Slightly Warmer Weather With Snow Is In Prospect for Tonight

Interest vs. Ignorance
Unprecedented interest in government is reported all over the country. And, at the same time, an enormous ignorance of the functions and limitations of our form of government is obvious.

We're to Blame
There is a great outcry against extravagance in government. But there was no outcry when the fabric of our gigantic governmental system was being woven.

Artificial

DAMAGE TO FRUIT TO BE THE LARGEST FACTOR

By the Associated Press

A snowstorm penetrated the Texas Panhandle today from the blizzard-bound Rocky Mountain region and swept to the south and east.

Sleet and rain were in the forecast for virtually every other part of the state with the possible exception of the far southwest. It was raining at Austin and south to the Gulf coast today and cloudy skies prevailed over almost the entire state.

Snow was reported at Pampa, Lubbock, and other points in the Panhandle. There was heavy damage reported to fruit and grain crops. Stockmen hurried to provide shelter for cattle and sheep.

The mercury hovered around the 14-degree mark at Lubbock this morning. Abilene and Amarillo had low readings of 22 degrees. Eastview reported a minimum of 12 degrees with snow flurries. Pampa's temperature was 10 above; Big Spring had 18 degrees.

Wichita Falls' temperature was 20 degrees, Corsicana 28, Denton 24, Gainesville 24, Tyler 28 and Palestine 32. Considerable fruit crop damage was reported in north-east Texas. Dallas had a low reading of 24 degrees and Fort Worth 25.

Somewhat higher temperatures were reported in South Texas but weather conditions there were generally unsettled. San Antonio had

Panhandle Man Named President Of Scout Council

Sam Lanning of Panhandle was elected vice-president of the Adobe Walls Boy Scout council at an executive meeting in Panhandle last night. Mr. Lanning will succeed the Rev. Martin T. Pone of Panhandle who resigned recently.

The new vice-president is one of the most prominent Scouters in the council. Mr. Lanning was instrumental in making the Boy Scout camp last year the most successful in the history of the council. The Rev. A. Hyde of Pampa is president of the council.

The executive committee met with the finance committee, Rev. A. F. Johnson of Berger, chairman, last night and discussed the financial situation of the council. Berger's drive will start next week, it was announced. Panhandle will also make a drive soon.

Members of the executive council who attended from Pampa were the Rev. A. A. Hyde, Dr. C. H. Schulkey, and Jake Irwin. C. A. Clarke, executive, also attended.

BORGER ON SIXTH BIRTHDAY CELEBRATES QUIETLY WHILE RECALLING ERA OF BOOM DAYS

BORGER, March 8. (AP)—The citizens of Borger—of whom it was once uncharitably written that they read their newspapers by the flame of six-shooters in the evening—today celebrated the sixth birthday of the municipality.

It did not stretch the memory of the oldest inhabitant to recall the days when the Texas Rangers used to come and supervise the celebrations in Borger; but this was a different and more orderly sort of celebration. Three bands came to parade down the main street, three miles long, there were athletic events and a dance on the program, and delegations arrived from all parts of the Panhandle.

Borger was founded March 8, 1926, in the oil boom days. In one day, 240 acres of barren, wind-swept prairie became a hundred thousand dollars worth of town lots. A. P. Borger and John R. Miller, the latter now mayor, accomplished the metamorphosis. Snow covered the ground today and the weather was biting cold, but visitors flocked to town, nevertheless. Amarillo, Perryton, Spearman, Pampa, Panhandle, and other towns sent delegations. Amarillo likewise sent the famous old grey mare band. The American Legion was in charge of the celebration, Gordan Burch acting as chairman.

3 URGED FOR COMMISSIONERS

PETITIONS FOR THEM DRAWN THIS MORNING

BRATTON IS SUGGESTED TO FOLLOW MAYOR OSBORNE

FATHEREE, SECOND TERM

EARL O'KEEFE IS ASKED TO BE THE THIRD OFFICIAL

Offices went seeking the men today when friends of three citizens started circulating petitions to nominate them for places on the city commission.

The petitions, which must have about 60 or more names to place the candidates officially in the race, carried the following designations:

For mayor—W. A. (Bill) Bratton, lumber dealer.

For Commissioner No. 1—Clyde Fatheree, now serving as Commissioner No. 2.

For Commissioner No. 2—Earl O'Keefe, building and loan executive.

Interviewed by The NEWS today, these men stated they would consent to run if the people desired. Mr. Fatheree, as the only incumbent candidate, would offer his experience during the last two years—his first term.

Each of the other two being urged for commissioner is allied with the building trades. Mr. Bratton came here in 1926 and is manager of the Foxworth-Galbraith Lumber company. He is a past president of the Pampa Lions club and is prominent in public affairs. Mr. O'Keefe, president of the Western Building & Loan company and of the Western Reserve Investment company—both locally financed—is of a pioneer Gray county family. His father moved to Gray county about 1901 and later became a resident of Panhandle. Miss Arless O'Keefe, teacher in Pampa high school, is a sister of the local man.

An economical administration, practiced upon the need for encouraging investments in Pampa, was mentioned by each candidate in talking with a representative of The NEWS. And a new administration must inevitably result from the fact that two-thirds of the present commission will not continue in city politics. Mayor D. W. Osborne and Commissioner Lynn Boyd have stated positively that they had sacrificed as much of their time for civic purposes as they could, and would not run again.

The election of three commissioners, one designated as the mayor, will take place Tuesday, April 5.

Nominating Group Will Be Appointed

A committee to nominate candidates for city commissioners and mayor will probably be appointed tonight at a meeting of the Citizens League. A. D. Montiehl announced this morning. The meeting will be held in the Brunow building, beginning at 8 o'clock.

A program of speaking and music will be given. All citizens are invited to attend. Mr. Montiehl said.

Lively to Head Sales Day Plan; Merchants Talk

Travis Lively was elected chairman of the sales day and goodwill organization being sponsored by the Board of City Development and the Junior chamber of commerce at a meeting of business men and sponsors last night in the city hall.

H. L. Polley was named vice chairman. George Briggs was selected as secretary. The chairman will appoint three men to act with them as an executive committee.

A name for the new organization has not been selected. It will be adjunct to the two organizations sponsoring it. Members will help supply cars to take the high school band to Mobeetie March 21, when the Texas A. & M. and Santa Fe special train will stop there before coming to Pampa.

More than 40 business men and representatives of the B. C. D. and Jaycees attended last night's meeting despite the bad weather. Many business men made brief talks.

MAJOR BATTLE IS LOOMING WESTWARD OF SHANGHAI, WHERE TROOPS ARE MASSING

General Chiang Kai-Shek Is Believed to Be Moving Troops Into Zone.

SHANGHAI, March 8. (AP)—A new offensive of major character was reported developing today along a newly-established battle line west and northwest of Shanghai.

Chinese sources said General Chiang Kai-Shek, former Chinese president, was leaving Nanking for Kunshan, about 15 miles behind Chinese front lines, and the report gave rise to speculation among Chinese that General Chiang planned to participate in a new campaign against the Japanese. MAN CLAIMING THAT FATHER-IN-LAW IS SUSPECT

BOSTON, March 8. (AP)—Two men, one of whom said he was trying to telephone Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh to tell him he knew a man who knew where the missing Lindbergh baby was hidden were arrested in the north station of the Boston and Maine railroad today.

The men identified themselves as Earle Edwards, 40, of Derry, N. H., and Samuel Black, 51, of Lawrence, Mass. A man using a telephone book at the station overheard Edwards pass a call to the Lindbergh home at Herwell, N. J., from the adjoining booth. He told William J. Griffin, a railroad policeman. Griffin, a policeman in the vicinity were gathered and they surrounded the booth and arrested Edwards and Black.

Edwards' old deputy superintendent of police James McDevitt that his father-in-law, Charles Boulanger told him the baby was being held by aged couple and the motive for the crime was revenge and not ransom. McDevitt immediately asked Griffin to go to check the story with Boulanger.

Sales Day Plan Given Approval; Trips Planned

The directors of the Pampa Board of City Development, in session yesterday afternoon, endorsed the Pampa sales day program and good will trips to be sponsored by the board and the Junior chamber of commerce.

The board also decided to assist the Junior chamber in sending a delegation to a Jaycees regional convention in Oklahoma City next month.

The agriculture program for the year was discussed and approved. The board urged other committees to meet and outline plans for the year. The banquet of March 22 was discussed briefly and arrangements left to the entertainment committee.

Jail "Sleepers" in Night Number 27

The city jail was crowded to capacity with prisoners last night, but all of them were willing prisoners. Chief Downs reported this morning that a total of 27 penniless transients were allowed to sleep in the jail last night. This number broke all records for the year. The cold weather drove men out of boxcars and other types of outdoor shelters.

The Welfare Board is not able to provide food for transients. It has enough difficulty in furnishing the necessities of life to local charity cases, officials said.

WASHINGTON, March 8. (AP)—A resolution to place the senate on record in favor of repeal or modification of the 18th amendment and to provide for state control of liquor was introduced today by Senator Lewis (D., Ill.).

PUP ONLY WILL STOP HER TEARS

Little Betty Sue Johnson, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Johnson, was all this morning from weeping. Her tears started yesterday afternoon when she discovered her six-month old Collie pup was missing. She wept all yesterday afternoon, last night and was too sick to cry this morning.

Her father made an appeal today to the person who took the dog to bring it back. The pup was taken from the yard of the Johnson home at 830 West Kingsmill. A filling station operator said he saw two women walking through the yard pick up the dog. The Johnsons earnestly implore the person who took the pup to return it. Betty Sue is too weak to cry but she is crying on the inside. This is the third dog she has had stolen. She has an unusual fondness for pup—will the person who took the dog bring it back?

of well-being. But such a rush to improve the country could not be carried on indefinitely. Payments inexorably follow spending. If a man needs a house, the building of it gives craftsmen work. If all his neighbors build new homes, the demand for labor is keen and machinery is invented to speed up production of materials. But—and here's the rub—the average man needs but one house. When that one is built, he is no longer in the market for labor and materials. A depression is inevitable after a building boom such as the entire nation enjoyed a few years ago.

"We, the People" Nor should we differentiate between private and local public projects. The people have demanded every improvement which has been made. Do not forget that the old phrase, "we the people," is still appropriate. Hoarding of dollars and normal public and private building projects has prolonged the depression. The deflation of governmental spending, much needed to lighten the burden upon private business which must, after all, end the depression, will not be without detriment. It is not deflation to vote money for free wheat, federal buildings, bonus bonas and road aid. These projects are intended as emergency efforts through which those who have aid those in distress.

To Be Expected But those communities which have created growth through public building are not in a position to extend direct aid by additional expenditures. Rather, the tax burden must be made as light as possible to enable private enterprise to recover and, through normal expansion to extend the relief sought. Pampa has built well privately and publicly but in relatively a short period of time as other cities are measured. The demands upon Pampa publicly, or from a governmental standpoint, necessarily must be small in the next few years. We have the enjoyments of our expenditures, but we must pay the bill just as any investor expects to do.

Pampa's "Right" We have no patience for those who cry wolf. To appreciate Pampa, present and future, merely travel around a bit. And do not blame Pampa if work is scarce in some lines. The need for labor of various kinds depends upon the stage of development of a rapidly growing city. Booms go and come, and labor supplies must follow the places of greatest demand. When the entire world gets a hang-over from the orgy of war and war expenditures, followed by the building and expansion period above described, and when man-made economic laws are entangled in politics and greed, labor finds it nearly impossible to move about advantageously. Hence the local unemployment problem. And hence the willingness of Pampa citizens to extend a helping hand.

Remember the War No general, no private citizen, expected the world war to be a siege. All campaigns were to be brief. The trenches became abodes. Financing campaigns had to be repeated. "Give until it hurts!" was the cry, and patriots responded nobly. The hurting, however, was more than temporary. It is going on now. But even so, it might have been worse. The real American army never reached France. It never came into being. It was to have been wholly American—guns, ammunition, supplies, planes, transports, but any soldier who went to France will tell you how really little American equipment reached the front in time to be used. The cost of unpreparedness—who can estimate it?

Loose Dollars Between April, 1917 and November, 1918, the United States spent 32 billions, or $4500 per day for each man under fire. No period of history even approached governmental spending like that before. England in four years spent 44 billions, and France 25 billions—they were better prepared. But the necessity of war propaganda—as to our resources, our prosperity—kept the people from realizing the unparalleled cost of the war. There was no retrenchment after the peace, no preparation for economic readjustment for inevitable payments. Propaganda continued. Warning signs were ignored. American bankers vied with each other in making loans abroad. Much of this money came back because it had already been spent, and for a time the world made rapid strides—on credit. Public and private expansion set new paces—on credit. And credit centralized and pyramided wealth.

The Point If the reader has followed us thus far, he will have seen the point of this discourse—that governmental and private extravagance, starting with the war, and culminating in maladjustments of world business, made an international depression inevitable. Yet we believe that common sense economy, involving sound investments, coupled with less government in private business, will enable America to profit as hoarded dollars are released and delayed projects are started. Public interest in government is needed, but beware of propagandists who through either inflation or deflation extremes seek to reach selfish goals.

Pampa has a bright future, with her oil and agricultural assets, providing her citizenship cooperates in planning her future and working toward it. Don't sell Pampa short; believe in her and talk up her assets.

Frigidaire Has Cut Prices But Not Its Quality

DAYTON, O., March 8. (AP)—Frigidaire corporation today announced sweeping price reductions on its complete line of household refrigerators. The lowest priced model, the ML-4 is listed at $130, at the factory. The drastic reductions were made as a result of a nation-wide survey which indicated that there are hundreds of thousands of people who would like to own a Frigidaire, but have deferred its actual purchase because of price, according to H. W. Newell, vice-president in charge of sales, who made the announcement. "This information has convinced us that such people who are already familiar with the superior features of our product, will want to place orders immediately when they learn of these new prices, which shatter all former standards in the electric refrigeration industry," he said. "In line with General Motors' policy of passing savings on to the consumer, we have anticipated the economies in manufacturing that can be effected by greatly increased production and are offering the public the advantage of these savings in advance. "It is facilities of such tremendous proportions that enables Frigidaire to produce the lowest priced quality refrigerators in the world," Mr. Newell continued. "The entire line of household Frigidaires have the same storage space, same freezing capacity, same ice trays, same relief area and the same powerful two-cylinder compressors that have made Frigidaire known all over the world. "Only the price has been changed. We have maintained our standards of workmanship, our standards of materials, and all the features of our products. Nowhere is there any compromise with quality. "We are failing to do all that they might do in the present situation. "Employers in the Detroit district and in Michigan generally, have cooperated to the fullest extent with the general relief measures of the municipalities and the state and they have spent large amounts of money in their efforts to relieve unemployment and distress."

MEN! LEAVE COATS AT HOME—LADIES WON'T OBJECT

Senior Class Is to Be Honored at Banquet

AND WHAT IS TIE'S USE IN HOT MONTHS?

MEN BRAVE BUT HAVE THEY ENOUGH NERVE TO ALTER STYLE?

BY HOLLYCEE SELLERS HINKLE

"Just as little as possible!" That was the unanimous answer given by local people when they were asked what, in their opinion, was the ideal warm-weather clothing for men. Men's fashions of this year will be shown at the style revue to be sponsored at the La Nora theater tomorrow evening by the Business and Professional Women's club, but whether or not these fashions coincide with what both men and women secretly believe to be "ideal" remains to be seen.

Do men dress to please women? Some declare that they do, yet the mystery is this: Why does a man sit for hours with his feet in a woolen coat, when women with one accord cry "Get rid of it!" Men who are heroes at the battle front, supremely daring in the jungles of Africa, or undaunted by opposition in business or politics, how in submission to that arch-enemy, convention.

Yet a secret opinion, even in defiance of convention, cannot remain forever inactive. Perhaps in a few years we shall see a gentleman in all pomp and glory step from his limousine in—a pair of shorts.

I. A. Freeman says that in warm weather a man should wear light trousers, a sport shirt or a shirt that is similar to the old-style, low neck sport shirts, quite loose around the neck, and a tie. No coat or vest should be worn.

Mr. Freeman prefers a tie, and that is where Philip R. Pond disagrees with him. "Light weight trousers and shirts about ties seem ideal to me," he said.

No Sleeves Wanted Ben Reno would like to wear light weight trousers and a shirt without sleeves. "And I would like for that shirt to have four pockets," he added. A coat, he thinks, is out of the question.

"I think it is perfectly all right for men to remove their coats at summer entertainments, especially at summer dances," said Mrs. Glen Pool, who is general director of the style revue. "I think it is better in going to extremes in order to keep cool. In this climate it seems that light-weight woolen clothes in light colors are appropriate. They should be worn with sport shoes and light felt hats."

"If I were a man" said Mrs. W. R. Campbell. "I certainly should not want to wear either a coat or a collar in the summer time."

Said George W. Briggs: "Women have set a good example by wearing light clothing—but sometimes they carry it too far in the winter time. I would not go so far as to advise men to wear shorts (after looking at a few pairs of men's legs) but I do believe in wearing just as little as is possible and still look nice."

All clothing to be shown will be typical of that worn in the most fashionable centers of the United States.

Mrs. Glen Pool is general chairman of the revue. Mrs. Lillian McNutt and Mrs. Charles Wooley are in charge of advertising and Mrs. McNutt and Mrs. Olin E. Hinkle are in charge of publicity. Mrs. Frank Foster and Mrs. Ernest Gee are responsible for back-stage properties, and Mrs. R. A. Webb is musical director.

"Boy Emperor" to Take Office

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, March 8. (P)—Henry Pu-Yi, former "boy emperor" of China, who stepped down from the ancient "dragon throne" and went into exile as a bewildered child 20 years ago, arrived here today for his inauguration tomorrow as head of the New Manchurian federated state.

The former exile came just as a jauntily-dressed, self-assured young man ready to rule again the land from which three centuries ago his forefathers, the ancient Manchus, descended on China to establish a dynasty of which he himself was the last sovereign.

Five hundred flags of the new state flew from the locomotive of the special train of the South Manchurian railway as it pulled into the station here at 3 p. m. After greetings were exchanged, he was driven rapidly in an automobile through the Japanese railway town into the walled city where he took up his residence in the city hall which has been converted into a temporary presidential palace.

A magnificently draped chair was set up in the middle of a large room in the temporary palace today to serve as a substitute for the ancient "dragon-throne."

MILE LONG TUBE MUST BE KEPT IN NEAR VACUUM

PASADENA, Cal., March 8. (P)—Two scientists are working to ascertain the true speed of light by working with the patience of a tourist trying to cross Death Valley at night in an automobile with leaky tires.

"Every time something goes wrong in our mile-long vacuum-tube, we have to let the air in so we can get in and fix it," Dr. Francis G. Pease said today. "Then we have to wait 46 hours for the pump to reduce the tube to a near vacuum again."

Style Revue To Be Feature of Much Interest

CENTRAL BAPTIST WMS IN CHARGE OF PROGRAM

Members of the Business and Professional Women's club declared this morning that never had so interest been shown in a style revue here as had been shown for the one to be given tomorrow evening at 8:15 o'clock at La Nora theater. Especially is that statement true, it was said, on the part of the men.

Local merchants are cooperating in every way to make the show one of outstanding success. It was through their cooperation that made Sunday's special edition of the Pampa News possible for the Business and Professional Women's club, and it will be through their cooperation that the style revue will accent Pampa's reputation as a fashion center.

About 30 models, representing the following stores have been selected: Violet Shoppe, Gordon's Hayte Brothers, Keen and Thomas, Carter's, Murfee's, Doak's, Penney's, Mitchell's, Levin's, and Montgomery Ward.

HIGHIE CRITZ IS EXPECTED TO BOLSTER GIANTS' TEAM

SECOND SACK WILL NOT BE WEAK IN 1932

MCGRAW THINKS HIS HURLING TO BE BETTER

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES, March 8. (AP)—On Hughie Critz's slender right arm appears to rest hopes of the New York Giants to win their 13th National League baseball pennant this season.

The droll humorist from Mississippi, a great second baseman, has just about convinced Manager John McGraw and his team mates that the disturbing chapter of his baseball history, written during last season, will not be repeated in 1932.

This being the case, the mighty McGraw who has personally conducted ten championship tours, considers his pitching good in 1931, will be even more effective this year and that his hitting strength is concentrated in the right spots.

To say McGraw is pleased with the rapid fire infield made possible by Critz' presence isn't enough. He willingly states Bill Terry is the best first sacker in any league. Travis Jackson has demonstrated he will continue to be the great short fielder he was last season and Johnny Vergez, purchased a year ago from the Pacific coast league, is back at third.

Critz' presence in the infield allows Fred Lindstrom, 26, a heavy hitter to move into center field where he is badly needed. With no one disputing Melvin Ott's place in right field, McGraw needs worry only about the other outer garden spot.

Three veterans and an expensive rookie are on hand to fight it out for the remaining position. Eban Allen, Fred Leach and Charles Fulleis all hit better than 300 with the Giants a season ago to make it tough for Leonard Koenecke, a heavy batsman purchased from the Indians.

With an array of veteran hurling talent, including the best left handers in the league, it appears that youth can not be served on the club this season. McGraw has Fred Fitzsimmons, Carl Hubbell, Clarence Mitchell, Wilford Brundage, and Young Jim Mooney, not to mention the veteran Adolfo Luque, a great finishing hurler, obtained from Brooklyn.

The catching staff remains the same as last year with Bob O'Farrell, Francis Hogan and Francis Healy.

Cleveland Has Unusual Rookies

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 8. (AP)—The rookies are still the subject of great interest from the Cleveland Indians management.

Latest additions to this class is Seymour Droubay, graduate of the University of Utah, who is getting a look-over at shortstop. Manager Roger Peckinpaugh likes Droubay's chatter and his unusually fine throwing.

Another rookie who has shown well is Roy Hudson, formerly of the University of Michigan, who is getting a try-out at first base.

Luque Looks Good in Practice Games

LOS ANGELES, March 8. (AP)—Manager John McGraw has had time to review the work of his New York Giants in two games with the Chicago Cubs and on the whole he is pretty well satisfied.

Hit pitchers turned in eight scoreless innings, Walker and Hubbell accounting for three each and Adolfo Luque for the other two. Luque's work in stopping the Cubs in the ninth and tenth innings of Sunday's game was especially pleasing for the veteran is being groomed for a relief role exclusively.

George "Bo" Shepard, West Point forward, will coach basketball at North Carolina this year.

ENTRIES IN TOAD DERBY

Shown above are "Bar-B-Q" entry of Canary Sandwich shop, and "Go-Getter" entry of the City Food store in the heated toad derby to be staged by the Forty and Eight organization soon.

The big race for the dashing derbyists with the heavy horned toads is being sponsored by the Forty and Eight, whose members like the hot of England, will take a chance on anything from a whale to a frisky toad. There are conditions, rules, and regulations to be followed while the froggy fellows follow their faces in frisky ferocity it has been announced. For instance, competing toad thoroughbreds will face a barrier surrounding an eight foot circle. From this barrier they will crawl, creep, crunch, scurry, and scramble, wend stable of these horny racing sheikhs ed surface never meant for tumbling toads, to the rim of and outer circle twenty-five foot diameter.

A committee of competent judges will be on hand to decide the winner even though he wins by a horn to steal the thunder of the devotees of this sport of kings. The floor of course will be covered with mats except race officials and newspaper representatives before the starting gun is heard. Among the new entries we find

"Merrell" The Pampa Drug Stores are sponsoring this entry and his trainer, Bob Chafin used to have a large stable of these horny racing sheikhs. However, one day, Bob tells us, his racers began to sicken and die. All medical science seemed to be able to do nothing to help them. Finally the prescription department of the Pampa Drug stores put their heads together and the result was a concoction which they called "Merrell."

A few doses of this new discovery and the one remaining racer began to improve. Now Bob has entered him in the Forty and Eight toad derby and is expecting him to bring fame and fortune to the Pampa Drug Stores.

"Half Sole" Ah! here's a toad that would delight the heart of Sir Malcolm Campbell, for he is a winner. "Half Sole" is the property of the City Shoe Shop, 104 1-2 West Foster and is training under the supervision of Carroll Pullen. "Half-Sole" rider says, "I have great confidence in my mount. I feel as though he had a soul. I know he will last. I have never seen him down at the heels or with his tongue hanging out from exhaustion. He is tight-jaced and just the right size. I feel no other rider could steer him through to victory without pulling leather. Watch out for "Half-Sole" for I feel sure he will win."

"Go-Getter" "Go-Getter" is the entry of the City Food store, 122 West Foster, formerly operating as Piggly Wiggly No. 1, and his trainers are none other than A. B. Zahn and L. L. Nance. They are training "Go-Getter" to the tune of the bell on the cash register. When the bell rings he start at the front desk and tries to make a complete circuit of the store aisle before the bell rings again. So far he has failed to win the race but he is running the register a close second. Call 276 for more toad training ideas.

"Bar-B-Q" The Canary Sandwich shop, third door east of the Rex Theater is training "Bar-B-Q". He will be remembered as the toad who won the first prize and awarded "Bar-B-Q" "Bar-B-Q" you will remember crossed the line nose and nose with "Sleeping Poppy" at the same time carrying a ham and egg sandwich in his mouth. However the judges look into consideration the protruding sandwich and awarded "Bar-B-Q" first prize. Call 769 and ask Brownie Akers, manager of the Rex Theater for information as to "Bar-B-Q."

More entries will appear soon. Get your toad in training for the big derby and yourself for the big dance.

Wifty Cox, golf pro, is one of the few ex-sailors who stand out in the sport.

Baseball, wrestling, tennis, and track are being reviewed in athletic programs of Big Six conference schools.

Quail-Raising Profitable Pastime

Farm boys and girls of Texas may find a profitable venture in quail raising to release on their farms, leasing hunting rights, according to W. J. Tucker, state game commissioner at Austin. Here are some of the South Texas blue quail which can be obtained through county agents. They are as easy to raise as chickens, Tucker says.

HEINIE MANUSH HOLDING SELF OUT OF FOLD

THIS IS LAST DAY TO SIGN; GRIFFITH IS ANGRY

BILOXI, Miss., March 8. (AP)—The Washington Senators have an honest to goodness holdout and if Heinie Manush doesn't take advantage of the additional day of grace given him by President Clark Griffith it may go hard with the tardy outfielder.

Griffith proclaimed in no uncertain terms he would give Heinie, the highest-paid man on the team last year, no longer than today to sign up. After a reduced salary offer, conditioning at his own expense and fines "up to the limit of the rules" will be meted out. Griffith said Manush's case was simple: "He didn't play good ball and his contract has been cut."

Detroit Tigers to Use Rookies

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., March 8. (AP)—It's a team of recruits the Detroit Tigers are putting in the field this afternoon against the Seals of the Pacific Coast league in the first game of the spring training schedule.

Art Herring, starting pitcher, and Roy Johnson and Jonathan Stone, outfielders, are the only veterans. Manager Bucky Harris is anxious to see this year's crop of recruits under fire and he decided the best way to satisfy his curiosity was to get them into the game at the start.

Cub Recruits to Eat While Longer

SANTA CATALINE ISLAND, Calif., March 8. (AP)—Chicago Cub recruits today breathed more easily, buoyed up by the knowledge that they will continue to eat at the expense of the major league club at least until March 18.

Eight of them are scheduled to work for the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League, the junior varsity of the Wrigley organization, this summer and wondering who was to go had the youngsters worried. The veteran pitchers are getting Manager Rogers Hornsby's attention as he expects to use them in the revivals of the series with the New York Giants later this week.

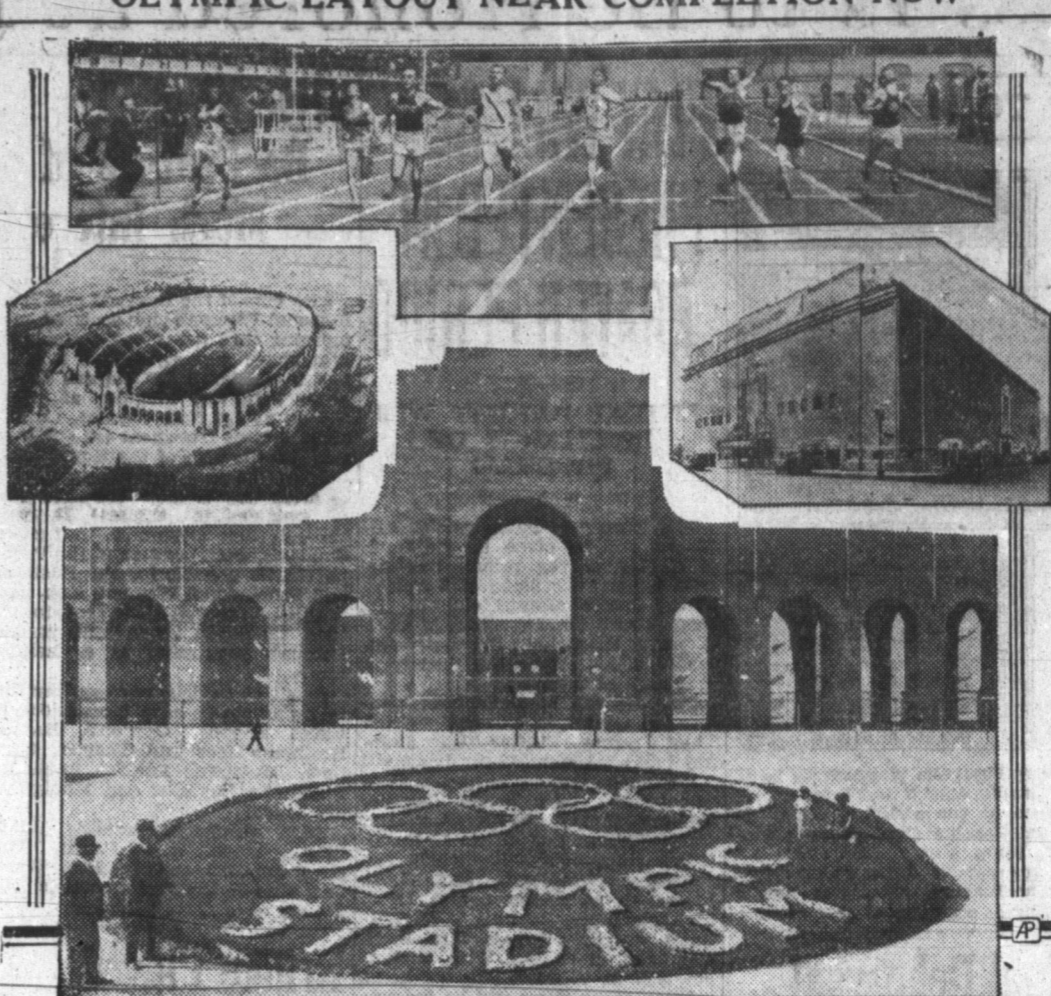

Inter-Club Game For White Sox

SAN ANTONIO, March 8. (AP)—Manager Lew Fonseca changed his mind and ordered an inter-club tilt for the Chicago White Sox today. The contest was scheduled for noon, leaving plenty of time afterward for routine affairs. The prospective infield of Lu Blue, Minter Hayes, Carey Selph, and Bill Cissell, was certain to start, but the outfield line-up had not taken form, and the pitching selections depended on how the hurlers fell.

The first football game between Auburn and Georgia was played in Atlanta, February 22, 1892.

E. G. Sarver of Stanberry, Mo., brought down a big Canadian goose with a target pistol this fall.

OLYMPIC LAYOUT NEAR COMPLETION NOW

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A five million dollar Olympic games setup, the lavishness of which the world has never known before, awaits only the finishing touches to be ready for the international contests which open here July 30.

The Olympic village, to consist of 800 buildings erected at an estimated cost of $500,000, is the chief bit of work the organizing committee, which has been operating for eight years, has left undone.

The swimming stadium, which will seat 10,000 persons, at a cost of $125,000, is nearing completion. The rowing course at Long Beach is now being dredged. The marathon course has yet to be surveyed and laid out. The cycling track in the Pasadena Rose Bowl is under construction.

Otherwise the facilities for the muted cost of $500,000, is the chief daily attendance of 400,000 persons, are ready to be turned over to the international committee tomorrow.

The Olympic stadium, pivotal point, where the greater share of the events will take place, is padlocked, ready to swing open when President Hoover makes his proclamation.

Here will be staged the ceremonies, the track and field championships, the gymnastics, the demonstration football and lacrosse games, and finals of the equestrian and field hockey events.

The Olympic auditorium, in which will take place the boxing, wrestling and weightlifting championships, can be made available on a moment's notice.

The State Armory with its $150,000 glass roof, is ready for the fencing events; the cross country cycling course is charted; the Riviera Olympic Polo field for the equestrian and modern pentathlon events is completed; the yachting courses are fixed; and the shooting range is ready for use.

The Olympic swimming stadium, scarcely more than a splash from the site of the major events, will be ready early in April and will be one

ATHLETICS ARE NOT LIKELY TO CHANGE STYLE OF PLAY

Victories Over Cardinals in Practice Show Power of Old System.

By ALAN GOULD Associated Press Sports Editor

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 8. (AP)—The victory of the Athletics over the world champion Cardinals in two out of three games of the spring "world" series has convinced the experts Connie Mack contemplates no alteration whatever in his club's tactics or style of play this year.

After losing the world championship last October, many felt Mack would make some readjustments, designed to produce more versatility in the team's attack. Instead he made it quite clear to me today he intends to base his hopes of a fourth straight pennant largely on the old combination of batting punch and pitching.

Where the Cardinals, in the three games played so far, put a premium on base running with the idea of forcing the breaks and setting opportunities, the Athletics braced themselves and slugged it out. The contrast in the styles of the two clubs has been quite as marked this spring as it was last fall, when Cardinal speed was a triumphant factor. The world champions have stolen five bases in the three games played in Florida; the Athletics none.

The Mackmen have outbatted their National League rivals in every paces with the mark of 296 and only 22 safe blows for the Cardinals.

George (Mule) Hnas, veteran centerfielder of the A's has been the gun with the showy batting figure of 538. For the Cards Jim Collins, sub-first baseman, top the list with 462.

Of the half dozen or more young pitchers tried so far by the pennant clubs, Lew Drause, 19-year-old right hander of the A's and James (Tex) Capeton of the Cardinals have done the best work.

The spring debut of Dizzy Dean was just a shower of Philadelphia home runs and the most highly touted of the rookie twirlers has yet to show how effective he can be.

BUFFS START TOURNEY AND TAKE VICTORY

DEFEAT KANSAS CITY'S ATHLETIC CLUB TEAM

KANSAS CITY, March 8. (AP)—The tall, gangling basketball players from West Texas Teachers college at Canyon accounted for the first big surprise of the amateur athletic union's national basketball tournament with a first-round victory here last night over the Kansas City Athletic club, a favorite.

Towering above the opposition, Fortenberry, Texas center said to be six feet eight inches tall, and Calvin forward, literally played over the heads of the K. C. A. C. cagers to win, 32 to 25.

The defending champion Henry team of Wichita, winner of the title the last two years, easily hurdled its first-round opponent, the Albert Cleaners from Cedar Rapids, Ia., 33 to 14.

In the second round Wednesday the Henrys meet the Brown Paper Mill team from Monroe, La., which defeated the Denver Piggly-Wiggly's, 26 to 21 yesterday.

Truth Furnishes Strange Drama

The truth provides a more tense, dramatic courageous entertainment than fiction.

The lawless West is shown "in the raw" in "Law and Order," the Universal drama which opened an engagement at the Rex theater Sunday. We do not think the screen has ever shown a more interesting or more realistic representation of the rugged days of the great American frontier.

The scenes of the picture are laid in Tombstone, Arizona, and the story deals with the struggle to bring about law and order in a town which is to a great extent under the control of the lawless element. "Law and Order" is more than a mere screen drama; based on fact it brings thrilling history to life. The story comes to a close in an exciting blaze of guns—and three men ride off toward Mexico.

The large cast is one of unusual excellence. Walter Huston plays the role of the fearless peace officer of the town; Harry Carey is seen as one of his old friends and assistants. All are exceptional in their characterizations, and fine work is done by Russell Hopton, Raymond Hatton, Andy Devine, Russell Simpson, and Ralph Ince.

"Law and Order" is a picturization of a novel by W. R. Burnett, and is said to have its basis in fact. Director Edward Gahn has made of it a picture which cannot fail to thrill and entertain you.

The spring debut of Dizzy Dean was just a shower of Philadelphia home runs and the most highly touted of the rookie twirlers has yet to show how effective he can be.

New Serial Presents Wife's Problem as Husband's Family Schemes

JANE ABBOTT'S LATEST STORY STARTS TODAY

READ INSTALLMENTS ON THIS PAGE TODAY

What should a wife do when she discovers her husband's family is determined to break up their marriage? Should she resign herself to the inevitable or fight for her home? That is the problem in "Kitty Frew," a new serial by Jane Abbott...

JANE ABBOTT

she married Garfield Frew of a wealthy and snobbish family. Instead of being welcomed as a bride might expect, she found a frigid reception.

Kitty was torn between the unreasonable love of youth and a common sense realization that the odds were against her. What she decides is a thrilling, modern story, told by Jane Abbott with a deep understanding of the problem.

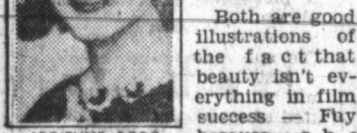

This is a story as real as life itself, a man-and-woman question that has destroyed many a romance before the honeymoon was over. Mrs. Abbott is the author of about 20 novels, many of these being stories for girls. She is a native of Buffalo and spent most of her childhood vacations on the freight boats commanded by her father, Captain Marcus M. Drake.

She was married in 1902 to a young Buffalo lawyer and did not start writing until 1918. Her success was almost immediate. The first generous installment of "Kitty Frew" appear on this page today.

Hollywood Sights

By ROBBINS COONS HOLLYWOOD—Ray Lathpiper, who won the Atlantic City beauty contest of 1925, was a fizzle as a movie star, and Adrienne Dore, who was a close runner-up to the winner, has taken seven years to get anywhere on the screen.

Both are good illustrations of the fact that beauty isn't everything in film success. Fly because she dropped out, and Adrienne because she stuck and went through the mill of hard knocks to develop something more than beauty. Beauty she still has, but no less a star than Ruth Chatterton, in whose picture she worked, says Adrienne can really act.

Adrienne, fair, blonde, slim with gray-green eyes or are they blue?—was 15 when her mother took her to Atlantic City for the contest, and she has been starring in film since, but it was only recently she gained the recognition of a contract with a major company.

RELEASED She had been a stock player at Universal, no contract but $30 a week, when the "Miss America" contest bid for her attention. She disregarded stage offers and went back there, under contract, but after seven months with no work in sight she asked for a release—rather her mother did.

SHE DIDN'T GIVE UP Then followed attempts to "break-in" at other studios, a little stage experience, a flyer in slap-stick comedy, anything that she could get before the cameras. An excellent player role in "The Wild Party," Clark Bow's first talkie, brought her good notices, but not a contract.

FORMER DEPUTIES CHARGED Other Officials Are Involved In Dallas Probe DALLAS, March 8. (AP)—Criminal charges have been filed against two former deputies in the district clerk's office here. M. V. Nogueira, former chief clerk and candidate for county clerk two years ago, was charged with making false entries in the account books. Henry L. Griss, former collector of costs, was charged with embezzlement. The alleged shortage was $4,843.18.

Many Interesting Sidelights on Kidnaping and Big Investigation

By the Associated Press MANSFIELD, Pa.—A crowd of curious watching for the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby to drop around a rot unnumbered feet for their patience. A note seized in Elmira, N. Y., told Col. Lindbergh to be at the Cross Roads Inn with $500,000 at 7 p. m. last night. The zero hour (the weather made the term doubly appropriate) came and went without any action.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The discussion about the kidnaping grew hot among a group of men sitting over coffee mugs in a lunch room. "It's an outrage," shouted George Mohr, 62, leaping to his feet. Then he slumped to the floor, dead.

HOFEWELL, N. J.—The Lindberghs in their sorrow do not forget the men helping to search for their baby. Big trucks carry them 400 sandwiches and 20 gallons of coffee daily and the Colonel pays the expense. The Hopewell restaurants are selling hot dogs for the first time—the result of newsmen's demands.

PATERSON, N. J.—The youngest "detective" on the kidnapers' trail has given up. The weather was too cold. Davis Adams, 11, ran away from his Brooklyn home four days ago to come here and hunt the culprit. His father found him and told him it was warmer at home.

PRINCETON, N. J.—"Anne's simply amazing," says Mrs. John Crier Hippen, wife of the president of Princeton, a close friend of the Lindbergh family. "She's a wonderful young woman. The interest and care she is taking in all those people in her home is remarkable."

Jail Break Is Found in Time

CONROE, March 8. (AP)—An attempt of Durrell Kendall, alleged murderer, and two fellow prisoners to saw their way out of the old Montgomery county jail yesterday was frustrated by Sheriff Ben Hicks. Kendall, Mississippi farm youth, was awaiting trial in the slaying of two members of a traveling minstrel troupe. Those occupying a cell with him were Earl Law, accused of wounding an aged grandmother here last week and a man held for Walker county officers.

GET COUNTER INJUNCTION

(AP)—Federal Judge Randolph Brant today granted the state a counter injunction against Eugene Constantine, east Texas oil operator, restraining him from operating wells in violation of the railroad commission's proration order of February 25.

HAS BAD RECORD PHILADELPHIA, March 8. (AP)—After charging Louis FINE, 50, with the trunk murder of Mrs. Mattie Schaaf, elderly Atlantic City rooming house owner, authorities began looking today into his past. They said they believed he had three wives and a long record of swindling women.

TWO FLIERS KILLED

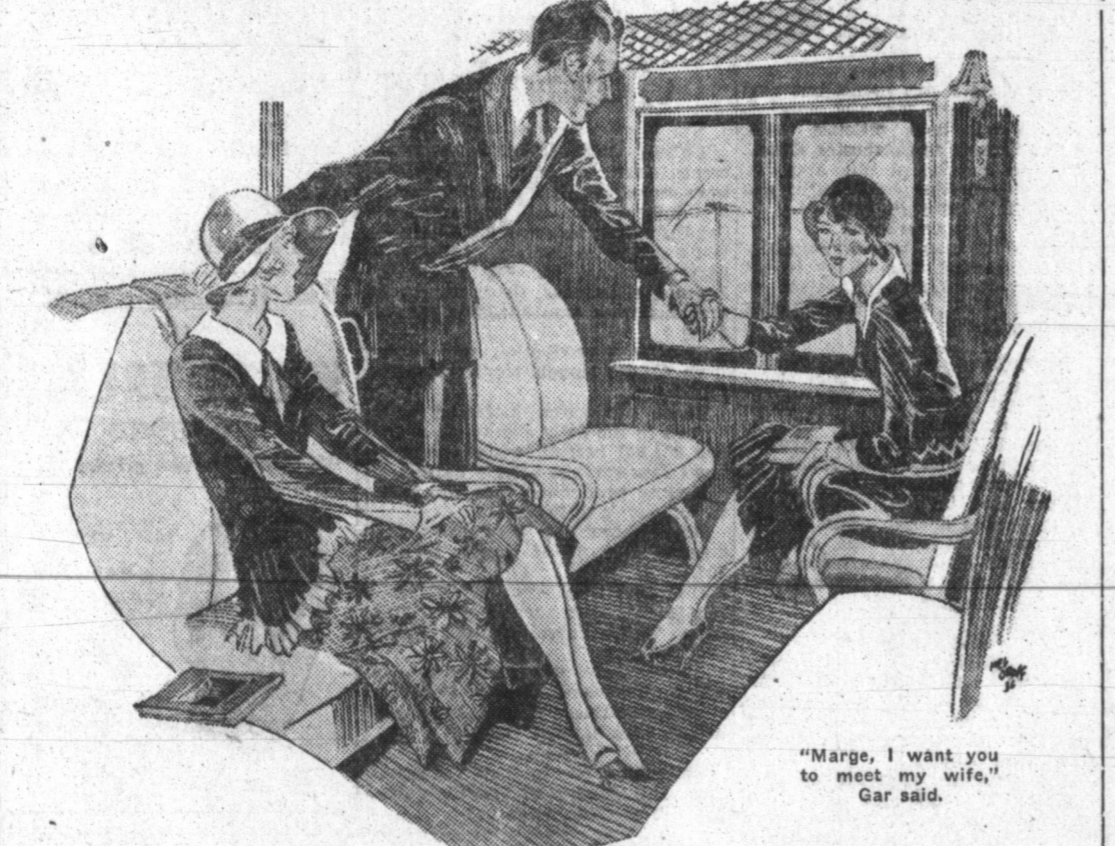

ST. LOUIS, March 8. (AP)—Two airplane pilots were killed and three other pilots injured when the plane in which they were practicing night landings crashed near the Curtiss-Sheppard air field in East St. Louis, early today.

The plane struck the skeleton of an old windmill about 500 yards from the edge of the field and crashed to the ground.

The dead: L. H. Atkinson, 35, and James S. Kirk, 36, both of Chicago. The injured: Ira Smalting, 33, Chicago, fractured leg; Sidney Cleveland, 34, Caldwell, Ia., bruises and shock; and Theodore Graf, 29, Chicago, cuts and bruises.

KITTY FREW by JANE ABBOTT

Chapter 1 MARRY IN HASTE It seemed to Kitty Frew that the wheels of the train beneath her were whirling along her spine. The world outside the car window rushed by in a blur. She felt a little giddy. She wished Gar would waken to talk to her, to tell her again that his family would adore her. But her young husband of a week was deep in sleep, sprawled in the Pullman chair next to her, unconscious of her growing panic. He was a good-looking young husband even so sprawled, and under other circumstances only to look at him would have made Kitty supremely happy and oblivious to everything except her pride and possession. But not now, not with the train carrying her nearer and nearer to Winton and Gar's family. They couldn't know much about her. She remembered that Gar had written to them little more than that he was married. "I'm not much on letters, Kit," he had not explained to her.

"Marge, I want you to meet my wife," Gar said. "They'll adore you, sweet. How could they help it?" And when he said things like that, with his arms close around her, she could believe him. He'd made her believe other things too. That they'd been waiting for one another since the beginning of time, that it was the simple working of Destiny that had brought him to visit Phil Corey in Bridgewater after graduation, when he'd stood the old boy off for so long—Destiny had been keeping her there for him, a precious one-hundred-and-ten pound bundle of woman, with hair that looked like honey and a tricked nose and eyes that were bluer than the bluest eyes he'd ever seen. "Let's drive over to Albany and tie up, Kit." But Kitty wouldn't think she was married if it weren't in church, her own church, before old Dr. Harwood, with her father and mother there, with Sally Withers standing up with her. Gar had yielded that much if she'd marry him at once. John Brandon, Kitty's father, had accepted Garfield Frew because the Coreys sponsored him. His family, Gar had explained, were on the ocean homeward bound from Europe, when they got back to Winton they'd be frightfully busy with everything and they'd be glad he hadn't waited. His father'd been counting on his taking a position in his office as soon as he'd finished college. And now, of course, he'd do that. Mary Brandon, Kitty's mother, had seen their love a beautiful thing. Kitty was just the age she had been when she married John Brandon. Children, she thought of Gar and Kitty as dear children. During that week of their honeymoon, spent in an unfrequented place in the Adirondacks, Kitty had had no room in her consciousness for anyone but Gar. But now, going to them, she saw his family a part of their future with which to reckon. That she might give them reality she brought her mind, now, to what Gar had told her of his people. His mother was frightfully busy, running committees and things like that, tremendously efficient, that sort. "Stunning looking and looks half her age." His father, Gar had said, worked like the devil; he was a director in almost every concern of any importance in Winton; he hated the social racket. Gar had a sister, two years older than he was. Carol was a good sort when she wasn't running after some queer fad or other. "While I'm laying bare the hard facts of my family, Mrs. Frew, I must tell you that I have a half-brother. Back in his obscure youth Dad married unwisely and David is the hard fruit of that union. I'm not at all hot about him. He doesn't live at home, prefers a mousy apartment where what he does is nobody's business—not that we are interested in the least." Kitty had not been interested then, and now she did not think of David. "What if they didn't adore her, that mother and father and sister went past him to Kitty and back again to his face, while the faintest questioning, half-amused, half incredulous, curled her lips. Gar had seen her look at Kitty. "Marge, I want you to meet my wife." He colored a little, laughed. "It's no joke. I'm married—been married a whole week. We're going home now." The girl gave the slightest nod toward Kitty. She feigned astonishment and hurt, sinking back in her chair with a deep, reproachful, upward look in her eyes for Gar. "Gar, where, when—how?" "Oh, up in Bridgewater—ever hear of the place? Phil Morey lives there. You've met him at college. Guess we cheated the society sheet. They'd give a good deal to lay their pens to an account of our wedding. Simple stuff, all right, preacher one of these lick dominies, wheezy organ, flowers out of my father-in-law's garden, picked by the bride and groom. Won't Red and the rest of the bunch get a great laugh out of it? But, believe me, they'll find Kitty a peach—" Gar's tone was warm with feeling, but he was looking at Margery Crosby, not at Kitty. And Kitty had not heard his tribute. She was confused with shame for Gar. How could he speak so flippantly of that moment that had been so solemn, so beautiful for

Chapter 2 A LONELY HOMECOMING

BRIDGEWATER made no distinction of wealth. John Brandon owned and ran the general store which his grandfather had established and which netted him just about enough to support his family in the rambling old house his grandfather had built but he ranked in social prestige with James Corey, Bridgewater's banker and man of affairs. Kitty Brandon, because she was a Brandon and because she was as pretty

"My wife isn't going to slave in a kitchen." "But, Gar, we wouldn't want anyone else around us. How much will you earn, Gar?" "Oh, I guess Dad will start me with at least seventy-five a week." And that had seemed, a fortune to Kitty. She had calculated swiftly; out of it they would save something. "I don't intend to stick all my life to Dad's business. I'd like to get into the diplomatic service. Or some big brokerage firm in New York—w'd have an apartment on Park Avenue, Kit." Whatever Gar wanted to do he could do, Kitty knew.

On their last night at Panther Mountain they had sat on a pinnacle of rock to watch the moon rise. "Tomorrow at this time you'll be in Winton, Kit. You'll like it." "I'll like it anywhere with you, Gar." She had put her head on his shoulder, soberly contented in their closeness. It would be always like this, she had thought, wherever they were. And now, the very next day, riding with Gar in the taxi from the station, she had lost something of that beautiful contentment. She was thinking of that tone in Gar's voice when he had talked to and blithe, had moved securely in the young life of the community. It never had mattered that she had little money to spend on her clothes. Her friends, were the friends of her childhood; closest of these were Sally Withers and Phil Corey. "Maybe one of us will marry Phil, some day," Sally had said, once. "You can!" Kitty's answer had been prompt. "I'm going to marry a man with dark hair and dark eyes. He's coming from away somewhere." And then, one June day when Kitty was twenty, Phil Corey had come from college bringing Garfield Frew her with him. Within an hour of his arrival he had taken her guest over to the Brandons. They'd found Kitty on the porch picking over cherries for a pie, a big apron tied over her flowered print dress, her slim, bare arms and fingers stained crimson, her hair deeply golden where the sun fell on it, her blue eyes, a little blur in her genuine delight at seeing Phil. The next day Gar was sprawled on the Brandon porch as if, like Phil, he had lived next door to all his life. At the end of the week he was telling her that she was the only girl he'd ever been crazy about; she was different, that was it. He was fed up on the prom-trotters. Did Phil sit at anywhere with her? Well, then, she was his. During Gar's whirlwind wooing Kitty had not thought of any material advantages she might gain in marrying him. That he was the son of Dalton Frew, of Frew and Winters, grain merchants, meant nothing to her. She had not the vaguest idea just what grain merchants were. But of every detail of Gar's handsome features, his charm of manner, his carefully careless collegiate attire she was always ecstatically aware. He was the dark-haired, dark-eyed lover of her girlish dreaming. "I'll love keeping house, Gar. Mother always said I was a very good housekeeper." Kitty had said during their honeymoon on Panther Mountain.

SYNOPSIS: "Two children married." So Kitty Brandon's mother thinks at the wedding of Kitty and Garfield Frew. Gar has just finished college and hopes to get a job with his father, director in most of the important concerns in Winton. He takes Kitty away from her home in a small town and carries her off to stay with his family. Kitty is nervous about meeting them, especially Gar's mother. Her worries increase when on the train they meet Marge Crosby, a very sophisticated member of Gar's crowd at home, who deplores her to Gar and snubs Kitty. Gar, high-hearted and easy going, does not appreciate Marge's attitude toward Kitty nor Kitty's disturbed mind. Marge's smart outfit makes Kitty feel that her own clothes are constricted. When they arrive at Gar's home, the butler informs them that his mother will see them at tea. "Why be your mother's enemy," Kitty says.

Chapter 3 "THIS IS YOUR WIFE?"

"OH, that. You don't know the Mother yet." "Probably she's running some very important meeting at this very moment. You're going to be crazy about her, Kit. But I don't like the idea of bringing you up here. I'll talk that over with the Mother—" Kitty roused to look about her, a sudden tenderness welling in her eyes. "This is your own room, Gar? Your little-boy's room?" He had to kiss her for the tone in her voice. "Well, I moved up here after I graduated from a nurse but I don't think you'll find any toys about." He surveyed his possessions proudly, tennis rackets, foils, boxing gloves, a varied collection of trophies, innumerable framed photographs of college groups, girls, dogs, horses, speed boats. "Pound came in, then, coughing discreetly. Under Gar's direction he deposited the bags and retreated. "Gar, don't ask your mother to change us. This—this is nice." Her tone was pleading, her eyes pleaded. She could not explain that she felt more secure here in this room that was Gar's, more his, because the fear of sharing him was too newborn a thing within her to voice it. "Here we are, Kit! Some little dump, isn't it?" His voice was frankly proud. He did not notice that Kitty made no answer. He did not use a key. He rang the bell impatiently. And after what seemed to Kitty a long interval the door was opened by a white-headed man in somber purple livery. "Hello, Pound, how are you? This is my wife. The mother in?" Kitty saw the man flash her a look of friendly interest. He grinned at Gar even while he touched his forehead in formal salute. "Mrs. Frew will see you at tea, at half past four, Mr. Gar, she said. She said she—that you were to use your old room." "She did, did she? What's the matter with putting my wife in the blue room?" Gar frowned though his brow cleared almost at once. "Oh, well, she'll fix us up later. Come alone, Pound, get this luggage up." Turning to Kitty he swung her unceremoniously into his arms and ran up the winding stairway ahead of the servant. He did not put her down until he had mounted another flight of stairs to the third floor where in a wide room he deposited her in a deep leather chair. "Gar!" She dug her face in his shoulder. She laughed but her laugh was shaky. "Gar, I'm terribly scared, coming here. Maybe your mother's angry. If you'd come home without me, she'd have been here—" "Copyright, Jane Abbott"

Mrs. Frew gently disengaged herself from Gar's arms. "And this is—your wife?" she asked.
