PAMPA TOPICS OF OUR CITY

No New Subject: Trying to get and to keep for West Texas a portion of higher education is no new problem. Indeed, for decades West Texans have expressed vigorous disapproval of the tendency to concentrate expenditures in distant Austin and other downstate points.

It should be remembered that the Teachers college, which represents the college education opportunity for the poor man's son and daughter, was obtained only after a bit of struggle. And as the pioneer institution this section, it certainly stands as a symbol of the times which for many years have been sent downstate.

As to proof of his oldtime battle, we quote from Dr. C. Holden's book, Alkali Trails, an article taken from the Taylor County News, Abilene, of May 23, 1933:

"The News has heretofore hinted that a division of Texas would become necessary as a relief from the unjust discriminations of state officers, legislatures and conventions. It now seems that this feeling is not confined alone to any one locality of Northwest Texas, but it is pretty general and daily growing.

"Whereas, all the state schools, public buildings and higher courts are situated in the eastern and southern parts of the state, and

"Whereas, the state legislation has always ignored Northwest Texas, including the great Panhandle country, in the distribution of its public institutions and appropriations, and

"Whereas, all the school lands are located in the Western and Northwestern part of the state and the annual payment of the Western part of the state into the state treasury is $300,000 more than it draws out, and

"Whereas, the present legislature continues in line with its predecessors, and

"Whereas, the interests of this section are altogether different from Southern and Eastern Texas, it is Resolved, that unless these matters are remedied our association favors the calling of a convention at some date in the future for the purpose of creating out of the Northwestern portion of Texas a new state."

Missing the Conclusion

A widely quoted address by Dr. W. T. Foster of Massachusetts has a bearing on retrenchment as applied to education. Dr. Foster reviewed the claims of technocrats and said: "If technocracy teaches anything, it teaches that retrenchment in education is economically unsound. It is especially unsound in a period of business depression. The time to increase educational opportunities is precisely when increased millions of adults have plenty of spare time, and increased thousands are available as teachers. Incidentally, we should note that our stupidity in dealing with this depression itself shows the need of more education."

In this connection, readers doubtless have noted that President-Elect Roosevelt is using the faculty of Columbia university to advise him in economic and social matters. Whether this is wise will be demonstrated and it is worth watching.

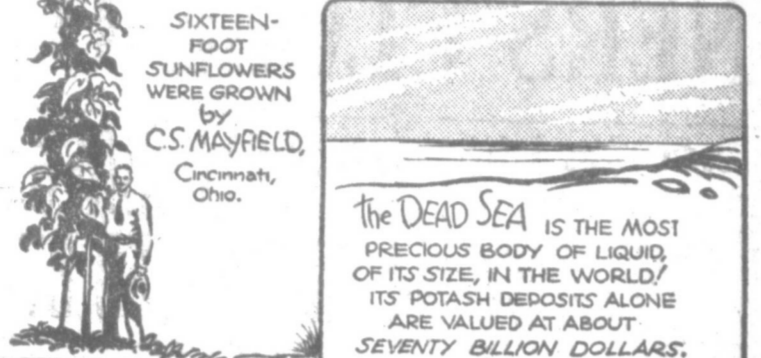

The ability of taxpayers to support education must always be considered, curricula must be reduced where demand for certain subjects is very small, and needless expenditures curtailed. Yet to provide employment for jobless, to provide a means of putting money in circulation, we hear renewals of demands for public works programs—programs which require huge expenditures for materials outside of the communities which pay the taxes. In this connection, we again quote Dr. Foster:

"Technocrats fail to draw the most obvious conclusion; namely, that we should greatly increase the proportion of our national income—and the proportion of employed workers—devoted to the production of SERVICES. We could easily increase the production of THINGS. But there is no point in producing three times as many coats, cameras, cabbages, and commodities in general. Science constantly threatens us with an overproduction of THINGS. There is no danger whatever of an over-production of physical health or of aesthetic and spiritual values. Nobody fears a glut in the market for culture. We cannot possibly go too far in expanding those services which yield the most durable satisfactions of life. Very high among such services is education.

"Now, none of these services can be rendered by machines. It is true, as the terrified Technocrats say, that a single turbine now has a capacity of 300,000 horsepower. But it has not a single horsepower capacity for lifting a newspaper, or creating beauty, or caring for the sick, or governing a city, or ministering to human souls who are weary and heavy laden. And all the turbines in the world cannot develop enough horsepower to take the place of a single school teacher. The services most needed by humanity are individualistic by nature. They cannot be furnished by mass production; their values cannot be measured in ergs or joules or calories.

"One of the chief ways of escape from technical un-

For centuries, this below-sea-level body of water has been the dumping ground of the Jordan river, and, having no outlet, it gave up nothing but pure water through evaporation.

employment, therefore, is to devote an ever-larger proportion of our workers and our income to the schools."

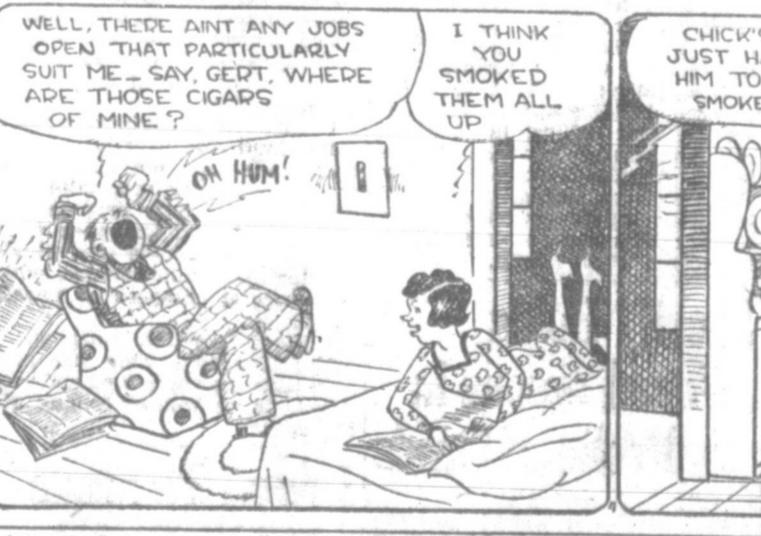

'Fiddler' Comes Back To Pampa To 'Settle Down' Local music lovers were pleased to learn yesterday that T. Duncan Stewart has arrived in Pampa to make his home here.

A young man, Mr. Stewart a little over a year ago came to Texas from New York where he studied with Leopold Auer, famed teacher of many great violinists, including Heifitz and Zimbalist.

SYNOPSIS: Farrell Armitage at last finds the answer before Mark Lodely, whom he has made successful and rich.

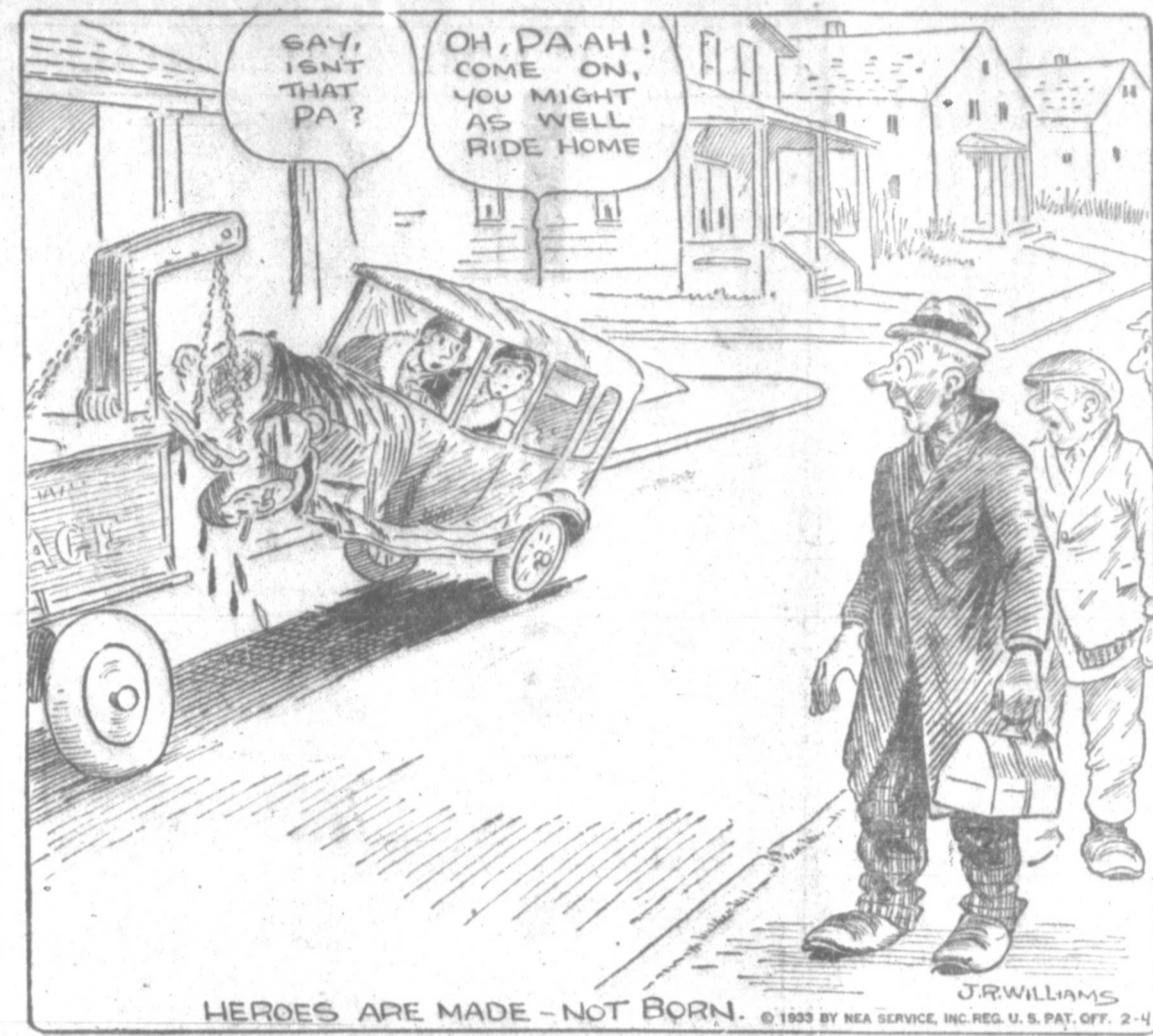

Chapter 45 THE DRAMA GOES ON WHAT, my dear Armitage, do you imagine you're talking about now?

"I'm talking about what is in a sense an ancient history—the sale of some shares by Barbara's mother to a certain purchaser a few days before Lionel Quentyn's death."

"What's behind this, Judy?" "Nothin'. All nonsense. I'm sure I don't know."

"It's quite useless to expect my mother to enlighten me Armitage. If there's anything you want me to know, you'd better out with it."

Flood of Bills Reaches Solons

AUSTIN, Feb. 4. (AP)—Much proposed legislation has been offered in the house of representatives. Bills ranged from one to abolish the state department of agriculture to one to legalize operation of pool halls using regulation tables. Abolition of the department of agriculture was sponsored by Representative T. H. McGregor of Austin. It provided for disposal of the personal property of the department by the board of control. The bill to legalize pool and billiard halls was introduced by Representative Fine G. Bedford of Galveston by request. A graduated tax on chain stores and on oil production were proposed in separate bills. The chain store tax would range from $5 each on stores operated by the same company in excess of one and not more than five and would reach a maximum of $100 on stores operated under one management in excess of 50.

FARMERS

However, both speakers urged "peace" again and again. "Peace, but determination," shouted Judge Hoover to get a price for your products that will equal cost of production." Judge Hoover summed up the purpose of the meeting in declaring that "the man or organization that holds the mortgage on your homestead, and especially if that organization be a great financial concern, can better afford to wait on you for payment and declare a mortgage moratorium, than you can afford to lose your home."

Mr. Jackson flayed the agricultural agencies of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the Federal Farm Loan Bank of Houston. Judge Hoover delivered a vigorous attack on the farm board and the Federal Reserve system. Mr. Jackson cited the case of a Roberts county farmer who had paid many thousands of dollars on his farm and was going to be closed out by the Federal Farm Loan bank because he couldn't make a $500 payment. He related details of a transaction in which he himself tried but failed to secure a loan from a branch of the R. F. C. Judge Hoover declared that most of the funds lent by the R. F. C. went to railroads and then back to big eastern banks where it is now being "salted away." Both speakers expressed extreme dissatisfaction with all forms of "farm relief" extended recently.

Made 'Hip Pocket' Move

John R. Waddell, filling station attendant, testified to being across the street and hearing the shot. He said he saw Shaw with the pistol in his right hand leveled at Ramsey. Carl Hudgins, employe of the filling station, also told of seeing Shaw with the gun in his right hand and aimed at Ramsey. He said Ramsey's left hand was at his side when Shaw fired.

Mrs. Shaw, wife of the defendant, testified concerning an injury Shaw received in an altercation with Ramsey in May, 1931. She told of her husband's efforts to avoid Ramsey.

Ramsey's widow said her husband had gone to town the day of the shooting to have a dentist fix a tooth. She said the next time she saw him was in a doctor's office after he was wounded.

The two new investigations were advocated by John A. Simpson, president of the National Farmers' Union, who testified before the house coinage committee today on remonetization of silver. Simpson said that nothing so far proposed could be done by the United States alone to help the farmer get more for his products except remonetization of silver. That, he testified, would increase the purchasing power of half the world and make the farmer's products more in demand.

FARCE COMEDY REVEALS MANY SCREEN STARS

The cast of "They Just Had to Get Married," hilarious farce comedy which is booked to play the La Nora theater today, includes so many well known comedians, who have been stars in their own right on stage and screen, that it reads like a veritable bluebook of film-doms' comedians.

In the first place, there is Slim Summerville, Universal's premier comedian, who has been starred for several years in features and in riotous two-reelers. Slim has been in pictures since 1913, when he started as an extra. Since that time his long, lanky form and his dry, quaint humor, his hopeless, awkward gestures have established him as one of the best-loved comedians of the screen, and his appearance is always the signal for anticipatory chuckles on the part of the audience. In addition to the many straight comedy roles which Summerville has portrayed, his work in "All Quiet on the Western Front" stands out as one of the finest performances of any individual player for all time. He is scheduled here to play one of the leading characters in the sequel to "All Quiet," "The Road Back," when Universal produces that remarkable masterpiece.

Then, there is Zasu Pitts, who is justifiably called the screen's greatest comedienne. Miss Pitts is more in demand than any other player right now. She has appeared in thirty-seven pictures thus far this year. Her work, always evoking gales of laughter, seems to have behind it a great amount of studied seriousness, which combined with the fluttering, waving motions of

FARCE COMEDY WILL HEAD PAMPA THEATER PROGRAM—SUMMERVILLE WITH PITTS

From a week featured by the appearance of the Godino twins, Pampa theaters today will emerge with a film program headed by Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts in what couldn't be anything but an hilarious comedy.

The film program for the week: La Nora—Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts in "They Just Had to Get Married"; also Art Jarrett in "Nick Kenny" and newsreel today, Monday and Tuesday.

Wednesday and Thursday—Ruth Chatterton in "Frisco Jenny"; also Aesop family comedy. Friday and Saturday—James Cagney and Mary Brian in "Hard to Handle"; also Harry Langdon in "The Hitch Hiker" and Pampa Daily NEWS reel.

Rex—"Kongo" with Walter Huston, Lupe Velez, and Conrad Nagel. Today, Monday, and Tuesday. Wednesday and Thursday—"The Past of Mary Holmes" with Eric Linden and Mary MacKellar. Friday and Saturday—Bob Steele in "Hidden Valley"; also the jungle mystery serial.

State—Today, Monday and Tuesday, "Eyes on the Prize" with Lee Tracy and Mary Brian; Wednesday and Thursday, "They Call It Sin," with Loréna Young; Friday and Saturday, Tom Keene in "The Saddle Buster."

her hands, which never seem able to behave, proves irresistible. Miss Pitts herself scarcely ever smiles in portraying her roles, but she certainly knows how to make millions in her audience not only smile but laugh long and heartily.

In support of Miss Pitts and Slim Summerville in "They Just Had to Get Married" is Bill D'Orsay, the pliant, graceful, big eyed, black-haired girl who seems French to her finger tips. Miss D'Orsay, though, was born in Montreal of French descent, but the air and manner of the Parisian music halls seems almost authentic in her dancing, her gesture and her acting and singing. She came to pictures by way of the vaudeville stage, where she was trained by such able comics as the team of Gallagher and Shean. Her first film appearance was with Will Rogers in "They Had to See Paris," and she appeared in many other films for Fox before being signed for the part of Marie in "They Just Had to Get Married."

Roland Young has had a long career in musical comedy, on the Broadway stage and in pictures, and is prominent in the cast of "They Just Had to Get Married," as is C. Aubrey Smith, Henry Armetta and James Donlan, all well known, popular comedians.

WAR DRUMS IN 'KONGO' TO BE HEARD IN REX

WALTER HUSTON LEADING MAN IN JUNGLE DRAMA

Throbbing of war drums, the muffled beat of countless black feet trampling the underbrush of the African jungle, and a "white devil" in a wheel-chair, emphasizing his commands with a long bullwhip. That is "Kongo," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer melodrama with Walter Huston featured at the Rex theater today.

In Original Stage Role It is Huston bringing his most colorful stage role to the screen. "Kongo" ran more than a year in New York, and it was while Huston was enacting the terrifying role of "Deadlegs" Flint that Hollywood first saw in him those brilliant character talents which have since enriched the records of screen drama.

Black magic and the arts of the white conjurer, a burning desire for revenge and the pathetic efforts of white men and women to fight the spell of the jungle—all these are admixed in the gripping melodrama which takes place in the heart of Africa, where a paralyzed white man rules as the uncrowned king of superstitious savages and plots his grisly vengeance on those he fancies have wronged him.

In the feminine roles opposite Huston are Lupe Velez and Virginia Bruce. The madcap Lupe has the part of a copper-skinned Portuguese mink. Flint's woman, capricious yet servile, devoted yet untamed, Virginia Bruce, who became Mrs. John Gilbert during the filming of "Kongo," is the white girl who innocently becomes the victim of "Deadlegs" Flint's machinations.

Nagel Plays Fugitive Conrad Nagel plays Dr. Kingsland, the English fugitive who has succumbed to the curse of the jungle and becomes a virtual slave to Flint for love of the white girl captive. C. Henry Gordon, who distinguished himself as the secret service agent who trapped Greta Garbo in "Mata Hari," is Gregg, Flint's bitter enemy. Mitchell Lewis and Forrester Harvey also have strong roles.

Not the least remarkable actor in the cast is the chimpanzee, Queenie, that won such acclaim in "Tarzan." In "Kongo," Queenie is the inseparable companion of "Deadlegs" and figures as largely in the drama as many of the human characters.

William Cowen, as director, resumes the place he held in winning a national exhibitor's poll as one of the ten best directors for his handling of "Ned McCobb's Daughter." For the past two years he has been directing foreign versions for M-G-M.

LITTLE THEATER WILL PRESENT BURLESQUE PROGRAM, FEATURING LOCAL ANGLES AND A DASCHUNDE

Program To Be Given Tomorrow Night in Club room

Offered for the entertainment of Little Theater members, their guests and other persons interested in Little Theater activities, will be a burlesque program on personalities and incidents of the Panhandle, Oklahoma and Pampa, Monday night in the club room of the city hall. The program will start promptly at 8 o'clock and no one will be admitted after that time or allowed to leave before the program finished. Presentation of the program will require about 34 minutes.

In addition to the burlesque numbers, a serious interlude, "A Comedy of Escape," involving a slaying which was caused by "the eternal triangle" motive will be presented.

Titles of some of the burlesque numbers are as follows: "The Welfare Board's Tragic Case—History of Gloria Wentworth, or, Gracie Allen's Revenge," "The Harvester Football Boys at Collich, on the Plains and on the Beach," "Why The Amarillo Gamblers and the Harvesters Lost the Randle Football Game," and "The Texas Jitters, or, Pretty Boy Floyd in the Lone Star State."

Before they come to the club room, those who intend to attend the program were asked by the program committee to learn positively the identities of Gracie Allen, "Pretty Boy" Floyd, and names of deputy sheriffs who have been killed in Texas recently, and what a daschunde is—in order they can laugh at the proper time.

Musical settings for all the numbers will be provided by Mrs. May P. Carr. The burlesque will be based on a quest for a daschunde.

OIL HEARING SET AUSTIN, Feb. 4. (AP)—The Texas Railroad commission today announced that an oil and gas hearing would be held at Amarillo February 17. The hearing will be on the application of the Shamrock Oil & Gas company to separate the northeast part of Moore county from the remainder of the Panhandle field for proration purposes.

Lloyd Waner Too 'Frail' for Minors

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 4. (AP)—Lloyd Waner, too frail to play in the minor league, is one of the "strong men" in John Heydler's circuit insofar as plugging averages are concerned.

The story goes that "little poison," Pittsburgh centerfielder, was turned loose by the San Francisco Seals in 1926 because the management feared he could not bear up under the strain due to his slight build. He weighs only 135 pounds and is 5 feet, 8 inches tall.

Statistics reveal Waner owns a combined batting mark of .341 for the six years he has been playing in the National League.

Undaunted by his setback in San Francisco, Waner came to Pittsburgh to visit his brother, Paul, then playing his first season with the Corsairs.

Bill McKechnie, Bucs' manager in 1926, told Lloyd to don a uniform and practice with the team. The speed and clever work of Lloyd impressed McKechnie.

Relief Agency Cuts Wage Scale To 20c An Hour

Because so many men are registering for work in Pampa, the Gray county federal relief committee yesterday morning decided to cut the scale of labor to 20 cents an hour so that more men can be given employment. They also decided to set the price for trucks at $4 and for teams at $3.

More than 600 men have registered for work, and as the amount of money available is inadequate, the committee decided that the action was the only way to divide the money among those needing it most. The new scale will go into effect tomorrow, when 75 men will be given work, instead of the 50 that have been working.

Yesterday the committee paid out $287.88 to 140 men and nine women.

Work on the swimming pool and cleaning of streets and lots will continue this week. Pouring of cement for the pool is expected to start during the week.

J. F. Davis of Groom transacted business here yesterday.
