Florida Convict Describes Fatal Torture Suffered By Boy Prisoner TWO GUNMEN ROB SHAMROCK MAN IN HI-JACKING HERE

We haven't seen the Amarillo Sandles play, but local fans who have seen them say they are very capable. . . . They should be by this time. We always like to have worthy opposition for the Harvesters. . . . We point out this indisputable fact: ONLY ELEVEN MEN CAN PLAY AT ONE TIME. That's John Hesse's observation and we agree with him absolutely. When eleven Harvesters take the field with eleven Sandles, there's a battle for you, my fans!

Some times it seems a far cry from football to algebra, grammar, and Latin, but even boys of the grid are supposed to be in school to learn. Some schools have special study periods for athletes who are compelled to sacrifice much of their time on the field instead of using it in the library. It is no reflection on an athlete to make low grades, but he ought to study enough and be given help enough to pass.

We have always regretted the attitude of some teachers and many high school and college students who regard high class work in the classroom as unimportant. One of the biggest fallacies we know is that most of the college students of yesterday are working now for the former C-students of their classes. It isn't so. We quote Dr. H. Y. Benedict, president of the University of Texas, who is a staunch champion of scholarship: "When you take a large number of high rank students and compare the successes and failures of the two groups you discover that the students who made high marks in school also, on the average, make much more numerous successes."

Dr. Benedict also made this significant statement: "THE SCHOOL CANNOT BE THE ONLY WORKSHOP IN THE WORLD WHERE IT IS DESIRABLE TO DO THE WORK POORLY!"

The Pampa suspects that many of the exceptions noted in actual life grow out of the fact that the schools' grading systems and teaching are at fault. When a really bright boy or girl fails in a course by reason of dislike for the manner in which the subject is presented, the grade of the student is no index of his chance in life while doing something which he really enjoys. . . . We'd better not go further into this subject until we read more in Mrs. Pampa's extension course textbook, which is an educational test and measurement.

At any rate, we wouldn't bet on the chance for success of a student who answered examination questions with the following statements:

1. The Pyramids are a range of mountains between France and Spain.
2. A schoolmaster is called a pedagogue.
3. An equinox is a man who lives near the North Pole.
4. A circle is a line which meets in the end without ending.
5. Benjamin Franklin worked himself up to be a great literal man. He was also able to invent electricity. His father was a tallow chandler.

FOLLOW MAN FROM BORGER TO PAVEMENT

PAIR APPARENTLY SAW HIM SELLING HIS WATERMELONS

LOSES $25 IN HOLD-UP

McWHORTER SEES CAR OF ROBBERS AT BORGER

Two gunmen who followed J. T. McWhorter of Shamrock from Borger to near the end of the paving west of Pampa took $25 from him after stopping his car about 12:45 a. m. last night.

After warning him not to attempt to chase them, they disappeared after entering this city, probably turning to the right or left at Hobart street.

"I usually carry my gun on these trips," McWhorter told THE NEWS this morning, "but in taking care of details at the arrival of a fine baby girl I overlooked the weapon. . . . I'd give $10 to have a chance to whip that big fellow who took my money."

The hijackers did not attempt to search McWhorter, and this enabled him to save $11 in an inner pocket.

He first noticed the robbers' car, a Buick coupe of '29 or '30 model, at a dance hall this side of Borger. At that point McWhorter's car was raked by the spotlight of the Buick. He thought nothing of it at the time, but recognized the spotlight when the Buick pulled up in front, blocking the road and forcing him to stop.

"Turn over that money—we know you've got it," snapped a tall man who, pistol in hand, leaped from the Buick.

He was joined by a heavy-set man who kept his cap pulled over his face.

"Put out those lights quick or we'll put yours out," the short robber said, cursing. He too had a pistol.

The hijackers were careful not to touch McWhorter's car, probably fearing fingerprints would result. After being given the $25, they backed to their car and drove rapidly away.

It is McWhorter's theory that the robbers had watched him sell his watermelons at Pampa or Borger, and had seen him with the bills while paying for gas at a filling station. He reported the robbery to Sheriff Lon L. Blansett this morning.

An attempted holdup by a pair of similar description was reported earlier in the evening.

Mass Meeting On Pampa Day Plans, Tuesday

The meeting will be held next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the city hall. It is hoped that every merchant will be present.

Not only PAMPA DAY, but other plans to make this an attractive city to this territory will be discussed.

CIRCUS GIRLS MUST LIVE AS CAMPERS--BUT THEY SELDOM TIRE OF LIFE 'UNDER TOP'

DRUG VICTIM

NO FEAR OF STUNTS IN AIR EXPERIENCED BY ROLAND SISTERS

The "big top" is their home, elephants their playmates, "high school" horses their pals. This strangely romantic existence becomes routine to the circus girls now in Pampa but they like it, nevertheless.

They would enjoy the luxury of a bath tub, but a bucket of water serves the same purpose for them; they would like a quiet bedroom and a soft mattress, but they have become accustomed to riding and sleeping at the same time; they would appreciate the opportunity of dressing before the big, shining mirror of some boudoir, but they can do wonders in front of the hand mirror; they would like a meal off of snowy white linen, but after all, food is food and it tastes almost as well when served in coarse dishes and linen.

Most of the 100 girls of the circus dress in one division of what is known in circus parlance as the "pad" room. In one end of this tent is the girls' dressing room, in the other end is the men's dressing room, and in the middle, the horses are kept.

Each girl is assigned one small part of the dressing room, although there are no division walls. Around the room are arranged in orderly

BORGER GAME TICKETS GOING RAPIDLY HERE

Pampa Due To Take Charge of Town Tomorrow

Tickets were selling fast today for the Pampa-Borger football game in Borger Friday night at 8 o'clock.

Joe Smith, business manager of the school district here, has received 500 general admission tickets, 300 reserve seat tickets, and 100 student reserve seat tickets. The seats are between the 40-yard lines on the west side, well located in the main grandstand of Alamo stadium, which is at the left of the paved highway in South Borger.

With good weather in prospect, a large Pampa crowd is expected to make the trip to back the crippled but scrapping young Harvesters.

CLAIMS YOUTH PUT TO DEATH IN SWEAT BOX

GUARD'S INTENTION TO KILL MAILLEFERT IS QUOTED

TESTIMONY DAMAGING

'WOULD RATHER KILL MAILLEFERT THAN EAT'

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 6 (AP)—William Roberts, a convict who served in Sunbeam Prison camp at the time Arthur Maillefert, New Jersey youth died, related today at the murder trial of two former guards how Maillefert, naked, had been locked in a sweat box, his arms confined by a heavy barrel placed over his body and fastened from the shoulders by boards and straps.

Maillefert was allowed to walk about the prison camp yard all day but at night "he was placed in the sweat box, barrel and all," the convict testified.

"The next day," continued Roberts, "it was raining. The box was opened and the barrel was rolled out. Maillefert rolled over but was allowed to right himself."

That day Maillefert gnawed his way out of the barrel the witness said, and jumped the fence. He was captured.

The defendants, Solomon Higginbotham and George W. Courson, listened intently as the convict proceeded with his story.

"I heard Higginbotham say that he would rather kill Maillefert than eat," Roberts continued.

"We checked out for supper early, and I didn't see who put the chain about Maillefert's neck or the stocks, on his feet."

"I saw Al Weaver (a trusty), Higginbotham and another trusty go into the sweat box with Maillefert."

"I heard some one ask Captain Courson how long he was going to keep Jersey in there."

"He said 'until Christmas—if he ain't dead.'"

Liquor Seized In Raid; 2 Arrested But Later Freed

City officers made a raid in a hotel this morning and uncovered a "plant" containing seven one-half gallon jars of liquor. The beverage was discovered behind the baseboard in a rear room.

The raid was made by Police Chief Jno. V. Andrews and Officers Bill Turpin, H. L. Kenner, and Weldon Wilson.

Two men and the liquor were turned over to the sheriff's department, but the men were released when the search warrant was found to be faulty.

HELENE FIGHTS FOR SON

A mother's determination to see her son is responsible for the bitter quarrel between Princess Helene and her divorced husband, King Carol of Rumania, over little Crown Prince Michael. Princess Helene, in a public appeal for the moral support of the British people, charged that Carol would not permit her to see the boy when he was ill, and that Michael's visit to her in London has been curtailed because of sympathy given her there. Carol, she said, sent an aide to take the boy away, although he was supposed to have remained with her for six weeks. This picture of Helene and her son was taken in London during the boy's visit.

WALKER IS FOUND GUILTY AS ACCOMPLICE IN ROBBERY OF REFINERY--GIVEN NINE YEARS

Berl Walker was found guilty as an accomplice in the robbery of the Dunciger refinery last August and assessed 9 years in the state penitentiary by a jury which deliberated slightly less than two hours last night.

Two others indicted for the robbery are yet to go to trial as the principals. They are J. W. Hawkins, alias "Doc" Holley, and Arnold (Shorty) Chambliss. Their trials were delayed yesterday by the illness of their attorney, Clem Calhoun of Amarillo.

DALLAS, Oct. 6 (AP)—The democratic party in Texas officially took sides with Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson in her contest with Gov. R. S. Hughes said lawyers would be retained to represent the committee.

Hughes pointed out it was the committee's intention to intervene not only in the contest which Sterling has taken to the appellate court, after meeting a reversal in Judge W. F. END OF LEAGUE FOOTBALL?

Something should be done about the Cisco situation in the Oilbelt league. Every district in the state should seek to have the situation cleared up before the Texas interscholastic league turns football back to the public schools, leaving it unponsored.

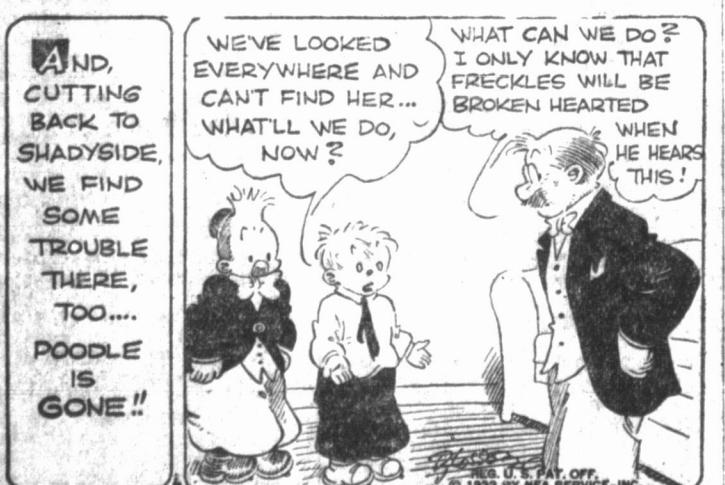

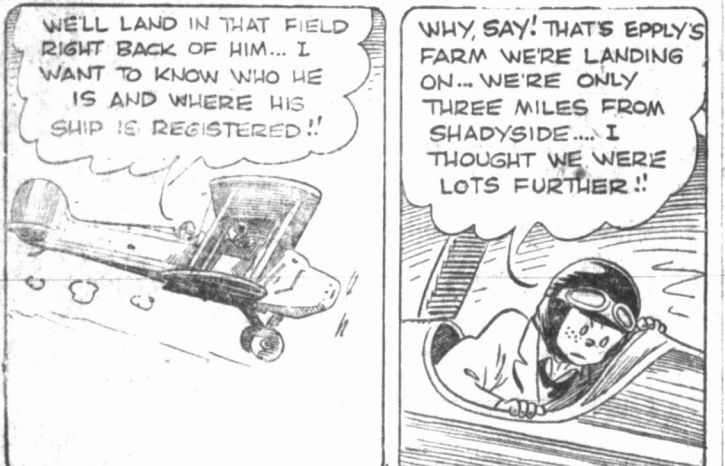

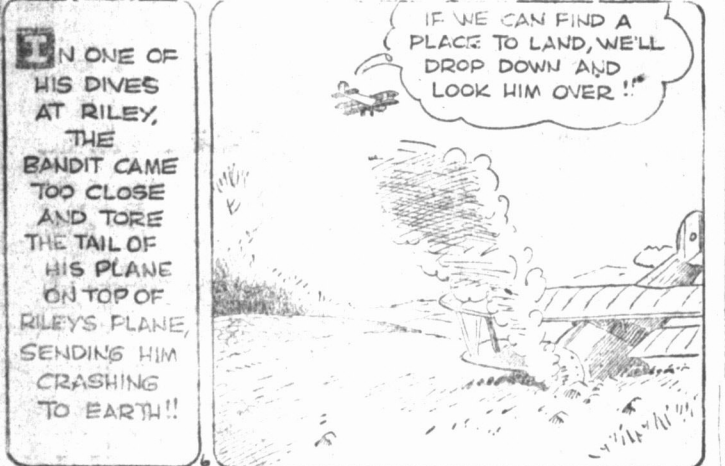

The interscholastic league has come in for its share of abuse, some of it probably just, but where would football be today without some central governing body? The situation is this—Cisco was barred from district competition because of the alleged breaking of a rule concerning the transfer of a star player from Corsicana to Tyler and then to Cisco. Cisco took the matter to court and District Judge George L. Davenport of Eastland ordered reinstatement of the club in the league football race this fall.

Either the league must win in higher courts or the virtual end of league supervision of public schools will result. The league has no money to fight the matter in the higher courts. Should districts go to the rescue of the league by supplying money and legal talent to settle the matter? We believe that football will become an outlaw sport if the league withdraws its supervision. There was some thought of an outlaw league when the transfer rule and eight semester rule went into effect but it was abandoned when it was learned that the eight-semester rule might be withdrawn. Cisco may be guilty but there are other schools just as guilty that have not been caught. Both sides have a just argument. To our belief the matter should never have been taken to court.

The family first lived about 15 miles north of Miami on Indian creek. A few years later they moved to a ranch on Red Deer creek in Gray county and resided there until 10 years ago when they moved to Pampa. Wolves were numerous in those days and Mr. Lewis often killed 50 in a spring. Deer and antelope were shot for food and not for fun.

robbery were given by John Lowe, Oscar Clements, and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Whitelock, who were rounded up by two unmasked men they subsequently knew as "Shorty" and "Doc", and left in the "breaks" west of here after being held prisoner during the looting. Look accounted to more than $300, including that belonging to the refinery office. These witnesses testified that they did not see Walker during the robbery and did not know him. Lowe said Walker was at the refinery about a week before the robbery, obtaining a quart of gasoline for a motorcycle's empty tank. State Witness Indicted. The main state witness was Armond (Shorty) Chambless, 17 years old, formerly of Wichita Falls, also indicted for the refinery robbery. He told of a taxi ride to Amarillo with Walker and "Doc" Holley, also known as J. W. Hawkins, and said that Walker "had a job in mind" which would net a large sum. Walker, he said, returned to Pampa alone. Young Chambless said that he and Holley, broke, came back to Pampa and met Walker, who directed a taxi in which they rode east of town to "look over" the refinery. He said Walker pointed out the office and night employes. Then Chambless said, they drove to the golf course, got out of the car and talked about when to hold up the refinery. Walker was quoted by Chambless as saying he would not himself participate. He said Walker returned to town after remarking that later in the week, Saturday night, would be a better time for the holdup.

Walker Got No Loot. Chambless then told how he and Holley walked to the refinery, noted the positions of all the men in sight, separated to round them up, and went through the robbery as previously described by refinery employes. Cross-examined by Fred Cary, appointed to defend Walker, Chambless said that after the robbery he and Holley went to Amarillo, where they were arrested. They did not see Walker after the robbery, he said, nor did they divide the loot with him. Eugene Duke, Amarillo taxi owner, told how he was hired by Chambless and Holley to bring them to Pampa. They were drinking heavily, he said, when they hired transportation. Arriving in Pampa about midnight Chambless and Holley were joined by Walker, who directed the driver to go east by the refinery. Duke said he heard no mention of a planned robbery, but heard Walker say "Bos, this is the place." He said that "Shorty" and "Doc" left the taxi at the airport after talking with Walker alone, but that the latter returned to town, remarking, "I'm uneasy about those fellows—they're drunk." The state rested its case with two drivers, one hired by Duke and the other a Pampa man, had testified to seeing Walker with Chambless and Holley. The defense objections to state testimony regarding the robbery itself were numerous but overruled. Cross examination was designed to show that the robbery was decided upon by Chambless and Holley independently. Defense testimony, which was brief, included that of Lester Fife, local taxi driver, that Walker was with him until well after midnight. The night session was called to finish the case.

SYNOPSIS: Nan Weare, investigating with Ferdinand Francis the disappearance of Jervis Weare, her husband, again runs against a stone wall. She has learned only that Rosamund Carew and Robert Leonard, both of whom would help by Jervis' death, each have been alibis. Fear for Jervis' life forces Nan.

CHAPTER 40 NAN IS LEFT ALONE

Nan had braced herself against the possible ringing of the telephone bell—so long she had lost account of time. It might have been half an hour, or three hours that she had been pacing unseeingly from end to end of the great drawing room at Weare—she had even persuaded herself that if the telephone did ring, it must be Jervis on the other end.

A prolonged and acute strain such as this was undergoing has the effect of etching out thoughts, fixing them as frost does a landscape sometimes, with an unnatural rigidity. The thoughts tended to separate from each other, and might slip up anywhere.

Nan had walked perhaps fifty times from the door to the table, from the table to the window, from the window to the table, and from the table back to the door, when she became aware of such an impression among her frozen thoughts.

At first her awareness of it was vague and inattentive, but gradually her attention began to focus itself. It puzzled her, and her attention eyes focused, she felt a slight tingle in having something definite to think about.

The impression was that of Mrs. Mellish looking at her with eyes like windows with the blinds pulled down. She had asked Mrs. Mellish whether she had seen or heard anything between Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. Mrs. Mellish had said no.

The very tone of that dry "No, ma'am," beat at Nan's ears. She had asked Mrs. Mellish to find out whether the maids had seen or heard anything; and it was while Mrs. Mellish was out of the room that the impression had been made. She had seen Mrs. Mellish with the blinds drawn down—something to Mrs. Mellish came back, and reported that nobody had noticed anything.

Between two and half-past seven Jervis had walked out of the house, so she had seen or heard him go. She had seen anything—no one had heard anything. Then why had Mrs. Mellish slammed her door and pulled down her blinds? The impression that she had done so was clearer now that it had been at the time. The ice had set and defined itself sharply.

Nan walked quickly to the hearth, and raised the bell. Then she faced round towards the door and waited until Alfred appeared.

"Will you ask Mrs. Mellish to come and speak to me here, please?" she would see Mrs. Mellish here in the housekeeper's room, with its photographic enlargements of Mrs. Mellish's husband and Mrs. Mellish's respected and respectable parents, with Mrs. Mellish's sweetgrass workbox and Mrs. Mellish's photograph album on a small round table, and a large illuminated letter hanging over the mantelpiece. Nan had been made to feel an alien and an intruder.

The very china dogs, white poodles with baskets in their mouths, had gazed at her aloofly from either side of the mantelpiece. The old-fashioned wall-clock had a disapproving tick. Here she could meet Mrs. Mellish upon neutral ground. This was Jervis' room.

came back again. Mrs. Mellish had just stepped out.

"I would like to see her when she comes in."

Nan went back to her pacing. At six o'clock the telephone bell rang with a startling loudness and set her heart thumping. She was by the door. She turned, ran back, and picked up the receiver.

"Who's there?"

"Ferdinand."

"Look here, Nan, there's something I want to follow up. I'm leaving in a hired car. It mayn't be anything at all, but I feel bound to follow it up."

"What is it?"

"It doesn't amount to much. There's a new garage the far side of Croyston. Well, the man says a little black car stopped to fill up at seven o'clock Wednesday morning. He was about because he was doing a job on his own car. He says there were two men in the car, and from the description one of them might be Jervis, but it's very vague."

"It was the other man who did the talking. He was the driver, and he'd red hair, so it oughtn't to be hard to trace him. He talked about going to New York, so I'm off looking for him. Don't you worry."

Nan felt dazed and weak. The receiver was heavy in her hand. She said,

"Jervis hasn't a small black car."

"The car was the other man's—he was driving. They may have met by appointment, or Jervis might simply be getting a lift—or it mayn't have been Jervis at all. The garage man only said, 'gentleman with black hair.' That's about all he noticed—his first name isn't Sherlock."

Ferdinand rang off, and Nan began walking up and down again. She walked for a long while, and then sat down by the window and let time flow past her like a sluggish stream, so slow that though it moved, the movement was imperceptible.

At seven the dressing-bell rang, and Alfred came in. He hovered for a moment by the door and then came nearer. Mrs. Mellish had missed her bus from Croyston—and would it be convenient for Mrs. Weare to see her after dinner?

Nan said, "Yes—it doesn't matter," and Alfred withdrew.

When the dinner-bell rang, she realized that she had not changed. She went upstairs, washed her hands, and came down again, to sit alone at the big table in the dining-room and take a spoonful from each dish that was offered to her.

Some mighty useful information is contained in today's rules:

Runner.
A player who is carrying the ball is referred to in the rules as the runner.

Safety.
A safety is made when a free ball or a ball legally in possession and control of a player guarding his own goal becomes dead, any part of it being on, above, or behind the goal line, provided the impetus which sent it to or across the goal line was given by a player of his own team.

Scrimmage.
A scrimmage takes place when the holder of the ball places it flat upon the ground, with its long axis at right angles to the line of scrimmage, and puts it in play by snapping it back. The scrimmage does not end until the ball is dead.

Shift.
It is a shift when after ball is ready for play in scrimmage and the players have taken their positions, two or more of the players of the team in possession of the ball simultaneously change their positions before the ball is put in play.

Snapper-Back.
The snapper-back is the player who puts the ball in play in a scrimmage.

Snapping The Ball.
Snapping the ball is passing it backward from its position on the ground with one quick and continuous motion of the hand or hands, the ball actually leaving the hands on this motion.

(A. R.)—Center of team 'a' seeing an opponent off-side, lifts the ball off the ground and claims off-side play. Ruling: Ball has not been snapped.

(A. R.)—The center of team 'a' steps to the side or backward while snapping the ball. Ruling: ball not in play. A second action of this kind at any time during the game should be penalized as delay of game. The snapper-back is required to put the ball in play as specified in this Section, and he may not assist the motion of the hands by any movement of his feet.

RUBBISH DISAPPEARS FROM SCHOOL IN FEW MINUTES

BAKER PUPILS AND TEACHERS JOIN IN WORK

FIRE WEEK OBSERVANCE IS OCCASION OF ACTIVITY

Those who saw Mickey McGuire in the comic clean-up scene at La Nora theater would have appreciated the actual clean-up work at Baker school yesterday. Scores of boys and girls—and teachers as well—forgot their usual play at recess yesterday morning. They spent the play period in hard work, which, however, was not without a spirit of fun.

Youngsters who might have scorned the jobs of washing dishes and cutting grass at home joined the crowd with enthusiasm and did their part to accomplish the disappearing act—the disappearance of sticks, papers, apple cores, big rocks, and other trash from the school grounds. The work was in preparation for the national observance of fire week, which begins next Monday.

Nor did the preparation stop with the clean-up activities. Fire Chief Clyde Gold visited the school and witnessed a fire drill in which 353 pupils left the building with surprising rapidity. Those who went out the back door were out in 49 seconds, while those who went the front way were out in 59 seconds.

Baker school for the first time in every Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, and preparatory to these an assembly was held yesterday morning.

On Oct. 11, the first, second, and third grades will have charge, and on Oct. 18 the fourth and fifth grades will lead. This alternation will continue throughout the week. The following men will be asked to address the pupils: Oct. 11, E. G. Barrett; Oct. 18, Rev. F. W. O'Malley; Oct. 25, Rev. W. O. Cooley; Nov. 1, Rev. C. A. Long; Nov. 8, Jesse F. FIRST LADY OF LAND SEES PLACE OF CHILDHOOD DAYS AND IS GREETED BY THROG

PERSONAL WAVES AND SMILES WHILE SHE MAKES TALK

By BESS FURMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

ON BOARD THE PRESIDENT'S SPECIAL, Oct. 6. (AP)—Most of the way back to Washington from the Iowa ovation, Mrs. Hoover shared in stations cheering for the president, but at Wooster, O., the president shared honors in a college yell given for Mrs. Hoover.

At all the stops but Wooster, President Hoover made the speech and Mrs. Hoover smiled and waved. At Wooster, Mrs. Hoover made the speech, and the President smiled and waved.

Three generations of her ancestry had helped to build that community. A cheer-leader mounted on school mates' shoulders led the "Wooster U" yell for Mrs. Hoover. The students had only 15 minutes notice the train would make a special stop, but the whole school was there, including President Wishart and his wife.

Mostly they joined in their alma mater song.

"My College Tune"

This is my college tune, Mrs. Hoover smilingly explained to the president.

"I am so proud that I belong to you I am going to learn to sing that song," Mrs. Hoover said to the student crowd. "I'm coming out and stay a week—do you think I could learn it in a week? I'm so glad to have my husband know my student body."

From the car windows Mrs. Hoover could see the old cemetery at the end of a grove where the names of her adventurous pioneer ancestors were marked on headstones.

But huge aluminum sheds hid from her view the place close to the railroad where stood the little white colonial house where her mother, Florence Weed, was born. Charles Dean Henry, her father, also was born in Wooster, and did not migrate westward until after the death of his staunch old grandfather, the founder of the town.

Loved the People

No relative of hers lives in Wooster now, but the whole place is peopled with characters she learned to love as a small girl who asks of her elders: "tell me a story of when you were little."

The chief hero of these tales was Great-Grandfather Henry, as a young lad surveyor in buckskin trousers and coonskin cap, who won the heart of a Quaker girl from Pennsylvania, Abigail Hunt, a spirited girl in her twenties, riding side-saddle.

Their children numbered eight, among them Mrs. Hoover's grandfather, also William. But the lifespan of the pioneer Henry exceeded that of any of his sons or daughters.

Into the upbuilding of the town of Wooster he devoted his lifetime, serving as judge and state legislator. Old Ohio deeds and land surveying records were part of the heritage he left for his children's children—on down to fourth generation Lou Henry Hoover, who lives in the White House.

Up to the last stop before the presidential party retired for the night, Mrs. Hoover continued her solicitude for the children in the station crowds. At Sewickley, Pa.,

My Beauty Hint

SIDNEY FOX

Cleaning the eyes is an important aid to appearance. It requires about three minutes to give both eyes a bath.

I make a weak solution of salt water, fill an eye cup with the mixture and place it carefully over one eye. Then I throw my head back as far as it will go and in this position open the eye wide, allowing the solution to drench the entire eyeball, rolling it from side to side.

Eyelashes and eyebrows should be carefully brushed at least once a day.

where it was raining, she advised shivery little boys to go home and put on warm sweaters.

Mrs. Hoover had started it for hered instructions to start with 270 son, Herbert, but by following print-stitches, she early found its chest measure would be 51 inches—so she turned it into a baby-robe and started again.

Mrs. Hoover was to spend just one day in the White House before going to Virginia beach to attend the Friday sessions of the Girl Scout convention.

HARVESTERS POLISH AERIAL DEFENSE FOR BORGER GAME

SCRIMMAGE IS MOST SAVAGE OF THIS YEAR

TEAM WILL BE READY FOR BULLDOGS TOMORROW

The Harvesters worked for nearly three hours yesterday afternoon on offensive and pass defense plays in preparation for the important tilt with the Borger Bulldogs tomorrow night under the artificial lights. The air will probably be filled with Bulldog passes, hence the green and gold clad boys are going to be prepared.

Coaches Mitchell and Fox worked the boys on plays until they were ready to quit and then put them through a scrimmage that lasted more than half an hour. Big Clevis Green was at center during the scrimmage, his broken wrist having mended nicely. Sullins' job was being filled by Clinton Adair and Bert Stevens, with several others coaching in the game.

The coaches have little idea who will start the game. All three full-backs are on the crippled list, but one of them might be able to start. The game is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock. Coach Odus Mitchell has sent his list of favorable officials to Coach Noble Atkins and three who are acceptable to both coaches will officiate. The Harvesters will go to Borger early and have a good workout under the lights before the game.

The green and gold clad warriors are taking the game seriously. They realize that Borger has a fast light squad and that several of their own players will not be in condition. The Harvesters line will be intact unless it will be necessary to send Kelly to fullback and put Orville Heiskell at end.

A light workout is scheduled for this afternoon. Brushing up on plays and working on the pass defense will come in for the most attention.

FLYING PLAYS ARE ILLEGAL

New Rule Adopted to Protect Tackler and Blocker And Not Opponent.

(Note—This is the second of a series of four explanatory articles on the 1932 football rule changes, written especially for the Associated press.)

By WILLIAM S. LANGFORD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (AP)—Prohibition against the use of the flying tackle and the flying block was adopted for the protection of the tackler and blocker rather than of the opponents whom they were trying to bring down.

The new rule states: "It is illegal to use a flying tackle in which a player dives or throws his body through the air at the ball carrier. It is legal for the tackler to leave his feet at the instant he makes contact with the ball carrier."

The provisions with respect to blocking are similar. If a player makes a flying block or a flying tackle, even though he falls to make contact with the opponent his team is penalized five yards from the spot of the foul, except in case the flying block or tackle is used against a player who is making or who has made a forward pass when the penalty is enforced from the point where the ball was put in play.

This is the only instance in the rules where a penalty is imposed to prevent a player from doing injury to himself.

The only change in the rule governing the use of hands and arms by players on defense is that which further restricts these players from striking above the shoulders with the palms of the hands.

Defensive players are permitted to use the palms of other hands above the shoulders of opponents only to push them out of the way in order to get at the ball or the player carrying it or to ward off interferers who are trying to block them.

LITTLE GORILLAS VICTIMS OF PANHANDLE HUSKIES 25 TO 0

Score 7-0 at Half But Big Two - Hundred Pounders Break Through.

Superior weight and numbers crushed the Pampa Gorillas when they invaded Panhandle yesterday afternoon to battle the big Panthers from Panhandle high school. The final score was 25 to 0. The little Gorillas held the Panthers 7 to 0 at the half, but faded under the battering of a pair of 200-pound backfield men on the Panther team.

PONES EXPECT TO BEAT RICE

Varsity Now Able to Score Against Freshmen

DALLAS, Oct. 6 (AP)—The Southern Methodist-Mustang's starting backfield Saturday against the Rice Owls probably will comprise Bert Baker and Whitney Baccus at halves, "Baldy" Oliver at fullback and captain Howard Sprague as the signal barking back. This was the way Coach Ray Morrison lined his regulars up yesterday when it was learned that Kenneth Travis, regular quarterback, probably would be out of the lineup because of an injured rib received last Saturday in the Texas Tech game at Lubbock. Coach Morrison still was in doubt about his starting linemen. He constantly switched his front wall gladiators yesterday in an effort to find blockers who suited him.

Yesterday was a day of dummy and actual scrimmage. The freshman team employed Notre Dame formations as used by Rice. The varsity was on the defense most of the time. Probably the best news of the day to Coach Morrison was the time he gave the varsity the ball on the ten-yard stripe and saw them score against the freshman squad. Two weeks ago, Morrison gave the varsity the ball on the same line ten consecutive times against the same freshmen, and the varsity never got beyond the six-yard line.

Today was to be another hard scrimmage day for the Mustangs who are confident they will beat Rice although they haven't scored in their two non-conference games this season.

BIG SIX GETS INTO ACTION

Huskies, Tigers and Sooners Hold Conference Spot Light Saturday.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 6 (AP)—The big six kickoff Saturday will end speculation as to how the Nebraska Huskies will perform under the newly inaugurated system of a fast running and passing attack.

Coach Dana X. Bible, who discarded the pile-driving attack in favor of the style of play he likes best, has not had a chance to test it out against anything but freshman opposition. Saturday the Huskies begin defense of their conference championship against Iowa State.

However, in practice tilts the varsity men have made good account of themselves.

The Missouri Tigers have a double-barreled schedule over the week-end and Coach Carideo divided his squad into two sections. One will play Central college at Fayetteville Friday, and the other meets Texas Saturday.

Meanwhile Coach George Veenker of the Cyclones still is undecided who will fill the end posts. Templeton, a regular wingman, is out with injuries and Veenker has a slim list of ends to fill the vacancy.

Secret practice kept the doings of the Oklahoma gridmen from prying eyes, while at Kansas, scene of the Scarier-Jayhawk battle Saturday, the varsity engaged in dummy scrimmage. O'Rand Beach being one of the participants. A scrimmage against the frosh is scheduled for today.

Coach Bob McMillan, whose Kansas State Wildcats engage Kansas Wesleyan Friday night, gave special attention to Armstrong and Abbott, sophomore backs, with a view to using them as replacements. Five members of the squad still are out of the line-up with injuries.

Mrs. Pharr Takes Lead In Tourney

DALLAS, Oct. 6 (AP)—Stout-hearted golf allowed Mrs. E. E. Pharr, former state champion from Texas, to take the first tee today as leader in the final 18-holes of the Dallas woman's golf association 54-hole medal play invitation tournament. Mrs. Pharr played brilliant golf to lead yesterday at the conclusion of the first 36-hole affair taking a glaring nine on the 9th to lose six strokes to Miss Anieia Gorczyca, Fort Worth champion, who retained second place, but was eight strokes behind Mrs. Pharr as the final round started today.

Mrs. Pharr boasted a 36-hole total of 94-98-172 against Miss Gorczyca's 93-87-180. Mrs. Gorczyca scored her 93 Tuesday when she left a train en route from the national at Peabody, Mass., rushed to the golf course and played. Yesterday she was back on her game and scored low for the day although she was still three putting and short on her chip shots.

Mrs. Jack Dunn and Mrs. J. H. Patterson went to Amarillo yesterday.

RUSSIAN WINS TWO STRAIGHT FROM PAMPAN

Rob Roy Succumbs to Terrific Body Slams

Big George Ligosky, Russian bomb thrower, won two straight falls from Rob Roy, local boy, at the Pla-Mor auditorium last night to break the Pampam's string of victories at 30. The big Russian slammed Rob for both falls after a series of headlocks and stiff-arms to the face.

The Pampa boy used everything but the corner posts on the bearded sensation but couldn't bother him. He is one of the most powerful men ever seen in a Pampa ring. He cutwinded Roy at least 10 pounds but his speed was amazing for his size.

In the semi-final, Red Michael, local boy, tried to throw big Delmar Quimley from Borger, but had a hard time. The big fellow used his strength to break holds. He replaced Kid Thomas on the card. The two went 20 minutes to a draw.

J. T. Watt and Kid Collier went 10 minutes on a draw in the opening card. Joe Short of Borger ran out on the little Pampa boy, Watt, who had been after him for some time. The kids put up an excellent exhibition.

Purdin Referees
The Russian, his face and chin covered with long black whiskers, received a hard knock as he entered the ring. Jack Purdin was the third man in the ring. Dutch Mantel refereed the Russian's "Missing Link" and Ligosky replied that he didn't know there were two missing links until he saw Mantel.

As Rob started in to take the first hold, the big Russian used his famous football straight-arm and Rob found himself lying against a corner post. He came back to take another on the nose and then became shy. Rob got Ligosky in a headlock and dealt him misery for some time before the bomb-thrower reached the ropes. Ligosky got Rob in a body scissor but he came out with a whistle held. He took the Russian to his feet with the whiskers and then proceeded to place him back on the mat, a knee on the Russian's nose. Then he pulled the whiskers. The Russian came out with a toe hold.

Things grew interesting when Ligosky grabbed Referee Purdin by the leg in an attempt to break a toe hold, and Purdin socked the Russian. Ligosky came out with a toe hold and then slipped away from Roy, stepped in fast, poked him up and slammed him to the mat. He repeated the medicine three times and then fell on Roy to win the fall in 20 minutes.

Both men started fast in the second fall but Rob got two more stiff-arms in the nose which brought head. Roy then resorted to the bread which he poked into and hard with the Russian yelling to all his saints in his own lingo. Rob got a figure-four on the big fellow, who reached the ropes after taking punishment.

The Russian refused to break a hold a minute later and Purdin pulled him off. As the Russian gained his feet he landed a hay-maker on Purdin's chin which sent the latter on the ropes for several seconds. Purdin returned with a left to the head which the Russian ducked and the match was over. Both fighters used several reverse headlocks and Rob clipped in three Sannenbergers for good measure, but the Russian winked at the crowd, gained his feet, and then slipped over a straight-arm which dazed Rob in a neutral corner.

Body Slam Effective
Rob broke a full Nelson with a figure-four and came up with a toe hold. The Russian broke it and came out with a couple of reverse headlocks. Rob started to land an arm swing to Ligosky's jaw but the Russian ducked and the Pampam hit him on top of the head. While Rob massaged his numb hand, Ligosky picked him up, twisted him over his head, and then slammed him to win the second fall in 15 minutes.

Members of the Gorilla football squad, guided by Rob Roy for the good battle they put up against the Panhandle Panthers yesterday afternoon, learned how to straight-arm.

The Russian has become a favorite here.

Coach Puts Ban On Aerial Game

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6 (AP)—The aerial game is fine business in football, opines Coach Howard Jones, but outside Bovard field on the University of Southern California campus, it's all off.

That is what Orville Mohler and Captain Tay Brown, two of the Trojans' best players, were emphatically informed today by the head man, after their close scrape with death or injury at San Bernardino yesterday, when the airplane Mohler was piloting crashed from an altitude of 150 feet.

Mohler, who is a licensed pilot and a senior of aeronautics engineering at Southern California, lifted the plane from the Tri-City airport, but the motor refused to respond when he attempted to climb over a clump of trees. He averted the craft slightly, and dipped a lit in order to collect momentum for another climb, which the plane refused to take, and nosed to the ground. Mohler cut off the motor and flattened out the craft just before it hit. The plane bounced, struck again and nosed over—a wreck.

Brown and Mohler crawled out of the wreckage, without a scratch, and hurried back to Los Angeles by automobile.

On the first play in dummy scrimmage the flying quarterback suffered a slight injury to his left knee, the one hurt against Utah.

and spent the rest of the afternoon watching others work out.

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Oct. 6 (AP)—Even when Notre Dame's varsity plays at home, there is someone to make sure the "Ramblers" nickname has not been forgotten. Two intercollegiate games have been scheduled for the "B" squad one against Texas Tech at Lubbock, October 28, the other against St. Thomas of Scranton, Pa., Nov. 5.

CLYDE BEATTY STEPS FROM COLLIER'S TO PAMPA ARENA WITH HIS ANIMAL CHARGES

Former Farm Lad to Reveal Tricks At Circus

Clyde Beatty, 28-year-old tamer of jungle beasts, was just an interesting magazine character until this morning, when he arrived in Pampa with the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus to present before a local audience his mixed display of local audiences his mixed display of tamed and African lions.

Many of those who recently read his series of articles in magazines probably little thought they would so soon have the opportunity to see this former Ohio farm lad who dares to stand surrounded by wild animals while he sends them thru stunts which took months to perfect.

Likes 'Em Dangerous. Beatty's secrets, he declares, are few and simple. In the first place, he likes animals—animals in the rough, so to speak, which lend themselves slowly, grudgingly, but surely to his routine. In the second place, he does not fear animals and death in the ordinary sense. Not exactly a fatalist, he nevertheless expects trouble and is prepared, mentally more than physically, to meet it. And lastly, he "understands" animals in the sense of being able to read their moods and to anticipate, as far as it humanly possible, their actions.

A love affair among his beasts is of vital concern to the young master of the arena. Lions, particularly, he explains, form "gangs" and have feuds in which he is sometimes inadvertently drawn. In some instances he may, by standing too near a female lion, draw the anger and sudden approach of the boy friend. Again, an unruly male may forget his peevish when the object of his affections draws his attention. This latter happening probably saved his life once when he was prostrate in the grip of a giant male cat. Politics in a ring full of mixed beasts, each armed with great weight, big claws, and powerful jaws, can be serious indeed.

Much Startling. Whip popping, a chair held in the left hand, Beatty strides into the ring as his dozens of cats bound rapidly toward their various positions. Some inevitably are slow to reach their posts and many of them turn toward Beatty snarling and crouching when he approaches them. That is their privilege, and he understands that they do not mean as much by it as they indicate to an audience. Yet there is the constant danger that he will pass too near a passively appearing cat which will lash out and floor him. Once down, his magic command is gone and his life isn't worth much. Yet the danger in spite of his thrills him quite as much as a terrified homer does the milder Beatty.

Beatty faces this danger with his whip, his chair, and a pistol loaded with blank cartridges. There is no weapon he can carry which would protect him against his army of feline demons. He looks back on hospitals where he has lain for weeks poisoned by the teeth of his lion Nero and other "pets," and at the point of death. The youngest and most daring of the animal trainers, he expects a bad accident, two or three times a year. His next may come in Pampa tonight—or when no one can foretell.

Tigers Vicious. He likes his audience to watch his tigers. Most people instinctively watch the lions which, because of their roars and majestic heads appear the more dangerous. But the tigers are but slightly smaller, much faster, and diabolical in their frenzied attacks. The lion crushes; the tiger tears and rips. Beatty works constantly with animals. When not on the road he trains leopards, bears, and more lions and tigers. When the beasts reach maturity they are ready to be trained—slowly, patiently, and not more than 15 minutes at a time. They form habits rather quickly, but dependability is something some of them never learn. Occasionally a bad actor is dropped from the cast for trouble making, but only after a thorough trial and much popping of whips and shooting of cartridges. Noises seem to stun the beasts momentarily, leaving them free to return to routine.

Many Chairs Ruined. The light chair which Beatty usually has available is no real protection, but it gives the animal something to strike at and corresponds to a fighter's left jab. It also is such a familiar household object that the audience is not consciously aware of it. Beatty's cats tore up 63 chairs for him last year, and they were not trying to diminish the over-supply of furniture either!

The thousand persons with the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus include many other celebrities, including the famous Hanneford family; the Flying Wards; Earl Shipley, boss clown; and dozens of acrobats and riders who participate in the opening pageant, "Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt," and subsequent acts. Hours of performances are 2 p. m. and 8 p. m., with the menagerie opening an hour before these shows.

OFFICE OF THE COLLECTOR OF INTERNAL REVENUE, DALLAS, TEXAS, Sept. 20, 1932. The following described real property, seized from E. E. Reynolds and Mrs. E. E. Reynolds under warrants for distraint for non-payment of assessed taxes due, will be sold as provided by Section 3190, Revised Statutes of the United States, at public auction, on Thursday October 20, 1932, at 2 o'clock p. m. at south entrance to the county court house, Pampa, Gray County, Texas. action taken by the courts, this matter is no longer a personal one involving Mrs. Ferguson but it is one which concerns the democratic party of the state," Hughes said.

"If Mrs. McCallum refused to certify the regular nominees of the party, we must endeavor to take such legal action as will compel her to perform her sworn duty. This matter should not be allowed to remain a political football any longer and we intend to stop it, if we can, even though we have to instigate new litigation. The executive committee chairman said his group intended to conduct an active campaign for election of all democratic nominees, state and national.

AUSTIN, Oct. 6 (AP)—Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, secretary of state, today indicated her intention to withhold certification of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson as the democratic gubernatorial nominee until the higher courts had passed on the appeal taken by Gov. R. S. Sterling from a decision of District Judge W. F. Robertson, which his court did not have jurisdiction over the suit filed by the governor contesting Mrs. Ferguson's nomination.

"I fall to see where in the secretary of state has any duty to perform in connection with certifying a gubernatorial democratic candidate for the November election while an appeal to the court of civil appeals is pending from the ruling by Judge Robertson in district court," a prepared statement by Mrs. McCallum read. "In my answer to the motion now before the supreme court to file a petition to mandamus me to certify Mrs. Ferguson for governor, I asked to be advised by the honorable body and I now await their decision in the matter."

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 6 (AP)—Cotton had a steady opening today. Liverpool cables were better than due and first trades here showed no change to two points down. The market ruled quiet right after the start and December eased one point to 6.96, but a little later an improvement in stocks and the absence of any considerable hedge sales caused a good rally which ran December up to 7.11 and March to 7.27, or 12 to 15 points above the early lows and 14 points on December above yesterday's close.

WHEAT DROPS HEAVILY

CHICAGO, Oct. 6 (AP)—Wheat prices today touched the low level since July 26. An accumulation of overnight selling orders was chiefly responsible. Opening 1/2% down, wheat after-ward held near the initial limits. Corns started unchanged to 1/2 lower and later rallied. Wheat closed unsettled 1 1/4-1/2 down yesterday's finish, corn 1/4 down, oats 3/4 off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 2 cents.

CIRCUS GIRLS--

fashion, the girls' trunks, folding chairs, and bath buckets. At most any time of the day there will be thirty or forty girls in the room taking bath (they take three or four a day), applying make-up, or washing or mending garments. They are surprisingly quiet and go about their tasks in a matter-of-fact manner.

This morning a girl in an orange sweater was sitting on the trunk watching the others. "She works with the elephants," another girl explained. A woman was sitting in front of the tent taking advantage of the sunshine. Her shoulder was bound and it was explained that she had received a fracture when the horse she was riding in the circus slipped and fell. Another girl was introduced as the one who rode the "waltz and rear" horse, and still another who participated in wild west acts. The girl wearing a turban and donning a "look" was introduced as Eva Kelly, the girl who appears in an aerial act.

Fun? Oh, Yes

There is plenty of fun for the circus girls, it was explained. For instance, "Foodles" Hanneford, known as the world's best rider, who appears in the show as a comedian, makes interesting use of his motion picture camera. He takes pictures of the performers during the week, and on Sunday night the show people are surprised to find an opportunity of viewing themselves in action.

Next Monday night the entire show will attend a birthday party, the occasion being Gracie Hanne-ford's 14th birthday. There will be cake and ice cream for everybody. Active games and races will be staged in the big tent, and prizes will be given the winners.

Have Coffee Club

About twelve of the girls belong to a Coffee club. In cool weather they take turn about preparing coffee to be served about 7 o'clock in the evening with rolls and cookies.

Panhandle Girl Acts

Two of the most interesting girls of the show are the Roland sisters, Stella and Bertha, both they and their husbands being in the show. Bertha is a former Panhandle girl, having attended school in Amarillo for several years. When she was in that city yesterday, she was visited by scores of her former school mates.

Sleep Long Hours

The Roland sisters sleep ten or 11 hours each night. At 11:30 o'clock each morning they eat breakfast in town, this meal consisting of fruit, whole wheat toast, and coffee. At 4 or 4:30 o'clock they eat dinner at the circus with the other performers, and after the night show they often have another light meal.

They spend their winters as vaudeville performers

While they are at work in the circus, the girls take no additional exercises except a few limbering motions. In the winter, however, they must train regularly in order to be in condition for the opening of the circus in the spring.

On Fridays (this being the only day permission is given), the girls enjoy visiting the performers in the side shows, which are under separate management from the circus.

There they chat with the well-educated Jennie, known as the "doll lady," and have a word of greeting for the ape man, the giant, and the four "pin heads."

The sisters like their odd pals, and they like the life under the "big top." For of such experiences is their life work.

Roberts quoted Courson as threatening to come back and chain

"Later, when we came out of the mess hall a trusty looked in the box and called Courson. "Captain, it's done," Roberts quoted the trusty as saying. When Mallefert was taken out, he was dead.
