

SHIRES, MORE SETTLED, IS POPULAR IN BRAVES' CAMP

GREAT ONE IS TO BE QUIETER NEXT SEASON

HAS BLOWN MUCH OF HIS MONEY BUT GROWN WISE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 1. (P)—He's just a great big Irish boy with a shock of curly hair parted in the middle, a broad grin, a liking for cigars and unbounded confidence in himself.

No high-priced rookie, not even the neighboring Babe Ruth, has attracted more attention among the natives this spring than Shires, a National leaguer for the first time in his life and the first baseman of the Boston Braves, with no strings attached to the job whatever.

"Sure I like to clown," Shires told me as he blew himself to some smokes and settled back for just one more interview. "I've had a good time in life for a young fellow. I've done a lot of foolish things, lost most of my money—$23,000 of it in one chunk out in Hollywood about a year ago.

"Just tune in on Shires, they will tell you, and let the lad rave. All right, I don't mind being kidded and doing a little myself, but my job this year is to play the best ball of my life. Make no mistake about me allowing my chances this time. It cost me a lot to learn some good lessons. I haven't had a drop to drink for months and you can go out and be the little Arbutot on his good behavior to stay there."

When the former "bad boy" of the White Sox was bought by the Braves from Milwaukee, where he led the American association in hitting last year, there was much wagging of heads in big league company. Judge Emil E. Rieve, president of the Braves, and Bill McKeech, c. felt they were taking a long chance. Right now they are delighted with Shires and their bargain.

Hornsby To Try Inter-Squad Game

SANTA CATALINA ISLAND, Cal., March 1. (P)—Depending on the weather, Manager Rogers Hornsby planned the first inter-camp game of the Chicago Cub training season today.

Hornsby figured to use as many veterans as possible on the same team against the recruits, although most of the former are not yet ready for long service. Young pitchers, Bud Timning, Lon Warneke, Johnny Welch, Archie Miller and Le Roy Herrmann are scheduled to do the hurling against the New York Giants of the opening exhibition game Saturday.

WATCH-SIZED MAP 4,000 YEARS OLD SHOWS MOUNTAINS AND RIVERS IN VIVID CLARITY

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Editor CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (P)—The world's oldest map, drawn more than 4,000 years ago, is not much larger than a lady's watch.

It is a clay tablet, found 200 miles north of Babylon, in the buried town of Ga-sur, by excavators for the Semite and the Fogg Museums of Harvard.

The symbols on this map would be easier to recognize than those of a modern one for a person who never had seen any kind of map. Mountains are shown by rounded lines resembling cobbles stones. Two rivers are indicated by parallel lines somewhat like looking down a double track railway from a plane a mile aloft.

The waters of a sea are shown like childish drawings which use horizontal dashes, with a tip and a tilt to indicate motion. The map is the land of Sial-Azias. Judging by the size of this domain and the markings, civilization was far advanced 4,000 years ago.

"Without doubt the most important find from this area," says R. F. Storr of the Fogg Art Museum, who directed the excavations, "is a clay tablet on which is drawn a map representing a valley with mountains on either side, between which flows a river to the sea."

"Another stream runs in a southeasterly direction into the neighboring valley and off the map. Inscriptions on the edge of the tablet indicate north and south, and on the face of the tablet are place names of various points on the map itself.

"The locality presented has not yet been established, but one place name which can be read as 'the fortress of Ia-la.' would indicate the locality as being northern Syria. Regardless of the still existing uncertainty it remains the earliest map yet found, and an object of great importance."

This Ga-sur site and map were found beneath the town of Nuzi, which is identified as 3,500 years old. The clay map was buried 20 feet deep. Five weeks of careful drying and baking were required to separate it from the surrounding earth and to clean up its surface. Four thousand years put a dozen cracks in the tablet and to some

DEMPESEY HITS 2 MEN HARD

Former Navy Champ Lasts Only One Minute in Dayton Exhibition.

DAYTON, O., March 1. (P)—The old time Jack Dempsey wallop was again displayed last night in a pair of knockouts before the largest crowd ever to see a boxing show in this city. There were 3,500 admissions.

Dempsey knocked out Pat Sullivan, former United States army champion, in one minute and 10 seconds, and took just one minute and 22 seconds to do the same to Jack Phillips, a local heavyweight.

Two Rookies Are In Mack's Favor

PORT MYERS, Fla., March 1. (P)—Two rookies, at least, were pretty sure today they would wear the uniform of the Athletics for much interest was evidenced in their first practice.

They are first baseman Oscar Roetger and Outfielder Ed Coleman. Veterans and recruits watched approvingly as Roetger showed his ability at first base handling everything that came his way. And they admired the way in which Coleman swung a bat in a roundhouse curve, smacking the ball with a sound whack.

Connie Mack apparently liked both boys.

Three Squads in New Orleans Park

NEW ORLEANS, March 1. (P)—Probably the largest squad of professional baseball players ever to train in one park was assembled here today. The round-up included nearly 100 members and would-be members of the Cleveland Indians, the Toledo Mud Hens, and the New Orleans Pelicans.

The three squads will divide time at Heinemann park, the practice grounds. Manager Bib Falk's Mud Hens will take the field at 9:30 a. m., the tribe will follow, and the Pelicans will go on at 2 p. m. The Indians' owners are operating the Toledo club this year under lease with option to purchase and also have a close working agreement with the Pelicans.

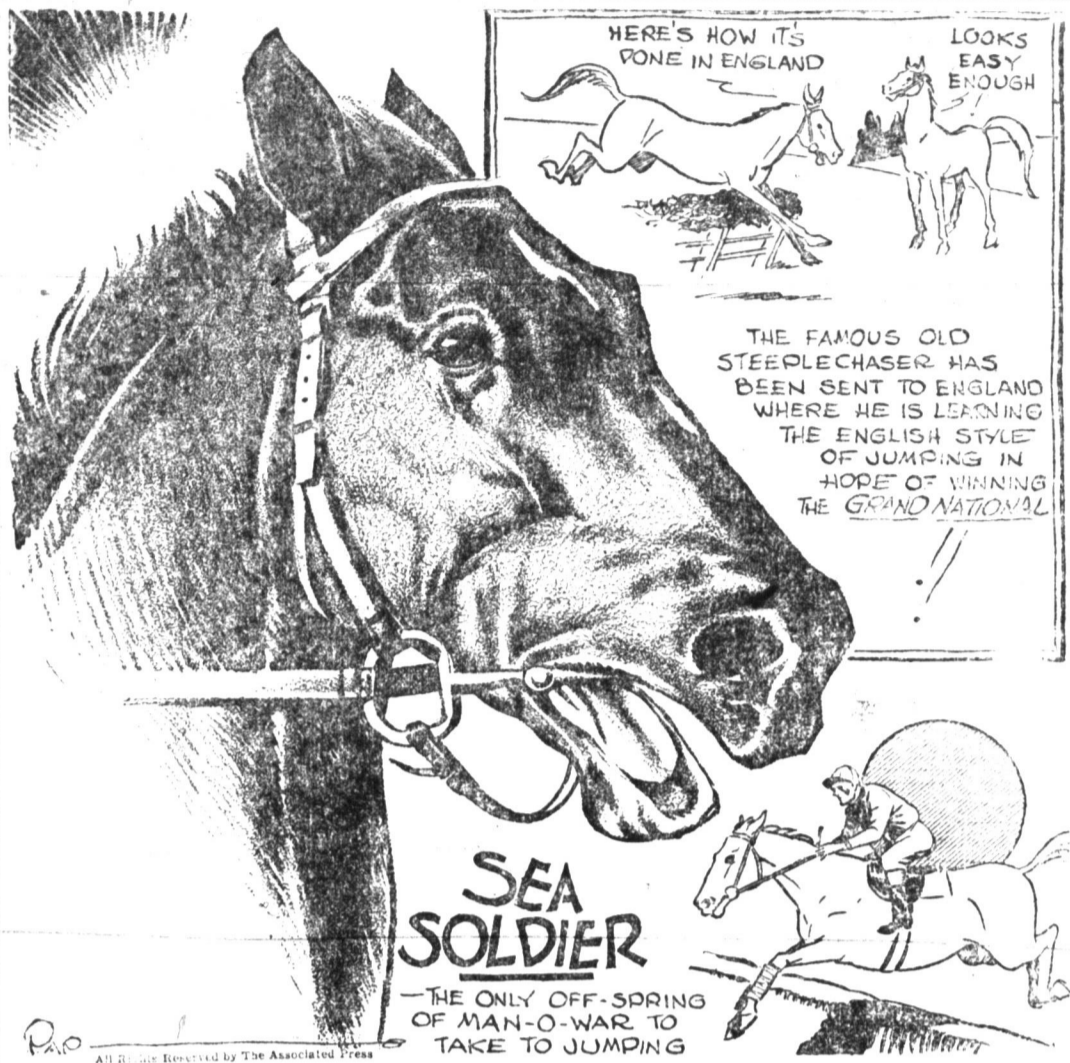

Gabby Street Is Short Full Crew

BRADNETON, Fla., March 1. (P)—Gus Mancuso, catcher, was in the Cardinals' spring training camp today, along with three other players who failed to arrive in time for the first full-squad workout scheduled for yesterday, but Manager Gabby Street still was far from having on hand a full roster.

Ernie Ostrati, Jim Collins and Lee Cunningham were the other new arrivals, bringing to 22 the number of players in camp, out of a total of 32 whose names are on the training camp list.

SENATORS UP EARLY TO SEE CARL REYNOLDS NEW MEMBER

Huge Outfielder Is Pleas'd With New Outfit; Will Replace Sam Rice.

BILOXI, Miss., March 1. (P)—The Washington Senators got up early this morning for a good look by daylight at Carl Reynolds, big fielder whom Clark Griffith got from the White Sox with Johnny Kerr in exchange for Pitchers Bump Hadley and Sam Jones.

Six feet and 194 pounds, Reynolds arrived last night with praise for his new colleagues, optimistic predictions for the team and some reasons why he didn't make a better showing last season. He is slated to succeed Sam Rice as the Senators' regular right fielder, a position he prefers although he played in every outfield sector with the White Sox.

The Gallagher flour mill at Sandusky, O., which shipped the first flour ever made in that region to New York 100 years ago, still is in operation.

GROSETTI ONE OF NEW STARS THIS SEASON

BUT PACIFIC LAD WILL FACE HARD JOB IN NEW YORK

By The Associated Press One of the American league's most highly-touted recruits this year is Frank Crosetti, who hopes to win a regular job at shortstop for New York.

Crosetti, a 21-year-old native of San Francisco, came up to the majors after a four-year apprenticeship in the Pacific coast league, all with San Francisco. He played first base with the Seals in his first year, 1928, but was shifted to shortstop the following season. He hit .344 in 1931. Crosetti is five feet 10 1-2 inches tall and weighs 160 pounds. He bats and throws right handed.

Frog-Pony Game Set for Thursday

DALLAS, March 1. (P)—The Texas Christian and Southern Methodist basketball game scheduled for Saturday night at Dallas has been switched to Thursday night. The change was made so that if a three-game series between Baylor and Texas Christian is necessary to determine the Southwest conference champion the first can be played Saturday night.

Providing the race ends in a deadlock, Texas Christian authorities favor a playoff but no official action has been announced on the matter. The correct conference schedule for final games this week:

- Tuesday - At Waco, Southern
- Wednesday - At College Station, Methodist vs. Baylor.
- Arkansas vs. Texas A. & M.
- Thursday - At Dallas, Texas Christian vs. Southern Methodist.
- Saturday - At College Station, Texas vs. Texas A. & M.

PLAYING SAFE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 1. (P)—Manager Joe McCarthy is not putting all his New York Yankee eggs in one basket. He would like to use Frank Crosetti at shortstop and Jack Saltzgraver at second base this year but he has several reserve plans should either Crosetti or Saltzgraver or both fail to make the grade.

In yesterday's practice he worked two combinations, Crosetti and Saltzgraver, and Lary and Doc Farrell.

CAMP NEARLY FULL

PALO ALTO, Calif., March 1. (P)—Seven Detroit Tigers are due at this training camp today and then the squad will be at full strength. There was a great clatter of bats on the ball field yesterday when the Tigers held their first practice session. The day's honors went to big Dale Alexander who twice pounded the ball over the left field fence. That fence is 360 feet from the plate and the top is 20 feet above the playing field.

Snakes, 106 of them, were found in one nest near Belleville, Ohio.

Joseph B. Elliott, for 15 years a comedian on the stage, now has a gunsmith and locksmith's shop in Indianapolis, Ind.

BAYLOR WILL END SEASON GAME TODAY

Must Beat Mustangs To Tie Horned Frogs If They Are to Win.

WACO, March 1. (P)—Baylor's excellent basketball team will wind up its Southwest conference schedule tonight with a game with the Southern Methodist Mustangs. The Bears and the T. C. U. Frogs will have to beat the Mustangs to finish in a tie for the loop leadership.

The Houstonians led the intermission but they couldn't cope with Doc Sexton's deadly southpaw shooting in the second period. Then too, they could amass only four more points.

Ted Lyons Takes Training Slowly

MINERAL WELLS, March 1. (P)—Slight workouts will be the rule for every one in the Chicago White Sox camp from now on—except Ted Lyons.

Lyons, who turned in 22 pitching victories in 1930, but only four last season because of a shoulder ailment, has been told by Manager Lew Fonseca that he can take his own sweet time about cutting loose. Lyons says the shoulder is in normal condition, but Fonseca wants to see that demonstrated—in time.

RIXEY IS THANKFUL

TAMPA, Fla., March 1. (P)—Eppa Rixey, the 41-year-old southpaw veteran of the Cincinnati pitching staff, is thankful he will not have to pitch to Andy High this season. The tall port sider, in excellent condition for this time of the year, batted last season but High in the first batting practice. The Reds acquired High from the world champion Cardinals during the winter.

BENNY LEONARD IS MASTER OF DEFENSE BUT IS EASILY TIRED IN COMEBACK VICTORY

BUT OLD CHIEF TAKES EIGHT OF TEN ROUNDS

BY EDWARD J. NEIL Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March 1. (P)—Down the aisle of a rickety little fight club St. Nicholas arena, stalked an old familiar figure in an old familiar raggedy bath robe—Benny Leonard, undefeated lightweight champion of the world.

It was "Benech," coming back to seek the glory he knew, more than ten years ago. His comeback started last summer, but last night was the first genuine test. Climbing in through the other side of the ring was Bill McMahon from the west side, young, rough and tough, undismayed.

The bell rang and Benny sidled out. McMahon rushed in and went both of Benny's arms, catching the punches. Benny lightly posed on his toes and left jabs spattered all over the young Irishman's features.

So it went, with slight variations, through ten rounds, the old man of the ring boxing beautifully, out-maneuvering, out-thinking, the eager Irishman, holding him tight when danger threatened.

But it was a shaky Leonard in spots, a Leonard who tired easily. But even so, Benny won eight of the ten rounds, though several were very close.

He weighed 151 3-4 pounds, far above the 135 he used to make for his lightweight title defenses. McMahon weighed 149 pounds.

GIANTS EXPENSIVE

LOS ANGELES, March 1. (P)—John McGraw thinks his new York Giants will draw 100,000 admissions during the spring training exhibition games.

"We have an expensive exhibition schedule this year," said John. "It is the most elaborate I have ever undertaken and I want the men to be in shape early because our schedule opens Saturday against the Cubs."

Phillies Puzzled by Tramp Catcher

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 1. (P)—Christy Walsh has settled down unconcernedly to letting the Phillies pitchers smack hot ones into his mitt, while Manager Burt Shotton, the players and the newspaper men still are wondering what its all about.

He comes from Philadelphia, he's a catcher, and he hitch-hiked down here, he revealed after he had been discovered behind the plate taking all the pitchers had to deliver. "He just blew in like a breeze," Shotton said, "shook hands with me and then stepped out on the playing field and began warming up the pitchers."

French and Wood Have Sore Wings

PASO ROBLES, Calif., March 1. (P)—Pittsburgh's two leading southpaw pitchers, Larry French and Charlie Wood, have pulled up with slightly sore arms while Hal Finney, catcher, is favoring a lame foot as a result of being spiked in training here. Their ailments, however, are of a minor nature and Manager George Gibson is not alarmed.

Dodgers' Infield Scene of Battle

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 1. (P)—Competition for positions in the Brooklyn Dodgers' infield centers on two spots, third and second bases. At third, the veteran Wally Gilbert is certain to have a fight on his hands with young Bobby Reis. There's a wide open battle for second base between Fresco Thompson and Neal Finn.

Archaeologists Uncover Old Map

American archaeologists, excavating at the buried town of Ga-sur, 200 miles north of Babylon, have uncovered a map made 4,000 years ago. Drawn on a clay tablet (left above), the map is about the size of a woman's watch. At left, below, is a drawing made at Harvard university from the tablet, showing how mountains and rivers were indicated. At right is shown the pit where the map was found.

Maize was cultivated in Mexico 7000 years B. C. Ohio farmers use more fertilizer than do the farmers in any other corn belt state. Cloth is made from human hair in American factories.

SUCKERS SHOULD BE BROKEN OUT--NEVER CUT THEM OFF

ROSE CULTURE NOTES ARE PRESENTED BY SPECIALIST

BY V. S. HILLOCK

Root dormancy is almost unknown in the Southland. In result, Southern grown roses can seldom be planted when fully dormant. When possible, roses should be planted before the turn of the winter. As winter approaches, the air cools more rapidly than the soil. The relatively greater warmth of the soil induces root growth. On the contrary, with the approach of spring, the air warms more rapidly than the chilled soil. Root growth is then retarded and top growth is induced. Roses should, however, never be planted in mud.

Suckers will appear occasionally, though seldom, in the best ordered rose gardens. They are easily recognized by their markedly different foliage and easily abolished. Suckers should never be cut off. They should always be broken out. The knob-like enlargement on the end called the heel, is a very important part of the sucker.

In removing a root sucker, the soil should be removed from the root. Exposure will not destroy the root. The sucker, when broken out, will usually hang at the bottom and the operation should be finished with knife. The cut should always be made in the root itself and not in the sucker. The rough edges of the resultant depression are then smoothed with the knife, the root is covered with soil and forgotten. When broken out, suckers seldom return.

This operation is easily performed and can be practiced through breaking branches out of other branches. The latter is the more difficult.

Judging by the past, it may be expected that during the next six years three-fourth of the roses now standing in the gardens of the Southland will be discarded and replaced because of desuetude, death and decay. Various numbers should be discarded because the varieties have long since been superseded by superior varieties. But a very great portion of that replacement will constitute mere wastage of staggering sums of money.

The cutting of bush roses to the ground or bud every third year at pruning time is called the re-malting process. A rose plant is as old as the oldest part through which must circulate between the roots and the blossoms. Rose wood is short lived wood. A plant that becomes established upon a permanent base is a short lived plant. The re-malting process merely compels the complete renewal of the top. If low-budded and shallow planted, the understock is entirely capable of self-renewal. But in the practices of Nature no provision is made for the complete renewal of the top of the shrub or bush rose.

In Nature, when a shrub or bush rose became established upon a permanent base, Nature merely side-stepped, renewed the plant through new shoots springing directly from new and vigorous roots, and permitted the original portions of the bush to pass the way of all flesh. In a budded rose, such renewal shoots are suckers and must be

Tips on CONTRACT

BIDDING MORE THAN NECESSARY

BY TOM O'NEIL

The forcing takeout in contract is most useful, and at times highly essential, in reaching a slam contract. And it is a successful slam that gives players some of their greatest thrills.

The forcing takeout, a bid in another suit higher than necessary, indicates to the first member of the partnership to bid that the responding hand is better than normal. In fact, the minimum requirements for a jump are three honor tricks with top card strength in the suit bid.

After a jump by partner, if the first hand to bid has more than the minimum necessary for its original bid, there are probably slim possibilities. Here is an illustrative hand:

NORTH				SOUTH-DEALER
♠	Q	J		♠	A	8	4
♥	K	J	2	♥	A	Q	J
♦	K	J	10 9 8	♦	2
♣	K	Q		♣	A	5	4

With such strength divided in two hands there probably would be no bidding from opponents. South would open with one heart.

North, with more than normal support in the suit bid by partner, would fall to reveal the great possibilities if he should assist the hearts immediately. Furthermore it might be possible that some other suit than hearts would best fit the two hands.

North has 3 1-2 honor tricks, 1 1-2 for the king, knave and ten of diamonds, one in clubs and half a one each in hearts and spades. Therefore he bids three diamonds, one more than necessary to overcall his partner's heart.

South now reveals his hand. From the strength shown by his partner's hand he knows that there is game, with the possibility of more. If he best contract for two hand is reached.

The hearts are strong. South cannot support the diamonds. A mere game bid in hearts would be insufficient to picture the strength of the dealer's holdings. So he bids five hearts. North then shows his willingness to play hearts, his ability to support them, by bidding six hearts.

It would be very abnormal distribution that could prevent a five slam.

so proud of Goody, and she was so ashamed of me! Who the hell cares who's ashamed of me! Was it my fault I picked a bum to love? I guess I'm only attracted to bums. If only Dickey would give me a tumble again, I'd be smack at his feet—like fun I would! I'll go up to that Prom, and maybe I won't give him a razzle-dazzle he won't forget in one big hurry! I'll go up there and show him what they mean by this here business of a woman scorned. . . .

But Hope, up in Harmouth, hadn't a chance to give Dickey Dale a razzle-dazzle. Not a chance! For all that she had planned so carefully, getting Judy to lie for her; for all that she had hardly been able to sit still beside Betty Preston on the long ride up in the train; for all that she dressed for the big dance with a nervousness she hadn't known since the first time she had fished to her mother about smoking, for all that her gown and her entire outfit was the most stunning, the most expensive, and the most breathlessly selected in over a year, Hope hadn't a chance!

Twosome Hubbard and Tuck Hall (a big, strapping midget, with a wart on his chin, rubbery lips, and a grudge against the world) had met Hope and Betty at the station, and conducted them to the fraternal house where they were both inmates. Betty, assigned with a girl in the chorus to Twosome's room, and Hope, bunked with a Canadian beauty in Tuck's, immediately proceeded to coax and bribe their room-mates to swap, so that Betty and Hope might be together in Tuck's room.

Not a word was spoken about Dickey Dale then or later, as they dropped over to a basket-ball game, had dinner at a nearby restaurant, and went back to their room to dress, with admonitions from the boys to be ready in three hours at least.

It was while they were dressing that Betty poured out her heart. She knew Hope had seen quite obviously that her beloved Twosome was ill—pale, nervous and jumpy. He was, Betty explained a bit tearfully, so nervous that he was almost out of his mind. The truth was that Twosome was the book-keeper of Harmouth. The boy had to work his way through college, and inasmuch as his only asset was a speedy foreign car, plus the fact that Harmouth was near the Canadian border, Twosome made a run at least once a month.

But now he was terrified; not only because he had been chased more than once in the last winter; but also because the boys talked—boasted of Twosome's brave adventures when he raced up to Canada and back again with no headlights. Betty admitted to Hope (who wasn't listening) how brave she thought her Twosome was, but she so dreadfully wanted him to quit. Twosome thought only of the disgrace and sorrow on his widowed mother if he were caught, and the stretch he might have to do; but Betty thought of the physical dangers to her darling—the shots from the chasing car, the headlong speed on the dark roads. . . . Her one aim was to make Twosome quit before he was a nervous wreck who jumped at the sound of his own name.

Hope sighed at the tragedy trickled through her preoccupied mind, and turned to comfort Betty, and offer impulsively, whatever money Twosome needed to finish his education. He could pay her back any time. . . . And then she snapped irritably at Betty's grateful tears, smothering the wish that someone would comfort her in her own heartache.

But the shock came during the second dance at the big hall. When Twosome Hubbard, guiding Hope carefully through the crowded floor, opined that hers must have been a painful and thunderous marriage.

"Why?" Hope frowned whimsically up into his face.

"Well, Dale heard yesterday afternoon that you were coming and he beat it like a shot!"

"Beat it?"

"Back to town. He's gone down to New York to see his father."

"But"—Hope managed to seem amused, and in spite of the dizzy chill that had suddenly struck her—"what about the girl—the girl he was having up to the Prom?"

"How do I know?" grinned Twosome. "Maybe there wasn't any such critter. Dale's been sour as five-day milk all this year. I found out a lot about him. He hasn't had a girl or gone to a hop since last Year Kipper."

"Oh—really?"

(Copyright, Grace Perkins)

"Whatcha lookin' for, I'll boy!" gurgled Hope in high amusement. Tuck grinned in appreciation. It suddenly dawned on him. "You're plastered," he wagged an admonishing finger at her.

"Nobly," admitted Hope with a proud toss of her head. "Hers! Don't put the things back into your trunk. What you looking for?"

"I got to get out of here, I'm not supposed to be in the house where the girls are," he worked Tuck anxiously as he breathed to repack his trunk hastily.

"Aw, shucks! Balderdash and poppy seed!" protested Hope amiably. "No harm will come to you, I'll feller. I don't bite. Look—I'll help you search!"

With one energetic scramble Hope got to her feet and snapped off the lights.

"There, it'll be lots simpler to find it in the dark," she giggled teasingly.

"Hey, you," shouted Tuck. "Put that light on! You darned little fool!"

In the darkness he made toward the electric switch, and bumped squarely into Hope. Their heads hit with a resounding crack.

Tuck heard one firm meaningful knock on the door, and before he could reach for the light, he saw the door swing open and a figure appear.

Only vaguely did she realize that Betty and Twosome were joining them, down into the lockers, through the gym, and out to the swimming-pool where they squatted on long, hard benches, and Twosome wrangled with the corks of high-sounding bottles. . . .

The music jangled into a finish. Hope was grateful that Tuck Hall suddenly caught her around the waist and yelled something about bringing her down to the locker room. . . .

Only vaguely did she realize that Betty and Twosome were joining them, down into the lockers, through the gym, and out to the swimming-pool where they squatted on long, hard benches, and Twosome wrangled with the corks of high-sounding bottles. . . .

Hope heard herself sing, with Twosome joining in. Dimly she realized that Betty was nudging her. Protesting in pained whispers. Clearly, however, she did realize that she was the life of the party. Quite sharply she heard herself sing, with Twosome joining in.

Clearly she understood that Tuck was dragging them back to the dance, for fear that her behavior might cause an unpleasant riot. And then, madly, she felt herself dancing, laughing, kidding.

Yes, she knew all that. Quite clearly. She knew she was tight, and gloried in it. She knew she was scandalous and shocking, and reveled in the thought. . . . She wanted terribly to get lighter—bunniest, really blotto, for what did she care? Who cares about anybody? What did anybody matter but a good time?

She lost Tuck in the crowd somehow, and was glad of it. She found other boys, and lost them or left them, and was gladder still. Irregularly she faced Betty every quarter or half-hour and stamped her foot at Betty's stammering protests. . . . Until finally, long after her little wrist watch had stopped at one a. m., Hope felt suddenly ill, ill, ill, and old, and tired.

Across the room she sought Betty, and explained that she was going over to the fraternal house and turns in.

With remarkable dignity, but quite minus a wrap which seemed too difficult to trace, Hope made her way across the well-known and memory-laden campus toward the fraternal house. Two doors down from Dickey's fraternity—only two doors away. . . .

Groping, unheeding to any sound except hers, she pushed through the door and made for Tuck's room, entered—and found Tuck himself!

Tuck was seated squat on the floor a fat trunk pulled from under his cot, contents strewn all over the floor. He looked up, aghast, well aware of the rule that kept boys out of the fraternal houses when girls visited.

With a most unladylily, un-Rossily whoop of laughter, Hope slammed the door and threw herself headlong across the cot, her face dangling down toward Tuck as he knelt on the floor.

alibonnetted against the hall lamps. . . .

A dread voice—speaking. . . .

Tuck's hand found the switch, and the sudden glow of light in the room made him blink, the stern and pained face of the chaperon standing, shocked and angry, at the threshold.

The light jerked Hope into action. Tears were in her eyes, streaming down her face, as she turned to the white-haired chaperon in the doorway.

"He wouldn't have acted that way if he didn't care, would he?" she cried hysterically, one hand outstretched in urgent appeal. "He wouldn't be drinking like a rattlesnake, and beat it like a shot just because it was coming, would he?"

Vaguely she realized the cold disdain of the chaperon's eyes, and her hand dropped with a gesture of utter futility. Then suddenly Tuck's voice cut in on her with shocking virility.

"What kind of line are you pulling?" she shouted Tuck disgustedly. "Can't you shut up? Aren't things looking bad enough? Can't you see what's happened? I'm apt to be expelled now because of you!"

One short quick word from the chaperon. One arm whiting on Tuck's arm. And Hope, staring and uncomprehending in her heavy, half-sodden sobs, saw both leave the room, and stared around her with thick, unhappy puzzlement.

Would her head ever stop pounding? What was it all about? Was she really in disgrace? And would she, perhaps, be sent home with a new scandal tacked to her name—and a new uproar to explain to Papa or word, she pushed through the door and made for Tuck's room, entered—and found Tuck himself!

Tammany Man to Succeed Farley

ALBANY, N. Y., March 1. (AP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt has named a Tammany leader to succeed the ousted Tammany sheriff of New York, Thomas M. Farley.

The new sheriff is John T. Sheehy, Tammany leader in the fifth assembly district and first choice of the wigwag chief, John F. Curry, for the place. Roosevelt announced the appointment last night. Beyond the bare announcement as to his choice, there was no word from the governor.

Later the assembly passed the bill appropriating $250,000 more for continuation of the investigation of New York City, which uncovered the facts on which charges were filed against Farley. The governor ousted him for failure to explain his huge bank deposits.

The cost of the investigation was brought to $750,000 by the assembly's action, as the senate had acted previously.

Governor Roosevelt will sign it on the principle that if the legislature wishes to investigate, it has the right to do so.

The entire "Farley case" has been viewed as having possible far-reaching influence on Roosevelt's presidential candidacy. Anti-Tammany elements in New York City have been outspoken for the selection of a sheriff from outside the Tammany ranks.

At the capital the governor's action was viewed as recognition on his part of the democratic organization's supremacy in New York.

Police Gazette, Its Daring Gone, Dies Bankrupt

NEW YORK, March 1. (AP)—The Police Gazette, as much a part of yesterday's barbarism as the quirt-bottle, has failed to respond to the message of its creditors. It lies today in a court of bankruptcy, as dead as clipped hair on the lino-lumbed floor.

When pictures of ladies in tight-tights were considered daring, and photographs of mustachioed pugilists with massive arms folded proudly across enormous chests aroused great reader enthusiasm, the Police Gazette had its heyday. Now that tights are antique and muttons little more than hairy breeves accentuating masculine lips, the pink-papered periodical has found itself without a sufficient following.

Last year, its creditors claim, the Police Gazette took in only $100,000, with expenses $400,000 greater. Conferences of creditors failed of satisfactory conclusions. Yesterday the Richard K. Fox Publishing company (its publishers) was appointed receiver in bankruptcy.

The magazine, when taking the trade at top stride, was considered somewhat daring, with its pictures of statuesque stage sirens given to substantial contours; yet from its beginning it was the insistence of the Richard K. Fox Publishing company (its publishers) that the Police Gazette be kept clean in text and picture.

In this endeavor the publishers were successful. Scandal and malicious gossip were alien to its pale pink pages. Immodesty was not tolerated. The only excuse for a prevalent belief that the magazine was over-emphatic in its appeal were the pictured beauties of burlesque, postured in attire which—in the more far-away places—was regarded as extremely dishabille.

Wheat For Red Cross Favored

WASHINGTON, March 1. (AP)—A senate bill to release 40,000,000 bushels of government wheat to the Red Cross for relief distribution was approved today by the house agriculture committee by a 15 to 6 vote.

The action reversed a previous rejection of the measure by a 14 to 9 ballot.

The bill was amended to provide that part of the wheat may be used for livestock feeding in crop failure areas. This applies particularly to the Dakotas, Nebraska, Montana, Iowa, Wyoming, Colorado, and New Mexico.

The measure would allow the Red Cross to requisition the wheat from time to time as needed, with a maximum limit of 40,000,000 bushels.

Finn Fascist Flurry Just Another Revolt

WASHINGTON, March 1. (AP)—Finland's Fascist revolutionary movement is just one more of many flurries the new republic has had since the dark days of 1918 when 15,000 men, women, and children were killed and 73,000 persons were imprisoned in the clash between the Reds and Whites.

In 1923, Finland dissolved its communist party and imprisoned 25 communist members of its parliament. Communist papers also were suppressed but the repressive movement resulted in a change of government very speedily.

The Agrarians of South Finland stand firmly against the farmers with being under Moscow influence. Fear of Russia, whether czaristic or Soviet has been uppermost in the minds of Finns for centuries.

Chinese emperor, who is to be the head of the state.

SHANGHAI, Wednesday, March 2. (AP)—Hammered by the new strength of Japanese fresh troops, the Chinese line in the Kiangwan sector gave way early this morning and fell back foot by foot, covering its retreat with machine gun fire.

The whole Japanese line between Kiangwan and Mauchungchen has straightened out and headquarters reported the attack had succeeded along a one mile front.

The Chinese were retreating southward in the direction of Chapel.

At one cross road, which has been under heavy fire for several days, the advancing Japanese reported they had found more than 200 Chinese dead.

Their own casualties for the day were not given.

No Peace In Sight

The peace parleys which began Monday were heavily at a standstill this morning, neutral observers said.

There were several night conferences among Chinese officials, the last of them breaking up at 1 a. m. but they produced no definite results.

The Chinese appealed to Reds and Whites, demanding on them by the enemy as unacceptable now as when they were framed in General Uyeda's ultimatum some days ago.

General Tsai Ting-Kai, the Chinese commander, knows that heavy Japanese reinforcements are on hand but he has not been known to let it out even against an army with greater numbers and better equipment.

LEAP YEAR BABIES, SOME OF THEM AGED NOW, CELEBRATING THEIR JUVENILE BIRTH DATES

NEW YORK, Feb. 29. (AP)—Today's the natal anniversary of that select company, the leap year babies.

For instance, there is Arthur Kilne, retired lieutenant of San Francisco, born Feb. 29, 1848.

"That makes this my twenty-first birthday," he said today. "Now I'm old enough to vote, after all these years. I'm glad. I want to cast my ballot for John Garner."

Kilne explained his always had been a democrat and had lived 35 years in Texas—two circumstances which make Garner, the Texas democrat, his sentimental favorite.

The joke, unfortunately, is on Mr. Kilne. Today is only his twentieth birthday anniversary. The year 1900 didn't count, for reasons best known to the calendar makers.

One of the "leap year babies" who attained his majority today is Rear Admiral Cobby Mitchell Chester, born in '44. It was Admiral Chester whose careful calculations in 1909 upset Dr. Frederick Cook's claims to having discovered the North Pole.

James Brazell, Oklahoma City oil man and head of Western Airways, Inc. had 15 candles on his birthday cake, despite his 64 actual years. He celebrated in advance last week by making his first solo flight. It was a thrill, he admitted, but nothing like his good old days when he was a cowpuncher.

"Airplanes," he explained, "can't pitch and bawl like old cow horses used to do."

And then there's Pepper Martin, ripsporter of the baseball yards who came rarin' out of the West last fall to stand the Philadelphia Athletics against their several heads. He's just seven today.

Plans For Sales Day Taking Form

A temporary organization to promote a sales day for Pampa will be started Monday night in the city hall auditorium when business men, their clerks, and members of the junior chamber of commerce and Board of City Development met again. More than 40 merchants and the jayvees committee met last night and discussed plans.

Speakers included Travis Lively, who presided, Frank Foster, Paul Dill, Brownie Akers, C. H. Walker, and George Briggs. Plans were made to visit neighboring towns and talk business and pleasure. Members of the committee on arrangements who visited Miami, Okla., and studied a similar day in that city, declared that the merchants were the big factors in the success of such a day.

More Money To Be Given Agriculture

WASHINGTON, March 1. (AP)—The department of agriculture will receive $25,000,000 more from the reconstruction corporation by June 1. This is in addition to the $50,000,000 given the department for emergency relief under the finance corporation act.

The new funds will come from the sale of $250,000,000 in debentures to be issued by the finance corporation, the department being entitled to 10 per cent of all securities issued by the rehabilitation agency.

Some doubt arose as to how much money the department would receive from the finance corporation's issue of securities. The attorney general now has informed Secretary Hyde that since it received $50,000,000 of the $500,000,000 capital stock of the corporation, the department is entitled to 10 per cent of the additional securities which the corporation may issue.

tremendous assault along the whole front. They used artillery, airplanes, machine guns and a squadron of tanks in the tremendous push which Tokyo expected to defeat the Chinese sooner than League of Nations peace proposals could become operative.

A terrific explosion which shook the entire city of Shanghai without being clearly heard, took place when two mines blew up close to two Japanese warships in the Whangpoo river. Inhabitants of the international settlement rushed into the streets, screaming that an earthquake had struck.

The Japanese lines struck a fury unknown heretofore in the conflict. They said they had achieved an advance of more than a mile.

SMITH WANTS VERMONT

NEW YORK, March 1. (AP)—The rivalry between the Smith and Roosevelt political camps is to be carried into Vermont's green hills. In a series of pow-wows yesterday, supporters of Alfred E. Smith discussed plans for carrying into New England an intensive fight to make the former governor of New York the democratic presidential nominee.

Youth Shoots Aged Woman Accidentally

CONROE, March 1. (AP)—"Grandma" J. A. Spinks, 73-years-old church worker, was in a grave condition today after being shot by Earl Law, 22.

"He just pulled out a gun and I was shot—I think it was an accident," Mrs. Spinks told investigators. "He was scared after he shot me and ran back into the house."

Law had a room in the house where Mrs. Spinks lived. Officers found a pistol hidden between the floor of the second story and the ceiling of the first floor.

The youth said the shooting was accidental. However, a charge of assault to murder was filed and Law was in jail. The bullet passed through Mrs. Spinks' left thigh and ricocheted, striking her in the right ankle.

J. M. McDonald returned yesterday from a business trip to Austin.

Cook County Made Pauper By Court

CHICAGO, March 1. (AP)—Cook county was a legal pauper today because its commissioners had failed to adopt a budget for 1932 by midnight last night, the deadline under the Illinois statutes.

For several hours the commissioners wrangled over the economy features of a $32,000,000 estimate of expenditures and when the clock struck 12, nothing had been accomplished, not even a vote on dismissal of employees, salary cuts or other financial difficulties that followed failure of the state legislature to enact revenue relief.

ESTABLISH BANK

The brothers O'Keefe, Wayne and Earl, have established a branch banking establishment in Borger. The only bank in that city was closed sometime ago.

WET VOTE--

Anti-prohibitionists on both sides of the aisle stood up and applauded. Representative Laguardia (R., N. Y.) who had the floor, said amidst the confusion:

"I am very happy the last man who signed was a distinguished citizen of the State of Texas."

O'Connor called attention to his request last week that the house send the petition to the naval hospital so Representative Griffin (D., N. Y.) could sign. Representative Blanton (D., Texas) had objected.

"The gentleman from Texas would not have objected if it had been on any other subject," Laguardia said.

"As long as I am a member of the house I will insist that legislative business be done on the floor."

When the petition is brought up in the house, the members first must vote on whether they want to discharge the judiciary committee from consideration of the measure.

If that vote carries, the house will vote on the constitution amendment.

Measure Explained

It would require only a majority vote to discharge the committee but two-thirds to approve the measure.

The measure as now drafted, would be a substitute for the 18th amendment which would let the federal government retain the right to regulate the manufacture, sale and interstate transportation of intoxicating beverages so long as the federal statutes do not conflict with the laws of other political subdivisions.

Just before Mansfield signed, Blanton made the statement that the fact the petition had been on file since last Thursday and only 144 had affixed their names, "shows the house of representatives is not wet."

He asserted the leaders of the two partisan wet blocs "know you won't get enough votes to make the discharge rule effective."

"It is a mere gesture," he said.

Laguardia retorted that the 144 signatures showed that many members of the house, "and more, too, are wet."

Texas Independence Will Be Observed

The First National bank will be closed tomorrow, officials announced this morning, in commemoration of Texas Independence Day, March 2, 1836. The postoffice will be open all day. Postmaster D. E. Cecil said. Banks throughout the state will be closed. Many state institutions will also close to celebrate the day.
