

Some FEMININE Fancies

Girls to Have Teams. "I want the girls of Pampa high school to have a golf team the same as the boys," said Principal L. L. Stone this morning.

More Women Playing. We are noticing more women on the golf courses. The privilege given women to play free of charge is an opportunity that should be appreciated and taken advantage of.

Turn Dear Ear. Don't let hubby tell you that women cannot learn to play golf. So many men have been proclaiming that view that many of the women, hearing it time after time, actually are believing it.

Likes the Climate. A. B. Doucette of Beaumont, who is visiting his son, A. H. Doucette, and Mrs. Doucette, is particularly pleased with the climate in Pampa.

Other visitors have commented on our cool nights. They are invigorating and can truly be appreciated by one coming from another section of the state.

The weather should have been appreciated last night by the hundreds of brave citizens who so gallantly dashed to the rescue at a signal from the fire department.

Fashion News. We have just received these A. P. fashion notes: NEW YORK—American women's clothes are the envy of English women.

NEW YORK—A wicked old exile is coming back. The cycle of millinery styles has brought back bonnets reminiscent of the second empire and with them the hat pin.

Mussolini Hits At Pope's Charge

ROME, July 15. (AP)—Premier Mussolini and the Fascist directorate today denounced the pope's recent encyclical on young Fascism as a collection of "lies."

The Vatican and Masonry have combined in "common hostility toward the Fascist state," they charged, and to "defame" Ballilla, a Fascist organization of boys.

In a statement, the directorate announced that the membership of the Fascist party, 873,000 adults and 642,000 youths, would mobilize shortly on the Plave battlefields of Northern Italy to demonstrate that Fascism is a military unit.

WHEAT OPENS LOWER
CHICAGO, July 15. (AP)—Wheat today equaled the all time low price record for any future delivery in Chicago, 50 3-8 cents a bushel. The new decline 1-4 cent overnight, came in the opening transactions and was followed by fractional upturns.

Price changes were associated largely with nervousness over Europe's financial tangle. Starting at a shade to 3-4 cent setback, wheat later kept within narrow limits. Corn opened unchanged to 3-8 higher and afterward rose all around.

COTTON OPENS WEAKLY
NEW ORLEANS, July 15. (AP)—Cotton had a weak opening today owing to much lower Liverpool cables than due. First trades showed losses of 12 points, and the market continued to ease off after the start owing to good rains in the belt, resulting from tropical disturbances, causing liquidation by recent buyers.

October dropped to 9.06 and December to 9.28, or 19 points below yesterday's close.

Near the end of the first hour, the market was a shade steadier and had recovered 2 to 4 points from the lows.

The market eased off gradually during the morning due to selling caused by a generally favorable weekly weather and crop summary, unfavorable news from abroad and weakness in the stock market.

October dropped to 9.02 and December to 9.21 or 23 to 26 points under yesterday's close.

Despite the bearish character of the news and the weather, the market showed more or less resistance to the decline due to trade buying on the scale down.

Near mid-session the market was steady and a shade above the lows.

Total sales of 79 produce cub markets in Alabama totalled $413,039 in 1930.

North Carolina orchards contain 4,330,000 apple trees.

Wheat and soybeans grown on four and one-half acres of land netted H. H. Atkins of Wake county, N. C., a profit of $246.50.

South Carolina spends 19.28 per cent of the total value of produced crops for fertilizer, the highest proportion in the United States.

CHICAGO GRAIN
CHICAGO, July 15. (AP)—Wheat: No. 1 red 50 3-4; No. 1 hard 50 1-2 to 3-4; No. 2 yellow 49 3-4 to 50 1-2; No. 2 mixed 49 3-4.

Corn: No. 6 mixed 56; No. 1 yellow 60 to 60 1-2; No. 2 white 61 1-4 to 62 1-2.

Oats: No. 1 mixed 25 1-2; No. 2 white 27 to 2-9.

A quick rally for wheat took place in the final transactions, with the market closing unsettled at 5-8 to 1 cent advance. Corn closed 1 1-8 to 2 3-8 up, oats showing 5-8 to 7-8 gain, and provisions 12 to 15 cents down.

BOTTOM TOUCHED?
CHICAGO, July 15. (AP)—Wheat prices, mired in the slough of despond for a fortnight, settled down today to the bottom reached only once before in the history of the Chicago Board of Trade.

A faint flurry of selling at the opening of the futures trading session let July wheat down to 50 3-8 cents a bushel, equaling the record low price of July 26, 1924. With the post-war dollar worth about 75 cents in pre-war value, today's wheat price was figured at about 35 cents in pre-war values.

U. S. Boy Heir to Throne?

Twelve-year-old Harvey Burrows, above, son of a Reno, Nev., divorce attorney, has something to blow about now, as he's dazed here. Harvey is the central figure in an outcropping of political intrigue at Reno which reveals him as a potential heir to the throne of Austria. It is said he is the grandson of the late Prince Johann of Austria, who was the Archduke of Austria and brother of Emperor Franz Joseph. The boy's mother is said to be a daughter of the aged nobleman who came to America, married and died in California several years ago. Harvey's father says Austrian monarchists are trying to take his son there to claim the throne, but that he won't stand for it.

MOON of DELIGHT

by Margaret Bell Houston

Gabreau had grumbled at the load when they carried it stealthily from the Dolores to Umberto's boat. Not often he called on Gabreau to help him carry things. Gabreau was needed as a lookout. Tonight, however — it was a heavy chest and too beautiful to leave. He had abandoned a dozen smaller chests to take it.

Umberto examined the chest. Ebony, exquisitely carved in an open-work design, so that one saw through it something that gleamed. The lid fitted tightly, but as he jerked the handle it opened and Umberto looked on the thing that gleamed.

Silk, yellow, translucent, shot with little black gems. A rope of pearls, a bracelet set with emeralds — Umberto drew back, reached for the lamp, held it close.

The bracelet glowed on a wrist, slender, ivory-colored. Under the folds of silk a woman's form lay in the chest. Her dark, unbound hair covered her face, and there was no sign of breath.

The lamp shook so Umberto set it down. He backed away from the chest. In all his adventures as burglar, pickpocket, highwayman, he had never known the abject terror of this moment. To what crime had he fallen heir? . . . Gabreau would be witness that — Ah! Gabreau had wanted half. He would give the chest to Gabreau, let him have all.

But in the act of lowering the lid he halted. The silks were stirring, almost imperceptibly. The slim wrist lifted, a white hand moved to the hair, pushing it away. She sat up, a pale girl, gazing at the lid of the chest, beside her, then slowly her eyes moved about the room until they rested on Umberto. She sprang from the chest, staring at him from storm-dark eyes.

Umberto's relief was such that he felt faint. He stared at the girl who, to his recovering senses, seemed an apparition. She was perhaps not more than 20. Her evening dress—a jeweled slip with a rose half torn from the shoulder—was stained and crumpled. Her black hair fell about her. In their gold slippers her feet were the smallest he had ever seen.

Whether because she was dark enough to have been his countrywoman, or because in excitement Umberto could not know, but he spoke to her in Italian—a voluble flow that rose to the heights of repressed wrath.

Her pallor grew deeper and she spread out a hand against the wall, closing her eyes. There was no water at hand, but there was wine — priceless wine that had been mourned by its owners. Umberto opened the old armoire, poured a glassful. She drank in gulps, steadied herself by the table, resumed her stormy gaze at him.

Apparently she had not understood the Italian. Umberto translated it into the only other tongue he knew.

"How you getta that way?" pointing to the chest. "I bringa you here and thinka you dead. I got 'nough troubles. What for you do thees?"

Her eyes moved to the door behind him.

"No, you 'on' go," stated Umberto. Spanish was probably her language and there were those in New Orleans who would understand her when she related the story of her removal from the Dolores. He might even be accused of kidnapping as well as theft. "Wait," he ordered. "I come back."

The room had one window that, like its one door, opened upon the balcony. Except in the outer walls of the old French quarter of New Orleans, Umberto made certain that the window was fast—he had nailed it against Gabreau's prying some time before — then he went out, locking the door.

The balcony framed a flowered court, centered by a fountain and reached by a slender stair. Not far from the stair-foot was a door behind which the garbline rooms of Jason Divitt housed their activities till three o'clock in the morning. It was four now. Divitt would have counted his earnings and gone to his wife's room, the room directly beneath Umberto's with its great bed and Spanish lace curtains which Molly Divitt had picked up in the shops on Royal street. Molly had been ailing for a month. Umberto knocked softly, feeling it well not to disturb her.

Silence, and presently without a sound, the opening of the door.

Jason Divitt looked like a little black ant. Umberto would have made three of him, but he ruled Umberto as effectually as Umberto ruled Gabreau. He had come to New Orleans from what was vaguely known as "the West." What lay back of him no one—not even Molly, perhaps—knew. But he had the manners of a dancing master and the diction of a pedagogue, except when he desired—which frequently happened—to lay them both aside. Silently his ant-like face enquired what Umberto wanted with his knock.

Umberto jerked his head toward the stair in an urgent gesture, and Divitt—in evening clothes—followed him upstairs and into the room.

The girl stood by the window. In Umberto's absence she had fastened up her hair and thrust a high black comb into it. She confronted the man with no semblance of fear in her stormy eyes, yet the close observer might have seen the trembling of her clenched hands, the quick rise and fall of her breast. Divitt turned abruptly to Umberto.

"What's this?" he demanded.

"Lady," Umberto informed him. "She in da chest. Umberto pointed. "I take it off da Dolores. Lady inside. I don't know how she getta that way. Stowaway maybe."

Divitt looked through the chest's contents. Laces, mantillas, a black cape which the girl watched anxiously as he pulled it out.

"Thees getta me in trouble," complained Umberto. "I think she dead at first. I ask why she do such thing. She no understand Italian."

"Get Conchita," said Divitt. He threw the things back into the chest while Umberto went down the balcony to the last room on that side. Gabreau and Conchita, his mother, looked at him darkly. Umberto, returning Conchita's look, jerked his head toward his room. She rose heavily, a squat, swart, bulging figure, and waddled behind him, Gabreau following. Divitt was closing the chest.

"Talk to this lady in Spanish," he ordered Conchita.

Conchita, discovering the girl in the corner, sat down on the cot. During her three years over Divitt's place she had been called on to face many situations, but to behold unmoved what looked like a caged princess in Umberto's room — a princess who ten minutes before could not have been there—or could she?—required something more of savoir faire than even she possessed, especially when she had got herself all wrought up over Gabreau's four-bit piece.

"Speak to her," commanded Divitt. "There's no time to lose."

Conchita spoke abundantly, assuring the lady that the weather was fine for the month of February.

"Try her with French," Divitt said to Gabreau.

"Mamselle—" he began.

The girl faced them abruptly. Her stormy eyes moved over the group.

Police Use of Radio Increases

WASHINGTON, July 15. (AP) — Police radio systems to aid apprehension of the criminal are increasing rapidly.

As he seeks to elude capture, the fugitive from justice now finds more than 60 cities equipped with the systems auguring against his success. Others are planning to adopt them. A year ago there were fewer than 10.

Also, the lawbreaker who slips through local police and leaves for a neighboring city, finds officials there apprised of all details of his crime, when he arrives, provided that city also has a broadcasting system.

Under the plan of the radio commission, adjacent city police radio stations have identical frequencies — patrolmen in each get the emergency broadcasts simultaneously.

State patrolmen in some areas get the alarm and are on the lookout for the fugitive to intercept him on the highway.

Commission officials plan a conference within a few months of delegates from radio-equipped police departments to discuss means to improve the instrument's effectiveness.

Commission engineers urge general adoption of a system whereby a station in one city with an emergency crime report can break in on neighboring city routine broadcasts, such as license numbers of stolen cars.

TEXAS RACE TIGHTENS UP ON TUESDAY

Houston Is Beaten While Her Nearest Rivals Get Victories.

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Pennant strings in the second half Texas league marathon were tightened Tuesday afternoon and night when Beaumont, Dallas and Fort Worth won, while Houston lost and Wichita Falls was routed out.

The Beaumont Exporters, holders of second place, gained a few percentage points on the pace setting Houston Buffaloes with an 8 to 6 verdict over Shreveport. It was the opening game of Beaumont's thirteen-day home stand—a stay in which the Exporters hope to sweep into first place. To defeat Shreveport, the Exporters turned in a game that sparkled with fast fielding from Urban, Holley and Wyatt. Oscar Tuero, veteran spitballer, started for Shreveport. Oscar was good for one inning. Moulton relieved him and was treated a la Tuero fashion by the Exporters. John Wyatt, former big league hurler, went the route for Beaumont. Besides his pitching, Wyatt secured three hits and accepted four fielding chances without a booby. Shreveport played ragged ball, giving the Exporters two runs in the first inning on a pair of wild throws.

Opening at San Antonio with Dick McCabe on the mound, the Fort Worth Cats sounded warning that they are not yet out of the race by defeating the Iridians, 3 to 0. McCabe, winning his 13th game of the season, limited San Antonio to eight hits.

It was a tough game for Pitcher Flinn of San Antonio to lose. He held the Cats to six hits, and really had an edge on McCabe, but two double plays in the early inning smothered a pair of San Antonio threats. The Cats got their first run when Paul Gribble walked and advanced on Catcher Meyer's single in the second inning, scoring on a fielder's choice. The Cats added two more runs in the fourth when Frey, new outfielder, singled through shortstop with the bases full. All three runs were earned off Flinn.

The Houston Buffaloes, who had the league critics talking last week by virtue of 12 consecutive victories, are now hitting the bumps. Their once safe first place berth started to rock Sunday when Galveston stopped the Buffaloes' winning streak. Galveston made it two straight Monday, and then turned the Buffaloes over to Dallas. The Steers opened Tuesday night with a 4 to 3 decision to give Houston three consecutive defeats.

Tenth Victory
Lefty Minogue, Dallas' leading hurler, registered his tenth victory of the season.

Houston got to Minogue for three runs in the first round, making things look black for the Dallas southpaw, but successive base hits by Ernie Holman, Sam Langford, Cowboy Jones, Leo Cotter and George Loepf permitted the Steers to tie the score in the fourth. In the first of the eighth, the Steers got to Payne for the run that beat the league leaders. Langford led the attack on Payne with three hits. Medwick got the same number of hits to lead Houston's attack on Minogue.

GERMANY

from Berlin immediately after their conference in an attempt to bring about a Franco-German understanding which was considered indispensable for restoring peace in Europe.

German official circles believe they see an inclination in Paris to forget about political conditions regarding credits, and rather to welcome a conference of peers with no advance string attached. The Wilhelmstrasse has let Paris, as well as other important capitals, such as London and Washington, know that the present government can fully command the situation provided nothing is done to undermine its present unquestioned authority.

"The working class is least affected by the bank holiday, credit restrictions and regulations to be promulgated against the hoarding of foreign exchange," said a foreign office spokesman.

"Wages and salaries will be paid, as will also doles and benefits so that neither the police nor the ministry of the interior nor opposition movements see any sign of an alarming Communist problem."

ROBBERS GET $20,000
STAPLES, Minn., July 15. (AP)—Five bandits, taking advantage of pay day for railway shopmen, looted the First National bank of $20,000 today. Ten persons, including a policeman in the bank as a customer, were forced to lie on the floor. The gunmen took money from Cashier Wickets and forced an officer to open the vault.

LEGISLATURE

conservation was brought into the first day's discussion in the house. Rep. C. J. Sherrill of Bellevue termed the Graves resolution the answer of the administration to the Satterwhite proposal, claiming Satterwhite's resolution "threw a bombshell that scared the administration."

Speaker Is Fuzzed

Speaker Fred Minor and house officials continued to ponder the puzzling question of to which committee the oil conservation bills should be sent. Independents claimed the administration was trying to steer shy of the regularly appointed oil and gas mining committee. Read Granberry, house parliamentarian, said no decision had been reached on the question but that the bills could be construed so the bills could go either to the oil committee or the conservation and reclamation committee.

The oil committee was formed to deal specifically with oil and gas matters while the conservation and reclamation committee deals with all the phases of that subject, Granberry said.

One Is Submitted

The first bill on oil introduced in the house, however, was sent to the oil committee. It was introduced by Representative D. Richardson of Grand Saline and set waste as "production in excess of market demand" and taking oil from sands when there was no market demand at the well at the price equal to the actual value of the oil. It did not provide for establishment of a separate conservation commission to administer the conservation laws.

Richardson's bill also set up a rule whereby the actual value of the oil was defined. It provided for penalties of from $1,000 to $5,000 for wasteful production, with each day's violation a separate offense.

In arguing for the Satterwhite resolution, Representative T. H. McGregor of Austin said the oil industry was not the only item to be considered by the legislature, declaring that where 500,000 persons were interested because they were paying for the product.

"Let us turn on the lights and see what is wrong with the oil industry," McGregor stated.

The house adjourned until 10 a. m. tomorrow.

AUSTIN, July 15. (AP)—The need for conservation of the state's natural resources, oil, gas, soil and water, was stressed by Gov. Ross S. Sterling today in his message to the special session of the legislature.

Cites Postponement

Governor Sterling told the lawmakers he withheld calling the session for several weeks, hoping the conservation problem might be worked out through voluntary public effort, but that such effort apparently had proved fruitless.

"The oil industry, one of the state's principal sources of wealth, is demoralized and tottering on its foundations," the governor said. "Thousands of people, directly dependent upon the industry, are going bankrupt; hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of others are feeling the effects indirectly; and the state itself is losing millions of dollars annually in reduced gross production receipts—all due to the wanton release and waste of oil and gas which nature has been storing up for thousands of years in the subterranean sands."

Soil Is Sapped

The government said the impoverishment and deterioration of the state's agricultural lands, already in advanced stages in some sections, was creating a conservation problem which "bids fair in the not distant future" unless checked, to attain distressing proportions, directly affecting the welfare of every farmer in the state whose soil is being sapped of its fertility through erosion and lack of proper rotation of crops.

"State assistance and counsel, properly directed along proven scientific lines, could do much toward preserving the quality of the soil, and spare the tillers thereof incalculable losses from diminished productivity."

Governor Sterling said the public waters were becoming more and more important as a natural resource as the state grew. "More and more they are coming into demand for power, irrigation, and municipal use. While we have a water board for their conservation, we should look well to keeping our facilities abreast of the changing requirements of the times, lest we fail to realize the full public benefits of our waters."

Quotes Constitution

The governor referred to that clause of the constitution which says the conservation of natural resources is a public right and duty. "Existing laws are inadequate to carry out the conservation clause of the state constitution, and in consequence the state is suffering grievously."

"A grave crisis confronts the state in the conservation of its natural resources. The earth's reservoirs of oil and gas are being drained and virtually thrown away and enormous underground waste is resulting from the orgy of disorderly production."

Up to Legislature

Governor Sterling said that "Texas of today owes a solemn moral obligation to Texas of tomorrow, not to exhaust and dissipate its resources needlessly so as to deprive oncoming generations of their benefits."

"Much study and consultation has strengthened my belief that conservation of our natural resources could best be achieved through a unified program of effort for conserving all natural resources. And so I commend this idea to your earnest consideration, confident of your wisdom to work out a constructive plan that will meet the emergency, give effect to the constitution and safeguard the state's interest in its natural properties, now and in the future."

Bill Is Submitted

AUSTIN, July 15. (AP)—The legislature today received its first soil and oil conservation bills.

Senator John W. Hornsby of Austin offered a bill which would permit the railroad commission to fix the price of oil where the pipeline purchaser and the seller could not agree. The price would be in relation to the price of gasoline with a fair return allowed for transportation, refining and sale.

Hornsby's bill also would force a pipeline company to take oil offered by the public before it ran its own production. Damages and penalties of $500 a day were provided to enforce the proposed law.

Senator Walter F. Woodul of Houston, considered one of the administration leaders, had a bill introduced to permit a land owner to eject a neighbor from draining his property through a violation of regulation.

Protects Values

The bill would prevent a person from so drawing, operating, drilling or proposing to drill such a number of wells as would involve wasteful and expensive offsetting and would prohibit the pursuance of mineral "exploitation" so as to substantially decrease the value of his neighbor's property.

May Mud Out Blazing Producer

KILGORE, July 15. (AP)—B. F. "Blackie" De Long, explosives expert, was called from the burning Bell and Graddy well here today to take charge of quelling the flames at Vitek No. 2 well at Overton.

De Long directed the work of clearing boilers and other debris from around the Bell and Graddy well and was awaiting the outcome of the tunneling experiment before shooting the well.

If the Bell and Graddy well fire can be extinguished by pumping mud into its shaft through the tunnel, the use of explosives will not be necessary. Completion of the tunnel, which was aimed to strike the well shaft 25 feet below the surface, was expected today.

The shooting method will probably be used to extinguish the Vitek well fire. De Long consulted with J. E. Elaine and A. C. Smith, chemical experts, relative to the best plan to be used.

STORE IS ROBBED
