GLADEWATER GUSHER TAMED UNDER COMPLETE CONTROL

Valve Is Fitted Over Casing Two Weeks After Heavy Flow Started.

TYLER, May 13. (AP)—Headquarters of the Sinclair Oil company here today announced its No. 1 well near Gladewater, which blew in unexpectedly more than two weeks ago, was brought under complete control this morning. Nine lives were lost in a fire that followed several days after the producer came in.

A valve was fitted over the casing of the well at 7:45 a. m. today and preparations were made to turn the flow into storage. No gusher had been made but flow of the well was estimated at 25,000 barrels of oil daily. The well caught fire April 28.

M. M. and Harry Kinley, oil well fire fighters, were sent to extinguish the flaming geyser last week with a heavy charge of nitrogen after it had raged for eight days.

High officials of the Sinclair company came from New York to assist in directing efforts to subdue the well and Governor Ross Sterling sent state rangers to protect the countryside about the well to guard against further loss of life.

The body of Bill Harroun, brother of Glenn Harroun, production superintendent of the company, never was recovered from the fire, although the body was seen by men who were recovered and identified.

Brass and bronze tools, especially fashioned to obviate the danger of sparks such as those which ignited the well when steel tools clashed together, were used in capping the well.

Workmen labored for days wearing asbestos clothing as they dragged steel machinery from the burning gusher to prepare for the explosive blast which finally stilled its roar.

EMPLOYEE'S MOTHER DIES
Mrs. L. W. Bowen of Dallas, mother of Glenn Gressett, employee of the Pampa NEWS-POST, died this morning at 4:30 o'clock, according to word received by Mr. Gressett. The body will be sent to Meridian, Miss., the old home of the family, for burial. Mr. Gressett, accompanied by his brother, A. J. Gressett of Amarillo, have been home only two days since visiting their mother, who had been ill for some time.

MONTREAL (AP)—Names that fit are urged on hotels by L. A. David, secretary of the Province of Quebec. He said at the county hotel keepers' convention: "Let's have no more drop ins and such Americanisms. When the American comes here it is for a change, not for the same plant nomenclature that probably has already driven him to distraction and Quebec."

Pampa's Scholastic Total Is 349 Greater

BIG PROBLEM FACES BOARD NEXT SEASON

Six-Year-Olds Again to Add Heavily to Expenses of This District; Revenues Will Be Smaller.

NEEDS REVISION

Additions to Staff Are Not Contemplated—Figures for Recent Years Show Steady Expansion.

Let no one say that Pampa is not growing. The scholastic census just completed by Mrs. J. H. Blythe shows a total of 3,474, or 349 more than this time of last year.

Beginning with the term 1927-28, the enrollments have increased annually as follows: 1921, 2,080; 1934, 3,125, and 3,474.

The school board faces a serious problem in caring for this big increase next fall. Falling revenues on account of smaller oil valuations impose a financial stringency. On the basis of from 30 to 40 pupils for each teacher, the system in the independent district would need 10 additional teachers. It is certain, however, that some method must be devised to avoid this additional expenditure.

Governor Asserts Butler "Dreams"

SEATTLE, Wash., May 13. (AP)—Governor Roland H. Hartley, in a letter to Gen. Smedley D. Butler here today, said he had been asked to form a police department for the state of Washington, commented to-day the general "must be dreaming."

General Butler said in a radio address in Baltimore last night he had been asked to form a constabulary, Washington similar to the one he expected to organize in Oregon.

Governor Hartley pointed out there was no law providing for a state constabulary, the existing statute which created the state highway patrol confining duties of that body to traffic regulations.

William D. Cole, chief of the highway patrol, likewise denied knowledge of any move to change its status.

Designation of Highway 41 Topic Of Resolutions

The resolutions were adopted by the association at a meeting held May 4 at Cordell, Okla. Sam Hawk, chairman of the commission, promised his support of the movement at the recent Corbett meeting.

"Mr. Average Citizen" Shown to Have Undesirable Characteristics

That the average citizen has many undesirable characteristics and that they can be remedied was shown in a clever presentation before the Rotary club today in a program arranged by Frank Foster, chairman of the international relations committee of the club.

Mr. Foster, F. M. Gwin, and C. P. Buckler, impersonating three physicians removed from "Mr. Average Citizen" the characteristics not conducive to good fellowship.

Lack of nerve, intolerance, selfishness, and many other traits were "removed" and replacements made, to fit the average citizen for better serving the community and nation in which he lives.

Much time and work was put into preparation and presentation of the message, which through its vividness and straightforward manner impressed as few civic club programs have.

Mrs. J. W. Garman sang two solos, accompanied by Mrs. Frank Keesh at the piano, and Prof. Schwick with violin. Mrs. F. L. Hill gave two readings and A. L. Patrick, principal of Sam Houston school, discussed international relations.

AMENDMENT NOW GOES TO TEXAS PEOPLE

First $3,000 Valuation Would Be Exempted From Levies by State; House Concurs in Resolution.

Would Not Apply in Counties Receiving Remission of Taxes; Election Will Be Held in 1932.

AUSTIN, May 13. (AP)—The senate voted 29 to 1 today to pass a house resolution proposing an exempting $3,000 of the taxable value of homesteads from state ad valorem tax levies. As passed by the house the resolution would have exempted $2,000 of the value.

Homesteads of persons within counties receiving remissions of state taxes would not be exempted from ad valorem taxation.

The house immediately concurred in the senate amendments to the resolution. The proposed amendment will be submitted to the people during the general election in 1932.

The senate voted 13 to 8 against printing the Johnson delinquent tax collection bill on a minority report. Senator Woodward of Coleman, sponsor of the bill, immediately moved to reconsider the vote. The Woodward motion was withdrawn.

Communists of Spain Outwitted

MADRID, May 13. (AP)—Moving swiftly on reports that communists planned a raid on the Bank of Spain, the government mobilized troops and posted them about the bank building this morning in the strongest display of military power Madrid has seen in years.

Gallop toward the center of the city from the barracks where they had been held, ready this Sunday, cavalrymen surrounded the bank in which the bank stands, guiding their horses among the gathering crowd which was to have staged a demonstration at noon.

Unconfirmed reports said communists had organized the demonstration and had planned to raid the bank while the main body of the crowd engaged the police.

Half an hour after orders had been issued regular army units had taken their positions to defend the bank. There were light artillery, machine gun crews, tank and armored cars to support the infantry.

Traffic was detoured, stores were closed and the shutters rattled down over the bank windows as its doors were bolted against attack.

It was a striking half hour as the soldiers swung into the avenue, set up their guns and prepared for action.

Evidently the strong display intimidated the crowd, for there was no disorder and in fifteen minutes the demonstrators began to leave and the troops were recalled to quarters.

In other parts of Spain disorders were subsiding but the provincial governors maintained martial law.

In Valencia smoke still rose from 14 burned and burning Catholic buildings and soldiers with fixed bayonets guarded the ruins. There was looting in the night but today, the troops were under orders to shoot to kill and the streets were quiet. Damage there from the fires was estimated at half a million dollars.

At Granada the mob ran wild through the streets until early this morning. Three convents and the Jesuit faculty residence have been burned and looted there.

From Santander came unconfirmed reports that the Bourbon summer palace had been stripped of valuables and the Guadalupe police were guarding Catholic buildings there.

Five deaths since Sunday were reported from Cordova and at all points the atmosphere still was tense.

Business is tied up and the stock exchange remains closed. The peseta dropped again today to 10.2 to the dollar.

Lubbock Sport Scribe Strains At Knot and Swallows Football

The proposed one-year rule of the Inter-scholastic League failed to pass at the recent meeting of officials of the organization.

This means that athletes who move with their families to new cities will be able to compete for places on the football teams of next fall. Coach Odus Mitchell of Pampa high school was not strenuously opposed to the proposed rule.

It was the consensus of opinion at the Lions club table where the subject was discussed that the rule had its good and bad points, and that if it were adopted one year's notice should be given.

Collier Parris, sports writer for the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, fires us with these words:

"I'm glad," opines Perry Malin, sports writer for the Amarillo News-Globe, Jerry ought to be glad, and so should Amarillo, Pampa, and a few of the other boys up in that direction. With the one-year residence rule in effect, Amarillo would have had to depend on home town boys to carry their colors on the gridiron.

"And Pampa would be in a bad way for the coming season also had the ruling been put into effect. Pampa had a fairly good team last season and most of the boys had moved to that little oil town on their own accord and not because the long green with football togs tied to one end had waved in their direction.

"BUT NOW, IT'S DIFFERENT. Pampa has an all-state fullback from Alabama, Tennessee, or some other seaport state, three or four good men from the Corsicana Tigers, all those who looked anyway good in towns from Spearman to Panhandle and from Las Vegas to Shamrock, and who knows how many more. PAMPA WILL HAVE A FOOTBALL TEAM THIS FALL BUT THE LINEUP WILL READ LIKE THE REGISTRATION OF A WEST TEXAS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CONVENTION, including visiting speakers, Saulsbury and Lard, really home boys, won't even be missed, although one did make the mythical all-state team and the other was mentioned frequently."

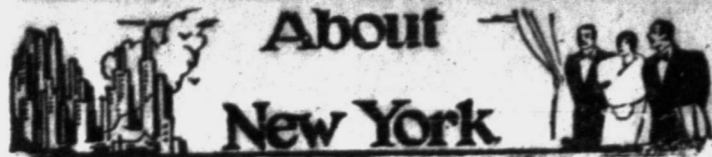

There are just about as many errors in the Lubbock effusion above as well could be in a loosely flung bit of column slush. Pampa's team next season will have just as many local names as did the eleven which beat Lubbock at Lubbock in 1930.

Maybe the Lubbock genius cast a soulful glance at the motto, "Accuracy is a Virtue of Little Minds," and proceeded to elaborate upon the rumors which had reached his eager ear.

As the Atchison Globe said of a neighbor scribe the other day, can it be possible that "when the Lubbock writer's brain pulsates it makes a noise like a model T disturbing a camp meeting?"

Frankly, this writer likes Lubbock and he refuses to believe what is passed to him in the form of rumor. If he were more gullible, he would believe that Lubbock divided the athletes between Lubbock high and Texas Tech, that Lubbockites wear headlights to see their way about through the dust, and that the people are so hungry they eat the boll worms off the cotton.

Some things are interesting if true, but the accusations of the Lubbock sport column are so inspired by rumor and tempered with inaccuracy that they can only be termed drivel devised to give the linotype operators a job.

About New York

NEW YORK—Town patter: Marlene Dietrich's favorite tune maker is the musical saw. Broadway gals are wearing slave rings now. Easily slipped off.

Mrs. Paul Warburg, Sr., makes her gardeners send ice-packed, home-grown flowers to her wherever in the world she happens to be traveling.

Floyd Dell's trademark—long sideburns. Fifth avenue photo shops are galleries of famous faces—in one, Lillian Gish—another, John Erskine—a third, Jean Harlow and Norma Shearer.

Windfall: Edna Wallace Hopper has just drawn a luxury of 10 cents each.

Sign says, "Old fashioned". Not at that price. Snouder's drug store at Oyster Bay, which had the first telephone in that town has been modernized after 50 years.

Robert D. Thomas, Ardmore, Okla., writes in to give the technique of snipe-hunting. Don't we know!

New York credo: That the only champagne available is carbonated cider. That rich people never have fun, but are eternally bored.

Why, three elephants paraded down a movie theater without a single small toy following in the wake.

Candor Crack: At Jackson $6.00 a seat for his current show, "Wonder Bar," was too much. The audience didn't know whether he was kidding or sympathizing.

The first thing Matisse, French pot of modern art collectors, visits when he comes here is the cage of the black panther at the Bronx zoo.

Hunkapillar, one of its members, who recently was elected president of the Seventh district, Texas Federation of Women's clubs. Dr. Emma Althea Hicks, secretary, also was named an honor guest.

Each member invited a special guest, and presidents of other clubs in the city were sent special invitations.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Cook, who introduced them to Mrs. John V. Andrews, club president. Mrs. Andrews, in turn, introduced them to Mrs. Hunkapillar.

HAIR WITH THE GLINT OF YOUTH

You've washed it frequently, you've tried innumerable shampoos, you've fretted and fumed, yet your hair is still a "problem." Lustreless, brittle hair, a dry or an oily scalp is not so much the result of lack of care as it is lack of PROPER care.

Such a condition can not be overcome by haphazard methods. Individually prescribed treatments offer the only possible remedy. At the Georgette, a qualified hair and scalp expert will make her diagnosis after careful examination. Future treatments will follow the dictates of these suggestions. Hence, we will overcome scalp deficiencies by scientific, not haphazard means.

ATHLETICS BEGIN TO REPEAT THEIR RECORD OF 1930

BOB GROVE'S PITCHING HAS FINE BACKING

Mound Performances Good Everywhere Weather Is Not Hindrance.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR. The 1931 baseball season follows the pattern set by two previous years, the Philadelphia Athletics are due to win their third straight American League pennant.

In 1929, Philadelphia required five weeks to get into first place but never was ousted. Last year, the A's dropped as low as fourth early in the season, climbed back to the top in May, dropped out again to regain the post June 1 for all but two days of the remainder of the season.

Ed Brandt of the Boston Braves won his fifth straight victory by beating Cincinnati 4 to 2 in their first game of double header, then Bill Johnston reversed the decision by a 3 to 2 count in a fine mound duel with Bruce Cunningham.

Three other National League games suffered the same fate as two in the American, giving way to cold and wet weather.

That statement made Cingman mad all through. He said that Reynolds will be up against no eastern molly-coddle at the Majestic.

Tomorrow night's battle will be the first in the Panhandle for Reynolds. He has been wrestling thru-out the east where he has been a sensation.

CHALLENGE IN FACE OF YANK NET ENTRIES

England, France, and Japan Likely To Compete For American Titles.

NEW YORK, May 13. (AP)—America's tennis players perhaps should begin to prepare now for what may turn out to be the heaviest foreign challenge in years for our national championships.

The United States Lawn Tennis Association revealed today that England, France, and Japan are likely to enter representatives in the American championships.

Since the Wightman cup matches are to be played in this country, members of the British team also will enter the national women's tournament, and in addition, Great Britain plans to send over four or five of its leading men players.

The proposed visit of a French team is in its tentative stage but the tri-color probably will be borne aloft by three or four players.

Johnny Farrell on GOLF

Here's the Farrell "fighting face" when the going gets rough.

BY JOHNNY FARRELL Former American Open Champion As Told to ALAN GOULD NO. 11. MATCH PLAY EASIER

Although I have had most of my success at medal play, I think match play is easier and less of a strain.

One of the big lessons I have learned in golf competition is that you win when you least expect it.

I thought Hagen was the smartest golfer I had ever seen. I noticed a trick he had of pulling a club from his bag while waiting for an opponent to size up his shot and play.

Years later, in the final of the 1923 P. G. A. championship, I was playing Hagen. In the third hole, my drive was a little in front of Hagen's.

The winner of the trial last year, Uncle Luther, did not place in the derby but Uncle Luther did not have as formidable a record as a three-folded as has the Shady Brook farm thoroughbred.

CHRISTIANS IN TRIUMPH FOR FOURTH TIME

Abilene College Finishes 11 Points Ahead of Men From Denton.

By BILL PARKER Associated Press Sports Writer DENTON, May 13. (AP)—Six new records and a featured 20th annual Texas intercollegiate track and field events yesterday which was clinched by the Abilene Christian college thiney, caps winning their fourth consecutive championship.

Abilene Christian, with 49 points, finished 11 points in front of North Texas state teachers college of Denton, who registered 38 points.

With a mild wind blowing across the field and a dry track, the 120 athletes here yesterday challenged record after record, and some of the marks to fall had been in good standing for years.

In the preliminaries Tuesday Gray, Abilene Christian, turned the 440-yard run in 50 1/2 for a new record. In the finals yesterday he bettered this with a new time of 49.3.

Great in Hurdles In the 220-yard low hurdles, the entries raced with the wind to their backs, and Lawrence, Abilene Christian college, made a new conference mark of 24-flat, beating the previous best time of 24.6.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "HEART HUNGRY," etc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Gypsy McBride, 19-year-old New York typist, marries Jim Wallace the day after she meets him at the home of her wealthy cousin, Ann Trowbridge. Gypsy has been jilted by Alan Crosby, just returned from a year and a half in Paris studying art. Wallace's fiancée has broken their engagement to marry a richer man.

Jim and Gypsy go to Forest City where Jim has a thriving law practice. His relatives snub Gypsy. Alan Crosby writes to her but she returns the letter unopened. Marcia Loring, Jim's former fiancée, marries Brock Phillips, millionaire's son.

Months pass and Brock Phillips is killed in a fall from a horse. Marcia returns to Forest City. She consults Jim about financial affairs and later tells him her marriage to Phillips was a mistake. Jim tries to remain loyal to Gypsy but sees Marcia frequently. Hurt because she believes Jim has taken Marcia Phillips to himself, Gypsy accepts Frank Gibson's invitation to dress her home from a shopping tour. There is a collision and Gypsy's ankle is sprained. Another motorist takes her home. Jim is attentive during the days while the ankle is healing. He comes home one evening and gives Gypsy a letter to read.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLIII
Gypsy took the letter and looked at the handwriting on the envelope. The slanting script was unfamiliar. "Who's it from?" she asked.

"Read it. You'll find out," Jim answered.

There was something about his expression that puzzled Gypsy. She looked at the envelope again. It was addressed to James R. Wallace at his office. She drew out the folded sheet of note paper.

"Catherine Fowler" was the name signed at the bottom of the single sheet.

"But who—?" the girl began.

"Go ahead and read it," Gypsy read—slowly at first and then with quickening interest.

"Dear Mr. Wallace," the letter began. "I am writing this because I feel I must. You probably know that a week ago I was acquitted in my trial. My lawyer pleaded self-defense. We are told that time heals all things. It will be a long while before the horror of these past weeks can possibly leave me but I want you to know that never will I forget how you and Mrs. Wallace helped me and gave me courage to do the right thing at the very crisis of it all."

"I am going away for a long rest. Bobby is well again and is going with me. When I look at my child—I feel that he really is my child—it is with the knowledge that nothing can cloud our future happiness. I shall devote the rest of my life to raising Bobby and teaching him to be a good man."

"No one in this world will ever know what my suffering was that morning Mrs. Wallace came to see me. I don't think I could have gone on. Will you please tell her for me that I bless her name and that if ever there is any way in which I can repay you two I will consider it a great privilege. Very sincerely—Catherine Fowler."

"When did you go to see her, Gypsy? What does she mean by saying you gave her courage to do the right thing?"

"It wasn't really anything I did, Jim. I couldn't tell you because I promised I wouldn't. It was the last day of the trial."

"Gypsy! Was it you who made that woman come down and confess to me that she shot her husband?"

The girl shook her head. "No," she said. "I don't think it was. You see you were so sure Nina was going to be convicted and that she was innocent—and so was I—that I couldn't stand it. I went out to see Mrs. Fowler as a last resort. I'm not sure just what I thought would happen but when I got there she was nearly crazy because the boy was sick. Somehow when I looked at her I knew she did it. I was sure of it. All I had to do was to tell her who I was and she broke down and admitted everything. I told her to go to you and you'd tell her what to do. Isn't it wonderful she feels the way she does now? I'm so glad, Jim."

"So it was really you who won the Roberts case!"

"Oh, no, Jim! Why, it wasn't at all. That's silly! She'd have confessed anyhow. I know she would. She had the idea that the reason Bobby was sick was because she was letting someone else pay the penalty for what she'd done. She thought Bobby was going to die. The poor woman didn't seem to know what she was saying or doing."

"Just the same, you were the one who made her confess!"

"I wish you wouldn't say that. It isn't true. She did it because she couldn't help herself. It was her own conscience that made her tell. Fowler didn't realize that there were two lawyers in the family but that was a fine thing to do. I take off my hat to you!"

"Now you're trying to change the subject. Of course he was treated his wife like a brute. Well, Gypsy, I didn't realize that there were two lawyers in the family but that was a fine thing to do. I take off my hat to you!"

"I couldn't ever be a lawyer but I know one I'm proud of."

"Jim sank into a chair beside her and took her hand. "Maybe we could form a partnership," he said smiling.

"Maybe we could."

Gypsy was realizing how very attractive bright blue eyes can be set in a sun-browned, slightly-ruddy face above broad shoulders when Matilda entered the room.

"There's a telephone call for you, Mr. Wallace," she announced.

"Thanks. I'll be back in a minute."

"Sit down, Matilda, and stay until he comes back," Gypsy suggested. "Has Cora finished the ironing?"

"Yes. She left half an hour ago. I told her you said she was to cut some of the sweet peas and take them home."

"That's right. They'll stop blooming if they're not cut. Listen, Matilda, couldn't you give dinner up, please, tonight? Would it be a lot of extra work? Jim can bring up a card table and you could serve everything on a tray."

"You mean serve dinner for you and Mr. Wallace both?"

"That's what I mean. It would be so much more fun than eating alone and as it is you have to fix the table downstairs and bring up my tray."

"Why, sure. I can do that if you want me to."

"Oh, I think it will be fun!" Gypsy said delightedly. "Just think, for a whole week now I've eaten every single meal alone!"

When Jim returned he was told about the impromptu "picnic" and appeared to approve. He went to his room to clean up, leaving Gypsy a newspaper and several magazines. Later he set up the card table and brought up a tray loaded with silver and dishes.

At six o'clock they had dinner served on the small table beside the window. There was a cool breeze stirring and over the tops of the trees flamed a brilliant sunset. Orange shaded to deep rose and then to violet. The whole western sky became a burst of flamboyant color.

Gypsy wore a sleeveless white silk tennis dress. Her hair, instead of being pinned in a knot, was fastened at the back of her neck and the ends fell in a curling mass.

"Do you mind dining up here?" she asked.

"Like it! It's lonesome down stairs."

"Really?" the girl smiled as though she were pleased. "Oh, I forgot to tell you the news! Dr. Hollingsworth's going to bring me a crutch tomorrow. He came this morning and said it would be good for me to try walking about the room. My, I never dreamed anyone could be so excited about walking a few steps. In another week he said I ought to be able to walk without it. Another whole week! Isn't that a dreadfully long time?"

"You're luck it's as soon as that."

The girl's face sobered. "Yes," she agreed. "I suppose I am."

After their cantaloupe they had hot broiled chops with buttered asparagus and roasting ears and the muffs which Matilda made so deliciously light and crusted with golden brown. There was a pitcher of iced tea with sprigs of mint in it. Gypsy refilled Jim's glass.

"Mills will be back next week," he announced. "It looks as though I may get my vacation this summer after all."

"Oh, I'm so glad. You really do need it."

"What would you think of driving up into Canada the middle of next month? We could stop a few days in Montreal but my idea is to hit off by ourselves into some of the smaller places that aren't filled with the vacation crowd. We could drive when we wanted to and stop whenever we found a place that looked interesting. I don't mean rough it, exactly. Stay at good hotels."

"I think it would be marvelous," Gypsy told him with shining eyes. "I'd love that kind of a trip, Jim."

"The way things look now I'll be able to get away about the 15th."

They planned the vacation eagerly. After they had finished dinner and the dishes and table had been taken away Jim went down to the library and returned with a big atlas and road maps. Together they studied over these for another hour. They were still talking about the motor-trip when he said good night and went to his room.

During the next three days Gypsy's sprained ankle healed rapidly. Dr. Hollingsworth brought the crutch. The girl's first attempts to walk with it were amusing but presently she learned to hobble about the room. She no longer felt helpless.

On Sunday Jim carried her down stairs and they spent the afternoon on the cool shaded porch. During these days when she was so dependent upon him for companionship Jim's attitude toward Gypsy seemed to change. He had always been attentive in an impersonal way. Now he seemed more concerned, more thoughtful.

Deliberately the girl put Marcia Phillips out of her mind. Gypsy felt that brooding over Marcia and her wrongs had already caused enough trouble. It was directly responsible for the automobile accident in which she had so narrowly escaped serious injury—to say nothing of damaging comments.

When Marcia, clad in delicate pastel costumes, passed the house and Gypsy saw her from the window there were times when these brave resolutions went slipping.

On such occasions Gypsy told herself: "You've made an idiot of yourself. Now don't do it again! There's nothing that girl can do to you unless you pave the way for it by sitting here and pitying yourself. Stop it, Gypsy. Stop it at once!"

Usually these scoldings were helpful. She never mentioned Marcia's name to Jim and he as scrupulously avoided it.

The third evening after Gypsy had begun to use the crutch she hobbled out to the driveway where Jim had parked the roadster. He helped her into the seat and for an hour and half they drove over country roads with the night wind, cool and refreshing, beating against their faces, and blowing their hair. There was a full moon. The pavement stretched ahead of them like a gleaming ribbon of silver and the "elds at either side were almost as bright as in daylight."

Gypsy felt that she had never enjoyed a drive so much. She told Jim that as he helped her into the house later and he looked pleased.

The days slipped by and on Thursday, just two weeks after the automobile crash, Gypsy took her first step unsupported by the crutch. She rested and later in the day walked a few steps again. On Sunday she was able to move about the house, though she was very careful and held to the railing going up and down the stairs. By the middle of the week she was sure enough of herself to make a trip down town to shop. There were a few things she wanted for the vacation trip. Of course there was plenty of time ahead to buy them but she liked the thought of being ready.

The house was to be closed and Matilda was to spend the three weeks with her brother's family.

Gypsy came into the kitchen Saturday morning carrying a sheet of golden glow. The yellow blossoms were glorious.

"Look," she said, "aren't they beautiful? I'm going to put them in the purple bowl before the mirror in the hall."

"Is was just coming to tell you," Matilda said. "There's a man to see you, ma'am."

"Who is it?"

"Here's his card."

Gypsy took the card and read it, and still carrying the flowers, she hurried into the living room. The young man who had been sitting of the window arose.

"Alan!" she exclaimed.

In congratulating the winners in the great Camel contest we want at the same time to thank most cordially the approximately million men and women who displayed their friendly interest by sending in an entry.

We wish also to thank the millions of smokers throughout the country for the appreciation they are showing for our new Humidor Pack as is evidenced by the notable increase in the sale of Camel cigarettes.

By means of this dust-proof, germ-proof, moisture-proof Cellophane wrapping the rich aroma and full flavor of choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos have been air-sealed in Camels for your enjoyment.

If you have not tried Camels in the Humidor Pack all we ask is that you switch over to this brand for one day.

After you have learned how much milder, how much cooler, how much more enjoyable it is to smoke a perfectly conditioned fresh cigarette, go back to the harsh hotness of stale cigarettes if you can.

Algerian Colors Will Be Seen in Season's Style

By JANE EADS NEW YORK, May 13. (AP)—Across the Mediterranean from Algeria comes a new influence to add color and romance to the season's fashion creations. This new note, introduced at the French colonial exposition in Paris, is already gaining popularity in the most exclusive shops of American countries and will be much in evidence at fashionable gatherings this summer.

Red, green, yellow, white and black—Algerian colors—are combined in one of the most striking symphonies of the season. Together they are used in the development of scarfs, sashes, bags and turbans. Necklaces of many strands employing several or all of these colors are particularly chic with ensembles of the season.

solid colors, particularly of white. The last word in beach robes is a barbaric bathing burlesque evolved from the cape of the nomad tribesman of the desert. Fashioned from heavily-piled touting, striped in the Algerian colors, it is gathered around the figure and caught in two ivory rings on one shoulder. Its utility is one of its greatest charms, as the robe may be converted into a towel after a dip into the ocean.

Gold and silver coin jewelry and bracelets of a light composition in orange, yellow and green also reflecting the French African influence are decorative additions to the summer costume.

GAS SERVICE

(This is the fifth of a series of advertisements to give you true facts regarding the natural gas business. If you will clip and file these advertisements, you will have a valuable fund of information.) To provide a natural gas service that is dependable winter and summer, and year after year, is a task that never ceases.

If gas wells and gas fields lasted forever; if cities never grew, if pipelines never wore out—the problem of gas service would be comparatively simple. But gas wells and gas fields do become exhausted. The average life of an Oklahoma gas well, in fact, is less than three years.

Suppose the Central States Power & Light Corporation, with more than 2300 families in Pampa depending upon it to supply their fuel needs was relying on one well—and that well should suddenly quit producing.

To protect you against such a disaster, the Central States Power & Light Corporation has extended its pipelines to more than an ample number of wells to supply your needs. It has built its pipelines of sufficient size to take care of your needs not just in summer or just when there is an average gas demand, but to keep your homes warm and comfortable even during those sudden "peak load" hours when a blizzard is raging.

Every member of the Central States Power & Light Corporation's organization is dedicated to the task of providing you with Really Good Gas Service.
