The KING RANCH MYSTERY

This is the first of four stories telling the romantic western adventure true story that lies behind the mystery of the King Ranch, vast Texas cattle domain where two men entered and never returned.

By GORDON TURRENTINE
NEA Service Special Correspondent
RAYMONDVILLE, July 30.—Death strikes again at the great King ranch, fabulous 1,250,000-acre "princality" at the southern tip of Texas, deepening the air of mystery that has hung over its vast acres ever since last November.

Today it is George Durham, 42, autocratic foreman of the El Sauz section of the ranch, who is dead. Three doctors and an undertaker certified that Durham died naturally of a heart attack while branding cattle. This quieted widespread rumors of a shooting.

But the farmers outside the borders of the King domain remember the Blantons, father and son, who climbed the fence into El Sauz last fall and never returned. And they wait grimly to hear the report of Capt. Bill McMurray, most famous of modern Texas Rangers, who says he has solved the Blanton case and will announce his findings as soon as the case is "ironclad."

McMurray, recently named by the governor as the outstanding and most typical Ranger, was put in charge of the case after long investigation of the Blanton disappearance had satisfied nobody, proved nothing.

His announcement of a solution inspired confidence, but the sudden death of Durham fanned again a feud which has smoldered and broken into intermittent flame for years between the farmers of Willacy county and the armed riders who guard the fenced borders of the vast, almost autonomous King ranch "empire."

Two Swallowed Up
It was on Nov. 18, 1936, that Luther Blanton, 37, and his son, John 24, climbed the fence between their tiny farm and the El Sauz section of the King ranch.

That fence encloses continuously a mill and a quarter acres spreading over eight counties in Southwest Texas, an area scarcely smaller than the state of Delaware. For generations those who ran the King ranch have been practically a law unto themselves within their own domains.

The Blantons have not been seen and three shells and they were going to hunt ducks. The King ranch, maintaining at some cost a game preserve, protects it by ranch-paid game wardens and armed fence riders. Just before dusk the sound of three shots came out of the tangled, thorned mesquite brush and tall grass.

Resentment Shown
The Blantons did not return and when dawn came 100 farmers and townsmen were gathered on the cottonpatch side of the fence. On the other side were ranch officers and farm hands who said they would do the searching themselves.

Trouble was averted by a state highway patrolman and both factions searched. Nothing was found except a few duck feathers and the spot where some men on foot had smoked a number of cigars.

The Blantons have not been seen since, and as the days passed after their disappearance new stories cropped up of other men who had entered unwanted the brushlands of El Sauz (the southernmost division of the King ranch) and had never returned.

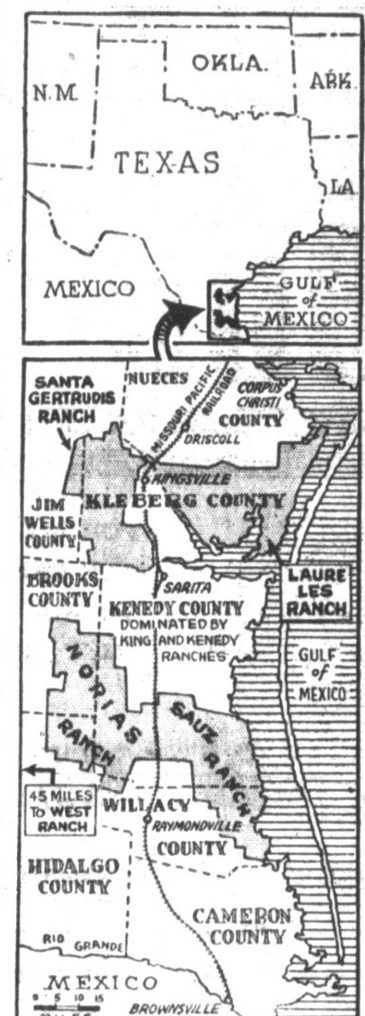

None of those stories have been substantiated. Most of them are legend or vague recollections. But they stirred the hatred of the farmers, and expeditions were organized to search the ranch. When they were barred, the Rangers went in and relatives of the Blantons said they would leave the investigation up to Capt. Bill McMurray and his men.

Family Backs Probe
More days and weeks passed with no word of the Blantons, no solution to the mystery. Searchers, of course, had barely touched the outskirts of even El Sauz, whose line fences run into the salty waters of the Gulf of Mexico. Literally miles of gnarled, sprawling mesquite that tears at men's clothing lay within the boundaries. Men had been lost for days there. Dusty cattle trails led to dry water holes. On the hottest days buzzards wheeled and turned overhead. One slope looked like the next, one leafless tree like another. Men might die and their skeletons not be found for years.

When summer came and no solution was in sight, the Blanton relatives raised a little money and Louis Lamadrid entered the scene. A native of Brownsville, Lamadrid slipped in and began working among the Mexicans around the

The vast extent of the King Ranch is shown in the above map, the upper panel showing its location at the southern tip of Texas, the lower its great extent. Durham was boss of El Sauz. His death was less mysterious than those of the Blantons.

Combat ammunition has been issued to U. S. Marines on guard to protect Americans in the Legation Quarter at Peiping. This battalion marches on the parade ground before the Chien Men gate, at almost the same spot where marines fought off the Boxers in 1900. In this Legation Quarter, Americans in Peiping will take refuge at a signal from the U. S. military authorities that the situation has become critical.

When it's ironclad we'll have another announcement.

Virginia Cherrill Becomes Countess

LONDON, July 30 (AP)—Love almost at first sight brought a wedding today for Virginia Cherrill, American movie actress, and the ninth Earl of Jersey.

Marriage ended the acting career of the Carthage, Ill. countess. "It's a happy married life for me now," she exclaimed. "It's hard for an actress to be a good house wife but I'm thrilled at the idea of getting married. Who wouldn't be?" They met a year ago at a party and the new countess said she fell in love with her husband "not at first sight, but very nearly that."

Fawn at Eve Had Drunk Her Fill

Phoebie tips the bottle for an evening nip and fawns on the Michigan conservation officer at Cadillac State Park with a happy, coy little gesture. The park's officers became foster mothers to the dappled week-old fawn when she was picked up, apparently an orphan, in the national forest. It took her at least five minutes to learn the mysteries of the nipples.

The Capital Jigsaw

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL

AUSTIN, July 30 (AP)—Traveling across country in a fine automobile is fun for most persons under virtually any conditions, but traveling with Vice President John N. Garner is more than that. It is an experience long to remember.

Moreover, it offers unusual opportunity to observe the personality of one of the most interesting men in the country. The opportunity came recently to this correspondent when the vice president journeyed by automobile from his home at Uvalde to Little Rock to attend funeral of Senator Joe T. Robinson.

Mr. Garner, it is well known, is an early riser. He goes to bed early and he gets up with the chickens, but when he has important business like a long trip he beats the chickens.

Long before the sun rose the day set to begin the trip to Little Rock. Mr. Garner, his secretary, Louis Friday, his chauffeur, Thomas Harly, who has been chauffeur, incidentally, for two other vice presidents, and the correspondent were eating breakfast on Mr. Garner's back porch. Mrs. Garner and Mrs. Friday bustled about seeing that everybody had his fill of fruit, eggs, sausages, hot biscuit, and coffee.

Then came the take-off in the 16-cylinder automobile which goes with the job of being vice president. Lights were burning as the big motor car swept through Uvalde's streets, although it was pretty plain he did not relish the idea of terminating his vacation and taking up again the cares of official duty at Washington. The first leg of the journey, to San Antonio, was well under way before the sun reddened the eastern sky.

Mr. Garner likes to travel, not exactly incognito, but hampered as little as possible by the necessity of shaking hands, answering questions and talking politics. He prefers to breeze along at a fast but safe pace, looking at the crops, chatting with other passengers a little, making a few steps to stretch his legs, and generally, simply touring. It can't be done if the country knows the vice-president is coming through, and when; therefore, his route was not announced.

It was very interesting to learn there was a by-pass through San Antonio and chose it immediately in preference to the regular route through the business section. In the city of missions there were only three or four pauses for boulevard stop signs.

Same with the State Capitol. Again he chose a route which skirted the business section and the University of Texas, where at 9 a. m. traffic was very heavy. As his automobile swept by the fine new buildings of the University he remarked that "if the old holds out it will be the wealthiest school in the world."

George PATTON DIES IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

HUNTSVILLE, July 30 (AP)—The state's electric chair took the life of George Patton this morning, thus ending a bizarre East Texas tragedy in which the 55-year-old farmer was accused of slaying Mrs. Carrie McGee, her husband and their two children.
He was executed for Mrs. McGee's death. He was not tried on the other murder charges. Patton two years ago spaced up four skeletons from a grave in the cow lot at his home near Athens. Before officers' eyes the farmer thus explained the disappearance of the McGee family on Thanksgiving, 1932.
Today he walked into the death chamber calmly and thanked witnesses for their kindnesses. "I don't hold anything against anyone," he said.
He sat in the chair, kissed an extended crucifix and uttered a prayer. A moment later the fatal current was switched on.

How 'Atom-Smasher' Will Look

The huge pear-shaped tank, 30 feet in diameter and 47 feet high, shown above, is Westinghouse Electric's much-talked-about "atom-smasher" with which scientists in Pittsburgh hope to solve some of the mysteries surrounding the structure of matter. When preparations are completed the research experts within the tank will bombard targets of various materials with sub-microscopic particles shot from the "atom-smasher," at anywhere from 30 to 100 million miles an hour, and study the results.

On Capital Hill
By HARRELL E. LEE

AUSTIN, July 30 (AP)—Texas political subdivisions are authorizing almost as much public building as they did when Federal P. W. A. Grants took care of 45 per cent of the costs, Attorney General William McCraw says.

McCraw found that building and refinancing bonds issued by the governmental units the first ten months of the current fiscal year aggregated nearly as much as during the entire two-year period immediately before P. W. A. aid was started.

"While not quite equalling the total of the period when federal funds were available," the Attorney General said "there has been each month for the past six months a steady increase in bond approval."

McCraw said continuation of public building despite the absence of P. W. A. assistance was in "sharp contrast with those depression days when it was impossible to persuade a group of people even to talk about new public buildings, regardless of the need."

Considerably more than three-fourths of the State's 254 counties now have voluntary parole boards selected by Gov. Alford. Several have been created in recent weeks. The boards supervise paroled convicts in their counties, hunting jobs for them, advising them on their problems and the like. The chief executive is as proud of establishment of his administration.

The extent to which legislation dominates Austin news for the year 1937 is partly indicated by the fact that from January through July 15 the Legislature either was in session or some bill passed by it was on Gov. Alford's desk awaiting his signature.

The lawgivers probably will be back within two months and many persons believe they will stay 60 days.

A Dallas man who did not support Gov. Alford in either of his campaigns for Governor said here recently the Alford third-term talk was meeting with a better response.

"If Alford should run," the visitor said, "he might have been expected, said, 'He even would give Bill McCraw a lot of trouble in Dallas County, McCraw's home.'" Others who came to the Capitol voiced the opinion the Governor was not seriously considering an attempt at re-election.

AIR-FIELD SAFETY DEPENDS ON LENGTH
WASHINGTON (AP)—Air-fields should be 3,500 feet long at sea level to provide safe landing for large transport planes, says the bureau of air commerce.

At higher altitudes, where the air is thinner, fields should be longer. Landing avenues should be 150 feet wide, and should be paved or made of hard sod, according to the prevailing weather.

Bratton And Reed Best Guesses For Court Post

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Pampa Daily News Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 30 — This is the best guess available right now, and please remember it's only a guess.

Solicitor General Stanley F. Reed will be appointed to the Supreme Court to succeed Justice Willis Van Devanter, retired.

Next best guess, perhaps, is Judge Sam G. Bratton of Albuquerque, N. M., sitting in the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals, including parts of eight western states. At any rate, the White House is hearing plenty from Bratton's backers.

One of the worst crimes the New Deal ever committed against the country and itself was the thing it did to the solicitor-general's office. Felix Frankfurter had refused the post in 1933. But Reed took that office more than two years ago and has carried the brunt of defending New Deal laws before the Supreme Court, lately with conspicuous success. He argued the Wagner Act as well as the AAA cases and many others.

Reed for several years was counsel for the old Hoover farm board and early in 1933 became general counsel for RFC under Hoover. He served Roosevelt ably as a legal expert in the banking emergency. He was slated for a federal judgeship in Kentucky when Roosevelt decided he should be solicitor-general. His arguments have indicated definite liberalism along with a desire to fit New Deal laws into reasonable constitutions. He is 52 years old.

Bratton was a liberal Democratic senator from New Mexico until Roosevelt made him a federal judge. As an ex-senator, he could be sure of little opposition to his confirmation.

RAW WOUNDS
Don't fall too hard for these nice, pretty stories about harmony restored in the Democratic party. Knives are sharpened as never before. If Roosevelt and his friends have anything to do about it, 1938 will be known to history as "the great year of reprisals," meaning that Roosevelt will not forgive or forget the scuttling of the court bill and other items of his program.

Even while Vice President Jack Garner and his Democratic-Republican coalition seemed to rule the Capitol Hill roost after giving the court bill its coup de grace, Roosevelt showed that he was still trying to run the works by taking Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley off for a yacht weekend. And the sole companions were the LaPollette brothers of Wisconsin, who came nearest to being prospective leaders of a new Farmer-Labor party.

Senator Ed Burke of Nebraska, opposition court plan leader, got to see Roosevelt through Garner's request, assured the President that the Senate judiciary committee would do its best to patch up a good bill and expressed the hope that there would be no hard feelings.

Roosevelt, according to an authoritative source, merely sat, listened, made no reply and puffed cigarette smoke up into the air until Secretary Marvin McIntyre came in to announce the next visitor.

BIG BALLOT
Senator Barkley, the new majority leader, described his emotions at the caucus leadership election as the vote counter reached the
