

Denver Officials Are Eager to Launch New Rail Project

RAILROADS ARE SAFE

WORK LIKELY WILL START IN NEXT 60 DAYS

General Hulen and Party in City Conferring on Right-of-Way Requirements—Feel Encouraged.

PRaise FOR CITY

Construction Will Be Finished in 9 Months From Start—Heavy Expenditures to Be Made in County.

Reaffirming their faith in the territory through which the Childress-Pampa line will pass, and stressing the mutual advantages to themselves, and affected communities to build now rather than "when times improve," high officials of the Fort Worth and Denver Northern told THE NEWS this morning that men would be put to work all along the line within 60 days after the right-of-way deeds are submitted by committees of citizens.

"Right now is the time to spend the four millions to be necessary," said General John A. Hulen, vice-president and general manager of the railroad. "It will tend to take care of unemployment and will revive business in the various communities. We will spend between $500,000 and $700,000 in Gray county for labor and supplies, exclusive of the cost of rails, ties, bridges, and the like."

Finish in Nine Months
Judge J. H. Barwise of Fort Worth, general solicitor, said that a strong provision, requiring local labor in cooperation with chambers of commerce and like agencies would be written into the general contract. Moreover, the contractor would be required to finish the line in nine months, or in time to handle the next year's crop. Construction would be carried on at various places

"I don't know of any town less affected by the depression than Pampa," General John A. Hulen told Pampa Lions today in the course of remarks about the new Childress line his Fort Worth and Denver Northern railroad will build. He said that the communities along the route and the railroad were going to do something almost without precedent at this time—build a new rail line of major importance. This, he declared, was a tribute to the territory through which the line will pass.

Use for Pampa's Board of City Development was given Judge J. H. Barwise of Fort Worth, counsel for the Denver in the 2½-year fight for the I. C. C. permit. It was the vision of the Pampa B. C. D. he said, that first impressed his road with the desirability of building into Pampa at once. And it was the fighting spirit of local citizens, he added, that inspired the long struggle against heavy odds. On one occasion, he recalled, evidence was sent to the hearing by airplane from this city.

Mr. B. Davis, chairman of the Gray county right-of-way committees, said that the rail officials had shown an admirable tendency to be guided by local desires. Mr. Davis said that the requirements of the road were very reasonable, and reminded the Lions that really worthwhile things were not attained without effort and some cost.

along the route in order to hasten completion.

The officials declared that complete harmony reigned in every community affected. Right-of-way committees are working hard to secure deeds for the main route and the station terminals. The road is asking no bonuses, but the customary rights-of-way and terminal grounds are required. In view of the depressed general conditions and the fact that rail construction is being retarded or postponed all over the country, this requirement is regarded by citizens and rail men alike as very reasonable. Both groups recognize the cost and dangers of delay. The line must be constructed at once in order to be ready for next year's wheat crop, and any considerable delay would be costly to the road and would work a hardship on the communi-

Louisiana Oil Prices Slashed

Vacuum Not to Pay Above Market Level

HOUSTON, May 28. (AP)—The Vacuum Oil company today posted price reductions on Lockport, (Lake Charles) Louisiana Coastal crude oil ranging from 10 to 26 cents per barrel. Grade A was reduced 10 cents a barrel; the graduated gravity scale for grade B was abolished and now included all crudes which do not meet the test for grade A. The cut on grade B ran from five to 26 cents a barrel. Heretofore grade B was posted at sixty cents for below 25 gravity; 61 cents for 25-25.9 gravity, with two cent advance differential for each degree of gravity up to 35 gravity which carried a top price of 81 cents.

The Lockport field is the only coastal field affected. "We find ourselves," said Vacuum, "unable to pay the prices prevailing for the grades of crude produced in that field because we are unable to market the oil at the prices made necessary by present prices. The graduated gravity scale for grade B will be abolished because the high gravity crudes, valuable for its gasoline content only, can not be sold at current prices in competition with other more desirable gasoline crudes which are available to our customers at lower prices. We are hopeful that this readjustment of the price schedule will enable us to sell the oil we purchase, enabling us to continue as purchasers in the field."

Under announcement, all grade A oil now will be 60 cents per barrel, and all grade B will be 55 cents per barrel.

Youth Attempts Suicide After Girl Shoots Herself

NATRONA, Ill., May 28. (AP)—A few minutes after Clayton Norrick, 17, San Jose, Ill., high school athlete, was told that the girl with whom he had been going killed herself yesterday, he flung himself in front of a Chicago and Alton passenger train. He was snatched to safety, however, by his sister, Irma, 15, who missed death by inches. "Autumn said they knew of no motive other than the close friendship of the couple." The girl, Genevieve Watkins, 17, and an only daughter, returned to her home from school in apparent good spirits. After talking to her mother about trivial matters for a few minutes, she walked into her bedroom and shot herself through the heart.

Hurley Back at His Alma Mater

MUSKOGEE, Okla., May 28. (AP)—Twenty-six years ago a slender boy who had spent much of his youth as a barfoot toiler in Oklahoma coal mines was graduated from Bacone college, the oldest advanced school in this state, as valedictorian of his class. On June 2, this same alumnus, Patrick J. Hurley, now secretary of war, will speak at the commencement services of his alma mater.

Celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the college, a "Bacone, Oklahoma," depicting early scenes in the state's development, will be presented next Monday. Bacone is an Indian school and at present there are 304 students representing 30 tribes from 14 states enrolled. Hurley was the only white student in the class of 1903. The school was founded by the Baptist Missionary society, which will celebrate its centennial this year.

Stormy Meeting on Proration Is Held

DALLAS, May 28. (AP)—Stormy arguments lasting three hours this morning marked the first session of the special committee named by the East Texas Chamber of Commerce to investigate methods for "conservation and orderly marketing" of oil in the new East Texas fields.

The group, named by Dr. N. D. Bule of Marlin, president of the East Texas chamber, at noon was no nearer agreement on proration than when it began deliberations. Leaders of the two factions opposing the proration proration nearly came to blows.

DETROIT AVIATORS BREAK NON-REFUELING MARK FOR PLANES—USE OIL ENGINE

Walter Lees and Frederick Brossy Have Fuel Left to Remain Until Midnight.
JACKSONVILLE BEACH, Fla., May 28. (AP)—Walter Lees and Frederick Brossy, Detroit aviators, flying a Diesel motored monoplane, set a world's non-refueling flight record of 76 hours, 23 minutes, at 10:10 a. m. C. S. T. today. They did not land but continued their flight, which began at 6:47 a. m. E. S. T. last Monday. They exceeded the mark of 75 hours and 23 minutes set recently in Northern Africa by two Frenchmen.

Taking off with 398 gallons of fuel oil at 6:47 a. m. last Monday, the fliers estimated early today they had approximately 60 gallons of fuel left which they believed was enough to keep them aloft until midnight, tonight. Although they did not indicate when they expected to come down, their ground crew expressed belief the plane probably would end its cruise about dusk, rather than attempt a landing after dark. The fliers originally set 80 hours as their goal, which would place their descent at 1:47 p. m., but it was considered probable they would add five hours more if everything goes well.

Ash Says Plane Somewhat Unruly
TACHIKAWA, Japan, May 28. (AP)—Conceding his plane to be "somewhat cumbersome" and "rather difficult to manipulate," Thomas Ash, Jr., American flier, today made final plans for his projected 4,400-mile solo non-stop flight from here to Tacoma, Wash.—the longest transoceanic hop ever undertaken by a lone aviator.

Ash, whose home is in Connecticut, came here and rigged up the monoplane City of Tacoma which Harold Bromley and Harold Gatty left in Japan after an unsuccessful attempt to fly to America last year. Ash renamed it The Pacific.

Ash expects to take off at Samushiro Saturday morning at 7 o'clock (4 p. m. C. S. T. Friday) and hopes to reach Tacoma in 40 to 50 hours.

Marshall was shot four times as he lay in bed April 27. He died in a Los Angeles hospital May 20. His widow, an invalid, has refused to discuss the case.

BISHOP M'MURRY SPEAKS TODAY AT COLLEGE NAMED FOR HIM

ABILENE, May 28. (AP)—Paying his first visit to the school that was founded in 1923 and named in his honor, Bishop William F. McMurry, St. Louis, this morning addressed the eighth spring convocation address of McMurry college. He spoke to 40 candidates for degrees, and to one of the largest gatherings ever assembled on the campus. Unveiling of a life-size portrait of Bishop McMurry—the gift of the graduating class—was a commencement program feature. The picture, painted by Peter Plonkin, was unveiled by Rigdon Edwards Jr., of Fort Worth, senior president, and accepted by Dr. J. W. Hunt, president of the college. Bachelor of science degrees were awarded to 11 students, and bache-

SHIP UNHARMED

Scientists Never Lose Control in Long Flight; Oxygen Used While Atmosphere Is Inadequate.

OBER GURGL, Oetz Valley, Tyrol, May 28. (AP)—Safe from a hazardous exploratory balloon voyage to the Stratosphere, Professor August Piccard and his assistant, Dr. Charles Kipfer, today were en route for their landing place on a glacier above this town to Ober Gurgl. The balloonists, for whose safety fears had been held many hours, declared their trip had been a success and estimated they had reached a height of 52,500 feet, almost ten miles, and a new altitude record.

After eighteen hours and thirteen minutes in the air, swept by varying currents over many parts of South Europe, the adventurers landed safely and in good health at 10:08 o'clock last night on a glacier above Gurgl. Their instruments were safe and their balloon in good condition. Efforts to bring these down the valley were being made this afternoon.

INNSBRUCK, Austria, May 28. (AP)—Professor August Piccard, reaching the Alpine town of Gurgl this afternoon, said his adventurous flight into the Stratosphere had been "magnificent beyond conception," and that he and Charles Kipfer had broken the world's altitude record by more than 12,000 feet.

They never lost control of their balloon, he said, and they gathered valuable scientific data in their long hours aloft in the metal gondola suspended from the gas bag. The balloon itself, lying on the "Gross Rurgler Ferner," 9,000 feet up in the Alps, is to be salvaged by a detachment of the Tyrolean Alpine chausseurs.

"Very Tired"
"We're both very tired," the physicist said, "but otherwise we're well and happy. Our balloon is safe and the slight damage to the instruments is hardly worth mentioning. Yesterday was excellent for observation, but the buoyancy of the balloon was so great that we could land only after the sun had gone down."

"I did not choose any particular landing place but we saw a glacier and thought that would be as good as any other spot. We landed smoothly but too late to look for human habitations so we spent the night in our gondola." Early this morning, he said, they got their bearings and walked down the mountain side toward Ober Gurgl, meeting the rescue expedition as it came up.

EAST TEXAS OIL SCHEDULE HAS CHANGED OKLAHOMA ATTITUDES

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 28. (AP)—A new argument on oil proration was taken before the Oklahoma Corporation Commission today. Opposition to the plan for the commission sat for a hearing on the proposal of Wirt Franklin, Ardmore independent operator, for an increase in allowable from the Oklahoma City field from 160,387 barrels to 181,193 barrels daily, with production curtailed on a basis of separate potentials of the various producing horizons in the pool. B. G. Patton of Plains Petroleum corporation said 15 other independents in the prolific north end of the pool had joined him in opposition to the plan for zoning the field, contending the north end gushers would lose production to which they are entitled. In view of new low prices in East

The MERRY GIRL

by RUTH DEWEY GROVES
AUTHOR OF "THE HUSBAND HUNTER," ETC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Beryl Borden, secretly in love with Tommy Wilson, discovers that he is planning to elope with her half-sister, Irene Everett. So she and her "gang" kidnap Tommy and take him into the country where she urges him to continue in college and not break the heart of his aunt who is financing him. Failing to convince him, Beryl lets Tommy return to her sister. Irene, enraged at the long wait, refuses to listen to his pleas and postpones the elopement.

Next day Tommy goes fishing with his uncle and finds Beryl and her gang on the beach. One of the boys, Angle Reed, is carried out by the tide. Tommy and Beryl rescue him and call a doctor before taking him home. She finds it hard to bear the reproaches of Mrs. Reed and her family and the sneers of her jealous sister.

When Tommy again begs Irene to marry him, she says she will not let marriage interfere with her career and informs him that she is to have a radio audition.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

"I think," Mrs. Everett said to Beryl in the voice of one who copes with a hopeless situation, "that it would be more considerate of you to go to your sister and see if there isn't something you can do for her. You know better than anyone else what an ordeal she has been through and with this audition ahead of her tomorrow she is really under a great strain."

All the women looked at Beryl. For a moment defiance was plainly expressed in the flush that spread over her cheeks and in the pronounced lift of her chin, but common sense came to her rescue and saved her from making a scene.

"And someone must cook dinner," her mother added suggestively.

"Heaven knows I can't do everything and I'm sure Mrs. Reed needs me here. Someone must make up to her for..."

"What's the trouble?" Charlie Reed's voice cut in as he made his way into the room.

It seemed to him that they all tried to tell him at once but he turned to Beryl. She told him as simply as she could what had happened, neither accusing nor sparing herself.

"I'll never let him go away alone again," Mrs. Reed sobbed, her eyes beseechingly upon her husband's face.

"What?" he said, surprised. Then: "I guess what that young fellow needs is a lesson in sportsmanship. It wasn't playing fair to go in by himself while the others were busy," he added and strode away upstairs.

Mrs. Reed gasped, and Beryl experienced a blessed feeling of relief. At least there was one adult in the world who was not eager to pillory her.

"I'll cook dinner," she said pleasantly to her mother and hurried away.

One among the women, realizing that they had been outdone in generosity by a man, remarked vaguely: "Beryl's a good cook, isn't she?"

Mrs. Everett sighed. "When I can get her into the kitchen," she admitted.

But today Beryl's mind was not on cooking. She saw the apples, sliced and spiced, and guessed that they were intended for a pie but when she made the crust she forgot the rule for mixing it and stood rubbing the shortening and flour to a fineness that would rob the pie of all flakiness.

Irene came in while she mused over the pastry bowl, to get a glass of ice water. She studied Beryl for a moment with a speculative look. Then she said with a plaintive whimper, "I've got a frightful headache."

"That's too bad," Beryl said with uncertain sympathy. She was too used to faked headaches in the family to take them seriously.

"Really I have," Irene went on. "I don't know what I'm going to do."

"Take an aspirin and lie down," "I don't mean about my head. I've done everything for that, but I've got to get that yellow blouse washed and I can hardly stand on my feet."

"What do you want the blouse for?"

"Didn't mother tell you?"

"Tell me what?"

"That I'm singing for RKG tomorrow?"

"And you must sing in a yellow blouse. I see—a yellow linen blouse that's been waiting a week for you to launder it."

"It's the only decent one I've got to go with my gray suit," Irene pouted. "I'm not lazy. It's not my fault if I can't get things done. Tommy's hardly given me a moment to myself for weeks."

She watched, but Beryl showed no sign of feeling the blade. Irene could never be quite sure when her thrusts had gone home.

"I don't seem to have so much time myself somehow," Beryl said confidentially.

"Well, if you aren't interested enough in my career to help me when I'm sick I don't suppose you'd care to go with me tomorrow," Irene baited. She'd had no intention of asking Beryl to accompany her to the broadcasting studio, but she hated washing and ironing, and Beryl could do it beautifully.

"Of course, she couldn't sing," but Irene knew she'd love to go to the studio.

"If you're able to go upstairs and fetch it down here I'll wash it," Beryl compromised. "I wouldn't miss your audition for anything."

Irene was gone, and when she returned Beryl saw a glimmer of pink among the folds of the yellow blouse. "What are you ringing in on me?" she asked suspiciously.

"Only a dance set," Irene said lightly. "It will just take a minute while the iron is hot."

"Well, I said 'anything,'" Beryl admitted. "My mistake—but it's too bad you didn't bring the Monday wash along too."

"Don't be mean," Irene coaxed. "I might be able to do a lot for you some day—if you should develop a voice."

Beryl laughed. "Anything can happen," she said. "Even that."

Irene was seized with a magnanimous impulse. "Maybe if you'd cut out that crazy 'tapping' as you call it, you'd discover that you have something to work with anyway."

"You mean a real voice?" Beryl appeared to be deeply impressed. "A soprano-like yours?"

Irene smiled. "Well, you could hardly expect to have a voice like mine," she said pityingly.

"You would be sacrilegious," Beryl retorted and left the room.

Irene was so insulted that she decided Beryl should not accompany her to the studio after all. But she did not go near Beryl to tell her this while the latter washed and ironed the lingerie and cooked the dinner.

In fact, she said nothing during the meal of her new decision. Mrs. Everett unconsciously appeared her injured feelings somewhat by criticizing the food.

"Oh well," Beryl answered listlessly. "I didn't feel like cooking."

"Mooning over someone?" Irene asked maliciously.

Beryl nodded. "Someone I feel sorry for," she said sweetly, and Irene's intuition warned her to drop the subject. When Beryl spoke like that she was going to be cutting sarcasm, and Irene didn't want to lose her temper to the point of disclosing to Beryl what she had in mind for her.

But when she did speak of it, the next morning at breakfast, she met with opposition from an unexpected quarter. Beryl was away minding the store while Mr. Everett—who left the house before his wife or Irene's return—returned to breakfast.

On this occasion he seemed to be in a hurry. "Beryl tells me she's going to New York with you," he said to Irene. "Give me some hot coffee if you've got some hot Mother. I want to get back and finish the vegetable rack before Beryl leaves. If you'd come over and help," he began suggestively, again addressing himself to his younger daughter, only to be interrupted by his wife's horrified cry.

"Pa! Can't you ever realize how those newspaper interviewers would

Steel Coaches Save Passengers as Tornado Hurls Train From Tracks

FARGO, N. D., May 28. (AP)—Dashing along at a 50-mile an hour clip, the crack Great Northern Empire builder, coast train deluxe, eastbound from Seattle to Chicago, was picked up like a toy from its tracks and wrecked by a tornado eight miles southeast of here late yesterday. One life was lost, more than a score injured, one probably fatally, and scores of passengers shaken up by the freak accident.

The death resulted when Andrew Anderson of Montevideo, Wash., was hurled from the train through a window and ground to death beneath the wheels of the following coach. Mrs. Emily Hannan, Seattle, suffered a broken back and was said by physicians today to have slight chance for recovery.

The train had crossed the North Dakota-Minnesota line and was nearing Sabin, Minn., with the engineer, B. E. McKee, of St. Paul, at the throttle. Without warning, as if handled in a cardie, the entire twelve-coach train was lifted from the tracks, moved east from the roadbed, and deposited with a thud on the prairie, leaving only the engine and tender on the tracks.

As if held spellbound by the suddenness of the disaster, a moment or two passed before realization of the horror of the wreck became manifest among the passengers. Men struggled frantically to make their way over the debris, through shattered windows and jammed doors. Fanning motorists speeded into

Film Actress Is New Witness in Slaying Mystery

LOS ANGELES, May 28. (AP)—The district attorney's office today was checking up on a new angle injected by Jean Riley, film actress, into the investigation of the slaying of Charles H. Crawford, political boss, and Derbert Spencer, magazine editor.

Declaring he had not found "what I am looking for," W. Joseph Ford, special prosecutor, said he would seek a two-week postponement of the preliminary hearing of David H. Clark, a candidate for the municipal bench and former deputy district attorney, set for today.

In a statement to detectives Miss Riley said she had been halted near Crawford's office by a traffic signal and heard shots fired. She reported she saw a man described as Spencer stagger from a nearby building and collapse. A second man, meeting the description of Clark followed.

"As I watched this man running my attention was attracted to a third man who raced from the building, poking one hand into a pocket of his coat," Miss Riley continued. "I watched this third man for at least two blocks. Then he was lost to my view and I went on."

She identified the third man as Ray Radke, Crawford's secretary, Special Prosecutor Joseph Ford said Radke had told investigators he was holding a sheaf of Crawford's papers in his hand when he left the building.

Officers recently announced their belief that Crawford and Spencer were slain by a man who believed they had information which would injure him.

HOW WOULD YOU answer this question?

"Regardless of price, convenience, etc., what tire do you consider the BEST TIRE made?"

A little bewildered by the shaky statistics of some recent tire advertisers, Goodyear asked the Bureau of Business Research of a great University to put the above question to 205,000 representative motorists to get the real low-down on this matter of tire superiority.

You can put calipers on treads and sidewalls, you can compare breaker-strips and cross sections until the cows come home, without knowing much more than you did before.

So, when there appeared to be a confusion of meaningless comparisons cropping up in the tire business, Goodyear went to the man who knows—the car owner himself.

Here's how they replied to the question, sent out not by us but by a great institution, absolutely neutral and totally reliable.

HOW CAR OWNERS VOTED ON THE QUESTION "WHAT MAKE OF TIRE IS BEST?"
Based on a National Tire Survey in 1930 by a large University

GOODYEAR	30.7%
Company B	13.8
" C	11.3
" D	7.0
" E	6.0
" F	3.7
" G	3.7
" H	2.7
" I	2.4
" J	1.8
" K	1.2
" L	.9
All Others	10.4
No Choice	4.4

It will be noted that 30.7% of the car owners of America prefer Goodyear Tires. This preference is more than twice that of any other make of tire.

This tire survey was based on a scientifically mailed questionnaire to car owners in every state in the country and proportioned in turn to cities and rural communities.

What you really want to know and have a right to know is simply this—what kind of service does the tire give?

The only people who can tell you the real answer to that fair question are the millions of other motorists like yourself who are wearing out millions of tires every month.

General Hulien stated that a station would be built here in keeping with the high type of line to be constructed. The site is tentative and not yet ready for announcement. Today's visit by the officials was their first thorough inspection of the route since the Interstate Commerce Commission removed the last barrier and granted the working order. The Rock Island joint trackage proposal was abandoned, and the Denver system will build the entire line, funds for which are ready.

WHEAT IS STRONGER

CHICAGO, May 28. (P)—Grains advanced early today after a wavering start. Drought complaints from Canada continued and fears were expressed that much winter wheat from the Texas Panhandle northward to Nebraska would have to depend mostly on surface moisture as a result of premature aging of roots.

Opening 3-8 cents off to 1-4 up, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started at 1-4 decline to 1-2-5-8 advance and subsequently averaged higher.

SLUGGISH FEELING

"I have used Theford's Black-Draught off and on for twenty-five years," writes Mr. Dave Stewart, of 1912 E. 2nd St., Austin Texas.

"They used it in my father's home for many years and it was our general family medicine.

"My health was good, and that is about all I ever took. I used it for constipation and bilious sick headaches. It is a fine medicine to take when a man gets up in the morning feeling dull and sluggish. After a course of it I feel fine. It rids the system of poison which comes from constipation."
