ago, on Nov. 15th, 1926, the National Broadcasting Co. debuted with a radio network of 24 stations.

On this date:

In 1777, the Continental Congress approved the Articles of Confederation, a precursor to the Constitution of the United States.

In 1806, explorer Zebulon Pike sighted the mountaintop now known as "Pikes Peak."

In 1889, Brazil's monarchy was overthrown.

In 1940, the first 75,000 men were called to armed forces duty under peacetime conscription.

In 1966, the flight of Gemini 12 ended successfully as astronauts James A. Lovell and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin Jr. splashed down safely in the Atlantic.

Let's beware of too much optimism ...

I fear the Pentagon might be making a mistake in its psychological warfare as applied to the home front:

Pentagon briefers are by nature inclined to always put the most optimistic slant on the subject. The small army of retirees who hire on as "consultants" to the TV folks (read that "on-camera commentators") are even worse in that regard. To hear some of these fellow geezers tell it, why, our boys are downright invincible. One even said we'd be finished by mid-November. Another said our guys were tougher and smarter than the Russians.

Well, what's the problem? Just this, as we should have learned from the Tet Offensive during the Vietnam War: If you sell the American people on the idea that this is a no-problem, we-got-it-won war and all of a sudden there is a military setback, the public and the media will overreact. And given the nature of war, there will almost surely be some setbacks. Even the best-trained, best-equipped soldiers in the world can run into bad luck or make a mistake. The main characteristic of war is uncertainty. What our leaders should be doing is lowering expectations by stressing how tough and how difficult it's going to be to accomplish our mission. If the mission is accomplished without a hitch, wonderful! You always want surprises to be happy surprises, not nasty ones. On the other hand, if there is a temporary setback, the public will have been prepared to accept it.

Charley Reese
 Syndicated columnist

Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld and President George W. Bush seem to understand that. They have spoken of a long struggle. Rumsfeld talked recently of what tough fighters the Taliban members are. It's the uniforms who tend to get the rah-rah syndrome.

It wasn't the Tet Offensive that turned American public opinion on the Vietnam War, it was shattered expectations. Militarily, the Tet Offensive was a disaster for the Viet Cong, which lost practically all of its men and its best officers. In short, militarily, it was victory for the Americans and the South Vietnamese.

Unfortunately, Americans had just been given one of those upbeat, optimistic briefings, leaving the impression that the war was practically won and the boys would be home soon. A few days later, they turned on their televisions, and there on the screen were Viet Cong invading the U.S. embassy compound in Saigon. All up and down South Vietnam,

Americans and South Vietnamese were in a desperate fight.

The shock to the American psyche was so strong that news of the Viet Cong defeat never caught up with the impression that the American people had been lied to and that we certainly were not winning the war. And it all started going downhill from there.

We can and should all pray that no American plane crashes and no American soldier catches a bullet, but the odds are against our prayers in that environment. Defeating the Taliban will not be easy, in my opinion, despite what the TV geezer brigade tells you. At some point, air power will have done all it can do, and ground troops will have to finish the job. Then it will be rifle against rifle and man against man. The Afghan people have always given a good account of themselves in such a situation. Our guys might be the best trained, but I think the Afghans are way ahead of us in being just plain mean, tough killers who can cut a throat as casually as we slice a tomato.

The American people ought to be prepared psychologically for a hard, long war. If it turns out to be an easy, short war, then hallelujah. Victory will be even sweeter. But the people's trust is the most valuable asset a government can have, and that trust should not be endangered by people who don't know the difference between a briefing and a recruiting sales pitch. Let's stuff a sock in the bragging until the war is over.

Woman Still Hears Echoes Of the Man Who Got Away

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Still Kicking Myself in Frazier Park, Calif.," who walked away from a possible romance, prompts my letter. Months after a love affair experience that began in church with the opening hymn and ended 45 minutes later, I, too, am still "kicking myself."

Last spring, I entered the cathedral where I regularly attend 10:30 Mass. Because I was late, the middle section where I usually sit was full. I quickly slid into an empty pew toward the front. As I did, I noticed an attractive dark-haired man seated behind me.

The organist played the first note. I opened my mouth to sing and then stopped to listen to the rich tenor directly behind me. Encouraged by the strength and beauty of his voice, I joined in, assuming his phrasing would cover my mistakes. Instead of being overshadowed, his voice complemented mine. We began to sing unscored harmony as though we had practiced together for years. Our voices flowed in concert with the organist. Time stopped for me while we sang together throughout the entire Mass. With each successive hymn and response, we were a team singing duets.

I turned to shake his hand during the traditional kiss of peace. He warmly held mine in both of his, and his shining hazel eyes looked directly into mine. Smiling back, I wanted to speak, but I was dumbfounded. What I felt was so unexpected and powerful that I suddenly became shy. What could I say? God had arranged a perfect setting, and I could only lower my eyes.

Aware of him behind me in the communion line, I resolved to say something — anything — to him before leaving church. At least I could comment on his remarkable voice. However, after Mass he disappeared and has never returned.

Perhaps he was in town on business, which makes another meeting unlikely. Or he may have been merely grateful for the opportunity to sing. Could there have been more to the day? My heart says yes — but there is no way to know.

WITH A SONG IN MY HEART
IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR SONG IN MY HEART: Since there is no way to know whether or not there could have been more to the day, comfort yourself in the knowledge that for a few moments, you made beautiful music as one, and what you created together was your offering to God.

DEAR ABBY: During the past year, I have become good friends with a lady I'll call Ivy. I am a 36-year-old single woman; Ivy is 53 and divorced. We enjoy each other's company and she's been a wonderful friend.

Ivy is Jewish; I am Catholic. The difference in our faiths doesn't matter, because I believe that most religions are on the right path. However, I am unsure about how to handle our religious differences during the Christmas holidays.

Gift-giving is supposed to inspire feelings of warmth and happiness, and she has often said that when it comes to Christmas, she has lived the holiday vicariously through others. Naturally, I want to get her a gift, but is it the right thing to do?

GENTLE GENTLE

DEAR G.G.: By all means present your friend with a gift — for Hanukkah. Then invite her to share part of your Christmas celebration with you. Developing a close friendship with someone of a different faith can be enlightening for both of you.

Dear Abby is written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips.

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Cy Young Award winner Orel Hershiser was hired Wednesday by the Texas Rangers as an assistant to new general manager John Hart.

Hershiser will work with Hart in a variety of areas in the club's baseball operation, including major league evaluation, player development, amateur scouting and on-field instruction. His official title is associate to the general manager. Details of the contract weren't released.

"He was a great student of the game during his long and successful career, and brings a vast knowledge of pitching to the organization," Hart said.

Hershiser, 43, had a 204-150 record and a 3.48 ERA in 510 career appearances with Los Angeles (1983-94; 2000), Cleveland (1995-97), San Francisco (1998), and the New York Mets (1999).

GENERAL

HOUSTON (AP)

Former NL MVP Ken Caminiti remained jailed Thursday on drug possession charges after authorities said he was found in a Houston hotel room with crack cocaine.

Early Wednesday afternoon, officers from a drug task force stopped a 2001 Mercedes registered to Caminiti. The vehicle was being driven by another man.

Law officers — part of a task force that included the FBI and Drug Enforcement Administration — said they stopped the Mercedes because the driver was "suspicious," according to the Houston Chronicle's Thursday's editions. The officers did not elaborate.

The driver of the Mercedes told authorities he had permission to drive the car and that Caminiti could be found at a hotel.

Deputies with the Harris County Sheriff's Department were sent to the hotel to check on Caminiti's welfare and make sure the car wasn't stolen.

"They found Caminiti in the room and when the door was opened, deputies could smell what they believed to be crack cocaine," said Harris County Sheriff's Department spokesman Lt. Robert Van Pelt.

Unspecified drugs and drug paraphernalia were found in the room, authorities said.

Caminiti, 38, who lives in Houston, was arrested along with two other people who were in the room.

He was charged with possession of less than 28 grams of a controlled substance and booked into the Harris County Jail. He and the other two, who were not identified, remained in the county jail early Thursday.

"I'll wait to comment until I know more of the facts," said Houston Astros first baseman Jeff Bagwell, one of Caminiti's closest friends.

In 1994, Caminiti went public with his battle with alcohol dependency, saying he had conquered it after volunteering for rehabilitation.

Caminiti split last season with Texas and Atlanta. He hit .232 with nine home runs and 25 RBIs for the Rangers and, after being released in July, batted .222 with six homers and 16 RBIs with Atlanta.

The Braves did not re-sign Caminiti and last week he filed for free agency.

Caminiti left the Houston Astros in September 2000 to undergo evaluation for chemical dependency. He had been sidelined since June 16 that year following surgery to repair a ruptured tendon sheath in his right wrist, and later admitted he had a relapse with alcohol abuse he faced in 1993.

Caminiti rose up through the Astros' minor league system and made his major league debut in 1987, becoming a fan favorite in Houston.

Andrews' coach likes Pampa's defense

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

Andrews coach Mike Lebby is trying to lighten the mood before his Mustangs hook up with Pampa in the bi-district round of the playoffs Friday night in Plainview.

"Please pass this on. I just want coach Cavalier to be easy on us," said Lebby, half-joking sort of.

The Harris Ratings has Pampa favored, but only by a field goal, over Andrews. Lebby, however, isn't sure his team can stay that close to Pampa.

Lebby has watched game film of the Harvesters and he doesn't like what he's seen from an opposing coach's standpoint.

"I'm just very impressed with the Harvesters," Lebby said. "They know how to play hard and they're well-coached."

Pampa's defense, which is giving up just 10 points a game, has Lebby worried.

"Pampa is very quick on defense. They don't have a lot of size, but they move around well. Being able to handle their quickness is a big concern for us," he added.

Andrews, which finished with a 5-5 record, beat Levelland 29-13 in the season finale to clinch the third-place playoff spot in District 4-4A.

"We've lost some close ones. We lost three district games by two, three and four points, so we could have had a much better record than 5-5. However, we're just glad to be where we're at."

One of those close losses was to Borger, 7-0, in the second game of the season for Andrews.

Pampa beat Borger 20-7 last weekend to clinch a share of the District 3-4A championship with Palo Duro.

Andrews finished the regular season averaging almost four touchdowns a game with most of the Mustangs' yardage coming on the ground. Andrews depends mainly on the running of 215-pound tailback Matt Gardener for much of that yardage.

Senior linebacker Orlando Madrid said the Harvester defense is working hard to stop Gardener, who is averaging close to five yards per carry.

"Andrews is pretty big on the running game. They like to go up the middle a lot and we've been working on stopping that," Madrid said. "They've got a pretty good running back and we're going to have to contain him." With the exception of junior free safety Tristan Brown, Pampa's starting lineup is free of injury.

Brown suffered his third minor concussion of the season and may be out for the remainder of the playoffs. Andrew Curtis will take Brown's spot in the lineup.

Moving up to the varsity for the playoffs are sophomores Dannie Meza (running back-kicker), Mac Smith (linebacker) and Jerrod Carruth (offensive tackle).

Reserve linemen Clint Brown and Brian Watts, both juniors, are sidelined. Watts has a broken hand, but could return in another week. Brown is under a doctor's care for a growth on his leg and won't return for the playoffs.

The last time Pampa and Andrews met was in the 1995 area round of the playoffs. The Harvesters won 17-13.

Oklahoma drops second-round game to Michigan State

By The Associated Press

Too late, Oklahoma coach Kelvin Sampson knows all about Adam Ballinger.

Ballinger set career highs of 13 points and nine rebounds as No. 15 Michigan State beat the No. 25 Sooners 67-55 Wednesday night in the Preseason NIT.

Ballinger helped the Spartans extend the nation's longest home winning streak to 46 games. The second-round victory sent them to a semifinal meeting against No. 21 Syracuse on Wednesday at Madison Square Garden in New York.

Sampson admitted he was unfamiliar with Ballinger, a red-shirt junior.

"I hadn't seen him play before Monday," Sampson said. "But if he's in Michigan State's lineup, he's a good player."

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 8 Missouri beat Air Force 86-58, No. 9 Iowa defeated Boston University 90-61, No. 12 Memphis downed Old Dominion 91-66, No. 21 Syracuse beat DePaul 74-60 and No. 24 Alabama topped Samford 83-51.

Ballinger averaged 1.9 points, 1.6 rebounds and 8.2 minutes last season.

"We've seen him play like this in practice, so it was nice to see him put together a game like that," Michigan State coach Tom Izzo said. "We've also known he could shoot, but what I'm really pleased with is his rebounding."

Ballinger said his most anxious moments came after he was finished playing.

"Seriously, I was sweating when I had to talk with those TV guys on the court after the game," he said. "I'm so used to seeing other guys do that. This time, I was in the spotlight and it was a little nerve-racking, but hopefully I can get used to that."

Marcus Taylor had 12 points and nine assists for Michigan State (2-0). The Spartans have not trailed this season.

Hollis Price led Oklahoma (1-1) with 18 points.

No. 8 Missouri 86, Air Force 58
At Columbia, Mo., Clarence Gilbert scored 20 points and Kareem Rush had 19 for Missouri in the second round of the Guardians Classic.

Missouri (2-0), which usually relies on its long-range shooting, moved inside the 3-point line for most of its scoring.

Joel Gerlach had 28 points for Air Force (1-1), playing Missouri for the first time since 1964.

No. 9 Iowa 90, Boston U. 61
At Iowa City, Luke Recker scored 18 points and Reggie Evans added 16 for the Hawkeyes in another Guardians Classic game.

Matt Turner scored the game's first eight points and finished with 21 for Boston University (1-1).

There were five technical fouls in the first half. Iowa (2-0) broke away with a 19-4 burst in the second half.

No. 12 Memphis 91, Old Dominion 66

At Memphis, star freshman Dajuan Wagner scored 32 points to lead the Tigers into the semifinals of the Guardians Classic.

Wagner shot 10-for-21 and had six rebounds. In his first college game, he scored 18 points Tuesday night.

Scooter McFadgon added 17 points for Memphis (2-0). Ricardo Marsh led Old Dominion (1-1) with 21 points.

No. 21 Syracuse 74, DePaul 60
At Syracuse, DeShaun Williams scored 25 points and Kueth Duany had career highs of 17 points and 12 rebounds.

The Orangemen (2-0) outscored DePaul 16-3 in the second half to pull away.

Preston Shumpert scored 15 points for Syracuse. James Thues had five points, six steals and eight assists.

Imari Sawyer had 16 points for DePaul (1-1).

No. 24 Alabama 83, Samford 51
At Tuscaloosa, Erwin Dudley scored 15 points and Alabama romped in the second round of the Guardians Classic.

Kenny Walker added 12 points for the Crimson Tide (2-0). Sebastian Sachse led Samford (1-1) with 11 points.

The teams played only once before, with Samford winning 79-67 at Tuscaloosa on Dec. 2, 1999.

Mavericks defeat Cavaliers, 107-94

CLEVELAND (AP) — John Lucas prides himself on being a nontraditional coach, unafraid to break the rules.

He might have to bend some more if the Cleveland Cavaliers are going to win at home.

"Maybe we'll wear our road uniforms at home," Lucas said.

The Cavaliers dropped to 0-4 at Gund Arena with a 107-94 loss Wednesday night to the Dallas Mavericks, who got 28 points from Dirk Nowitzki and 22 from Michael Finley.

The Cavs have lost four straight at home for the first time since 1985, when they started 0-5. With a tough early schedule, Lucas said he expected his team to struggle for its first road win, but they are 2-3 away from home.

"I didn't think we'd win any road games until after Christmas," Lucas said.

At this rate, he may have to wait until New Year's for a victory at home.

"We've played four teams we couldn't beat at home and we beat two teams on the road we shouldn't have beat," Lucas said. "That's what's so frustrating about our year so far."

Groom, Miami clash in bi-district tilt

MIAMI — Miami may be six-man football's best hope of slowing down powerful, unbeaten Groom this season.

The two teams meet for the second time this season, playing in the bi-district round at 7:30 Friday night at Lefors.

"I don't know if playing them again is a privilege or a curse," laughed Miami coach Jimmy James. "They're so tough, so physical. What they do, they do so well."

Miami, however, has come as close as any team has this season of spoiling Groom's perfect mark. During a regular-season meeting in September, the Warriors had a two-touchdown lead the first quarter before the Tigers starting taking command. The final score was 60-20 with the game taking an injury toll on the Miami players.

"We had a couple of injuries going into the game and then a couple more players had concussions during the game," James said. "We just got out-manned."

"We've got everybody back now, so we're going to be pretty healthy."

Miami (6-4 overall, 4-1 district) played Follett for the District 1-1A title last weekend, but lost 38-16.

Senior running back Ryan Manley scored both Miami touchdowns.

Groom wrapped up a perfect 10-0 regular season by shutting out Happy 46-0 last week.

Cody Bivins and Clay Ritter scored two touchdowns each to lead the Tiger attack.

For Bivins, a 150-pound senior, it was his 19th and 20th TDs of the season.

Ritter, a 190-pound senior, has 17 TDs for the season.

Baylor hopes to avoid another winless Big 12 football season

WACO, Texas (AP) — For all his receptions and touchdowns, Reggie Newhouse has never experienced a Big 12 victory.

Third-year Baylor coach Kevin Steele, the coach who recruited Newhouse, hasn't won a conference game either. Saturday is their last chance to avoid extending their conference losing streak to 29 games.

The Bears (2-7, 0-7 Big 12) get that opportunity against another struggling team, Oklahoma State (2-7, 0-6).

"I don't care if I don't catch a single pass, winning is what's important," Newhouse said. "We know we can compete, but it's better to get that one in the win column."

Newhouse caught a school-record 12 passes for 131 yards and three touchdowns last weekend at Missouri but the Bears lost 41-24.

Newhouse, who last year became the first Baylor receiver in 17 years with 40 catches, has 48 catches for 538 yards and seven TDs this season. His 95 career receptions rank third in Baylor history.

The last Big 12 victory for Baylor was 31-24 against Kansas on Oct. 10, 1998, a year before Steele and Newhouse arrived. The Bears are 0-23 in conference play under Steele, and have gone just 3-44 in the league's six seasons.

"It's not a monkey on our backs. It's a gorilla," Steele said. "I can't describe how much I want to win for our players."

Steele and his players are well aware of what all a win Saturday would mean.

Besides breaking the conference losing streak, the Bears would avoid finishing in last place in the South Division.

Oklahoma State wouldn't be able to overtake Baylor in the standings, and the Cowboys would still have a league game left. They will be the underdogs in their season finale against intrastate rival and No. 3 Oklahoma on Nov. 17.

"A win will give us some momentum and be a big boost for the seniors," said senior offensive lineman Greg Jerman. "We've proved we can be competitive against the best teams in the country, but we're still inconsistent. We want to show everyone what a good job these coaches have been doing."

The Bears appeared to be making progress when they survived a brutal October stretch against three straight Top 25 teams.

Oklahoma led only by 10 points early in the fourth quarter before an 80-yard TD drive to win 33-17.

Nebraska, the No. 2 in the AP poll and No. 1 in the BCS standings, won 48-7 over Baylor after scoring five touchdowns in the final 17 minutes. The Huskers led the Bears 52-0 at halftime the year before.

The Bears led then-No. 24 Texas A&M 10-3 at halftime, but lost 16-10.

Since then, the Bears lost 63-19 at home to Texas Tech, trailing 28-0 before even getting a first down. Then they lost 49-10 to No. 5 Texas and then faced a 34-3 halftime deficit at Missouri last weekend.

"It would be great if we could take what we did in the second half last week and spread it over four quarters," said quarterback Greg Cicero.

Cicero, who lost his starting job to Josh Zachry, last week completed 25 of 35 passes for a career-high 231 yards and three TDs to Newhouse after Zachry was injured.

Baseball antitrust bill introduced; grievance to be heard

NEW YORK (AP) — A day after legislation was introduced in Congress to allow lawsuits against baseball when teams fold or relocate, Minnesota officials went to court seeking to prevent the Twins from being eliminated.

A hearing was scheduled for Thursday in Minneapolis before Hennepin County District Court Judge Harry Crump on a lawsuit filed against the Twins by the Metropolitan Sports Facilities Commission.

Judge Diana Eagon last week issued a temporary restraining order barring the Twins from being eliminated. The commission is seeking a permanent injunction to force the Twins to play in the Metrodome through the end of their lease in 2002.

In other litigation, lawyers for players and owners agreed Wednesday the union's grievance to save two teams will be heard next month.

Lawyers for the players association and the owners spoke with arbitrator Shyam Das, who will hear the grievance filed by the union, which claims last week's decision by owners to eliminate two teams violated its labor contract, which expired last week.

"We have a series on dates beginning in early December," union lawyer Michael Weiner said. "We will confer and get back to him shortly."

In Washington, Sen. Paul Wellstone, a Minnesota Democrat, and Rep. John Conyers, the top Democrat on the House Judiciary Committee, introduced the Fairness in Antitrust in National Sports Act, which would limit baseball's exemption from antitrust laws, created by a 1922 U.S. Supreme Court decision.

"Our country has tremendously urgent priorities — we have the war in Afghanistan, the war against terrorism, and our urgent need for economic stimulus legislation to keep our nation from plummeting even further into recession," Wellstone said.

"Unfortunately, however, major league baseball owners did not give us a choice on timing. They have picked a particularly inauspicious time to announce their unilateral, shortsighted and self-serving decision, so we must respond."

Montreal and Minnesota appear to be the most likely candidates.

Wellstone and Conyers, who is from Michigan, attended a news conference Wednesday along with several House members from Minnesota, hope to exert pressure on baseball owners to reverse their decision.

Baseball commissioner Bud Selig said last week his sport no longer can support financially struggling teams. Wellstone called baseball's decision to fold two teams "a way for owners to divvy up profits."

"If GM, Ford and Chrysler tried that in Detroit, we would have a lot of people outraged," Conyers said.

The bill would allow an "injured" party to sue for antitrust violations — ranging from a government entity to a stadium authority to a baseball player.

Other parts of baseball's antitrust exemption — such as minor league baseball, marketing, sales and intellectual property rights — would remain intact.

"The Minnesota Twins on the northern prairie aren't just a baseball team. They're really a way of life," said Rep. Earl Pomeroy, a North Dakota

Democrat. "It's what you listen to when you plant the crop in the spring. It's what kids talk about when they go to their sandlot ball."

Congress has traditionally been reluctant to tamper with baseball's antitrust exemption. In 1998, a law was passed eliminating the exemption only for labor relations involving the major leagues.

"It's a steep mountain to climb, but we absolutely have to make the effort," Wellstone said.

Union head Donald Fehr immediately backed the legislation.

"It is unfortunate that the owners' recent actions make consideration of this legislation necessary, but it is important to make certain that the antitrust laws apply to baseball owners in order to protect the interests of baseball fans, ballpark employees, cities and, frankly, the game itself," he said.

Piniella, Bowa voted managers of the year

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Piniella and Larry Bowa look at each other and see a lot of themselves. The voters for Manager of the Year saw a lot of similarities, too.

Piniella won the AL honor for the second time Wednesday after leading the Seattle Mariners to a record-setting season, and Bowa won the NL award for keeping the Philadelphia Phillies in playoff contention until the final three days of the season.

A year earlier, Bowa was Piniella's third-base coach in Seattle.

"I recognized he knew baseball," Piniella said. "I recognized that he had leadership qualities. As the season progressed, I even told him, 'You should think about managing at the big-league level again and not be satisfied being a third-base coach.'"

Piniella, whose Mariners tied the major league record of 116 wins, received 22 first-place votes and six seconds for 128 points from a panel of the Baseball Writers' Association.

Bowa got 18 first-place votes, six seconds and five thirds in the NL voting, for 113 points.

Piniella, 58, and Bowa, 55, have similar intense styles, but Piniella has calmed down during 15 years as a major league manager.

"I do have the intensity," said Bowa, whose contract was extended Wednesday for two years through 2004. "I think I've learned to bottle it up a little bit better than before. I'm still very intense. I'm not going to lie about that."

Bowa, fired by San Diego after compiling an 81-127 record in 1987-88, said Piniella warned him about his intensity.

"There was a time during the course of the year when I was very high," Bowa said, "and you have to sort of back off there." Piniella said it was difficult for him to acquire patience.

"I came to realize a manager can't be more intense than his team," he said. "He has to find the level of intensity his team has and hover around it — in fact, better, hover slightly below it."

Jim Tracy, the first-year manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, was second in the NL voting with 48 points, followed by Tony La-Russa of St. Louis with 38 and Bob Brenly of Arizona with 33.

Oakland's Art Howe was second in the AL voting for the third consecutive season, getting five first-place votes and 77 points. Minnesota's Tom Kelly was third with 25 points.

Jim Williams, fired by Boston on Aug. 16 after keeping his team in contention for most of the season, finished fourth with 12 third-place votes and 12 points. He was the first manager fired during a season to receive any votes since the BBWAA began the manager awards in 1983.

At the time Williams was fired, Boston was 65-53, two games behind Oakland in the AL wild card standings and five games behind the New York Yankees in the AL East.

Boston went 17-26 under Williams' successor, Joe Kerrigan, and finished 13 1/2 games behind the Yankees and 19 1/2 games in back of the Athletics.

Piniella, who also won the award with Seattle in 1995, became the first manager to twice lead teams to first-place finishes after leading from opening day.

He accomplished the feat with the 1990 Cincinnati Reds.

"The only danger of opening up a big lead is if complacency sets in, you can go into a tailspin," Piniella said. "My coaching staff and my players did an outstanding job of making sure that didn't happen."

Seattle went 116-46, breaking the AL record for wins set by the 1998 Yankees (114-48) and tying the mark set by the 1906 Chicago Cubs (116-36).

The Mariners were eliminated by the Yankees in the second round of the playoffs, 4-1.

"Just a lot of wins, a lot of wins," Piniella said. "I hope when we go into spring training next year, people don't expect a duplication."

Ballots for the awards had to be postmarked before the start of the playoffs.

Woods, Duval share World Cup lead

GOTEMBA, Japan (AP) — Tiger Woods and David Duval have some catching up to do in their World Cup title defense.

Throwing away a stroke with Duval's penalty for a practice putt, the American stars opened with a 6-under-par 66 on Thursday to drop four strokes behind Canada, Scotland and Sweden.

While Woods and Duval failed to take full advantage of the scoring-friendly best-ball format, Canada's Mike Weir and Ian Leggatt shot a 62 to match Scotland's Andrew Coltart and Dean Robertson and Sweden's Niclas Fasth and Robert Karlsson.

The 24 teams will play an alternate-shot round Friday.

Duval was assessed a two-stroke penalty on the 16th hole for taking a practice stroke after missing his birdie putt. The two strokes were added to his birdie on the par-3 17th, forcing the team to count Woods' par.

"I wasn't swinging well and I definitely wasn't putting well," Woods said. "Add those two things together, and you're not going to get low scores. If I would have made a couple of more putts, we could have shot a little lower."

Woods' frustration showed on the 12th hole when he replaced a divot by slamming his wedge down after his approach shot landed well in front of the hole.

It didn't get any better on No. 15 when his approach found the bunker in front of the green. His chip out of the bunker landed 20 feet from the hole and rolled to the edge of the green. Duval birdied the hole to pick up his teammate.

Weir, who won the Tour Championship two weeks ago in Houston and the American Express Championship last November in Spain, combined with Leggatt for 10 birdies in chilly conditions on the Taiheiyo Club course.

"Growing up in Canada, Ian and I played a lot of golf in weather like this, so I guess we're a little more used to it than some of the other players," said Weir, who accounted for six of the 10 birdies in the best-ball round.

Leggatt had four birdies on the back nine on the picturesque course at the foot of Mount Fuji.

Karlsson and Fasth also combined for 10 birdies, with Karlsson holing a 20-foot eagle putt on No. 18.

BY JACQUELINE BIGAR
 The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have:

5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
  Strive for detachment. Intellectualize an issue. Don't just blow your fuse. You might have a difficult time finding suitable words at first. Note the difference when you approach an associate or pal calmly. Others admire your depth and perspective. Tonight: Follow the music.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
  Others react, and you feel insecure. Curb spending, especially in the face of another's demand or a bill. Take a walk and calm down. Consider asking for overtime or picking up an additional part-time project. Discuss ways to handle the crunch with a loved one. Tonight: Quality time with a loved one.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
  You could be pushed beyond your limits as you deal with others. Don't use sarcasm as a way of distancing and gaining space. Rather, close your door and screen your calls. A call to a distant friend renews your energy and perspective. Try again with a partner. Tonight: Go along with the program.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
  You figuratively give someone the one-two punch, trying to establish your limits. Let him howl and carry on. Later, you can talk turkey and come to an agreement. This person doesn't always "get" your limits. Tonight: Walk a bit before dinner.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
  Reach out for someone who often lets you know about your ups and downs. Your attention brings a smile, not only from this person, but also from others. New beginnings are possible with a child or a loved one. Be creative yet thoughtful. Tonight: Dance the night away.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
  You could be perplexed by choices that surround you. One person wants one thing; another wants something else. If you have a rebellious streak, you just might head in your own direction. Deal with co-workers fairly, despite how you feel. Tonight: Play ostrich.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
  Plans change. Though many footprints would be upset walking in your footsteps, you trot along with ease, knowing exactly what to do with your time. Work with creativity when hearing wild news. Take a walk and revise your thinking. Tonight: Follow the gang.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
  Someone might not intend to pressure you, but he does an excellent job anyway. Not everyone sees a situation the same way you do. Open up conversations, especially with a family member, landlord or mortgage company. Dig into the world of creative financing. Tonight: Revamp your budget.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
  Someone challenges you. You
