

BARTGIS IS KILLED!

FLIER'S NECK BROKEN IN BLAST

HIS PLANE IS DESTROYED

Gasoline Explosion in Hangar Breaks Neck of Popular Aviator

An explosion of wing paint and gasoline almost instantly killed R. W. (Dutch) Bartgis, 43, veteran Pampa flier, in the Cree and Hoover hangar at the local air port this morning about 11 o'clock.

The pilot suffered a broken neck and numerous cuts on the face during the blast. It is not known what caused the explosion, nor what the pilot's head was hurled against. Flames of the blast reduced the Cree and Hoover Ryan B-7 to a skeleton, but did no damage to the hangar.

No one was at the air port when the explosion occurred. The first to reach Bartgis was his only son Raymond, 17, who said the blast was muffled. The son dragged his father from the smoking, blazing interior of the hangar to the snow-covered turf on the outside.

Mr. Bartgis lived only a few seconds after he was removed from the hangar. He was conscious until he died, and his last breath was used to utter the words, "My Son!" Although he was unable to open his eyes, he seemed to know that it was his son who carried him from the hangar. The next man to reach the scene was O. V. Hall. The Bartgis family and the Halls lived about one block from the air port.

About 10 o'clock, one hour before the fatal explosion, Raymond was at the hangar, and said his father was painting the wings. The father told his son that he expected to finish in an hour. It is believed that the wing paint ignited and set fire to the gasoline in the tanks in the wings.

Mr. Bartgis was lying on the ground face down when his son reached him. The hangar was filled with smoke and flames. The son believed that the explosion hurled his father against some metal part of the plane, and that the ignited wing paint caused the gasoline in the tanks to explode before Mr. Bartgis could jump to the ground.

Mr. Bartgis was known as the most careful of fliers. In his 12 years of flying, he had had only one crack-up and that at Fort Worth several years ago. He held transport, mechanics, and private licenses, and had had 12,000 hours of flying. He had been pilot of the Cree and Hoover plane for two years before taking it over for commercial purposes.

Surviving him are his wife and son Raymond of Pampa, Miss Duse Bartgis of Wichita, Kans., and a brother in the Hawaiian Islands. Mr. Bartgis lived with his family in Pampa for nearly three years, coming here from Fort Worth and Borger.

One year and three months ago, Cliff Bartgis, 14-year old son of Mr. Bartgis was fatally injured in an automobile accident at Fort Worth.

The body is at G. C. Malone funeral home. Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

Hundreds of Pampans have flown with the veteran Bartgis. It was his ship that escorted the first auto giro into the Panhandle of Texas and the Pampa airport. He carried five local men on the trip. It was Dutch who made emergency trips to Fort Worth for the Board of City Development.

He was one of the first aviators to make a night landing in Pampa. His first was by dropping flares but later he installed two huge lights on the wings of his plane. They would show nearly 200 yards ahead of him. He landed at the local airport at 10 o'clock last night from a short trip.

Dutch and his plane were always at the service of the Pampa Daily News. He piloted the ship which saw Pampa's first aerial wedding. He took NEWS employes "up" for rides and whenever information was desired it was "call Dutch."

Widow Of Freddie Lund Is Favorite

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 8. (AP)—A tiny, flaxen-haired woman has stolen the show at the all-American air races. While squadrons of army, navy, and marine corps planes went thru their paces in formation flying, it was Mrs. Betty Lund, widow of the famous Freddie Lund, who drew the crowd's wholehearted applause and attention the first day of the meet yesterday.

In spite of the thrill of races, when planes swooped dangerously about the pylons of the course at municipal airport, it was Betty Lund who held eyes skyward as she completed a snap or barrel roll, a loop or an Immelman turn.

Adobe Walls Fight Placed On Canvas

AMARILLO, Jan. 8. (AP)—John Elliot Jenkins, Western artist, has reconstructed on canvas the famous Adobe Walls, scene of the last Indian battle of any consequence in Texas.

Walls of the adobe buildings, which sheltered the small group of guffalo hunters in 1874 when Indians swept down the Canadian River valley in an effort to drive the hunters from the buffalo country, long ago crumbled and only faint outlines of the ruins remain.

But the artist, through research work, has been able to reconstruct the buildings, in his painting, to the satisfaction of Mrs. Olive K. Dixon, wife of the famous Billy Dixon, buffalo hunter and scout and hero of the battle. Into the canvas he transplanted "what I consider a real Texas sky," and the azure that hangs over the Canadian valley.

The hill on which Billy Dixon killed an Indian at a distance of seven-eighths of a mile, standing near one of the adobe buildings, is prominent in the background.

The painting is now on exhibit in Amarillo and a movement is under way to have it hung in the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society's museum to be constructed at Canyon.

BOMB FOR MUSSOLINI
ROME, Jan. 8. (AP)—Watchful officials guarded all ports of entry into Italy today following receipt of information that bombs intended for Premier Mussolini and King Victor Emmanuel are on the high seas in the hold of the mail steamer Ercalbur, on its way from the United States.

The situation was further complicated by reports of the discovery of anti-fascist bomb plots at Paris and Nice.

Officers Found Dead!

TODAY'S ACCIDENT TAKES LIFE OF ONE OF PAMPA'S MOST CAREFUL AVIATORS

"Dutch" Bartgis Refused to Stunt With Passengers and Was Not Reckless When Alone—Happy-Go-Lucky Manner on Ground Won Friendship of Hundreds of Pampans.

"Dutch" Bartgis was one of the most careful fliers that ever took hold of a joy stick. He refused to stunt with passengers in his plane and even when flying alone, safety was his first thought. On the ground he was a happy-go-lucky human and seemed without a care in the world. Jolly, always ready for a joke, and with a memory that any lawyer would be proud of, "Dutch" had friends everywhere he went.

He learned to fly in Fort Worth in 1921. He took to the air like a fish takes to water, Sam Jones, well known pilot says. After he got his "air legs" he joined a flying circus and toured the United States and Northern Mexico. It was in Monterrey, Mexico, that he had his first fight with death and he came out without a scratch. By careful handling he was able to land his plane although it was badly damaged.

About four years ago, the well known pilot moved to Borger. He flew various ships while in the oil city and helped establish Borger's airport. When he first landed in Borger, he set his ship down on the top of a bluff near a carbon black plant. It took considerable maneuvering to get the ship to the ground and it was more difficult to get it off, the veteran often told.

Less than two years ago, Dutch came to Pampa to fly a Spartan biplane for Cree and Hoover, drillers and producers. A few months after arriving here Cree and Hoover bought a special Ryan B-7 Monoplane, six-passenger with DeLuxe fittings. He made trips all over the southwest and twice made California.

Less than a year ago the pilot purchased the ship and put it to commercial use. He recently changed the motor, installing a Wasp nine-cylinder with more power and more speed. He placed a towing ring around the motor and stepped its speed up to 165 miles an hour with a cruising speed of 125 miles per hour.

Not only was he known in aviation circles, but all the oilmen in the country knew Dutch. He was interested in oil developments in Gray county with Graham, Cree and Hoover. Last Sunday he flew to central Gray county to see a well shot and to get some aerial pictures. He had a hobby of taking aerial pictures. He flew several ships on photographic and mapping expeditions in various parts of the country. He could tell weather like a prophet and he knew indications and causes.

He was also interested in higher mathematics. He was always experimenting on devices for his ship. He was a firm believer that some day an altimeter would be invented that would tell the actual distance a plane was from the ground and not from sea level. He often experimented on such an instrument.

He delighted in reminiscing on past happenings and experiences. He did considerable flying over Colorado and New Mexico. Many times he had to set his ship down in the open country among the cactus.

MANY TURKEYS SHIPPED
LUBBOCK, Jan. 8. (AP)—Seventy-three car loads of turkeys, averaging 20,000 pounds of dressed goods to the car, were shipped from Lubbock's trade territory during the 1931 season. The territory includes towns as far west as Portales and Clovis; south of Sweetwater, east to Spur and Matador and north to Amarillo.

TO EXAMINE MENTALITY

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 8. (AP)—Rudolph Matthews, 45, held without bond after the killing of his wife, has been transferred to the San Antonio state hospital for a mental examination.

Walter Tynan, district attorney, requested the move. He said he had been informed insanity might be a defense at Matthews' murder trial and wanted to have the man examined by experts.

The first step in organizing the United States navy was made in the year 1775.

Stimson Replies To Bond Charge

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. (AP)—In a statement outlining its dealings with bankers over a number of years, the state department has formulated a reply to criticism of its relation to the flotation of foreign securities in this country.
Secretary Stimson prepared the statement after a commerce department official had told the senate finance committee how a Bolivian bond issue had been approved by the department because of strained diplomatic relations between that country and this.
Senator Glass, a Virginia democrat, charged the state department was responsible for any losses to the American public because of foreign lending.
The statement of the secretary will include copies of all form letters used during recent years in dealing with bankers on prospective loans to foreign governments for industries.
Meanwhile, a warning by Secretary Kellogg to American bankers in 1926 to study carefully further German loans was read to the senate finance committee.

BRITISH OFFICERS RECEIVING THREATS FROM ANGRY HINDUS

BOMBAY, Jan. 8. (AP)—A threat of bloodshed darkened the Indian horizon today just at a time when some observers were predicting the back-bite of the resistance of Mahatma Gandhi's Nationalists had been broken by the swift severity of the government's measures.
"Beware, O demons of a vanishing empire!" warned a flaming red poster on the Empire building today over the name of the Hindustan republican society. "We warn the British officials to move about always armed. Upon orders, the soldiers of our society will kill any officer. Therefore, beware! We also warn all Nationalists not to interfere with our solemn duties."
The Nationalists, scores of their leaders under arrest and a number of their headquarters occupied during the last two or three days, seemed to have taken refuge in inaction during the crushing power of successive government ordinances which set up a state closely resembling martial law.
Their leaders censured the government had won "a temporary victory" but added the repression could only destroy whatever possibility exists for a willing allegiance of the masses to British rule.

Democratic Debt Said To Be $787,747

Of this $345,250 is due John J. Raskob, chairman for loans, and $433,786 to the County Trust company of New York for borrowed money.
Unpaid bills were listed at $8,731. The report showed a balance of $5,466 at the beginning of 1931 and $8,247 on Jan. 1, 1932.
