

LOCAL TRACK SQUAD ENTERS LARGE MEET

GREEN BUT NOT SLOW OUTFIT GOING TO AMARILLO

The fast Pampa high school track and field squad will enter the first annual Amarillo college meet Saturday. Coach Odus Mitchell announced yesterday afternoon. He has put his squad through a week of stiff practice and announced himself well pleased.

With the exception of Joe Kahl, Leon Robinson, Wayne Kelley, and Robert Woodward, the team is new and green. The boys made an excellent showing in the county meet at LeFors two weeks ago. The Harvesters will be up against tough opposition but expect to make a good showing. The tournament will replace the annual NEWS-GLOBE tournament.

Coach Mitchell announced yesterday that he would take the following boys:

- 100-yard dash—Joe Kahl, Dick Sullins and Bert Stevens.
- 120-yard high hurdles—Parks Brumley, Jess Patton and Wayne Kelley.
- 880-yard run—Bill Finley.
- 220-yard low hurdles—Joe Kahl, Leon Robinson and Jess Patton.
- 440 yard dash—Orville Heiskell, Bert Stevens and Leon Robinson.
- 220-yard dash—Joe Kahl, Dick Sullins and Leon Robinson or Bert Stevens.
- Mile run—Jack Boyington.
- Pole vault—Robert Woodward and Dick Sullins.
- High jump—Wayne Kelley, Orville Heiskell and Clinton Adair.
- Discus—John Pafford, Bill Finley and Miles Marbaugh.
- Broad jump—Ralph O'Keefe, Robert Woodward and Joe Kahl.
- Shot put—John Pafford.
- Javelin—Wayne Kelley and Miles Marbaugh.
- Relay—Joe Kahl, Orville Heiskell, Leon Robinson, Dick Sullins.

Sport Slants

by ALAN J. GOULD

This is probably as appropriate a time as any we have known for international athletic authorities to quite kidding themselves about the sanctity and purity of amateur sport.

The apparent attempt to make the great Paavo Nurmi the "goat" at the behest of European promoters, charging him with professionalism, will not remedy conditions that have existed in many countries.

If the international federation wholeheartedly desired to "clean house" in advance of the Olympics, it would first be obliged to discipline club promoters and then wipe the slates clean of most of the star talent in every leading nation.

This is not to say there are no real simon-pure performers in track and field sports, but outside of the colleges, the athletes who do not benefit in one way or another from their reputations are few and far between.

If they do not accept money, the star athletes receive favors in other ways or are helped to capitalize their reputations in a legitimate way.

What harm is there in it, after all, so long as an athlete gives his best efforts in competition?

If eyes and ears can be shut where the fair-haired boys are concerned, why not admit the facts of semi-professionalism openly and have a new deal all around in athletics? Better to have heresy than hypocrisy.

You never hear of a polo player's amateur standing being questioned? Why? Because this great sport has no old-fashioned rules or technical requirements other than that the player must have a horse and be a genuine sportsman.

Finished Gold Mine

When Paavo Nurmi came to the United States for the first time in 1925, the winter after his greatest Olympic triumphs, American promoters trampled on one another in their eagerness to book the Phantom Phinn for foot races.

This situation was like a subway rush the day after Nurmi's debut in the old Madison Square Garden. More than 5,000 persons had been turned away and influential citizens of this and other countries willingly paid as high as $200 for a single ticket of admission.

Here was a new flow of gold at the gate. Quite naturally inducements were offered to Nurmi's representatives. The competition was keen and there was no disposition on the part of promoters to expect Paavo to travel in nothing but first-class style.

All the fuss was somewhat annoying to Nurmi himself. His requirements as to living accommodations were simple. He shied away from these impulsive Americans who talked a very fantastic language. Paavo was willing to run as long as he felt all right. That was the only language he knew—foot-racing—and he knew it better than any other runner of his time.

I do not know how much, if anything, Nurmi profited from his American tours. He was cleared of anything damaging to his amateur standing when the A. A. U. sifted rumors about him. Certainly the promoters, in the long run, did give Paavo any of the best of whatever bargains he may have made. And subsequently the Pan gave no manifestations of enjoying sudden or even moderate wealth. He merely went back to work in Finland.

TRIVERS TO BECOME PRO

Once Great Golfer Forced Out of His Seat in Cotton Exchange.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Jerome D. Travers, four-times national amateur champion, has decided on a career as a "business man-golfer."

Forced by economic conditions to sell his seat on the New York cotton exchange recently, Travers has been considering the possibility of capitalizing on his skill at golf.

"I have decided to give up my amateur standing and become a business man-golfer," he said in a terse announcement of his intentions. "I do not care to add to that statement nor to make known my plans at this time."

Even at 45, his friends believe Travers still has good years of golf ahead of him. He has been out of active competition since 1919 when he qualified for the national amateur at Oakmont only to be eliminated in the first round.

Travers was only 20 when he first won the national amateur title in 1907 and challenged the supremacy of Walter J. Travis, the "old man." Travers repeated in 1908 and again in 1912 and 1913.

Schneider's Team Beats All Stars

The Schneider hotel bowling team, which will represent Pampa in Class A bowling at the Texas meet in Wichita Falls next week, won two out of three games from the Pampa All Stars last night. The tournament boys went to pieces in the last game—excepting Bill Holmes, the old veteran who toppled 224 pins for high game of the night.

Lamont Declares Nation Retains Its Exports Readily

WASHINGTON, April 15. (AP)—Secretary Lamont said today the United States, instead of having lost any of its foreign trade prestige in 1931, led the world in exports during that year of economic stringency.

The secretary made the statement in announcing a commerce department tabulation of 1931 exports by states, showing that only seven states and the District of Columbia exported less than $1,000,000 of goods.

He said every state in the Union had a vital interest in the maintenance of foreign trade and that a payroll of a billion and a half dollars to 1,400,000 workers depended upon it.

Murray Snorts That He Is in Race to Finish

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 15. (AP)—With a defiant snort for anyone who says he is going to quit a perfectly good democratic presidential race, "Alfalfa Bill" Murray is back home to run the governor's office the way he wants it run.

Hoarse but vehement, he arrived last night, willing to let the curious "go-ahead and confuse yourselves" at to exactly why he rushed away from an incomplete campaign tour in Oregon. But he made two things clear.

"I never quit a fight," he said. "Frank Roosevelt" will not be nominated.

QUEER BANK ROBBERY

LIGONIER, Pa., April 15. (AP)—While 15 directors and officers of the Ligonier National bank met 20 feet away, a package of bonds valued at $50,000 was stolen from the vault of the institution. G. C. Frank, president of the bank, said today the theft was perpetrated Tuesday night and was discovered by a clerk the following morning. Secrecy was maintained in the matter while a state bank examiner investigated.

Stimson Arrives In Paris on Way To Geneva Session

PARIS, April 15. (AP)—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson arrived in Paris today from Havre where he disembarked from the liner Ile de France this morning.

He was greeted at the station by Premier Andre Tardieu, former Premier Pierre Laval and a large crowd. Among the crowd which greeted him were several of those who accompanied former Premier Laval on his trip to Washington last fall.

He planned to spend only today in Paris and then to go on to Geneva. "I'm going to get behind and push things there," he said.

Two Arrests Made During Beer Raid

Two arrests were made and 172 bottles of beer and beer-making equipment were seized in connection with a raid made by H. C. Cottrell, county police officer, yesterday.

Equipment confiscated included stone jars, one copper, three boxes of caps, two cans of malt, one siphon, one hydrometer and eight gallons of green beer.

The beer and equipment were turned over to county officers who filed charges against the pair, a man and a woman. Each was released on a $500 bond.

Developed for Fire Engines
Yours at no extra price

The U. S. Government specifies for its emergency use
 "... a grade of motor fuel which is suitable for ambulances, fire-engines, emergency vehicles,—"
 (Excerpt from Federal pamphlet VV-M-571, July 21, 1931)

The Texas Company produced it for your every-day use — a vastly superior motor fuel with every quality which makes for finer carburetion and instant power. Authorities said that the gasoline specified by the Government could not be produced for general consumption at any reasonable price until—

That gasoline is the new Texaco Fire-Chief. It surpasses the highest U. S. Government specifications for "emergency" fuel. It is an anti-knock gasoline with an octane rating that is outstanding—it's alive with snap, dash, action—brimming over with eager power.

Confirm this good news for yourself—today! One tankful of this sensational new gasoline will demonstrate power that is power. At 60,000 dealers in all our 48 States.

THE MORAL SIDE

When Dr. William Oxley Thompson, president emeritus of Ohio State University, told an audience of college men the other day that the real issues facing the country today are not economic but moral, a good many of his hearers probably treated themselves to a skeptical "Oh, yeah?"

Industry is stagnant, agriculture is on the rocks, millions of men are out of work and there are headlines in every city—and the main issues are not economic? It is easy to be skeptical about that statement.

Now we are paying for it all. We are discovering that schemes which boost sales and profits can be horribly wrong if they do not make allowances for the intangible human values. If we are told, now, that it is time for us to give our attention chiefly to moral issues, we ought not to be surprised.

It is probably that the country will never again be as completely absorbed in material things as it was during the past 10 years. That attitude, inevitably, leads to a blind tumble into a ditch.

Suppression of Giggles in Chapel Is Major Problem, But Informality Helps; There's Seriousness Also

BY A. F.
It's fun to attend high school chapel in April—especially if the day is splendid with the cool, stinging sunlight that made Wednesday nice.

Before you know it the high school gym is full of youth—shouting, giggling, laughing, some glad to miss a class and a few sorry. Every boy is ready to haw-haw and every girl is ready to giggle at the least little thing that goes wrong or right. Supr. R. B. Fisher knows this, and at intervals throughout the program he gives them opportunities to laugh so they can get the giggles out of their system.

The high school teachers are scattered over the auditorium. Here's Mr. Gordon sitting in the bleachers beside Wayne Kelley. There's Mr. Workman sitting behind Jess Patton. There's Mr. Stone sitting on a high seat overlooking the gym floor.

Program "Colorful"
First thing on the program is Mr. Fisher. He explains the program is going to be in three parts. He warns the students that the second part is going to be "colorful" and that it would be the civilized thing not to laugh when the pupils and teacher of the negro school furnish their part of the program. The superintendent, knowing that the high school boys and girls have got to "work off" some of their energy, talks informally and allows them to laugh.

Next thing on the program is an oration by a high school student. It is highly serious. It is a warm and colorful oration and it is delivered as an oration should be, and it became more entertaining when the orator forgot in the middle of his speech. That gave the irrepressible students an opportunity to suppress a giggle, and the superintendent a chance to smile with them.

Next thing was the negroes. About a dozen of them. They sang negro songs, "O Mary Don't You Weep," and others, but we wished for "Golden Slipper." The dozen negro pupils ranged in ages from six to 15 years. They also were informal, and one little girl slapped a little black boy on the arm when he tried to run away with the song. When the children left the stage, their teacher sang "The Holy City" for 10 minutes.

Parks "Faw Down"
Mr. Fisher on the floor again. By that time 40 minutes had passed and all the students were squirming in their seats, slyly whispering and suppressing giggles. Time to laugh again, and the superintendent helped them along. The big laugh of the period came when Parks Brumley, who had been squirming in his chair and acting as if he wanted to sit on the back of it, fell to the floor with a bang, his chair slipping out from under him. Parks got a great hand and he acknowledged it in the manner of boxers and wrestlers.

Then Mr. Fisher got serious. He talked for 15 minutes about a word. It was "finish." His talk was inspirational. He made them realize the importance of finishing a race, a lesson, a high school course, and everything else that is worthy. Later he spoke with feeling of his associations with the students during the last year; urged them to finish "in high"; urged them to be honorable and loyal.

Followed announcements. More laughter, and especially when Mr.

PAYS BACK EXCESS FEES
DALLAS, April 15. (AP)—D. C. Whiteley, former Dallas county clerk, paid $2,373.48 into the county treasury late yesterday. The sum represented excess fees to which auditors said he was not entitled and additional shortages in the account of his former chief deputy already under indictment for embezzlement. Auditors filed a report on Whiteley's administration for 1930.

BOY FATALLY HURT
TERRELL, April 15. (AP)—Injuries suffered in a truck accident were fatal last night to Milton Clemmons, 17, of Lawrence. The truck he was driving collided with a concrete culvert and burned on the highway near Ben Wheeler Thursday.

TWO MEN HANGED
WALLA WALLA, Wash., April 15. (AP)—Harold Carpenter, 20, and Walter Dubuc, 19, were hanged at the Washington state prison today for the slaying of Peter Jacobsen, 88, a farmer, in a robbery near Olympia Wash., last July.

MOURNERS ROBBED
BARTLESVILLE, Okla., April 15. (AP)—Two masked invaders of a house in mourning were hunted today for a $1,600 robbery. Slipping into a rear door, the robbers terrorized a family just returned from burial services at Tulsa for H. M. May, founder of a group of large clothing stores. Working behind drawn blinds, they made away with diamonds and watches.

A "miraculous" image of a dead girl on a mirror drew curious thousands to a house in St. Louis, recently.

Fisher said that when he gives his program next year, he would sing a song, his wife (who blushed) would play the piano and his son Brent would dance a jig. The students laughed again and the adults with them when the superintendent hoped they enjoyed the "colorful" program.

KITTY FREW

by JANE ABBOTT

SYNOPSIS: Kitty Frew is awakened in the middle of the night by the noise in charge of her husband, Gar, who has been hurt in an automobile crash. The accident has brought Kitty and Gar together, after Gar's mother fought against Kitty, just as she estranged her step-son, David.

Chapter 39

"HE'S MINE"

"SHE didn't have time to call you—" Miss Bixby mumbled. Kitty pushed her aside; she caught up a negligee and threw it over her shoulders as she ran to Gar's room. To her agonized senses it seemed as if there was a crowd around Gar's bed, the night nurse, two internees—she pushed them savagely out of her way. How dared they stand so between her and Gar?

Miss Bixby came up behind her, put shaking hands on her to draw her back.

"There wasn't a minute, Mrs. Frew! He just went to sleep like-like he is now."

"You mean?" The words came shrilly, unbelievably.

"It was embolus, Mrs. Frew. It happens, sometimes—"

"You'd better come away, Mrs. Frew."

Kitty put out her hands. "Go—go, all of you. I'm—I'm all right."

stairs, a glass in her hand. A d d had shut somewhere.

David had taken Kitty to Dorcas. Dorcas had given her her own room, using another room on the floor for herself.

"I'm all right!" Kitty had said, bravely. "Just tell me something to do."

And Dorcas had found small-tasks for her. "If you'll get my scrap book into shape you'll save my sanity." She'd dumped an accumulation of clippings into Kitty's empty hands.

Kitty had refused David's urging to go back to Bridgewater.

"Oh, no, David."

She never talked of Gar; what of longing and sorrow and loneliness she suffered she hid behind her steady smile, her sober, hurt eyes.

The Frew house was closed, Mrs. Frew, after weeks of prostration, had gone to California, taking Miss Bixby with her. Dalton Frew was living at his club, Carol and Paul Somerset were occupying the rooms over the garage on Elmwood Terrace. David had told Kitty all this but she had listened indifferently as if those people of whom he spoke were strangers to her.

She never thought of her brief resentment against Dorcas, or of what had been its cause; if she had David waited for Kitty's control to break. Oh, go, please—He's mine, I tell you!"

On an afternoon four months later Ketchum Street had haked under the August heat. But in late afternoon a little breeze sprang up to bring a saving freshness to the heavy air. It stirred the curtains at Dorcas Taber's open windows. Kitty lifted the shades which she had drawn against the merciless sun. It was six o'clock, Dorcas would be home soon. Supper was ready—iced tea in the big glass pitcher, fragrant with mint, a big bowl of green salad, thin slices of chicken.

She set a table close to the windows where they could feel the little breeze. Three places—David would come.

Perhaps he'd had some word from his publishers. When she heard a step on the stairs she ran to open the door.

"David, have you heard?"

He laughed at her eagerness. He drew a long breath. "Say, this is cool here!"

"But, David, have you heard?"

He took a yellow slip of paper from his pocket and put it in her hand.

"Little Lady" is all that we expected. We are in luck." She read the telegram aloud.

"Oh, David, I'm so glad! But I knew it was good."

"Well, that's that. What have you been doing to-day?"

He was regarding her with close anxiety. Her face, thinner now, was colorless, her eyes, with their sober, hurt look, seemed wider, deeper set and the long lashes made little shadows against the transparency of her cheeks. Her steady smile stabbed David's heart.

"Oh, I'm fine! I've stayed in to-day and it hasn't been bad here at all. I've been very busy." She nodded toward a sewing basket.

Kitty had been living in the house on Ketchum Street since that day in April, when, bewildered, her heart a dead thing, she had put her hand in David's. "Take me—away." The heavy fragrance of flowers had filled the empty rooms of the Frew house. Jones had been moving things in the drawing-room. Miss Bixby had been running up the wide thought of it she would have put it with the things that did not matter. All these weeks David had watched her with deep concern. He'd seen her grow thinner, paler. "If I could reach her—" he'd think, torn himself, suffering for her.

Now he helped her put the finishing touches to the supper. "I saw Dorcas at the Times office. She said she might be a little late."

He went to the window and stood there, his back to her. "I had a long talk with Dad, to-day, Kitty. He's terribly low. He's had a letter from—Mrs. Frew. She's not coming back here."

"I think it would make him happy—Kitty, he wants you to take an allowance. It's in the bank, anyway, in your name. It's yours, by all rights. Kitty, there's a job for you!"

She did not answer for a moment; when she spoke it was in a slow voice.

"I'm sorry for him. I'm terribly sorry, David. I'm not angry at anyone, why should I be? I'm not angry at—her. I had Gar—in the end." It was the first time, of her own accord, she had spoken of Gar.

He waited for her control to break. But she went on steadily; "What can I do, David?"

"He hates it, cooped up at the club. He's frightfully worn. I was thinking, Kitty—I wish the two of you would go out to the little house for a few weeks. I think it would set Dad up wonderfully. Mrs. Dundy's daughter could come over to help you. I'll run out now and then just to see how you're getting on. There's another thing—I saw Carol to-day. Things are going very badly with her and Somerset. I mean money. Would it be too big a family?" He turned toward her anxiously.

The tears were streaming down Kitty's cheeks. Behind them her eyes glowed, dark, deep with feeling. She put her face against his arm.

"Oh, David, you're so kind!"

He stiffened himself against the desire to take her in his arms. His mouth set sternly though in his eyes lay a great tenderness.

Smith's Attack on Roosevelt Is Sensation of National Politics

WASHINGTON, April 15 (AP)—The opposition of Alfred E. Smith, suddenly and forcefully expressed, today stood across Franklin D. Roosevelt's path toward the presidential nomination of the democratic party.

A stern challenge, with its object unnamed but indisputably identified, was thundered out by the "happy warrior" of 1928 Wednesday in his address to the Jefferson day gathering of the party's great.

Roosevelt was not there. Other business kept him in Albany, but many of his supporters were in the throng which heard Smith, after quoting Roosevelt utterances, promise to "take off my coat and vest and fight to the bitter end any candidate who persists in any democratic appeal to the masses of the working people of this country to destroy themselves by setting class against class and rich against poor."

What He Said

"Some democrats say 'give us a short convention; others say 'nominate a candidate against whom nothing can be said while there cannot be much said for him.' The disposition to gloss over controversial questions in an attempt to please both sides of the argument will bring forth a meaningless document, a colorless candidate and a weakened party. Experience will win nothing for democracy."

EXTRA CHARITY PROGRAM PLANNED BY RACE MEN

BOWIE, Md., April 15 (AP)—Its regular eleven-day meeting ended, the Bowie race track Thursday threw open its gates for an extra charity program.

A regular seven-hit program was arranged, with one purse of $1,200 and six of $1,000 each. Unlike the five charity days of 1931 the "cut" or "take" of the track will be five per cent. Last year it was eight per cent but experts have claimed that the smaller cut will produce more wadding through the parimutuel machines.

The feature will be the welfare mile for three year olds.

An organization calling itself the "normal business council," canvassed Asheville, N. C., and obtained pledges calling for building repairs to cost $100,000.

Compromise Offered

Earlier the group had been startled by the proffer of a compromise wet plank from the dry state of Virginia. Former Governor Harry Flood Byrd proposed immediate amendment of the constitution to make possible a direct referendum by the people, to be held thereafter at a date unmarked by political contests on the direct issue of continuing, abridging or repealing the 18th amendment.

This, with Smith's renewal of his urging for a states' rights plank, allowing states to remain wet or dry

NEW YORK—"The Running Footman," a novel by John Owen, has period quality in an English setting.

Though he is hurrying toward death, John Deere disregards his failing strength and holds to his service of running before his master's coach, because he will not go away from the woman he loves.

She is socially above him, and he accepts the distance between them, and finds for her an idealism that is like her walled garden. In final allegiance, when his work has worn him down, he sets out upon a run of 150 miles to bring her the flowers from that garden which she wants for her wedding.

In power and poignancy of writing, the story of that run sets a hallmark of significance upon the book.

Material that could easily be sentimental, John Owen has made sincere.

Menaces To Peace

China in the east and Germany in the west are the two great danger zones of the world, the scenes upon which the next great war, if there is to be one, will be played, according to Sherwood Eddy, writing in his book, "The World's Danger Zone." Japan in the east and France in the west with their policy of militarism and imperialism, form the two great menaces to world peace, he also says.

Short selling is defended in an authoritative book of that title by J. Edward Meeker, economist for the New York Stock Exchange. Meeker gives new statistics, and argues the usefulness of a "free and open market" as a realistic need, not a platitudinous phrase.

Sir Arthur Salter, formerly director of the League of Nations Economic section, finds that a world with "courage and magnanimity can fight successfully the forces of the depression in his book "Recovery."

What a former diplomat of the defunct German empire thinks about his country today is set forth in "Thoughts On Germany" by Baron Richard von Kuehlmann, foreign minister of Germany in the difficult period which included the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty with Soviet Russia.

The author, a former counselor of the German embassies at Washington and London sees, in common with other veterans of his day, the union of incongruous elements in the old Austro-Hungarian empire as the basic cause of the European troubles that culminated in the world war.

Analyzing A Race's Famous kidnappings, climaxing in the Lindbergh case, are analyzed in Edward Dean Sullivan's "The Snatch Racket."

Among the week's books are "Men Pass" by Marcelle Capy, a story of the women of a French village "carrying on" while the men fought in the World War; J. D. Beresford's novel of English family life, "The Old People;" "Nine Women" of the French Revolution, by Hailma Sokolnikova, and Clarence Buddington Kelland's story of a professor among gangsters and trappers, "Speak Easily."

Damage estimated at $500,000,000 was caused by the Yangtze river flood according to formal report on the final survey.

Blue prints of farm buildings and home conveniences have been made available to farmers by Mississippi State college.
