TWINKLES
Let's quit talking about "worse" conditions—Nature seems intent on improving on each previous attempt.

Correction—they're not SANDSTORMS, but DUSTSTORMS and back the ranching days before the plow didn't see so much dust!

Yessir, we of The News are mighty proud of Host Fulginiti and his oratorical ability. Host is modest, sincere boy and although he is around this newspaper a lot with his "parent" brother, he is ever obtrusive. We wish him all the luck there is at Kansas City.

Sooner or later, ambitious hens of community break away from utopia and have contents in prodigious over-sized eggs. A White Whorem belonging to W. B. Perry has laid a 5½-ounce egg, 7 inches around the small way and 8¼ inches around the long way. If there are any prominent hens who can beat this mark, Mr. Henry and his Pampa would like to know it.

We have sympathy for hard-hit farmers, but we admire the firmness of Iowa's governor in serving notice that the dignity of the court is the dignity of all the people of Iowa, to be preserved. As a protection, however, against some laws are adapted to needs of this time.

Sooner or later, warring oil interests will learn that no plan favoring one group will work. Then we'll get somewhere.

OUR CONTEMPORARIES
Albert Cooper in Shamrock, Tex.: In response to a telegram, John Ryan, state representative from his district, wired the Texan Wednesday afternoon he was "now sure extension service would be cared for." He stated the educational appropriation bill is now being considered.

It appeared likely from press reports Tuesday that both houses of legislature would agree on a 25 percent reduction in the appropriation for A. & M. college and rural extension work rather than the 41 percent recommended by the appropriations committee of the house.

J. M. Noble in Canadian Record: It is hoped the prediction of the state representative is right. There has been a law proposed in the legislature that would virtually wipe out rural extension service in Texas. Very farmer in the state of Texas could make a storm of protest to representatives and senators against any such legislation. The unity agents and home demonstration agents are invaluable to the farm people during these times.

(Agents are placed as a state-wide extension movement. The federal and state departments of extension are well organized; they know what they are trying to do and why. Assuming that the agents selected for a county are capable, the service is just as good as the cooperation and enterprise of the farmers make it. Those who seek help and follow the A. & M. extension methods are usually pleased, for A. & M. has a program to fit today's needs.)

THINK THIS OVER
Max Wade in Groom News: One of the odd characteristics of human nature is often discussed by merchants and often found by individuals who study their actions and impulses, is avoiding persons they like. Every person owing someone else, not desire to linger in the presence of their debtors and nine out of ten will go nine blocks away to avoid meeting them. We have discussed the question with a number of merchants of Pampa.

INSANITY TO BE APPEAL OF PAUL OAKLEY

'DEVIL SLAYING' TRIAL OPENS IN CASS COUNTY

PREACHER ROLLS EYES

PROSECUTOR TO SEEK DEATH PENALTY IN CHOKING

LINDEN May 1. (AP)—Hundreds of persons filled the Cass county court room and overflowed into the lawn outside today at the opening of the trial of Paul Oakley, itinerant preacher, for the "devil slaying" of Bernice Clayton, three-year-old invalid.

The crowd included 210 special veniremen who had been summoned for prospective jury service. DIFL duty in selecting jurors was anticipated because of wide-spread publicity the case had attracted.

Elmer E. Lincoln, district attorney, in questioning the first few men, indicated he would seek the death penalty. Defense counsel announced a plea of insanity would be entered for their client.

Oakley entered the court room smiling and during the preliminary proceedings sat near his attorneys, gesticulating with his hands and rolling his eyes. With his brother, Coy Oakley, he had been in jail here since Bernice was choked to death in weird rites at her home designed to "drive the devil from her."

Both brothers and Sherman Clayton, the child's father, were charged with murder. At his preliminary hearing Clayton testified that he thought Paul Oakley was trying to cure the child and he did not know he was killing her.

Both Oakleys related their versions of the affair at the preliminary hearing. Paul declared that while he had his hands on her throat a "devil" told him to choke her.

La Nora Robbery Is Investigated

City officers are investigating the hi-jacking at the La Nora theater last Saturday night when two young, un-masked bandits held up the cashier, Miss Velma Robinson, and escaped with $80 in cash.

A prevue had just started when one of the men walked up to the office and purchased tickets as the other man stepped into the foyer, where the ticket taker was standing.

Scrap Lumber Fire Brings Department

A pile of scrap lumber caught fire from a trash barrel about 11 o'clock last night and the fire department answered the call to the street.

CHICAGO'S UNPAID TEACHERS

"To hell," says Gen. Charles G. Dawes, "with trouble makers." This sentiment, which occasionally rolls the mpid of humbler citizens, found utterance in typically Dawesian fashion when a few thousand unpaid Chicago school teachers marched into Chicago's financial district and asked General Dawes to explain why they couldn't collect any of the $29,000,000 the city owes them in back salaries.

The boogie which descended on the head of the former vice president probably was more than a little unfair. After all, General Dawes wasn't mayor of Chicago when Chicago phenagied itself out of tax revenues. The mess isn't his making.

But one of the penalties you have to pay for being a prominent banker—which ordinarily is a very cushy job—is that when things go very wrong people are apt to start blaming them on you; and somehow General Dawes' denunciation of trouble makers doesn't seem like the best of all possible comebacks.

For one of the perverse things about human nature is this: when a lot of intelligent and devoted people work hard on their jobs and find that the incompetence and chicanery of their rulers has deprived them of their incomes, they are very apt to become trouble makers. That is, they are apt to become abusive and indignant, and impolite to prominent bankers, and unmindful of the peace and quiet that ought to reign in a big city's financial district; and consigning them to the nether regions with snappy abruptness doesn't seem quite as good a gag as it might have a few years ago, even if it does help you to live up to your reputation for being blunt and outspoken.

The real trouble makers in Chicago, of course, aren't the unpaid school teachers; they are the politicians and financiers who got Chicago into such a mess—that the school teachers can't get paid.

A few of these gentlemen have already toppled off of their pedestals. Others, however, remain securely placed. Chicago needs very much to have them all tossed out, and the indignation of her school teachers could be a very useful aid in that direction if someone would direct it properly. And the next time General Dawes gets tired of trouble makers, someone ought to point that fact out to him.

See where mathematics is losing out to social subjects in the schools. Well, for the past few years we needed only subtraction and division. Now it looks like we'll need only multiplication.

"To hell with trouble-makers!" shouted Charlie Dawes when school teachers demanded their back pay. Sure, Charlie, but who are the trouble-makers, the teachers or the politicians who bankrupted the city?

The 16 to 1 silver proposal might work, but it sounds like a long shot.

American Indian language had no swear words, declares an investigator. But then the Indians did very little spring house-cleaning.

Pampa Fishermen

Open Season Today

Many Pampans were absent from their places of business today "due to illness or necessity of being out of the city on business" but if the truth were known, they went fishing. Today sees the opening of the season for game fish with artificial bait and Pampa has her share of ardent fishermen despite lack of nearby water.

Among the first to leave the city were Frank Foster, B. S. Via, Rufe Thompson, and S. F. Thornton, who went to Lake Childress yesterday afternoon to be on hand this morning. Many others left this morning but their absence was not attributed to fishing, so they get the benefit of the doubt.

City Manager C. L. Stone and Dr. T. J. Worrell went fishing yesterday with live bait and as the city manager said this morning, "Doc did the fishing while I looked on," "Doc" caught a dozen beauties, while the city manager landed one.

trons owing them an account and find that the majority of the patrons in debt will go to another town or another store to trade, mainly because they are embarrassed in the presence of those they owe or cannot pay. From conversations we have heard it is unnecessary for those who owe local stores to trade elsewhere for fear that the merchants will force them to pay what they owe. Most of the merchants of Pampa have large accounts outstanding but express themselves as feeling that if a man is in debt to them and cannot pay what they owe they doubly appreciate being told in a direct manner and having their trade on a cash basis as it is used elsewhere.

The surest way to lose a good customer, merchants tell us, is to extend credit to a liberal spender. After a big account has been run up, the spender usually begins to "shy off" and act self-conscious if he is unable to pay. If he is a merchant, he often becomes hostile, usually paying cash. Those given credit certainly owe it to the merchant who befriended them to continue to patronize that merchant. Loss of trade is often more harmful than loss of the original account.

Human nature is funny, isn't it? Or worse.

Temples of Jerusalem were discussed before 100 persons at Judge Ivy Duncan's Men's Bible class of the First Christian church yesterday.

Highly interesting facts concerning the building of Solomon's temple, which cost a sum estimated at $,600 millions of dollars, were given. Mr. Lazarus said that in the 7 years of construction there was no illness and there were no deaths among the 38,000 and more men employed. One division of men did nothing but pray. No hammers and nails were used, and gold and silver were used extensively inside and out.

President C. E. Hutchins of the class has invited men to attend these class sessions if they are not in other Sunday schools. On next Sunday, County Judge C. E. Cary will be the speaker.

The White Cockatoo by Mignon G. Eberhart

SYNOPSIS: Can it be that the man who murdered the Russian in the hotel corridor the man who shot Sue twice at Jim Sunden, and the man who tried to abduct Sue Tully are the same? Sue Sunden and David Lora, a detective, puzzle over the problem. They agree that finding it all is a plot to claim the token by means of which Sue is to prove her identity to her brother whom she has not seen for years, and thus to share with him an immense fortune. In an case, Sue is in danger—and Sunden wishes to help her.

Chapter 21 STUBBORN SUE

I STARTED toward Sue: it was a ghastly suggestion she'd put into words. But Lorn intercepted me. "Oh, don't think of danger, Miss Tully," he said easily. "The token protects you so long as they don't discover it."

"I checked myself, as I saw getting nowhere, and Lorn's little maliciously: "Must be Mr. Sunden? The murderer murdered man?"

"That depends on the idea of the murdered man," I said glumly. "At any rate, it proves the man who tried to abduct Tully had some connection with the Lovschien."

"Then you can't imagine that Francis to bring him here sooner?" I suggested.

"No," cried Sue spitefully. "I won't beg—"

"Nonsense," I said. "This is too serious for petty pride—"

"Come, come, Miss Tully," murmured Lorn quietly. "We understand your position. But I'll cable to Mr. Tully."

"Then I'll do it myself," I said grimly, and meant it, though I have the average man's dislike for meddling in someone else's affairs.

CHINESE REPORTED SEEKING AN ARMISTICE WITH JAPANESE

JAPAN WOULD AVOID STRIFE WITH RUSSIA

SOVIET SENDS ANOTHER BRISTLING NOTE TO MANCHUKUO

TOKYO, May 1. (AP)—The Japanese foreign office disclosed today that Chinese leaders were seeking through American and British ministries in Peking to negotiate a Sino-Japanese armistice.

Official reports were received that certain Chinese approached both Nelson T. Johnson, the United States minister, and Sir Miles Lampson, the British minister, proposing that they assist in opening negotiations.

A meeting between Sino-Japanese military leaders for the purpose of deciding on an armistice and establishing a neutral zone south of the Great Wall of China is desired.

The report admitted that these Chinese are not connected with Marshal Chang Kai-Shek, the virtual dictator of the nationalist government at Nanking, or his Peking representative, General Lo Yung-ching.

MOSCOW, U. S. R., May 1. (AP)—The Soviet vice chairman of the Chinese Eastern Railway board has sent another bristling note to the Manchukuoan chairman of the board stating "It is a direct lie when you talk about locomotives being held without authorization in the U. S. S. R."

TOKYO, May 1. (AP)—General Nobuyoshi Muto, Japan's supreme military and diplomatic representative in Manchuria, has been instructed to use his influence to prevent the present wordy strife between Manchukuo and Soviet Russia from becoming more serious or involving the Japanese army.

These instructions were sent him by the war office. The foreign office stressed the fact that General Muto was acting in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the army in Manchuria and not as Japan's ambassador. The army is charged with Manchukuo's defense in event the new state is involved in war.

Tokyo officials profess confidence that the chances of an actual conflict over the administration of the Chinese Eastern railway, the joint charge of Russia and Manchukuo and the cause of the present dispute, is very remote.

home-maker will do well to have a flower-holder in this event, arranging the blooms so that the person looking down upon them gets just the right effect.

If they are on a buffet or side-board, then you will look at them from the side and front. They should be arranged with this in mind. Take heed of the tell-tale mirror back of the bowl of flowers. If you have been neglectful of the bouquet, this will show up. Of course, flowers properly arranged and set in front of a mirror are best displayed because they always look to be twice as many and give a sense of profusion and richness.

Hang Well Down

Flowers on the mantel-piece will be looked up at. Keep this thought in mind and have the flowers hang down over the side of the container. For a luncheon in the home, a cool-looking bowl is best for the dining table. The flowers should be loosely arranged and so low that those around the table can readily see one another. It is annoying if a bouquet is too high or too tall. For a luncheon in the home, a cool-looking bowl is best for the dining table.

The same is true of an intimate, informal dinner. So arrange the flowers that guests on different sides of the table will be able to converse pleasantly with those on the other side, so that faces will not be hidden.

For the formal dinner, the hostess will, of course, wear flowers. Since the flowers will be ordered from your florist, let his judgment rule, as he is an artist trained in his work. Soft candle-light is warmer and more inviting than any other means of illumination, and with the candles harmonizing in color with the various shades of flowers, some very lovely effects can be obtained.

ORCHID ETIQUET

This business of wearing orchids isn't as simple as it might be. There's a distinct etiquette of placing, a question of good taste in color and a knowledge of the proper occasion upon which to wear this rare flower. And, in addition, there's a law of numbers to obey.

The orchid is deserving of every consideration in its wearing. It requires seven years for this rare plant to mature. This fact, alone makes it a jewel among flowers.

For one thing, the chic woman doesn't wear orchids at the waist. Nor does she breeze into certain places wearing these flowers any more than she wears an evening gown at noon. One orchid, just pinned on at the shoulder as though by chance, is nice. But two orchids—never! This arrangement is too banal, too uniform. With three orchids you wear an air of distinction. And five orchids give you that million-dollar, off-to-Europe look.

SAN JACINTO BATTLE FIELD

THIS HISTORIC SPOT where Sam Houston's army changed the map of North America, was the scene of a celebration on April 21, ninety-seventh anniversary of the Texans' victory over General Santa Anna's Mexican army. Every year, on April 21, the battle-ground is a patriotic mecca that attracts thousands. Exercises were held in commemoration of the great event of the day.

Nervous, Rundown?

If your day begins with frayed nerves, headache, periodic pains or weakening drains, you should take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Read what Mrs. B. Longmire of 2702 Arizona St., Dallas, says: "I had pain in my back, pains in my limbs, suffered with headache, was weak and very nervous, my appetite was poor, I weighed only 116 pounds and felt rundown generally. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and in a short time the pains had left me, my nerves were calm, my appetite was normal, and I have enjoyed perfect health since."

GREAT DIAMOND TO BE SHOWN AT WORLD'S FAIR, WITH WAY GEMS ARE MINED IN AFRICA

CHICAGO, May 1.—The great Naskak Diamond, one of the world's most famous gems, valued at a half-million dollars will blaze forth from its super-protected cabinet at Chicago's 1933 world's fair, as a part of the brilliant display of the combined international diamond interests, it was announced today.

White men first saw the Naskak diamond, India early in the twelfth century in the temple of Siva at Naskak, India, as the right eye of the god. Siva. In the wars of the British East India company during the 18th century, Naskak was looted and the diamond taken by soldiers to London. It weighs 78 5-8 carats and is a flawless blue-white stone.

The famous gem will be guarded day and night by armed guards in gas masks, tear gas and the sleepless "electric eye" of the photoelectric cell. It will be in a cabinet of burglar-proof glass, inside of which is a drill-proof safe of special design. The top of the safe folds back allowing the cushion on which the Naskak diamond rests to rise and be displayed above the safe.

Any blow to the glass case automatically causes the gem to sink into the safe and immediately releases a flood of tear gas. Guards in gas-masks will then close in, should such an emergency arise, and await reinforcements from a nearby detective squad where an alarm is sounded.

An attempt is now being made to also bring to the world's fair, the Marie Antoinette necklace, a string of great gems worth approximately two million dollars, but rendered priceless, because of the historic value.

The comprehensive diamond show, which will be held in the central court of the jewelry pavilion in the general exhibits group, will have a diamond mine in full operation, a native kaffir kraal, where the workers live; diamond cutters at work and demonstrations of the industrial use of the precious stone.

Elaborate plans have been made to show visitors to the exposition the workings of the mine. At its portal will be a 36-foot tippel used to lower African laborers to a shaft below the level of Lake Michigan.

There Kaffirs and Zulu workmen will be seen drilling and digging out the "blue ground" in which diamonds are found. Along the tunnel apparently 300 feet long, the blue rock will be wheeled in cars to the hoist.

Fifteen tons of "blue ground" containing 3,000 or more carats of raw diamonds have been shipped to Chicago from Kimberley, South Africa, to provide a real setting for the natives. Two diamond mine engineers from the Kimberley workings will be in charge of the mine and mill.

French Stand On Gold Standard Is Seen Threatened

PARIS, May 1. (AP)—Former Premier Edouard Herriot, speeding home from the Washington discussions, will find himself on arrival in the midst of a discussion of France's ability to remain on the gold standard.

Government spokesmen declare that the franc will weather the storm, but some parliamentary experts expressed doubt that France will stay on the gold standard long with the United States off.

Something to Say

not just saying something

A friend of CHESTERFIELD writes us of a salesman who had "something to say":

"I dropped into a little tobacco shop, and when I asked for a pack of Chesterfields the man smiled and told me I was the seventh customer without a break to ask for Chesterfields. 'Smoker after smoker,' he said, 'tells me that Chesterfields click... I sell five times as many Chesterfields as I did a while back.'"

Yes, there's something to say about Chesterfields and it takes just six words to say it—"They're mild and yet they satisfy."
