AN INCONSISTENT STAND

The 12-cent increase in oil prices, meaning approximately $100,000 a day more income to Texas, and the success of the constructive conservation program that preceded it, are threatened by the action of two major oil companies.

We regret exceedingly to see such ably managed companies, whose efforts generally have been of a constructive nature, make such decision. We believe it is inconsistent and unjustified.

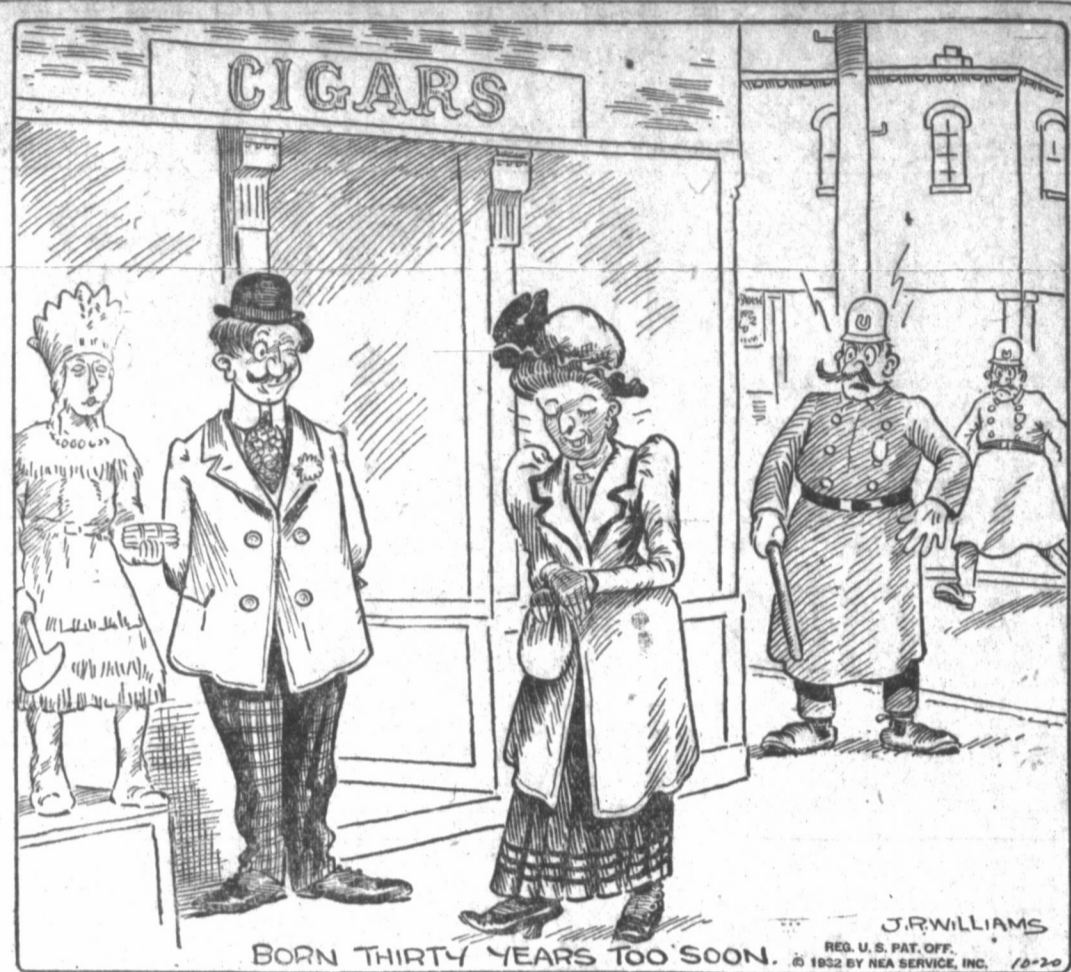

In the present situation, the Humble not only expresses the hope, but the belief, that a balance between supply and demand and the elimination of production over allowables will be attained as a result of the new conservation program.

Instead, by refusing to meet the price increase, it has erected the most formidable barrier to the accomplishment of the very program for whose success it expresses such hopes.

The Humble and the Indiana companies, by their decision, have placed themselves in an unenviable position. They have assumed to themselves a responsibility that few corporations or few individuals would desire to face.

The procedure, the conservation associations, and the state officials have met their obligations and fulfilled their responsibilities. Production has been cut in Texas to 800,000 barrels per day.

OUT OUR WAY By WILLIAMS

is under way in the East Texas oil field to stop the theft of oil. The production of the nation promises within a very short time, if it isn't right now, to be more in balance with actual demand than at any time in years.

But all of it is now threatened by the action of these two companies. If it fails, theirs will be the responsibility and the blame should properly rest upon them.—Star-Telegram.

The Campaign Puzzle

Study Past State-by-State Votes in Making Your Forecasts

Arkansas vote for president in 1928:
 Smith ..... 119,196
 Hoover ..... 77,751

Arkansas has never left the "solid South" voting for every democratic presidential candidate since reconstruction days. The state has nine electoral votes.

The vote received by Herbert Hoover was the largest the state ever had given to a republican candidate, although W. A. R. Hardin received 71,117 votes in 1920.

The prohibition issue was outstanding in the 1928 campaign, and an anti-Smith faction within the democratic party was active in the state, which usually has voted dry. Senator Joseph P. Robinson of Arkansas was the democratic candidate for Vice-president that year.

In the state elections of 1930, Harvey Parnell (D) was elected governor by a vote of approximately five to one over J. O. Liveray (R). In the same year Senator Robinson was re-elected without opposition.

The planks of the two parties dealing with prohibition have been the subject of most of the discussion in the current campaign. Economic programs, particularly with regard to farm relief, have been another major topic.

Arkansas requires no registration of voters. Poll tax payments in 1928 numbered 368,000. Payments in 1929 have totaled 330,000.

Maryland's vote for president in 1928:
 Hoover ..... 301,479
 Smith ..... 223,626

In the nine elections since 1892, Maryland has voted twice for the democratic nominee for the presidency, in 1912 and 1916. The republican majorities in 1904 and 1908 were less than 1,000 out of total votes of more than 200,000. Republican majorities in the last three elections have been substantial.

The republican tendency shown in the presidential record has not held in state elections, and Maryland has had but two republican governors since civil war days. In 1928, when Herbert Hoover received a majority of 77,853 for the presidency, the state elected four democratic representatives out of six.

In the state elections of 1930, Albert C. Ritchie (D) was elected governor with 283,539 votes against 216,864 for William F. Broening (R).

MARYLAND
 IN 1928: ELECTORAL VOTES 8
 HOOVER - 301,479
 SMITH - 223,626

The campaign in that year involved no national issues, and the personal popularity of Ritchie generally was the issue with influencing the size of his majority.

Maryland long has been regarded as a stronghold of wet strength. Maryland has eight electoral votes this year, the same number that it had before redistricting.

Nevada's vote for president in 1928:
 Hoover ..... 18,327
 Smith ..... 14,090

Nevada has voted for the republican candidates in the last three presidential elections. Before that had voted twice for Wilson and three times for Bryan. In 1904 it voted for Theodore Roosevelt.

Prohibition and continuation of prosperity formed the major issues in the 1928 campaign, and Alfred E. Smith's repeal stand was criticized with much responsibility for his showing. Nevada has been predominantly wet. In the senatorial campaign of that year Senator Key Pittman (D) received a majority of 8,101.

NEVADA
 IN 1928:
 HOOVER - 18,327
 SMITH - 14,090

Campaigns in the state elections of 1930 were fought out on local issues only, and republicans won most of the offices. F. B. Balzar (R) was elected governor with 18,441 votes against 16,192 for C. L. Richards (D).

Registration figures for this year's primaries showed increases for both parties as compared with 1928. Republican registrations increased from 19,386 in 1928 to 21,673 in 1932. Democratic registrations rose in the same period from 15,082 to 22,539.

Economic questions, particularly as they affect silver mining and livestock raising, have been in the foreground in the present campaign.

Hopkins Community House Opened With Bigger Sunday School Roll

The Hopkins Sunday school at the Phillips-Pampa plant continues to grow. The new community building was opened last Sunday with attendance of 230 people.

Rev. D. D. McSkimming brought a timely message on the "Trail of Life." Two Phillips orchestra numbers opened the program. Hopkins school No. 1 rendered a number.

This was followed by the rhythm band and other numbers by Hopkins No. 2. R. E. Smith gave a very pleasing rendition of "Ivory Palaces" on the sousaphone. W. R. Barrett, superintendent, gave an appropriate and impressive prayer.

Special programs are to be arranged for each Sunday. Efforts are being made to get every parent in the community engaged in Sunday school work. Ben Gull is conductor of the choir, and Miss Katherine Brooks conducts the orchestra.

No denomination predominates; in fact, no denomination is recognized in this work. No creed is followed except the Bible. Every member is free to speak at any time. The supreme purpose is to meet in a worship study of the Bible. If any one has an opinion, he expresses it in an opinion only, being satisfied to learn more about the divine will as revealed in the Word. A beautiful spirit prevails. A spirit of cooperation manifests itself more day by day.

Hereafter all meetings of the Phillips safety first council will meet in the new community building. This building was dedicated on Monday night with a program. Business was forgotten for the time, and all pointed in with O. W. Bray, chairman, in a program of entertainment. The Phillips orchestra opened the program. Mr. Baze gave two numbers on the hand saw. A young magician of LeFors gave the crowd many surprises with his tricks of magic. Sandwiches and coffee were served. Thirty dollars was raised by the ladies for payment on curtains for the building.

A PATH TO PARADISE

by Coningsby DAWSON

SYNOPSIS: Clive drives madly through the night, summoned by a telegram from Santa Dawn, whom he loves and who begs him to join her. Santa just has returned from Europe, where she was taken by her mother, who feared Clive was making an "impression" on her daughter. Santa had released Clive from mid-ocean that she must see him, but he ran away from New York the day she landed. Now he has forgotten everything but this second message, and his dash through the night.

Chapter 3
CLIVE THINKS BACK

Clive re-wrote his past in terms of glamor as he tore through village after village. Eric Dawn, Santa's father, had been engaged to Clive's mother. She had changed her mind by the ruthless expedient of alopecia. The bold Lochinvar, who had died within a year of the marriage. Five years later Clive's mother had died, appointing Eric Dawn as her son's guardian.

If a compliment had been intended, it hadn't been relished. Eric Dawn had patched his heart by taking to wife Judy Summers, who had brought with her a private fortune derived from Sumner's Wall Papers. Had Judy been calculating in the bestowing of herself, she could have made a better match.

Summers had been actually generous, for he had taken his son-in-law into his business. Santa had been born to the happy couple. To all appearances they were sitting on top of the world, when five-year-old Clive's intrusion had kindled the fuse of jealousy.

Judy Dawn had regarded the dead camp's choice of guardian as sentimental blackmail. The administering of Clive's estate—and there was precious little to administer—would keep her rival's men perpetually active. She had insisted passionately against acceptance of the responsibility, finishing with the accusation that if her husband did accept, he would broadcast that she herself was no more than an after-thought.

Dawn's attitude was understandable. He hadn't sought the duty imposed; but he couldn't punish the orphan by refusal.

To emphasize her pique, Judy had carried off herself and her infant daughter to Europe. Dawn had hoped that the tiff would blow over. If she hadn't been financially independent of him, he could have dragged her to her senses by cutting off supplies. But the very house in which he lived had been her father's wedding-present. His position was rendered doubly delicate by the fact that his father-in-law was his employer.

Before Santa was six she could babble in French, Italian and Spanish. When her father had met her, they had had no common language. She could pick up American later, her mother had said.

When Clive had been seventeen and on the point of entering Princeton, as arbitrarily as she had blown down the domestic coop, Judy had retained its shelter. Her motives were as usual magnanimous. Santa was thirteen. If she were eventually to marry, it was high time she became an acclimatized American.

Again Eric Dawn had performed the dog-Fido trick and acquiesced. It was his beloved guardian's lack of dignity in playing dog-Fido that had determined Clive, even though he forewent Santa, never to become a dog-Fido himself. Judy Dawn had discovered that since Clive was at Princeton, he also might prove serviceable.

She had also discovered that he was handsome as the bold Lochinvar, his carefully deceased father, which dismissed any doubts she may have harbored with regard to his sturdiness. She had appointed him Santa's unpaid male-governor. That a cosmopolitan girl-child, over-sophisticated and brotherless,

OHIO COED VETERINARIANS

The conquering of the male is now complete at Ohio State university, where these three coeds have joined the college of veterinary medicine, last citadel that was held exclusively by the men until this fall. Left to right: Ida Mattison of Butte, Mont., Ernestine Kelley of Baltimore, Md., and Barbara Musgrave of Pasadena, Cal.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—No longer is there a place the college man can call his own at Ohio State university.

Long a sort of collegiate sanctuary for men students, the veterinary school has fallen, too, before the coed onslaught.

It wasn't so bad when the first pet coed came tripping up the steps of the university's big law "barn." It still didn't cause much dismay among the college men when women students began breaking into the school of engineering.

But all the while, snugly confident the girls would never head their way into the men of the college of veterinary medicine chuckled among themselves and aimed derisive thrusts at crestfallen "law yeards" and "engineers."

That is all changed now. For no less than three coeds broke tradition and became the first women to enroll in the veterinary school.

It could not have been a "frame up," men students told one another, because Ida Mattison is from Butte, Mont., Barbara Musgrave is from Pasadena, Calif., and Ernestine Kelly is from Baltimore, Md. So the never get together before they entered "State." Each is 19.

It was then learned that only eight women are registered for such work throughout the country.

Mrs. Musgrave hopes to return to her native state to manage a pet hospital. Mrs. Mattison and Miss Kelly aspire to places as laboratory workers in the public health service.

In addition Dean Oscar W. Brunkley says he understands two more "coed" students expect to enter the college in the winter quarter.

Meanwhile there are snickers from the direct ors of the law and engineering schools.

Mrs. Katherine Martin, Grady's Axioms and Mary K. Martin of the Child Beauty Salon attended the state convention and trade show of cosmeticians in Amarillo Tuesday. They presented three models featuring latest styles in hair dressing.

C. H. West of Amarillo was a Pampa visitor Tuesday.

CHILD WELFARE WORKER SCORES HOOVER UPON ATTITUDE OF WORK

Charging that President Hoover is exploiting the child-welfare movement as a campaign issue, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson declares that women will be misled by appeals for their support. Mrs. Gibson is chairman of the Child Placing committee of the State Charities Aid association and a member of the board of directors of the Welfare Council of New York City. She says:

"Everyone looks forward to the goals for happier, healthier childhood that Mr. Hoover has restated so aptly in the Children's Creed and that date back in presidential interest to the days of Theodore Roosevelt. But no words that Mr. Hoover can say, no matter how fire-sounding and altruistic, can wipe out the starvation and suffering that have been visited upon little children by the tragic effects of the administration's economic policies and by its delay and ineptitude in dealing with the depression. While babies were crying of hunger, Mr. Hoover and his spokesmen were assuring us that 'the country is on a sound and prosperous basis'."

"The United States Public Health service reports that today over 8,000,000 children in our schools have not enough to eat. Yet President Hoover's own secretary of the Interior, Ray Lyman Wilbur, in a public address, stated that in his opinion 'our children are apt to profit rather than suffer from what is being done'."

"Mr. Hoover has made much of his White House conference on child health and protection. The unadvised truth is that one of the principal recommendations of this conference would have wrecked the tremendous nation-wide service of the Children's bureau which, under the leadership of Grace Abbott, their relief."

WILL TAKE UP DUTIES NEXT NOVEMBER 10

PRESIDING ELDER IS AT SESSION IN PAMPA

Officers of the First Methodist church for the coming year were elected when the annual church conference was held last evening. M. M. Beavers of Clarendon, presiding elder of the Clarendon district, presided at the session.

The group elected will go into office at the close of the annual meeting of the Northwest Texas conference to be held in Amarillo Nov. 10.

FUR TRIMMING IS POPULAR

Brown squirrel trims this woolen dress and jacket suit in indefinite check. Patou designed the smart new felt turban sketched below.

The fur-trimmed woolen jacket and dress combination is important both for early fall days and later when it can be worn under one's fall coat. The ensemble above proves its chic in every line and detail.

One of the newest skirt treatments is that emphasizing hip-home width. The skirt above is an excellent example. This costume is designed on beltless princess lines with bustline clearly defined, waistline fitted and with its skirt practically straight except for the hip-

SIXTY-ONE ARE AT MEETING OF CHURCH WOMEN

CHRISTIAN FOLK HEAR TALK BY REV. O'MALLEY

Sixty-one persons attended a meeting of the women's council, First Christian church, yesterday afternoon, joining in a study of Paraguay and Argentina.

The meeting was opened with a song, Labor On, by the assembly, and prayer by the Rev. F. W. O'Malley. Following the business session, presided over by Mrs. McMillen, Rev. O'Malley spoke on the fundamental purposes of W. M. S. work. He urged members to call on other people "in the name of Christ" and not to hesitate in speaking to them about their souls.

A vocal duet by Mrs. D. C. Houk and Mrs. Marbaugh, accompanied by Mrs. Mel Davis, was followed with prayer by Mrs. O'Malley.

Taking as her subject the question, "What are you doing with Christ?" Mrs. C. E. Hutchins led devotion and prayer. The entire group then joined in singing "He Leadeth Me."

Mrs. B. C. Fahy spoke on "The Untouched Rural Paraguay," and following a reading by Mrs. Otto Patton, Mrs. J. W. Martin gave a discussion of the missionary work which is being done in Argentina. All joined in singing "Hour of Prayer," and the meeting was closed with the missionary benediction.

My Beauty Hint

SARI MARITZA

Carelessness more often than old age causes crow's feet and frowning lines.

Squinting is perhaps the foremost reason for furrows between brows. Using smoked glasses when driving or working in brilliant sunlight will avoid them.

Never go to the beach, mountains, or for a drive without a pair of dark-hood glasses. You will not only keep lines away, but will avoid red-hot eyes and pink-rimmed lids.

La Paloma Cox Is Honored at Party

La Paloma Cox was honored on her 16th birthday with a party given by L. de Vanderburg and Katherine Walker last evening in the home of the honoree's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Cox.

Cakes and candies were enjoyed, after which a lovely birthday cake, topped with pink and green candies, was cut and served with ice cream.

THE STRIPED TIGER
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the great animal artist, Paul Bransom... inspired by the savage ferocity of the striped tiger, known throughout the world as the terror of the jungle. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted" That package of mild Luckies

Campaign CHEERLEADERS

(By The Associated Press)

Except for the standard-bearers themselves, one of the "biggest guns" in the republican presidential campaign is Owen L. Mills, 48-year-old secretary of the treasury.

The wealthy New Yorker, who stepped out of a silk-stocking environment at 23 to enter precinct politics, did much of the heavy artillery work for President Hoover in the industrial east after he launched the G. O. P. campaign at Boston in mid-July. Later he took up the trail of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in the west, speaking at strategic industrial centers.

Keystone of republican campaign strategy is the drive for the support of business men. Mills, right-hand man of President Hoover in helping to set up the emergency reconstruction program and seasoned in governmental contact with finance and industry, was a logical choice of the republican high command to preach the Hoover cause to business.

Mills is no spellbinder, but he is a very capable speaker. His platform manner and appearance, earnest, straightforward and self-assured, is of the kind deemed by republican leaders as effective with business men.

Police Chief In B. E. F. Eviction Quits in Huff

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of Washington police who was at odds with administration members over the calling of troops to evict the Bonus Army, has tendered his resignation to the District of Columbia commissioners.

Glassford, a retired brigadier general, disputed statements by his superiors that he had said troops were necessary to restore order following clashes between veterans and police.

His resignation, however, grew out of official opposition to changes in personnel he wished to make in the police department.

Criticized because of the manner in which he handled the Bonus Army, Glassford replied by declaring that the situation was never out of control of the police. He contended that the calling of the troops who drove the veterans from government property on July 28 with tear gas and bayonet was unnecessary.

The police chief also challenged a statement by Attorney General Mitchell which said the Bonus Army probably brought to Washington "the largest aggregation of criminals that were ever assembled."

Solicitors Should Show Credentials

Pampa citizens are urged to make solicitors show cards proving that they are seeking funds for legitimate causes.

Several Texas cities are being "worked" by clever women soliciting funds for maternity homes and child welfare establishments, according to information received by officers of the local Welfare Board.

Subscribers for legitimate causes are compelled to carry cards signed by the secretary and president of the state child welfare board. Such cards must bear the seal of the State of Texas, the board has been informed.

Miss Violet Greenhill, chief of the division of child welfare for the state, will visit Pampa late this year or early next year to organize the Gray County Welfare Board. She will also work with local clubs.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 20 (AP)—Cotton had a quiet and easier opening today. Liverpool cables came in lower than due and first trades here showed losses of 7 to 8 points.

Although December promptly rallied two points to 67, this contract soon eased again to the opening level. An easier opening in stocks and some hedge-selling checked any tendency to rally.

Near the end of the first trading, December traded at 64 1/2 and March at 64, or 7 to 9 points below yesterday's close.

Trading was only moderate all morning. During the second hour, the market continued easy due to weakness in wheat and moderate hedging, December dropping to 62 1/2 and March to 64 1/2, down 13 to 14 points from yesterday's close. Later the market developed a better tone in sympathy with some improvement in stocks, better trade buying and covering by shorts. December rallied to 64 1/2 and January to 64 1/2, a recovery of ten to thirteen points from the lows.

Around noon, the market was steady and 2 to 3 points under the best.

School Head at McCamey Ousted

McCAMEY, Oct. 20.—C. V. Compton, until yesterday superintendent of schools here, is in the position today of contending for the job but being unable to work at it.

The school board met yesterday and dismissed the superintendent on the grounds of "insubordination and conduct in office." Compton refused to take the check paying him to November 1, and indicated he would appeal to the state board of education. Recourse after that could be had in the courts.

Differences between the superintendent and the school board first came into the open relative to the scheduling of the San Angelo-McCamey football game for November 11 at San Angelo, when the McCamey fans thought the school should have been scheduled at McCamey. The district 3 executives later permitted the scheduling of two games, one October 22 at McCamey, each to count a half game in conference standing.

G. A. Horton, high school principal, has been designated acting superintendent.
