AUSTIN, July 20. (AP)—The Texas gubernatorial campaign, with but three days to go before the voters sort out the candidates, was at its height today.

Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, aided and abetted by her husband, James E. Ferguson, planned to resume her speaking tour and the other bidders for favors also were heard at it.

Laketon Host This Evening To Political Rally

Political rallies will be held at Laketon tonight and at Webb tomorrow night.

The Webb rally will be held in connection with the dedication of the new school building in that community. John B. Hessey, county superintendent will preside. All districts, county and precinct candidates have been invited to speak at both rallies.

The Laketon meeting is being sponsored by citizens of that community. It will be held at the Laketon school building, about 15 miles east of Pampa on highway 33.

Let's deflate hokum," urges Bruce Barton. O. K., but not by substituting a lot of other hokum for it.

Calling a spade a spade in politics is rarely expedient, as Mr. Calhoun may find after making a single lawsuit the chief issue in the race for attorney general.

The dear public of Texas has a list of 527 state and district candidates to choose from, plus the thousands that seek more local offices. If that number fails to befog the voters with false issues, the country may be safe after all.

The editor of a small Texas magazine accuses a rival of being edited "by a paid representative of certain Texas trusts." That would be bad enough, but far worse would be having a majority of the lawmakers on somebody's payroll in addition to their constituents!

That Ouster Suit. Mr. Allred may deserve some censure for certain phases of his prosecution, but it must be remembered that the anti-trust investigation was ordered by the legislature and the bill signed by Governor Ross Sterling. To finance the probe, $30,000 was voted, and the governor in his message said:

"In this day of combinations of capital and mergers of industries, the anti-trust laws of Texas have become of multibillion importance. Their enforcement must be looked after more scrupulously than at any time before in the history of the state. I compliment any effort of the attorney general in reference to this question. The house of representatives is worthy of the congratulations of the people of Texas for passing the $30,000 appropriation for the attorney general's department. I hope that the senate will pass the bill at their earliest convenience. And I pledge to the attorney general the full cooperation of the entire executive department in relation to all activities pertaining to the enforcement of the anti-trust laws."

How will the governor's race come

MAIN OFFICE WILL MANAGE DEMOS' DRIVE

NO BRANCHES PLANNED BUT STATES TO ASSIST

FARLEY TO BE CHAIRMAN

FINANCE DRIVE WILL BE NEEDED AT ONCE

NEW YORK, July 20. (AP)—The campaign to elect Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt president will be run, as was the campaign to nominate him, through the state organizations, James A. Farley, democratic national chairman, announced today.

There will be a campaign committee, located at the Roosevelt headquarters in New York, but it will assist and co-operate with the state organizations rather than attempt to direct them, Farley said.

For the campaign there will be only one national headquarters, located in New York City. There will be no branch headquarters aside from the regular headquarters in each state.

The office established in Washington by the last national committee will continue to function as a permanent organization of the national committee, Farley said. It was said, however, that it would be run with a skeletonized staff.

Farley said the governor had appointed him chairman of the campaign committee, the personnel of which has not been made up.

The New York headquarters will be located at 331 Madison avenue, headquarters of the pre-convention campaign, and at the Biltmore hotel. Farley said representatives from every section of the country would at all times be at headquarters.

It was understood the plan is to rotate these visitors, each one spending a week or ten days at a time in New York and then being replaced by someone else.

The finances for the campaign, Farley said, "will be raised by a special finance committee, the members of which will be announced later, at which time we shall also announce the campaign treasurer and other fiscal officers."

MARTIAL LAW IN PRUSSIA AS CRISIS IS MET

Von Papen Regime's Cabinet Gusted Today

BERLIN, July 20. (AP)—A virtual dictatorship was established in Prussia by the federal government today, martial law was declared in Berlin and the Pussian province of Brandenburg and the Von Papen government swept the entire Prussian cabinet out of office.

By presidential decree, the government abolished the right of free speech, the right of assembly, the right of private communication and the rights of public property, providing capital punishment for any violations which involve loss of life.

The immediate refusal was obstinate refusal of Karl Severing, Prussian minister of the interior, to relinquish his office. The Berlin commissioner of police, his assistant commissioner and the chief of police followed the example of their superior.

The three police heads were placed under arrest and a squad of soldiers was ordered to oust Severing from his office tonight.

LATE NEWS

NEW YORK, July 20. (AP)—The stock market regained much of its Monday loss today, as traders were encouraged by the cessation of selling yesterday. Prices of many of the leaders pushed up 1 to 2 points in quiet trading, and closed around the day's best levels, with a firm tone. The turnover was only about 600,000 shares.

CHILDRESS, July 20. (AP)—Orville Stribling, 18, was killed early today by a freight train which struck him as he sat on a railroad track two miles west of Cary. The track curved at that point and the engineer was unable to see Stribling until it was too late to stop the train. Apparently Stribling had fallen asleep sitting on the track. He home was at Esteline.

BETTER FREIGHT SERVICE IS RESULTING FROM RIVALRY OF PAMPA'S TWO RAIL SYSTEMS

Shipping Rates Are Less-Service Faster

The new Fort Worth & Denver Northern railroad from Childress to Pampa has already made money for W. H. (Bert) Curry of the Best Curry Refrigeration company.

Since the Denver began bringing freight into Pampa, Mr. Curry has been able to save 14 cents per hundredweight on refrigeration shipping costs. A proportionate reduction in freight costs has been made on other commodities. The Santa Fe railroad is now charging the same rate as the Denver.

Mr. Curry also said the unusual services and accommodations inaugurated by the Denver have been adopted by the Santa Fe, and as a result the consignee of freight is able to save time. Both railroads are now offering special services in handling bills of lading and in delivery of freight after arrival here.

He said that the lowered rates, applying to all shipments, should keep many dollars in the community.

"I'm for the Denver and I'm for the Santa Fe—there's nothing so safe and sure as old John Santa Fe and I'm fond of him," Mr. Curry declared. "We've been friends for years and there wouldn't have been any Pampa if it had not been for him, but he knows as well as I that competition is the life of business, and that competition enables the consumer to benefit and to enjoy services that otherwise would not be available."

Voting Strength Of County Large

The voting strength in Gray county is larger than some candidates and other citizens realize. The 11 voting boxes in the county have a "potential" of 4,781 votes. The three Pampa boxes have a voting power of 3,081, which does not include persons who do not have to pay poll tax.

Candidates are looking to Pampa for their big numbers, but realize that McLean with 614 votes and LeFors with 454 votes will be big factors in the final decision. Knorr has the largest rural vote with 175 ballots possible.

The NEWS will post returns from the county, district and state at regular intervals. A large black-board will give figures on every race by precincts and state totals with the exception of the race for congressman-at-large. Counts in that race will be megaphoned as received.

The voting strength in the county by precincts follows: LeFors, 484; Pampa, 1,054; Knorr, 175; Alameda, 145; McLean, 614; Laketon, 115; Farrington, 29; Hopkins, 59; Pampa, 725; Pampa, 1,302; Kingsmill, 107.

Er V. E. von Brunow made a business trip to McLean this afternoon.

PARTY? SURE!

The Pampa Daily NEWS will, of course, hold its big election party for fans of politics Saturday night.

It will be free to all, with exclusive returns furnished by the Texas Election Bureau and the Associated Press, in addition to county results. First returns big enough to give any indication of how things are going will be available about 8 p. m. The NEWS will post many figures on bulletin boards and will megaphone the rest.

Because of the exceptionally long ballot, counting will probably not be completed Saturday night, but rather sometime Sunday, and periodical counts will be announced by the election judges. These judges have been asked to cooperate with The NEWS in letting the public know how the races are taking form.

Everybody is invited to attend The NEWS' election party—just another free service for Gray county people.

Talley Addition Gets City Water

The Talley addition has water this morning after a "two-week drought."

City commissioners listened to the plea of more than 150 residents of the addition who crowded the commission room yesterday afternoon to ask for city water.

An attempt to install a private water system in the addition largely failed when the well drilled would not produce enough water to supply the demand. The commission agreed to supply water if enough deposits were made immediately, which was agreeable to the delegation.

Hundreds of addition citizens watched Andy Crocker, water superintendent, and his men turn city water into the lines last night and when the first water went through the pipe they were demonstrative.

It was reported this morning that several lines had become sanded and water would not reach the high places in the addition. The clogged lines will have to be dug up and cleaned before some homes and business houses will get water even from the city.

No other business was transacted by the commission, although the question of delinquent taxes was discussed at length and the city attorney instructed to go ahead with the filing of suits for recovery of taxes beginning Aug. 1.

WRIT DENIED BUT ON LEGAL ERROR TODAY

JUDGE SAYS RIGHT OF RACE VOIDED IN PRIMARY

MAY CHANGE READINGS

PARTY SAID TO HAVE LOST INHERENT POWER

HOUSTON, July 20. (AP)—Federal Judge T. M. Kennerly today refused to enjoin the democratic party in Harris county to permit negroes to vote in primaries, but at the same time upheld the contention that their exclusion was violative of their constitutional rights.

He denied a mandamus to Julius White, negro, but in the opinion stated it was because of the "nature of his (White's) prayer." It thus appeared a change in pleadings might afford White opportunity to force the party to permit him and other negroes to vote.

The opinion was filed in Brownsville, but a copy was made available here.

Judge Kennerly specifically denied the main contention of the defendants—the Harris county democratic executive committee—that the party had the inherent power to determine the qualifications of its membership.

It once had that power, he held, but long since had surrendered it, by acceptance of various grants of power from the state, until now it has become "a child and agency of the state, abandoning its own inherent powers and choosing to conduct its affairs under grants of power from the state."

The authority to exclude negroes was voided in a resolution adopted by the state democratic convention here in May but Judge Kennerly held it inescapable that the convention's power in adopting such an order was derived from the state.

He pointed out then, that the United States supreme court already had held the state had no authority to exclude negroes from the primaries.

EXPERT FORECASTER OF TEXAS EVENTS IS CONFIDENT STERLING WILL DEFEAT RIVALS

How will the governor's race come out? Will it be decided in the first primary? Or will a second primary be necessary to reach a decision? These questions are the dominant topics of political discussion just now, with election day only a few days away. They will be answered decisively next Saturday by the democratic voters of the state, but meantime there is still room for speculation. Two things can be said without much chance of being wrong. One is that if the election is decided in a single primary, Governor Sterling will be renominated.

The other is that if a second primary becomes necessary the contenders will be Governor Sterling and Mrs. Ferguson.

We lay claim to no magical method of forecasting elections. It is true that the editor of The Texas WEEKLY has made some pretty close guesses in the past, but that is no index that he is infallible in his judgment. However, his guesses have always had the advantage of being honest and of not being mereident Hoover has appointed dozens of commissions. Assuming that they are working, and will report sometime to the advantage of the country, the question arises as to whether or not they will be of great benefit to the coming democratic administration.

Dame Rumor Lies.

Don't believe what every man tells you with a gleam in his eye and hot words on his tongue. Rumor is swirling over the heads of people everywhere. Almost every day somebody asks The NEWS to print purported facts. Investigation proves them false.

Just a Guess.

Political predictions are many. Ours is that Mrs. Ferguson will lead Ross Sterling in the first primary and lose to him by a small margin in the second.

Behind the Skirts.

Government by proxy is the dangerous to countenance when the result of one experiment are so well known. Ma Ferguson would not be governor of Texas. She does not claim to have the qualifications to cope with Texas' myriad problems at this time.

appearance at Ennis and Hillsboro today, after having pleaded with a crowd at Houston last night to return him to office on the promise he had given Texas an efficient, business-like administration during his first term which ends next January.

The Ferguson planned to resume their speaking tour at Arlington. Already having served the state as governors three times, twice in the name of James E. Ferguson and once under the name of Mrs. Ferguson, they were telling the voters they were the best bet to defeat Sterling and return the state to an economic administration.

Tom F. Hunter of Wichita Falls, who claims support of persons opposed to both Sterling and the Ferguson, was booked for a speech at Galveston, having spoken at Port Arthur and Beaumont yesterday.

M. H. Wolfe of Dallas, the prohibitionist candidate, was expected to speak in Houston and Roger Q. Evans of San Antonio was due in Eagle Pass and Uvalde.

Governor Sterling had replied to Wolfe's accusation that he (Sterling) had been engaged in the wholesale liquor business at one time.

"This old charge made by Jim Ferguson in 1930 is of course, without foundation in fact, and I regret that anyone connected with M. H. Wolfe should have been imposed upon to disseminate it again this year," he said.

Never Drank. "I have been a lifelong prohibitionist and teetotaler and was never involved in the liquor business in my life."

"When M. H. Wolfe was chairman of the democratic state executive committee I was a member of that committee supporting him and the dry cause with my voice and vote and money."

Hunter at Beaumont and Port Arthur discussed again "combinations and trusts" and denounced oil companies for what he declared had been their attempts to control the voters of their workers. He said Sterling and Ferguson always were "promising" before election day to equalize the tax burden but "forgetting" their promise once they had gained office.

Speaking at Beville, Hunter declared "this couffry is wrecked and the people broke." He said "we must escape from Fergusonism and avoid another two years of Sterlingism." He said he believed the prohibition amendment resubmission had been placed in the primary to "pull the prohibitionists before Sterling."

The deliberate judgment on which we base the second statement—that in the event of a second primary Governor Sterling and Mrs. Ferguson will be the contenders—is simply that none of the other candidates has developed any degree of strength.

PREDICTION—

ly the expression of wishes. And that is the chief value which anything we may say on the election this year can be said to have. With this preface, we offer herewith a few observations on the outlook in the governor's race.

The two statements made above—that if there is only one primary it will mean Governor Sterling's re-nomination, and that if there are two primaries the contenders in the second will be Governor Sterling and Mrs. Ferguson—are based on two deliberate judgments. The first is that a majority of the people of Texas never will vote for proxy government again, that the Ferguson can never hope again to receive the votes of a majority of the people for governor.

cast than are likely to be cast this year, and only two candidates in the race, they would still fall short of a majority. For that reason, we say with confidence that if the race should be decided in the first primary it will be Governor Sterling, and not the Ferguson, who will obtain the majority vote.

The situation in Harris county is the most serious Governor Sterling is facing among the larger cities. It must be remembered that 17,307 voters in Harris county voted against Mr. Sterling in the first primary two years ago, as compared with 20,872 who voted for him in the first primary. This means that a change of 1,785 votes out of a total of 38,179 would have given Mr. Sterling only a plurality instead of a majority in his home county in the first primary two years ago.

Majority Outside. That is equivalent to saying that Governor Sterling will lose the benefit of his more than 15,000 majority in Harris county in the second primary two years ago. But it must be remembered that he had a majority of more than 72,000 outside of Harris county, and there are no other situations in the state like that in Harris county.

But there is a considerable anti-Sterling vote in Houston, because of bitter local feuds, will cast their ballots against their distinguished fellow-townsmen. The above, be it understood, is intended as an impartial analysis of the probable result, after allowing for a maximum of change in the relative strength of Governor Sterling and the Ferguson during the past two years. It is an expression of honest opinion, and not an expression of our wishes. We could wish that there were not so many people in Texas who are so blind to cut into the Sterling vote at all, and those are his home county of Wichita, and Governor Sterling's home county of Harris.

Harrison, Smith, Brazos, Tom Green, Cooke, Hale, Navarro and others. Including Dallas county, the counties enumerated together gave Mr. Sterling majorities amounting to a total of more than 62,000 two years ago, and taking them together there is no reason to expect his majority to be less in them this year.

Outside of the counties already named, Mr. Sterling had a clear majority of 10,000, and while there has been some shifting—a drift to the Ferguson in some Sterling counties and a drift to Sterling in some Ferguson counties—there is nothing to indicate that there will be a very material change in this situation. However, it seems certain that there will be fewer votes cast in Saturday's election than in the second primary two years ago, and there are six other candidates for Governor this year, both of which circumstances will tend to reduce the Sterling vote, as well as that of the Ferguson, so the majorities in many counties will not be as large. But there is no reason to expect that relatively speaking they will not be quite as decisive. Mr. Sterling polled more than 65 per cent of the total vote in the second primary two years ago, so he could lose as much as 5 per cent of the total vote and still have a majority of all votes cast. We think, therefore, there is a good chance that he will receive a majority in the first primary.

Win in Run-Off. If he does not receive a majority of all votes cast then there will be a second primary between Governor Sterling and the Ferguson. In that event, we believe Governor Sterling will win the run-off by a good majority, certainly not less than 40,000 votes.

to the real character of the kind of proxy government that is proposed that they can bring themselves to vote for it. We hope that the election returns show that we have overestimated their number, and we trust they will certainly show that we have not underestimated them. We grant freely that Mrs. Ferguson is a good woman. But she is not qualified to be the governor of Texas, or to hold any similar position. And it is not intended that she will exercise the powers of that office if she should be elected. The proposal is that Mr. Ferguson, a private citizen, shall exercise the powers of the office, without any accountability under the law for the manner in which he exercises them. And, as we have said frequently, no man is good enough, or wise enough, or able enough to be entrusted with such powers in such circumstances. Whenever any people vote to give any man such power, they vote away the precious heritage of government by law which was won by them by the blood of their forefathers on the battlefield. We regret that apparently there are so many Texas people who are willing to do this. However, we do not think that a majority of the people of Texas will ever do it again.

CHEAP RAILROAD TRIPS TO CAPITOL MAY DEVELOP FROM PLAN SCHEDULED ON JULY 24

By R. W. BARRY
AUSTIN, July 20 (AP)—At least one Texas railroad has announced its intention to realize that many Texans never have seen their state capital building, that massive structure the state received in a swap for three million acres of its school land. It was built of Texas red granite.

The railroad has advertised a two dollar round trip fare to Austin from Fort Worth, Longview, Laredo and Corpus Christi to give interested persons a chance to see the state capital and its governmental buildings. The invasion of excursionists has been set for Sunday, July 24.

The board of control announced that it would see that the elevators, usually tied up on the Sabbath, are manned throughout the day. Extra guides will be on hand to conduct the visitors through the forty-year-old building where state affairs are administered. The legislative halls, and famous paintings of Texas battles, historic incidents, and state figures who had a hand in Texas affairs beginning from the day of Stephen F. Austin and General Sam Houston will be open to view.

Those who care to climb winding stairways from the fourth floor may go to the dome, which stands 313 feet from the ground. The elevators go no further than the fourth floor.

At the time of its construction, and until comparatively recent years, the capitol was one of the tallest and largest buildings in the world. It ranks among the big structures of the world today, measuring 600 feet from east to west and 287 feet from north to south. It covers three acres, the entire floor space being about twenty acres.

There are other interesting state buildings here, including the plant of the University of Texas, whose campus now is being dotted with fine, modern structures, which in the last few years have replaced many temporary "shacks," thrown up to tide the institution through an emergency. Oil came in on some of the University's vast land holdings in West Texas and there isn't anything it needs at this time that has not been provided or will soon be furnished.

Austin, meanwhile, is putting on her best bib and tucker, getting ready to greet Mr. and Mrs. Texas and their boys and girls when they come to the capital next Sunday.

There are so many candidates in the Texas democratic primary for the three congressmen-at-large places that a "Will Rogers" doubtless could have at least gone into the second primary (witness success of the Oklahoma school teacher who is a Will Rogers). Because many of those aspiring for congress-at-large seats do not have a statewide acquaintance, many voters are likely to let names guide their pencils when they start marking the long ballots.

For instance, there is the well-known Texas political name of Joseph Weldon Bailey. The son whose father once was an idealist United States senator from Texas is a candidate for congressman-at-large.

There is a Terrell, another well-known name in Texas politics, and several others that might attract the fancy of voters who have not had the time for inclination to look into the candidates' platforms. There isn't a single Smith in the lot. Some Al Smith probably overlooked a bet, or did he?

It will be interesting just to see how the congressman-at-large candidates are sifted for the August run-off.

"Rubber Tramps" Give Ultimatum—And Get Some

"The world owes me a living and if I don't get it I'll go to jail."

The party raved about rubber tramps, counting men women and children. They were traveling in two cars and a big trailer. Early this morning they pulled up in front of a filling station and demand a supply of groceries and tanks full of gasoline. They had no destination. They have been traveling over the nation. They wanted to arrive in Los Angeles, Calif., in time to make the Olympics.

They got no groceries nor gasoline from the Welfare board. "We have enough to take care of here," she said tersely.

From the sheriff they got a suggestion: "There's a good road leading out of town—if you try to pull any rough stuff here you will go to jail and you'll have to wait another four years to see the Olympics."

Such travelers usually carry a supply of groceries and gasoline hid away in their vehicles, but they stop at every town to keep that extra supply.

Bonus Seeker Is Killed By Train

FORT WORTH, July 20 (AP)—A fall beneath a freight train he was attempting to catch proved fatal today for W. J. Kettenberg, 39, bonus marcher returning to his home in California.

Kettenberg's feet were crushed Monday when he fell under the train. He told an ambulance driver the veterans bureau would pay for his medical services.

In his pockets were a copy of his military discharge and membership cards in various military organizations. The discharge said he was born in Hilton, N. Y., enlisted in company F, three hundred thirty-first infantry at Cleveland, March 2, 1918, and was discharged at Camp Sherman, Ohio, Jan. 27, 1919, with 10 per cent disability.

When Ruggles Spins Funny Yarn, Everybody Round Listens Well

CHARLIE RUGGLES

In Paramount's featured cast for "This Is the Night," today and Thursday at Rex theater

As a raconteur, Charlie Ruggles is probably without a peer among the stars of Hollywood. When he relates a humorous tale, his colleagues gather round, all ears. His fame has even spread to the ken of the technical workers at the studio.

The other day while Frank Tuttle, director of "This Is the Night," was rehearsing Lily Damita, Cary Grant and Thelma Todd for a scene in that production, Ruggles, taking advantage of the interlude, had gathered into a huddle in a remote corner with Roland Young, fellow actor in the play, and George Marion, Jr., the author. At the conclusion of Ruggles' amusing monotone there was a loud outburst of laughter from Young and Marion.

Now a "sound mixer," the fellow who sits in a glass enclosed compartment and regulates the flow of words from the mike onto the film, is the champion eavesdropper of Hollywood.

And so, a half-hour later, it didn't surprise Ruggles at all when the mixer emerged from his booth and said: "Would you mind repeating the last of that story, Mr. Ruggles. I heard up to the point when the lights went out in the Paris subway, then something went wrong with the sound system."

Alabama Man Will Head Tech

AUBURN, Ala., July 20 (AP)—Dr. Bradford Knapp has resigned the presidency of Alabama Polytechnic Institute effective Sept. 1 to accept that of the Texas Technological college at Lubbock.

He made the announcement last night, explaining he would remain at Auburn long enough to aid in plans for the 1932-1933 session opening Sept. 6. There has been no indication as to who may become Dr. Knapp's successor.

The Auburn president has spent much of his time working toward development of scientific farming in the south and southwest. He came here four years ago from Oklahoma A. & M. college at Stillwater. Previously he served as dean of the college of agriculture at the University of Arkansas and had been chief of the office of extension work in the south for the United States department of agriculture.

Pathetic—This Picture of Runner In Dance Marathon

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 10 (AP)—The magical, winged feet of Jolee Ray which have won him 850 cups and medals but very little of this world's goods in 22 years of racing, have been reduced to a shuffle—the shuffle of the dance Marathon.

The man who wore the red, white and blue in three Olympic games and who has reached his thirty-seventh milestone, has danced thru more than 1200 hours at the current Atlantic City Marathon contest, a far cry from the Marathons Jolee won in days past.

Jolee was introduced to Marathon dancing at Newark in January. This is his third try.

There is something a little touching when the master of ceremonies calls Jolee to the platform in the midst of the heavy-eyed, ceaseless

In the OIL FIELDS

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 20 (AP)—The Phillips Petroleum Co. defied the Oklahoma tax commission today to close its 161 filling stations in the state for failure to pay tax on an 8,000 gallon tank car of gasoline sold to the city or Ardmore in Wichita, Kan.

R. H. Hudson, Bartlesville, Phillips counsel, termed the attempt to collect the four-cents a gallon state tax an "absurdity."

Chairman Melvin Cornish of the tax commission said he understood the company is in contempt of court until it pays the tax.

A temporary restraining order was issued last yesterday at Ardmore by District Judge Asa Walden, technically denying the company the right to do business in Oklahoma until the tax is paid.

Bell Telephone System, Noting Declining Revenue Cuts Cost

NEW YORK, July 20 (AP)—The task of enlisting approximately 300,000 employees in a drive for economy has been completed by the American Telephone & Telegraph company, and affiliated enterprises, with what appears in the eyes of its officers to be marked initial success.

Through adoption of the five-day week, about $3,500,000 a month was saved in the payroll.

Faced with the prospect of declining gross earnings, the Bell system turned to other possible means of trimming costs. It urged each of its managers of 6,000 scattered central stations to keep on the alert, saving in operating costs wherever they could.

Traffic accidents cost Tennesseeans more than $13,500,000 annually, it is estimated.

envelope, each employee received one day a week more leisure and his hourly pay rate was untouched.

The plan called for "spreading" the work among a greater number of employees rather than to cut expenses by dismissing a number of employees.

After careful study, the company decided against adopting a straight cut in the wage scale. Instead, it adopted a five-day week. The effect, so far as company expenses are concerned, was the same, but in return for a somewhat smaller

BRABHAM BELIEVES DEBT OF T. W. C. TO BE PAID SOON—FORMER LOCAL PASTOR HERE

Dr. Tom W. Brabham former pastor here was as successful in handling the financial affairs of Texas Woman's college of Fort Worth, of which he is president, as he was in lifting the debt on the First Methodist church here, and in conducting welfare and scout drives, it was learned today.

Dr. Brabham left Pampa today after spending almost a week visiting old friends here. He was a passenger on the first Denver train to Pampa last Friday.

Before he was elected president of the college, it was almost ready to close on account of financial difficulties. The institution, a senior university controlled by the five Methodist conferences, had been going in the "red" for several years. Last year, the college was able to pay operating expenses and to cut down the debt $17,000. By conference time, Dr. Brabham believes, the school's debt will be paid.

Last year, four girls from Pampa attended the school. This year, the Pampa enrollment will be larger, Mr. Brabham believes. He expects several members of the 1932 graduating class of Pampa high school to attend the college next term.

The enrollment of the school last year was 300. It includes nine buildings located on a 40-acre campus in the Polytechnic residential section of Fort Worth. The bachelor of arts, bachelor of music and bachelor of science degrees are awarded. Several noted musicians are numbered among the college's alumni.

HOLDING OF GRAIN FOR ONE DOLLAR PRICE IS ADVOCATED AS ORDERLY MARKETING PLAN

TOUNA, N. D., July 20 (AP)—Across the fertile prairies of North Dakota, expected to produce one-sixth of the nation's wheat output this year, today is heard a crescendo chorus—"hold the grain for one dollar a bushel."

The cry will be taken up throughout the United States.

Dell Willis, Tolna farmer, is chairman of the organization which has stirred the farmers in more than 400 North Dakota townships to pledges holding their wheat, effective Aug. 1, unless and until the dollar level is reached.

"This period of low prices finally has brought us to a position where it is either sink or swim," Willis said. "Now let us get together and put a fair price on our product. We will set the price and hold our wheat until we get our price."

Organizations are perfected along township lines. As producers sign an agreement, it is deposited with the township board. Certain farmers are designated to see the pledge is adhered to.

"We will hold our wheat until there is a demand for it at the set price of one dollar per bushel, and then we will sell only ten percent in one month," Willis continued. "This will make an orderly marketing system."

The agreed price will be based on Winnipeg quotations, which yesterday ranged from 53 7-8 to 56 cents per bushel. The dollar will be for the best wheat, with discounts for lower grades.

Farmers, participating in the movement who lack storage room are allowed to haul the grain into elevators and receive storage tickets.

Accidental deaths numbering 160, mostly through traffic and swimming mishaps, headed the list of causes of deaths among Wisconsin persons between 15 and 19 years.

About $12,500,000 will be spent for road construction in the Missouri Ozark region this year.

Alex Rainouard of Monroe, La., is visiting relatives here. He flew from Monroe to Dallas, spent the night there and flew to Amarillo.

Vote for Judge William Hanson of Hunt County, for re-election, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. He is a conscientious and able judge of our highest court and worthy of your support.

The Whole Trend is toward a Milder Cigarette

Do you remember the days when you first started to smoke?

ALL CIGARETTES tasted somewhat alike to you, but after a while you noticed that some cigarettes were decidedly stronger than others... Remember?

As smokers become more experienced, they demand milder cigarettes. Chesterfields are milder. There is no argument about that. Their mildness is a feature as distinctive as their package or their trade mark.

Their tobaccos are mild to begin with. Patient ageing and curing make them milder still.

Chesterfields contain just the right amount of Turkish—but not too much—carefully blended and cross-blended with ripe, sweet Domestic tobaccos.

In this nerve-racking time, smokers—men and women—are showing a decided preference for milder cigarettes.

Chesterfields are milder. They taste better. That's why "They Satisfy."

HORNBY LIKELY TO RETIRE AFTER WEAK EXPERIMENT

RAJAH LOSES OLD FACILITY WITH WILLOW

ONCE GREAT FIELDER IS RAZED BY FANS

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Having made what many predict was his valedictory as an active player, Rogers Hornby, one of the greatest infielders of all time, has turned the job of winning the National league flag over to his youngsters.

The Rajah, dissatisfied with Stanley Hack's play at third after Bill Jurges was laid up with gunshot wounds, stepped in to plug the hole, but after listening to the Chicago fans five days decided to return to the dugout. In the last four games he played, the once peerless batsman collected only two hits, and his fielding was a thing of the past.

With the youthful Hack back in the line-up yesterday and the batting order juggled, the Cubs took a close one from the Giants, 5 to 4, and gained a half-game on the leading Pittsburgh Pirates, who were splitting even with the Phillies.

Bill Swift pitched the Pirates to a 5 to 2 victory in the opener but the eastern delegates came back to take the nightcap, 6 to 5, in 11 innings.

Ed Brandt was in top form and Boston knocked Cincinnati a little deeper into the cellar, 2 to 0. St. Louis, after being held to one hit for five innings, drove Dazzy Vance from the box in the seventh and defeated Brooklyn 5 to 3.

The Yankees took their fourth straight from the Chicago Sox, 6 to 3, with Lefty Gomez hanging up his 16th victory. Washington celebrated "Sam Rice Day" by dropping their third in a row to Detroit, 3 to 2. Wes Ferrell yielded only four scattered hits as Cleveland blanked Boston, 7 to 0. Philadelphia slugged out two decisions over St. Louis, 9 to 9 and 16 to 6.

The bouts will be three rounds to a decision. Preliminaries will be held tonight and tomorrow and the finals Saturday.

Former "Smith" To Meet Champ

Cecil "Blacksmith" Pedigo, who wrestled Jack Reynolds, world's welterweight champion, of the world, Thursday evening at the Tri-State Fair grounds for that championship, hails from Louisville, Ky. The match and its supporting card is heralded as one of the best ever staged in Amarillo.

The Kentuckian won the right to meet the world's champion last Thursday night at Amarillo when he defeated the sensational Persian Sheik, one of the fastest and cleverest boys ever seen in these parts.

Then years ago Blacksmith never dreamed of becoming a wrestler.

But today he is matched with the champion, for the greatest glory in wrestling—namely, a chance at the title. He is also recognized as the world's strongest man of his weight. Such has been the transformation—an humble blacksmith's helper into a world contender—in the aforesaid period.

Back in 1922 Cecil Pedigo, the husky son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Pedigo, worked as apprentice smith in the village shop of Bowling Green, Kentucky.

A bashful, farefoot boy "with cheeks of tan," he received the chiding of other youngsters until his father reprimanded him for his cowardice.

He resented this and picked a fight with the next chider, the village bully. It was his first victory, scored not on the mat, but in a rutty road near his home.

He came to Louisville in the fall of the year, worked at odd jobs until he connected with the Ford Motor company. During a physical examination by the company doctor, he was urged to take up boxing, or wrestling. He favored the latter.

Negro Voting To Be Court Issue

A similar case was under advisement by the judge. It was filed by C. S. Eugene in Jefferson county. A motion for dismissal of this petition had been filed by Cecil Murphy of Gatesville.

The Sensational Mr. Equipoise
Although the division of three-year-old thoroughbreds has done practically nothing about determining a champion for the year, horse racing hasn't been bothered particularly by it. The reason is Equipoise.

The speedy son of Pennant—Swinging a failure as a three-year-old last year when he wasted a whole season in sickness, has come back bigger, stronger and faster than even his staunchest admirers ever pictured him.

"We're going to wait around Arlington long enough to win the big handicap race," then Fred and I are heading east to look for more stake races to win."

If you were to gain an interview with the big chestnut colt that is the 1932 Equipoise, he'd probably hand out just such a line as that.

PUBLIC LINKS CROWN TOTTERS

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 20 (AP)—Charles Ferrara, San Francisco youth who won the national public links a year ago, found his throne seriously challenged today by four other youngsters: from widely separated states.

The quartet had 71 each, one better than par on Shawnee Park's course, and right behind them came two others with par each as compared to the 76 Ferrara carded.

Ralph Lacey, 22-year-old Little Rock insurance salesman, who holds all the public titles Little Rock and Arkansas have; Ralph Strafaci, Brooklyn's 18-year-old high school threat; Joe Coria of St. Paul whose occupation is a ranger on a horse golf course and who was medalist and runner-up in his state public links turny, and Joe Nichols of Long Beach, Calif., who went to the finals last year with Ferrara, were among the 203 entrants who pressed hardest at Ferrara's title.

MINOR LOOPS ARE PROBLEM FOR 'INDUSTRY'

JOHN M'GRAW THINKS LITTLE LEAGUES TO COME BACK

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 20 (AP)—The greatest problem facing baseball, in the opinion of John McGraw, is the resurrection of the small minor leagues.

"Back in 1890," the retired manager of the giants remembered, "the greatest problem facing baseball, in the opinion of John McGraw, is the resurrection of the small minor leagues.

"When you've gone as far with baseball as the calm, silver haired gentleman who sits now in the business office of the Giants, the troubles of the game today fade. He joined the National league in 1892 when the Baltimore Orioles became members of a twelve-club circuit, saw the birth of the rival American league in 1900 and helped ban John-son in the junior league's struggles for existence, left him after a falling out to build the New York Giants into a multi-millionaire outfit the past 30 years.

"Baseball is the national game more so than ever before," he insisted. "There are millions of dollars invested in the sport. All that means interest on the part of the sports public in baseball, and interest that ever dies."

The job now as McGraw sees it, is to revive the class C and D leagues that have been falling away steadily the past two or three years so the youngsters who come into the game may have their chances to develop gradually.

"There used to be 60 or so leagues of that class," he said, "and now there are left only eight or ten. That's bad for young fellows. It takes away their incentive to play the game as a career. They have no place to go for development.

"There's something about baseball, for a young fellow, that gets in his blood, keeps him going on, overcoming bad beginnings and if the opportunity is there for him struggling up finally to make the grade. That makes a man of him."

Altering Style Harms Putting

Missing a three-foot putt inevitably makes a player timid in approaching his next shot.

In the belief that he has been in error in some fundamental rule, he attempts to change his stance and stroke, and this change all too often is for the worse.

In many cases, this "complex" causes the player to look up too soon in his anxiety to follow the ball. This action is the secret of many a bungled putt.

If you are putting badly, no matter how strong the temptation may be, do not change your regular style in any respect.

In practicing with the putter, remember to putt for the back of the cup. Line up your putt, take your usual stance, play the stroke in your regular style, and don't look up until you hear the ball drop into the cup.

DALLAS CHIEF HAPPY ABOUT EIGHTH WIN

GEORGE MURRAY BESTS HIS SCHOOLBOY OPPONENT

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Manager Happ Morse of the Dallas Steers is really happy these days of the second half of the Texas league pennant chase. His players checked in with their eighth consecutive victory last night by beating Beaumont, 9 to 3. It gave the Steers a three-game lead over the Exporters.

Last night saw two leading pitchers as opponents. George Murray, ace right-hander for Dallas, and Linwood "Schoolboy" Rowe, the sensational youngster who was a powerful factor in Beaumont winning the first half pennant, started what was advertised as a mound duel. Dallas got to Rowe in the first inning for six runs. Sullivan finished the game. Murray struck to his guts and pitched a commendable two-hit game. Newsome and Holley got the pair of bingles. Beaumont did not get an earned run.

Houston slipped again at Lovviev, the Cambals winning 4 to 2. Hal Witte beat Ralph Judd in a pitching duel. Triples by Garms and Euler and a home run by Klotz aided Lovviev's victory.

Galveston bombarded Tyler pitchers for seven runs in the eighth and ninth innings to win, 10 to 3. Eddie Carroll limited Tyler to 7 hits.

The Fort Worth and San Antonio game was postponed because of inclement weather.

The Faithful Cheat

BY RUBY M. AYRES

SYNOPSIS: The secret of Mark's sudden marriage to Mrs. Merriman, before he sailed for the Congo, is threatened by Beatrice Foster. Sondra is busily engaged with John Anderson, who thinks she has been visiting Beatrice, whereas really she has been married to Mark. Sondra has planned not to tell anyone of her marriage because she knows that her sister Flora would no longer support her if she knew. And Sondra is not unprepared by training to support herself, but most sore and sore with Flora in the hope that Mark will make a success of the position that Anderson has given him. Anderson loves Sondra, although he has not told her so since he married and his wife will not release him. He has held the attitude of a gambler toward Sondra for many years, and has solved her problems and financial difficulties.

Chapter 11

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE

BEATRICE came rushing across to Sondra and John like a small whirlwind.

She was a little creature, fair and fluffy with a passion for frilly clothes.

"Darling—how lovely to see you," she kissed Sondra's cheek. "And Mr. Anderson, too." She had what she called an "incurable passion" for John Anderson.

Anderson rose to his feet, bowing rather formally.

Beatrice irritated him; she reminded him of a tiresome insect which always returned to the attack no matter how often and determinedly one brushed it away.

"Too lovely to see you," she said again to Sondra. "But you're so pale—isn't she, Mr. Anderson? Haven't you been well, and is that why you—"

Sondra interrupted calmly.

"Don't pretend, Bea dear. Mr. Anderson knows all about our little escapade—I told him that you and I had a disgracefully late night out together. I suppose that explains why I look such a rag this morning."

Beatrice looked blank, then suddenly she giggled—it always took her some time to see the point of anything.

"So you told him! Was he very shocked?" she looked archly up at Anderson's immovable face. "My poor little mother will hardly speak to me this morning," she gushed.

"What time did we arrive home, Bea?" It must have been quite five o'clock.

"I understood that Sondra was out all night," Anderson said calmly. "And I'll assure you that I am not in the least shocked. My education has been liberal."

Beatrice giggled once more, and made a few rapid remarks before she rustled away again. "Mr. Anderson always makes me feel so small and young," she explained afterwards to Sondra. "A mere child!"

There was a little silence when she had departed.

"I cannot tolerate that girl," Anderson said presently.

Sondra laughed. "Why not, she's quite harmless. I like her."

"She's such a shocking liar," Anderson answered calmly. "I don't object to people telling lies if they're forced to, but I do wish they'd do it in a convincing manner."

Sondra's eyes fell. She felt it was impossible to ask him to explain what he meant.

The air seemed fraught with a tangible "something" which she could not understand; or was it her own state of mind that confused it? Perhaps she was just imagining that there was an underlying knowledge in everything Anderson said.

Did he guess the truth? And if not, what would he say if she suddenly told him "Mark and I were married yesterday."

Anderson spoke suddenly, as if reading her thoughts.

"I must send young Merriman a wire to the boat, to wish him luck. I don't think so."

"What a hypocrite she was! Sondra felt as if she stood aside and stared at herself in shocked dismay.

"It's a good thing he's a single man," John said casually. "I always dislike wives being left behind when it means a long separation, as it probably does in Merriman's case."

Sondra's lips moved stiffly.

"Why do you dislike—wives being left behind?"

He shrugged his shoulders.

"It's unsettling for a man; it takes the mind off his work, and handicaps him."

"Isn't that rather hard? Why shouldn't men who have to work be married?"

"I was speaking of men who have to work where young Merriman has gone. It's not a woman's country as you know."

"And if... if Mark had been a married man?" Sondra asked.

He looked at her steadily.

"If Merriman had been a married man, I shouldn't have given him the job," he said.

It was not until late that evening, when Sondra was dressing for dinner, that she remembered the letter which John Anderson had given to her that morning.

She had slipped it into her bag and had forgotten it.

That seemed queer, and very significant of the way in which life had changed during the past 24 hours.

She had even forgotten that her dressmaker was pressing for payment—she had forgotten everything except that with every moment the distance between her and Mark Merriman was increasing by hopeless miles. She took up the little handbag.

The letter was still there, carefully doubled up as if it was something of no importance.

Sondra tore the flap open without much interest.

What did it matter whether she wore pretty gowns or not? There was no longer anybody in town whom she cared to please.

She flushed a little as she mechanically counted the crisp bank notes.

One thousand dollars! she let the money slip from her fingers to the dressing-table.

Nobody would ever believe her if she told them that in return for such a gift she had given nothing—would never give anything; people would laugh if they knew that more-over Anderson had never asked anything of her—probably never would ask.

It seemed an unusual sort of friendship—affection.

It was so seldom that even a very rich man gave generously without hope of return.

Mark would be horrified; Mark would never understand. She could imagine his indignation.

Some day he would come back! and what then?

For the first time Sondra looked honestly into the future and tried to realize what life would be then—if ever—Mark came home.

She knew that if he made money all would probably be well, but if not—if he came back as he went away—poor, without prospects—what would become of them?

Could she face life in a suburban house—even with his love? she knew that she could not.

There was always John; John would do anything for her—and he would see to Mark's future influence meant so much nowadays; the thought comforted her.

Of course Mark would get on—he would make a position in the world, and they would find happiness together.

And in the meantime—

It was not yet 24 hours since they had said goodbye, and already it seemed as if it was years ago that she had stood on the pier trying to hide from the world that Mark meant anything more to her than just an ordinary friend who was going abroad.

Not yet 24 hours! and it might be five years before they met again.

Was it possible to still love a man passionately whom one had not seen for five years? People changed so. Mark might grow stout or bald... she smiled involuntarily at the thought.

Five years! Five summers, five winters—five glorious springs, and all without Mark. She was his wife, though they had lived together for only a few short hours; she would still be his wife in five years time—even if he came back stout and bald.

But Mark would come back as he had gone away—keen, upright, alert...

Sudden tears dimmed her eyes as she recalled his face; how horrible of her to have such thoughts of him.

Flora came into the room unceremoniously.

"Not ready yet of course," she said disagreeably. "The car's waiting—do hurry up. Here's a wire for you—it came hours ago, but I forgot about it." She flung the yellow envelope down on the dressing-table beside Anderson's banknotes, her eyes narrowing as she saw them, but she made no comment.

"Will John Anderson be over tonight?" she asked.

"You believe so? Don't you know? But I suppose it's stupid to ask. He's always to be found where you are. Why in God's name doesn't he get rid of his wife?" she demanded.

"You'd better ask him," Sondra said.

"Would you marry him—if he was free?" Flora asked.

"No."

"Why not?" Flora asked.

COTTON EASY

NEW ORLEANS, July 20 (AP)—Cotton opened fairly steady today although Liverpool cables were not as good as due, owing to firmer sterling. First trades here showed gains of one point. The market soon eased slightly, however, on lack of support and to some extent up in advance of the weekly weather and crop report due this morning. October dropped to 5.82 and December to 5.94, or 2 to 5 points down from the opening and one to four points under yesterday's close.

Near the end of the first hour, prices were steadier and had recovered one point from the lowest.

GRAINS STRONGER

CHICAGO, July 20 (AP)—Crop damage complaints resulting from extreme heat and drought in spring wheat and corn territory gave an early lift today to grain values here. Material upticks in Liverpool wheat quotations also were a bullish factor. Opening unchanged to 1-2 higher. Chicago wheat futures showed subsequent additional gains. Corn started 1-2 to 3-4 up and later held near the initial limits.

Wheat closed unsettled, 3/4-1/2 und.
