COMMITTEE TO MAKE REPORT AFTER STUDY

Extent of County Aid Under Law to Be Learned and Central Group Given Main Responsibility.

MEETING CALLED

Organizations Asked to Name Representatives So That Duplication of Efforts May Be Avoided.

Definite plans for taking care of sick and hungry persons in Pampa and surrounding territory began to take larger form this morning at a meeting of citizens presided over at the city hall by Alex Schneider, chairman of the Welfare Board.

The imperative need was apparent in the reports of welfare workers and employment agency directors. Clyde Garner of the local employment office said he had 450 local men of bona fide standing on his list of unemployed.

These present voted to ascertain in writing the extent of the city and county aid to be available, and to determine the extent of assistance the law requires from county sources.

It also was voted to have another meeting tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock of one representative each from every organization interested in relief work.

It was agreed that food and clothing for school children would be one phase of the work, finding jobs for able-bodied home men another, and that a definite plan for hospitalization should be drafted.

"Mail Order Romeo" Admits Crimes

A modern "Bluebeard," Harry Powers, alias Cornelius O. Pierson, who confessed he wooed Mrs. Asta Eicher, well-to-do widow of Park Ridge, Ill., through his one-man matrimonial agency and then killed Mrs. Eicher and her three children, is shown here chained to officers who arrested him at his home near Clarksburg, W. Va.

These Children Slain

These three young children and their mother, Mrs. Asta Eicher, well-to-do widow of Park Ridge, Ill., were slain and their bodies found under a garage built near Clarksburg, W. Va., by Harry E. Powers, also known as Cornelius O. Pierson, who confessed to the crime. He was Mrs. Eicher's correspondent suitor. The children are, left to right: Annabel, 9; Greta, 14; and Henry, 12.

NEW PLAN IS TO BE READY THIS EVENING

Immediate Court Attacks Will Test Both Order and Law Under Which It Is to Be Effective.

CREWS IN FIELD

National Guardsmen on Patrol to Prevent Incendiarism at Kilgore and to Aid Commission's Staff.

AUSTIN, Aug. 31. (AP)—The Texas railroad commission deliberated today upon a new order controlling production in the highly productive East Texas oil field. It expected to issue the order late today, to be effective tomorrow.

Attorneys believed expected court attacks by oil companies upon the new commission order, then would have no effect, martial law superceding civil law in the military area.

The new order was expected to follow closely the terms of the order issued for the field last June, which provided for an allowable of 250,000 barrels a day, with special exceptions which increased the total to approximately 270,000 barrels.

Prospective court attacks were expected to involve not only the legality of the order but also the validity of the new conservation law under which it would be issued.

At its conclusion the Lindberghs assumed the role of sightseers, which will keep them busy for several days and take them to points outside of Tokyo.

The premier was not acting in his official capacity in entertaining the fliers, but rather in the capacity of a friend of Mrs. Lindbergh's father, Senator Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey.

PAMPA YOUTH MADE EDITOR

Dec Blythe Given Position on "The Prairie" At Teachers College.

An unusual honor has come to Dec Blythe, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Blythe of Pampa, through his appointment to the editorship of "The Prairie," student newspaper at West Texas Teachers college, Canyon.

News of his appointment was received this morning from Dr. J. A. Hill, president of the college. Dr. Hill outlined his duties and remarked that the publications committee had confidence in the Pampa youth.

Dec entered the Teachers college two years ago at the age of 15 after completing his work at Pampa high school in record time. Although one of the youngest students to matriculate at the Teachers college, he made good in his studies there and took part in extra-curricular activities, including reporting for the college newspaper.

He will not be 18 years until Sept. 10. Having such a good start on his college education, he will be able to devote much time to the newspaper, which is published weekly. The paper ranks as one of the best in Texas in its class, and is self-sustaining.

Mrs. Omlie Wins Handicap Derby

CLEVELAND, Aug. 31. (AP)—Mrs. Phoebe Omlie has made a habit of leading "lady birds" in flying, today was judged winner of the women's division of the National Sweepstake Handicap derby.

Scorers, working all night to rush competitive averages of 51 men and women who took a week to fly the 2,100 miles from Santa Monica, Cal., to Cleveland, gave the Memphis, Tenn., aviatrix a rating of 109.13 per cent, more than Mrs. Martie Bowman, Glendale, Cal., who rated 99.05 per cent.

The official checkers, Reg Burrows, Los Angeles, and Myron Griffin, Cleveland, added that Mrs. Omlie "is unofficially conceded the sweepstake prize also, from all indications, though ratings of all men contestants must be checked."

Mrs. Omlie, first of her sex to receive a manager's job, was flying, was first across the finish line yesterday. She won the Dixie derby of last year's air races.

CONVICTS USED TO SEARCH FOR VICTIMS OF SLAYER

West Virginia Fiend Is Little Affected by Recital of His Crimes.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 31. (AP)—Convict road gangs today began digging through the debris littering an old well near the garage of death of Harry P. Powers, 42, seeking any more victims there may be beside the five he confessed he killed in his quest of the property of matrimony-seeking women.

They dug despite the smiling statement from Powers concerning the five that "that's there are." Digging progressed because officials still held to the belief that more of the hundreds of women which whom he corresponded might have died by his hand in the bloody garage, and been buried nearby.

Formal confession of the killings of Mrs. Asta Eicher and her three children, all of Chicago, and Mrs. Dorothy Lempkegn of Worcester, Mass., was promised by Powers today, with the possibility of arraignment to receive his plea later in the day. Aliens may examine him for the state also, a move designed by the prosecutor to offset any possible insanity plea by the defense.

In almost every state of the union, meanwhile, police officers and postal authorities sought women who

Lubbock Boy Is Costly Offender

CHICAGO, Aug. 31. (AP)—In order to prosecute a 17-year-old boy for the interstate transportation of a stolen automobile valued at $35, the United States government has already expended $200 and will have to put up $1,000 more if he is sent back to Lubbock, Tex., where he allegedly obtained the car, for trial there, it was revealed today.

Prosecutors are seeking the removal of Wm. Rogers, for violation of the Dyer act. The youth and his wife came here last June in an allegedly stolen car.

He was arrested Aug. 5. Since that time it has cost the government $127.50 to maintain him in the county jail, and $6 for three hearings before U. S. Commissioner Walker.

In addition, it has cost $190 to bring her and maintain the prosecution witness, Woodrow Wilson Rampsy, owner of the car.

And if Rogers is sent back to Texas, the railroad fare and meals for himself and deputy, and salary of the deputy, will amount to $400. In addition there are the uncalculated salaries of two assistant prosecutors and deputies and office expenses.

In case Gov. Ross S. Sterling substitutes the new probation orders for the original martial law proclamation as was generally expected in oil quarters the militiamen would be called upon to see that the prohibition allowable is not violated by any producer.

FEMININE FANCIES

BE POPULAR!
Courses to be studied and plans for making good in college from a literary standpoint probably have been discussed by every future co-ed with her family. But there is one more question asked, perhaps secretly, by the prospective student: "Will I be popular?"

The ability to make friends will mean as much to a student as the ability to translate French. It should be considered intelligently.

The same means of gaining popularity used by the college girl may also be practiced by the high school or business girl.

The Pictorial Review tells that her popularity may be obtained, and we are going to pass on the principal ideas to you.

Make others feel at ease. If you do this they will like to be with you. Know yourself and put your best and most interesting qualities forward—but don't appear to be doing that.

A new girl often fails to make friends because she is afraid to appear interested. She doesn't want to ask questions or show that anything is new to her. People like to have you ask them about things they like to do little favors.

Be brave enough to take the initiative.

If a girl will just force herself to go ahead and talk to people and show an interest in whatever is going on in the world and her circle of friends broadening, an everything growing easier.

Things to be avoided.

There are girls who are shy and self-conscious because they are constantly thinking of their own appearance instead of trying to put the other person at ease. There are girls so super-sensitive that they cannot stand the give and take of life's chatter. There are girls who are too blunt in speech and girls who are careless of their appearance. All these defects of personality can be overcome if a girl admits them and definitely plans to cure them.

The freshman who wants to make a place for herself should go easy in the first year. Meet everybody halfway, but not a speck farther. The girl who pushes herself makes the others shy away from her.

A girl just has to be willing to try anything if she wants to have a good time with the crowd. She mustn't hang back and be afraid because she can't be a champion. Most of us can't be champions but we can help the fun along by trying.

Never join a clique. Be cosmopolitan in your friendship.

LARGE CROWDS HEAR REVIVAL ON WEEK-END

Large crowds greeted the workers of the Methodist revival meeting Saturday and Sunday. Saturday night Rev. Ray N. Johnson preached to a packed house upon the subject, "The Second Coming of Christ."

Mr. Johnson said that the scriptures did not state when Jesus would come back but they did state emphatically that "He would come again in like manner as ye had seen Him go." He then showed scriptural signs from the Bible that pointed to the return of the Lord. The balcony was used for the first time during the revival.

From Saturday until Sunday night there were 33 conversions or regenerations.

Sunday morning the theme was "Sinning Against the Holy Spirit; or Crossing the Dead Line." This service was the highest peak of the meeting as far as results were concerned, as 30 persons came to an altar of prayer and publicly confessed Christ as their saviour.

At the evening service Mr. Johnson's message was on "Sonship." Taking his text from the first epistle of John and the third chapter, verses one to three, Mr. Johnson said that the greatest message in the Bible was that of Sonship. He showed God's love for sinful man in that he was willing to forgive his sin and restore him to a lost spiritual image.

At the morning service Rev. Lance Webb sang "Walk Thou With Me" and at the evening service "The Wanderer." There were 60 at the young people's meeting and about 50 at the prayer meeting.

Tuesday night has been announced as "Young People's Night." The high school football team is coming in a body and also the pep squad. Rev. Johnson will bring a special message entitled "Playing the Game of Life." This message will be illustrated with true experiences of actual combat in athletic battles.

Services will continue throughout the week at 10 o'clock and 3:15 every day.

Author of "MAD MARRIAGE" ©1931 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Norma Kent, pretty 20-year-old secretary, is employed in a law office in Marlboro, middle-western metropolis. On her way to keep a dinner engagement with Bob Farrell, young lawyer, Norma sees a puppy in peril of its life in the midst of downtown traffic. A stranger rescues the dog and brings it to the girl. The stranger is good looking, well dressed and introduces himself as Mark Travers. Norma refuses to tell him her name or where he can see her again.

She takes the puppy with her and meets Bob. They buy collar and leash for the dog and then dine at a favorite restaurant. For the third time Farrell asks her to marry him. Norma refuses, saying she wants to keep her association on the basis of friendship instead of love. When she reaches the shabby apartment she shares with Christine Saunders, generally called "Chris," she finds her roommate has been crying.

Norma fears Chris is falling in love with her married employer, BRADLEY HART, proprietor of an advertising agency. The older girl refuses to tell what is troubling her. Next day Norma goes to the office of Marlboro Press to insert an advertisement about the puppy in the new and found column.

CHAPTER III
The red-haired youth glanced up from the pad on which he had been writing. His smile was pleasant, infectious.

"Did you wish to place an ad?" he asked.

Norma said that she did.

"If you'll just step over to the next counter I'll be glad to take care of it," the young man said. As he spoke he moved toward the glass-topped counter at the left. Norma followed.

"It's about a dog," she explained, opening her purse and fumbling through the contents.

"I see. Is your dog lost?"

Norma continued the search. "No," she said, "it isn't my dog and I didn't lose him. It's a puppy I found. I thought to advertise about it because I want to give a little boy or girl a gift of a terribly unhappy dog. I've written out what I want to say."

She had found what she had been looking for. From the collection of papers, coins, vanity case and other trinkets in the purse she drew a neatly typed sheet.

"Here it is!" She handed the paper across the counter. "Do you think what I've written will be all right?"

Politely the young man studied the page. He read:

Found: Puppy at Broad St. and Eighth. Gray and brown with black spot over right eye and black tail. Owner should communicate with N. Kent, 9506 Franklin St.

"Gray and brown—with black spot over the right eye," the youth read aloud. "You don't—er—say what kind of a dog it is, do you?"

"If it's so complicated as all that," he suggested, "maybe we'd better let it go. Do you want to say anything about claiming a reward?"

"Oh, no! I wasn't thinking of that."

"I see," the young man studied the typed page again. "Don't you think it might be a good thing to include your telephone number? And would you care to specify a time for people to telephone?"

Norma agreed to both proposals. What a helpful obliging person the red-haired youth was! Of course writing want ads was his business. He did that all day long. Norma had never tried to frame an advertisement. She thought her effort was considerably improved by the additions.

The youth counted the words and explained the rate of charges. It was arranged that the want ad should appear in all editions of The Press at the special price offered for three days' insertion. In case the rightful owner of the dog appeared earlier the ad could be canceled at any time.

Norma hurried back to the office of Brooks, Welliver and Brooks, feeling well satisfied with her venture. The advertisement stated that inquirers should telephone between the hours of 6 and 10 p. m. Norma gave the number of the house telephone which all the tenants used. She and Chris could not afford a private line.

Of course there would be no calls that evening. The advertisement was not to appear until next day. At 5:15 Norma met Chris on a corner mid-way between the buildings where the two girls worked. They boarded a car and rode home.

At a delicatessen shop near the apartment they bought rolls, some slices of cold meat and oranges. As they went about preparation of the evening meal Chris seemed quiet. Norma, recounted events of the day, apparently did not notice.

The housekeeping arrangements the girls employed were sketchy. After the long day in the office neither had much energy for housework yet both enjoyed the feeling that the two-burner gas plate and minute ice box constituted a real kitchen, that their shabby quarters were a home. Their weekly rent included maid service—a desultory weekly sweeping and dusting by a ponderous German woman named Helga. Marketing was a joint affair with strict accounting and settlement of the budget on Saturdays.

Generally Chris did the cooking because she enjoyed it and displayed a real knack at it. Norma would set the table, perhaps peel the vegetables, and leave the rest to her roommate. She made up for that uneven distribution of labor by supplementing Helga's dusting and keeping the living room at rights.

It was a square room, nearly 20 feet both ways. The windows looked out on a row of houses, once impressive but now as dingy and nondescript as the one in which Norma and Chris lived. Most of the structures were boarding houses or flimsy "furnish rooms" signs.

Inside the apartment was cheerful. There were lemon yellow curtains, made of theatrical gauze, at the windows. Lamp shades, the prettiness spreads over the day beds and a linen scarf across the gateley table repeated this bright color note. The furniture was a haphazard assortment.

Dinner that evening was quickly prepared and eaten. As soon as the dishes were washed and put away Norma hurried downstairs and returned with the puppy. She gave him a saucer of bread and milk.

PAUL DERRINGER EASILY BEST ROOKIE OF THIS SEASON

CARD HURLER LIKELY TO BE SERIES CHOICE

Shuts Out Pirates With Ease; Haines Is His Only League Rival.

By GAYLE TABOT, Associated Press Sports Writer

Traveling at his present clip, Big Paul Derringer of the St. Louis Cardinals will have little difficulty qualifying as the outstanding major league rookie of 1931. He might even, with a little luck, finish his first season as the leading pitcher of the National League.

When he shut out the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5 to 0, in the first game of a double header yesterday, the former Rochester ace fixed his record for the year at 15 victories and six defeats. His winning average is topped by only one regular, Jess Haines, also of the Cardinals. Making part in 29 games, he has struck out 107 batters, including the 10 Pirates who took three futile swings yesterday.

Is Big Fellow

Although he set a brilliant record with Rochester last year, the 215-pound Kentuckian scarcely was expected to prove one of the principal cogs of the Cardinals fine staff. His first season in fast company. As matters stand, he is likely to draw a starting assignment against the Athletics in one of the opening games of the world series.

In setting the Pirates down yesterday, Derringer yielded only six scattered hits while his teammates romped on Remy Kemer and Bob Osgorn for 14. Bill Hallahan made it unanimous for the day by beating the Buccaneers, 4 to 1 in the nightcap. Although he allowed seven hits, as many as his mates could get off Spencer and Wood, Hallahan balanced things by striking out 13.

While the two card twirlers set a hot pace, the distinction of being the day's outstanding performance went to Phil Collins of the Phillies, who allowed only one hit in beating the New York Giants.

Lefty Ed Braudt chalked up his 17th victory as the Boston Braves humbled the Brooklyn Robins, 3 to 2, in the first half of a twin bill. The Robins came from behind to beat Tom Zachary in the night cap, 4 to 2.

Malone Is Beaten

The Cincinnati Reds fell upon Pat Malone for four runs in the eighth inning to square their series with the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 3. Reddies had only one bad inning, also the eighth, in which the Cubs scored twice.

Twenty-two thousand Boston fans watched the Red Sox take a 14 to 4 plastering from the New York Yankees. Led by Lou Gehrig, who belted his 37th homer, a double and two singles, the Yanks collected 21 hits off four Sox curvers. Ben Chapman contributed a brace of home runs to the assault.

Using a second string battery, the Athletics caught one of their infrequent beatings from the Washington Senators, 5 to 1. Myer, Manush and West led a futile attack on the veteran Eddie Rommel, while Alvin Crowder held the A's in check.

Goose Goslin smashed six hits, including a homer and two doubles, as the St. Louis Browns turned on the Cleveland Indians and swept a doubleheader, 8 to 2 and 6 to 3.

The Chicago White Sox committed eight errors and their four pitchers allowed 12 bases on balls, but they defeated Detroit, 10 to 8, in 12 innings.

STEERS LOSE TO INDIANS—WINS HALTED

Rookies, Given Careful Chance, Allow Too Many Hits and Runs Sunday.

By WILLIAM A. (BILL) PARKER, Associated Press Sports Writer

Yesterday saw the Dallas Steers break their six-game winning streak when they lost to the San Antonio Indians, 7 to 3. Manager Hap Morse gave a couple of his rookie hurlers a chance, but they spoiled things by allowing San Antonio too many hits and runs for Dallas' own good. Alken, a right hander who had never witnessed a Class A baseball game until he joined Dallas a week ago, opened for the Steers. He pitched shutout ball for four innings. He allowed only four hits and struck out three, but after allowing two runs in the fifth he was relieved by Mallett in the sixth who was in turn relieved by Whitehead, another rookie who worked in his first game for the Steers. Tom Estell, veteran spitball hurler, went the route for San Antonio, holding the Steers to seven hits.

Houston and Fort Worth split a doubleheader. Leon Chagnon's eight hit pitching beat the Buffaloes 2 to 1 in the initial go. Chagnon outpitched George Washington Payne, second ranking pitcher in the league. Hason stopped Fort Worth with six hits in the nightcap to beat the combined pitching efforts of Jim Harris and Paul Gribble, 9 to 4. Shreveport made the Galveston Buccaneers walk the plank for a double defeat. It required 10 innings for Shreveport to annex the first game 5 to 4. Cy Cashion's home run gave Shreveport the second game, 2 to 1.

Beaumont swept a doubleheader from Wichita Falls. Luke Hamlin smothered the Spudders with six hits in the first game for a 4 to 0 decision. Buck Marrow allowed 10 hits in the second game, but lusty hitting by his mates gave him an 8 to 4 victory over Lester White and Pressnell, Wichita Falls mound ace.

STORY

Then she sat down on the floor to watch him eat.

A bell rang sharply, signifying that one of the girls was wanted downstairs. Chris went into the hall and looked down over the balustrade.

"It's for you, Miss Saunders. Telephone!" Norma could hear Bessie Hawthorne's nasal voice floating upward.

The last thought which entered Norma's head before sleep crowded everything before it was that she must remember to buy a copy of The Press early next day to read her advertisement. She wondered dreamily how long it would be before there would be an inquiry about the dog.

The first inquiry came much sooner than she had expected. As the girls entered the hallway next evening the slim figure of Bessie Hawthorne appeared, silhouetted against the light in a near apartment.

"Oh, Miss Kent—" Bessie called. "Is that you? There's been a woman phoning to ask about the dog. The first time she asked for you and the second time she wanted to know if she could leave a message. She said it was about the advertisement in The Press—"

"Does she think the puppy is hers?"

"Well—I guess that's why she called but I think she must be mistaken. She wanted to know was it a bull dog and I told her no. Then she wanted to know how big it was. It seems this dog she lost was a bull pup and I don't think she liked it much when I told her the one here was just a little puppy."

Norma laughed. "I agree with you," she said. "I don't think we have her dog."

Chris had been listening, mounted on the first stair. She spoke up now. "At that you too a risk, Bessie—saying the pup wasn't a bull dog. I'd hate to make a bet on that dog's ancestry!"

Bessie considered this remark seriously and glanced toward Norma.

"Chris doesn't mean a thing," the younger girl explained quickly. "She's just teasing. I hope you're not going to be bothered by a lot of calls, Bessie. The ad told people to call between 6 and 10 p. m. when I'd be here to answer—"

"Oh, I don't mind. Anyhow this woman said she might come over later in the evening."

and get dinner over so we'll be ready to talk to her. Thanks, Bessie."

"That's all right, Miss Kent."

Chris were broiled hastily. Norma made a salad of tomatoes and lettuce and mayonnaise. There was puddling in the ice box left from the night before.

"There's no use rushing so for that woman," Chris reminded Norma as they sat down at the table. "It's certain you don't have her dog."

"No. But somebody else may come."

It was at that moment that the bell shrilled loudly.

"I'll go!" Norma sprang to her feet and ran into the hall. She had supposed it was the telephone but at the foot of the stairs she met Bessie.

"It's a man," Bessie said in a hushed voice, "to see you."

The door of the vestibule stood ajar but Norma could not see who was waiting. She stepped forward, pulled the door back. For a long moment she stared at the figure in the doorway.

Schaaf to Box Campolo Tonight, If and Perhaps

NEW YORK, Aug. 31. (AP)—Eric Schaaf and Vittorio Campolo, a pair of hopeful heavyweights from Boston and Argentina respectively, will make another attempt to hold their 12-round battle at Ebbets field tonight.

The bout, originally scheduled for last Wednesday, was postponed. Threatening weather was given as the cause of the postponement but there were reports that the absence of paying customers influenced the decision.

Since then, both battlers have done some extra training and a public quarrel between Schaaf and his mentor, Jack Sharkey, has been added to the ballyhoo. The Bostonian, who has slugged his way into prominence in recent months, remains a 2 to 1 favorite over the Argentine, whose fights often have been disappointing, despite Campolo's weight advantage of some 50 pounds.

Dempsey Ready To Fight Anyone

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 31. (AP)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, said in a radio interview last night that he was ready to take on all comers.

His manager put in the reservation "if terms are right," and said Dempsey probably would continue exhibition matches until the first of the year, "when he ought to be able to take the best of them — Max Baer."

Dempsey, after a workout here in preparation for four rounds of exhibition tonight with Cyclone Thompson, Yankima, Wash., and possibly three others said that after an exhibition in Salt Lake City, Sept. 14, he would go to the Champion gold mine at Midas, Nevada, for ten days of "mucking" to get in condition.

DECAY OF POLITICAL THOUGHT

Gone, it appears, is public willingness to fight for a principle of government. Necessity breaks down political theories if, indeed, we may be said to have any such systems in this jazz age.

In colonial days, the fathers of this republic said "that government is best which governs least" and they viewed with distrust any plan to put their public officials in authority over private enterprise. Under the title of "The Rule of the Sword," the Daily OKLAHOMAN wrote as follows:

"Theoretically, the people of East Texas are free and independent. Practically, they are neither free nor independent. Portions of East Texas are now under martial law, and martial law knows nothing of freedom and independence. The people around Tyler have learned that the only rights they now enjoy are such rights as the military authorities see fit to grant them. The supreme law of the pine barrens is the will of a military dictator.

Those who are opposed to military control of the oil producing counties and feel that military occupancy of the oil fields is unjust and unnecessary prepared to meet in protest in Tyler. With due respect for the governing authorities they asked for permission to hold their meetings of protest. But permission was denied them by General Wolters, military representative of Governor Sterling and commander of the oil field militia. . . . Once there was another side when military might challenged the mandate of the American constitution. That other side is expressed in definite language in the American bill of rights. Congress shall make no law respecting . . . the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

"In the days when Americans counted their rights as free men more valuable than economic benefits and a stated price for crude petroleum, that other side was guarded with a religious vigilance."

had written to Powers in his guise of Cornelius O. Pierscy, wealthy and home-seeking engineer.

Once yesterday Powers told his questioners he did not know how many persons he had killed. Later he insisted there were but five—those whose bodies already have been recovered.

Details of the killings came from him little by little, while at the scene four miles from here gangs dug amid throngs of curious and souvenir hunters who almost destroyed the death garage in chipping fragments from it.

He brought the two women and three children to the lonely garage building "about August 1," he said kept them a while in the dark, hollow cubicles of concrete and all while he had constructed secretly in the cellar, and then brought them into the light and air above only to die at rope's end and by hammer blows, and suffer—crude, clandestine burial.

"Let Him Have It" Harry Eicher, 12, saw his mother killed. Powers said "but in the middle of it he let out an awful scream. I was afraid the neighbors would hear it so I picked up a hammer and let him have it."

Discovery of his victims, and telling of his confession, seemingly affected Powers little, once he had broken and revealed his secret. He ate well, played poker with other prisoners in the county jail, using matches for chips.

At intervals he talked of himself. Rudolph Valentino was his idol, he said, his hobbies crime—"scientific crime" and sex physiology. His letters, police said, revealed him as a self-assigned student of women. Meanwhile he was professionally a roustabout salesman. Of his early life he would say nothing, beyond that he was born in Cedar Rapids, Ia.
