SINCLAIR TALKS WITH ROOSEVELT AND COMES OUT BEAMING

CALIFORNIAN SLASHES INTO HOOVER VIEWS

SAYS EX-PRESIDENT IS FOR 'RIGHTS OF MILLIONAIRES'

HYDE PARK, Sept. 5 (AP)—The mayor of New York, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, came up the Hudson today for a talk with President Roosevelt.

LaGuardia, like Upton Sinclair the democratic gubernatorial candidate in California, who was here yesterday, spoke in Chicago Labor day, and both referred to "new party alignments."

Sinclair, one-time fiery socialist and now seeking the governorship of California with his "epic"—end poverty in California—plan, said after emerging yesterday from his conference with the president that he had had "the most interesting talk of my life." The subject of the conference was not discussed by either Mr. Roosevelt or the Californian.

New York state questions were uppermost on the Roosevelt calendar today. In addition to the New York city mayor, the president had on his calling list Frank H. Walsh, chairman of the New York Power authority.

Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, was a luncheon guest of the president and Mrs. Roosevelt. He is en route to Europe and is an old acquaintance of Mr. Roosevelt.

The president had an opportunity for comment on the two-hour visit yesterday with Sinclair at his regular press conference today, but there was no certainty he would.

Steadfastly refusing to comment on just what was said at the Roosevelt chat, Mr. Sinclair went on his way radiating enthusiasm, praise for the president and a renewed fire for the new deal and "epic" plan, which, plans he said seek the same ends.

In response to inquiries by newspapermen, Sinclair shot sharply at Norman Thomas, socialist party leader, and Herbert Hoover, former republican president.

He said Mr. Hoover in his article in the Saturday Evening Post was talking about "rights for millionaires" and added "that is all Mr. Hoover has thought about all his life."

As for the criticism of the "epic" plan by Norman Thomas, the Californian simply replied: "It is very unfortunate that Norman Thomas is too busy making socialist speeches to find out what the epic plan really is."

Replying to questions about the party switching going on in California since the recent primary, Sinclair said: "For every old tory who goes out, four progressives come in. We kiss each other old tory good-bye on both cheeks. We brought in 330,000 new registered democrats since last January."

Age has eradicated the rasp in Sinclair's voice. He smiles genially, is ever polite in a quick, impersonal way, where once he was wont to be distant. Politically apparently has made more subtle the spirit which once ripped viciously into capitalistic doctrines.

Slight physically, Sinclair bobs about men far more prepossessing in appearance than he, and by an inner energy makes his presence felt.

"If I had wanted leisure I wouldn't be in this," he said. He dashes from one task to another, thinking and using tried weapons—words—all of the time. He talks softly, without apparent effort, but his evident purpose is to convince and please his listeners.

His bushy hair has thinned. It is gray now. His eyes are bright beneath heavy, gray brows.

A Washington Daybook

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—The "chiselers," "Neanderthal men" and the "Tories"—to use General Johnson's descriptions of his enemies—may have been somewhat dismayed at the news that he is not yet to go into eclipse at NRA, but to one group in Washington it was greeted with something akin to cheers.

It is the capital corps of newspaper correspondents.

The manner in which it was decided the general was to remain as "head man" at NRA is typical of the reasons Washington news writers would be sorry to see Johnson retire from the national stage.

In this incident, as well as almost every other in which he has figured since he took charge at NRA, he has been grand copy.

The time was when Al Smith in the role of the "happy warrior" was the beau ideal of newspapermen who concern themselves with national affairs. The general however, has outshone even him in picturesqueness.

Johnson Vivid Fighter

Smith got into a lot of fights, but never as many or bitter ones as has Johnson. Smith's ability to snap back at his opponents was recognized by all, but the general's talent for hurling scathing epithets at his enemies is more vivid than Smith's.

Regardless of what anyone thinks about Johnson personally and his method, it is recognized generally that he has done a magnificent job in selling the Blue Eagle and NRA to the country.

He is a super-salesman, a wonder as a promoter, superb as a barker. When it comes to attracting the attention of the whole country—even the world—the general is in a class by himself.

He has marshaled literally millions of raw and often reluctant recruits into camp. And there's been color in every command he issued in doing so.

Often 'On Way Out'

No important figure in the "new deal" has been on his way out of office as long and as frequently as Johnson. Talk of his retirement dates back almost a year.

Before the beginning of the last congress there were rumors he would quit before the beginning of the regular session. But he stuck. Early in the summer such talk was revived. Reports had it he would make a few vivid speeches during the summer in support of NRA, then back out of the picture completely by the time the 74th congress rolled around.

He has spoked those reports again, and in true Johnsesque fashion. Whether it be true or not that he really desires to get out and return to private life is beside the question at the moment.

The important thing is that he stays with NRA and is still "boss."

Senator Pittman Nominated Again For U. S. Senator

RENO, Nevada, Sept. 5 (AP)—Senator Key Pittman holds the endorsement of Nevada democrats today for another term in the senate, where he has given 22 years of continuous service.

Against his first primary opposition since 1912, the chairman of the important senate foreign relations committee outdistanced two opponents in yesterday's election.

On the basis of returns, complete and incomplete, from 152 of the state's 246 precincts, Senator Pittman had 9,388 votes to 2,994 for H. R. Cooke, Reno attorney, and 807 for Bob Moore, young Las Vegas business man.

State Engineer George W. Malone, former vice commander of the American Legion, will be Senator Pittman's opponent in November, it appeared from a tabulation of the same precincts.

For the republican senatorial nomination, Malone had 3,827, August Prohibition Reno justice of the peace, 1,928, and Glyde D. Souther, Reno attorney, 1,863.

The outcome of the six-cornered contest for the democratic nomination for governor remained in doubt. Richard Kirman Sr., Reno banker, had 4,188 votes and Harley Harmon, Clark county district attorney, was a close second with 3,660.

Acting Governor Morley Griswold was unopposed for the republican nomination for governor.

CRYSTAL PALACE CONFECTIONERY

THIRTY-ONE MILLION PUPILS ENTERING SCHOOLS, COLLEGES AS UNCLE SAM AIDS STUDENTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (AP)—The nation's educational system, still staggering from the blows of the depression, is getting ready to care for about one-fourth of the country's population this fall.

With attendances augmented by thousands who in normal times would find compensatory occupations, it is estimated that the enrollment will reach a record-breaking grand total of more than 31,000,000 students, some 28,000,000 in the public schools and 3,000,000 in private institutions. The increase over last year's attendance is figured to be between 300,000 and 400,000.

Government education officials say the brunt of the burden imposed by increased enrollment will be borne by the high schools, which already are overcrowded and handicapped by drastic curtailment of facilities. Moreover, the drought and continued pressure of adverse economic conditions are expected to make 1934-1935 the worst year for the schools in some sections of the country.

Improvement Forecast

They believe, however, that on the whole the depression in education has about reached bottom, that greater stability will be attained in school financing in many states this year and that general improvement will be noticed a year hence.

Emery M. Foster, chief statistician of the United States office of education, says the outlook has been brightened by the movement toward restoration and enlargement of state aid for schools, by the bustle in several southern states where the situation had been desperate and by the improvement in municipal tax collections.

Nearly all school districts are reported to have some resources for opening their schools this fall. While no definite allotments of federal funds to prevent the closing of schools have been made, some states have taken steps to insure the operation of all public schools and the government is setting up machinery to keep the schools going in the drought areas.

They're Staying in School

It is expected, moreover, that federal emergency relief administration funds will be available in a pinch just as they were last year when $17,000,000 was distributed among 33 states to prevent the closing of schools in small towns and rural districts.

Economic pressure has not only cut available revenue but it also has increased enrollments in the upper grades which are most expensive to operate, Foster says. There were more than 1,000,000 more pupils in high school last year than in 1930, and the prospect is that the increase this year will be considerably in excess of 200,000 students.

Students, who in prosperous times left high school after the second or third year to get positions in trade or industry, are remaining in school because there are no jobs for them. Thousands of children released from jobs by elimination of child labor and other thousands of post-graduates have helped to swell the high school population.

States Tackle Costs

Foster says there are indications, however, that reductions in teachers' salaries, which dropped as low as $30 and $40 a month for white teachers in some southern and western states, have about reached the limit. In some places salary cuts have been partially restored.

Legislators have been struggling with the educational crisis along several fronts.

One outstanding trend has been an unprecedented assumption by the states of greater proportions of school costs, the result of the inability of local districts to finance education in the face of reduced tax rates on property, reduced assessment valuations and curtailed revenues.
