This writer always enjoys a visit with the people at McLean. Banquets there usually bring about RATHER SOUR; the necessary invitation. The ladies night event of the Lions club Tuesday was no exception. But we had a puzzled moment or two at the beginning. The tail-waiter announced that Pampans would be fined if they mentioned the word e-l-l-i-g-i-b-l-i-t-y. And then, what kind of cocktails do you suppose the women of the First Baptist church of McLean brought out? We'll tell you: CHERRY! But the Pampans had just been told by this columnist of the successful protest and they were in a mood to overlook the coincidence.

FACTS OF HISTORY ARE BEING REVIVED

While verbal warfare continues to rage about the most points of the recovery program, it is refreshing to look the other direction for a moment and notice that some 3500 members of the Civilian Conservation Corps are going to be at work this winter restoring some of the nation's most famous battlefields.

Four groups of men will work at Yorktown, where Continental and French troops squeezed independence out of Cornwallis' helpless army. Two more groups will work at Morrisstown, N. J., another historic spot in the Revolutionary struggle.

Some 600 will work at Chickamauga, scene of some of the Civil War's bloodiest fighting; others will be assigned to Gettysburg, Vicksburg, Shiloh, Fredericksburg, Spotsylvania and Chancellorsville.

In each case the workers will start by clearing away underbrush, vegetation, and so on, that hide the outlines of trenches, gun emplacements, and the like. Old fortifications will be cleaned up, trails will be laid to make access to all parts of the field easy, roadsides will be cleared away and landscaped.

Just enough actual restoration will be done to enable each battlefield to tell its own story to the visitor.

When the work is finished, a small staff of experts will be installed at each battlefield. Little effort will be made to give visitors guides; instead, maps and leaflets will be prepared so that the visitor can find his own way about and piece the historic story together for himself.

The whole project seems to be one of the most intelligent moves that could be made.

These battlefields of ours, made sacred by the blood that has been shed on them and by the high principles that were at stake there, are national shrines of the greatest value. There is no better way to get the "feel" of national history than to visit one or another of these places.

A few hours at Gettysburg, for instance, are worth whole volumes on the Civil War; a visit to Lexington and Concord, or to Ticonderoga, makes the Revolution seem real as nothing else can.

From such visits comes understanding; and from understanding grows a hard and unshakable patriotism. By restoring the battlefields and enabling us as visitors to reconstruct in our imaginations the tragic and heroic moments of our history, the government is offering us something of the very highest value.

THE PEOPLES COLUMN

Editor, The NEWS: Since the sports and gamblers have got control of the schools and colleges, they have apparently become the most prosperous institutions on the map.

The boards are required to keep records of sport teachers on the pay-rolls and the trained ball teams and new squads grow from 50 to 1,000 miles from home to play ball, very often the boards chartering whole passenger trains for the round trip.

J. N. DUNCAN.

Editor, The NEWS:

I. C. E. Cary, county judge of Gray county, Texas, stated upon my oath: That on November 27th, 1933, Coach Blair Cherry and Principal Norman of the Amarillo high school called upon the commissioners' court of Gray county, while in special session, at the courthouse in Pampa, Gray county, Texas, and asked numerous questions with reference to a road leading from the Hopkins school No. 1 to Hopkins school No. 2 and asked if it would be permitted to investigate the records in the county auditor's office, apparently for the purpose of determining whether or not the road from the Hopkins school No. 1 to Hopkins school No. 2 is a county road.

All questions propounded by Mr. Norman and Mr. Cherry were answered with all due courtesy and as completely as possible. Every courtesy was accorded them, even to the extent of extending them the privilege of examining the county records themselves. They were told emphatically told that the road from Hopkins school No. 1 to Hopkins school No. 2 was not a county road and had never been a county road, and there was no contemplation of the commissioners' court of making it a county road. They were told by the members of the commissioners' court that to the best of their knowledge and belief this road had been constructed by the beginning of the Phillips Oil company and others and that it is purely a neighborhood road, constructed for the use and accommodation of the oil field section. Mr. Norman stated that all their questions had been answered by the court and that there were no further questions that they cared to ask with reference to the matter. There was no apprehension in connection with these gentlemen's visit to the court.

C. H. GARY, subscribed before the C. E. Cary this 29th day of November, A. D. 1933. CHARLES THOU, County Clerk, Gray County, Texas.

PLAYERS OF 5 TEAMS WIN BERTHS ON ELEVEN

CHICAGO Nov. 30. (AP)—Out of probably the closest race for individual honors in a decade, the outstanding aces of Michigan, Iowa, Purdue, Minnesota, and Ohio State won berths on the 1933 all-star Big Ten football team as selected by the Associated Press with the assistance of coaches, officials and critics, who saw every player in action this fall.

Michigan, undefeated champion of a league recognized as one of the toughest in college football, led the way by placing four of its stars on the first team. Iowa, Minnesota, and Purdue each placed two while Ohio State landed a repeater from the 1932 all-star aggregation.

The only unanimous choice was Francis Wistert, Michigan's 6 foot 3 1/2 inch tackle. His teammate, Charles Bernard, missed joining him as a unanimous choice when one coach placed him on the second team.

The closest race involved the quarterback position, which Joe Laws of Iowa, leading scorer in Big Ten games this year, won by a single point over Jack Beynon, field general and forward passing wizard from Illinois.

First and second all-star Big Ten football teams for 1933 selected by the Associated Press:

Maryland Lynch Suspects Freed In Quick Hearing

BALTIMORE, Nov. 30 (P)—The release of four suspects in the Princess Anne lynching brought from Governor Albert C. Ritchie a critical statement on the manner in which their liberty was restored.

The four—William H. Thompson, Irving Adkins, William Hearn, and William C. McQuay—were freed yesterday at a habeas corpus hearing before Judges John E. Pattison and Robert F. Duer at Princess Anne.

The hearing lasted only eight minutes during which the prisoners' counsel claimed there were no warrants, no commitments and no witnesses for the state and State's Attorney John E. Robins said he had no evidence to present. Chief Judge Pattison handed down the decision.

The prisoners and their escort, Harry C. Martin, warden of the Baltimore city jail, where the former had been held, were received with loud acclaim from the large crowd around the courthouse as they rode into town.

SYNOPSIS: At Russian Lake in the Canadian Northwest, where he is searching for Igor Karakhan, international crook, Curt Nyson meets and saves from a drunken half-breed a Russian girl known as Sonya Nichols. She is determined to press on into the land of the dangerous Klosshee Indians, against Curt's advice. Curt is chagrined to find that his new enemy, the half-breed in the case, is Karakhan's "contact man"; he obtains a map of the Lilluar territory from an old trapper, however, and determines to protect canoe with two men in it. They

Chapter 17
OUT OF THE FOG

Two mornings later, at her camp forty miles up river Sonya awoke at daybreak, parted the tent-flap and looked out. Ralph and the two guides were still rolled up in their sleeping bags.

Through the gray, smoke mist rising from the cold waters of the Lilluar, pairs of nesting teal and ducks zipped overhead, their swift wings whistling long after the birds were swallowed up in the air. Overhead in the tall pines little vireos and flame-colored warblers, flitting through the branches and darting out into the air, were already busy with the fledgling problem.

Stepping down to the water edge, she propped her mirror against a stone, bathed her face and hands, and braided her hair. Back at the campfire, she raked some coals out of the ashes, got a fire going and cooked bacon, trout, scones and coffee. Ralph and two guides still showed no signs of waking, so she took a small bucket and started up a mountain torrent to a thicket of red raspberries.

Not long after she reached the patch, she happened to glance back at camp and was startled to see a canoe with two men in it. They glided ashore, beached the craft and walked up to her fire, with their rifles in the crook of their arms. And then she recognized them as Curt Ralston and his young partner!

They were a welcome surprise, out of the fog. For several reasons she was never gladder to see people than those two. But what were they doing up the Lilluar? They hadn't mentioned that they intended to come north from Russian Lake.

Through a screen of boughs she watched them a minute. They did not wake up Ralph or the guides. Curt pointed at her breakfast keeping warm in the ashes, and looked around for her, evidently knowing she was up.

She stepped out to the timber edge. Curt saw her then and came up along the torrent.

"You're awake early!" he greeted with his likable smile.

He was casual enough, as though just meeting some chance acquaintance. But Sonya saw the mail's tribute to her in his eyes and noticed how his glance clung to her face and hair. She felt sure he had not come upon her camp by accident but with some definite purpose.

"I couldn't sleep with a morning like this just outside the tent," she answered.

"Your breakfast looked so good that Paul and I almost grabbed it and broke for the woods."

"You will stay and have breakfast with us, won't you?"

"If you'll let me give you a hand with that berry-picking."

"All right."

He took up her bucket, and they went back along the torrent to the patch.

"I didn't know Paul and you were intending to come up this way," she remarked, bending down a tall briar.

He answered her unspoken question: "We're prospecting up the Lilluar."

Sonya did not know whether to believe him or not. Ever since meeting him she had been trying to figure him out. He certainly didn't appear to be a prospector. He was miles above the type.

Except for her father, she had never met a man whose quiet efficient power impressed her as much as his. She hated to think that he was just a drifter, leading a carefree existence. That was all right for the men at Russian Lake, but he had better stuff in him.

"Paul and I are going up as far as the pass," he volunteered presently. And then he came out with the purpose of his visit. "If there is no objection on the east side of the fence, our parties could sort

CWA Quota Will Be Reduced In Some Counties

AUSTIN, Nov. 30 (P)—Orders have been issued by the Texas relief commission to county administrators in 70 counties to reduce the number of men employed in civil works construction to the quota allotted to the respective counties.

Official notice of the number of jobs allocated to the various counties was mailed today. Allotments were on the basis of 158,106 jobs, with approximately 33,000 jobs unassigned.

Thus far only persons on direct relief have been given employment. The commission announced that within the next ten days the 33,000 unassigned jobs likely would be assigned to unemployed who have applied to the national re-employment service for work.

The civil works program, it was announced can care only for about one-third of the unemployed in Texas and additional unemployed must be placed through the public works administration program.

A recheck of the number of pay checks issued to civil works employees last Saturday showed that 133,689 men were compensated, the payroll totalling $1,545,185.

The number of men employed in some counties was three times their
