TEXAN SAYS PAYMENT OF BONUS WILL CURE ILLS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (P)—The annual drive for immediate cash payment of the bonus was begun in the house today by Representative Patman (D., Tex.) with the statement that the outlay would provide needed currency expansion.

Patman, sponsor of the bill passed by the house and killed by the senate last spring, said on the floor that there is too little money in circulation.

The Texas' speech was the first made in the house on the bonus since the closing days of the last session, when the galleries were crowded with veterans who had marched on the capital.

Patman said he had "never yet found a plan" that would assure safe currency expansion except

SANTA CLAUS PLANE HEARD

At press time this afternoon the musical hum of Santa Claus' big airplane was heard over Pampa, and thousands of children and adults turned their eyes heavenward and sent up a great cheer.

The old fellow had arrived for the Junior chamber's second annual SANTA DAY celebration, just as he said he would. Plans called for him to meet the children "from miles around" in the parade and in his later excursions to the stores.

Santa Claus telegraphed the Jaycees this morning that he would not be able to stay for the big fireworks display at 8:15 p. m. because of his urgent desire to rush back to his toy factories. Everyone is invited to see the mammoth fireworks exhibition at Harvester field tonight. Be there promptly.

At noon many floats were being given the finishing touches. Clarence Denton, chairman of the parade committee, said the following firms had entered floats at that time:

Fire department, city commission, Board of City Development, Junior chamber officials, high school band, pep squad, Pampa Daily News, Murfee's Inc., Lane Bros. Texas garage, Lions club, City Steam Laundry, Culbertson-Smalling Chevrolet company, Texas Furniture company, Standard Food store, Diamond Shop, W. T. Fraser company, Le Nora theater, B. & B. Oil company, Kiwanis club, Bert Curry Refrigeration company, Miller-Lybrand company, Montgomery Ward, Davis Plumbing company, Your Laundry, M. System.

Tonight the colored street lights will be turned on to give this city the Christmas atmosphere through the holidays.

Lions To Help Provide Party For Children

Pampa Lions today took recognition of the Texas Tuberculosis association's program by buying two bonds to help support the 1933 activities.

They also decided to join the La Nora theater and the Pampa Daily NEWS in giving a party for all children of the community on Saturday morning, December 24. The children will receive candy and fruits. The party will be apart from the tree to be given less fortunate children only on the evening of December 23 by the churches, Welfare Board, Salvation Army, Elks, and other organizations.

With W. H. Curry as program chairman, several Lions today told of personal plans for giving Christmas cheer. The speakers included R. J. Hagan, U. G. Kerrs, Clyde Fatheree, R. B. Fisher, George Limerick, Gilmore N. Nunn, Willis Seales, and Judge W. R. Ewing D. E. Geel, postmaster, urged early mailing and told of steps to better the mail service. Mr. Nunn, Jaycee vice-president, thanked business men for their support of SANTA DAY.

RUSSIA SURRENDERS CHINESE REBEL CHIEFS TO JAPANESE

General Ma now reported as prisoner, and not dead as Japs claimed.

TOKYO, Dec. 8. (P)—Su Ping Wen and Dechs Ma Chan Shan—the two Chinese generals who have long blocked Japanese domination of far northwestern Manchuria—were reported today to be prisoners of the Japanese army.

Rengo (Japanese) news agency dispatches from Tsitsihar, the north Manchurian headquarters of the Japanese forces, said the Russian authorities had turned the two Chinese over to the Japanese at the border.

General Su fled into Siberia Sunday before the advancing Japanese and was disarmed and interned with some of his followers by the Soviet authorities.

One of the followers was said to have called himself General Ma—the man who held back the Japanese several weeks in their march on Tsitsihar. Last July the Japanese said they had slain General

CAPTURED SUSPECT DENIES SLAYING OF GLOBE-TROTTER

WELSH SOLDIER OF FORTUNE Relates His Dealings With Wanderwell.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8. (P)—In a darkened shack near the Los Angeles river bottoms, police today found William James Guy, 24-year-old Welsh soldier of fortune and suspect in the mysterious slaying of Captain Walter Wanderwell, globe-trotting adventurer. Wanderwell was shot to death Monday night at Long Beach aboard his dilapidated yacht Carmar.

"I know what you want—I've been expecting you," said Guy as police broke into the house and flashed their lights on him. "But I didn't kill Wanderwell."

The widow of the captain said Guy had threatened her husband over financial matters and had engaged in a fist fight with him.

Guy was further linked with the slaying by two persons who were aboard the yacht when Wanderwell was slain. Edmund Zeranski, Hollywood cameraman, and Outhbert Wills, engineer of the yacht, said Guy talked like and appeared to be the man who wore a gray suit and who had inquired through a port-hole for captain Wanderwell shortly before he was found dead in his cabin.

Latest Move OVERRULED BY HIGHEST COURT

COMMISSION EXPECTED TO LET CONTRACTS TODAY

MOTION IS IMPROPER

APPLICATION FOR WRIT OF ERROR NEEDED, COURT SAYS

AUSTIN, Dec. 8. (P)—Denied relief in the supreme court, James E. Ferguson and others seeking to enjoin the Texas Highway commission from awarding construction contracts, this afternoon went back to the third court of civil appeals in an effort to keep the commissioners from acting.

AUSTIN, Dec. 8. (P)—The Texas supreme court today overruled a motion of James E. Ferguson and others for leave to file application for a restraining order to enjoin the state highway commission for letting construction contracts.

The state's highest tribunal decided that it could not take jurisdiction at this time over the litigation instituted in the Travis county district court by the granting of an injunction forbidding the highway department from contracting to spend further money for highway work, and appealed to the third court of civil appeals, which dissolved the injunction.

In announcing the court's decision from the bench, after a conference with attorneys on both sides of the case, C. M. Cureton, chief justice, said it would be necessary for the cause to come to it through application for writ of error.

Justice Cureton said that Associate Justice Thomas B. Greenwood did not sit with the court in considering the case because he found that he was related to Bailey Hardy, who, with John Chamberlain, joined with Ferguson in bringing the suit.

Ocie Speer, attorney for Ferguson and the other plaintiffs, said he intended to file a motion for rehearing before the court of civil appeals and ask the supreme court to grant a writ of error.

W. R. Ely of Abilene, chairman, and D. K. Martin of San Antonio, member of the highway commission, were here prepared to formally award contracts for construction work aggregating $4,000,000, the letting of which was tied up by the district court injunction.

Alfred already had told the commission that it was no longer restrained and that it was free to award the contracts under the third court of appeals decision.

It was expected the commission would proceed this afternoon to award the contracts.

Ferguson, acting for Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, governor-elect, Hardy and Chamberlain instituted their action in the supreme court last night when they filed a petition for leave to ask publication for a restraining order to enjoin the commission from acting until the case could be finally determined on appeal to the higher court.

MACHINES AND MEN

Trying to figure out some way of solving the unemployment problem has provided a sharp headache for more than one American in the last few years.

Usually, with furrowed brow, the figurer lets it go by referring to what looks like a perfectly undeniable fact—that if we could only get general business activity back to the level of 1928 or 1929 the unemployment problem would take care of itself.

Now, however, it develops that even this loophole may be closed.

Fortune Magazine, after a survey of the whole field, declares bluntly that a painful and critical unemployment problem is going to be with us even after good times have returned. The arch-villain, it finds, is that peculiar species, technological unemployment—the kind of unemployment that comes not because times are bad but because machinery does the work that men used to do.

"Even though pre-depression production was resumed on Jan. 1, 1933," remarks Fortune, "there would still remain an unemployed population variously estimated at four to six million."

Nor is this the worst of it. The magazine predicts that the mechanization of industry will continue, with even more striking displacement of human labor, in the future. If 70 workers today do the work that 100 men did in 1910, in 1947 the same work will be done by 40 workers.

Here, as Fortune points out, is a problem that exists independently of the depression; a problem that will grow progressively more acute in years to come and that will be vexatious long after this depression has passed into history.

It may be, indeed, "the fundamental problem of our civilization," more vital even than the tri-partite conflict between democracy, communism and fascism. And so far we have hardly so much as glanced at it. We are reaching the end of a long epoch; something new and terrifyingly strange is about to begin. It is time we devoted our best thought and energy to the question how we are going to meet it.

Cables from Nice report that "Jimmy" Walker gave Miss Betty Compton some sage, if futile, advice when she was $100 ahead at a Casino gaming table. "We'd better quit while we're winning," said he. Jimmy's one fellow who ought to know.

A murderer, sought 18 years in France, revealed in a deathbed confession he had been a trusted member of the police service all of that time. If "Pretty Boy" Floyd, the Oklahoma outlaw, wants security and a pension in his old age he might well consider a job on the force.

General Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Nanking government, ordered a general shot after his troops were defeated. Stern discipline, it is explained, will put new life in the army. Just the general's way of playing put-and-take.

If you must worry, you might begin figuring out to remove those rusty bolts that secure your 1932 auto license plates.

'Cancel Debts' Says Lancaster To Rotary Club

Talking on the subject, "Can We Afford to be Paid," the Rev. C. E. Lancaster pointed out reasons why the United States would do well to cancel war debts in a talk Wednesday before the Rotary club.

"Our inability in this country to use the comforts and luxuries manufactured by Germany prevents that country making a profit necessary to pay its debts," he said.

"Due to high tariff walls, international trade is handicapped. Monetary systems in the countries of the world must be equalized and stabilized. Recent conditions have caused people to resort to barter in order to earn a livelihood. Markets must be provided and there must be a balance of trade between countries for Germany, in making its previous payment, had to borrow from other European countries and did not cut down her total indebtedness. One reason for Germany's inability to pay is the fact that money loaned by the United States was used to feed and clothe its orphans and widows and for rehabilitation and not for investment in profit-making enterprises."

Julian Barrett told of the causes leading up to the world war, the forerunner of the present international conditions. He likened the strife among nations to a mountain feud.

Clinton Henry was a visitor and Joe G. Tyler was introduced as a new member.

Everything's So Valuable in These Caverns Even Wastepaper Is Sifted

By OLIVER GRAMLING. NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—This is a story of how men and machines—day and night—protect millions down under a street that literally is lined with gold. And yet even that protection is not always sufficient.

Five $100,000 Liberty bonds recently disappeared from the cage of the Continental Bank and Trust company, and today two men are under arrest in Boston as suspects. Many Wall Street institutions are interested in the outcome of this case because it may offer suggestions for improved protection of money and securities.

During the day a great portion of the protection is obvious even to the passerby. But during the night—when millions rest in vaults set in the earth—the deserted streets give little indication of the activity below.

Beneath the sidewalks men and machines labor, carrying fortunes to their hiding places. In a huge room in another section of almost any metropolitan bank other men and other machines are sorting waste paper—one of the most important jobs of the night.

If money or securities have been lost or misplaced during the day, it is here that the search starts. Anything as valuable as a three-cent stamp is sifted clear of the refuse and is checked back into the assets of the institution.

After sifting, the matter is labeled and preserved for at least three weeks. One bank saves its waste for a whole year.

Special guards, armed with tear gas and riot guns, patrol the corridors about the vaults. In one vault 74 feet below the street level, microphones take up the vigil inside the huge money chamber as soon as the 60-ton door is locked.

A man sits at an electric board in a control room many feet away. Should a mouse were there once in the vault—make the slightest noise, this man would hear it. Another device stops and starts elevators hundreds of feet away and a system of lights advises the man just where his men are patrolling in the 45-story building at any time.

Officers Leave To Inspect Boy In Michigan City

DALLAS, Dec. 8. (AP)—Four deputy sheriffs left here today for Bay City, Mich., in an attempt to identify a youth arrested in that city as one they have long attempted to arrest in connection with robberies and killings in the Southwest.

Ed Castor and Denver Seale of Dallas wanted to question him concerning robberies at the First State bank at Cedar Hill, 20 miles south of here, on two recent occasions and Kelly Rush and P. F. Wilkerson of Hillsboro sought information of the killing of J. N. Bucher at his Hillsboro filling station.

One of the two youths arrested in Bay City gave the same name and age, 19 years, as that of the youth wanted in Texas. A 22-year-old companion also was arrested in the Michigan city at the skating rink. Officers said the youth they were especially eager to arrest had traveled with another, but they had heard reports that recently they had parted company.

Detectives forwarded fingerprints and photographs to Michigan authorities in an effort definitely to establish identity. They also talked by telephone with Sheriff W. S. Day of Midland, Mich., who said a youth giving the name of the one wanted in Texas recently passed that in the company of four other men.

German General Flays President

BERLIN, Dec. 8. (AP)—General Karl Litzmann, 82-year-old Nazi, opened the new Reichstag this afternoon with a tirade against President von Hindenburg, shouting that history may curse him for driving the country into bolshevism.

"Hindenburg became the savior of Germany in November, 1918, with the assistance of Litzmann's brigade of infantry at Ludow," he cried, "that battle brought him a field marshal's baton. Today something more important than a baton is at stake.

"For Hindenburg it is a question of escaping the curse which history may lay upon him for having driven the German people into despair and delivered the country to bolshevism."

When he referred to Adolf Hitler as the greatest living German and the only man who can save the nation, the national socialist members cheered and the communists boomed. The old general, elected because of the custom which tenders to the oldest member the privilege of becoming speaker pro tem, wore all his war decorations.

Chancellor von Schleicher, who assumed that office yesterday, was present for the opening, a decree of dissolution ready for use if he needed it.

After preliminaries the reichstag re-elected Hermann Wilhelm Goerring, one of Hitler's chief lieutenants, as speaker.

A PATH TO PARADISE

SYNOPSIS: Tipped off by Clive, Santa is desperate at his wife's efforts to reform her former husband Dicky. Lou-Lou suddenly appears. She slaps Dicky, and reports with him after telling both Clive and Santa what she thinks of them. But it was all in vain; Dicky turns up next night. The time it is Clive who rebels. He slaps Dicky into the hall with orders never to return.

Chapter 44. WOMAN IN A PET. AND now for Santa! He'd done right, of course. Dicky had been her visitor. She'd derived some sort of excitement from him. Of the way divorced couples remained curious about each other! Without a doubt, she'd still regarded Dicky as in a limited sense her property.

Whatever her attitude, he mustn't permit her to make him lose his temper. He must act cheerfully, as though bouncing ex-husbands were an invigorating form of exercise. In the drawing room he found her on the couch, her legs tucked under her, cushions piled behind her, giving an imitation of a girl absorbed in a novel.

"Hello, sweetheart!" he greeted her. "We can breathe freely now." No sign that she had heard. Struggling over to the window, he gazed into the abyss of darkness and spoke again.

"There was no other way. It wasn't pleasant. At last we're rid of him." He glanced across his shoulder. She hadn't stirred.

"You're beautiful, but you're not dumb, Santa. If either of us has cause for offence, I'm the one. New York isn't Tibet."

He had hoped that the reference to Tibet would extract a retort. "In Tibet," he explained, "women are legally entitled to have as many husbands as they can support."

A tear splashed. She turned a page. The tear melted him. "You're such a little girl. When you've made a mistake, why punish the person you've wronged?" He relieved her of her book gently. "You're not reading. What's your trouble?"

Fiddling Event Draws Entrants From Wide Area

AMARILLO (AP)—In the days of Mother Goose lived a monarch named Cole, familiarly known as a "merry old soul." When his court needed livening up, or he was in a mood to throw a party, he merely "called for his fiddlers three," and the gaiety began.

Wilbur C. Hawk, president of the West Texas chamber of commerce, who cannot command as did the medieval king, threw out the challenge: "Say, old man, can you play the fiddle?" in calling seasoned exponents of the ancient art to participate in a benefit contest for the Amarillo Pat Stock show, Dec. 10.

And the response for champions of "Sally Goodin" and "Arkansas Traveler." "Yes, young man, both ways from the middle," echoed from the slopes of the Rockies in New Mexico across the Texas Panhandle to Western Oklahoma. They are entering in such numbers that King Cole's merry shade will probably turn sour when he gazes upon the anticipated three score fiddlers who will entertain Mr. Hawk and his patrons.

The fiddling contest is an annual affair. This year's event will be the largest ever held in West Texas where "fiddling"—not virtuosity—is a perennial art. Eliminations to select county winners have been required in past years, but the approaching contest will be open.

Fiddling has no age limit in West Texas. Where many youthful players have increased their earnings performing at country dances. Former contests have been won by young competitors. But in order to limit competition to old timers this year, only those under 40 years of age will be admitted.

Most of the old-timers who learned with resined bow to "pick out" the strains of old tunes without tutoring, object to youngsters competing as "fiddlers." Many of the "kids," they charge, have taken violin lessons and are able to "doctor" up familiar tunes to better please modern jazz audiences.

The most popular numbers among fiddlers still are "Wagoner," "Billy in the Field," "The Old-Fashioned Leather Breedies," "Blackeyed Susan," "That Girl I Left Behind Me," "Old Paint," "Rye Straw," and "Turkey in the Straw."

Although the fiddle always has been the favorite instrument among cowboys, and West Texas has produced some of the nation's greatest fiddlers, very few of the tunes were inspired by range life. "Old Paint" is an exception among the favorites. It is true, that many cowboy songs are "fiddled" by West Texans, but they don't make good contest numbers.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carmichael and son are Amarillo visitors today rehearsing. The verdict had previously been affirmed. Cubit, a negro, was convicted in connection with the ice pick slaying of G. W. Mann, who ran a small store near Luling.

Full Effect of New Oil Law Is Not Felt Yet

AUSTIN, Dec. 8. (AP)—Oil operators of Texas are wondering about their new "reasonable market demand" production proration law which has been in effect just one week.

Already attorneys for protestants who successfully attacked the Texas railroad commission's under the old statute, which studiously avoided anything that could be considered a direction for proration based on market demand, were poised to pounce upon the latest plan of limiting production.

The new law, enacted at a special session of the legislature convened specifically for that purpose, gives the commission, guardian of the state's natural resources, broadened powers in arriving at a basis for curtailing production.

Now, if the commission sees fit, it may consider reasonable market demand in deciding what should be the amount of production that would not precipitate physical waste. Heretofore the commission could consider only factors likely to create physical waste and was forbidden from taking market demand into account.

There remained a question, however, whether the commission in drafting its first orders under the new law based the allowable upon market demand. Nominations made by purchasers in the various fields revealed that the market demand for December would be a little more than one million barrels daily.

The commission now threatens to reduce this allowable to approximately 800,000 barrels, having been persuaded that anything above this figure would create physical waste. It had been contended that there were duplications in the nominations of takings of purchasers.

HARROCK TO BRING STRONG QUINTE HERE

HARVESTERS PREPARE FOR CLOSEST KIND OF BATTLE

The Irishmen basketball team as powerful as reports from Harrocks indicate, the Harvesters will only face their first real test of the season tomorrow night in the high school gym, but their ring offensive as exhibited in the previous game will be at stake. It was evident last Friday night that Clarendon permitted the Harvesters to do what a clicking defense would not allow—roll up a big score by way of "crip" shots, points under the basket. Fans should be able to determine in the Shamrock game whether the Harvesters' ring ones are super-fast and will be against the tightest sort of defense, or whether the Clarendon Bronchos' had an unusually tight defense. Local basketball enthusiasts were remembering today most of the Pampa points in the first game were the result of "p" shots.

The fine points of basketball were noted out by Coach Odus Mitchell the Harvesters yesterday—jump blocking, catching rebounds, facts that have showed up like a thumb since the Clarendon game were the subject of skill and practice.

Coach Harry Kelley also put his through a start workout. They play the Green girls at 7 o'clock. The boys' game will follow. Harrocks is expected to prove a stumbling block in the Harvesters' march for honors this year. Harrocks will play lettermen today on the floor. Last year the Harvesters nosed out the Irishmen only three points. Cherry, the wackier brother and Scarvan the Shamrock regulars back this year, while the other player was a letterman substitute.

Clarendon's girls showed plenty of promise last season, especially when they played three tie games in the npa tournament, winning two and losing one. All games were tight strong sets. Coach Kelley's girls are comparatively new to the game and only experience and a find will bring them to front. They are working hard, never, and before long should hit stride.

Admission to the two games will be 10 cents for students and 25 cents for adults. A packed gymnasium saw the Harvesters win the ring game of the season last week.

NEW BASKETBALL RULES MEANT TO INSURE FASTER GAME WITH MINIMUM OF PERSONAL CONTACT

There have been several changes in basketball rules this year that are confusing and there are also some old rules that have never been clear. The basketball guide book gives the following translations of many of the new and old rules that could be easily misunderstood.

Personal Contact.

Although basketball is theoretically a "non-contact" game, it is obvious that personal contact cannot be avoided entirely when ten players are moving with great rapidity over a limited playing space. For instance, the ball is free; two opponents start quickly for the ball and collide. The personal contact may be serious, yet if both were in favorable positions from which to get the ball, and were intent only upon getting it, an unavoidable accident, and not a foul, occurs. On the other hand, if one player is about to catch the ball, and an opponent behind him jumps into his back in an attempt to get the ball, the opponent commits a foul even though he is "playing the ball."

In this case, as in "guarding from the rear," the player behind is usually responsible for the contact because of his unfavorable position relative to the ball and to his opponent. In short, if personal contact results from a bona fide attempt to play the ball; if the players are in such contact; and if they use due care to avoid contact; such contact may be classed as accidental and need not be penalized.

Blocking.

Blocking is now defined as personal contact, thus authorizing what has been improperly called the "legal block." Screening is the proper term to apply to holding or reaching about the person of an opponent who does not have the ball.

A player is entitled to take any position on the court not occupied by another player, provided personal contact does not result. If personal contact does occur, responsibility being placed on the player whose action is being protested. For instance, a player is not blocking when he passes the ball to a teammate and then runs between the receiver and his guard. If contact occurs, however, the player is responsible for the contact, but in case of doubt the responsibility should be on the player who is attempting to screen.

It is illegal for one or more players to run down the court close to a teammate who has the ball, with the apparent intention of preventing the player from appearing to the player with the ball. If, however, they run into an opponent who has taken a position in their path, charging or blocking occurs, and in case of any contact on such a play, the greater responsibility is on the player in contact.

The "Center-Pivot" Play.

This play, commonly used at the free throw line, has been restricted by limiting to three seconds the time a player may hold the ball while his back is to the basket. On this play the pivoter in turning for a position to try for a shot, may move in such a direction that no contact ensues if his guard remains stationary at a reasonable distance away (about one yard).

The pivoter should not be allowed to shoulder or hip his opponent out of position, or to use any part of the latter's freedom of motion by the use of extended elbows or arms.

On the other hand, the guard should not be allowed to interfere with the pivoter's freedom of motion by use of the arms, knees or other part of the body. If the defensive player has his arms, legs or body within less than one yard of the pivoter, he is likely to interfere with the latter's freedom of motion; if the guard is a yard or more away, the pivoter is responsible for any contact that occurs.

Face-Guarding.

It is obvious that a player who disregards the ball, faces an opponent and gives his sole attention to the movements of his opponent, is not playing basketball. It should be noted, however, that it is not illegal to take such a position, that face-guarding does not occur after taking this position until the player shifts his opponent's shifts, thus obviously interfering with the latter's progress. In other words, there is no foul on the play until interference, with or without contact, takes place.

The Dribble.

Rule 15, section 9, contains a statement that emphasizes the responsibility of the dribbler in connection with the fouls resulting from the dribble. If the dribbler's path is blocked, he is expected to pass or shoot; that is, he ought not to try to dribble by an opponent unless there is a reasonable chance of getting by without contact. This is not intended to free the defensive player from responsibility to avoid contact, but more attention should be directed to the dribbler's responsibility. In attempting to stop a dribble, the defensive player must play the ball.

Held Ball.

Many officials are calling held ball to forestall fouls. That is, they see a player about to charge into, or hold an opponent who has the ball, and they prevent the foul by blowing their whistles and declaring held ball. This is unjust to the player who has gained possession of the ball, and it encourages rough play. Some officials do this chiefly in connection with "guarding from the rear," claiming that their method lessens whistle-blowing. This is not true however, for in the long run this kind of officiating leads to a rougher game and many more fouls. The sections of the country which call "guarding from the rear" strictly are getting a cleaner, more open type of game.

MANTELL USES EVERYTHING TO THROW ARTHUR

DUTCH WINS 2 FALLS AND APPROVAL OF CUSTOMERS

Two types of entertainment were furnished at the Pla-Mor auditorium last night—wrestling and burlesque. The wrestling features were of the highest type, while the comedy act was a riot.

Dutch Mantell, the grand old man of the mat, did battle with Emile Arthur of Canada in the main event after two real wrestling matches presented by youngsters. Feeling that the crowd had witnessed enough wrestling for one night, Mantell closed the match with Arthur and put the crowd on its feet. Arthur, much surprised at the type of wrestling displayed by Mantell, was at a loss during the first few minutes of the first fall as Dutch kicked him about the ring, waved long arms with hard fists on the end of them, and jumped from behind Referee Oscar Dotson to manhandle the Canuck.

The old gentleman won the last two falls after Arthur had pinned Mantell in the first fall in 16 minutes with a series of headlocks and a smother. Mantell garrotted the Canuck to win the second fall in 10 minutes and took the third in the same time with a new kind of Flying Dutchman which needed only one turn before dropping the victim.

The wrestling of the evening was a sidekick match between a young giant by the name of Ross Austin from Baltimore. The youngsters went 21 minutes before the redhead won with a questionable hold which apparently garrotted the Maryland boy. The youngster from the north started by using Ross in the opening of the match and had the local boy in trouble with a head scissors and arm bar followed by a reverse full Nelson. Austin was using his legs just as good as his arms. The redhead came up with a head scissors and followed with a toe hold.

The two boys put out everything they had and Michael got a punishing split. Austin continued to work on the arms and both boys lost their heads in the heat of action. The riot of arms and legs ended when the referee, Howard, stepped in to change of right and lefts and a head scissors and arm lock by the redhead.

The other wrestling match of the evening brought Howard Blecher of Amarillo and Dave Reynolds, welterweight champion of the world. Reynolds had everything his own way for a while but a split and a cautious double toe hold made him cautious. Reynolds worked on the arms, while Blecher took to Reynolds' feet with toe holds and splits. There was action galore and honors were about even until Reynolds used his wrist to Blecher's chin several times and then fell on him in 13 minutes.

Gump and Barber Kelley opened the event but it officially ended one minute after the gong when the barber sent Gump's shoulders to the mat with a head scissor and leg hold. The crowd yelled for more and they went 10 minutes to a draw.

Great Dotson will probably wrestle the semi-final match next week. Dotson has been quietly working out and is in excellent condition.

GLOOMY HUNK SEES DEFEAT AND HOSPITAL

RAMBLERS PLOT HOW TO WHIP TROY AT TUCSON

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 8. (AP)—In the city where Southern California defeats of other years have been plotted, Coach Hunk Anderson rallied his influenza stricken Notre Dame squad of football players for two more workouts today in final preparation for their game at Los Angeles Saturday.

Shrouded in secrecy and the cloak of their mentor's gloom, the Ramblers set about the task of what their followers hope will result in another triumph over Coach Howard Jones' Trojans, unbeaten in 18 starts.

Despite Anderson's adverse remarks, the team seemed to be in fair condition and more than passively enthusiastic about its chances. Ray Brancheau, the halfback for whom an ambulance met the train here yesterday, after shunning the public workout yesterday morning, appeared for the secret session and showed none of the effects expected of one bed-ridden with influenza.

Steve Banas, Joe Skeetaki, Norman Greeney, Emmett Murphy and Joe Robinson, all of the hospital list, took an active part in both workouts, lending no strength to Anderson's doleful dirge that the "Trojans will lick us by at least two touchdowns."

Anderson, apparently given to worry, also feared the effects of the "extreme heat"—72 degrees Fahrenheit. He found no solace in reports that the forecast for Southern California was "increased cloudiness and cooler."

The announced starting lineup for the Ramblers also failed to jibe with the hospital reports. Captain Host and Kosky were listed at ends; Kurth and Krause, tackles; Greeney and Harris, guards; Robinson, center; Jaskiwich, quarterback; Koken and Brancheau, halves, and Melnikovich, fullback.

Jeas Harper, athletic director at Notre Dame, dropped the hint he would meet Coach Bill Ingram of the University of California to discuss a possible game with the Golden Bears at Berkeley in December of 1933.

The Ramblers leave for Los Angeles tomorrow morning and will reach their destination Friday night.

Indians To Dine On Buffalo Meat Again This Year

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., Dec. 8. (AP)—Staple diet of their ancestors, but only an occasional delicacy during the past half century, Buffalo meat again this winter will be issued to Indians of the northwest to supplement diminished larders.

While to the youth among the tribesmen, perhaps, this Christmas present of Uncle Sam means only a full stomach, to their elders it conjures recollections of ancient glories, forgotten prowess with spear and arrow behind thunderous hoofbeats on the open plains when the buffalo were plenty and the Indian free to hunt them.

Now, except for those carefully guarded in Yellowstone park and other public and private preserves, the buffalo has gone and the Indian scolded down to less thrilling pastimes.

But the great herd in the western park is outgrowing its range and about 250 of the 800 head must be disposed of. Most will be butchered and turned over to the Crow and Blackfoot Indians.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—Ralph Greenleaf holds his usual position today at the top of the standings in the National Pocket Billiard championship tournament, but he has yet to meet Andrew Pontz of Philadelphia and Erwin Rudolph of Cleveland.

The 33-year-old title-holder has won his two straight while 5 others—Rudolph, Pontz, Bennie Allen of Kansas City, Pasquale Natalie of Chicago and James Caras of Wilmington, Del.—are close behind with one victory each.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—Kid Chocolate, a slim negro boy, dazzling in his skill, and a chunky, curly-headed puncher from California, Fidel Labarba, can bring back to the featherweight division Friday night some of the glamor and thrill a great fighting weight has been losing steadily with the years.

They meet for 15 rounds in Madison Square Garden, with Chocolate's claim to the featherweight championship, granted by the New York State Athletic commission, at stake.

With these two rests much of what ever chance the 126-pound class has at the moment of regaining the prestige the division knew when it was ruled by such men as "Ice" Wier, the "Belfast Spider", Terry McGovern, Abe Attell; and the prototype of all negro warriors since his day, George Dixon, the "Little Chocolate."

Navy Graduates Want Degrees—Like Other Boys

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP)—Henceforth the Navy wants Anna-polis graduates to have the right to place the letters "B. S." after their names, indicating that the degree bachelor of science has been conferred upon them.

As is it, those who finish four years at the naval academy get only a diploma to show they have completed a training that is rigorous in more ways than one. The high rank they may acquire later goes before their names, not after.

Behind the request by Secretary Adams is a story that means grief to many youngsters who enter Annapolis in the future visualizing themselves as admirals, so and so, in game.

"In the Act of Throwing for Goal!" A player is in the act of throwing for goal when he has the ball and, in the judgment of the officials, is throwing or attempting to throw, for goal. It is not essential that the ball leave the player's hand; for instance, a player's arms may be held by an opponent so that he cannot shoot, yet he is making every attempt to do so. He is thus deprived of his opportunity to score and is entitled to two free throws as compensation.

Moreover, the act of shooting continues after the ball has left the player's hand until he regains his equilibrium and is no longer in a defenseless position. On a jump ball neither player has possession of the ball at the instant it is tapped, and therefore neither can be considered in the act of shooting, even though one player may tap the ball toward, or into the basket. Consequently a multiple throw cannot ensue under these conditions.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—Kid Chocolate, a slim negro boy, dazzling in his skill, and a chunky, curly-headed puncher from California, Fidel Labarba, can bring back to the featherweight division Friday night some of the glamor and thrill a great fighting weight has been losing steadily with the years.

They meet for 15 rounds in Madison Square Garden, with Chocolate's claim to the featherweight championship, granted by the New York State Athletic commission, at stake.

With these two rests much of what ever chance the 126-pound class has at the moment of regaining the prestige the division knew when it was ruled by such men as "Ice" Wier, the "Belfast Spider", Terry McGovern, Abe Attell; and the prototype of all negro warriors since his day, George Dixon, the "Little Chocolate."

SANTA AND THE MAGIC DOLL

By SIGRID ARNE

SYNOPSIS: Inga is proclaimed the most beautiful doll in Santa's toyshop. She was made by a lady Gnome assigned to the work by Santa, after he had fashioned Pinocchio, an ugly clown.

Chapter IV.
THE WITCH

Now all the world of magic isn't kind, you know. There are the witches who harm people and quite naturally they don't like Santa Claus because he is so good.

But Santa guards against them by never letting them enter the Toyshop.

"You are free to come and go up here," Santa told Inga. "We'll all have a good time because when you go down to the world on Christmas Eve you are only free to talk and play with other dolls after midnight. But there is one thing you must promise me—don't ever let any witches in. You will know them because they all have very old faces."

"Indeed, I won't," said Inga. And then she dismissed the subject from her mind, for there was so much to do in the Toyshop. In the center stood the huge Christmas tree on which grew all the little Christmas bells. A whole new crop pops out of the branches each day and funny little elves in brown suits and pointed hats run up and down the branches cutting them off and dropping them down to other little elves.

Along the side of the large rooms are long tables where fairies work painting faces on dolls, curling their hair and dressing them.

In another room gnomes work on toy trains and wagons. They even have little furnaces where they melt the metal. And they look very important indeed hammering away.

Mrs. Santa is in charge of all the little fairies that make Christmas goodies. They pop corn and make long white strings to trim the trees. They gather cranberries and bake ginger-cookies until the whole shop smells good.

One day Inga was sitting on her throne watching all the excitement when there was a soft rap on the window behind her. She turned and saw a tiny old woman carrying a broom almost as big as she was, and wearing a high pointed hat.

"Let me in, Inga," called the little woman. "I'm tired and I'd like to rest."

"But who are you?" asked Inga. "Just a little old woman who's traveling."

"But you're so old looking," you must be a witch," said Inga, remembering Santa's advice. "I can't let you in."

"I'm no witch," the woman said. "I have a little present for you."

"What is it?"

"A beautiful little gold mirror with a ruby set in the back," said the witch.

"You're sure you're not a witch," said Inga.

"Quite sure."

"All right, then, come in," and Inga opened the window a crack to let the queer little person in.

"Now let me see the mirror," said Inga.

The little lady reached deep into a pocket on her wide gray skirt and pulled out the prettiest little mirror just as right size for a doll, with a beautiful ruby set in the back.

"Oh, let me see," cried Inga. "The dolls all say I'm pretty, but I've never seen for myself."

And she held up the mirror to look. As she did the little woman mumbled some words to herself which Inga didn't hear because she was looking in the mirror. As she did so a strange thing happened. Her pretty young face became all gray and lined, her hair turned gray and stringy and her beautiful dress turned to rags.

The little woman had bewitched her.

ALL TEACHERS TO COOPERATE WITH PARENTS

FORTUNE TELLING WILL BE AMONG FORMS OF FUN

Every room at Horace Mann school will have part in the carnival to be sponsored by the Parent-Teacher association Friday evening, 7:30 o'clock.

The public is invited to attend, and fun for everyone has been promised. An old-fashioned spelling bee will be one feature of the evening, and the three team captains, J. M. Turner, J. D. Lawson, and T. A. Cox, will select their helpers from the guests.

Home-made candy, coffee, pie and home-made cookies will be served. Futures of guests will be prophesied free of charge by a professional fortune teller, this feature being the contribution of Mrs. K. Griffith. Other room features will include the following:

"Review of the Teachers," low first grade pupils of Miss Wilma Chapman's room.

"The Midgets," Mrs. George Clark's room.

"Hazel, the Snake-Eater," Mrs. T. A. Cox's room.

"Tom Thumb and His Bride," Miss Loma Groom's room.

Mrs. J. M. Turner, who is in general charge of the carnival, is assisted by teachers, children, room mothers, and other Parent-Teacher association members in executing the carnival plan.

WALLPAPER BORDERS IN STYLE

They frame windows especially well.

By MARGERY TAYLOR.

(Copyright, 1932, by the McCall Company for Pampa Daily News.)

Wallpaper borders are in style again—not the rambling roses of days gone by, but modern designs applied with a sufficiently knowing touch to give the simplest room "that air."

Further, the new borders will not be used often with figured papers; they will appear in novel places, and they may be made washable with a coat of clear shellac.

One of the novel places is about the bedroom, for example, around the window casing. With ruffled organdy or marquisette curtains the border gives the decorative atmosphere without cutting off light or air.

Doors may be set off with the borders, as at the end of a hallway or in the case of two doors flanking a dressing table. A wallpaper border, generally of the conventional type, is very effective outlining the inside of the panels.

Among the interesting new borders is one that looks like wooden moulding, very realistically so. It may be used to mark off a wall at wainscot height or to divide it into panels.

And a classic effect may be had with wallpaper panels designed in lined Greek columns, used on dark brown walls, on each side of the fireplace and at carefully measured intervals.
