BODY FOUND IN SKELLY CANYON

Death from exposure was the coroner's verdict in the case of Jack Frisbie, 54, whose body was found in a canyon one and one-half miles north of Skellytown at 6:45 a. m. today by Chester M. Easter Cabot company employee who was on his way to work at the Cabot plant. Last night, sleet and snow were falling in Skellytown. It was reported.

There was no evidence of murder. R. Johnson, Skellytown justice of the peace said.

He was last seen at 2 o'clock this morning when he stopped at the Magnolia camp to inquire his way. He had been in Skellytown and was enroute to his home.

New Oil, Gas Taxes Menace Prosperity Of Panhandle, Expert Warns C-C Members

Vigorous indictment of what he termed excessive taxation of the oil and gas industries in the Panhandle was made at the monthly Chamber of Commerce luncheon here yesterday afternoon by Charles H. Keffer, Amarillo lawyer and tax expert, as he sounded a warning that increased tax burdens on production may sound the death knell of Panhandle prosperity.

Without mining words, Mr. Keffer told both his audience in the movement of the First Methodist church and listeners of radio station KPND that if a halt is not called on oil and gas taxation in the Panhandle field, "Pampa may once again become the town of 1,000 population that it was back in 1925 before oil and gas were discovered."

"Nothing is quite so important to Pampa and the Panhandle as prosperity of oil and its allied industries," Mr. Keffer said. "Your city and community growth has been due solely to one thing—the development of the oil and gas industries. Every resident of this great area is just as dependent on oil and gas as those directly connected with the industries."

Gray county—including gross production ad valorem and all other forms of taxes—amounts to 12 cents a barrel, almost one-eighth of its total value. "This is not true all over Texas," he stated, "and there are other fields not nearly so high in taxation. The Panhandle field is one where production cost is comparatively very high, he added. "It must be remembered," he added, "that oil in the Panhandle must compete with production in the Mid-Continent area. You can have a burden on producers that will make it impossible for them to continue at a profit. When that time comes, the life of your field is at an end."

HIT OFFICIALS WHO 'STEP ON' SCHOOL AIMS

Competition to the legislators who would "step on" the public school system by denying the schools their rightful share of appropriations was expressed this morning in a talk by Prof. Frank R. Phillips of West Texas State Teachers college at a meeting of the Panhandle-Plains County Superintendents and County Board Members association.

J. O. Bass of Tullia, association president, presided. The meeting was attended by 20 school officials, and was held at 11 o'clock in the county courtroom.

Singing of "America" opened the program. E. C. Schaffer of Jericho made the invocation. County Superintendent W. B. Weatherred, gave the welcoming address and Judge B. C. McCasland of Tullia the response.

Present at the meeting were C. A. Criver, superintendent of schools, McLean; J. C. Schaffer of Jericho, Jesse Cobb of McLean, A. M. Walker and C. F. Jones of Pampa, County Superintendent W. B. Weatherred, B. T. Rucker, Wheeler county superintendent.

Singing of "America" opened the program. E. C. Schaffer of Jericho made the invocation. County Superintendent W. B. Weatherred, gave the welcoming address and Judge B. C. McCasland of Tullia the response.

OFFICER FINED IN THEFT CASE

Brother officers in the traffic division of the state highway department came to the parting of the ways in Gray county court today when J. W. Kyle of Palo Pinto county, pleaded guilty of the theft of $24 from R. B. Price, of Amarillo, another member of the state traffic division.

Kyle admitted taking the money from Rice's pants pocket in the room where both were residing while stationed in Pampa to make a traffic count.

County Attorney Joe Gordon stated that, according to information he had received, Kyle had returned most of the stolen money to Rice.

Kyle was fined $72 by County Judge Sherman White.

BRITISH CABINET CALLS HANDS-OFF SPAIN MEET

LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP)—A decision to call the international "hands-off Spain" committee into session this week—possibly Friday—to seek quick decisions on the withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain was reported reached today at a lengthy meeting of the British cabinet.

The report came just as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain finished a 45-minute conference on the international situation with Major Clement R. Attlee, leader of the Laborite opposition in parliament, and his deputy, Arthur Greenwood.

Why I Go To Church

The laymen's committee sponsoring the go-to-church movement do not care which church you attend next Sunday—just so you attend some church. And they emphasized again today that they are trying to persuade you not force you to go to church.

Persons may attend the church of their choice which presumably would be the one to which they belong; they may go to the nearest church or the furthest church, and transportation will be provided, if they send their names and addresses to the pastors of the churches they wish to attend.

The biggest crowd in history is expected. The goal of the committee is everybody in the city, both white and black. The fire department siren will give the signal to get ready for church. It will blow twice Sunday morning, three minutes each time, at 8 and 10 o'clock, and will announce that it is time to get ready for Sunday school and church.

Persons who have never attended church in Pampa or who seldom attend.

PANHANDLE CROPS ARE BEST IN SEVERAL YEARS

AUSTIN, Oct. 13 (AP)—Dry September aided cotton harvesting in Texas but corn felt the moisture deficiency.

The United States crop reporting board said the condition of corn Oct. 1 indicated a yield of 74,300,000 bushels, 2,500,000 less than forecast Sept. 1. The crop was poor in south Texas but better than last year in the north central and eastern districts and the commercial area in the southwest corner of the Panhandle had a good crop for the first time in several years.

Other crops faced varied prospects, the board said. Grain sorghum harvesting was completed or well advanced by Oct. 1 and production was forecast at 51,216,000 bushels compared with 31,711,000 last year.

Vets Demand To March Behind 'Stars and Bars'

AUSTIN, Oct. 13 (AP)—Remnants of Texas "Boys in Grey" stood behind their commander here today, refusing to join Union veterans at a Gettysburg reunion next summer unless they could march behind the unfurled "Stars and Bars."

"Unless we receive an invitation from the governor of Pennsylvania asking us to appear in uniform with our flag," said General N. B. Harless of Houston, commander of the Texas division and Lieutenant-General of the Trans-Mississippi Confederate Veterans, "we can't go."

The 92-year-old soldier who fought in the war between the states was not defiant. He said he favored a joint meeting.

Occasion for his utterance was a reunion of Texas veterans at the state home here in conjunction with the Texas Division of United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Roll call revealed many absent, perhaps forever.

NEARLY INCH RAIN COVERS THIS SECTION

While Pampa was receiving 99 hundredths of an inch rainfall yesterday and last night other sections of the Texas Panhandle were given a mixture of dust, rain, mist and fog in an array of weather that sent the mercury bobbing within speaking distance of freezing.

After a steady rainfall that lasted until 10 o'clock last night, the mercury in Pampa fell back until it hit a new low for the season of 36 degrees, only four points above freezing, this forenoon.

Borger got a quarter-inch rain last night. It followed a dustier which set in at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Panhandle got a shower, following some dust.

Groom reported a one-inch rainfall, and Canadian had an all night rain that totaled about an inch. A slow rain brought three-quarters of an inch precipitation to Lefors. At Shamrock there was better than a half inch.

Stinnett and Groom both reported dust and mist, and Claude received a good rain last night. Perryton reported 1.15 inches.

Following the rain, a fog settled over the Pampa area in mid-afternoon today, and then lifted around

98 PER CENT WOMEN HAVE CROOKED NOSES

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP)—Ninety-eight per cent of all women have a crooked nose said Emil P. Martin today, a nose that "is" eighty-eight per cent of right or left.

So explained Martin, who is president of the New York State Hairdressers' association, an "optical illusion" is required to make the feminine nose look straight.

The trick he said, is to part the hair properly. If the nose veers to the right, have the part on the right by all means sloping back to center.

Asked if men's noses have the same imperfection Martin pondered and said he didn't know. "I've never studied men much."

The new styles in women's hair-dresses?

Martin, presiding at the association's annual convention brightened and said he didn't know. "I've never studied men much."

Some more points in the advance styles, as described by Martin.

Hair will be four to six inches long all over the head.

It will be dressed in front to individual taste, but up in the back, with the curls worn high—"No long hair hanging down the neck making middle-aged women look older."

Stay-Down Strike Scene

It was 39 down and goal to go for the little band of strikers 1200 feet below the mouth of the Coaldale Colliery, Coaldale, Pa., after a parley failed to end their "outlaw" sit-down strike. A union committee, shown in top photo as they emerge from the mine, reported that the 37 strikers, though promised everything they asked, refused to budge without a written agreement. Below, warmly dressed for their chilly vigil, strikers' wives await word from the mine.

Argument of the attorneys will follow the reading and the case of State of Texas vs. J. G. Curley, Lewis, also indicted on a murder charge in connection with the shooting of Willie Allen, is expected to start at 9 a. m. Thursday, following the jury's verdict in the Nicholson case.

Witnesses, all of whom were the State's, the defense not calling a single witness, were Herman Whaley, Mrs. C. A. Schaffer, E. E. Rushing, J. M. Calhoun, Spencer Crossman, W. C. Dillman, Mozelle Tempier, and Paul Raurrell.

The state is represented by District Attorney Lewis M. Goodrich and Walter Rogers, the defense by Newton P. Willis and B. S. Vias.

HOUSE OKAYS OIL TAX HIKE

AUSTIN, Oct. 13 (AP)—The House of Representatives today decided to boost the oil production tax from 2 1/2 cents to 3 1/2 per cent when oil sold for more than $1 a barrel, 3 1/2 per cent when it marketed for 75 cents to $1 and 2 cents when it brought less than 75 cents.

The action came in an 81 to 60 vote accepting a substitute amendment by Rep. Penrose Metcalf of San Angelo to proposed straight 4 and 5 per cent levies. The rates apply to the oil section of the omnibus proposal which would raise natural resources, corporation and amusement taxes.

The proposal was adopted by the House as its final decision but it may change after the bill goes to the Senate. Yesterday it adopted a sulphur levy only to do an about face later in the day.

Proponents claimed the rates would produce $3,250,000 new revenue annually. The entire omnibus proposal was expected to raise $10,000,000 additional.

CROP CONTROL AND WAGE ACT TO HEAD LIST

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt, ordering a special session of Congress November 15, instituted a campaign today to enact by Christmas, if possible, the bulk of his legislative program sidetracked in the last session.

Administration officials expressed hope for swift congressional approval of five measures outlined by the chief executive last night in his tenth "fireside chat."

- 1. Crop production control to build an all-weather farm program so that in the long run prices will be more stable.
2. Wage and hour standards to make millions of our lowest-paid workers actual buyers of billions of dollars of industrial and farm products.
3. Regional planning to conserve natural resources, prevent floods and produce electric power for general use.
4. Government reorganization to provide "twentieth century machinery" to make the "democratic process work more efficiently."
5. Stronger anti-trust laws in furtherance of a low price policy which encourages the widest possible consumption.

The proposals foreshadowed bitter and perhaps prolonged controversy. The first four were left-overs from the session which ended in August, but the anti-monopoly recommendation was new.

Permanent Prosperity Wanted Mr. Roosevelt characterized the program as one which the American people need immediately to provide prosperity.

"The kind of prosperity we want," he said, "is the sound and permanent kind which is not built up temporarily at the expense of any section of group."

His speech followed by only five hours his dramatic announcement at a three-minute press conference that he was calling the first special session since the one he summoned during the 1933 bank holiday.

The broad program outlined by the President immediately raised the question of whether Congress would return more in the mood to follow his leadership than it was last summer.

B. M. Baker P-T-A Attended by Many

Approximately 150 persons attended the meeting of the B. M. Baker Parent-Teacher association at the school yesterday afternoon.

The program presented at the meeting was opened with a talk on "Family Cooperation for Health and Safety" by Mrs. J. E. Baird and a fire prevention drill by pupils from each of the rooms.

Mrs. Claude Lard gave the "History of Founders Day" and presided at the candlelighting ceremony. The first candle which she lighted was in honor of Mrs. Ella Corothers Porter, state founder and organizer; the second one was lighted for the B. M. Baker P-T-A, which is celebrating its tenth anniversary. Mrs. Lard also read Governor James Allred's proclamation declaring a Parent-Teacher association week.

After the devotional by Miss Crissie Turner and a sing song which was led by Miss Madge Sears, Mrs. Roy Holt, council president, urged every member of the organization to attend some church Sunday and to listen to the radio programs being presented each morning by those interested in the rally day program. The association voted 100 per cent to sponsor the go-to-church movement.

Aaron Meek, principal of the school, discussed plans for the school carnival which is to be held Oct. 29 at the school. He also appointed committees to work on this project and urged that everyone selected to help with the carnival meet at the school Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. H. E. Symond, chairman of the membership committee, reported that the association has a membership of 184 parents and teachers. Due to the membership drive this week, every home represented at the school was contacted by the teachers and room mothers. Miss Turner's room won the award for having the most mothers present.

MEN LOVE PEPPY GIRLS

If you are happy and peppy and full of fun, men will take you place. If you are lively, they will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT, if you are cross and lifeless and always tired out, men won't be interested in you. Men don't like "quiet" girls. Men go to parties to enjoy themselves. They want girls along who are full of pep.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood, 2. Preparing for motherhood, 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and go "Smiling Through."

ANECDOTES OF GREEN TOLD IN LEGAL BATTLE

DALLAS, Oct. 13 (AP)—A four-way legal battle for the right to tax the multi-millionaire estate of the late Col. E. H. R. Green resumed today with former friends and associates of the railroad magnate spicing the testimony with anecdotes of the colonel's eccentricities.

Massachusetts, New York, Florida, and Texas are seeking to establish the colonel's legal residence. Texas' claim that he resided at Terrell, if upheld, would net the state more than $5,000,000 in taxes on the $44,000,000 estate.

The inquiry before John S. Flannery of Washington, the Supreme Court's special master in chancery, has included everything from the colonel's corkleg to his interest in astronomy.

Thomas E. Corley, auditor for the Texas Midland railroad, which Green acquired as a run-down property and developed, testified the colonel equipped a military company with uniforms to publicize the railroad.

Corley said Green considered Texas his best friends and he recounted various activities which Corley said led him to believe Green considered Texas his home.

W. M. (Goosenek) Bill McDonald of Fort Worth, negro republican leader, said Green, on the advice of his mother, Betty Green, wanted to be a delegate to the 1896 republican convention in St. Louis.

Testimony indicated Green undertook to pay the expense of another delegate and was advised it would be "seventy-five." Green wrote a check for $7,500. Told the expense was $75, he tore up the $7,500 check.

Terrell residents pointed out he lived there for many years.

However, Edward O. Proctor, Massachusetts assistant attorney-general, introduced a letter written by Corley to Green in July, 1921, in which Corley said "I hope you are enjoying the comforts of the new home at Round Hill (near South Dartmouth, Mass.)."

The Governor was confined at the time to a slight attack of influenza. Illness recently caused him to cancel a scheduled radio speech.

OKLAHOMA COWBOY OFF FOR LAST ROUND UP

Last night the range folk took leave of their dead. Spectators were barred at the close of the regular performance and 350 fellow performers trooped on foot past the casket on which lay Cravens' body, clad in cowboy regalia.

"She said it was good luck to sit in the tubs of famous women," Mrs. Matthews related. "She said she had sat in lots of famous tubs all over Europe—Cleopatra's and Marie Antoinette's. She was determined to get into the tub and she did."

is paying in the Panhandle more than its just share of taxes.

Mr. Keffer called attention of his listeners to the fact that the entire tax burden in the United States every 12 months amounts to 25 percent of the total national income. Including the four-cent gasoline tax, the speaker declared, the oil and gas industries pay approximately 50 percent of all taxes paid to the state government.

"It is possible to keep increasing this tax burden on the industry until it becomes impossible for it to operate longer at a profit," Mr. Keffer said.

The Panhandle oilfield area, he said, is greater than the East Texas field and there are many un-drilled locations in the Panhandle.

"If it were not for the allowable limitations and the heavy tax burden," Mr. Keffer said, "this Panhandle field possibly would be twice as great today as it is."

Mr. Keffer said that the point he wished to emphasize is that it should become the duty of every citizen of the area to see to it that office-holders keep their economy pledges after they are once elected.

"This affects every citizen, every businessman in Pampa and Panhandle," he said, "and if things keep going the way they are headed—we are going to be confronted with a general exodus of the population in this part of the country."

Mr. Keffer also attacked what he termed the unfair practice of taxing carbon black plants. He called it double taxation and stated that the industry should be protected from burdensome taxation because here in the Panhandle 85 percent of the world's output of carbon black is produced.

"The carbon black industry came here," he added, "because it was driven out of Louisiana by exorbitant taxes. Then last year Texas put a manufacturers' tax on carbon black. Now, if we proceed along that line the possible repercussion is more than I can foresee at this time."

It is up to all Panhandle residents, Mr. Keffer said, to become vitally interested in keeping the tax burden of employers of labor at a minimum.

Up To Voters

"An elected official who makes appropriations from the treasury to build-up a machine," Mr. Keffer said, "is just as dishonest as the public official who will take a bribe to influence public action."

"The voters must assert themselves and let public officials know that they expect pre-election pledges to be carried out. If not, at the next election they can remind their officeholder of his failure to keep a promise by defeating him at the polls."

Mr. Keffer was introduced by E. J. Dunigan, chairman of the legislative committee of the Board of City Development, who also spoke briefly against the proposal to hike the oil production tax.

Dunigan Speaks

"Taxes right now on oil," Mr. Dunigan said, "are just a little short of the possible profit per barrel. If this keeps up it will mean that the producers of the Panhandle will take their investments to other places where the allowable is greater and the tax less."

Yesterday's meeting was presided over by J. M. Collins, Chamber of Commerce president. The assemblage stood for one minute in reverence to the memories of Mrs. Minnie Reeves, mother of Garnet Reeves, BGD manager, and Ed Blissett, Panhandle oil man and director of the Chamber of Commerce, who died within the past week.

NO. 7-- (Continued From Page One)

There was no mention in Mr. Roosevelt's speech of his court reorganization program which upset the legislative machinery in the regular 1937 session. He apparently was referring to Supreme Court reversals, however, when he said the people had been "checked" in efforts to control production and secure wage-hour standards.

Mr. Roosevelt apparently sought in his speech to allay criticism of his newly aggressive policy toward Japanese invasion of China. He emphasized that American participation in the nine-power treaty conference would be to seek by agreement a solution to the conflict.

Discussing his call for the special session, the President said it would enable Congress to avoid a lengthy session next year during the pre-election campaign. Ordinarily Congress would not meet until Jan. 3.

"I know," he added, "that many enemies of democracy will say that it is bad for business, bad for the tranquility of the country, to have a special session—even one beginning only six weeks before the regular session."

"But I have never had sympathy with a solution to the session of the congress is an unfortunate intrusion of what they call 'politics' into our national affairs. Those who do not like democracy want to keep legislators at home."

"A Good Year"

In his White House speech, which reviewed his trip to the west coast, the President said that "for most of the country this has been a good year," but that "we have not yet done all that must be done to make this prosperity stable."

The people "out through the country," he said, "want the financial budget balanced, but they want the human budget balanced as well."

Then, speaking in broad terms, the President outlined his five legislative proposals for the special session.

NO. 6-- (Continued From Page One)

Discussing crop control first, he said:

"The total amount of production largely determines the price of the crop and, therefore, the difference between comfort and misery for the farmer."

"If we were foolish enough to run every shoe factory 24 hours a day seven days a week, we would soon have more shoes than the nation could possibly buy—a surplus of shoes that would have to be destroyed, or given away, or sold at prices far below the cost of production."

"You and I have heard big manufacturers talk about control of production by the farmer as an indefensible 'economy of scarcity,' yet these same manufacturers never hesitate to shut down their own huge plants, throw men out of work, and cut down the purchasing power of whole communities whenever they think they must adjust their production to an oversupply of the goods they make."

"When it is their baby who has the measles, they call it not 'economy of scarcity' but 'sound business judgment.'"

"We intend this winter to find a way to prevent four and a half cent cotton, nine cent corn and thirty cent wheat—with all the disaster those prices mean for all of us—from ever coming back again."

"To do that, the farmers themselves will have to cooperate to build an all-weather farm program so that in the long run prices will be more stable. They believe this can be done, and the national budget kept out of the red."

Regional Planning

Discussing regional reforestation and reclamation projects visited on his western trip, he said that all work "needs a more business-like system of planning and greater foresight than we use today."

Mr. Roosevelt's reference to the controversial government reorganization program was brief. He declared it does not conflict with democratic principles.

"To carry out any twentieth century program," he said, "we must give the executive branch of the government twentieth century machinery to work with."

SHOWING YOUTH THAT CRIME DOESN'T PAY

If you should see a policeman in uniform neglecting his beat in order to help a bunch of boys stage an informal baseball game on a vacant lot, you probably would wonder irritably just what that copper thought the city was paying him for.

On second thought, however, you might feel differently. For if a cop's chief job is to prevent crime, the officer who teaches the youngsters to look up to him as a friend and counselor is doing a very efficient and praise-worthy job of crime prevention.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief G-man, touched on this point the other day in a speech before the annual convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, at Baltimore.

Suppose, said Mr. Hoover, that a $100,000 bank robbery occurs in a given city. Every youngster in town is, to a certain degree, stirred by the excitement and the adventure of the affair. In a great many cases he will conclude that the robbers have done a brave and romantic thing and is a person to be emulated. In other words, he makes a hero of him.

But if the police have means of contact with the city's youth then the police have a fine chance to make youth see the robber, not as a hero but as a sap.

"You simply cannot combat in the literal mind of youth the fact that someone got $100,000," said Mr. Hoover. "He can listen to platitudes forever, but the thought remains in his mind—a man robbed a bank and a man got $100,000, and certainly in this instance crime must have been made to pay. And so our job as the guardians of youth is to say why and how that $100,000 is worthless.

"The boy must be made to understand that the money can be spent for no sensible purpose. He must be shown that this sum will be split among dozens of persons whom the robber must pay for aiding his escape.

"He can be convinced that every cent of this money for which a man has dared his life and the penitentiary must either be expended for things which do him not one particle of good or be paid out in a desperate effort to defeat the law, leaving him in the end penniless, a broken being living in a filthy, worm-eaten, rocking house of crime and robbed of everything worth-while which a life of decency might have given him."

"That, as Mr. Hoover says, is a job well worth doing. It is a job the police can do easily enough, if they have the contacts with youth that enable them to get their message across. Such contacts, obtained through a systematic campaign of friendship and understanding, could be invaluable in the great work of crime-prevention.

The average criminal starts as a juvenile cop-hater. If that trend can be reversed, a great step in law-enforcement can be taken.

Washington Letter

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Before leaving for his western tour, President Roosevelt had included a brief paragraph or two about foreign affairs into a speech he made about the constitution. He said:

"Fear spreads throughout the world—fear of aggression, fear of invasion, fear of revolution, fear of death. The people of America are rightly determined to keep that growing menace from our shores.

"The known and measurable danger of becoming involved in war we face confidently. As to that, your government knows your mind, and you know your government's mind."

Then he made the western trip. He talked to a lot of people and they talked to him. On his return trip he made the Chicago speech, talking of the desirability of taking "positive" action to "quarantine" that 10 per cent of the world's population which wouldn't keep its hands off its guns.

That speech surprised a substantial part of official and unofficial Washington. Maybe, after all, Washington merely thought it knew what was in the government's mind. Or maybe the government, after its tour west, had discovered something in the country's mind that it hadn't suspected was there in such force.

At any rate, the talk was so much more aggressive in tone than the stand taken by the state department in its several proclamations about the peace-mindedness of the United States that some surmised the President had become a bit impatient.

Another surmise: That the President had discovered a rising swell of American sentiment against sitting on the international fence.

What actually has happened, in the view of many here, is that the neutrality act has been put to its first test before the public. It wasn't put to a test in the Ethiopian affair, which occurred before the present act was passed.

Spain was not much of a test. Both sides seemed to be fairly well matched, and civil wars among Spanish-speaking peoples have been rather frequent affairs on this continent for centuries.

But the current oriental war—if one may yet

call it that—is different. It brings out American sympathies which it is difficult to prevent being translated into action.

But Congress debated that question a long time before passing the neutrality act. Senators Nye, Clark, Vandenberg and others insisted that isolation was the best means of keeping out of foreign war and that any effort to cooperate with other nations in suppressing outbreaks was simply inviting a repetition of 1917. The vote in the senate was 62 to 6 in favor of the neutrality act which incorporates that view.

But former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson says a boycott by the United States and Great Britain of Japanese silk and other exports will leave that country no money to fight China. And, he says, such a boycott wouldn't bring war.

Those are the two views, and the President's speech appears to favor the Stimson view of doing something—now.

QUESTIONS

On Capitol Hill

AUSTIN, Oct. 13 (AP)—Oil producers got better treatment from a sub-group of the house revenue and taxation committee this session than from the entire committee last spring.

The sub-committee recommended the production tax be boosted from 2 1/2 to 4 per cent of value. That would be quite a jump, as it would take about $7,500,000 additional yearly from the oil men. In the regular session, however, the main committee advocated increasing the rate to 10 percent and the house cut it to 6 percent.

The sub-group arrived at the 4 percent figure by deciding how much money it wanted to raise from an omnibus bill and fixing the same percentage of increase on oil as on other natural resources. Last spring the house wanted to more than double the oil levy but would vote for only 25 and 33-1/2 percent raises respectively in sulphur and natural gas imposts.

In view of Gov. Allred's long insistence for a higher oil production tax, he was especially pleased to receive a telegram from a producer, commending a part of his tax program, that for a higher levy on pipe lines.

"Oil men ought to appreciate my suggestion of a larger pipe line tax," the governor said. "Since I made it, pipe companies have been paying them for 100 percent of their oil instead of deducting one percent for basic sediment and water."

The "dryness of Dallas county, or lack of it, seems to be open to debate.

When Dallas Blankenship, one of the six representatives from Dallas expressed the opinion his home county was "predominantly dry," there was a sprinkling of hoots from the house floor. Sam Hanna, another Dallas legislator, sought unsuccessfully to kill Blankenship's motion to return to the committee a bill legalizing sales of mixed hard liquor drinks in counties desiring them.

The biennial legislative fight in Texas over ratification of the federal child labor amendment may be at an end. The Kentucky court of appeals ruled the proposed constitutional change no longer was before the people because more than one-fourth of the states had rejected it. The tribunal held in effect that the vote of a single legislature for rejection of an amendment was equally as final as one for ratification.

If the Supreme Court of the United States should affirm the Kentucky decision, it would force Texas friends of the amendment to abandon their twelve-year fight. At times they have come close to victory.

A newspaperman was "kidding" Rep. Jule Kelt of Chadfield about wearing a white linen suit after nearly everyone here had discarded summer weight clothes.

"They told me this was going to be a red hot session," the Navarero county lawyer retorted, "and I wanted to stay prepared for it."

There is a splendid climax, too, but properly placed, in our old friend "Madame X," played with distinction by our new friend, Gladys George. Ponderous and stiff at first, the film takes on somber reality as Miss George delineates the step-by-step fall of a lady. Shifting scenes lend color and the lady's progress toward haggishness is excellently portrayed. The courtroom scene, with John Beal at his best as the son defending his own mother unbeknownst to him, reaches a frenzy of emotional appeal that should leave the women patrons bawling in the aisles. Warren William, Reginald Owen, Henry Daniell and Louis Albritton have other major roles. Sam Wood directed.

"Double Wedding" is nonsense involving William Powell and Myrna Loy. He's an artistic gypsy from Hollywood and she's a business-like, "managing" female. They conflict when Myrna's sister, Florence Rice, is about to be married off to John Beal, by arrangement of Myrna. Powell struggles with a role that is explained and motivated only in the final reel or two, and Miss Loy is as ingratiating as usual. In spite of because of a riotous slapstick ending, it isn't very funny, except for "moments."

Practically all the moments of "First Lady" starring Kay Francis, are delightful. The stage hit's clever, barbed dialogue is retained, and read with surprising success, by Miss Francis, not surprisingly by Verrée Teasdale, Walter Connolly, Preston Foster and Louise Fazenda. It's about beststage Washington, and (personal confession) it's the first Kay Francis film in years that I've cheered about. Stanley Logan directed.

"The Bride Wore Red" is polite stuff about a girl who can't make up her mind whether to marry wealth and be a lady or marry a peasant and be happy. That she finally decides to take on the peasant is no surprise to anyone. Joan Crawford is the guttersnipe who too quickly becomes lady-like. Robert Young is the rich one and Franchot Tone the soft-voiced peasant. It was adapted from the Molnar play and directed by Dorothy Arzner.

Unfortunately, due to much loose discussion of psychology, "Inhibition" has acquired a bad connotation. Many look upon it as a sort of "psychic bowl." But that's erroneous. The function and the ability to inhibit are the basis of effective performance, physical and mental.

Parents and educators need to appreciate this more than they commonly do.

Many of London's biggest movie palaces show double features.

Book A Day

—By BRUCE CATTON

Fall is harvest time for children's books. New heroes and new heroines are spilling from new pages every day to take their chance at joining the ranks of literature's immortals.

"The Loving Heart," a late book for older girls by Elsie Singmaster (Houghton Mifflin, $2), takes the story of Berry Pontifrac through four years of trial and romance, to a very satisfactory denouement: the day the Confederate army under Lee retreated from Gettysburg.

Berry lives with Granny on a farm over Oak Ridge, above Gettysburg. Her kindness, goodness and energy in keeping the wolf from the door, and herself and her granddaughter alive, endear her to everyone, including Thaddeus Stevens, the great liberal, and the McIlvaines, rich family of the town.

Eventually, however, Berry and Granny have to go to the Poor House, whence old Peter, a neighbor, has preceded them. James, whom Berry loves, marries Caroline; Melissa, a visitor, complicates matters by her southern sympathies. Berry leaves her work at the County Home to keep house for James' mother.

Good workmanship, this book, well documented as to facts. The author knows her state, its people and history, as few others can boast. A native of Gettysburg, the author has the complete story of those three days, one of the great battles of the world, at her finger tips. The carnage and destruction as told in the book, including Baby Frank's escape from a cannon ball, will open the eyes of young readers to the meaning of war, the price paid for our Union.

Berry's character and her discovery that one can be happy in a real world rather than one of wishful thinking, will be good for growing girls.

UNCLE SAM'S TRACK STARS STILL ON TOP

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP)—Although most running tracks right now are merely the places where supporters of winning football teams land when they jump out of the stadium to start a smoke dance, and the big winter indoor season doesn't open until January, an off-season checkup on summer track and field performances shows Uncle Sam's athletes still on top.

The season didn't end officially until various touring American teams returned, laden with medals and trophies, from jaunts to Europe and Japan a few weeks ago. Since then a list of the season's best performances has been rounded up by the Amateur Athletic Union.

This list discloses that seven world records were bettered, some of them more than once, during the outdoor season, and that American athletes were responsible for three of the new marks. Other honors went to England, Finland, Sweden, Hungary, and Ireland.

Aided by the fact that races seldom are run on a yardage basis except here and in England, the Americans came out on top in 14 out of 26 events and shared first in three others, counting the 1,200-yard and 110-meter hurdles races as one.

One of the records was a 4:06.6 mile made by Stanley Wooderson of England in a paced trial, beating Glenn Cunningham's 4:06.8 standard, but American milers who have seen Wooderson run were inclined to discount that feat, pointing out that his time in a real race likely would be somewhat slower. They claim Archie San Román's 4:07.2, second best of the year, actually was a greater performance.

One that will not stand for any argument, however, is the hammer throw of 198 feet 8 5/8 inches, credited to Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan, beating the accepted record by more than nine feet. Then there was the dual feat of the Californians, Earle Meadows and Bill Sefton, in pole vaulting 14 feet 11 inches.

Other world-record breaking feats by Americans were Bob Osgood's stunt of running the high hurdles in 14 seconds flat and Mel Walker's high jump of six feet 10 3/8 inches. John Henry Rossner of Sweden and Miklos Szabo of Hungary ran 3,000 meters in 8:15.8 and 8:17.3, respectively, to beat the record of 8:18.4. Ilmar Salminen of Finland did 10,000 meters in 30:05.5 against a record of 30:06.2. No American could even earn a place among the best in either of these events nor in the 5,000 meters, in which the record wasn't even threatened.

Three record breaking and one record-equaling performance were not listed among the bests because they had no chance for record approval. Ben Johnson of New York and Yoshioka of Japan both ran 100 meters in 10.2 seconds and Adrian Talley did 100 yards in 10.4 with strong winds behind them. John Woodruff, longstriding Pittsburgh negro, was clocked in 1.47.8, two seconds under the world record, for 800 meters only to learn the track was five feet short. That's only half a stride for him.

SIX SEAMEN BURN TO DEATH ON OIL TANKER

BAYTOWN, Oct. 13 (AP)—A broken hose that threw kerosene into the galley and the engine room of the tanker Paraguana was held the cause of a blaze yesterday that burned six seamen to death and injured nine others.

The dead were Tsang Am Foo, Chinman; Ramon Marin, Ramon Zambrano, Manuel Hidalgo, Angel Martinez and Victory Martinez, all Venezuelans.

The injured included two British subjects, J. Young, third engineer, and N. A. Hewart, fourth engineer. Seven Venezuelans, burned severely, were Manuel Vinas, Evaristo Welfer, Felix Ventura, Cruz Millar, Rafael Thompson, Bernabe Sambrano and Mario Reyes.

The master of the vessel, T. W. Welch, an Englishman, said the tanker was being prepared for a cargo of oil for the Dominican republic. The kerosene was being used to scour the tanks.

Luckman, Frank Hailed as Best Passers of Area

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP)—Despite the tenderness of the football season, expert surveyors of the eastern front are putting the talented Sid Luckman of Columbia right beside Eli Yale's Clint Frank as the premier passer of the region, but it's the thought of Columbia's coach, Lou Little, that may be in order.

Little, like everyone else who has seen the Erasmus high graduate in action, is ready to concede him outstanding ability, but there's a little matter of experience that, in some opinions, keeps Luckman from immediately joining the ranks of grid-iron immortals.

Frank, of course, is no new-comer. This is his third season at hanging footballs on a peg for galloping receivers, making tackles behind both ends of the line of scrimmage, leaving defensive ends flat-footed, slicing briskly off tackle, and in general turning the brightest autumn afternoon into a bleak one for the Ells' opposition.

Already he is being touted as the year's best halfback, East, South, North and West. He made the all-America team last season.

GREEN SCORNS PEACE PARLEY

DENVER, Oct. 13 (AP)—American Federation of Labor leaders, sustained by an overwhelming vote of confidence from member unions, stood committed today to rejection of any proposals for ending organized labor's civil war which, in their opinion, were "dictated" by the rival CIO.

A CIO proposal for a large "peace" conference was rejected scornfully as "insincere" by William Green, A. F. of L. president.

Green's declaration came last night after he studied a telegram from the 32 unions of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, inviting the Federation to send 100 peace negotiators to meet with a like group from the CIO.

The A. F. of L. head said he "assumed" he spoke for his executive council, upon which the duty of transmitting a formal reply rejecting the CIO offer fell.

The council will meet following the close of the Federation's convention, expected tomorrow.

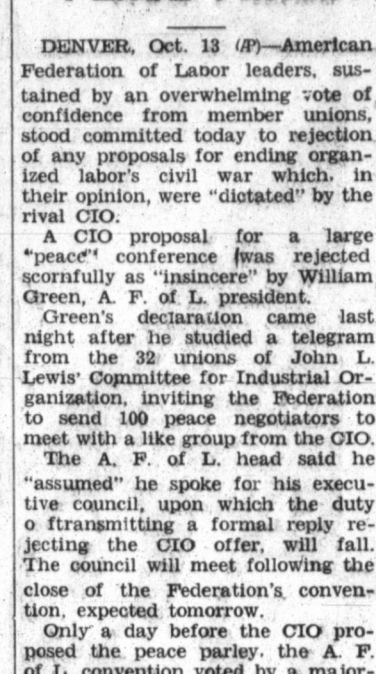

Only a day before the CIO proposed the peace parley, the A. F. of L. convention voted by a majority of nearly 25 to one, the authority asked by the council to expel "obstinate" unions which persisted in adhering to the CIO.

The convention voted to deny a seat to Charles P. Howard, CIO secretary and president of the International Typographical Union.

The vote to deny Howard a seat as a delegate from the printers union came while he was speeding eastward to take his place in the CIO meeting.

Anticipating the action, Howard left Denver while his case was being debated, leaving with reporters a statement labeling the attitude of Green and "his clique in control of the A. F. of L." as "reprehensible and cowardly."

BRADY GANG KILLED 3 'COPS', SURVIVOR SAYS

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 13 (AP)—Captain Frank Foley of the Bangor police said today James Dalhove, wounded survivor of the G-men's ambush of the dread Al Brady gang, had confessed the band had slain three policemen.

Captain Foley said he heard the sulky prisoner, during an all-night questioning, admit to federal agents the gang had killed Richard Dalhove, an Indianapolis police sergeant, Paul Minneman, an Indiana state trooper, and a Freeport, Ohio, highway patrolman, George Conn.

Dalhove, his skull creased by a bullet, surrendered after a squad of federal sleuths shot and killed Al Brady, John Dillinger's "successor," and the gang's youthful "trigger-man," Clarence Lee Shaffer, 21, yesterday in a dramatic 5-minute gun battle on a Bangor street.

Foley said the captured gunman also accused Brady of "knocking off" a grocery clerk but said he did not know the victim's name or where the slaying occurred. G-men, however, have charged the gang with the death of Edward Lindsay, a Piqua, O., grocery clerk.

INDIANAPOLIS SURE TO RISE EXPERT SAYS

American cities are going to need more revenue in the years to come because more services are being asked of cities, because of unionization, and because the federal government is shifting the relief problem to municipalities.

Such was the opinion of Carl H. Chatters, executive director of the Municipal Finance Officers' association of the United States and Canada, at the recent convention in Mineral Wells, at which time City Manager C. L. Stine was elected president of the Texas City Managers' association. Mr. Stine next week will attend the twenty-fourth annual conference of the International City Managers' association in New Orleans.

Special assessments, license and occupation taxes, seeing that all property is listed on the tax rolls, collection of delinquent taxes, were the means outlined by Mr. Chatters as ways for cities to get more money.

Most important items to a city are water, sewage disposal, and milk. Mr. Chatters said.

Speaking of license and occupation taxes, the director said that for these to be legal, they must have a connection with the morals, welfare, or health of the people.

BUMPER CROPS REQUIRE NEW LAWS AT ONCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—Agriculture department officials were quick today to compare President Roosevelt's outline of an "all-weather" farm program with the "ever normal granary" advocated by Secretary Wallace.

They said price-depressing bumper crops and high food costs in the cities had doubled the emphasis on demands for its immediate enactment.

General farm legislation will have priority in the forthcoming special session of Congress under an agreement whereby Mr. Roosevelt approved 1937 cotton loans. That agreement pledged congressmen to take up a crop control bill as soon as they met again.

More than a year ago Wallace started hammering away for his granary system to store surplus corn, wheat, cotton, and other major farm products under a government loan system from bumper to poor seasons, in an effort to stabilize supplies and prices.

The President told note of the situation in his speech last night when he said:

"We must find a way to help the farmers to store up in years of plenty to avoid hardship in the years of scarcity.

"And when we have found that way... we shall also have found the way to protect the nations food supply from the effects of the same fluctuation. We ought to have enough food at prices within the reach of the consuming public."

CITIES' TAXES SURE TO RISE EXPERT SAYS

American cities are going to need more revenue in the years to come because more services are being asked of cities, because of unionization, and because the federal government is shifting the relief problem to municipalities.

Such was the opinion of Carl H. Chatters, executive director of the Municipal Finance Officers' association of the United States and Canada, at the recent convention in Mineral Wells, at which time City Manager C. L. Stine was elected president of the Texas City Managers' association. Mr. Stine next week will attend the twenty-fourth annual conference of the International City Managers' association in New Orleans.

Special assessments, license and occupation taxes, seeing that all property is listed on the tax rolls, collection of delinquent taxes, were the means outlined by Mr. Chatters as ways for cities to get more money.

Most important items to a city are water, sewage disposal, and milk. Mr. Chatters said.

Speaking of license and occupation taxes, the director said that for these to be legal, they must have a connection with the morals, welfare, or health of the people.

AIR ATTACKS SAVE DUTCH ELM.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Indiana has gone up in the air in an attack on Dutch elm disease.

An autogyro plane, flying at slow speed and low altitude, spots diseased trees. Ground crews then go to work.

Frank N. Wallace, state entomologist, says air scouting has been more efficient and faster than ground searches.

'MYSTERY MAN' TO RUN FOR IRISH PRESIDENT

DUBLIN, Oct. 13 (AP)—Enigmatic President Eamon de Valera indicated today that he was grooming a "mystery man" to run for president of the new state of Eire, which is to be set up under the constitution adopted by the Irish Free State last July.

The New York-born president, who disclaims any attempt to assume dictatorial powers through the constitution, apparently will not offer himself as a candidate for the presidency of the new state. This construction was placed on a speech he delivered at a Linnua fall party conference last night.

PAMPAN TO ADDRESS STATE CREDIT MEET

Walter J. Daugherty, secretary-manager of the Pampa Credit association and vice president and director of the Texas Retail Credit Bureau, Inc., will make the response to the address of welcome at the annual school of instruction to be held by the state organization at the Blue Bonnet hotel at Kerrville, Oct. 18-19.

The address of welcome will be made during the morning session on Oct. 18 by J. G. Cox, president of the Kerrville bureau.

Gordon L. Lewis of Corpus Christi is president of Texas Retail Credit Bureau, Inc., and Mildred Sartor of New Braunfels, secretary.

COLLEGE BOYS BETTER WITH BOW, ARROW THAN INDIANS

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 13 (AP)—Archery, a centuries-old sport, is on the comeback trail—thanks to America's college students.

The boys and girls have made it a favorite recreation. The women are doing well, according to Mardene Robinson, a 23-year-old bow-and-arrow maker.

Robinson's shop stands on a spot where, not long ago, the Indians were making bows and arrows for deadly purposes.

"Archery," he says, "is suffering from a widespread belief that it is a sissy sport."

"But it's a man's game, even if there are more women taking part in it.

"You wouldn't call an Indian a sissy, especially if he had a huge, copper fist wrapped around your favorite head of hair.

"Well, the Indians used a 3- or 4-foot bow that pulled only 30 pounds. Now, men use 5- or 6-foot bows that pull from 40 to 100 pounds.

(The pull is the amount of strength required to draw back the bowstring before discharging the arrow.)

"The archer of today is far more expert than any Indian," says Robinson. "The Indians had to make their bows and arrows from any wood available. We use yew wood from Oregon and Port Orford cedar from Washington.

"As for the bow-and-arrow's place in hunting, I know of men who have brought down deer with arrows."

FOR ART'S SAKE

MARYVILLE, Mo.—Mary McCormic changed her mind—and almost had to sleep in a hotel lobby.

"I'm goose pimply," she moaned when Manager Bob Krofta told her the hotel was full. "Where is your chivalry? Please, a room for art's sake."

Krofta set up a bed in a vacant room for the singer, who decided at the last minute to remain overnight after a concert. But Miss McCormic's manager, Anton Miller, had to sleep in a chair in the lobby.

Slaying of Consul A Tragic Mistake

BEIRUT, Syria, Oct. 13 (AP)—The slaying of Consul General James Theodore Marriner was attributed today to a tragic mistake—a letter going astray in the mails.

The United States consular official who was shot yesterday by an Armenian, Meguerdich Karayan, who, police said, gave as his reason that he felt "insulted" because his request for a passport visa was refused.

Actually, it developed that the consulate general had granted Karayan a visa but the letter informing him of the fact was never delivered the Armenian having changed addresses.

The body of Marriner will be sent to his mother in the United States, after a memorial service today at the American church in Beirut.

Karayan will be tried by a special court next week.

Thirteen persons are under $145,000 in bonds.

A New York federal grand jury returned an indictment naming 74 persons, raids followed in Houston, Waco, San Antonio, New Orleans and New York. Federal agents said the groups business during the past two years had amounted to millions. Maceo has protested innocence.

MISHAWAKA, Ind., Oct. 13 (AP)—A middle-aged gunman, who cursed with a foreign accent, opened fire without warning and shot to death 16-year-old Melba Moore when she and two escorts stopped near here to aid a motorist apparently in trouble, Sheriff William Hosinski said today.

City police and county authorities immediately spread a dragnet for the assailant, but no trace of him could be found early today.

The shooting occurred on a lonely road near here late last night.

The sheriff said he could discover no motive for the shooting.

CHAPTER XXV

"This is a surprise," Cilly said to the stalwart figure in the doorway. "I didn't expect to see you again today."

Sergeant Dolan peeled himself out of his dripping raincoat and hung it over the kitchen door.

"I didn't expect to be here," he commented. "Enjoy the picture?" "Very much, thank you. Except that I missed some visitors by being out this afternoon."

Dolan looked at her shrewdly. "So they muffed it, eh? Well, I might have known . . ."

He walked into the living room, looked around.

Cilly went about lighting the table lamps. It was growing dark quickly.

"So your afternoon was wasted?" she asked.

"As far as your apartment is concerned, yes. But we had much better luck in other quarters."

"Where?"

"At the Ralston."

Cilly started. The Ralston Hotel was where Jim lived.

"Did Jim leave a forwarding address at the Ralston?"

"No. He wasn't quite so considerate."

Cilly straightened a chair, sat down, a little fearful. "What did you discover then?" she inquired hesitantly.

Dolan leaned forward.

"Remember what I told you about the bonds stolen by Kerr's father from the Bluefields National Bank? That they were still missing? Well, we got a thousand dollars' worth of them this afternoon in young Kerr's room at the Ralston. Funny thing about it—Martin searched that room thoroughly on Monday afternoon, but you know the old saying: 'If you want to hide something thoroughly, stick it right out where anybody can see it. That's what Kerr did. The bonds were out on a table, carelessly slipped into a magazine. Martin looked through every crack and crevice of that room, into bureau drawers and between the sheets. But he never thought of going through the magazine; that was too obvious."

"A little too obvious, it seems to me," Cilly retorted. "I'll bet someone put them there."

"Who? Kerr, Senior, stole them; his son is here to dispose of them. I don't know what miracle of fiction you saw this afternoon, but don't ask me to believe that a vindictive, vicious cleaning woman slipped those bonds into the magazine."

"I won't ask you to believe anything. You're determined to accuse Jim Kerrigan, and you've a one-track mind, sergeant."

"Not at all. But when all the evidence points to one man, we can't overlook him because a certain young lady has responded to his personality."

"All the evidence does not point to Jim."

"Ninety per cent of it does. Kerr's been traveling outside the law these past several months. Naturally, he didn't want you to know that, so to bargain with the girl not to tell, he asked her to meet him up on the roof, where he probably hoped, if she didn't come to terms, that she'd accidentally fall off."

"You told me she was strangled first . . ."

"So she was. I didn't say he took her up there deliberately to kill her. They were pretty close to each other; perhaps he thought he could reason with her. Then suddenly he lost his head. The first thing he grabbed was a piece of clothing. Then, frightened at what he'd done, he threw her off the roof, hoping it would look like an accident. I told you it's no new thing for this young man to run amuck. At the trial out in Bluefields they had several demonstrations of his wild temper. I've got the complete file on the Kerr case, if you want to come down and check up on it for yourself."

Cilly was staring out of the window, watching the rain beat against the glass. She turned, and looked Dolan calmly in the eye.

"Perhaps I will, some day," she said with deliberation. "If you ever indict Jim Kerrigan for this murder, I'll defend him. And I'll save him, Sergeant Dolan, in spite of you. There's nothing I won't do to free Jim . . ."

Dolan frowned, surprised at the fierce promise in her word.

"It's not a question of what you can or will do, Miss Pierce," he reminded her. "A jury usually decides whether a man's guilty or not. And with the evidence I've got . . ."

Wait! There's something else we found this afternoon at the Ralston."

He dug into the coat pocket, drew forth something wrapped in paper. He handed it to Cilly—a blue belt, a belt from a woman's chiffon dress.

Cilly stifled the cry that came to her lips, her eyes staring hypnotically at this new piece of evidence. The belt belonged to Amy Kerr's blue chiffon dress . . . the one she had taken up on the roof to air.

"You recognize it?"

Cilly did not, could not, answer. This was the last straw, she thought. This was the last link in the chain that was slowly, surely binding Jim to the murder.

Her head spun madly; there was a wild throbbing in her temples, a choking in her throat. She tried to think of an explanation, but her thoughts were a whirlpool of horror and despair.

She was dimly conscious that Dolan was still speaking; she heard . . . found it in the pocket of one of his jackets . . . probably wore it here. We have the dress down at headquarters. You remember the girl was holding it in her hand . . . But the words did not register in her mind.

Suddenly the throbbing in her temples gave way to a sharp, insistent ringing. Habit, more than understanding, forced her to her feet and propelled her to the telephone. Like a sleepwalker, she picked up the receiver, mumbled a mechanical "Hello."

"Hello! Hello, Cilly, darling!" Her heart stopped.

It was Jim's voice which came over the wire to her!

Jim was home again! Everything would be all right now . . .

But would it? There was Sergeant Dolan, seated not six feet away, watching her like a cat.

Dolan who believed Jim guilty in spite of everything . . .

Why, Jim wouldn't have a chance! Not now, with all this new evidence piling up . . .

"Hello!" Cilly said again, mechanically, just to hold the connection. She was afraid to say more. Here was Jim, whose voice she'd prayed to hear every minute of the past few days, and she couldn't speak to him! All she could think of was that Jim mustn't come back yet. He couldn't be found until she could disprove some of damning evidence against him . . .

"Hello! Cilly, what's the matter? Can't you hear me?"

"Hello!" She said it a third time, stupidly, tonelessly. Dolan would think it was a wrong number.

. . . If only her knees wouldn't shake so!

"Cilly!" Jim's voice again. "I just got in from Newark Airport. I'm at the Pennsylvania. I'll come right over . . ."

Instantly, Cilly found her voice. The words tumbled from her lips, fast and decisive, before Dolan could get their full meaning: "You mustn't do that. They're waiting to get you, here in my apartment." She slammed the receiver back on its hook.

Dolan was on his feet immediately fire in his eye.

"Who was that?" he demanded. Cilly did not answer.

"So!" he shouted. "You have no idea where the fellow is, but he's near enough to keep in touch with you by telephone. Well, we'll take care of that, young lady. You're coming with me, as a material witness, and I'll put someone else in your apartment to take future messages."

Cilly paid no attention to his words. Let him arrest her. What did it matter? If only Jim would understand and keep away . . .

HOUSE WOULD HIKE SULPHUR AND OIL TAXES

AUSTIN, Oct. 13 (AP)—The proposal to raise approximately $10,000 in one bill taxing a number of sources again was the subject today for laudation and denunciation in the Texas House of Representatives.

The Senate, having approved a $5,000,000 reduction in current appropriations for state departments, sharpened its "economy" knife for additional pruning.

After furious debate, the House late yesterday completed consideration of one section of the so-called omnibus bill voting 71 to 67 an increase in the tax on sulphur from the present $1.03 a ton to $1.50.

Then it took up the oil section which called for an increase in the levy on crude production from 2-3-4 per cent of value to 4 per cent. An amendment which would have fixed the rate at 3 per cent was rejected, 80 to 63.

The author of the amendment, Rep. Roy I. Tennant of Loviex, charged the issue in the legislature was not "humanity versus dollars," as enunciated by Governor James V. Allred, but "taxpayers versus taxpayers."

Advocates of the higher tax on oil replied the burden would be borne chiefly by persons outside the state, including those in warring countries, and Texas should not lose the opportunity to capitalize on its great resources.

The final action on the sulphur section was accompanied by adoption of a provision liberalizing the old age assistance law and allocating two-thirds of the revenue to such assistance.

In fact, since the House previously had rejected the $1.50 rate on sulphur, declaring originally for $1.23, the later reversal in sentiment was reasonably attributed to a coalition of old age pension liberals and high-taxers.

Gas, Carbon Black
Other sections of the bill would boost taxes on natural gas, carbon black and utilities and also place a tax on higher theater admissions. The order of business called for considering each in turn and then voting on the bill as a whole.

There were many of the opinion the bill had little chance of becoming law, regardless of what the House did, because less than two weeks of the special session remained and a powerful element in the Senate had time as an ally.

Employees of departments quaked in their boots as the Senate rammed through a bill lopping $4,875,932 from departmental appropriations for the biennium, but took heart in several matters which might block the measure.

One hurdle was upreared by Speaker Robert W. Calvert, who asked the attorney general's department for an opinion on whether the bill came within the governor's call for the session.

Another was the possibility of veto by the governor, who called the session for the sole purpose of raising revenue and had declined to open the matter of reconsidering appropriations.

Colleges Protest
Meanwhile, regents and presidents of state-supported colleges, sighting Senate moves to slash also the educational appropriation bill, converged on the capital to voice opposition.

A bill cutting the appropriations for colleges was in hands of a subcommittee scheduled to report to the Senate finance committee Thursday. Another bill to reduce the judiciary appropriations had been introduced.

In a statement R. A. Stuart of Fort Worth, president of the board of regents of the state teachers colleges, said reduction in the education appropriation bill would cause "endless confusion and uncertainty" and would nullify contracts made in good faith by the regents.

BAYLOR HAS ON DISPLAY OLDEST COLLECTION OF NEWSPAPERS

WACO, Oct. 13 (AP)—The destruction of the Spanish armada, the warrant to execute Mary Queen of Scots, the death of Lord Nelson, the great plague and the great London fire are among historical events described in a collection of London newspapers dating to 1588, now on display in the library building of Baylor University.

The collection, believed to be the oldest existing, is the property of Dan Carr, freshman student from San Francisco, Cal. Carr's grandfather, a native of Australia, found the papers in a secret drawer of a newspaper collector's desk he purchased at auction sale, years ago.

The oldest unit of the collection is an edition of the English Mercurie, dated July 23, 1588. In it is a facsimile of the warrant to execute Mary Queen of Scots bearing the bold signature of Queen Elizabeth. A later edition carries an eye-witness account of the destruction of the Spanish armada. The writer gives an account of the running battle, including the number of ships, their sizes and battle formations, and incidents preceding the conflict.

The news, printed in London July 8, 1665, carries a story on the beginning of the epidemic history records as the great plague it prints orders from the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London concerning care and burial of the myriad people who were daily victims of the infection.

Probably the most interesting paper in the collection is the London Gazette of Sept. 10, 1666, containing an account of the great London fire. The story says the fire began in a small baker shop in the slums, a strong wind carrying the flames from house to house, across bridges and leaping canyons until a large part of London was an inferno. A vivid description is given of people running from the fire and shouting until their voices were drowned by the roaring flames. The paper lists among buildings burned 13,200 houses, 87 churches, 6 chapels, the Royal exchange, the Custom house, the jail at newgate, three city gates, the Guildhall, and four bridges.

In a copy of the times, dated Jan. 26, 1793, is a letter by an eye-witness to the execution of Louis XVI. This paper also contains the last will of the executed French king. What is believed to be the first picture ever used in a newspaper appears in a copy of the times of Jan. 10, 1806. It is a likeness of the coffin of Lord Nelson, killed at Trafalgar. Accompanying the picture is an obituary of the admiral and an account of his death along with his last words.

PLAINS DESCRIBED IN SOUTH TEXAS MAGAZINE

Although Pampa receives scant notice, in an article published in the October issue of Texas Parade, a magazine published at Houston, there is an excellent description of the Panhandle-Plains, of which Pampa is an important part.

The article is the fifth and final one of Texas Parade's vacation tour series, and is written by Charles E. Simmons.

Excerpts from the article: "There are mighty few persons in these United States, and certainly none in Texas, who have not heard of the great Panhandle Plains of Western Texas—in the really wide open spaces—where one can see for miles, where the people are frank, hospitable and friendly and where the latch-string is always out. A land of magnificent vistas: a land that it has taken courage to conquer; an area that is playing an increasingly important part in the development of the Lone Star State. This section was Texas' last frontier and the frontier spirit of freedom and independence still lives. Here were established the first of the huge ranches that made Texas famous as a cattle country.

"The land is unusually level for hundreds of miles and is very fertile, despite assertions by some uninformed critics that the northern part is a 'dust bowl.' This area has been visited in the past few years by dust storms, but usually it wasn't Texas dust.

"Shamrock and Pampa are in the heavy gas and oil producing areas, although extensive wheat and cattle ranching operations also are centered in these two communities."

Accused in his own time of nature faking because of the dramatic poses in which he portrayed birds, John James Audubon, early American naturalist, has been vindicated by the studies of more recent scientists.

The Capital Jigsaw

AUSTIN, Oct. 13 (AP)—There is State deficit of sorts about which little or nothing has been said. It concerns the fund from which acting governors are paid.

At the close of the fiscal year, Aug. 31, the fund had a balance of $22.27, but several bills against it had not been paid. That is to say, Lieut.-Gov. Walter E. Woodul and Senator Claud M. Isbell had not received the $33.33 per diem due them for time they substituted for Gov. James V. Allred when the latter was out of the state.

Just what the amount of the deficit is the comptroller's department does not know, but there is small prospect it will be paid until the legislature makes a deficiency appropriation. However, Woodul, and Isbell aren't worrying. They say the State's credit is good.

Isbell, who as president pro tempore of the Senate became acting governor when both Allred and Woodul crossed Texas' borders last August, plans to have his salary check photographed in order to preserve definite evidence of his one-day service as chief executive. He would keep the check itself, but then he wouldn't get the $33.33.

An appropriation of $500 was made available to the fund Sept. 1, but the new money could not be applied to debts incurred in the previous year.

Already the new year's fund balance has begun to drop. It now stands at $33.35. The decline of $166.65 represented salary paid Woodul when Gov. Allred went to New Orleans Labor day and later to Atlantic City and Washington.

Incidentally, the comptroller's department apparently has settled the question of just how much a substitute governor should be paid. Some had figured his remuneration by dividing the amount of the Governor's salary, $12,000 a year, by 36. There also was suggested, from time to time, that a senator acting as governor should receive a Senator's salary.

That's all out, according to the comptroller's attaches. The salary is $33.33 a day, or $1,000 divided by 30.

Allan Shivers of Port Arthur is the president pro tempore now, having succeeded Isbell at the start of the current special session, but if he gets a cut at the acting governor's salary fund there must be little delay in clearing a path for him to the governor's office. His term will expire when the session is adjourned sine die.

The constitution provides a president pro tempore must be chosen when a session begins and when it ends. In other words, there is an interval between two sessions—and it is quite probable that will be the case this fall—there would, nevertheless, have to be a president pro tempore ad interim. Lieut.-Gov. Woodul says there have been several instances in the past when a man had the office for very short periods, at one time only eight hours.

4 COMMITTEES HOLD SESSIONS AT CONVENTION

HOUSTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—Four important committees today started things moving at the Independent Petroleum Association convention.

The committees on taxation, balance of supply with demand, elimination of illegal production and unnecessary and excessive drilling, opened their discussions. From this group the association hopes to glean ideas that will benefit them when they ask for special legislation covering part if not all of the activities.

Reports of the committees will be ready for the convention proper when it opens tomorrow. Two thousand delegates from all sections of the United States are slated to attend. Many of them were in town today.

Simultaneously the Interstate Oil Compact commission will begin a meeting here tomorrow. The commission will hold its sessions at the Oil World Exposition coliseum.

Chairman Ernest O. Thompson, Texas Railroad Commissioner, said the six state governors on the commission or their representatives would attend.

Tax legislation proposed both in Washington and in the state capitals of oil producing states is expected to draw the fire of the I. P. A. delegates.

C. E. Buchner, executive manager of the association, said many oil men feel the industry is carrying its share of the tax burden.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the R. F. C., is due here tomorrow to address the convention. Secretary Harold L. Ickes of the department of the interior, will arrive Friday.

ROOSEVELT PICKED TO SUCCEED HIMSELF

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—A poll of 2,511 newspaper editors, of whom only 909 were Democratic in the last national election, indicates that President Roosevelt is at present the most probable man to succeed himself. It was reported today in the current Liberty magazine.

It is the fourth poll of newspaper editors taken by Liberty and each of the preceding ones correctly indicated the political trends.

To the question, "Who do you think will succeed Mr. Roosevelt in 1941," the editors replied as follows: President Roosevelt, Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, Gov. Earle of Pennsylvania, Postmaster General Farley, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, John L. Lewis.
