Chamber's Activities Will Be Wider BAPTIST EDUCATOR STILL IN DEATH

FINE CAREER IS CLOSED AT EARLY HOUR

Dr. Brooks Fought Way up From Section Hand to One of Most Important Places in Denomination.

MANY INTERESTS

Drs. Dawson and Truett Are to Preach Funeral Sermons Tomorrow at Waco Hall.

WACO, May 14. (AP)—Dr. Samuel Parker Brooks, 67, president of Baylor university here more than 28 years, died early today at the Central Texas Baptist sanitarium. He had been ill with cancer since late last year and had been a patient at the sanitarium about two weeks.

Dr. Brooks had known for some days that death was certain. His physicians said only the unusual strength of his heart, which kept beating steadily for days after they had despaired of his life, postponed the end. With him when he died were Mrs. Brooks, two children, former Governor Pat M. Neff and several other friends. His children are Sims P. Brooks, Waco attorney, and Miss Aurelia Brooks, graduate student at Columbia university.

Neff Stays to End Former Governor Neff came here early in the week to spend his friend's last hours with him. Their acquaintance had covered 40 years.

... he climbed from section hand to Baylor presidency.

At Dr. Brooks' request, Neff kept vigil at the hospital to hold his old friend's hand when the end came. The university president's last labors for Baylor was to sign diplomas to be presented to members of this year's graduating class. He had signed more than half of them when he became so weak that his doctors forbade him to continue.

Dr. Brooks, born in Millidgeville, Ga., became president of Baylor in 1902. His parents had moved to Texas when he was five years old and until he was 22 he had received no formal education. After receiving an A. B. from Baylor, he studied at Yale for a time, then became a school principal at McKinney. He was recalled to Baylor as professor of history and economics and was elected president while he was studying for his doctor's degree at Yale. During his presidency the institution increased its enrollment four-fold and added several new schools and departments.

Classes Suspended Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon, at an hour yet undesignated, from Waco hall, main auditorium of the school. Dr. J. M. Dawson, pastor of the First Baptist church of Waco and life-long friend of Dr. Brooks, will officiate with Dr. George W. Truett of Dallas, now en route to Waco from Birmingham, Ala., where he was attending the Southern Baptist general convention.

Dean W. S. Allen, acting president of the school, announced that classes were suspended until Monday.

Dr. Samuel Parker Brooks, who for more than a quarter of a century served as the president of Baylor university, did not have the opportunity of even a common school education until he was 22 years old. His fight upward among students to a place of prominence among the nation's educators came after he had supported his invalid father for several years by working as a farm laborer and as a section hand on the Santa Fe lines in Johnson county, Texas.

Dr. Brooks was born in Millidgeville, Georgia, December 4, 1863. His father, Rev. S. E. Brooks, a Baptist minister, moved to Texas when the son was 5 years old, and located in Johnson county at Joshua.

Having had a consuming desire for an education since childhood, however, this young man was not discouraged by the late start in

NEW TOWNS ARE ADDED TO MEMBERSHIP

Referendum Plan Will Enable Directors to Take Part in Solving Problems of Individual Members.

FOUGHT 'ARIDITY' Then Organization Undertook to Go to Relief of Drought-stricken Farmers—That Brings a Laugh.

LUBBOCK, May 14. (AP)—Continuation of the expansion program which is bringing many new cities and counties into the organization, strengthening of the district organizations created during the last year, and more effective use of the referendum by which member cities can prescribe activities of the regional group, were recommended by President Charles E. Coombes in his address before the 13th annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce today.

In keeping with the president's address, the committee on elections immediately reported that 77 new towns had become affiliated with the organization during the year and that 48 new directors had been added, bringing the total to 773. There are 107 cities now affiliated. President Coombes said there were at least 75 more towns in the area that should be taken into the organization.

Will Reach Goal Whenever a problem arises in any city in west Texas, the chamber should have machinery available that would be effective in handling it, all the rest of the regional organization lending its support, the president said. "When we have perfected such an organization and we are rapidly approaching that goal—a west Texas city can not afford to become a member."

Coombes urged continued support of cooperative marketing, but said he believed the Federal Farm Board should devote more of its time toward providing new outlets for farm products rather than asking acreage reduction.

He praised Progressive Texas, Inc., and said the organization had the assembly when he said: "We spent half the year trying to convince textbook publishers that this was not a semi-arid country, and the other half getting relief for drought-stricken farmers."

A resolution was adopted making Col. R. L. Penick of Stamford honorary vice-president, in view of the long service rendered as a charter member, as an organizer and a director.

New towns affiliating are: Anson, Childress, Fabens, Fort Davis, Friona, Groom, Gruber, Happy, Marfa, Ozona, Panhandle, Roscoe, Seagraves, Stephenville, Tahaoka, Throckmorton, and Tulla.

AUSTIN, May 14. (AP)—Ranger Robert G. Goss and George H. Sheppard, state comptroller, returned to Austin today with Claude Ray, Upshur county district clerk, who will be charged with forging witness fee certificates.

This was the third case of alleged forgery uncovered by state investigators. Two men had committed suicide and a third had been indicted here on forgery counts in connection with the other two cases.

Bruce Bryant, first assistant attorney general, was preparing to file charges against Ray.

Sheppard discovered the alleged forgeries which led to Ray's arrest. Filing of charges was being held up pending the making of photostatic copies of some of the alleged forged certificates.

Assistants in the attorney general's department stated Ray had made a statement toaled at least $2,000. He stated Ray had said they were committed over a period of three or four years.

Goss arrested Ray yesterday afternoon. He and Sheppard drove nearly all night returning Ray to Austin, where he was here about 4 o'clock this morning.

"Ray was questioned all morning by Bryant. He signed a confession admitting several forgeries, Bryant said.

Bryant said Ray had been placed in jail and the grand jury would begin investigating the case early this afternoon.

Separate complaints will be filed on each of 10 or 15 alleged forgeries, Bryant said.

Consuls and representatives of the republic abroad were ordered to make a report on Alfonso's investments and properties in other countries, the government decree charging that Alfonso had not been king since 1923 when he permitted General Primo de Rivera to become dictator and that he had misused his royal office for his personal enrichment.

Buddie Rutherford, Bell Hop, Given Slight Chance to Survive Wound.

ABILENE, May 14. (AP)—Buddie Rutherford, 18, bell boy at a local hotel, was fighting for life in a hospital here today, and Cleora Moxley, 22, elevator girl at the same hotel, was at liberty under $1,000 bond on an assault to murder charge as a result of a shooting late yesterday in an attorney's office where the pair said they went for legal advice on marriage.

Rutherford, in a statement from the operating table, told officers that an argument followed his statement that he was too young to marry, and that as he turned to leave the room, he was shot in the back. The bullet lodged near the spine just below the heart, and doctors today had not attempted to remove it due to the patient's weakened condition.

The girl has made no statement. Rutherford is given only a slight chance to live.

Parker Suit Is Halted By Plea

A plea of abatement to drop Mrs. Mildred Chusum Parker's petition for a temporary injunction to force her husband, Dawson P. Parker, to pay her alimony and attorney's fees was granted by Judge W. R. Ewing early this afternoon.

The court's ruling was based on a decision of the court of criminal appeals that an applicant for divorce must be an actual bona fide inhabitant of the state. He interspersed residence to mean the physical presence of the plaintiff.

The temporary injunction granted Mrs. Parker Monday is automatically dissolved. Lawyers for Parker filed the plea of abatement on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction because Mrs. Parker had not been a resident of Gray county six months. Mrs. Parker on the witness stand testified that she lived in Missouri for 17 months prior to her arrival in Pampa during the last week-end.

Parker is charged with bigamy. His trial is set for June 11.

In searching a wide ice field they found an enormous drift, covered with a thick layer of ice which they at once concluded must have been Courtauld's igloo. At the top of the snowdrift, which rose above the surrounding acres of frozen snow, the weary party found a small hole which was the only opening in the surrounding desert and which they concluded must be the igloo's chimney.

They shouted down into it, hoping their comrade was safe below, and heard in reply an unexcited: "Hello. All right," which relieved their doubts and assured them that the imprisoned man was very much alive. They went to work with spades and within 15 minutes had dug down and reached Courtauld. Courtauld said that two months before a blizzard had raged for several days, completely covering the igloo. It was out of the question to try to dig himself out, first because the snow would have fallen in on him and then because he left his only shovel outside before the blizzard began. Part of his supplies also were outside.

There was no opening to the outside world from the murky igloo except by the chimney, which he had to keep open and provide him with air. For a month he was without a permanent light and depended for an occasional glimmer on a little gasoline lamp which he used to melt snow to obtain drinking water.

He said he spent most of his dreary time in his sleeping bag dozing and thinking, telling himself to keep his courage up.

BRAND WILL RETIRE

PARIS, May 14. (AP)—Aristide Briand, defeated in yesterday's presidential election, today offered his resignation as foreign minister. He has held the post for seven years, but Premier Laval and his other colleagues in the cabinet persuaded him to remain in that important office at least until his immediate tasks at Geneva are completed.

AGAINST MAJOR CUTS

WASHINGTON, May 14. (AP)—A little trimming around the edges rather than any major surgery is the economic offering which interior department officials plan to lay before President Hoover in the coming week-end conference at his Rapidan camp.

They do not see in their domain anything to compare with the abandonment of 20 to 30 army posts ordered for the war department. Major cuts, they fear, are impossible unless there is a change in general policy as to public works.

LIQUOR ENFORCEMENT IS MUCH MORE INTENSIVE

WASHINGTON, May 14. (AP)—More arrests for liquor law violations than in any month this year and an appreciable decrease in court congestion were shown in the prohibition bureau's monthly report for April.

The summary reflected a tendency toward shorter jail sentences and higher fines, a condition attributed to efforts to dispose of as many cases as possible.

EXPERIENCED CAST SELECTED FOR "IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE"

An experienced cast assures the fact that the play, "It Pays to Advertise," which is to be presented Monday evening by the Pampa Little Theatre, will be a production of unusual interest. The play will be given in the city auditorium.

Mrs. Raymond Harrah plays the part of Mary Grayson, secretary. She has taken the leading roles in a number of outstanding stage productions. Mrs. Harrah's dramatic accomplishments have been achieved through study with May Ardo's School of Fine Arts in Denver and with Eddie Lawrence, who is associated with the Little Theatre movement of California. Mary Grayson, a private secretary of Cyrus Martin, a millionaire, has planned a scheme in which to get Mr. Martin's son, Rodney, to work. She falls in love with Rodney, thereby making it difficult to keep her contract with Mr. Martin, until he sees his son's ability and determination to work. He changes his mind about the contract and plans Mary's future, not knowing it was part of Mary's original plan.

John B. Hessey carries the leading role. He has considerable experience with the Dramatic club of Canyon, and has taken an active interest in the Little Theatre of this city. Mr. Hessey plays a difficult role in the character portrayal of Cyrus Martin, a millionaire seeking the character of a man of 55, who has achieved his fortune through hard work. He wishes his son to do the same. He plans a way in which he induces his son to work and finds he is being tricked by his son and a friend. He is determined not to be outdone, so the final curtain of the comedy finds him with more soap, more money, and a daughter-in-law.

Morris Johnson plays the part of Rodney Martin, the son of a millionaire. He worked with the Dramatic club of Oklahoma A & M college for two years and also took an active part in the Dallas Little Theatre.

Harry Kelley, instructor in Pampa high school, will take the part of the advertising man who plans a scheme for Rodney Martin's soap concern which falls until Cyrus Martin buys the soap factory from his son. Mr. Kelley, who has considerable training in the dramatic club at West Texas State Teachers college, has an unusual personality and voice.

Dr. Emma A. Hicks, who plays the part of a courtesee, receives most of her dramatic training in the Stamford Little theatre. She has a good voice and effective stage manner.

"DIZZY" DEAN WINS HIS FOURTH STRAIGHT OVER TEXANS

BUFFS CLIMB BACK TO TOP AFTER GAME

Fort Worth Threatens But Dumovich Southpaws Way to Victory, 7-1.

BY BILL PARKER Associated Press Sports Writer Wednesday night at Shreveport, Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, the boy who was packed and shipped back to the Houston Buffaloes because the St. Louis Cardinals claimed they had too many good pitchers, hurled his fourth straight win and back on top went the Buffaloes. Dean let the Shreveport crew register two runs in the first two innings—after that he handed them whitewash for a 6 to 2 decision.

Dean's fourth consecutive triumph and Fort Worth's 7 to 1 defeat by the Galveston Buccaneers gave the up and down Texas league a marathon with a new twist with Fort Worth back in second place and the Buffaloes again in charge of the pennant parade with a half game lead.

Abe Miller hurled six innings for Shreveport and called the veteran Joe Pate just as bad. Dumovich southpawed the Fort Worth Cats into a 7 to 1 defeat at Fort Worth to help his Buccaneers square the series at one all. Dumovich found trouble aplenty the last three innings, but had enough stuff to escape without aces.

Fort Worth threats turned the tide. The Spudders and Sam Antonio staged a field day with the former victorious, 12 to 7. In order to square their series with San Antonio, the Spudders were forced to rampage for six runs in the seventh inning after San Antonio had scored four runs in the first half of the same inning.

At Dallas, the Beaumont-Exporters made it two straight over the Steers with a 12 to 3 verdict. The Steers scored a run in the first inning, and then it looked like a mound battle between Garland of Dallas and Malicky of Beaumont, but Garland, backed by miserable support, went to pieces in the third and let Beaumont score five runs.

The Exporters simply bunched fourteen base hits with four walks, seven stolen bases, three wild pitches and all these Dallas errors to take the game back.

Whitehill Keeps Tigers In Race

One of the best reasons why Bucky Harris expects to keep his Detroit Tigers up in the race all the way this year is Earl Whitehill, the distinguished citizen of Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Whitehill, leading southpaw of the Tiger staff, won 17 victories last season in 36 games, including one brilliant run of 12 consecutive triumphs.

Just 30 and in top condition, the chubby left-hander sees no good reason why he should not eclipse that record with the new ball.

In eight years with the Tigers, Whitehill has outlasted all other pitchers on the staff. He has seen a stream of them come and go since he joined the club from Birmingham in 1923.

He had his best year in 1924, when he won 17 and lost only nine. He has never managed to reach that mark again, but his seven-year record in the majors shows 104 victories against 91 defeats.

Whitehill's record in 1930 was 17 wins and 11 losses. He pitched in 36 games, including one brilliant run of 12 consecutive triumphs.

Injunction Suit Venue Is Changed

SAN ANTONIO, May 14. (AP)—Disposition of an injunction suit testing the right of the state railroad commission to prorate oil production today had been left to the United States circuit court of appeals at New Orleans.

Judge Duval West of federal district court yesterday refused to rule on the petition of Alfred McMillan Petroleum company that the commission and A. B. Capers be restrained from limiting the company's production. McMillan claimed that proration interfered with property rights guaranteed by the United States constitution and would amount to confiscation in this instance, since his company must meet land development and oil sales contracts.

Derby Starters Are Working Out LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 14. (AP)—Final workouts today completed the training of the 12 or 14 three-year-olds expected to start Saturday in the 57th running of the $30,000 added Kentucky derby.

A definite estimate of the size of the field cannot be made until the starting horses are named through the entry box tomorrow. No speed workouts will be attempted the day before the race, but the starters will be given brief warming up gallops.

With a field of 14 or less almost certain, the derby will be sent from the post from a starting gate for the first time in history, assuring a quicker start. The gate accommodates just 14 horses.

VOSMIK ON BENCH CLEVELAND, May 14. (AP)—Joe Vosmik, Cleveland's sensational recruit of the early days of the American league season, is going to warm the bench for a while, at least. Manager Roger Peckinpaugh said Vosmik would be supplanted in left field today by the veteran Charley Justice. Vosmik's batting has steadily declined and Peck believes a rest of a week or so is the cure.

EAST HOLDS EDGE IN BALL EXHIBITIONS

Wins Eleven Out of First Fourteen Engagements With Westerners.

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR. Associated Press Sports Writer Though held back by cold and wet weather since they reached the farthest western outposts, the eastern teams already have managed to demonstrate pretty conclusively that they still hold the balance of power in the American league.

They have won 11 of their first 14 inter-sectional engagements. Through yesterday's games the champion Philadelphia Athletics had scored three straight over their western rivals, the New York Yankees had won three out of four and the Boston Red Sox three out of five.

But for as much stand by the Detroit Tigers the route of the western clubs so far would have been complete. The Tigers have won all three victories credited to their section. Cleveland's Indians have made the most disappointing showing against the invaders, losing four straight and dropping within a week from the top to fifth place.

The Athletics, who went into first place yesterday, continued yesterday to mow down the westerners. They went 11 innings to defeat the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 5, after home runs by Cochrane and Miller in the eighth and ninth innings had enabled them to tie the score.

Lou Gehrig doubled in the eighth inning to score Jimmy Reese and give the Yankees a close 3 to 2 decision over the St. Louis Browns in their first meeting of the year. Milt Gaston, Red Sox righthander, lost a tough 2 to 1 verdict to Detroit when errors helped the Tigers to score.

Wes Ferrell was driven from the mound under a fourth-inning barrage as the Washington Senators won their opener from Cleveland, 9 to 3.

Sport Slants

BY ALAN GOULD In a thoroughly unbiased but also entertaining manner, Prof. Cullen Cain, who does the expert delving for the National league, delves into the April baseball figures for information on what if any effect the new ball has had on the hitters.

Whether it's due to spring slumps by the hitters or better pitching with the raised seams, Professor Cain finds only 28 regulars hitting 300 or better on May 3, as compared with a total of 40 above that figure on the same date a year ago.

Citing some unusual reversals of form in the comparison of batting figures, Professor Cain comes up with this evidence in favor of the raised seam: Gabby Hartnett, Chicago slugger, is hitting .243 as compared with .303 a year ago. Adam Comorosky, Pirate outfield star, .238 and .400, for 1931 and 1930.

Paul Waner, his playmate, .280 and .493, both pretty fair, despite a difference of 113 points. Bill Terry, the National league batting king, .226 as compared with .403 a year ago. Hack Wilson, Cub cleaver, .233 and .311.

Frankie Frisch, Cardinal captain, .171 and .345. Chuck Klein, the Phillie flogger, .308 and .409.

But look at Hornsby. On the other hand, the professor continues, take the case of Virgil Davis, the mountainous backstop of the Phillies, off at a .552 clip this spring as compared with .219 in 1930.

Furthermore, there's Rogers Hornsby, "Flicking a merry 409 as compared with a paltry 233 in April a year ago, and his star infielder, Woody English, striking off at 373 as against 262 in 1930.

Others who have revised their batting figures upward with the advent of the new ball include year and 266 last season for a strater; Roettger of the Reds, .447 and .295; Sparky Adams of the Cards, .359 and .329; Pinkey Whitney of the Phillies, .321 and .250.

"Close students of baseball," Prof. Cain informs me, "are likely to declare that many of the men cited here are all hitting over their heads, and that the great hitters cited earlier are for the most part in a batting slump of hitting far below the normal stride they are sure to strike as the season wears on."

All the players are pretty well agreed that the new ball is just as lively as ever when the batter can get hold of it, but the trouble seems to be that the batter cannot now meet the ball squarely as often as he did before they raised the seams so that the pitcher might make it dance, hop and curve in a more baffling fashion.

"The averages show that many American league sluggers are having more difficulty this year."

Gloomy Flatbush The drop in batting form among the Brooklyn Robins has been especially conspicuous. For the two April weeks under consideration, here are the comparisons to show why there has been little joy in Flatbush.

M'CARTHY IS OUT TO GIVE A'S REAL RUN

Believes "Every Team Will Cause Trouble" During Present Season.

ST. LOUIS, May 14. (AP)—If there are any set-ups in the American league this year, Joe McCarthy, new skipper of the New York Yankees, hasn't seen them yet.

Marse Joe, paying his first visit to St. Louis as an American league pilot, explained today he had not yet seen the Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers in action, but called the other clubs "good ball teams."

He picked the Yankees to give the Athletics plenty of trouble before the season is over. "I have the greatest respect for Mr. Mack's judgment," he replied with a smile, and "I'll take his word for it, especially as I am quite sure he's right."

McCarthy said the Athletics were the team the Yankees would have to beat to win the pennant, "and that's not just saying back Mr. Mack for the nice things he has said of us, either."

Hundreds Of Ball Players Are Idle

CHICAGO, May 14. (AP)—Minor league baseball players of good ability have swelled America's unemployed army by several hundred, travelling secretary Lou Barbour, of the White Sox estimated today.

"Letters from players are coming in from all sections of the country asking for almost any kind of chances on clubs," Barbour said. "The rainy spell, poor receipts, and the habit of former major league players to continue their careers in the lower class leagues have combined to throw hundreds of fair players out of work."

"One team in a league where the player limit stands at 15 or less reported that it had 60 volunteers for places."

Malone's First Store-Wide Sale ends next Saturday.

Italian Fighters Win Most Bouts

NEW YORK, May 14. (AP)—The amateur boxers of Italy and the United States are all square in their international battles, but it seems most of the honors must go to Italy.

Eight representatives of the nation which won the 1928 Olympic boxing championship battled New York and Boston boxers last night before a crowd of 15,000 at Madison Square Garden. Each nation won four bouts, yet six Italian names were on the list of winners. Two of the American victors were Mike Bellisio and Tony Scarpati, New York Italian boys. Bellisio, a 110-pounder, defeated Vincenzo Dalto, and Scarpati took the decision in the 126-pound class from Algenio Portoleone.

MAD MARRIAGE

LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of HEART HUNGRY, etc.

Gypsy McBride, 19-year-old New York typist, marries Jim Wallace the day after she meets him at the home of her wealthy cousin, Ann Trowbridge. Gypsy has been jilted by Alan Crosby, just returned from a year and a half in Paris studying art. Wallace's fiancée has broken their engagement to marry a richer man.

Jim and Gypsy go to Forest City where Jim has a thriving law practice. His relatives snub Gypsy. Alan Crosby writes to her but she returns the letter unopened. Marcia Keating, Jim's former fiancée, marries Brock Phillips, millionaire's son. Months pass and Brock Phillips is killed in a fall from a horse. Marcia consults Jim about financial affairs and later tells him her marriage to Phillips was a mistake. She declares she cares only for him. Hurt because she believes Jim is taken Marcia Phillips to lunch. Gypsy accepts Frank Gibson's invitation to drive her home from a shopping tour. There is a collision and Gypsy's ankle is sprained. Marcia Keating, during the days while the ankle is healing. Gypsy comes into the house from the garden one morning to find Alan Crosby waiting to see her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
The man and the girl stared at each other as though neither quite dared to believe the truth. "Is it really you, Gypsy?" Crosby said in a low voice. "It's been so long—"
She came nearer and held out her hand. "Of course it's I. Gypsy's voice caught in a throaty laugh. "Don't you know me? I haven't changed. Alan. But you—how did you get here? Where did you come from? It doesn't seem possible!"
For a moment neither of them said anything. Crosby's hand had reached out to Gypsy's. He was studying her face. Gypsy looked up into the dark eyes and what she saw there set her heart beating rapidly. Alan looked thinner. He was pale too. Then she saw that his hair was brushed back from his forehead in the same careless, untidy, thoroughly delightful way.
Gypsy laughed nervously. "I'm a fine hostess—not even offering you a chair. Sit down, won't you?"
The young man did not move. "You're lovelier than ever. Gypsy," he told her. "You're like a picture. Why didn't I ever think to sketch you with an armful of yellow flowers like that? You're tanned and there's more color in your face. Lord—it's good just to look at you!"
She laid the flowers on the table, came back and sank into a chair. "I haven't heard so many compliments in a long while," Gypsy told him. "It's very pleasant but I'd much rather you told me how you got here, what you're doing—"
"I'll tell you all about everything," Crosby promised, "only it's going to take a little time. Not for a moment had he taken his eyes from the girl. "I don't see how I could have forgotten you're so beautiful," he finished.
"Really—?" began Gypsy. She stopped because it seemed priggish to tell a young man she had known as long as she had Alan that he wasn't as beautiful as she was. Gypsy was trying to be very calm, but her cheeks were burning. Color indeed! Did Alan think she blushed constantly like this?
"I didn't know if I'd find you here," he was saying. "I sent a letter once and I came back. I did not know whether that meant you'd gone away or not."
Gypsy shook her head. "I haven't been away. I sent the letter back because—well, I thought it was the best thing to do."
"Oh!" Alan glanced downward. When he looked up again there was a queer tightening about his lips.
"Alan, please tell me what you've been doing. Are you still with Thomas? How did you get my address? I've thought about you hundreds of times!"
"Have you?" There was a single of bitterness in the young man's smile. "I feel flattered. No, I'm not with Thomas—Only lasted a month there."
"Didn't you like it? I thought you were so pleased with the work."
"Fired," he told her, "because my sketches were lousy and I had a row with the head of the department."
"Why, Alan!"
"You might as well hear the worst. You asked for it. Gypsy, I've made just about as big a fool of myself as a man can. I don't mind losing the job at Thomas' even though I was fired. I deserved to lose it. Got into a crowd that spent more than I could afford and wasted the nights going to parties and night clubs. I thought I was making a splash—meeting influential friends and all that. Say, they were all a bunch of four-flushers!"

"I couldn't work. My drawings got worse and worse. All the time I knew what the trouble was but I made myself believe the boss had a grudge against me. Finally we had a fight and it was a real one! I packed up my pencils and brushes and left the same day. That was when I found out just what the friends I'd been spending my money on were worth! I found out all right."
"Oh, I'm so sorry, Alan."
"For two weeks I walked the streets looking for a job. Part of the time I didn't eat. Finally I got down to my last 50 cents and I'll tell you what I did—I went back to Mrs. O'Hare's and asked if I could wash dishes for my board."
"You found out I'm not much good as a dishwasher but she took me in. Fed me and gave me a place to sleep. When I wasn't working I kept on looking for a job. At last I landed the one I've got now."
Crosby blushed slightly. "I'm selling photographs of landscapes," he said. "They're tinted in natural colors. Sorry I didn't bring my sample case, but if you'd like to buy some I'll come back—"
Gypsy went over beside him. "I wish I'd known," she told him. "I might have been able to help in some way."
"Thanks, but I wouldn't have let you. These photographs aren't really so bad. Some of them are good. I'm asking more than I did before and in the evenings I cut work. I've sold a couple of drawings to a magazine."
He hesitated. "One of them was a sketch of you, Gypsy."
"A picture of me?"
"It's one that I always liked," he told her. "I took it to France with me. I wonder if you remember it. You were sitting on an old wooden fence, you had turned to show your profile and your hair sort of blown by the wind."
"Did you draw it one day on a picnic at Staten Island?"
Crosby nodded. "I know the one you mean."
"It's to be published next month," he told her the name of the magazine in which the drawing would appear. "That—selling the picture I mean—was one of the reasons I came to see you today."

"I'm glad you did, Alan."
He caught her hand. "Gypsy, do you really mean that? All this I've been saying doesn't matter. I was a fool when I let you go away. Oh, my darling—"
"No, no! Alan, you mustn't!" He had taken her in his arms but the girl drew back. "You know it's too late," she told him. "We—there can't ever be anything like that again."
"But I love you, Gypsy! I love you more than anything in the world. I can't do without you!"
The girl's face was white, her lips trembling. "You mustn't even say such things to me," she insisted. "Alan, it's all over. You know that I'm married. Jim's been so good to me. We've no right to talk this way."
"Do you love him?"
"You must let me that. It's too late. I tell you. You'd better go—"
They heard a sound and turned. The front hall door was open and someone was on the porch. An instant later Jim Wallace appeared. He paused on the threshold, surprised at seeing Crosby.
Gypsy went forward. "Come in, Jim," she said. "Here's an old friend of mine, Alan Crosby. Alan, this is Jim."
The two men shook hands.
"Glad to know you!" Jim said heartily. "Must have been a pleasant surprise for you, Gypsy, to see an old friend." He looked at Crosby. "Are you from New York?"
"Have been. I'm traveling just now. Haven't seen Gypsy for a long while and a friend told me she was living here. Forest City's quite a town, I find."
"Oh, we like it." Jim eased down contentedly into a chair. "What is your business, Mr. Crosby?"
Alan told him briefly. The men talked a few moments and then Jim turned to Gypsy.
"You've asked Mr. Crosby to stay to lunch of course?"
"I'm afraid I haven't," Gypsy admitted, "but I've been counting on it. You will, won't you?" she urged, facing Alan.
He started to refuse but Jim interrupted. In the end it was settled that Alan was to stay and Gypsy withdrew to tell Matilda to add another place at the table.
Jim Wallace had seldom seemed so genial. Throughout luncheon he talked to Alan about New York, discussed business conditions and offered information about local af-airs. Gypsy was quiet. Only a few times did she address Alan directly and then her gaze did not meet his. Jim apparently did not notice this. They left the table and wandered back to the living room.

"Have you shown Mr. Crosby that garden you're so proud of?" Jim asked.
"No, but I'd like to. We can go out this way," she added, starting toward the door. Crosby moved forward but Jim stayed behind.
"You two go along," he told them. "There are one or two chores I'd like to get off my chest."
There was a flagstone path leading from the front entrance of the house around to the garden. It was a narrow path. Gypsy walked ahead and the young man followed. She showed him the insipid roses on the sundial and said Jim's grandfather had placed the stone there. They paused before the rows of brilliant dahlias and Gypsy pointed out how next year the rambling roses were to be trained into an arbor. She talked almost constantly, always moving just a little ahead of Crosby.
Finally he interrupted. "It's a very pretty garden, Gypsy, and you needn't show me another damned flower because I'm not looking at them. You're just trying to tell me if you really mean it when you tried to shake me believe you're happy here. I don't believe you are! You've got a fine home—better than I could give you—but you're not the same Gypsy I used to know. You've lost something. You're not laughing! I won't go away until I know—"
"Please, Alan! You're only making it harder!"
"I can't help it. I tell you I won't go away!"
"But you must! You'll have to. Don't you see there's no chance to talk about anything now?"
"Then when can we talk?"
"Alan, don't look at me like that! Someone will see you. You'll have to go away. Really you must!"
"Not until you say when I can see you again—when we can talk this thing out."
"I can't see you again, Alan."
"All right. Then this is where I stay!"
Her eyes sought his in desperation. There was no weakening there.
"I'll see you," Gypsy said slowly. "Monday. In the exhibition rooms at the public library. It's on the second floor."
"What time?"
"Between three and four o'clock."
"All right. I'll be there. I'll be there at three."
They went back to the house.

Big Business And Love Mix In Haines Film

Big business mixes with love; an adventurous American youth mixes both, like Don Quixote, battles windmills in a whirl of mirth in William Haines' new comedy romance, "A Tailor-Made Man." The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture will come Friday to the La Norma theater.
This has been called the ultra-modern in pictures, as far as America is concerned. It includes a remedy for present business troubles in a tabloid lesson weighed into a collection of hilarious laughing situations. It depicts a delicate love story and a very dramatic adventure of a youth who applies the good old American grit to a bad situation. Information is Haines abandons smart cracking to a considerable extent to give a very earnest and serious performance—though he manages to get in as many laughs as he usually does.
The story is one of a youngster who becomes an executive of a big concern—and high—pressure business depression out of it. He high-pressures himself into the heart of the lady he loves, as well.
Dorothy Jordan plays the heroine. Others appearing in the cast are Joseph Cawthorn, Marjorie Rambeau, William Austin, Ian Keith, Freda Hopper, Hale Hamilton, Henry Armetta, Walter Walker, Forrester Harvey, Joan Marsh, and Martha Sleeper.
Jim appeared in the doorway of the library. There was something in the room that he wished to show Crosby—a photograph of the original house as it had been when his great-grandfather built it. The framed, faded photograph hung on the wall over his desk.
A few minutes later Crosby took his leave.
"Nice fellow," Jim Wallace announced as Crosby's back disappeared down the walk. "Known him long?"
"Oh, yes. He lived at the rooming house where I stayed for a while. I certainly was surprised to see him here."
"Nice fellow," Jim repeated and went back to his desk.
It was 20 minutes after three when she mounted the stairs leading up to the public library's exhibition room Monday afternoon. At the head of the stairs she shot a quick glance over her shoulder. Gypsy was looking pale.

Markets

WHEAT IS FIRM CHICAGO, May 14. (AP)—Wheat displayed firmness early today owing largely to absence of any important selling pressure and because of rain in Canada. Corn started unchanged to 1-2 down and subsequently held near to initial figures.

COTTON IS LOWER NEW ORLEANS, May 14. (AP)—Cotton here opened lower today owing to poor Liverpool cables. First trades showed losses of 6 to 11 points. The market continued to ease off after the start, July dropping to 9.71 and October to 10.05, or 10 to 11 points below yesterday's close. Later in the first hour prices rallied five to seven points on short covering, the recovery being helped probably by the reduction in the Bank of England rate from three to two and a half per cent.
