

GARNER AGAIN CONTROLS HOUSE

Not All Wrong

It is inspiring to note, in one's travels, a well-kept farm home. Appearance is good for more than the eye; it does something worthwhile to the soul. A well-preserved house and clean yard set in a background of green wheat belie the assumption that everything has gone wrong with the farm.

Our Preference

We like to think of the upper plains wheat country as a bit more inspiring agriculturally than any other section of the state. Every man to his own taste. To many the cotton country is "home." Fact and fiction have woven a halo of romance about the land of cotton.

Depressing

Yet to the Panaman, born to the cotton country, there is something depressing about the homes in the cotton belt—poor homes, tenants' cottages, run-down frame shacks with old clothing stuck in broken window panes, rugless floors, wind-blown fields, fences half-covered with weeds and drifted soil, wide-eyed children, sad-eyed mothers, yawning dogs, ancient cars, negro huts, half-picked cotton patches, dirty sand-filled bolls.

Cool, Green Wheat

We hasten to say that this picture presents the worst and not the best to be visioned in West Texas cotton counties. But we do say that to us the black land, the cool green of the wheat, the clear horizon are attributes which inspire the observation that it is a privilege to live in Pampa.

Proof of Pride

We are not without appreciation of the fact that a well-ordered rural home is the result of many hours of hard work. That fact is proof of a pride which gives us also, in the towns and cities, our beautiful residences, our pleasing store buildings, our much-admired public structures, and our parks and playgrounds. Most of us would be willing to pay more for our farm produce in order to make possible more and better rural homes. We realize that the standard of living on the farm is dependent upon not only the abundance of the products of the soil, but also upon the price attained therefor. Our farm-factories can be no better than their financial stability.

Remember This

And to carry this analogy further, let us not forget that the business man contributes hugely to the community welfare and to the institutions of which the community is proud. Too many people forget that

Love Threatens Texas Democratic Harmony

DRY WILL TRY TO LEAVE OFF PARTY PLEDGE

LEADER TO FILE WRIT FOR MANDAMUS IN SUPREME COURT

WOMAN BACK OF MOVE

PLEDGE REQUIRES ALL VOTERS TO SUPPORT NOMINEES

DALLAS, March 30 (AP)—Renewed political warfare between "dry" and "wet" factions today again threatened democratic party harmony in Texas.

Thomas B. Love, former state senator who led "ultra dries" in bolting the party in 1928 when Texas was carried for Herbert Hoover, said today he would contest the action of the democratic executive committee in voting to require a loyalty pledge of precinct voters.

He protested unavailingly several weeks ago when the committee, at a meeting in Fort Worth, adopted a pledge which would bind precinct voters to support "the democratic nominees for president and vice-president and the democratic electors of Texas."

Mrs. Claude De Van Waits of Austin, president of the Texas Woman's Christian temperance union, yesterday requested Love to take "the necessary legal steps" to test the legality of the pledge.

Previously, Love, Mrs. Waits and other appealed to W. O. Higgins of Houston, chairman of the executive committee, to call the committee together again and reconsider its action. Higgins replied he would not reconvene the committee unless petitioned to do so by a majority of the members. Mrs. Waits wrote to each member but said replies indicated a majority did not favor another meeting.

Claims Pledge Illegal

"I am going to comply with the request of the official board of the Texas Woman's Christian temperance union," Love said today in a written statement. "I shall prepare and file in the supreme court at Austin, with the least possible delay, a motion for leave to file an application for writ of mandamus, compelling the precinct primary officers to allow qualified democratic voters to participate in the precinct primaries without making any pledge."

"Under the mandamus act passed by the legislature in 1930 and sustained as valid by the supreme court, there should be no difficulty in obtaining a prompt decision of the matter by the supreme court."

"I regard the action of the state executive committee as most unfortunate and clearly illegal. In any event, a desirable opportunity is afforded to obtain promptly a decision from our court of last resort as to whether the democratic state executive committee has the legal power to drive qualified democratic voters out of our presidential primaries by imposing pledges which they are unwilling to assume."

Love was successful in a similar suit before the supreme court in 1928, when the court ordered the democratic committee to certify his name on the ballot as a candidate for the nomination for governor, even though he would not subscribe to a party pledge binding him to the presidential candidacy of Al Smith.

Roosevelt Assured Of Maine's Dozen

PORTLAND, Maine, March 30 (AP)—A Maine delegation of 12 voters instructed for Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt seemed assured today as the final step of the state democratic convention got under way.

Party leaders, who had opposed the move for instructions, gave way to the increasing strength of the more ardent Roosevelt supporters and said in the interest of harmony they would not oppose the move to bind the delegates to the New York governor.

Virtually all leaders were agreed the delegation would be favorable to Roosevelt but many felt the delegation should be left free.

A plank calling for submission of the prohibition issue to the people in popular vote has been prepared by the committee on resolutions, it was learned just before the convention got under way.

SCENE OF EAST TEXAS FLAT IRON MURDERS

Like a true detective thriller reads the story of how an aged well digger, George Brimberry, and his wife were clubbed to death with a flatiron, and robbed of what little they had. Above is the two-room cabin near Arp, Texas, which was their home. In the lower left hand corner are Mr. Brimberry in front of his oil well near their home. Scrawled on a magazine the cryptic message at lower right was found. "A negro killed me." It said. Officers thought the clue false. Within less than 20 hours after the killing, Smith county officers arrested a white man and charged him with the crime. His shoes fitting footprints found near the scene and his pants bearing blood stains.

MRS. LONG GIVEN NEW TRIAL; STATE CLAIMED SHE POISONED HUSBAND FOR LOVE OF YOUTH

Judge Holds Argument Was Prejudicial to Woman in First Trial

AUSTIN, March 30 (AP)—Mrs. Maudie Long, convicted in Klöburg county of murder in connection with the death of her husband, Jim Long, was awarded a new trial by the court of criminal appeals today.

Reversal of 25-year sentence was ordered on the defendant's motion for a rehearing after the appellate court previously had affirmed the conviction. When affirmance was given, presiding Judge W. C. Morrow dissented from the majority opinion.

Reversing the affirmance granting the motion for a rehearing and ordering the verdict reversed and the case remanded, the court held that statements made with reference to her alleged moral conduct were improper.

The court reversed and remanded the conviction of Pat Henderson, sentenced to three years from Nacogdoches county in the slaying of James White. Error in the charge of the trial judge was given as cause for reversal.

The case of M. T. Boyd, sentenced to five years from Smith county on a charge of false entry, was affirmed. Boyd was employed at the Farmers' and Merchants' State bank at Lindau and was convicted of making false entry on the bank's books.

Affirmance was given by the court to the conviction of Robert Weaver, former tax collector and assessor of the city of Greenville, on three charges of misapplication of funds. He was sentenced to two years in each case. The indictments charged him with misapplying $100, $72.81 and $78.89.

Posse Quits Hunt for Negro Attacker

FORT WORTH, March 30 (AP)—A negro who twice attempted to attack Mrs. F. E. Alford, 25, wife of a dairy worker, made good his escape. A large posse of farmers and officers abandoned its search yesterday after thoroughly scouring the woods near the Alford home west of Fort Worth.

Mrs. Alford was recovering from shock. She said the negro, believed demented, advanced threateningly towards her after asking for food. Her screams twice frightened him away.

PUFFED UP

Gene A. Howe, editor of the Amarillo News and Globe, who says he has been highly complimented by Dr. John Brinkley, goat gland specialist, who has used Howe's papers for $600,000 because Howe called him "the world's greatest bunk artist." The statement was made recently during a "physical characteristic" controversy Howe had with J. E. Kreiger, editor of the Gruber (Texas) News, in which Kreiger called Howe a "tough jackass and an ignoramus" and said he was "pot-bellied and lantern-jawed;" and Howe retaliated that Kreiger was a "wind-blown hippopotamus." Then, because Kreiger gave Brinkley some publicity, Howe made reference to the Del Rio physician.

COURT HONOR FRIDAY NIGHT

Boys From Nearby Towns Will Attend Event in District Court

The regular monthly court of honor for Pampa Boy Scouts and the quarterly court for the Adobe Valley council will be held in the district court rooms in the court house at 8 o'clock Friday night. The board of review will be conducted at the First Methodist church tomorrow night.

The Rev. James Todd jr., is chairman of the court of honor. Boys from Wheeler, Berger, Whittenberg, Panhandle, Pampa and other cities in the council may have boys attending the court. Speakers and officials have not been selected.

A special invitation to parents of Boy Scouts to attend the court of honor is urged by Rev. Todd. The public is also invited to be present and see for themselves what the boys accomplish in their scout work.

Two Pampa boys are scheduled to come up for Eagle Palm degrees. They are Berton Doucette and Wilks Chapman.

At the close of the court, John B. Hesseey will organize a training school. Every man in Pampa interested in scouting is urged to be present.

Double Suicide Provides Mystery

BALTIMORE, March 30 (AP)—Shock, resulting from the death before her eyes of her employer and co-worker in scientific research was blamed today by police for the suicide of Miss Mona Rittenhouse, who died last night from a draught of the same poison which a few minutes before had killed Dr. Frederick B. Jennings, Jr.

Coroner John J. Morrissey returned verdicts of suicide in both deaths, but said he could not find any evidence of a concerted plan on the part of the two to destroy themselves.

By her death, the 28-year-old nurse placed serious obstacles in the path of the inquiry seeking to clear up the suicide of the wealthy volunteer instructor in pathology at Johns Hopkins medical school.

Only she was with him when he took the poison and she snatched the bottle containing it as soon as physicians she summoned pronounced him dead.

Amnesia Victim of Clovis Is Identified

WAYNOKA, Okla., March 30 (AP)—An amnesia victim, found wandering the streets here Monday was identified today as a resident of New Mexico by officers who communicated with his wife, Mrs. Millie Hodges, of Clovis. Arrangements were being made to send the 60-year-old man to his home. The Clovis address was obtained from a small book found in his clothing.

NEWS FLASHES AT PRESS TIME

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 30 (AP)—Ewatha White Eagle, Cherokee Indian princess of Murrey, Utah, offered today to serve the life sentence given Mac Golney Seymour, Apache herdsman, convicted of the murder of Henrietta Schmeier, Columbia university anthropology student, on the White river reservation.

BEAUMONT, March 30 (AP)—The Saratoga state bank at Saratoga, Hardin county, was robbed of between $5,000 and $6,000 last night. The burglars used an acetylene torch to open the vault. The robbery was discovered this morning by H. A. Foster, a grocer, who noticed the rear door of the bank building had been forced open.

AUSTIN, March 30 (AP)—The state executive committee of the Texas Interscholastic League expected to issue a ruling late today on the application of the Abilene district committee for suspension of Cisco for one year. Cisco was charged with using Fred Hightower, an ineligible athlete, in football games last fall, and suspension of the school was recommended by the Abilene district committee.

DALLAS, March 30 (AP)—Officials of major oil companies, with headquarters here indicated today that they would fall in line with the one cent per gallon price advance announced yesterday by the Texas company. They said they were considering posting the increase late today or tomorrow. No reason was given for the Texas company's increase, nor did the other companies say why they were considering meeting it.

Gusher Opens New Field at Luling

LULING, March 30 (AP)—A gusher estimated by major oil company scouts to be a 10,000-barrel producer blew in two miles northwest of here early today.

The gusher, the J. M. Pierce well, just north of West, opens a new field, the nearest wells being light producers a quarter of a mile distant. Oil men expressed the theory that the well is tapping a hitherto unknown northeast extension of the Darst creek field. It is half way between here and the original Luling oil field.

There was no casing in the well when it blew in at 2,110 feet, and a roaring plume of oil and gas soaked the earth with oil for hundreds of feet. Oil was standing in puddles on the Luling-San Marcos highway near the well.

After an hour and a half the well brided over and a sub-terranean drive-in shut off the flow. Bob Rose, driller, immediately started setting a casing in the well preparatory to drilling through the bridge-over.

Norfolk Agents Act Mysterious

John Hughes Curtis, boat builder, and the Rev. Dean H. Dobson, Peacock, met at the home of Rear Admiral Guy H. Burgess, retired. After the conference, Admiral Burgess announced for the three that "nothing has happened." No details of the conference were disclosed.

"I will give you this statement," he said. "If there is failure in the Norfolk negotiations the kidnapers and they alone will know why."

Admiral Burgess, who said he also was speaking for his fellow intermediaries, Dean H. Dobson, Peacock and John Hughes Curtis, refused to explain the meaning of the statement.

WARY SPEAKER TAKES FLOOR SECOND TIME

FIRST SIGN OPPOSITION CRUSHED BY FIERY TEXAN

AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

CONSOLIDATED RETURNS ON INCOME TAXES OPPOSED

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—Speaker Garner was successful again today in withering opposition to the ways and means committee's revised tax raising program.

Taking the floor at the first sign of opposition, the speaker called for rejection of an amendment by Representative Cannon (D. Mo.) to strike out provisions which allow consolidated and affiliated corporate income tax returns.

Cannon said they permitted chain stores to drive independents out of business by having the profits from a paying store take care of the losses on one competing with independents.

Garner said the committee proposal levying a 15 per cent rate on consolidated returns should be adopted to see whether corporations with subsidiaries would continue to use consolidated returns.

He said $18,000,000 would be returned by the ways and means committee amendment.

Cannon withdrew his amendment after the speaker's opposition. Garner previously has fought consolidated returns.

All Items Approved

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—A docile house today marched straight down the new tax-raising road marked out for it by its ways and means committee.

Item by item, it gave approval to revenue producing amendments calculated to add millions of dollars to the funds brought to the government by the bill.

There was an absence of controversy as the speaker's proposals on surtax rates to subject incomes of more than $6,000 to those levies. Above $10,000 these rates were graduated upward.

Leaders foresaw a dispute over the proposal to increase first class postage rates by one cent.

Garner took his seat on the floor behind acting Chairman Crisp of the ways and means committee to take part in discussions of some of the sections of the committee program.

Five new revenue suggestions were brought in by the committee at the opening of the session. They are:

Outlet of 55,000 Barrels Set for Panhandle Field

AUSTIN, March 30 (AP)—New rules and regulations, including allowable production, for all Texas oil fields except Van and the east Texas fields, were set today by operators before the state railroad commission today.

A hearing for Van operators has been fixed for April 5 and existing rules governing the east Texas field do not expire until May 1.

The east Texas field allowable is 325,000 barrels daily, each well contributing 72 barrels daily to that total. The wells will be prorated again April 1 to bring the field allowable within the 325,000 barrel limit. R. D. Parker, chief oil and gas supervisor of the commission, unofficially estimated the per well allowable would be reduced to about 70 barrels at that time.

Allowable production of all Texas fields totals 916,000 barrels daily. Area allowables other than east Texas, are: southwest Texas, 51,000; gulf coast, 110,000; Yates, 65,000; Winkler, 40,000; Van, 50,000; Darst Creek, 18,000; Salt Flat, 100,000; Ector, 63,000; Howard-Glasscock, 26,000; Crane-Upton, 16,700; west central Texas, 30,000; north Texas, 57,000; Panhandle, 55,000.

The post of keynote, or temporary chairman of the convention, is to be filled Monday in Chicago by the arrangements committee for the convention.

HORRORS OF RUSSIA UNDER CZAR'S RULE DESCRIBED

SPEAKER TELLS EXPERIENCES SHE HAD WHEN SHE RESIDED THERE BEFORE REVOLUTION

IS MAIN SPEAKER FOR BUSINESS WOMEN'S BANQUET

The Five Year Plan, compared with the unthinkable horrors that existed in Russia before the revolution, is a real blessing to the Russian people, according to the opinion expressed by Mrs. Sam Kruger, a native Russian now living in Wichita Falls. "I am not by any means advocating communism for America," she explained. "But Russia, terrible as the conditions were then, had nothing to lose and everything to gain."

Mrs. Kruger was principal speaker for "a night in Russia," the annual public relations banquet sponsored by the Pampa Business and Professional Women's Club last evening at the Schneider hotel. More than one hundred persons, representing the various civic and service organizations in Pampa, were guests for the occasion.

Russian Decorations
The room was decorated with Russian and United States flags, and the tables, lighted with red tapers, were decorated with samovars (Russian tea urns), and figures of Russian peasants. Attractive hand-made programs bore a Russian design.

Before the serving of the elaborate turkey banquet, the group joined in repeating club collect, Miss Made line Tarpley played the prelude, "Bells of Moscow," and the introduction of members and guests followed.

Playlet Given
A clever playlet, showing the simplicity of the process of marrying or gaining a divorce in Russia, was presented by R. G. Hughes, Mrs. Helen Turner, and Mrs. W. E. Weible Jr.

The president, Miss Clara Lee Shewmaker, made an address of welcome and introduced Mrs. Frank Keeler, who presided over the banquet, and Mrs. Pool, who introduced the principal speaker.

Mrs. Dilley Sings
Mrs. Kruger's talk was given in two parts, Russia before the revolution, and Russia today. During the intermission, Mrs. A. N. Dilley Jr., accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Frank Keeler, delighted the crowd with two vocal selections of Russia.

Following are extracts from the discussion given of the Russia of yesterday:

Describes Nobility
"I feel I should give you information about the old Russia that you cannot learn from books."

"I may tell you of the Russia of the Czar and of the nobility living in palaces with gold upon their walls... pillaging... gulping food... dancing on bloody paths... their drunken voices... their faces puffed and eyes winking... robbing and killing the masses, who lived in poverty and ignorance of unsanitary conditions."

"I may tell of my grandmother who, wrapped in a heavy shawl, sat on a cold winter night by a wooden stove and a Russian maid carrying fire wood while we children, playing with marbles, scrambled and fussed. 'Sh, children, sh, she would say. 'Not so loud or the cossacks might hear you.' How well she knew that this reminder of the cossacks would silence us. The cossacks, a military division, were feared in the love of war and the smell of blood."

March to Palace
"I may tell how in the year 1905, the people, led by Father Gapon, marched to the palace to ask mercy of the Czar but were shot... our house and embedded themselves in the plaster under the wall paper, serving as a constant reminder of the might of the few. Every step toward freedom was paid with blood. I, like the others, was willing to give my life for fairness and equality."

"It was the active part taken in the revolution by my sisters and myself that in 1908 was responsible for our coming to America. Our parents knew that if we remained in Russia it would result in imprisonment or death."

Czar Was a God
"The mulkik who greeted down in the fields also bade farewell there to the setting sun. He had to obey the czar. 'Our souls are God's, our bodies the czar's' was his belief. He labored hard for only black bread and cabbage soup or bread and milk and quass; his wife worked in the fields; his children were born during the harvesting and mowing. The mothers stopped only long enough to place the newly-born infants in the folds of their skirts and to carry them home. They returned at once to the field."

Usually several families lived in a large one-room cabin, and on the winter evenings the cows and chickens were brought into that room.

No Doctors
"There was no doctor in the Russian villages. Wounds usually were dressed with cobwebs. There was no illness which would cause one to quit work. Deaths often occurred in the fields."

"Is it any wonder the peasant became savage, warlike, rebellious, using his excess strength in beating his wife. It was the business of a woman to accept this beating without complaint. In fact, it was considered an expression of love."

Religion Meant Oppression
"The Russian never had a real comprehension of religion. Religion was used as a means of oppression. The peasant realized the golden domes and jeweled crosses were bought at his expense. He thought

God knew how his body ached and did not care. Meeting a minister on the street was a bad omen.

"When the czar was dethroned and the peasant saw that God did not slide from Heaven to protect him, did not send a flash of lightning, or a peal of thunder, or a pillar of fire to punish the offenders of the czar, the outward ostentation was gone; and with nothing deep rooted within him, the peasant simply lost faith in God. In spite of hardships, the Russian peasant would cheerfully share his last loaf with a hungry stranger."

Respect Demanded
"Attitude of the people toward the czar is shown by the incident when the czar visited in Sevastopol and the men and women as usual worked themselves into a state of frenzied exultation. A huge throng of people on either side of the fenced-in procession gaped and cheered. Here rode the czar and czarinas in gold and splendor and false power. They were guarded by a multitude of cossacks. The czar in his magnificent array looked childish and stupid. There was also a childish insecurity in his eyes. The excited throng lifted their children. They threw hats into the air, shouting 'Hooray! Hooray—God spare our lives! But one man, evidently murdered by the paraphernalia of gold and power, and hatred of the crowd exclaimed: 'Down with the czar. Down with the imbecile!'

"The last word was cut in two. A multitude of bullets from the cossacks had filled his body before he had finished."

"Although the czar visited Sevastopol only once or twice a year there was a special place reserved for him in the theater. No one dared to occupy it in his absence. Surrounded by body guards he would make his appearance through a special entrance leading to his box covered with velvet cushions and draped in wine-colored velvet with a double-headed eagle embroidered in gold. There was quite a festival when the czar entered. Hats were thrown in the air and 'God Save Our Czar' was sung. How many curses were uttered under the breath is left for our imagination to supply."

Russia Today
In speaking on Russia today, Mrs. Kruger said in part:

"To carry out the Five Year Plan in four years or sooner (and this is their desire) requires unceasing work. The Five Year Plan attempts, beginning October 1928 and ending October 1933—to raise the economic power of Russia and rapidly expand its industry so that at the end of the five year period the soviet union will be an industrial-agricultural country rather than an agricultural industrial country. The soviet union is one vast humanized factory. Even the farm under the colchok or collective farming is being industrialized. The whole aim is the march toward economic independence, toward life for all. The Russian cannot understand how over-production can occur."

Reports Required
"Louis Fischer says that the soviet economist must report not only what has been done each day, week, and month of the year but he must show in a second column the predetermined color figures set up for each time by the plan, and in a third column he must show realization of the plan in plus or minus percentages daily."

"In the largest automobile plant in Europe, which turns out 400,000 Ford cars a year, and the largest hydroelectric plant in the world, we see two remarkable accomplishments of the Five Year Plan."

Complete Control
"The government controls everything. As there are no foreign debts on which interest payments must be made, every cent obtained for exports can be utilized for purchases abroad."

"The government is running ahead in more projects than it is lagging behind. The production of coal at the end of 1932 is to reach 90.5 million tons, as against 75 million originally set for the year. Oil production will be much increased. Machine construction is to be increased by 42 per cent, and tractors by 47 per cent (82,000 tractors instead of 55,000). Railroad transport will show an increase of 13.8 per cent."

"Decided progress has been made in the housing situation and municipal improvement."

"The completion of the plan in 1932 will bring material and cultural improvement to the masses. If we take three factors only, wages, hours, and social insurance, we can see the tremendous progress. The plan provided for a wage fund of 15.7 million rubles for 1932. Already in 1931 the wage fund rose to 21 million rubles and this year it will be 26.8 million, or 7 per cent over the figures set for 1933."

Women Are Equal
"The emancipation of women is greater in Russia than anywhere else in the world. Women serve as engineers, factory workers, as air pilots, as motormen, and as conductors. Young Russian women, dressed in blue overalls, blue blouses, and red kerchiefs, are working overtime in factories and mills to carry out the Five Year Plan in four years. There are many rest periods in all the factories and mills. On can find a group of overworked workers, men and women, smoking, laughing, and discussing life, the economic problem, art, education, and love. With all the freedom in marriage and divorce, there is scarcely any promiscuity in sex."

"Leaders of Russia work harder

Color Contrasts in Food Indicate Difference in Flavor and Texture

BY SISTER MARY NEA Service Writer

Although food value in terms of calories, mineral constituents and vitamin content is of prime importance in the planning of menus, the color of the various foods chosen enters into the general scheme of things.

Try visualizing your menus as you read them over. Foods of contrasting color usually combine excellently, since the color contrast speaks contrast also in flavor and texture.

If you see the menu in your "mind's" eye as you plan it you will find a new interest in serving it. In this day of colored-linens and glasses, the family luncheon or breakfast table can be made a veritable picture. You yourself may be the only one at the table who fully appreciates the color effect, but every member of the family, blindly, perhaps, will enjoy his meal more than usual.

Contrast is such an important factor in meal planning that it should constantly be kept in mind. It is this definite difference in foods that makes a meal appealing and well balanced. Repetition is always monotonous and soon satiates the appetite regardless of the merits of the various dishes.

Light and Dark Menus
Cookbooks of fifty years ago in their "hints" on meal planning advised housekeepers to serve "light-colored" vegetables with dark meats and dark colored vegetables with light meats. And while there are some vegetables we serve with any and all meats, the rule is worth remembering.

The following luncheon menu is for a simple family meal, but it is colorful and offers opportunity for experiment:

Cream of spinach soup, croquettes, English Monkey, jellied-mato salad, gingerbread waffles, milk, tea.

Cooked spinach is forced through a colander and added to a well seasoned thin cream sauce to make cream of spinach soup. The result is a delicate green puree.

English monkey is made with a

good hard cheese and the finished dish is a warm golden color.

Of course the jellied tomato salad is a dark red. Served on vivid green shredded leaf lettuce with a golden mayonnaise, the effect is colorful and inviting.

Crisp brown gingerbread waffles with gleaming whipped cream add the finishing touch. Can't you see and have no more than the others. They live as simply as the worker. There is no "professor," no "Dr.," no "Mr.," no "Mrs.," no servant, no master."

CAFETERIA TO BE BENEFITED BY PRODUCTION

APRIL 19 IS TENTATIVE DATE SET FOR PLAY

Proceeds from the Little Theater comedy, "Adam and Eva," will be used to benefit the Baker school cafeteria, according to plans made at a recent meeting of directors in the home of Mrs. E. M. Conley, and Tuesday, April 19, was tentatively set as the date for production.

Principal J. A. Meek of Baker school met with the group when the arrangements were made.

Casting Director Morris Johnson reported that the characters for "Adam and Eva" had been selected and that plans were going forward smoothly for the production. Mr. Johnson was elected business manager for the play. Mrs. H. H. Hicks is director.

It was decided to reserve 400 of the best seats. Tickets for these seats will be sold at 50 cents, which is the same as the general admission tickets for adults. All school pupils will be admitted for 25 cents.

Hollywood Sights

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Holidays marked the first time on the romance of the recent newsworlds. Leslie Fenton and Ann Dvorak.

They met for the first time on New Year's Eve. They met again on a movie set where they were cast as screen sweethearts—to the eve of St. Valentine's day. They were married, after an airplane elopement to Yuma, Ariz., on St. Patrick's day.

Close-to-the-hip shooters are in demand in these days of censorship. Gun-scenes in movies have to be handled with gloves. A player can't aim a gun directly at another; the effect must be registered by showing the reaction of the victim.

The expressions "Hands up!" and "Throw up your hands!" are forbidden, but it's all right to say "Keep your hands where they are!" or "Don't anybody move, and keep your hands off your iron!"

Close-to-the-hip shooters get by because, photographed from the gunless side, the weapon isn't visible but even a moron can tell it's there. Society to Films

Viola Elizabeth Gillette, the Long Island society girl newly in pictures, becomes plain Betty Gillette for screen purposes.

"Symphony of Six Million" has an operating-room scene that for tenseness and drama excels that in "Alan the Doctor." Ricardo Cortez as the young ghetto surgeon and Irene Dunne as a crippled girl both step out of their accustomed characters for the picture.

Lip Readers
A school of lip-reading, though that isn't its purpose, is the studio film inspection department. Here in cubbyhole projection rooms with miniature screens, girls sit hour after hour watching reels after reel of finished projected without the sound track.

Their business is to find any flaws in the individual prints.

Anne Proctor, in charge of the corps at M-G-M, who has been in the work 14 years, says all the girls become expert lip-readers through seeing the "silent talkies" over and over.

That's easy to understand. On "Tarzan" there were 227 release prints, totaling nearly 2,000 reels of film. After watching that much movie, again and again the same thing, the girls are almost able to read the lips backward.

Incidentally, Wallace Berry is considered the easiest lip-reading subject. We don't wonder.

PREFERS MOVIES TO SOCIETY

Pretty Betty Gillette, Long Island society girl, wanted to be independent financially, so she jumped at the chance to enter the movies. Now she's hard at work in Hollywood.

HOLLYWOOD, March 30. (AP)—Teas on Wood, parties and dances, winters at Palm Beach, all the fuss and frills surrounding the life of a daughter of wealth, held no lure for Betty Gillette to compare with a chance to make her own way in pictures.

So when Viola Elizabeth (Betty for short) was offered a contract by Warner Bros. studios she cut short her Palm Beach sojourn, hurried to New York, signed up, and then came to Hollywood. Here she's being initiated into the routine of screen acting, taking tests, being photographed, interviewed, fitted, and prepared for her first role. It's exciting and thrilling, she finds.

Blue-eyed blond, 19 years old but sophisticated in type, and petite, Betty has had no stage or screen experience other than in amateur dramatics. The daughter of a wealthy retired banker of Douglas Manor, Long Island, Betty went to exclusive schools learned to dance, sing and play the piano. At a party last year she met an agent who asked her to make a screen test.

"I've always had everything I wanted," she says, "but father and mother like me to do things on my own, too. I posed for commercial photography a bit, and when this chance came I seized it. 'I'm going to live on my salary, which is comparatively small, and be independent financially. And from now on, I'm a working girl, and I mean to work.'"

March Is Lion in Texas Panhandle

WICHITA FALLS, March 30. (AP)—March prepared to go out like a lion today as the north wind swept from this section from both Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle.

In Northern Oklahoma the mercury was already down to freezing and still falling. A high north wind swept the cold southward. Falling temperatures were also reported along the Fort Worth and Denver line.

A minimum of 50 degrees was reported here at 8 a. m. but the thermometer was dropping at a rate of about 10 degrees an hour.

"Three Steps in Salvation" will be discussed this evening, and a baptismal service will follow.

Rev. Lancaster is preaching all of the sermons for the revival, which is being continued from last week, Miss Loma Groom is musical director, and Mrs. Tom E. Rose is pianist.

Donations Made To Baker School

Several more donations have been made for the aid of Baker school's cafeteria. Supt. and Mrs. R. B. Fisher gave $2, Mrs. Annie Daniels, $1, and the Rev. Joseph Wonderly, $1. The next Little Theater play, "Adam and Eva" will be for the benefit of the Baker cafeteria.

CHANGE IN MANAGEMENT HAS NO EFFECT ON OWNERSHIP OF G. C. MALONE FURNITURE STORE

It is the policy of the G. C. Malone Funeral Home and the G. C. Malone Furniture store to give the people the best service possible.

In order to give this better service, I am devoting the major part of my time to the Funeral Home and have placed Guy E. McTaggart in charge of the Furniture store. This arrangement, however, does not affect the ownership of the Furniture store in any way.

Mr. McTaggart has been employed at my store for the past year and a half and knows the furniture business, as well as the value of fair dealing with the public.

I invite you to meet Mr. McTaggart and assure you that he will give you the same prompt, courteous service that Malone's has given you in the past.

TEXAS UNIVERSITY SOPHOMORE BEATS ELLSWORTH VINES

CHAMPION IS DEFEATED BY MARTIN BUXBY

ANOTHER TENNIS STAR APPEARS ON TEXAS HORIZON

HOUSTON, March 30 (AP)—The odds-on favorite and defending champion, Ellsworth Vines of California, was out of the running today in the second annual Houston invitation tennis tournament.

Vines, national singles champion, seeded number 1, was defeated yesterday, in a resounding upset, by Martin Buxby, 20-year-old University of Texas sophomore, 4-6, 6-2, 7-5.

The other favorites, George Lott of Chicago, seeded number 2; William Allison of Texas, seeded number 3; J. Gilbert Hall of New York, seeded number 4, and Junior Coen of Kansas City, seeded number 5, still were safe.

Allison drew a bye yesterday. Lott advanced to the third round, through a first round bye and a second round victory over Neil Thomason of Dallas, 6-2, 6-1. Hall, Canadian indoor champion, breezed through his first round match with W. B. Baker of Houston, 6-1, 6-0, while young Coen advanced to the third round by defeating Leslie Coleman of Houston, 6-4, 6-1. He drew a first round bye.

Hall tonight at 2 p. m., today with Sterling Williams of the University of Texas in the first feature match of the day. Allison will meet David Peden of Texas; Lott will meet the winner of the Karl Kamroth-John McDiarmid match late in the day. Buxby will play Jimmy Quick of Dallas; Coen was marked down for a day of rest in the singles go.

This Game of GOLF

By O.B. KEELER

Among the expert lady golfers touring the south, or that part of the south extending from Florida, the chin whisker of the United States, up the Atlantic seaboard to Pinehurst and Sedgefield, Miss. Maureen Orcutt seems to be making the most important record.

She has victories in two tournaments already.

Miss Helen Hicks, national champion, did not play particularly well in most of the tournaments in which she competed, and she is returned to her home at Hewlett, L. I.

And there is one little girl who is making a delightful reputation for herself through our section, though as yet not winning any very ferocious competitions.

Bound To Play

This is Miss Beatrice Gottlieb of New York, who spent most of last year in Southern California, and this season is taking in as many of the winter tournaments as she can manage.

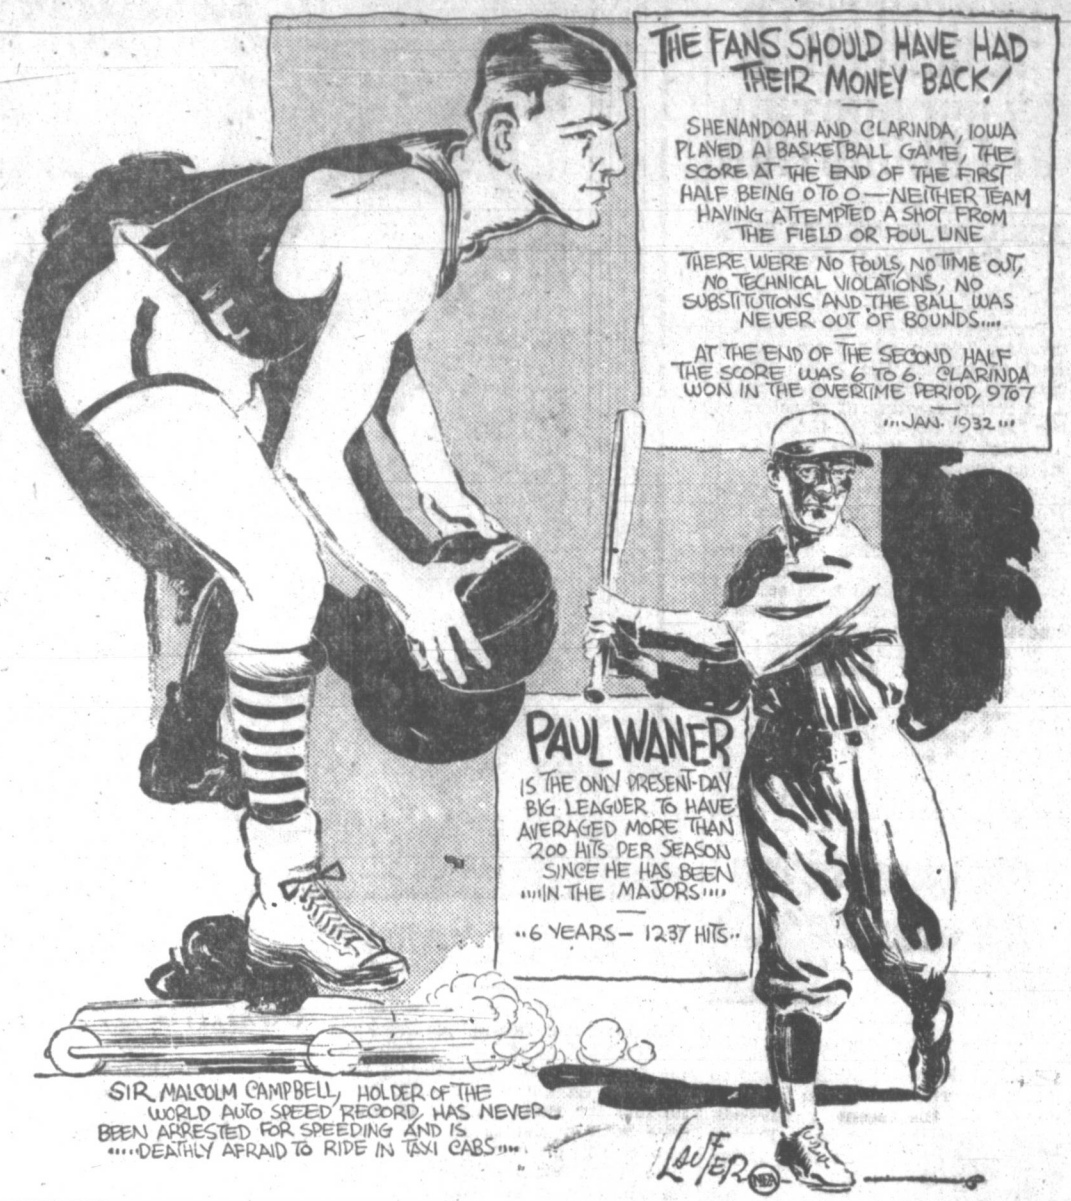

"Bea" drives about in a small motor car, for she is not specially favored by fortune in the way of finances, but she is determined to play golf in the most select company.

She competed in the recent tournament at the Radium Springs club near Albany, Ga.; the first open championship, it was termed, because it was open to any feminine golfer in the world.

It was won, brilliantly, by our own state and city champion, Miss Margaret Maddox of Atlanta, who beat Miss Gottlieb in the final—a bit unexpectedly, I am bound to admit, as Miss Maddox, though a capable performer, and southern

Lightweight Bout To Be Postponed

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—It looks like Madison Square Garden will have to postpone the lightweight title bout it hoped to stage in May between champion Tony Canzoneri and Christopher (Bat) Battalino, former featherweight title holder.

Battalino, who took a severe beating from Billy Petelle at the Garden last week, has been advised by the New York Athletic commission to take a vacation from the ring for "at least 60 days."

"The commission evidently believe Battalino will need at least two months to get over the effects of the Petelle match which he lost on a technical knockout in the 12th round.

The Garden, which has a Canzoneri-Battalino fight virtually lined up, expects the commissions suggestion to force postponement of the match until early June.

COMBS HOLDS JOB

ST. PETERSBURGH, Fla., March 30 (AP)—Ambitious rookies have been trying for three years to take Earl Combs' centerfield job from him but there's no evidence that Combs will not be in his usual place in the New York Yankee lineup this season.

Sam Byrd tried to oust the veteran in 1930, Mryll Hoar in 1931 and this spring George Selkirk tried to. He has made an extremely favorable impression but he is not yet ready to replace Combs.

Widrig Will Be Buried Thursday

CIN. INNATI, March 30 (AP)—Lou Widrig will be buried in his native Newport, Ky., across the Ohio river from here, tomorrow, leaving behind his monument the Cincinnati baseball club of the National League, which, as treasurer, he once saved from financial collapse.

Widrig died in New York yesterday of pneumonia which followed the suffering of severe burns in a fire in his hotel room there Jan. 31. He was 61.

It was in 1918 that the financial foundation of the Cincinnati Reds seemed about to totter. Money went out, none came in. The club was on the verge of bankruptcy.

Widrig reached down into his pockets and met the bills himself. Then he started financial reorganization. Given new life, the Reds in 1919 drove on to win the National League pennant and the world's series.

Yet Widrig could not say baseball was his first and only love. He started life—after school days—as a druggist, and what personal fortune he had, had its beginnings there. Later he was president and chief stockholder of the Alexandria turnpike, controlling the last toll road in Kentucky.

Sport Slants

By ALAN GOULD

Tom Oliver, who covers an acre or two of centerfield territory for the Boston Red Sox, missed moving into the ranks of the champion Philadelphia Athletics, he says, because Connie Mack thought he was a left-handed batter.

Tom was with Little Rock in the Southern association, going along at a fast clip, when he was drafted by the Athletics. Somewhere, Mack got the idea that the Alabamian hit from the port side and since the A's didn't need that sort of outfield help at the time—1930—waiters were asked and Oliver was claimed by the Red Sox.

Tom got away at once to a good start with the Red Sox, winning a regular berth in center. One day later in Philadelphia, Mack was surprised to see Oliver hitting from the right side and asked when he had shifted.

"That's how close I came to sitting on the bench of a pennant outfit," Tom drawled. "I got a good break with the Red Sox and was just lucky enough to get a regular job."

Grove Tames Japanese
Oliver has enlivened the Red Sox camp sessions this spring with his accounts of experiences on the trip with Fred Lieb's all-star team to Japan.

"I could hit their pitching but I had a lot of trouble with those chop sticks," he laughs.

"They gave us a lot of good competition, at that, but the Japanese crowds were so in awe of fellows like Lefty Grove that when a home

Widrig Will Be Buried Thursday

GALVESTON, March 30 (AP)—Frank Tubbs, iron man of the Oklahoma City club, is replacing Art Seydlar as the favorite potential ace of the Buccaneer mound staff this season.

In every succeeding appearance he shows more stuff. In the five innings he worked yesterday he pitched nitless ball and only three men reached first.

The Ryes beat the Pratts, 4-3, in nine innings which followed a hitting fielding session that lasted three hours.

BEAUMONT GRINDING

BEAUMONT, Tex., March 30 (AP)—Another day of hitting and fielding, climaxed by a nine-inning game, was on the Exporters' spring training program today. Fred Young and J. T. Hare, rookie twirlers, turned back the regulars without a hit yesterday in a six-frame tilt. Schultz and Jachym worked for the regulars in the scoreless deadlock.

INDIANS PLAY TODAY

SAN ANTONIO, March 30 (AP)—Claude Robertson's San Antonio Indians today meet the 46th squadron of Randolph field in a practice game. Club officials expected to learn the identity of the shortstop they are to get from the Kansas City Blues before nightfall. It was believed "Ducky" Scofield would be the man.

THREE MEN TO ENTER EVERY LEAGUE EVENT

MITCHELL AND FOX ARE TRAINING BIG SQUAD FOR MEET

Three boys from Pampa high school will enter in each athletic event in the Gray county interscholastic meet in LePors next Saturday. Coach Odus Mitchell is being assisted by Coach Argus Fox this week in putting the boys through a six week period of training. Football practice has been suspended for a week.

Although the contestants have not been decided, coaches have divided their squads and are working each boy in his division.

The Pampa team will be chosen from the following boys with the events they will enter:

100-yard dash—Joe, Kahl, Dick Sullins, Bert Stevens, Sam Turner, Leon Robinson.

Harvesters Will Get Needed Rest

Harvesters of 1932 have hung up their uniforms for a week and are taking a long needed rest. The boys have been practicing faithfully for more than two months.

However, the spring training season has not ended. Uniforms will be re-issued Monday when members of the track and field squad will get into harness for the big game of the spring season. The Harvesters will tangle with the ex-Harvesters the afternoon of April 8 at Harvesters park.

And what a game it should be. Pampa football fans will once again see Lard, Saubrey, Stalls, Mullin, Seitz, James, Benton, Pafford, Reno Chastain, Buckingham, Saltzman and other in action.

They will be opposed by Kahl, Sullins, Pool, Turner, Green, Powell, Walker and the rest of the gang who will wear the green and gold next season. Coaches Odus Mitchell and Argus Fox will devote next week to getting a smooth combination worked out. They will probably have a heavy backfield and a light backfield line.

Spudder-Senator Games Canceled

WICHITA FALLS, March 30 (AP)—Resumption of civv war was scheduled in the Spudder camp today following cancellation by the Oklahoma City club of a three-game series scheduled here. The Senators were to have split their squad at For Worth, with one division coming here for games Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, but officials of the club informed Secretary Guy Airey that injuries and sickness had taken such a heavy toll that sufficient players were not available.

The shortage of exhibition games is a serious obstacle to the proper conditioning of the team, and Manager Hank Severid's charges have but four practice games before the season opens, two with St. Paul Saturday and Sunday and two with Des Moines the following week-end.

Collins Quits Browns to Join Texas Rangers

AUSTIN, March 30 (AP)—Rip Collins, veteran major league pitcher will be striving to outwit Texas criminals instead of American league sluggers this summer. He returned his contract unsigned to the St. Louis Browns and joined the picturesque Texas Rangers.

William W. Sterling, adjutant general and head of the ranger force, announced yesterday he had "signed" Collins. The two were classmates at Texas A. & M., where Collins won fame on the gridiron as one of the southwest conference's greatest all-time punters.

Collins will live in the saddle and help patrol Texas' vast expanse as a member of the state's colorful law enforcement unit. Developing an illness similar to malaria fever several weeks ago, he decided, on advice of physicians, to quit baseball for at least one season. He hopes that a life in the open will banish any signs of illness.

Although Collins has been hurling in the majors for a decade or so, he still is noted in his home state more for his football than his baseball ability.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lane, sr., of Childress are visiting friends here.

PLAYGROUND BASEBALLERS TO ORGANIZE

TO MEET AT CITY HALL THURSDAY NIGHT AT 7:30

A meeting to organize a playground baseball league for Pampa will be held in the city hall at 7:30 tomorrow night. Several teams have signified their intentions of entering teams in the proposed league. Officers will be elected and plans for starting the league soon will be part of the business at tomorrow night's meeting.

Everyone interested in entering a team is urged to be present. Team managers or captains are also urged to be present.

Among the teams already on the list are The Faculty, Railroad Commission, Pampa NEWS, Kiwanis club, Rotary club, Lions club, Panhandle Insurance, junior chamber of commerce, American Legion, and one or two others.

Magnolias Want Game for Sunday

The Magnolia Mags baseball team wants a game for Sunday afternoon. The boys have been working out for the past two weeks and are fast rounding into form. The Mags won the Gray-Carson league last season with only one defeat.

The team will play at home or away. A game can be scheduled by calling Rayburn Burke at 268 or writing in care of the Magnolia Petroleum company. The Mags have lost only two of last year's players. Several new players have been out for practice and another good team should be fielded this season.

James Carleton Is Cardinal Twirler

BRADENTON, Fla., March 30 (AP)—James "Tex" Carleton, who played with Houston in the Texas League last year, is one of six pitchers who have been selected as starters for the St. Louis Cardinals when the National league race opens.

Jim Lindsey, Bill Hallahan, Paul Derringer, Flint Rhem and Sylvester Johnson are the five others already decided upon. Decisions concerning six other pitchers on the Cardinals' training roster are being withheld by Manager Street pending further observation.

Junior Squad Has Promising Athletes

The Junior track and field squad under Coach Warren Moore is not idle. The boys in the junior division of the high school are working out daily. Fifteen boys have reported for training and they are doing everything the senior division is engaged in.

Edward Wood appears to be the all-around athlete. He has been stepping fast in all track events. Warren Finley broad-jumped 18 feet 6 inches last night for a junior record. He also jumped 5 feet in the high jump event.

Other members of the squad who are showing up well in practice are Tom Rose, Jr., Lawrence McBece, R. F. Ragsdale, Baston Harbow, Jose Mendoza and others.

SERIES START TODAY

DALLAS, March 30 (AP)—The Dallas Steers and Rochester Redwings of the International league, 1931, little world series champions, were ready today for the opener of a three-game series. In an exhibition game at Waxahatchie yesterday, the Steers played a 1-0 tie against the Waxahatchie Woodmen.

BUFF ROSTER LOW

HOUSTON, March 30 (AP)—The Buff's roster was down to 18 today with the release of three rookies. McFarland, outfielder, was released to Mobile, and Harwood, pitcher, to Springfield of the western association.

The Buffs play Galveston Saturday and Sunday.

LYONS PLANS COMEBACK

SHREVEPORT, March 30 (AP)—The Ted Lyons who won 22 games for the Chicago White Sox in 1930, but fattened out last season, appears set for a real comeback. The shoulder injury which had crippled him last year has healed, and in his two appearances in competition he has allowed but three hits in seven innings.

AVERILL RAISES AVERAGE

NEW ORLEANS, March 30 (AP)—Earl Averill, home-run king of the Cleveland Indians, ran his training season batting average to .471 yesterday, by banging out three singles as the Tribe defeated Toledo, 4 to 0. Hilderbrand turned in a pleasing hurling performance by holding the Hens to five hits in five innings, without extending himself. Wes Ferrell gave no hits in the final four stanzas.

RAJAH BOTHERED

LOS ANGELES, March 30 (AP)—Among other things, Manager Rogers Hornsby is bothered about the Chicago Cubs cleanup hitter problem. The rajah wishes to use a left-handed batsman in the number four spot but Lance Richbourg, Vince Barton nor Johnny Moore have shown a tendency to push down fences.

CATS PLAY BIRDS

FORT WORTH, March 30 (AP)—Feeling somewhat better, the Columbus Red Birds, who after losing 10 consecutive games finally beat Houston yesterday, they arrived today to play Fort Worth in a three game series. Lil Stoner was expected to go to the big league club. If the weather is unfavorable younger and harder men with less educated arms will be called to service.

PHILLIES CRUMBLE CRACKERS

ATLANTA, March 30 (AP)—Having won two consecutive games from the Atlanta Crackers, the Phillies were after a third conquest today. The Richmen won yesterday, 7 to 3, and never were in danger.

Burt Shotton dropped Bill Woodington and Homer Dudley, right and left-handed pitchers, respectively, to the Durham club, with which the Phils have a working agreement.

A'S AND REDS PLAY

ORLANDO, Fla., March 30 (AP)—The Athletics and the Cincinnati Reds meet in exhibition game today. The A's 4 to 3 defeat of the Boston Braves yesterday was the third they had suffered at the hands of the Bostonians this season, and it brought their record for the season thus far to eight victories and five defeats.

DODGER STICK ACTIVE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 30 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, will do their scoring in bunches this season if Manager Max Carey has read the signs aright. "A rival pitcher may be able to keep our boys in check for four or five innings," Carey observes, "but to do so through a whole game is going to be tough. When good hitters like Wright, Wilson, Stripp, Cucinello and Frederick click in the same inning they're going to score a flock of runs in a hurry."

SEES GIANTS YEAR

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30 (AP)—Bill Terry of the New York-Giants predicts this is the Giants' year. He bases his hopes not on the power in the Giant lineup alone but on two factors that he thinks will hurt the champion St. Louis Cardinals. "They'll miss Burchleigh Grimes," says Bill, "and they'll not beat Cincinnati 15 times in the first six weeks of the season as they did last year."

OLIVER BUILDING REP

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 30 (AP)—Tom Oliver of the Red Sox is building himself a reputation here as a flashy outfielder. Yesterday he continued his record of a daily, sensational, running back catch. Manager Collins was pleased with the stick work of his players yesterday, as they piled up 13 hits in beating Newark, 8 to 2.

Hoover Is Rapped by Two Senators

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—An additional group of states selecting convention delegates and presidential candidates this week shared attention of political observers today with anti-Hoover utterances of two western republican senators.

Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, who is definitely identified with the independent group of the Senate, said in an interview that conditions remaining as they are, he was not going to support the Hoover administration in the November elections. Nye himself must seek to be returned at that time. The recent primaries in this state were conspicuous for the number of Republicans voting on the Democratic lists.

Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico, just chosen republican national committeeman for his state, again expressed himself against nomination of President Hoover but promised to "support the interests of the republican party so long as I can conscientiously do so."

CANDIDATE WET

DALLAS, March 30 (AP)—Walter J. Reid, candidate for congress from this district, is now a wet in name as well as in political belief. District Judge Robert B. Allen yesterday granted his petition that his name be changed from Walter J. Wallace Reid to Walter J. Wet Reid.

REDS VS. A'S

TAMPA, Fla., March 30 (AP)—Cincinnati's Reds moved on Orlando to tackle the Athletics today, hoping only that the "breaks" of the grapefruit season won't be repeated when the "big show" starts next month. The Reds yesterday overcame a seven run lead rolled up by the New York Yankees, only to lose in the eighth on a pass and two scratch hits off Walter Ehler. The final score was 9 to 7.

COLLIER LOSES JOB

LOS ANGELES, March 30 (AP)—The axe has fallen again in the Detroit Tiger training squad and this time Orin Collier, recruit pitcher, from Evansville of the Three-I League, is the victim. He is released to Beaumont of the Texas League on option. Vic Sorrell, veteran, yesterday became the first Tiger pitcher of the spring to finish a game he started. He subdued the Chicago Cubs 8 to 3.

Tips on CONTRACT

Deceiving The Enemy BY TOM O'NEIL

A little slam in clubs with 100 honors when he could have been set is among the tournament accomplishments of Walter Malowan, one of the stars of the Cavendish Club of New York.

A deceitful discard caused the enemy to lead hearts when by a spade the declarer's reentry to dummy and with it hope of success with the contract would have vanished.

Their and:

The hand was a laydown for three no trump, but Malowan's success with the club contract gave his side high mark for the board.

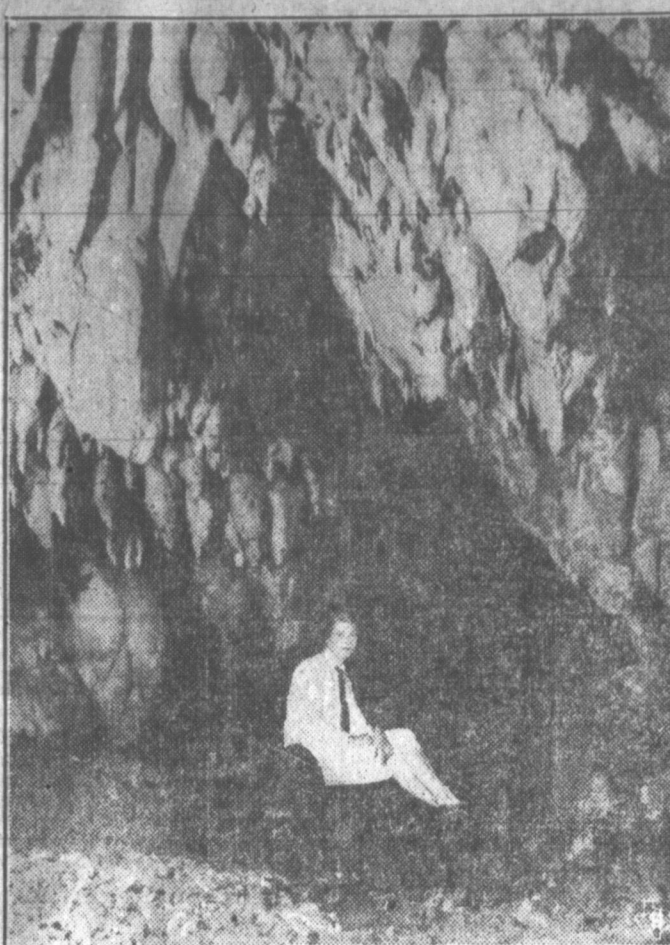

West led a club as the least harmful of unsatisfactory leads. South won and led his diamond, West ducking for fear of setting up the diamonds in dummy.

North won with the queen and returned a small diamond, which South trumped. South led up to the king of clubs in dummy and north then led the king of diamonds upon which South discarded a small heart.

Malowan's only chance was to fool the defense and he did so with the discard. West thought South was trying to get rid of hearts. After West took the king of diamonds with his ace he led a small heart, giving Malowan the rest of the tricks—two hearts, three clubs, one spade and two diamonds, upon which two spades in the South hand were discarded.

A spade lead would have removed Malowan's only entry to dummy. He could not have entered dummy to play two good diamonds. Hew could have lost two spades and made only four instead of six tricks over book.

Rival of Carlsbad Found in Texas

A party headed by Frank E. Nicholson has invaded the sanctity of a huge cavern held inviolate for centuries by a wall of water, and has discovered therein a gigantic mile-and-a-half long chamber of imposing grandeur. The cave is located on the Al Gray ranch, near Boerne, Texas. The small entrance to the cave was known to residents around it, but they thought it ended with water near the entrance. A natural dam was broken, however, and explorers entered the unfathomed region through the small aperture formed. Above is Mrs. Nicholson inside the cavern. White crickets, beetles and crayfish were found in the cave.

stepped into water over their heads. Conner, who could not swim, seized a dead limb at the edge of the water and called to the girls to hang on. Marjorie Heartiens, 11, and Maydell Johnson, 13, grasped the limb but the Stark girl sank.

Archbishop Kept Under Guard Now

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30 (AP)—Archbishop Francisco Orozco Y. Jimenez of Mexico was under guard here yesterday while police investigated a plot to kidnap or assassinate him.

The guard was thrown about a Catholic dominican fathers priory, where Archbishop Orozco was a guest, at the request of Very Rev. Edward J. Whelan, president of San Francisco university.

Father Whelan told police he had heard of the plot from a Spanish speaking priest who had, in turn,

The People Do Know and No Maybe About It!

Greetings from THE CITIZENS LEAGUE OF PAMPA AND GRAY COUNTY, organized for the sole purpose of ECONOMY and better Government, presents to the voters as their standard bearers for election on April 5: Ernest E. Reynolds for Mayor, W. C. deCordova for Commissioner No. 1., Robert Woodward for Commissioner No. 2.

THE PEOPLE DO KNOW AND NO MAYBE ABOUT IT, the League being organized for Economy, because of mismanagement of the present clique. Much water has flown over the wheel and to avoid this in the future, we are in politics, which politics means according to best construction: "THE SCIENCE OF GOVERNMENT, and as example of mismanagement, we quote the following: The last water well was contracted for $29,000; bonds were issued dated September 1st, 1931, bearing 5 1/2% interest, and the first bonds maturing Sept. 1st, 1940, and serially thereafter. The interest on these bonds, up to date of first maturity, is $14,355, and interest thereafter, up to date of last redemption of bonds in 1953, $10,780, making a total interest item of $25,135 plus the $29,000, a total cost of this well $54,135. And when a baby is born today, at his becoming of age, he will be paying his share of the bonds in 1953.

Think of it—$54,135—for one well. Think of it, will the well be still giving water? This means 23 years. Think of it! Even into the next generation we are saddling the debts!

Very respectfully,
THE CITIZENS LEAGUE of PAMPA and Gray County

2 Different Methods of Shopping WHICH DO YOU USE?

There are two methods of shopping. But which method you use makes a great deal of difference, since you always want satisfaction from the things you buy.

Some people shop in such a trustful fashion. They merely ask for a can of peaches, a tube of tooth-paste or a box of aspirin. Because they never specify what brands they want, they are always at the mercy of the clerk. No wonder people who buy this way are often so dissatisfied!

Other shoppers, who know by experience or the reputations of certain products which brands are dependable, ask for these brands specifically by name. And they insist on getting the products they ask for, even though some clerk may urge them to try something "just as good."

Isn't it better to buy this way? Isn't it wiser to ask for what you want, what you know is always good—refusing other products of which you know nothing?

Stores which try to sell you unknown products in place of those you ask for, usually do so for a selfish purpose. The dealer often reaps an extra profit, or the clerk a commission, by switching you to the unknown merchandise!

Many of the best stores everywhere forbid this practise. When you buy from them you are always sure of getting exactly what you ask for, with full value in the merchandise you want for every penny you spend.

But if you are offered something "just as good" as the thing you ask for, refuse it! Demand packaged products which you know by experience, by brand, or by the reputations of their makers. You will often see such products advertised in this newspaper.

Ask for what you want! Insist on getting it! Millions of women have found this simple rule the surest guide to shopping satisfaction.

KITTY FREW by JANE ABBOTT

SYNOPSIS: Disagreement causes Kitty Frew and her husband's half-brother, David, for David wants her to live with her mother and Kitty wishes to live with her father. Her only dependant, Gar, that he must not live in his mother's house, causes a temporary separation, but makes Gar agree to support her.

CHAPTER 25

AN OVER-STUFFED APARTMENT

HER thrust did not move David to instant denial. For a moment he seemed to consider what answer he would make, his eyes leveled on a spot beyond Kitty's head, his brows drawn together.

"I haven't thought of offending you—that it made any difference one way or another what I said. Of course I don't want you to go away. In fact, I have missed you quite a bit more than I like." He kept his voice flat.

"Oh, that's nice, that you've missed me! David, because Gar's a little well, prejudiced, is not going to make a bit of difference in the way I feel. Do you think I can ever forget how kind you've been to me? And I'm going to see you often. You must tell me things about what you're doing. You can't throw your manuscript away; you've got to finish it so that I can read it. Why, David, think how thrilled I'll be when I hold a book in my hands and know that my brother David wrote it!"

He laughed at her genuine excitement. "Even if I finish it I may not find a publisher who wants it."

"Of course you will! You mustn't hold that thought. It's your old fear of ridicule, David! I know it's good—Dorcas believes it is."

"Oh—Dorcas. She's believed other things of me that haven't turned out so well!"

"David!" Kitty yielded to an impulse. "David, why don't you marry Dorcas?" She flushed a little at her daring.

"Why? What have I to offer her? I'm thirty, more or less disagreeable, earning a paltry amount a week, writing stuff that anyone could write, that she calls drizzle—"

"But Dorcas—"

"You know her well enough yourself to understand that compromise is the last thing Dorcas would consider."

"Then stand up!" Kitty cried, borrowing Dorcas' words and manner. "Finish that book!"

He smiled at her.

"If you talk to Gar like that I have hopes for the boy."

But he had put her interest in himself aside; Kitty felt silenced. And when she left him, a block or two from the Tudor Arms, he did not say anything about hoping to see her soon. She would, though, she told herself as she went on. She'd see Dorcas, too.

She and Gar had sublet the apartment in the Tudor Arms the day after Gar had met her outside of Stratton's. It was an over-gorgeous thing of three rooms and a bath, a cubicle of a living-room paneled in black and green and hung with orange silk draperies and seemingly padded with soft fat orange and black pillows scattered over the chairs and the floor and the legless divan. Where there was space in the clutter of orange and black pillows were big and little tables and lamps on standards and lamps without standards. An Italian table and buffet, designed for a state dining-room, were crowded into the limited dimensions of the dinette and the tiny bedroom was smothered in green and orchid pleatings.

"The agent said we could move in today." That settled their choice.

"Did you ever see such a little stove, Gar? I'll cook our supper on it tonight. It'll just about cook enough for two—"

"When we get settled we'll have the crowd in, Kit."

It hadn't been possible to settle quickly for Kitty had to puzzle and scheme and pack and repack to stow away even their personal belongings. The crowd hadn't waited. They'd come in a few evenings after Kitty and Gar took possession of the place, Marge and Diana and Isabel Peters and Red and Tubby and Sewall Buck, and, a little later, Paul Somerset.

They'd been riotously gay. Red had brought a satchel filled with the makings for cocktails and he and Gar had mixed them, shaker after shaker, until Kitty's neat kitchen was cluttered with peelings and bottle tops and empty bottles. Kitty had assembled sandwiches and cakes and olives and coffee. At half-past nine the operator at the desk in the lobby called to say that a complaint had come in about the noise and everyone had shrieked at that—everyone except Kitty. The party was a success! They went at three o'clock, leaving the living-room in a sorry mess of tumbled pillows and empty glasses and plates and cigarette stubs with a pall of stale cigarette smoke hanging over everything.

"Now that's the kind of evening I like—I hope the crowd sort of makes our place a headquarters." Gar had declared with immense satisfaction.

"I don't like Paul Somerset, Gar." "Oh, he's all right for his kind. Marge is just having a little fun—I've talked it over with her."

Gar's friends had seemed more friendly. Or perhaps, Kitty had thought as she fussed in the kitchen over the refreshments, it was that she felt different toward them, now, in her role as hostess. Tubby had seized a chance to squeeze her hand and ask her if he wasn't Mr. Frisk? "You can count on me, Kit. I'm not going to breathe a word about it." She'd wished she could tell him that she wasn't ashamed of working in Stratton's but there had been no time, then. Tubby thought of it as Gar did.

She'd hated having Paul Somerset come; she'd caught herself watching him with Margery Crosby, and thinking of Carol. Was he seeing Carol now? Or had their quarrel at the Hoffman that day ended their acquaintance?

It had taken her the greater part of the next day to restore order to their doll's house. But she had worked cheerfully; Gar had liked his evening.

Pleasing Gar gave glamor to her every thought, every task.

Her pride in Gar, her belief that he could do anything, was wholly restored. She shared his importance when he talked about his work. His father had transferred to his office one Jonathan Drew who, in one capacity or another, had served Dalton and Winters for fifteen years. Gar called him Old John. Gar said he was as faithful as an old hound dog. He had laughed at Kitty's dismay one morning when they both overslept. "Old John can talk to that man who was coming in at ten o'clock. What have I got him for?" And she had lost her alarm in a little rush of pride that Gar had important conferences and Old John under him to take care of them until he got around.

Gar was the lover of those first weeks of their marriage. She felt no jealousy when the Players demanded his time. Frequently he telephoned that he'd be late for dinner, he had to see Decker, or someone else, sometimes Margery Crosby. Now and then a committee met in the evening. But she had not felt left out, as she had at his mother's house; there was always his homecoming, a moment apart from all others in its ecstasy of closeness.

Oh, if David could only know half how happy she was, she thought as she opened her door, returning from having tea with David.

Gar had telephoned earlier in the day that he would be late, tonight. There was some trouble with the lighting at the Little Theater. She mustn't wait dinner for him.

She wouldn't cook anything for herself. When Gar came she'd make a mushroom omelette.

And as she stitched on a handkerchief she was making for her father's Christmas box she thought of David and the pleasantness of her encounter with him. He'd tried very hard to be disagreeable. At most as if he weren't glad things had straightened out with her and Gar. But it was silly to think he really felt that way, he'd said so often that he wanted her to be happy, he'd only seemed half-hearted because he was in low spirits, discouraged.

"I'm glad I talked, straight from the shoulder to him," Kitty mused, smiling down at her busy fingers. "And I'll do it, every chance I get!" Her own rosy security made her the more compassionate for David. She'd seen him, often. She'd invite David and Dorcas up to the apartment for supper some night.

Of course David was too proud to ask Dorcas to marry him. He'd said Dorcas wouldn't compromise. That's all he knew about women—But at this point in her thoughts Kitty felt a sharp prick of memory. That day out in the little house, David had said to her: "The most you can do is compromise and then you won't be anywhere." That was David's feeling, now, that she'd compromised, with her self-respect, perhaps he thought, or with her ambitions.

Kitty sees an untroubled life ahead. But Marge Crosby shows her determination to capture Gar's interest, tomorrow.

of his daughter, Rita, who disappeared Friday.

In a room in a downtown hotel, police said, they found Miss Bray quietly talking with Arthur Lake, 24, a friend of long standing.

The girl and the two men were placed in jail. Detectives later announced all three had confessed they plotted to obtain money so Miss Bray and Lake could be married. Clifford, it was explained, assisted merely as a friend.

"I was the cause of it all," Arthur said as he was taken to the jail. "I wanted to get married, but he had no job. I wrote the first letter to dad and I watched two other letters being written. I didn't think father would take it as hard as he did."

feeted corporate incomes, oil pipe lines, airplanes and gift taxes and were estimated to produce $45,000,000.

Yields Estimated

The committee estimated the proposals would bring in $45,000,000, as follows: An increase of 1 1/2 per cent in corporate income tax and a similar 1 1/2 per cent tax on consolidated and affiliated returns, the two boosts to yield $23,000,000; a five per cent tax on the manufacturers price of airplanes, $2,000,000; an increase to 3 1/2 per cent in the maximum gift tax rate, $5,000,000.

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—

United once more, with factional bitterness laid aside, the house today was deep in a drive to pass the huge revenue bill by the end of the week.

The extraordinary response to Speaker Garner's appeal from the floor yesterday had the unwieldy membership working like a machine, approving new provisions for raising the necessary tax money faster than the ways and means committee could draft them.

Important opposition was all but eliminated. There was in sight some difficulty about the proposal to raise letter postage from two to three cents, which is calculated to yield $135,000,000, and a new vote was to be sought on the three per cent automobile tax, but for the rest the framers of the bill saw clear sailing at last.

Sums Questioned

The biggest question at this stage, however, was whether the various new taxes could be counted on to yield the sums estimated by the committee. Treasury experts studied them closely and house leaders appeared determined to build up the list of producing items until revenue in the neighborhood of a billion dollars was assured.

The administration, however, was turning a skeptical eye on the democratic expectations of reducing appropriations $245,000,000 under the White House's budget estimates. Of this, $113,000,000 already has been cut from the budget by the appropriations committee.

With the new revenue bill slated to yield about $900,000,000, the saving of $245,000,000 will be essential to meet the calculated deficit of $241,000,000 for the next fiscal year.

Sandstorm Brings Lower Temperature

A Sky filled with dust and sand was clearing this morning as the sun broke through. A strong north wind which sent the mercury to a low of 34 degrees early this morning still blew over this section this afternoon. The sand storm struck the city after dark last night.

Drying was made dangerous by the clouds of dust which blew across roads.

AMARILLO, March 30 (AP)—A brisk north wind cooled the Texas Panhandle today while the sun found difficulty in breaking through a haze-curtained sky. The minimum temperature in Amarillo last night was 35 degrees. At 10:30 a. m. the mercury had climbed to 42 degrees. The forecast provides for fair skies tonight with freezing temperatures, and fair and warmer Thursday.
