OUR CONTEMPORARIES

Tom Waggoner in Claude News: Music, art, beauty, nature, youth, and love know no depression; it's only beefsteak, bread, butter, pie and cake that do. We can't eat the former, but our spirits can feast upon them whether we have the latter or not.

(We think people will be happier when some sort of old age security is worked out, encourage them to enjoy living from day to day, to stress cultivation of themselves mentally and spiritually instead of fearing old age and competing bitterly for a surplus of world's good to lay up for that winter of life.)

C. E. Clark in Childress Index: If only prairie dogs were edible, the residents of this county could feast for the next year. But prairie dogs are just rats with a pedigree and don't mind living with snakes. It isn't their relationship with rats or snakes, however, but their taste for grains and their hole digging proclivities that has caused their death warrant issued in Childress county.

(What do you mean, living with snakes? Do you think, Brody, that you can prove that the prairie dog shares his bed and board with snakes and personally and severally associates with rattlers? If you do, we'll back up, but until then we will claim in behalf of the prairie dog (who isn't a dog) that he merely lives in a neighborhood where snakes occupy the least desirable and abandoned holes. Human beings live similarly, sometimes, in the vicinity of human snakes, but not WITH them. The prairie dog (L. evanmays) is a burrowing rodent, not a mammal, especially the species C. ludovicianus. How's that for a pedigree?)

J. C. Estlack in Clarendon Leader: It is well to remember that the record owner of all property, says the case, regardless of what equity such so-called owner might have in the property. In this sense, the land holder of record is paying taxes on something he does not own. Surely the holder if the notes should pay a proportionate part of the taxes, though this has not been the case in many states.

(Well said. But ad valorem taxation, like most other kinds, is subject to manipulation. And 't's not the approval of legal counsel on such results. It is easy to pass remedial laws, but the mind of man soon finds ways to make the law serve two masters—the owner in fact and the owner of record. The latter usually has the most influence, hence is best-protected in law.)

David M. Warren in Panhandle Herald: This is America at the opening of 1933—a vast and incalculably rich land, which is gradually emerging from depression and entering a new era. It is still a land of promise, as it was in the days of the Arizonians. It has lost nothing that it really possessed. Its earth is still fruitful, its mines are still filled with metals, its factories are ready to make the necessities and luxuries its people want. Its people are courageous, and they still have faith. Its leaders retain those vital qualities—intelligence and vision. America will pull out of the depression—and from the lessons that the depression has taught, it may find a means of preventing both extreme rises and extreme drops in the economic and social cycle, and of creating genuine, permanent and sound prosperity.

114TH COURT DUE TO COME TO END TODAY

GOVERNOR IS EXPECTED TO SIGN BILL OF ABOLISHMENT

TELEGRAM IS AWAITED

COURT CREATED WHEN 31ST DOCKET WAS CONGESTED

"I have signed House Bill 68, to which was attached 'emergency clause,'"—MIRIAM A. FERGUSON.

This telegram, received by Judge E. F. Ritchie, automatically terminated the life of the 114th district court.

THE signature of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson to a bill abolishing the 114th district court created here in March of 1929 was expected to bring an end to the court some time today.

Special Judge E. F. Ritchie of Miami was expecting a telegram from Mrs. Ferguson notifying him that the court was non-existent and that all cases had automatically been transferred to the 31st district court.

The regular judge, Clifford Braly, ill at his home here, has not been on the bench in several months. Wm. W. Holmes, who lived here several years, is court reporter. Judge Braly, Judge Ritchie, and Mr. Holmes will be removed from office through abolishment of the court.

The 114th district court was created to handle civil business when oil developments had congested the regular court with criminal and civil business until near chaos resulted. Its jurisdiction covers the counties of Gray, Carson, and Hutchinson.

Transfer of the many cases on the docket of 114th district court will tend to congest the docket of the 31st district court, where criminal actions are favored. The latter court, which will open a regular term here next month, is presided over by Judge W. R. Ewing, pioneer jurist.

W. R. Frame of Amarillo is the court reporter.

Needed Laws To Be Passed, Says McLean Attorney

Texas' new legislature gives promise of accomplishing south-wide legislation, in the opinion of Claus Williams, McLean attorney, who spent last week in Austin.

Cone Johnson's Illness Takes Turn for Worse

TYLER, Feb. 6. (AP)—Physicians reported no change today in the condition of Cone Johnson, veteran member of the state highway commission, whose illness took a turn for the worse last night.

The pioneer politician suffered a relapse and became weaker. Johnson had been active in virtually every political campaign since 1886. As leader of the Texas delegation to the 1912 democratic convention in Baltimore, he helped nominate Woodrow Wilson for the presidency. He was legal adviser to William Jennings Bryan when the latter was secretary of state in the Wilson cabinet.

I HEARD--

Mayor W. A. "Bill" Bratton declared that he didn't know any news but that he did know that the Lions minstrel this year was going to be a knock-out. "The mayor happens to be the head-man."

That Claude Hipps of LeFors introduced his "wife" to the boys at Colheco No. 1 but that the "better half" turned out to be Louise Hardin, dressed up to take the part of the wife in the womanless wedding given there. "Mrs. Hipps" was received graciously and with many smiles. The real Mrs. Hipps got a big kick out of the proceedings, but the rest of the boys declare they are going to get even with Claude.

AGRICULTURAL PROBLEM

FARM mortgages and the inability of farmers to meet interest payments constitute a problem that is puzzling the nation. Taking the situation into their own hands, the farmers have blocked foreclosure sales in many states. Above is shown how farm income has dropped since 1920 and how foreclosures have risen since 1929. The Iowa Farmer's Council of Defense which was formed to block forced farm sales is shown below.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. (AP)—Harnessed with mortgages to a load of debt, America's farmers are mired in a slough of fixed charges. Briefly, here are the factors behind the farm foreclosure battle that has swept over the nation:

1. Despite the depression, the total farm mortgage debt has remained practically unchanged. It is now about $9,000,000,000. In 1928 it was $9,500,000,000, and in 1929 it was $7,850,000,000.

2. Also little changed is his interest burden on the debt. It now is about $500,000,000. In 1929 it was $554,000,000.

3. In the face of these huge obligations are two rapidly changing factors. First, gross farm income took a precipitous drop from $16,000,000,000 in 1928 to $5,240,000,000 in 1932. It was $13,500,000,000 in 1920. Second, farm prices from August, 1929, to August, 1932, fell 60 per cent while wholesale prices of the things the farmers buy fell only 24 per cent.

In addition to these three factors, farmers are faced with another fixed charge even more rigorous than debt—taxes. In 1929 farm taxes were $452,000,000. In 1932 they were $777,000,000.

Nothing New In Swisher Slaying, Ranger Reports

DALLAS, Feb. 6. (AP)—Ranger Sid Kelso was back in Dallas today after a week-end at Tulla, Swisher county, where J. C. Moseley, sheriff, was shot and killed on the night of January 23 when he stopped an automobile in which two men and a woman were riding.

After Kelso made his report to Bert Whinsand, ranger sergeant, the latter told newspapermen nothing new had been uncovered. Kelso was said to have made his trip because Tulla authorities believed they knew the hiding place of the woman.

"Swisher county officers almost caught the woman at a point in New Mexico the latter part of last week," Whinsand said. "Believing they would have less difficulty in making an arrest in another state with a ranger, who is allowed to make arrests without warrants, Swisher county authorities asked me to send one of my men there."

A second attempt to arrest the woman after Kelso arrived was not made for it was believed at that time she had moved away.

S. J. Blackburn of LeFors was a visitor here Saturday night.

SENATE WOULD PAY COSTS OF MARTIAL LAW

APPROPRIATION VOTED TO PAY EXPENSES IN OIL FIELDS

SENATORS OPPOSE BILL

CONSTITUTION EVADED, FOES OF MEASURE CLAIM

AUSTIN, Feb. 6. (AP)—The senate voted today, 21 to 4, to appropriate $190,000 to pay expenses of strict law in the East Texas oil field.

The item was included in the governor's $200,000 deficiency appropriation bill. Senators opposed to the appropriation contended that the constitution had been evaded. They asserted that in addition to the $190,000 deficiency appropriation, $91,000 of the regular appropriation for the adjutant general's department had been used for martial law maintenance. The legislature will be called upon to make a $1,000 appropriation for armory rentals and other expenses which should have been paid out of the regular appropriation, they said.

The constitution limits the governor's deficiency appropriations to $200,000. A simple resolution by Senator Grady Woodruff of Decatur requesting Attorney General James V. Allred to render an opinion whether a governor has the right to name one of the members of the highway commission chairman when "being" chairman, was defeated 12 to 13.

Bill To Pay Attorneys

The resolution pointed out that W. R. Ely of Abilene is at present chairman of the commission and that Governor Miriam A. Ferguson had designated F. L. Denison of Temple, her appointee to succeed.

Relief Agency Gives Work To 65 Men Today

Sixty-five men, four trucks, and one team went to work on city projects this morning through the Pampa relief committee handling Reconstruction Finance money here. Work on the swimming pool project, cleaning streets, alleys and vacant lots, and hauling garbage were on the program for the week.

Several carpenters went to work making forms preparatory to pouring cement for the swimming pool. Steel and cement should arrive here this week.

The wage scale for labor was reduced to 20 cents an hour this morning. The committee made the decision Saturday after it was learned that more than 600 names were on the relief list. Prices set for trucks and teams were each lowered $1 a day. More men will be allowed to work each week since the change.

Prussian Official Urges Restoration of Kaiser Dynasty

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. (AP)—The authority of the president to change customs duties without disclosing confidential information submitted by American producers to the tariff commission was sustained today by the supreme court.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. (AP)—David S. Barry, veteran senate sergeant-at-arm, cited statements of members of congress themselves to the senate judiciary committee today in support of his assertion in a magazine article that some senators and representatives take bribes. The committee postponed action on his case, but will continue working on it tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. (AP)—The department of agriculture announced today that disbursements of money to farmers under the $98,000,000 crop production loan bill signed Saturday by President Hoover will begin before March 1.

GENEVA, Switz., Feb. 6. (AP)—The League of Nations committee of nineteen, which has been seeking a solution to the Manchurian dispute, has agreed that the recommendations it is preparing should be based upon a declaration against recognition of the state of Manchukuo and upon other principles proposed in the report of the Lytton commission.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 6. (AP)—After hearing a half dozen witnesses, the Oklahoma senate's oil investigating committee prepared in executive session today to clear Senator J. Woody Dixon of any suspicion of attempting to bribe a national guardsman to testify concerning illegal running of oil from the Oklahoma City field.

Mother of Dick Hughes Succumbs At White Deer

Mrs. W. H. Brady, 45, of White Deer died at her home at 5 o'clock this morning after a brief illness. She was the mother of R. G. Hughes and Lula Mae Brady, both of Pampa. Mrs. Brady was born in Texas and resided in White Deer for the last 20 years. She was well known in Pampa and other sections of the Panhandle.

Funeral services will be conducted in the First Methodist church of White Deer at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The Rev. E. Gaston Foote of Amarillo will preach the services. Interment will follow in White Deer cemetery. Arrangements will be in charge of the G. C. Malone home where the body lies at rest.

Mrs. Brady is survived by her husband and mother, Mrs. J. M. McCoy of White Deer, two daughters and a son.

Hindenburg Dissolves Diet Of Prussia Amid Chaos Of Dictatorship.

BERLIN, Feb. 6. (AP)—Restoration of the Hohenzollern monarchy was urged today by Friedrich von Winterfeld, vice-president of the Prussian diet, at a meeting of a nationalist party group.

Taking issue with the point of view that the president of the republic should have greater authority, he declared: "A president dies but the king lives forever. Therefore the aim of the German nationalist party group is the restoration of a Prussian-German Hohenzollern monarchy."

BERLIN, Feb. 6. (AP)—The Prussian diet was dissolved today by vote of the new "triumvirate" consisting of Vice-Chancellor Von Papen, Hans Kerrl, president of the diet, and Conrad Adenauer, president of the Prussian state council. A new diet will be elected on March 5, the date on which an election for the national Reichstag is to be held.

Claims that the supreme court's verdict of Oct. 25, 1932, charged him with establishing order in Prussia, President Paul von Hindenburg swept into the discard today the remnants of the Braun-Severing Prussian government, transferring the powers of the two chief officials to Vice-Chancellor Franz von Papen.

The vice-chancellor, as commissioner for Prussia, will take Premier Otto Braun's place in the triumvirate ruling the Prussian diet and together with Hans Kerrl, national socialist president of the diet, vote dissolution of that parliamentary body.

DUISBURG, Germany, Feb. 6. (AP)—Rifle shots and hand grenades which never fired and hurled from an abandoned factory building into a Nazi funeral procession killed one Nazi and injured six today.

Police wearing steel helmets and carrying capines stormed the factory but the results of the raid were not immediately determined.

Lions Minstrel To Have Setting In Roof Garden

Having definitely decided upon a roof garden scene for the first part of the annual minstrel show and musical revue, the big cast of the Lions club will swing into frequent and long rehearsals this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the city hall.

Costumes of a Russian type in the club colors are being made, and these will make a unique spectacle when the curtain parts on the evenings of March 2 and 3. Spectators who have heard parts of the music declare the show will surpass last year's initial success, and that is the goal of the production staff. Tickets will be placed on sale soon by a committee headed by the Rev. F. W. O'Malley, minister of the First Christian church, will deliver the sermon and the boys will participate in the program. All residents interested in boys are urged to be present.

President A. C. Post of the county fair, praised the newspapers in towns of the Adobe Walls council for their support of the movement.

Police Hunting Untagged Dogs

Pampa policemen are going to be dog catchers on the side until the dog menace is cleared. Chief of Police John V. Andrews has decided. Only 97 out of the 1,000 dogs tags and had their dogs vaccinated up to this morning, although the deadline was February 1.

Vaccination fee has been reduced to $1 while tags for male dogs are only $1 and for females $2 this year. They are hundreds of dogs running wild in the city, tearing up flower beds, ruining lawns, and becoming general nuisances, the chief says.

A new ordinance has been prepared by the city and is now in effect. Dogs without tags will be taken to the pound and kept three days before they are destroyed.

I SAW--

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Lovett, Gray county pioneers, getting ready to leave for a two-week stay at Mineral Wells. Speaking of a recent illness, Mr. Lovett said he had "the black-leg" which must be an old-time ranchman's way of saying that he has the packy-neck. The couple spends several weeks at Mineral Wells each year.

Charlie Duengel and he was optimistic. "Vital statistics," he said, "show that the odds are 125 to 1 that because you're a resident of the Panhandle, you'll live 12 more months."

GASOLINE TAX EXEMPTION IN DANGER

Citizens of the Plains particularly should zealously watch developments in the Texas Legislature on revision of the gasoline tax laws. A bill has been filed that would eliminate all gasoline tax refunds.

The gasoline tax has long been considered an equitable tax for highway building and maintenance, on the theory that in proportion to the gasoline used there is wear and tear on the highways. The man who uses the highways a lot, pays proportionately for the use he makes of them.

However, the gasoline tax is construed as an occupation tax. By constitutional provision one-fourth of it goes into the available school fund.

Effort are now being made to divert the gasoline funds from the highway usage, by increasing the percentage going into the available school fund, and by diversion of another part of the fund to the state's general fund.

This is entirely beside the matter of killing refunds on gasoline not used on highways, but is itself highly important. There are many who feel that gasoline used in farm tractors and otherwise, not on the highways, should not be exempt from the tax through rebate of tax paid.

Every citizen of the Plains where thousands upon thousands of gallons of gasoline are used in tractors and other farm machinery, and have no bearing in any manner upon the use or abuse of highways, should zealously watch developments at Austin.

Our immediate section has an able advocate of its rights in the person of A. B. Tarwater, representative from this district, who has been a leader in previous fights to create exemption for farm used gasoline and to maintain that exemption. Senator Arthur Duggan of the 30th District, in the upper house, is also thoroughly advised of the economic benefit of this exemption to Plains farmers, as well as to other farm and industrial users.

There are a lot of legislators, who are luke-warm, however, and the suggestion is made that every citizen, who has a good contact with legislators from other districts should write or otherwise communicate with them to impress upon them the importance of the tax exemption of farm and industrial gasoline.—Plainview HERALD.

Whether tonsil operations are beneficial or not they're about the only chance some of us have when the task gets around to our hospital ordeals.

An "automat" beer-dispensing machine has been invented to set out a foaming glass when a nickel is dropped in the slot. It can't be much of a success until it is made to say "This one's on the house!" and fit action to words.

Someone has written Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt complaining of the appearance of her husband's hat. If it appears a little misshapen, it should be remembered the president-elect is keeping a whole cabinet under it.

Scanning New Books

By JOHN SELBY
NEW YORK—In the past Sinclair Lewis has crusaded against a considerable collection of enemies, usually one at a time. In "Ann Vickers" he takes them by hand.

But it is taking the form of narrow straps of tulle worn across the eyes alone like a kind of bandage, leaving the greater part of the forehead and the lower part of the face bare. Many of these veils are edged with fine lace-like designs of great beauty, only a small portion being left plain for the eyes to peek through.

A large square of wood in several tones and grains is also a new closing feature, when the coat laps on a double-breasted line.

Sometimes the waist button fastens a matching belt made with a large round buttonhole.

THE CROWN OF SPRING

IT'S how heads wear their crowns this spring that gives women the royal touch of chic that they all crave. With this new tailored suit in the season's smart gray, this hat sponsors the new silhouette, showing a crown high in back, lower in front, with a brim that slants just right for the woman who wears it.

PARIS, Feb. 6. (INS)—The dainty little veil which has been the darling of the women during the winter months promises to keep up the good work in the springtime.

SUPPLE SATINS TO STRIKE NOTE IN SPRING MODE

PARIS, Feb. 6.—Curves molded delicately—that's the last word for the spring modes.

Fashions capable of fashioning feminine curves in soft relief without being designed on close-fitting lines attracted the admiration of the buyers at the shows. Supple satins, silky crepes and rich flat wools were highlights.

Chantal showed a silver cloque lame evening frock on princess lines molding the figure. Starting in the evening modes were brilliant supple satins in rose, pale blue, mauve, cyclamen and mother pearl tones, cloaking the feminine figure like shimmering, molten paint.

Flat wools in plain or diagonal weaves distinguished the street mode which stressed navy grey, beige, bright red, mustard yellow, and grass green.

BORGER MAY BE TOUGHEST Foe OF SEASON HERE TONIGHT

INJURY WILL KEEP CENTER OUT OF GAME

FULLINGIM CRIPPLED IN McLEAN TILT ON SATURDAY

Injury—that nemesis dreaded by all coaches, struck a knockout blow within the ranks of the Harvester basketball team Saturday night in the game with McLean here, and as a result, the Pampa center is almost certain to be without the services of Fred Fullingim, center center in the game with the up-and-coming Borger Bulldogs here tonight.

Fullingim suffered a foot injury, and although it did not appear to be serious immediately after the game, he was barely able to hobble around Sunday. He was walking today, but with difficulty. He may be out of the lineup for the rest of the season. He was just recovering from an injury to his ankle on the other foot, suffered during the football season.

Borger has won most of the games played with Pampa in recent years. The Bulldogs have always been great on the hardwood floor, and have been a championship threat at the district tournament year after year. The Bulldogs appear certain to be double tough for all ambitious teams again this year. Borger has virtually clinched her sectional title but must play for that crown in a series with Perryton's Rangers, who have already met defeat once at the hands of the Bulldogs.

With or without Fullingim at center, the Harvesters may face their toughest foe of the season tonight. Coach Mitchell had not decided on his tactics to meet the Bulldog attack at noon. If Fullingim is unable to play, J. R. Green might be sent to center, or Miles Marbaugh could go to the center position and Lester Sartin to a forward position. However, the coach had hoped that Fullingim would be in the game.

Borger stepped into the limelight as a real contender for district honors by defeating the Lubbock Westerners 38 to 33 in an overtime game Saturday night in the city of Coaley and Rook led the attack on the mighty Westerners with some of the greatest shooting of the year.

The Harvesters won a revenge game from Lubbock here Friday night, 27 to 17, in one of the closest scoring games of the season. The game tonight gives promise of being the outstanding encounter of the season.

Plans are being made to handle another full house. Two sets of bleachers have been installed. Admission will be 10 to 25 cents. Season tickets have expired and will not be honored any more this season.

HORNET CAGE TEAM'S BEST FRIEND IS RICH SPORTSMAN

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Archie Underwood, rich Athens sportsman, believes that basketball is about the grandest game being played. Underwood simply can't see enough basketball games. He has looked at seven games in one night. Naturally, his keenest interest is in the Athens high school Hornets, a quintet that reaped fame by winning two national interscholastic championships.

The boys who won two national titles for Athens are gone and Jimmy Kites, who coached the famous teams, is also gone. But Archie Underwood still is at Athens and the Hornets have another competent quintet that had lost only two games through February 1. One was to Big Spring; the other, to the Southern Methodist freshman.

"Bobo" Nelson is coaching the Hornets, but the man behind the gun of operations is Archie Underwood, and Underwood is worried.

He believes his Hornets can win the Texas interscholastic title if they are successful in their district tournament. Between sandwiches the other day, Underwood pointed out that the district tournament is always the hardest to win.

"The best team," he commented, "doesn't always win. Sometimes one of our backwoods teams will get triple hot and when a country team gets that way there is no stopping it. That's really the truth. Our Athens team plays them all, but I have noticed that when we play a team from Dallas, Fort Worth, Waco, Houston or any large town, those big city boys get hot, score several points and cool off. But not so with the our country boys. When they get hot on goal shooting they stay that way the entire game. That's why I am more worried about our district tournament than I am about the Texas interscholastic league crown."

Underwood paid the Baylor freshmen a compliment after a recent game at Athens which the local team won in an extra period. After the game Underwood invited the Baylor team to his hunting lodge for a midnight supper and rest. Many teams have been entertained there, but Underwood said, "the Baylor boys were the finest and best behaved of them all. Why, even my negro servant, Sambo, came by my office and told me the Baylor boys were so nice he was afraid something was going to happen."

McGraw Praised By Writers At Yearly Banquet

Underwood Believes Athens Has Good Chance To Win Another State Title.

By ALAN GOULD,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6. (AP)—There were no fireworks today in the wake of John McGraw's appearance, for the first time, as the guest of honor at the annual banquet of the New York Chapter of the Baseball Writers' association, devoted annually for ten years to a mid-winter frolic and occasion for putting the national game "on the gridiron."

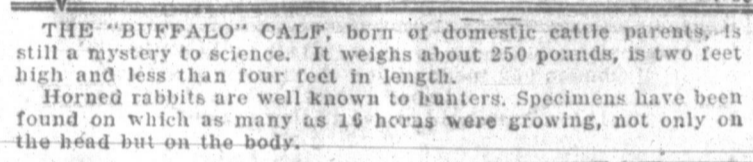

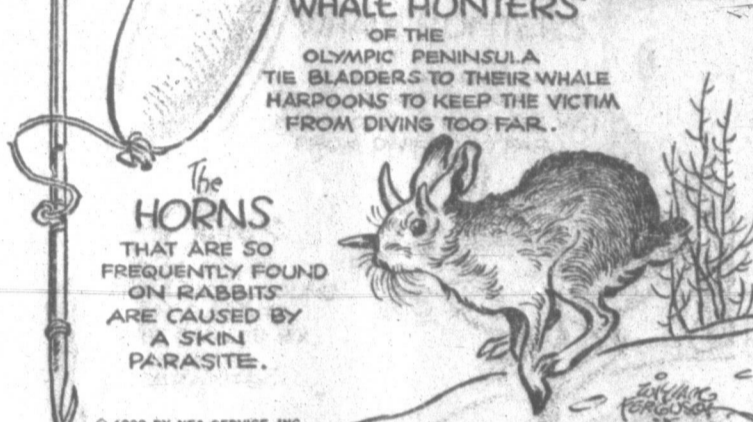

The writers themselves lampooned the Giants and lamented the departure of the "Little Napoleon" from the scene of action, after a stormy career, but the stocky, grey-haired man who won more pennants than any other figure in baseball side-stepped any opportunity he may have had to air real or fancied grievances.

"I think I may say one thing," he remarked, after receiving an ovation from several hundred guests and hearing himself described in a telegram from Connie Mack as baseball's greatest manager, "and that is that I have never tried to influence the baseball writers. I have turned inwardly and outwardly at things they have written about me but I have never quarreled with the means they used to reach their conclusions."

"I served under three presidents of the New York Giants and I want to make it clear that I was treated well by all of them. I have heard talk there was friction between myself and Mr. Stoneham upon my retirement last year but that was not so. I retired on my doctor's orders."

"My successor, Bill Terry, is a fine young man and a great ball player. I can only wish for him as long a career and as great a measure of success and enjoyment as I experienced during my long term as manager of the Giants."

Carnero Signed To Box Schaaf In Four Months

NEW YORK, Feb. 6. (AP)—Fistic dreamduffs both. Primo Carnera and Ernie Schaaf will battle 15 rounds in Madison Square Garden Friday night for the right to meet champion Jack Sharkey in a title match, outdoors, in June.

Schaaf, whose contract now is owned jointly by Sharkey and Johnny Buckley, probably will rule a 7 to 5 favorite over ponderous Primo although he will have to concede the vast Venetian about 50 rounds.

A victory for the Boston blonde might be a trifle embarrassing for Promoter Jimmy Johnston in his plans to match the winner against Sharkey since the latter is part owner of Schaaf's contract. That little difficulty, however, might be smoothed over by the purchase of Schaaf's contract, which expires in a few months, by some other pilot.

held at the court house thereof in Pampa, Texas, on the first Monday in March, A. D. 1933, the same being the 7th day of March, A. D. 1933, then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 20th day of January, A. D. 1933, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said court No. 3368, wherein E. R. Ballinger is plaintiff, and Sarah Alice Ballinger is defendant, and a brief statement of plaintiff's cause of action, being as follows: Plaintiff and defendant were married in Taft, California, Nov. 14, 1912, and continued to live together until the 15th day of September, 1926, at which time defendant herein was forced to leave the plaintiff as hereinafter described; the defendant herein was a woman of violent temper and was a religious fanatic, who, the plaintiff herein thought a good and religious man did not go to church except on Sunday, but this defendant attended all the revival meetings and constantly nagged this plaintiff because he would not attend the same and when he would refuse to go she would fly into a rage and abuse and then would spy upon him and not go to church herself, or would go on to church and have someone else spy upon him. This plaintiff would go about his business and when she would return from church and he would return at night she would ask him numerous questions and his answers to such questions were never satisfactory to her and she constantly accused him of infidelity. About this time plaintiff lost his work where they were living but was offered a job in New Mexico, the defendant refused to go to New Mexico with him saying that she would not have religious advantages which she had where she was, whereas, this plaintiff went to work in New Mexico and brought money for awhile, then she no longer answered his letters, and since that time until this the plaintiff has been unable to locate her and at this time does not know where she lives.

Wherefore, premises considered, plaintiff prays that defendant be cited by publication, and that upon the trial of this cause plaintiff have judgment in all things dissolving the bonds of matrimony and such other and further relief as he may be entitled to.

Herein fail not but have before said court at its next regular term, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said court, at office in Pampa, Texas, on this 26th day of January, A. D. 1933.

PORKERS PLAY MUSTANG FIVE THIS EVENING

SIX GAMES SCHEDULED IN CONFERENCE THIS WEEK

By BILL PARKER,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The percentage table of the Southwest conference basketball race will be raked over the coals six times this week. The cage-rake starts its leveling Monday night at Dallas where the University of Arkansas opens a two-game series against Southern Methodist and ends Saturday night at Austin, Waco and Houston.

In the driver's seat will be Coach Ed Oile and his University of Texas Longhorns, who not only are pacing the race with an unblemished record of five victories, but plan to retain their first ranking even though they play Baylor Wednesday night at Waco and Texas Christian Saturday night at Austin.

Southern Methodist plays Baylor Saturday night at Waco and Texas A. & M. will journey to Houston to battle the Rice Owls.

Arkansas invades Mustangville bent on wrecking any and all championship ambitions Southern Methodist might have, the Razorbacks suffered 29 to 19 and 30 to 26 defeats Friday and Saturday night by Texas Christian. The defeats left their sting, lowered the Razorbacks' prestige and dropped them from fourth to fifth place.

The Razorbacks will find the Mustangs in a fighting mood. Forced to remain idle last week because of semester examinations, the Mustangs could do nothing while Texas A. & M. did and you went after him, and I think there was another fellow on the Rush Medical team who tried some fancy stuff which you resented. Occasionally I had to be the pacifier and do a bit of reasoning with you for the sake of the university.

"Oh, there was only an occasional event of this kind, but you will recall that because of your fighting qualities, somebody dubbed you 'Old Warhorse' and the nickname has stuck by you in the intervening years, and I have heard many people speak of the Old Warhorse and always with affection."

There is more of it. The letter was twice that long. But there is enough above to let you know that A. A. Stagg is not a man who forgets a friend. It lets you know what kind of a man Stagg is.

PLAYOFF IN OTHER HALF OF THIS SECTION BEGINS TONIGHT

Harvesters To Meet Winner Of Panhandle-Hedley Series on Friday.

The Harvesters will spend the rest of this week getting ready for the sectional play-off in the Panhandle Basketball league which will open Friday night here. Either Hedley Owls or the Panhandle Panthers will invade Pampa for the big three-game series.

The Owls and Panthers start a play-off series in Hedley tonight for sub-sectional honors. A return game will be played in Panhandle tomorrow night. A third game will be played if necessary. Coach Mitchell and his Harvesters will see the game tomorrow night.

The winner of the series, three games if necessary, which opens here Friday night will go to the district finals in Canyon February 17 and 18. Hedley is doped to win the series, despite the loss of a big center who is out with smallpox. Panhandle tied the league race Friday night with a three-overtime period win from the Owls.

Kansas Miler Again Defeats Eastern Flyer

NEW YORK, Feb. 6. (AP)—Glenn Cunningham, sturdy miler from the University of Kansas, has confirmed his position as personal nemesis to Gene Venke, the Polkstown, Pa. flyer who holds the world's indoor mile record, and in doing so he probably earned the 1933 award of the Wanamaker trophy, given annually in recognition of the outstanding performance at the Millrose games.

Last summer it was Cunningham who kept the king of the indoor milers off the United States Olympic team by taking third place in the tryouts at Palo Alto, Calif. At the Millrose meet Saturday, before a crowd of 17,000, Cunningham gave Venke another decisive defeat to win the Rodman Wanamaker mile in the fast time of 4:13.

"The nomination for the Wanamaker trophy appeared to lie between Cunningham and Emmett Toppino, the New Orleans sprint star, who outraced a fine field of dash men, including the speedy Californian, Frank Wykoff, and set a new world indoor record of 5.7 seconds for the 50 meter dash."

No Great Changes Expected in Rules

NEW YORK, Feb. 6. (AP)—The national football rules committee goes into annual mid-winter session this week-end, ready to study the means by which the game can be improved through alterations in the playing code.

Out of their deliberations at Green Hill farm, Overbrook, Pa., Friday, Saturday and Sunday, will come either a revised code or an announcement of satisfaction with the rules as they stand.

The chances are that the rule-makers will decide upon a few minor adjustments but that there will be no such series of drastic changes as were ordered at this time last year following the 1931 season when some 50 lives were lost on the football playing fields.

Hitler Starts Drastic Ban On Hostile Press

BERLIN, Feb. 6. (AP)—A rigorous system of censorship, extending for the first time even to newspapers and periodicals reaching Germany from other countries, became effective today under a decree signed by President Paul von Hindenburg.

In the future, even foreign publications must conform to the Hitler government's press standards if they desire to circulate here.

Furthermore—the republican Reichsbanner, the forces which ardently campaigned for President von Hindenburg's re-election last year, can be deprived of their rights if the Nazi minister of interior, Dr. Wilhelm Frick, so rules.

The decree permits the suspension of newspapers for four weeks, or one a second offense within three months, for six months. The grounds for suspension was broadened greatly and if applicable, foreign newspapers or periodicals could be prohibited for as long as six months.

Outdoor demonstrations were permitted only if the purpose was not detrimental to general peace and safety. Police were permitted to intervene and dissolve mass meetings if a police observer detected open provocation in the speeches.

Ring Returned To Borger's Coach From California

BORGER, Feb. 6. (AP)—A ring stolen from Noble Atkins, Borger high school athletic coach, in Santa Monica, Calif., last August, was returned to him recently by the San Francisco police department.

The ring was found on the floor of a police patrol car in San Francisco, identified by a football coach who knew Atkins and returned to him here about five months after it had been taken from his car.

Atkins was presented with the ring for his part in the Dixie football classic at Dallas, January 1, 1931. His last name was engraved inside the band.

How the ring happened to be found on the floor of the police car was not known.

Ranchers Declare War On Rustlers In Roswell Area

ROSWELL, N. M., Feb. 6. (AP)—A cattle thief still is a cattle thief and the summary justice meted out in an older era may descend on their successors in the current "rubber tire" age.

Representatives of 100 ranchmen have announced they will confer with Governor Arthur Seligman next week and if their plea for special protection is ineffective they will invoke the rule of "Judge Colt."

The modern rustler drives to the range at night in a motor truck, kills the cattle, and hauls the beef to market.

Roy Lyons drove Mrs. J. A. Moore to her home in Canyon Saturday after she had spent the week in the city with friends.

HOOVES and SLIDES

by WILLIAM BRAUCHER

A Glimpse of Stagg

We are indebted to Roy Craft, sports operative at Eugene, Ore., for an unrevealed glimpse into the heart of Amos Alonzo Stagg.

You may have seen a short dispatch chronicling the death of W. Allen, an Oregon farmer who played football at the University of Chicago 41 years ago. They called him "Warhorse Charley" Allen in the old days and Stagg once said of him that he was the greatest player he ever coached.

Besides winning All-America honors, Charley was a brilliant scholar. He became an expert in ancient languages. After graduation he taught and coached at Alma College, in Michigan, and Whitman, at Walla Walla, Wash.

Rediscovery

Nearly 30 years ago Allen retired from teaching and bought farm property in Oregon, where he lived in obscurity. He was rediscovered when he helped to coach a girls' basketball team at little Vida high school, near Eugene. When the team won a local championship, it was learned that Warhorse Charley was advising the players.

A short time before Allen's death, Stagg learned of his illness and wrote his once great athlete a letter. It was a long message, and told of the whereabouts of many of the players who had been at Chicago during Charley's time. The letter gives a close insight into the character of Stagg. Here is part of it:

"It was 41 years ago this fall, Charley, that you and I first met and you don't know how delighted I was to meet you. I had come out to Chicago to be athletic director and coach of everything and my first job was to find a football team and, believe me, football players were mighty scarce. So when you and Andy Wyant appeared, I could have hugged you, and I am not sure I did not do it."

Faced Hard Task

"You will remember how hard the sledding was that year. Only about 14 fellows appeared during the whole season and some of them, like Rullkoetter, never had played the game, but we had a grand time that year in spite of our handicap and we started the University of Chicago off properly, literally, and considering everything we were not so bad after all, were we, Charley?"

"The next year we did better, and the next year better still, and so on all through from 1892 to 1895 while you were with us. You will remember that you were captain of the team in 1894 and again in 1895, which showed how the boys liked you and what they thought of you as a football player."

"My boy, you were a fighter, Charley, in those days and I suppose you have been a fighter ever since. I used to worry a bit about your temper because occasionally it got you into trouble with an opponent, and you were a bulldog and would never give up."

Charley Could Go

"Football was sort of in the raw in those days in the middle-west. In fact it was pretty much that way all over the country, and it was more or less give and take. Every fellow brought more or less defend himself, and you certainly were able to defend yourself and everybody knew it and the opponents feared you on that account."

"Can you remember that big fellow from the Chicago Athletic Association who played opposite me

A Little Jumping Goat Gave Its Name to TAXICAB

Taxicab is an abbreviation of taximeter-cab—a vehicle carrying an instrument for automatically registering the fare. The name originated in the language of the French taxicab, meaning "a leap" like that of a goat, and was applied to this type of carriage because of its light, bounding motion. Cabriolet came from the Italian cabriola—meaning "a somersault"; from Latin capra—"a he-goat," capra—"a he-goat." There are thousands of such stories about the origins of English words.

WHAT IS A G. P. A. TO DO?

BIG BUSINESS has its laboratories and its bureaus of standards where products submitted to General Purchasing Agents may be tested searchingly. But Big Business has not all the intelligent G. P. A.'s, nor has it any monopoly on big business.

The women of this country make eighty-five per cent of all retail purchases—and they influence the rest. They are G. P. A.'s for 25 million independent businesses, the households of America. Without charts, graphs, or laboratories, how are they to buy efficiently? How are they to be sure of securing honest, wholesome products for use by their families?

Their guide is advertising in the daily paper. They realize, sensibly enough, that the merchants of their town talk to them truthfully in advertisements. They watch these pages for news of advantageous purchases. They welcome the new or better product when informed of it through advertising.

The merchants and manufacturers who use this newspaper realize that your patronage, not only this year but next, is the life of their businesses. They test and criticize and study merchandise more rigorously than you ever could. You may read their advertisements with confidence. Guided by them, you may buy efficiently!

Goatherd's Mind Now Easy About 'El Presidente'

BROWNSVILLE, Feb. 6. (AP)—A sandalled Mexican goat herder was convinced today that although John Nance Garner now is "Presidente of all North America," he is the same John Nance Garner who used to roam the brush lands of the Rio Grande border in search of wild game.

The goat herder is Juan Mora, 70, who saw to it that the vice-president elect had real Mexican ranch food on his table despite the fact that he now lives "so far away among the Yankees in the snow and ice."

Today Mora received an autographed photograph of Garner and he made him the happiest goat herder along the Rio Grande. On it Garner had written, "for my friend, Juan Mora, with best wishes, January 28, 1933."

The photograph was sent to Col. Sam Robertson of Brownsville, who acted as Mora's agent in sending the old man's gift of typical Mexican food to Washington.

Recently Col. Robertson sent Garner, after Mora had as he described it, "deviled" him "for months" to do so, a basket of shucks for tamales, cracklings for "cracklin" bread, camino seed for seasoning, garlic, dried goat meat and cornmeal.

Besides these items, the gift included utensils for making chile and "the only food fit for a brush raised Mexican."

Mora had feared that Garner, for whom he had cooked on hunting trips, might not thrive on Yankee food.

Fire Destructive At Coney Island

NEW YORK, Feb. 6. (AP)—Fire, persistent plague of Coney Island, struck again today at the famous seashore resort, riding along the boardwalk on a biting southwest gale and destroying several amusement places.

In the bleak hush two hours before dawn and with thermometers registering 12 above zero, fire spurted from the wooden and paper mache "tunnel of love" in that section of the amusement place known as "The Bowery."

The gale, howling through the empty skeleton which in summer are gay with life, picked up the fire and swept it through the ferris wheel, the kiddie park, the caterpillar ride, the motordrome and two wooden concessions.

Large bath houses were in the path of the fire when suddenly the wind, as if impatient—snapping—swung sharply to the north. The shift saved the bathhouses and the portion of the board walk near them.

A great part of the Brooklyn fire apparatus was called out. The raw wind of one of the season's coldest nights wrestled with the streams of water from the hose, often tossing them back in broken spray upon the hosemen who soon were coated with ice.

Murder Threat Found in Note After Slaying

SHREVEPORT, La., Feb. 6. (AP)—A threatening note found in the wallet of B. K. Allums, 33, Ringgold oil lease leader, who was found shot to death Sunday near Coushatta, added to the mystery of the case today. The note typewritten on a piece of an oil company's stationery read:

"You have caused me enough trouble and misery. You are due for a ride. You are going to get bumped off."

"You know who." Officers were hunting for a man who was reported to have accompanied him to Natchitoches, La., Saturday. The man was said to be from Louisiana. Officers had not learned whether the man was with Allums when he left Natchitoches Saturday night.

There was a bullet wound behind Allums' right ear and another in his hand, which was marked with powder burns. Officers considered it likely he had raised his hand in defense just as he was shot.

It was learned that Allums had indorsed a $225 check for a man in Louisiana some months ago. Later the check, which was drawn on a Shreveport bank, was found to have been forged.

Allums, according to Dr. W. B. Allums of Shreveport, his uncle, had located the man who gave him the check. He telegraphed his uncle Saturday from Natchitoches saying the man had obtained $100 and had promised to get the remainder in Natchitoches to make the worthless check good.

Denver Proposal To Abandon Coach It Not Contested

Application of the Fort Worth & Denver Northern for permission to replace the present motor passenger coach with mixed train service from Childress to Pampa was not contested at a formal hearing before the state railroad commission in Amarillo Saturday by citizens of the towns affected.

However, petitions were understood to have been given the commission in opposition to the proposal, and an Amarillo trainmen's brotherhood opposed the move as a matter of precedent.

Half a hundred north plains residents were present to protest similar action on the part of the Rock Island line from Amarillo to Liberal, Kans. Crippling of mail and express service was mentioned, while the railroads cited falling and inadequate passenger and express service. The Denver coach does not carry the mails.

BUYING BARBARA

Chapter 16 LEILA CANE EXPLAINS DID not tell anybody, she said Mrs. Lodely.

"But you made it your business to get a copy of the wire, in the firm's name, I suppose?" demanded Farrell.

"Yes I did, Mr. Farrell Armitage, and I'd do it again. And moreover I said to myself it's clear Babs and Mark'll marry one day. They're cut out for each other. And if poor old Sylvia gets this money she'll move right away and those two poor kids'll be parted. So I kept it and I waited. And what business it has all been of yours, I shall never understand!"

"And father goes to jail or hands Barbara forty-five thousand odd or perhaps he goes to jail, anyway?" put in Leila. "That the idea, Farrell?"

It was Mark's thin voice that answered her while Farrell was choosing his words.

"I've been wanting to hear why you've been brought up for trial, at all, Leila. Now that Judy has been let off with a caution, I don't doubt your case will come on next. Are you, by any chance, your father's keeper?"

"Leila," snapped Armitage, "made it clear to me from the first that she dissociated herself from what she suspected to be her father's attitude. I think it was an extremely difficult thing for her to convey but she conveyed it. I don't know why she should have had any suspicions to start with."

"I heard Mrs. Quentin asking father about the shares; and I think that, like Judy, I must have remembered that telegram and father reading it. And then, four or five years ago, I met a man at a dance here in town. He asked me about Kings Mallard; did I know the Quentins? He said they'd bought some worthless shares from a pal of his once, out of sheer decency, and then suddenly gold was found, after the pal was dead. That," Leila's cool tones became even cooler—"was, as I say, quite five years ago."

"The reason I asked you to be present," put in Armitage with slight impatience, "was this. It's obviously going to be best to dodge publicity, if you'll put the whole business before your father he'll be able to make restitution over a convenient period; there's no doubt Barbara will let him have time."

He broke off. Sounds were coming from Mrs. Lodely that were almost coherent.

"Four or five years ago, did you say Leila? Did you say it was as long ago as that that you first had an inkling of what your father had been up to? All I can say, your dad don't seem to have bestirred yourself, in spite of being considered so splendid!"

"I'm not in the least splendid, I assure you. On the contrary, when I was in Kings Barn the other day I got hold of Judy's copy of the telegram to Quentin, Lodely and Cane and I—discussed it with father. Keep quiet one minute, Judy, if you mind? Father saw the force of my argument when I said that on a capital of forty-five thousand odd he could allow me at least five hundred a year more. I think he rather admired me."

A rising shriek of laughter came from where Mark's face glinted narrowly white against rugs and cushions.

"I've never in my life been as amused as I am tonight. I adore you, Leila, for amusing me so!"

"Do you mean to say, Leila, that with absolute proof in your hand, you enjoyed money that is indisputably Barbara's?" demanded Farrell harshly.

"Guilty, my lord."

"I adore you for amusing me so," gasped Mark. "Yes, I really am laughing, Armitage, not just doing what I can to add to the general discomfort. Leila, the little provincial gate-crasher, getting her fingers into the till! And now she and her dear papa will have to economise."

"Supposing Miss Cane is allowed to give us her point of view?" broke in Poole, his face still to the fire.

Armitage saw Leila's hard face quiver.

"It isn't at all a heroic one," she said slowly. "I thought I'd see if I could squeeze just a few months' fun even if it meant being as miserable a little cheat as father. I meant to own up at the end of your year, Farrell."

"I'm sure I don't know what year you're talkin' about!" sobbed Mrs. Lodely.

"She means," choked Mark, "the year which Farrell has set aside for the buying of Barbara. I don't suggest with his money, naturally, but rather with his sterling worth, his granite will and so on."

"What has my year got to do with it, Leila?"

Again her slender shoulder mocked him.

"Barbara would have wanted her dowry then, I presume, whomever she married! And now, unless anyone else wants to sling mud at me, I'll go and tell father our little game is up."

Through the uproar that followed, Armitage heard Leila address him.

"Not fit to wipe Barbara's shoes, am I Farrell? All the same, if she marries you, you'll have to admit that I had something to do with it. Even if it was only by a very little I opened her eyes."

She was passing Farrell on her way to the door. Before his eyes her portrait hung for a second. He plunged his hand into his pocket and pulled out the emerald pendant. He tossed it into the curve of her arm and it slipped down into her palm.

"Your fee," he said.

The next second he would have given a fortune bigger than Barbara's to take back action and words. He and Mark, two twisted bullies, tormenting a hunted thing.

"Leila!" he muttered. But she went out of the room with her eyes upon the couch upon which Mark's body lay motionless, while his face and his hands were twisted with ecstasy.

She had walked some way before she realized that the man keeping pace with her was Kenneth Poole.

"Want anything?" she asked without turning her head.

"Only to know where we're going?"

"To the river."

"Then I suggest a taxi. It's some way to the river. And we had better keep it waiting until they've hauled us out again and taken our names and addresses."

"It's not me I'm going to throw in. Nor you. . . Why aren't you minding your own business? I thought the one thing we've ever agreed about was that we're each to mind our own business."

"You promised to have dinner with me."

"It's hours too early for dinner."

"If we go to dinner by way, of the Embankment, it will fill in the time nicely. And you'll get up a better appetite than you had for tea."

"I don't know how you can contemplate dinner after the tea you ate."

"I can always contemplate dinner, thank providence, even when I'm only half-way through breakfast. Besides, I didn't really enjoy my tea; I ate sixty per cent of it from sheer habit. Now all this money business that is off our chests, we can go to a jolly little hole I know under the pavement in Fleet Street and do ourselves properly. After that a spot of vaudeville somewhere and a snack on the way home. Suit you?"

"Kenneth, you weren't surprised at what I'd done. Why weren't you?"

"I don't quite know. I must have got it from your mind. Telepathy, I suppose. By Jove, I must go in for telepathy seriously. I believe I'm tuned in just right to get some people's minds. Not so long ago I telepathed Armitage as easily as making faces at him."

"Poor Farrell Armitage, he'll forgive me if Barbara marries him and he'll hate me for a rotter if she marries Mark. And yet he thinks he has a mind. You're more logical, you'll hate me always and anyway, because—"

"Because?"

"Because after spending so many precious meal-times in telling me you've no use for women, you find yourself hoping one of them won't jump into the river."

possibly use and prices will be down because we have no world market. By cooperating with our neighbors and doing all we can to help the world get on its feet again, we may also help ourselves. The old idea of isolation and self-sufficiency has no place in America today.

We need the help of other nations if we expect to get back to normal. This is true because the depression is world-wide as well as America-wide. Buying at home may be cutting off our nose to spite our face.

Buying at home campaigns help temporarily, but on an average we will find people buying where they can be best served, where the sellers are most courteous, and the variety and quality of goods the most enticing, and the amusements the most alluring. Many of these who say the money should be traded at home violate the principle themselves. Loyalty to home businesses means trading at home when, all things considered, it pays. Each individual must figure it out for himself.

Every territory needs one big town where bigger stocks and better amusements are offered. Pampa aspires to be such a center. . . From a world standpoint, if every nation should strive to be self-sufficient, no nation could maintain its standard of living under present conditions of over-production, under the present system of government.

No comment is necessary on the obvious.

INCOME TAX FACTS

Deductions for business expenses form a large item in the return of many taxpayers and must have certain qualifications to be allowed. Such deduction must be for an expenditure in connection with the maintenance and operation of the taxpayer's business or business properties; it must be an ordinary expense and it must be a necessary expense.

In making up the return the taxpayer is advised to consult the Internal Revenue Code as published by the Board of Tax Appeals and the courts. Ordinary and necessary expenses are only those which are usual and essential in the case of similar taxpayers, "and do not include extraordinary and non-essential expenses."

Typical business expenses of a mercantile establishment are amounts paid for advertising, hire of clerks and other employees, rent, light, heat, water, stationery, stamps, telephone, property insurance, and delivery expenses.

The expenses of a manufacturing business include labor, supplies, repairs, light and heat, power, selling cost, administration, and other similar charges.

The farmer may deduct all amounts paid in the production, harvesting, and marketing of crops, including labor, cost of seed and fertilizer used, cost of minor repairs to farm buildings, (other than his dwelling), and small tools used up in the course of a year or two. A taxpayer may deduct more than one business and claim the business deductions of each.

'COLD' SYMPATHY

WILMINGTON, Del.—Police have a lot of clothing and a lot of sympathy for a group of boys—but the boys probably won't call for either. Steamship company officials complained the boys were swimming nude in the Christiana river. When the boys saw police coming they fled in various stages of undress. The temperature was only 20 degrees above zero—which explains the sympathy.

TROOPS BEING MASSES

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, Feb. 6. (AP)—Big Japanese concentrations at all strategic points along the eastern border of the Chinese administered territory of Jehol continued today. The Japanese military leaders were confident the Chinese forces massing for defense of the province will retreat rapidly after the first heavy blow.

Cold Wave Arrives As Forecaster Said

Temperature here was dropping at the rate of a degree every minute at 3 p. m., when the thermometer stood at 70 then started toward what the weather forecaster said would be zero before tomorrow morning. A strong northwesterly wind, carrying sand and dust high in the air, was blowing. West of here and in Hutchinson county, "tumble weeds" piled against fences in profusion and in some instances tore the wire from the posts.

FARMS

In many states have organized groups to prevent foreclosure sales of farms, and more recently several eastern insurance companies have announced plans to deal more leniently with borrowers in difficulty.

About 45,000 American farms were foreclosed in 1929; 54,000 more fell in 1930, another 100,000 in 1931, and 150,000 in 1932. Nearly 10 per cent of all farms have been foreclosed or sold at forced sales during the last five years, and another 3 1/2 per cent have been sold for tax delinquency.

Trouble Started By War

Back of the situation is the war. Farm prices went to record highs. Farm properties zoomed to unheard of prices. The capital value of American agriculture in 1920 was set at $71,700,000,000. Today it is about $80,000,000,000. Farm prices, compared with pre-war values, were 210 in 1919. They had fallen to 50 in 1932.

Under the excitement of the war boom farmers went into debt to buy more land, and, as did the rest of America, extended other purchases. Then farm prices fell. Taxes went up, debt increased, interest increased.

All sources of income dropped—but the debt and the interest and the taxes, the most fixed of fixed charges—ate up ever greater and greater proportions of the income. Finally, the income simply became insufficient to meet the charges. Then came foreclosures. Then debt strikes. Then moratoriums.

In 1920 there were 3,925,000 farms owned by the farmers of the United States.
