Several Killed and Many Injured in Cuban Temblors Early Today

The cost of living, a U. S. department of labor bulletin advises, fell 9.3 per cent in 1931. It is not 32.7 below that of June, 1920, but 45.8 per cent above 1918. Food declined 16.6 per cent in 1931, clothing 11.4 per cent, house furnishings, 11.2 per cent, and rent 2.5 per cent.

It is claimed that the slump has restored family life. Certainly unemployment has shown the interdependence of family units. Home making was never on a more companionable basis, since both of the contracting parties assume responsibility for its support in many cases. The home, after all, is the most stable unit for the consideration of commerce and finance. Without a home, there are restricted sales in the things which make houses homelike.

Stanford university requires that co-eds, wishing to go canoeing, to demonstrate that they can retrieve an auto tire from 13 feet of water and swim 100 yards. . . . Few educational institutions take as much pains to teach the graduates to swim in the world of business and hard knocks to which they must make their way. With the exception of the professions, the jobs to which students go usually demand a broader knowledge of every-day business customs than colleges provide. And the depression has shown that that man is most fortunate who is well trained enough to fill any one of a number of positions which might be open to him, but not to ordinary laborers.

Tom Blanton, congressman from Abilene, was the subject of a discourse in this column a few weeks ago. He merits a few words today in connection with his charge that Uncle Sam is sending warships to China to protect "a few Chinese merchants." He should know that Americans have 115 millions invested in Shanghai alone. The Southern Methodist church has spent millions there in missions, schools and hospitals. And major oil companies, in which Mr. Hoover has a paternal interest, are large investors. There is much more at stake than Mr. Blanton has mentioned. But, being Mr. Blanton, he had to break into print somehow. We have no quarrel with his criticism, but rather for the reasons he gave in support of it.

Gray county voters are prepared to voice their opinions at the polls. And right well they may. There is safety in numbers. There can be no clique domination

HELP IS BEING RUSHED FROM HAVANA IN PLANES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. (P)—Navy airmen estimated 10 killed and 200 injured today by the earthquake at Santiago, Cuba, and reported all of the more than 700 Americans there safe.

Vice Admiral Willard dispatched the destroyer Hopkins from the American base at Guantanamo carrying medical aid to the stricken.

An estimate to the state department from the Havana embassy placed the injured at 300. Conditions were described as "reassuring."

During the fifth quake, the roof of the maternity ward of the Civil hospital fell, killing many women and children. The fifth quake was less severe than the one preceding it but was believed to have been felt over a much larger area.

Matias Zaga, Santiago, correspondent for Diario de La Marina of Havana, said two distinct shocks previously had leveled principal buildings of the city and crushed scores of persons beneath the debris.

Comes at Night
The first shock struck at 1:40 a. m., he said, while the city slept, causing death and destruction thru the business and residential sections. The terrified populace scarcely had caught its breath before a second shock caused more damage than the first. Survivors immediately began frenzied search for the injured whose cries were heard above the umblings of the disaster.

COUNTY ATTEMPTS TO PROVE THAT SMITH'S LAND DRAINED NATURALLY FROM LARGE AREA

EIGHT WITNESSES ARE USED TO ANSWER CHARGE DAMAGES ARE AT ISSUE
SHARP EXCHANGES ON TESTIMONY ARE HEARD

Gray county through eight witnesses attempted to prove yesterday afternoon and this morning that the depression in the land of Alex Smith east of Pampa was a natural drain for surrounding farms, and that the county's act in deepening ditches and removing a dam did not damage the land.

Mr. Smith is suing the county for $4,000, claiming that when a dam was removed in the depression adjoining the land, water drained from nearby lakes and flooded his farm and decreased its value.

The testimony of Commissioner Lewis O. Cox of precinct No. 2 featured the testimony yesterday. The commissioner and plaintiff's attorney, W. M. Lewright engaged in a sharp verbal tilt which drew a word of admonition from Judge E. F. Ritchey.

Says Highway Muddy
Mr. Cox stated that when he became commissioner, water from nearby lakes drained into the road and that the highway stood full of water on account of the dam and the inadequate barrow ditches. He said he widened the ditches and removed the dam. All county witnesses testified that the depression in the Smith land was a natural drain.

Dud Baggerman on cross-examination stated that before the dam was removed and the barrow ditches deepened water in the L. B. Blanton lake south of the Smith land was over three feet deep and that during the last year it was less than 6 inches deep. The plaintiff attempted to show that the water from the Blanton lake and other lakes drained across the Smith land.

Charlie Barrett testified that he couldn't see any difference in the depth and width of the depression now than what it always had been, but that he didn't walk over the field. County witnesses yesterday included N. L. Welton, Mr. Baggerman, Eugene Shackleton, E. H. Baird, who formerly owned the

REJECT TALK

The Texas Taxpayers association branded as "political harangue" a speech made by E. G. Senter, founder of the organization, and rejected it, at a meeting of the association held in Fort Worth last week.

His speech asserted that a large number of legislators are on the payroll of special interests, that the "conduct of the last legislature, with a few exceptions, differed but little in moral ethics from the exploits of Nero, who fiddled while Rome burned," and that the governor's salary should be the highest paid anyone employed in public office in Texas.

FLU EPIDEMIC HERE MENACE

Many Cities Report That School Children Are Being Stricken.
Warnings were given by Supt. R. B. Fisher and by the city health department this morning regarding the sudden influenza epidemic in Pampa. There are several hundred cases in the city, and unless every precaution is taken there will be more, it was said.

About 200 children were absent from school this morning because of influenza or severe colds. Superintendent Fisher said, and declared the most of these cases were influenza. "This week, the situation has grown serious," the superintendent continued, "and if it becomes worse, it will be necessary to close the schools."

Use gargles and other preventatives regardless of whether or not you have a cold," urged both Mr. Fisher and members of the health department, "and don't let influenza spread any further." The same advice is being given in the schools to all pupils. Some of the

Road Building Is Advanced to Give Work to Jobless

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. (P)—Democratic leaders in the senate today agreed to offer a $750,000,000 road construction and unemployment relief measure as a substitute for the $375,000,000 bill for direct aid to the jobless.

The democratic steering committee drafted a bill to provide $375,000,000 for road construction and $375,000,000 for loans to states to aid them in relieving distress among the unemployed on a promise to repay.

The decision was reached just before renewed appeals were made in the senate for action on the LaFollette-Costigan bill to supply $375,000,000 of federal funds for direct relief.

In the proposal, the $375,000,000 for road construction would be available without being matched by state funds as normal federal appropriations for roads are.

The $375,000,000 for relief would be loaned to states under the pledge of the governors to seek legislation for its repayment.

Sawing out the bars of his death cell, in the Bexar county jail at San Antonio, Pete McKensie, slayer of two police officers, escaped by climbing down a rope made of bed clothes and wire. At left is McKensie before he made his escape. Center is the rope he used to effect escape, pulling in the window from which he sawed the bars. Right is his cell door, to which officers believe he made a key. McKensie escaped the electric chair two years ago on an insanity plea after killing Sam Street, a San Antonio detective. Previously he had been given 99 years for killing an El Paso policeman. He is now under arrest in Missouri.

COLONIAL TEA ATTENDED BY SEVENTY-FIVE PERSONS

BUCKLER HOME IS SETTING FOR LOVELY EVENT HELD BY EPISCOPALIANS ON TUESDAY

WASHINGTON HONORED THROUGH VARIED PROGRAM

Homage was paid to the first president of the United States at a beautiful colonial tea given by the Women's auxiliary of the Episcopal church yesterday afternoon in the home of Mrs. C. P. Buckler. Seventy-five persons attended.

As a result of the silver offering taken at the tea, the Episcopal church building fund will be enlarged, and Mrs. William M. Craven president, expressed the appreciation of the auxiliary to all who aided in making the event a success.

A large picture of Washington, beside which was a United States flag hung over the mantle, and flags were crossed above the dining room doorway. On the piano were lamps decorated with silhouettes of George and Martha Washington. Adding to the effectiveness of the event were lovely Colonial costumes worn by auxiliary members.

As guests arrived, they were greeted by Mrs. Craven, Mrs. Buckler, and the Rev. and Mrs. Newton C. Smith. They registered at a candle-light table at which Mrs. E. H. Hamlett officiated.

Tea was poured by Mrs. M. K. Brown and Mrs. S. G. Surratt, and was served with sandwiches and cakes, iced with cherries and lemons, by Mrs. Jack Cunningham, Mrs. Paul Jones, Mrs. W. S. Kiser, and Mrs. Kelly.

Wheat "Season" Is Very Deep

It's been a long time since the wheat lands of the Pampa territory have had as deep a season as they have now, according to County agent Ralph B. Thomas and wheat farmers of the community.

The moisture goes all the way down, Mr. Thomas said. He said the land has a bottom season. A farmer reported that he dug a deep hole this week and never went beyond moisture. The season in wheat lands is always deeper than in pasture lands.

Although the last month was a deep month as far as wheat growth was concerned, the wheat is farther along than it was this time last year. January cold weather prevented much growth, and the wheat required little moisture. It was estimated that the wheat will not need any more moisture for another month.

Fall To Fulfill Term In Prison

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. (AP)—Albert B. Fall must stay in prison to the bitter end of the term imposed on him for accepting a $100,000 bribe while secretary of the interior. Last night the federal parole board declined to shorten his sentence of a year and a day, plus $100,000 fine. The two men and one woman who compose the board announced their decision with the observation that Fall's release would be "unjustifiable and incompatible with the welfare of society."

Fall, 70 years old, is in the New Mexico state penitentiary at Santa Fe, the first cabinet member in the history of the nation to be convicted of crime. Allowed time off for good behavior his term will end May 8, but either the fine must be paid in full or he must take a pauper's oath, or he must remain incarcerated for an extra 30 days.

SMALL THEFTS ARE REPORTED

While the Kiwanis bridge tournament was in progress last night at the Majestic auditorium, thieves worked successfully among the automobiles parked in front and at the side.

From a coupe belonging to Frank McNeill, two men's hats and two men's overcoats were stolen. The glass in the door of T. W. Barnes car was smashed and a pair of men's gloves, a screw driver and a flash light were taken.

C. A. (Jack) Mason's 1930 model Buick sedan was stolen for several hours before it was found parked. Nothing was taken from it.

SCHOOL TAXES PARTIALLY PAID

Payment of school taxes was brisk during the last few days of January and large sums received during that time raised the total per cent collected to 77, according to Joe M. Smith, business manager of the Pampa Independent school district.

About $2,000 remains to be collected. School taxes this year amounted to $27,116. Mr. Smith expects about $20,000 of the delinquent amount to be paid this month. Last year on Feb. 1, 94 per cent of the school taxes had been collected. The school system will be able to operate this year without a deficit, but if all taxes are not paid the budget cannot be met.

Soup Dish Will Admit Person To Local Sing-Song

A soup dish, a cup towel, a fork, or a spoon—any one of these will admit a person to the old-fashioned sing-song and party to be held next Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at Merten school. The articles will be used in serving lunches to the school children, the serving having been taken as a project by the Parent-Teacher association.

Songs will be led by Tom Alford, and "parlor games" including, perhaps, "spelling bee," will be conducted. Plans for the event were made by the Parent-Teacher association at a meeting yesterday afternoon at the school.

A program included the following: Song, "The Wind," by second grade pupils; five readings, "Hearts Like Doors," by Doris Swearingen, "When at Once a Truth You've Told" by Loretta Bynum, "I Love You, Mother," by John Wayne Browning, "By the Seaside," by John Carter, "The Months," by Jean Alford; song, "America," by all; prayer, Mrs. Tom Alford.

Mrs. Hargis was leader of a study of providing for advancement and higher life needs. Expenditures for individuals was discussed by Mrs. C. B. Haney. She advocated a private room for the children, private car for pleasure, including, among other things, pleasure trips, picnics, and carefully selected movies.

Planning for education was the subject used by Mrs. J. W. Browning. When boys and girls desire a college education, it should not be denied them, for said, but they should be compelled to attend college. Vocational schools often are to be preferred. In discussing spiritual and moral growth, Mrs. Tom Alford stressed the importance of Sunday school and church.

Mrs. J. B. Townsend gave an account of new laws made at a meeting of the district board of managers in Amarillo.

Three visitors, Mrs. J. Frank Murry, Mrs. J. B. Townsend, and Mrs. T. M. Sanders, and 25 members attended.

Farmer May Die Following Attack

LUBBOCK, Feb. 3. (AP)—B. F. Drigger, 74, was in a critical condition with a fractured skull as a result of an attack made on him yesterday at his farm home near Whitarral. A much younger transient cotton picker was accused of attacking the aged farmer with an ax. He was jailed at Levelland, charges being withheld pending the outcome of Drigger's injury.

Drigger was brought to a Lubbock sanitarium, where the attending physician said the chance for his recovery was slight. He and the younger man, with their families, had been living in the same house. Officers said differences over possession of the house led to the assault.

Cattle Rustlers Using Automobiles

AURORA, Ill., Feb. 3. (AP)—The 1932 model cattle rustler rides in an automobile, not astride a horse, and hauls his rustled beaves away in a motor truck, the county grand jury has decided.

The grand jurors returned indictments yesterday charging Charles Boone, Tom Boone, John Fisher and Ray Somers, all of St. Charles, Ill., with rustling.

They were accused of hauling hundreds of head of livestock away from farms in their motor truck and selling them in northern Illinois markets.

SERVICES ARE CONDUCTED AT LOCAL CHURCH

CANDLEMAS CEREMONY ATTENDED BY CATHOLICS

The usual Candlemas observance was held by Father Joseph Wonderly yesterday morning at the 7:30 mass at Holy Souls church. This ceremony consists of the blessing of the candles that will be used in the official church services throughout the year. It is performed each year at the feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary. On that day the church commemorates the incident in the life of the Holy Family when Mary, according to the Jewish law, presented herself at the temple and made the usual offering of the poor, two turtle doves, in conjunction with the rite of purification which followed childbirth.

According to ancient custom, Catholics procure on this day the blessed candles they may need for devotional purposes in their homes and at the same time make an offering as they are able for the candles that are used in public services.

Closely associated with the ceremony on Candlemas day is the blessing of St. Blaise that was given this morning. According to legend, St. Blaise was a French bishop who was appealed to by a mother to heal her child of a throat ailment. The saint imparted his blessing, and through the power of God the cure was effected. The church advocates the reception of this blessing by all, regardless of religious affiliation, provided it be received in a devotional manner and devoid of superstition.

The blessing was given at the 7:30 mass this morning and will be given in conjunction with benediction services in the evening. It also will be given at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The afternoon service is for mothers and smaller children, as well as all others who cannot attend to other services.

Impersonation. Pampa NEWS: Governor Caulfield of Missouri has been asked to grant "complete freedom" to a 90-year-old man who, supported by a delegation of citizens from Excelsior Springs, claims to be Jesse James.

This thing is going a trifle too far. Somebody is always bobbing up in this or that part of the country, claiming to be somebody else. An Oklahoma medicine show mummy is the corpse of John Wilkes Booth. The 90-year-old Missourian is Jesse James. Historians seek to prove that a rum drinking Carolina school teacher was Michel Ney. It is vicarious fame much akin to that sought by the unaccountable numbers who send perfectly reliable poetry written by perfectly reliable poets to newspapers and magazines for publication under their own signatures. Note that the old gentleman who thinks he is Jesse James does not ask the privilege of setting any of the late Jesse's accounts. What he wants is the desperado's reputation without his accountability. Governor Caulfield is said to be in a quandary as to what to do. It is perfectly simple. Tell the old gentleman it is all right for him to be Jesse James and if he will turn over anything he has in worldly goods to liquidate some of Jesse's nefariously contrived obligations, he can say he is Jesse. Anybody that wants to be Sub S. P. on the first of any month can. State Press, Dallas NEWS.

Looks Like A Break. When all is said, the evidence of a genuine break between the two is quite convincing. Testimony has come to this writer, from both sides and through trusted channels, that when Roosevelt and Smith recently lunched together neither mentioned politics. That, in itself, would seem highly extraordinary.

It can be said, too, on good authority, that Roosevelt's most trusted lieutenants have no idea whatever of Smith's real intentions. Finally, although he said after the 1928 defeat he was "finished" with running for office, Smith rea lot if the nations had the time, power, and money to disarm the orient and let the yellow men go back to bows and arrows and knives. The time was when the Chinese, seeing a fire, would chant loudly to drive away the fire spirits.

Disarmament would mean

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington) A good many democrats, heretofore but mildly curious, are beginning to show real concern over the great Smith-Roosevelt mystery.

For months it has been taken for granted by experienced politicians that nothing genuinely serious had come between Governor Roosevelt and his own political companion, former Governor Smith.

Whatever had happened, it was assumed Smith would go no further than to tacitly disapprove of the Roosevelt presidential aspirations. Present signs that Smith actually intends to be at least a reception candidate himself put an entirely new face on the situation.

There are those who even foresee a major battle between him and Roosevelt, ending in the destruction of whatever chances either may have had, and leaving the party again quarreling and nerve-shaken.

For few party leaders believe Smith could be renominated, and few believe Roosevelt could be nominated over Smith's open opposition. It so happens that Smith is reckoned the one candidate who could hurt Roosevelt most, and Roosevelt the one who could hurt Smith most.

When the consuming democratic desire for harmony in 1932 is considered, it is easy to see why intense pressure is about to be applied to develop just what the Roosevelt-Smith tiff is all about, and whether something effective can't be done about it.

Nothing Authentic. It is not that gossip is lacking as to the true inwardness of the situation between these two old friends. You can hear a dozen "inside stories" any day, but when you have sifted them there is one inescapable conclusion.

It is that the amount of authentic information abroad could be put easily into a thimble. Strangely enough, several current explanations of the mystery hinge on a supposition that there is no mystery and no estrangement at all.

One story is that it is all a clever game to benefit Roosevelt by keeping Smith silent until the anti-Smith elements have been safely enlisted, at which time Smith is to announce he was for Roosevelt all the time.

Another is that Smith is to be the beneficiary; that being unable to get another nomination openly, his friends are seeking to line up delegates under the Roosevelt banner and use them in due course for Smith.

One explanation is that Smith merely is trying to drive Roosevelt into a more forthright declaration against prohibition. Another is that Roosevelt has disappointed Smith by not consulting him enough about New York state issues. Some say, too, that Smith merely sees a democratic victory this year, and feels he is entitled to the fruits of it.

These are busy days for Oscar... with his pal, the doodle of the doodles, sick in bed...

NO PENALTY ON CAR LICENSES

Those motorists who don't have a pay day until next Saturday, or just couldn't rake up the cash before Monday to buy an automobile license, were glad to learn today that Tax Collector T. W. Barnes is not charging a penalty for licenses purchased this week.

Mr. Barnes announced Saturday night that he would give the delinquent motorists Monday to register their vehicles. Then he learned some things that decided to give them the rest of this week.

Approximately 3,700 of the motor vehicles in the county have been registered. There are about 7,000 subject to registration.

Clemency For Dogs Is Exhausted Now

Chief of Police J. I. Downs has found a hard boiled dog catcher in C. D. Holmes and that worthy has started his work with a bang.

He has 12 of the finest looking "hound dogs" a person ever saw in the pound ready to be shot tomorrow, when the three-day confinement is up. When the catcher makes a haul he keeps the dogs three days so that the owners can get them out by having them vaccinated and buying licenses.

February was the last day of clemency for dogs to be vaccinated and tagged, and that date has not been extended. "Only 40 of the umpteen hundred dogs running around the city have been tagged," Chief Downs said this morning. "Or that number only three have been females."

Buffalo Wallow Battle East Of Here Narrated

Local Man Describes One of Greatest Fights in American History.

By T. J. ELDRIDGE

The year 1874 was an active and memorable one because of the Indian warfare in Western Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle, and this story concerns what is known as the Buffalo Wallow fight which took place on Sept. 12, 1874.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles in his Indian warfare had pushed out into the Texas Panhandle, and was at the time camped on McClellan creek some 20 or 25 miles southeast of the present site of Pampa. His base was at Fort Supply in the Indian territory. It became necessary for him to send dispatches to the fort, and he chose two of his scouts and four enlisted men to carry them. The scouts were Billy Dixon and Amos Chapman, and the four others were Sergeant Woodhull, Peter Rath, George W. Smith and John Harrington.

Traveled at Night

On account of the great danger from hostile Indians, the men traveled by night, and just at sunrise of the second morning out, at a point between the Washita river, and Gageby creek, about 18 miles southeast of Canadian or Dr. Teas' ranch they ran into a large band of Kiowa and Comanche warriors. The Indians immediately surrounded them and began to pour in a deadly fire. The white men dismounted, and George Smith was given charge of the horses, which had strapped to their backs all the supplies, including their water canteens, and their ammunition, save only what they had on their persons.

At the first round of the Indians, Smith fell on his face mortally wounded, and the horses stampeded and ran away, carrying with them all their supplies.

Attackers Scattered

The Indians came down the slope from the east, with lances drawn, headed straight for the five men, who, with nerves of steel and unflinching aim picked off the leaders, causing those in the immediate rear to waver to a larger circle. They fired at the little band of brave men as they dashed by on their fast running steeds. Time and time again they charged, and each time they were met by the bullets from members of the little band, who by this time were all wounded, three of them seriously.

The Indians would swing around a high hill out of range to the east, and there gather their forces for the next attack. Little dreaming of the kind of men with whom they had to deal.

The white men would hold their fire until they were sure, taking no chances, as they had a limited amount of ammunition. Truly this was the most heroic battles ever fought on the American continent, and against the greatest odds. Thirty of five men out on the open prairie with not even the native grass to protect them, it having been previously burned off by the Indians, fighting not less than 125 warriors armed to the teeth with firearms as good as their own, and not a thing to protect them against the bullets, and the onrush of these Indians.

At the Adobe Walls fight, there were 28 men and one woman in that historic battle, but they had thick walls to protect them, and plenty of ammunition. At the Alamo, one of the great battles of American history, where the dauntless Davy Crockett and his brave associates fought and died, they had walls to protect them, but a Buffalo Wallow fight, they had not one thing to protect them, and a limited amount of ammunition. The battle raged on since a little after daylight. At noon, their condition was getting so desperate—fighting and bleeding without one drop of water in the hot September sun—that it became apparent that they had to make some kind of change, or they soon would be killed.

Ran to Wallow.

Billy Dixon ran for what looked like a small buffalo wallow, and after much effort, they all got into the wallow except Amos Chapman, and George Smith. As Smith had not moved since falling, he was thought to be dead. They called to Chapman to come on to the wallow. He called back and told them that he could not walk, as his knee was shot to splinters. Billy Dixon then ran out to where Chapman was, and amid a hail of bullets, carried him to the wallow.

The men began to dig up the sandy earth with their knives, and to throw it up with their hands, thereby lowering their bodies to some extent. The fight was continued, the men almost dying of thirst, undisturbed about 3 o'clock in the afternoon a Panhandle storm came up. In the west there appeared a black cloud. The lightning flashed, and the thunder reverberated, and the rain fell in torrents, and notwithstanding the thirsty condition of the sandy soil, water gathered in the wallow and the men slaked their thirst with the water made red by their own blood. The wind suddenly shifted to the north, and a cold biting rain set in, chilling the men to the bone. The Indians being driven off by the cold rain, the men found to their surprise that George Smith was not dead. They moved him into the wallow, and found that he was shot thru the left lung. That night his spirit took its flight into a land where wars do not disturb.

Indians Waited

Just before dawn a memorable 12th of September, the Indians could be seen gathered in bunches, sitting on their ponies with their blankets drawn around them, just out of rifle range. It became necessary for the wounded men to have some kind of bed to keep them off the cold wet ground. The grass had been previously burned off, this difficult problem was solved by gathering tumble weeds that had blown in from a distance, and a bed for the wounded men was constructed in the wallow out of these weeds.

With Indians all around them, and all of them wounded, and without food or sufficient clothing, ammunition almost gone, their men's condition was truly pitiable. A black night settled down on them, and it was decided to send one of their number to Fort Supply, some 75 miles away. It was up to Billy Dixon or Peter Rath to go, as the two were wounded less severely than any of the others. They both offered to go, but the wounded men insisted on Billy Dixon remaining with them, so Peter Rath started in the blackness of the night, and after wandering around for two hours, he came back and reported that he could not find the trail that led to Supply. Early next morning Billy Dixon started for Supply. About a mile out he found the trail, and after traveling a short distance he saw what he at first thought to be a band of Indians, but after careful observation he saw that they were United States soldiers. He fired his gun to let them know of his presence, and they immediately dispatched a messenger to him. He found a government troop under the command of Major Price, who had just left a wagon train, under the command of Jack Callahan, that was on its way from Fort Supply to General Miles' camp on McClellan creek. The Indians had been harassing the train for days, keeping it back from water, and just about 1 mile from the river the Indians forced the wagon train into corral, with everything inside the circle of wagons. A trench all around the outside had been dug, and for three days the white men had been lying in that ditch in the hot September sun, (before the rain) without water. Every time they would start a man to the river for water, the Indians would fire on him, and their condition was getting desperate when some one thought of some canned tomatoes that they had with their supplies. The late J. J. Long of Mobeile, who was with the wagon train said "that there was a wild scramble for the tomatoes," and added, "the best drink that I ever drank in my life was out of a tomato can."

Major Price sent his surgeon and two soldiers to the wallow where the wounded men were, Billy Dixon remaining with Major Price to give him the particulars of the battle. As the surgeon and the men drew land; C. McKnight and Earl Talley. Conversation Told

Earl Wyatt was the first county witness to take the stand this morning. He testified that last year he was hired by W. H. Flaherty, who rents the land, to plow it. He mentioned a purported conversation between himself and Flaherty in which the latter, he stated, told him not to plow across the draw because it was going to be used as evidence against the county in a law suit. He testified Flaherty told him this after he had already plowed across the draw once.

Yesterday, Mr. Flaherty told the jury that it was impossible to drive a tractor across the draw, and that about 20 acres in the depression had been ruined for cultivation purposes by flood waters which drained from the lakes.

cases among school children are severe, it was said, while others are light.

Soda fountains and cafes are being warned to use hot water on glassware and dishes so that germs will be killed.

"Adding to the seriousness of the situation is the fact that many persons having limited incomes are depriving themselves of proper foods," said the superintendent.

It was estimated today that 25 per cent of Berger's school children were unable to attend classes because of influenza and that many oil workers and other adults were afflicted. There are 363 pupils ill of influenza in Corsicana. Thirty-eight teachers in Wichita Falls have the disease.

price fixing and some trade buying. March traded at 6.55, May at 6.72 and July at 6.90, or 1 to 3 points above yesterday's close. Although the stock market had a steady opening, prices in cotton eased off slightly after the start because of hedge selling and declined 2 to 4 points from the opening.

Near the end of the first hour the market improved slightly, recovering 1 to 2 points from the lows under a renewal of trade buying.

WAR HELPS WHEAT

CHICAGO, Feb. 3. (P)—Grain values took a new upswing early today, responsive to advices of fresh aggressive action by Japan. Word of another cold wave affecting domestic winter wheat territory tended also to lift prices. Opening 1/4-1/2 higher, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started unchanged to 1/2 up and subsequently held near the initial limits.

PEACE PLAN--

A Japanese destroyer in the Whangpoo by fire from the fort at Woosung during a bombardment which they said the Japanese begun. American women and children were taken out of Nanking on a destroyer and a river steamer and headed for Shanghai.

The United States cruiser Houston with 300 marines aboard arrived at Shanghai and anchored.

Japan said it would not accept without modification proposals for restoring peace presented by the great powers acting in concert. The government's answer will be ready tomorrow.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 3. (P)—Chinese guns from the fort at Woosung sent a Japanese destroyer to the bottom of the Whangpoo river, Chinese headquarters announced here tonight.

Further than that, the announcement said, the Chinese garrison still held the fort despite a raking fire from Japanese warship in the river.

Chinese headquarters said the fort repulsed an effort to put ashore a landing party from the destroyers and in addition to sinking one of the craft scored damaging hits on two others.

At the same time the Japanese naval command repeated its assertion that the fort had been reduced to a pile of scrap iron and that more than a score of the defenders had been killed in the five-hour bombardment.

May Renew Fight

At nightfall the Japanese put out to sea and the Chinese indicated that they expected the attack would be renewed.

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, Feb. 3. (P)—General Tiro Tamon, the man who took Tsitsihar, reached the outskirts of Harbin tonight and stopped there, preparing to enter the city tomorrow with the division of troops he took up from Changchun.

The critical situation at Harbin, where severe fighting has been going on for a week between local forces and the troops of General Tingchao, led General Tamon to leave without waiting for the arrival of another brigade of his army.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 3. (P)—Chinese soldiers and engineers worked feverishly tonight attempting to assemble the Chinese air force equipment which was still in the packing cases in which it was delivered from England 12 years ago.

In 1920 the government ordered 130 airplanes fitted with powerful motors. The planes were shipped to be assembled in China but because of disorganization of government no one would take the responsibility of putting them together and they were never unpacked.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. (P)—Colonel Hooker, commanding the marines at Shanghai, has arranged for all Japanese troops to evacuate the "marine sector" in the international settlement at 8 a. m., Thursday, Shanghai time.

On receipt of the Hooker message, navy officials said they did not know to what the "marine sector" referred. It was not taken to mean Japanese troops were evacuating the whole settlement but rather that they were giving up control over a sector heretofore policed entirely by them.

"Peace descends among my friends"

Guests have their pets
In cigarettes.
I once kept fifteen brands or twenty
To please each taste.
Now I've replaced
That flock of brands with one—that's plenty!

People who choose
Brand "A" refuse
To smoke brand "B"—with indignation!
"B" smokers say:
"I loathe brand 'A'"
But—OLD GOLDS save the situation.

Thus peace descends
Among my friends
And stops the growlings of the croakers,
No one is glum
They've all become Enthusiastic OLD GOLD smokers.
