'WE' COMBATING RAIN AND MIST

Rains Turn to Snow Through Wide Territory Today

PAMPA WHEAT CROP WILL BE MUCH HELPED

Precipitation Sunday Was Quarter of Inch in the City

BLIZZARD AT DENVER NOW

Storm Hurts Shipping; Members of Crews Are Missing

Wheat lands in the Pampa community drank up moisture amounting to .25 of an inch Sunday, and today fitful snow fall spread a white blanket over this portion of Northwest Texas. The rainfall will be of inestimable benefit to the wheat crop, which has suffered from a drouth of four months' duration.

Yesterday's weather included rain, fog, mist, snow and a little sleet but the total precipitation was smaller than it appeared. Roads were made very slippery, and many cars went into ditches, but traffic in general was merely delayed. The snow yesterday was very heavy, but lasted but a short time and melted as it fell. Despite the snow today, business opened normally, but most building activity ceased. The temperature was near the freezing mark, with colder weather predicted for tonight.

SNOW IS GENERAL.

WICHITA FALLS, Feb. 13.—(P)—Snow replaced Sunday's rain in Northern Oklahoma and Northwestern Texas Monday morning and conditions indicated that a norther was enroute for Wichita Falls.

Rain here since 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon totalled .88 inch. At 4 a. m. Monday the mercury stood at 44 degrees with a light west wind and cloudy skies.

The Fort Worth and Denver reported that light snow was falling Monday morning from Texline to Memphis with a heavier fall reported between Amarillo and Clarendon. At 5 a. m. temperatures were Texline 38, Amarillo 38, and Childress 42.

STORM WARNINGS POSTED.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(P)—The weather bureau today ordered storm warnings displayed at 10:30 a. m. from Hatteras to Jacksonville and from Pensacola to Cedar Keys on the West Gulf coast.

DENVER, Feb. 13.—(P)—Coming from the Northwest with a suddenness which caught this city unprepared, a blizzard swept Denver and vicinity Sunday afternoon and night. Accidents were numerous, but no deaths were reported.

Extreme cold was reported at Cheyenne, Wyo., with only a trace of snow, while Pueblo, Colo., on the south, reported a light snow.

SHIPPING IS CRIPPLED.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—(P)—A crippled shipping limped into port today, as the toll of a gale which swept western Europe and the North Atlantic over the week-end was counted. It was feared that the deaths might mount to fifty. The loss of property was heavy.

Twenty-five lives are known to have been lost in Scandinavia and nine in Great Britain. Accidents to shipping were just becoming known although the gale spent itself early Sunday.

After the dredge vessel Grinkel sank in the Mersey river six of the crew were missing and they were listed among the casualties today.

Houses were blown down, roofs carried away and a torrential rainfall which accompanied the hurricane caused fresh floods in the British Isles. The wind blew at an average of 70 miles an hour at Liverpool with occasional gusts reaching 104 miles while on the opposite side of England at Tynemouth it was only a gentle two-mile breeze.

BOSTON, Feb. 13.—(P)—Three members of the crew of the naval tug Mohave were missing today after the craft had piled up on the jagged rocks of Harding Ledge, two miles east of Point Allerton in a moonlit sea last night.

"We"—On Horseback

A new kind of good-will ambassador is Alme Felix Tschiffely of Argentina. Two and a half years ago he left his South American home and started to ride horseback to New York City. He reached Laredo, Texas, the other day and is only two months away from his goal. Here he is shown astride Mancha, the other half of the "We" in the inter-continental horseback hop.

Ohio Republicans Prepare to Fight for Convention Votes—Hoover Off to Florida on Week's Fishing Trip

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 13.—(P)—Ohio Republicans, split into two factions by the presidential candidacies of Herbert Hoover and Senator Frank B. Willis today were marshalling their forces to win Ohio's 51 delegates to the national convention for their favorites.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(P)—Secretary Hoover today sought a temporary refuge from the storm of political discussion brought on by his announcement of his presidential candidacy, and prepared to leave Washington on a fishing trip to Florida.

He asked the bureau of fisheries to recommend the spot on the Florida coast where an amateur fisherman could best hope for a catch, and declared that he would go there and remain at least a week.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(P)—Herbert Hoover is out in the open as a candidate for president, pledged to "carry forward the principles of the Republican party and the great objectives of President Coolidge's policies."

According to the wishes of a growing group of supporters, the commerce secretary has authorized them to enter his name as a candidate in the forthcoming Ohio primaries. He thus begins his campaign fully aware that it means a fight at the outset with the forces of Senator Willis of Ohio, another announced candidate, whose friends are determined to give him his home state's 51 delegates to the Kansas City convention.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(P)—The inquisitiveness of Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, concerning the prohibition views of presidential candidates has brought him a suggestion that he ask also whether they would favor a $200,000,000 appropriation for "vigorous and faithful enforcement."

The suggestion has come from Representative LaGuardia, Republican, New York, who advised the senator to demand positive and full answers from the candidates, and asked if it might not be well to "ascertain by real enforcement and the total cutting off of liquor supply whether or not the people of the country really want" prohibition.

P. O. Anderson of Amarillo, printer-telegraph instrument mechanic, arrived this afternoon to test "Iron Mike" in the Daily News office.

Police Chief O. E. Evans of Texas City Slain Early Today by Bandits While He Conducts Investigation

TEXAS CITY, Feb. 13.—(P)—O. E. Evans, assistant chief of police, was shot and killed by bandits at the rear entrance of a drug store here early today.

His body was found some time later by officers who had been searching for the robbers after they had attempted to enter a dry goods store. A night watchman had driven two men away from the establishment earlier in the night. He spread the alarm. Evans was notified and came from his home to join in the search for the men. Apparently he had conducted an independent investigation and when his car was found at the city hall, officers began looking for him. His body was found at the rear entrance to the drug store with a bullet through his heart.

No trace of the bandits had been found.

Hickman to Turn State's Evidence in Pal's Trial

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 13.—(P)—William Edward Hickman, convicted kidnaper and murderer of Marian Parker, today definitely announced his intention of turning state's evidence against his 16-year-old partner, Welby Hunt, when the pair appear Wednesday before Superior Judge Carlos Hardy to answer to the charge of murdering C. Ivy Thoms, a druggist, Christmas Eve, 1926.

"He had a lot of fun testifying against me, watch me when I take the stand against him," Hickman declared.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 13.—(P)—District Attorney Asa Keyes declared today that William Edward Hickman, slayer of Marian Parker, may be tried, convicted and hanged on another charge before his legal fight to avoid punishment for the Parker killing is decided.

Keyes pointed out that Hickman, who last week was declared sane by a jury in superior court here, has entered two pleas to the charge that he and Welby Hunt murdered C. Ivy Thoms, in an attempted drug store holdup Christmas eve 1926.

In the Parker case Hickman pleaded only "not guilty by reason of insanity." In the Thoms case he has pleaded "not guilty," and "not guilty by reason of insanity." The two pleas put up to the jury decision on his sanity and decision on his guilt, if he is found sane. A verdict in the Thoms case that Hickman is sane and guilty, unaccompanied by a recommendation for clemency, would send Hickman to the Gallows, Keyes declared. The Thoms case opens Wednesday.

Smallpox Here—Health Officer Is Urging Vaccination

Three cases of mild smallpox have been reported in the city and three cases are reported in Roberts county. City Health Officer Dr. Archie Cole requests that physicians with patients suffering from eruptions of the skin report to him, and that anyone having eruptions of the skin, whether in the care of a physician or not report to the health officer.

In some cases, persons have been known to try to cover up their illness, which is a violation of the law and punishable.

"Vaccination is the surest means of protection," Dr. Cole stated this morning, "and it only means one sore, whereas smallpox means hundreds and a long illness. I would advise vaccination immediately as a precaution against an epidemic."

HINKLER IN AIR

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 13.—(P)—Bert Hinkler, British flyer enroute to Australia, hopped off from Basra, Iraq for Karachi, India today. Hinkler left Ramleh, Palestine, Sunday, arriving at Basra that evening.

OKLAHOMA AND WEST TEXAS—Tonight fair, colder; Tuesday fair.

Preaching Here

The Rev. E. M. Dunsworth, who is association worker for the Canadian Baptist association, is leading an evangelistic meeting this week at the Baptist church here. Rev. Dunsworth has been here the last week conducting a Training School for the church and teaching a manual on Stewardship and Missions. The attendance has been good, with growing interest. A successful meeting is expected among Baptists of this city this week even though the weather looks unfavorable.

Rev. Dunsworth has a large field of service, his work including five counties of this section. All Pampa people are invited to hear Rev. Dunsworth at 8 o'clock each evening.

DRASTIC LAW IS ADVOCATED

Legion Members Approve Sterilization of Unfit Persons.

AUSTIN, Feb. 13.—(P)—Sterilization of unfit men and women, based on a law similar to that in effect in other states, was advocated as a Texas measure in a resolution adopted by American Legion members of the 10th district in session with Travis Post No. 76, it was announced today.

"This resolution was endorsed as being the most effective manner of eliminating criminal classes from society," members of the Legion who voted for the motion said.

Speakers at the meeting declared that nine-tenths of criminals tried by Texas courts in recent years were physically or mentally defective due to aberrations occurring in the first, second, or third generations preceding.

Insane Murderer Leads Prisoners in Killing Two Guards With Fists

BRIDGEWATER, Mass., Feb. 13.—(P)—Led by an insane murderer, liberated inmates of the Bridgewater state farm overpowered and killed two guards early today and were only subdued after a force of more than 60 guards, state police, and city police from Brockton had invaded the institution.

The slain men were Eugene Amlaw, night supervisor of guards, and Wilfred Gerroir, a guard.

Gerroir met death at the hands of the murderer-ring leader, as he came upon the maniac in the act of scaling a transom from his cell. The slayer clubbed the guard to death with his bare fists, ripped the guard's keys from his uniform and then freed four other dangerous prisoners.

The five set upon Amlaw, who was making his rounds, and slew him. Other guards who were in the night relief room barricaded themselves and sent out calls for help.

A preliminary investigation showed that the first man to escape had cut up his bed clothing and fashioned it into a rope and had obtained from

LINDBERGH IS FLYING BEYOND SIGHT TODAY

Reported Lost When Not Seen for Hours This Morning

MOTOR HEARD AT CAIRO, ILL.

"Worst Weather He Could Have Picked" Is Encountered

CAIRO, Ill., Feb. 13.—(P)—The drone of an airplane motor was heard over Cairo at 2:29 p. m. today. The plane was not seen because of fog, but as this city was on the expected route of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh it was believed it might be his.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 13.—(P)—Fog and mist enveloped Lambert-St. Louis field this afternoon as a small crowd awaited the arrival of Colonel Charles Lindbergh.

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 13.—(P)—A radio message received here by Lieut. Justin Lee, communication department, United States Naval Reserve force, said an airplane passed over Sarasota, Fla., at 6:50 a. m. today, flying in a northerly direction. The message said the plane was flying above the clouds and could not be seen but that the motor was heard distinctly. It was thought it might have been Colonel Lindbergh enroute from Havana to St. Louis.

Charles A. Lindbergh took off from Havana today for St. Louis on the last long leg of his good will tour among the southern republics, but he was not reported seen at all during more than time enough for him to pass well beyond his half-way point.

Speed 100 Miles Hourly
At 10:25 Eastern Standard time this morning, eight hours after his take-off, he should have been over Jackson, Miss., if he followed the Florida coast line, or about half way between Jackson and Little Rock Ark. If he changed his plans and flew straight across the Gulf from Key West to New Orleans. This is figuring on a speed of approximately 100 miles an hour.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(P)—Rains and low visibility over the entire southeastern section of the country over which Lindbergh planned to fly on his trip from Havana to St. Louis will continue throughout the day, the weather bureau said today.

In the opinion of the bureau the flier could not have picked a "worse day to make the flight in quite a while."

HAVANA, Feb. 13.—(P)—Lindbergh is following the long trail home today. His good will flight completed, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh hopped off from Columbia flying field at 2:26 a. m. this morning for his home port of St. Louis, a flight of some 1,200 miles. Night still hung over the waters of the straits of Florida as Lindbergh KNOCKING TEXAS—Texans often find it necessary to defend their state because of misconceptions which prevail in the East, but they do not find it necessary to run down other sections.

 Yet gentlemen of the effete East, and some places much closer, have already begun their ridicule of things Southern and Texan. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, in a city which draws much wholesale trade from this state, recently contained a highly ironical letter from a man purporting to have recently made a tour of Texas.
 The letter, prominently displayed in the editorial column, found absolutely nothing modern in Texas, but, on the other hand, affected to have facts showing how provincial and introverted residents of this part of America are. Dallas was the chief target for ridicule, but it may be expected that Houston will not fare better at the hands of many Democratic delegates.
 Texas newspapers came in for a share of the abuse. The Missourian intimated that he lost contact with the world when he got in range of Texas journalism, and that some of the bigger dailies were little more than country papers printed daily. The circulation of some of these papers is so great that the reflection was fairly upon the mass of readers.
 It is true that Texas is not served by cable dispatches to the extent that cities having more than half a million people are, but for size of supporting cities it would be difficult to find better, more constructive publications anywhere.

The visitors' attitudes show again how much cities are judged by their newspapers. The smaller cities of today are stretching their budgets to obtain the full leased wires, and the bigger dailies are going to have to develop special services to maintain their margins of excellence. Perhaps Texas' opportunities will attract enough Easterners to make Texas towns big enough to support papers which will keep down the ridicule of readers of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and other organs.

We would like to know, however, what the Missourian wanted to know and see that Texas could not afford. We suspect that commercial competition is behind his words, and that if the truth were known he asked for black sorghum molasses and the waitress brought ribbon cane syrup.

HUNTING TOLLS—Hunting activity increased from 20 to 50 per cent last season, according to Game Commissioner Will Tucker, which shows that the sport is growing in popularity and as a menace to game.
 More than 9,000 deer and 15,000 turkeys were killed, and perhaps it should be mentioned in this connection that 26 hunters were killed as well, and 96 injured. Of the reported game kills, there were 409 does and "spike" bucks, which cannot be shot lawfully. There are still plenty of deer, however. It is estimated that the ranges still have 76,679 does, 71,617 bucks, 129,478 turkeys, and a scattering supply of quail. Hunting is a legitimate sport, but Texas must watch her game supply closely.

They are making drives on ticks and weevils and the like downstate, and while we haven't such things, it is not too soon to begin thinking of how to swat the fly.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Senator J. Boonboom McWhorter today summoned the newspaper correspondents to his office and announced his candidacy for the presidency.

In a ringing declaration of principle, he altered the entire face of the political map and threw consternation into the camps of the several other candidates who had considered their victories assured. Senator McWhorter received the correspondents with a smile on his expansive face and a pink delphinium in his button-hole. He had even bought a package of cigarettes with which to treat the boys.

"The time has come," the senator began, "when I no longer can withstand the insistent entreaties of my many friends who believe that the dearth of available material within the party for the great office of the presidency should not allow men to remain silent.
 "I have reached my momentous decision only after many hours of prayer and close consultation with my wife. While my well-known humility caused me to pause at the thought that one so unworthy and free from ambition as myself should aspire to this greatest honor which can be accorded from the hands of this great and free people, that trepidation soon vanished as I began to consider the other candidates in the field.
 "As fast as I thought of a reason why I should not accept this summons from the people, that reason was displaced by another more cogent. The long and arduous campaign involved, to be followed by four and no doubt eight years in that lofty of-rice, leave a man little time for aught else but the executive duties. But there is a call higher than that of personal inclinations and comfort and convenience. A time comes in a man's life when he must sacrifice himself for the benefit of his country and those who believe in him. Like those brave boys of ours who marched away to save their native land from the bloody Hun, I am about to deposit myself on the altar of patriotism. Service and sacrifice will be the keynotes of the McWhorter campaign.

"I am for economy in government and reduction in taxes.

"I am for a balanced budget and enough money in the treasury.

"I am for the encouragement of business and prosperity.

"I am against federal encroachment on state's rights.

"I am for a wise foreign policy.

"I am for the kind of a tariff which will be most beneficial.

"I am for wider and better highways.

"I am for enforcement of the law.

"I am against the bolshevik abroad and at home.

"I am against the government getting in anywhere it doesn't belong.

"I am for the sanctity of the home and separation of church and state.

"And if any other candidate has a platform half as ambitious as that, I haven't heard of it. There are two or three planks in there that I haven't heard anyone else mention yet."

TWINKLES

California has a large bean surplus, but as this is presidential election year, perhaps some favorite son will contrive to spill a few.

School boys will rejoice that a New York youngster has been awarded $5,000 damages because a teacher hit him in the eye with a ruler. (School journals may copy.)

"In the spring," a lot of things happen, but considering our spring-like weather, we think they are apt to happen most any time.

You read sometimes of "successful funerals," but never of "successful suicides." In the latter instances, the public often heartily disagrees with the logic, or lack of it, displayed.

BARBS

Operations brought two "dead" people back to life, according to a news story. The formula ought to prove interesting to installment collectors.

Hundreds of New Yorkers paused to watch the skyscrapers sway in the recent high winds. Isn't New York enforcing that curfew law?

An 80-year-old resident of Saline, Kan., bet an insurance company $100,000 he would live 10 years. Maybe the drivers in Kansas are more considerate than in most states.

A witness in the Teapot Dome inquiry couldn't remember details of a $4,000,000 transaction. These oil men certainly need no lubricant for their memories.

A police dog sentenced to death for killing sheep has gone on the stage to appeal for his life. Why doesn't he try his hand at writing a little something?

MacDonald Smith Cuts 5 Under Par to Win Golf Event

But Two Other Pros Were Only 2 Strokes Behind Him

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 13.—(AP)—MacDonald Smith, Great Neck L. I. pro, today had employed four of his characteristic successive low rounds to acquire a new title, the South Central open which he took yesterday with an aggregate of 283.

Five strokes below par for the 72-hole distance, "Mac" was only two strokes in front of Frank Walsh, Appleton, Wis., and Al Espinosa, Chicago, who split second and third place money with 285 apiece. Tommy Armour, national open titleholder, tied for the next place with Henry Gucl, Bridgeport, Conn., Leonard Schmutte of Lima, Ohio. The trio needed 289 each.

Bobby Cruickshank, who unsuccessfully defended his title, had 291. Prize money totaling $5,000 was distributed.

U.S.A. Gets Only Tie in Winter Olympics Today

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 13.—(AP)—A tie for second place in the 500-meter speed skating was the best the United States could accomplish today in the winter Olympics.

O'Neill Farrell of Chicago who covered the distance in 43 6-10 seconds tied with Jaako Friman, Finland, and Roland Larsen, Norway.

First place went to two Scandinavian skaters who tied at 43 4-10 seconds. They were Clas Thunberg, Finland, and Brent Evensen, Norway.

Petersen of Norway was ranked as sixth with a time of 43 8-10 seconds.

Two Big Bouts Here Tonight

Two main events will feature the boxing card at the Pampa Athletic club tonight when Kid Granite boxes ten rounds with Bobby Vincent and Wamie Smith goes eight rounds with Marion Coffee.

Since Kid Granite commenced under Walter Varner he has much improvement over his former bouts, and may beat Wildcat Monte in their next encounter, which Jim Bolen, local matchmaker for the American Legion, is arranging for the near future.

Bobby Vincent, a graduate of the University of Oklahoma, is clever and fast, but the hard hitting Granite is expected to give him the hardest battle of his career. Both boys are the type who stand up and fight from going to flog.

Marion Coffee, the 19-year-old 180-pound artist, meets Wamie Smith in the Semi-final tonight. Something is going to happen, as both are working for a main event next week.

Guy Beard and Frankie Farrell will mix it in the special event and it should be a regular final event. Farrell is giving the Baker weight, but is in good condition and can always give a good account of himself.

J. O. and V. W., the two midgets, will do the glove slinging in the opening bout on the card.

TIAA and Texas Conference Teams to Meet in Canyon

Sam Burton and his herd of West Texas Teachers college Buffaloes are priming themselves for two of their hardest basketball games of the current season, to be played with the Simmons College Cowboys from Abilene on Wednesday and Thursday nights in Canyon.

These Buffaloes have acquired a deal of notoriety because of their ability to win basketball games in a most consistent fashion and have also acquired quite a following of basketball fans throughout this section. The herd has had a week of much-needed rest since their last games and are feeling as frisky as their namesakes used to feel when the opening of spring saw them pawing and snorting over the plains of this country. This same herd pawed and snorted in masterful fashion against the invading McMurry Indians last week.

Another factor to land interest to the coming games is that leader will be playing leader. Simmons is now leading the Texas Conference and the Buffaloes are sitting on top of the heap in the much-jumbled T. I. A. A. race. Since the organization of the Texas Conference it has been argued pro and con as to the relative strength of the two conferences—this series of games will afford the basketball fans a fine opportunity to determine the basketball worth of the two.

Harvesters Play Miami Tonight—Lose to Canyon

Playing sensational basketball, the Canyon Eagles Saturday night defeated the Pampa Harvesters 43 to 11 on their home floor. The game was much better than the score indicates, being tight and hard played until the end of the first half when the tired Harvesters "blew up."

The Pampa team was off in all departments, even the trusty Captain Troy Maness being unable to find the basket. Stalls and Kahl played good games defensively, but were off on the offensive neither being able to find the basket in the small gymnasium.

Led by Captain Wiggins and Williams, the two fast forwards, the Eagles could not be stopped. They are scheduled to go a long way in the race for district honors. The two forwards are the boys who have the Harvesters so much trouble in the final football game of the season.

The Harvesters play the Miami Warriors in Miami tonight in the game postponed from last week. All the games this season have been lost by a very small margin and the boys are determined to come through tonight with a win from the Warriors.

BIG HANDS AND FEET

Experts Puzzling Over New York Giants' Keep-the-Boys Guessing Contest—Looks Like Pirates Won

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP)—To judge from the reaction to the latest trade of the New York Giants, the club has clinched first prize in the keep-the-boys guessing contest.

Without yet having solved to their entire satisfaction just why Hornsby was traded to the Braves, the experts now are puzzling over the latest deal that sends Bursleigh Grimes to the champion Pirates in exchange for Vic Aldridge, the Hoosier schoolmaster.

The Giants have taken their share of "riding" over the Hornsby deal and one of the assembled critics Saturday was bold enough to inquire whether "Charley Stoneham had taken John McGraw into his confidence" in trading Grimes.

Perhaps the explanation is that the Giants prefer a curve-ball pitcher who writes his own newspaper stuff to a spitball heaver with temperament.

Otherwise surface appearances all are in the Pirates' favor, for Grimes had by far the better record of the two last year.

Both Aldridge and Grimes have had erratic and checkered careers under various banners.

The Hoosier schoolmaster was both a hero and goat in the 1925 world's series with Pittsburgh. Vic won his first two starts against the Senators. So did Walter Johnson and the setting was laid for a dramatic tussel when they hooked up in the seventh and deciding battle in the fog at Forbes Field. But Aldridge "blew up" in the first inning, let in four runs with his wildness and passed unceremoniously from the picture. Old Barney stuck it out in spite of the terrific hitting of his delivery, but was beaten and also lost the chance to join the immortal few who have three triumphs in one series to their credit.

The trading of Aldridge marks the passing from the Pirate fold of the last of their 1925 world's series heroes. Max Carey was the all-around star, setting the pace at bat, but Max became mixed up in the 1926 Pirate revolt, receiving his walking papers and now roams the outfield for Brooklyn.

Kiki Cuyler's double off Walter Johnson was the deciding hit of the series, but Kiki likewise earned the enmity of the management and now is with the Cubs.

By O. E. KEELER
Give me a boy with big hands and feet and ambition, and I'll make a golfer out of him," Jimmy McKenzie once told me, sententiously. Big hands and big feet, as a matter of fact and convention, are generally accepted as essentials of anatomy, in golf. This is rather against the chances of the ladies, though, in competitions among themselves, their deficiencies in that direction tend to equalization. At that most of the first-rank feminine golfers possess hands and feet which are well, not undersized.

And there are exceptions to the general rule, both men and women. There is Perry Adair, who certainly was a first-rate golfer when he played competitive golf. He is tiny and his hands and feet are absurdly small. Cyril Tolley, on the other hand, is gigantic and his feet are ample, yet his hands are very small, compared to the rest of him—and certainly he is one of the longest wallopers in the world. Ted Ray's hands, too, appear small and rather slender, contrasted with his physical bulk.

And there is Miss Glenna Collett. I have watched her play golf since 1920, but it was not until the last holiday season, at Pinehurst, that I noticed her hands closely.

"Hasn't Glenna the most useless little-fingers you ever saw?" asked her mother. She meant the fourth fingers were little; the others, while shapely and slender, were of fair size, and Glenna's hands, at a casual glance, look reasonably capable.

League Teams to Battle at Canyon for Championship

CANYON, Feb. 13.—The annual basketball tournament of District One of the Texas Interscholastic League will be held in Canyon February 17 and 18. Heretofore eight teams have been in the tournament, but this year there will be twelve.

The tournament is always an exciting incident in Canyon, because such a large number of college students come from the towns represented at that occasion and come out to cheer for the home team.

Two members of the Buffalo team, which is in the lead for the T. I. A. A. title this year, will officiate in the tournament. They are Cleatie Crump of Falls, and Oscar Gamel of Perryton. Both these men officiated at the tournament last year.

I inspected Glenna's little-fingers. They certainly were little. The third finger fairly towered above them; the little-fingers did not reach to the joint of their mates. And they were oddly slender and delicate, and seemed attached to her hands more for ornamental purposes than, as Mrs. Collett suggested, for use.

Yet those cunning little-fingers were attached to hands that had won two national championships and quantities of lesser events.

Miss Collett, too, is one of our very longest hitters among the ladies; consistently the longest I suspect. And her feet are not at all large. Sticking by the old convention, you would not look at Glenna and select her without fore-knowledge as one of the greatest of golfers.

But she is. One thing about the little-fingers, however. The one on the right hand seems of no particular use to most of the good players today, who employ some form of the overlapping grip, thus deliberately removing the right little-finger from the shaft. So perhaps, if there is any handicap in Miss Collett's little little-finger, it's only half a handicap, after all.

Indeed, the only handicap I have noted in Miss Collett's game in golf includes putting. If only she could take the advice of George Duncan—who, by the way, never could take it himself: "In putting, you just go up to the ball and knock it into the hole"—why, Glenna would soon be looking around for more worlds to conquer."

THE STORY THUS FAR
 The jewel case had been opened with a steel chisel after being battered with a poker. And this puzzles Vance when it is found near the strangled body of Margaret Odell. Finger-prints lead to Skeel's arrest, and Vance indicates he believes Skeel was hiding in a clothes closet in the "Canary's" apartment when the murder was committed. Markham, believing in Skeel's guilt, ridicules the theory and Vance's notion that the crime was committed by a man of superior intellect and ingenuity. Vance proceeds to explain how he arrived at his conclusion.

CHAPTER XXIX
 "You know, Markham," Vance began, in his emotionless drawl, "every genuine work of art has a quality which the critics call elan—namely, enthusiasm and spontaneity. A copy, or imitation, lacks the distinguishing characteristic; it's too perfect, too carefully done, too exact."
 "Even enlightened scions of the law, I fancy, are aware that there is bad drawing in Bitticelli and dispositions in Rubens, what? In an original, d'ye see, such flaws don't matter. But an imitator never puts 'em in; he doesn't dare—he's too intent on getting all the details correct. The imitator works with a self-consciousness and a meticulous care which the artist, in the throes of creative labor, never exhibits."
 "And here's the point: there's no way of imitating that enthusiasm and spontaneity—that elan—which an original painting possesses. However closely a copy may resemble an original, there's a vast psychological difference between them. The copy breathes an air of insincerity, of nitra-perfection, of conscious effort. . . . You follow me, eh?"
 "Most instructive, my dear Ruskin."
 Vance meekly bowed his appreciation, and proceeded pleasantly.

"Now, let us consider the Odell murder. You and Heath are agreed that it is a commonplace, brutal, sordid, unimaginative crime. But, unlike you two bloodhounds on the trail, I have ignored its mere appearances, and have analyzed its various factors—
 "I have looked at it psychologically so to speak. And I have discovered that it is not a genuine and sincere crime—that is to say, an original—but only a sophisticated, self-conscious and clever imitation, done by a skillful copyist. I grant you it is correct and typical in every detail. But there is where it fails, don't you know? Its technique is too good, its craftsmanship too perfect. The ensemble, as it were, is not convincing—it lacks elan.
 "Esthetically speaking, it has all the earmarks of a tour de force. Vulgarly speaking, it's a fake." He paused and gave Markham an engaging smile. "I trust this somewhat oracular peroration has not bored you."
 "Pray continue," urged Markham, with exaggerated politeness. His manner was jocular, but something in his tone led me to believe that he was seriously interested.
 "What is true of art is true of life," Vance resumed placidly. "Every human action, d'ye see, conveys unconsciously an impression either of genuineness or of spuriousness—of sincerity or calculation. For example, two men at table eat in a similar way, handle their knives and forks in the same fashion, and apparently do the identical things. Although the sensitive spectator cannot put his finger on the points of difference, he none the less senses at once which man's breeding is genuine and instinctive and which man's is imitative and self-conscious."
 He blew a wreath of smoke toward the ceiling, and settled more deeply into his chair.

"Now, Markham, just what are the universally recognized features of a sordid crime of robbery and murder? . . . Brutality, disorder, haste, ransacked drawers, cluttered desks, broken jewel-cases, rings stripped from the victim's fingers, severed pendant chains, torn clothing, tipped-over chairs, upset lamps, broken vases draped, strewn floors, and so forth. Such are the accepted immemorial indications—eh, what?
 "But—consider a moment, old chap. Outside of fiction and the drama, in how many crimes do they all appear—all in perfect ordination, and without a single element to contradict the general effect? That is to say, how many actual crimes are technically perfect in their settings? . . . None! And why? Simply because nothing actual in this life—nothing that is spontaneous and genuine—runs to accepted form in every detail. The law of chance and fallibility invariably steps in."

 He made a slight indicative gesture.
 "But regard this particular crime: look at it closely. What do you find? You will perceive that its mise-en-scene has been staged, and its drama enacted, down to every minute detail—like a Zola novel. It is almost mathematically perfect. And therein, d'ye see, lies the irritable interference of its having been carefully premeditated and planned.
 "To use an art term, it is a tricked-up crime. Therefore, its conception was not spontaneous. . . . And yet, don't you know, I can't point out any specific flaw for its great flaw lies in its being flawless. And nothing flawless, my dear fellow, is natural or genuine."
 "You deny even the remote possibility of a common thief having murdered the girl?" he asked at length; and now there was no hint of sarcasm in his voice.

"If a common thief did it," contended Vance, "then there's no science of psychology, there are no philosophic truths, and there are no laws of art. If it was a genuine crime of robbery then, by the same token, there is no difference whatever between an old master and a clever technician's copy."
 "You'd entirely eliminate robbery as the motive, I take it."
 "The robbery," Vance affirmed, "was only a manufactured detail. The fact that the crime was committed by a highly astute person indicates unquestionably that there was a far more potent motive behind it."
 "And man capable of so ingenious and clever a piece of deception is obviously a person of education and imagination; and he most certainly would not have run the stupendous risk of killing a woman unless he had feared some overwhelming disaster—unless, indeed, his continuing to live would have caused him greater mental anguish, and would have put him in greater jeopardy, even than the crime itself."
 "Between two colossal dangers, he chose the murder as the lesser."
 Markham did not speak at once; he seemed lost in reflection. But presently he turned and, fixing Vance with a dubious stare, said:
 "What about that chiseled jewelbox? A professional burglar's jimmy, wielded by an experienced hand, doesn't fit into your esthetic hypothesis—it is, in fact, diametrically opposed to such a theory."
 "I know it only too well," Vance nodded slowly. "And I've been harried and hector'd by that steel chisel ever since I beheld the evidence of its work that first morning. . . . Markham, that chisel is the one genuine note in an otherwise spurious performance. It's as if the real artist had come along at the moment the copyist had finished his faked picture, and painted in a single small object with the hand of a master."
 "But doesn't that bring us back inevitably to Skeel?"
 "Skeel—ah, yes. That's the explanation, no doubt; but not the way you conceive it."
 "Skeel ripped the box open—I don't question that; but deuce take it—it's the only thing that was left for him to do. That's why he got only a ring which Le Belle Marguerite was not wearing that night. All her other baubles—to wit, those that adored her—had been stripped from her and were gone."
 "Why are you so positive on this point?"
 "The poker, man—the poker! . . . Don't you see? That amateurish assault upon the jewel-case with a cast-iron coal-prodder couldn't have been made after the case had been pried open—it would have had to be made before."
 "And that seemingly insane attempt to break steel with cast-iron was part of the stage-setting. The real culprit didn't care if he got the case open or not. He merely wanted it to look as if he had tried to get it open; so he used the poker and then left it lying beside the dented box."

 "I see what you mean." This point, I think, impressed Markham more strongly than any other Vance had raised; for the presence of the poker on the dressing-table had not been explained away either by Heath or Inspector Brenner. . . . "Is that the reason you questioned Skeel as if he might have been present, when your other visitor was there?"
 "Exactly. By the evidence of the jewel-case I knew he either was in the apartment when the bogus crime of robbery was being staged, or else had come upon the scene when it was over and the stage-director had cleared out. . . . From his reactions to my questions I rather fancy he was present."
 "Hiding in the closet?"
 "Yes. That would account for the closet not having been disturbed."
 "As I see it, it wasn't ransacked, for the simple and rather grotesque reason that the elegant Skeel was locked within."
 "How else could that one clothespress have escaped the rifling activities of the pseudo-burglar? He wouldn't have omitted it deliberately, and he was far too thorough-going to have overlooked it accidentally.—Then there are the finger-prints on the knob. . . ."
 Vance lightly tapped on the arm of his chair.

"I tell you, Markham, old dear, you simply must build your conception of the crime on this hypothesis, and proceed accordingly. If you don't, each edifice you rear will come toppling about your ears."

Hobart Will Preside at Meeting of Historical Society at Canyon Next Week—Program Announced

CANYON, Feb. 13.—The program for the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society meeting which takes place here February 17th is now well worked out and in the hands of the printer, according to the statement of the officers of the society.
 The tickets for the banquet, which have been on sale for about a week, are going rapidly. It is expected that about 150 people will be in attendance at the meeting.

T. D. Hobart of Pampa, president of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, will preside at the business meeting in the afternoon. Judge Jas. D. Hamlin of Farwell, a life member of the organization, will be toastmaster at the banquet, and J. O. Guleke, Amarillo attorney, and life member, has been invited to appear on the program.
 Thomas F. Turner of Amarillo who for four years was president of the organization, will be in charge of a story-telling contest which will be a feature of the banquet program. Cowboy songs will be another feature of the banquet program.

The Girls Glee club of the West Texas State Teachers college will sing at the banquet.
 Many Relics Expected.
 The members of the Historical Society who gather for this event are from all parts of Northwest Texas and will bring a great number of relics. This year the officers are putting the emphasis upon branding irons. It is hoped that a very large number of branding irons will be received at this time, and that a case may be filled exclusively with these. The Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, located as it is in the heart of the old range region, should have the largest collection of branding irons to be found anywhere in the United States. Every branding iron will carry with it a history of the ranch which it represents.

Papers a Feature.
 The officers of the Historical Society state that the routine business will be attended to as rapidly as possible in the afternoon business meeting so that the papers which will be read at that time will be its most interesting feature. Careful students of the Panhandle-Plains history will furnish the papers.
 The J. A. Ranch, Land Rushes, and incidents from Crosby county's history will be the subjects of the papers which will be read on this occasion.
 Two members of the board of directors are to be elected this year.
 Dinner Tickets Reserved.
 As there are always more people who wish to attend the annual dinner of this organization than can be accommodated, the secretary, Mrs. T. V.

Reeves, says that tickets must be reserved. The price is one dollar and checks will be accepted in payment for the tickets. Close to 100 have already been reserved and only about 150 people can be seated at Cousins hall, where the banquet is held.

Chrysler Sales Increase Much for Present Season

Greater public interest in Chrysler cars than ever before at this season of any year has followed the lowering of prices, effective January 10, for its New "52" and Great New "62," according to reports received by J. W. Frazer, Chrysler sales manager. The savings to the public range from $50 to $100 on various body styles.
 In the "52" line three body styles, two of them closed cars, are now priced at $670 at the factory. They are the coupe, two-door sedan and roadster. In the "62" line the business coupe is factory priced at $1065, the roadster at $1075 and the two-door sedan at $1095.
 Distributors and dealers throughout the country are reporting greater attendance at their showrooms and larger buying volume, with many other orders being booked for future delivery, according to factory checkings. Among the largest cities to report definite sales increases are New York, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, Boston, Cleveland, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Atlanta, Baltimore, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle and Dallas. Smaller market centers from every part of the country have also felt the greater Chrysler buying.
 Chicago reports a greater attendance at Chrysler salesrooms during the week following the announcement of lower prices than during any previous entire month of January. Both in New York and Detroit more retail orders for "52" and "62" cars were written during the week following the announcement of the savings than during all of January 1927.

Local Girl Made "Big Sister" for a New Trinity Girl

WAXAHACHIE, Feb. 13.—Miss Elizabeth Corson of Pampa has been appointed "big sister" for Miss Mary Grizzard of Marlin by the Young Women's Christian Association of Trinity university. Miss Grizzard entered Trinity last week for the second semester.

Each year the Y. W. C. A. appoints a "big sister" for each new girl who enters the institution. The duty of the "big sister" is to assist her "little sister" in matriculating, in arranging her class schedule, and in becoming accustomed to the traditions of Trinity.
 Friday afternoon the freshmen of Drane Hall entertained for the new freshman girls of the institution.
 Many new students entered Trinity at the beginning of the second semester, and the enrollment for the year is well over the 500 mark.

A WORD FROM THE PUBLISHER
 . . . ABOUT ADVERTISING

THE products you see consistently advertised in this paper are worthy of your confidence.

It takes two things to make a consistent advertiser. One is a strong conviction that he has a product that will hold its place in public favor despite competition. The other is actual proof of that . . . the increasing popularity of his product.

If his product will not stand the test of comparison he would simply be throwing his advertising investment away. If the buying public rejects his product after it has been offered in advertising he has thrown his advertising investment away.

That's why the manufacturer who advertises his merchandise consistently is very sure of his quality . . . and why you may be sure of it, too.

Crumbs.

Purple and gold, the crocuses upon the sill
Smile out upon snow-laden roofs.
The Winter still.
And from my window, as a nest perched high,
I watch the shifting wreath of smoke
Rise toward the sky.
Each one a symbol of my life's desire—
A hearth—and children, gathered
Around the fire.
At noon, pale sunshine comes to call
on me,
But not for long; and then,
At last I see
My daily guests—an eager, noisy crew,
With nodding heads and gleaming
breasts
They strut and coo
Along the gables opposite, their eyes
Scanning my empty window ledge.
I feign surprise
When one or two impatient, hungry things
Fly to my casement, and alight
With beating wings.
And when I've scattered crumbs, they all fly down,
A band of iridescent tramps—
Loved of the town.
And then, the room seems full of folks
to me—
For just a little while,
Because, you see,
Until they're gone, it almost seems
That they are children—mine—come home!
But those are dreams—just dreams.

Arbor Day Custom Originated 1500 Years Ago in Switzerland

COLLEGE STATION, Feb. 13.—On February 22, Washington's birthday, which is also Arbor day in Texas, school children and others throughout the state are expected to celebrate with tree planting and other ceremonies, a custom that had its origin 1,500 years ago in a little town in Switzerland.

Letters received from a number of county school superintendents by the Texas Forest service, A. and M. college of Texas, indicate plans are well under way in many counties for fine Arbor day programs in the schools. In order to assist wherever possible in such celebrations, the forest service, in letters sent out by C. B. Webster, farm forester, to every county superintendent in the state, has announced that it has on hand pamphlets and bulletins that may prove helpful in working up local programs and that these will be sent out on request without cost. These pamphlets are also available to organizations and individuals interested in observance of the day, it has been announced.

"It is our hope that Arbor day can be fittingly celebrated in every school in Texas," Mr. Webster said. The custom of Arbor day developed 1,500 years ago, as has been mentioned, when the people of a little Swiss village decided they must have a grove of oak trees on their common. Accordingly they set aside a day on which every man, woman and child tramped out to the woods and each dug up a little tree which was carried to the common and planted. The old story says that every one did his duty gladly and that the older folks held a festival with games in the evening and that every boy and girl received a wheaten roll as a reward. Thus was the first Arbor day observed among the people of the Alps. For many years afterward, this little Swiss village observed the anniversary of its first Arbor day by feasting and merrymaking while the children paraded through the streets carrying oak branches in memory of the first oak trees.

In America, the state of Nebraska was the leader in the Arbor day movement. In 1872, J. Sterling Morton suggested to the governor that a day be set aside for the systematic planting of trees through the efforts of the schools and the citizens of the state. The governor issued an Arbor day proclamation and more than a million trees were planted. The idea spread and more than 400,000,000 trees have been planted in Nebraska by the school children since that time.

This custom was recognized in Texas in 1889 when legislative enactment designated February 22, Washington's birthday, as Arbor day. Nearly all the states now observe Arbor day.—For Twentieth Century Club.

Professional Women Gaining Confidence, U. S. Attorney Says

Miss Lella Russell, of Miami, Fla., who believes women in public life are acquiring more confidence.

MIAMI, Fla.—(P)—Men inherited cocksureness, but women have yet to acquire it, thinks Miss Lella Russell, who within four years after graduation in law has advanced to United States assistant district attorney and president of the Florida League of Women Voters.

Women, however, rapidly are acquiring confidence in public life and, Miss Russell believes, are just as capable of holding government positions as men. "They have not had such opportunities as men to prove what they can do," she explains. "But now that they have the chance to demonstrate their ability, women are making good records and are becoming more confident."

During the four years since Miss Russell was graduated from the Stetson university law school, she has become one of the most prominent women in the South. She wears distinctly modish gowns and hats in court. Her blonde hair is bobbed. She is very feminine to the eye, but demonstrates capability and confidence in court.

Law is nothing new to her. Most of the men in her family have been lawyers and her father is United States commissioner at Fort Pierce, Fla. An athlete in college, Miss Russell now keeps physically fit for her work through a steady program of exercise and diet.

Vester Thurmond returned from Norman, Okla., yesterday where he attended a radio convention. He reported a good time and says "Hams" from four states were present.

FUTURISTIC PICTURE WILL BE FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

A story of the world in 2927 is the underlying theme in "Metropolis," to be shown at the Rex theatre Tuesday under the auspices of the Volunteer Fire department. The picture is stupendous in its greatness and is taken under the earth where a workingmen's city is built while the wealthy men play above.

The story centers around Eric Masterson, son of a wealthy man, and a poor girl from the city under the earth. There is action every minute during the drama and imagination runs wild. It is an educative as well as sensational picture. Through the kindness of Roy Sinor, manager of the Rex theatre, the firemen are sponsoring this picture in an effort to increase funds in the treasury. Tickets are being sold by the Boy Scouts and members of the Fire department.

TEXAS COMMERCIAL FAILURES FEWER IN JANUARY REPORT

AUSTIN, Feb. 13.—There were fewer commercial failures in Texas during the first month of the year than for any January since 1920, according to Beryard Nichols, editor of the Texas Business Review published by the University of Texas.

There were but 66 insolventcies having a total liability of $1,571,000, compared to 134 failures involving $2,348,000 in January, 1927. Mr. Nichols has observed, "An increase in the business mortality rate from December to January is a normal movement and a comparison of the two months should be made from that standpoint. However, companies going into bankruptcy averaged larger. During January the average liability per failure amounted to $24,000, whereas the average loss was but $12,000 in December and $18,000 in January, 1927. No bank failures were reported."

John Williams Is Precinct 1 Aspirant for Commissioner

John Williams, Gray county resident for more than fifteen years, has decided to heed the urging of his friends and become a candidate for commissioner in Precinct 1.

Mr. Williams is a farmer, living one and one-half miles north of Laketon. He is thoroughly familiar with the work of the commissioners, having formerly been for a number of years an employe of Commissioner Ledbetter in Precinct 4 at Dallas, and having done much work in connection with the commissioners' court there.

His knowledge of the work and his interest in the development of the county prompted his friends to urge his candidacy.

J. ROSS BELL HERE

J. Ross Bell of Paducah, Colt county, candidate for Congress in the 18th congressional district in opposition to Marvin Jones, who is out for re-election, was a visitor here today. Mr. Bell has been a resident of Colt county for the last eighteen years, and for eight years was district attorney in that district.

He stated to a News reporter that he planned an extensive campaign in the near future.

The Latest Mode Is Presented in These Creations

The material of this Jeanne Lanvin coat is beige wool with a diagonal weave. Its chief interest is a fur collar which utilizes the fur on the dress underneath as part of the coat trimmings. The collar of the coat proper extends the full length of the coat on both sides. The little turn-back cuffs, which can be worn up or down over the hand, are fur on one side and the coat material on the other.

Dresses with many tiers forming the skirt, and sometimes the blouse as well, are an established part of the mode. This black crepe morocain model is one of Patou's most successful versions of the style. The tiers are gathered into ruffles in the center front of the skirt and again on the blouse, where they form a double jabot. The dress is plain in back, the bands lying quite flat. Two bias flounces trim the sleeves.

headed over them on the only water jump of his flight to Key West, Fla. As the Spirit of St. Louis left the dimly lighted field only the steady throb of its motor traced its course to the open sea. From Key West Lindbergh's route led along the Gulf of Mexico to a point south of St. Louis from there he turned north to that city.

The plane was loaded with 225 gallons of gasoline, half its capacity. It was estimated that this would carry Lindbergh for twenty hours. The flight, the fourth longest in his career, was expected to end at Lambert field, St. Louis after 2 o'clock this afternoon. The three flights which have exceeded the present one in distance were New York to Paris, 3,600 miles; Washington to Mexico City, 2,200 miles and San Diego to St. Louis, 1,550 miles. Cheers rose from the spectators on the field as the flyer swept over them, leaving behind a message of good will embroidered in their hearts. Miniature flags of thirteen countries visited on his tour painted on the fuselage of the Spirit of St. Louis attested the affection of Latin America for "we." These represented Mexico, Guatemala, British Honduras, Nicaragua, Honduras, Salvador, Costa Rica, Panama, Colombia, Venezuela, the Dominican Republic, Haiti, and Cuba. Lindbergh also made stops at two United States possessions, Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Telephone Call May Lead to the Missing Deputies

HENDERSON, Ky., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Expressing confidence that they had captured John Burns, one of two prisoners missing since two deputy sheriffs disappeared last week, near Lafayette, Ind., Henderson police today sent photographs of the man to Indiana authorities.

DANVILLE, Ill., Feb. 13.—(AP)—A mysterious call to police here today advised them to search empty freight cars on the tracks near Maple Point, just outside of Lafayette, Ind., in quest of the bodies of the two missing deputy sheriffs who are believed to have been murdered by prisoners they were transporting.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Feb. 13.—(AP)—The muddy Wabash, choked with ice, holds what Police Chief Eversole believes to be the answer to the question authorities have sought since last Tuesday to answer: What happened to Deputy Sheriffs John P. Grove and Wallace McClure?

John D. Jr., Is for Law, Order

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., back from Washington where he testified in the Senate's Teapot Dome investigation, warned of "sharp" business practices in a talk over the radio. He did not mention the oil industry.

Mr. Rockefeller, whose talk was broadcast by Station WJZ, listed integrity, obedience to law, clean living and loyalty as the four fundamental qualities underlying character. "Law is law," he continued, "whether it affects personal liberty, social well-being or business. So long as it remains the law of the land it should be obeyed. The alternative is anarchy."

Ford Easily Made to Fit Regulation on German Brakes

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Twenty-five cents worth of material and ten minutes of time are all that are necessary to make the brakes on the new Ford automobile conform to German law, Herr Heine, manager of the local Ford company, declared today.

The new Ford system of working hand and foot brakes with the same mechanism is in violation of the German safety regulation prescribing a distinct mechanism for each brake. For this reason the latest Ford product was refused a license to operate.

Siddons upheld its objection to testimony intended to show that United States authorities had shadowed trial juries for which offense Harry F. Sinclair, William J.
