BOBBITT WILL BE KEYNOTER AND CHAIRMAN

JOHN N. GARNER NOW CERTAIN TO BE ELECTED

BY HARRELL E. LEE, Associated Press Foreign Staff.

GALVESTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—The retiring Texas democratic executive committee, holding its final sessions here today, unanimously approved the slate of temporary officers for tomorrow's state convention proposed by friends of James V. Allred, gubernatorial nominee.

Robert Lee Bobbitt of Laredo, one of Allred's original supporters this year although defeated by him in the attorney general's race four years ago, was named temporary convention chairman and keynoter.

Other temporary officers selected included Albert Sidney Johnson of Dallas, secretary, and Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby of Houston, parliamentarian. Johnson was secretary of the state executive committee during the administration of Ross S. Sterling, former governor.

The state committee did not reach the subject of selection of a national committeeman before the noon recess but members said there was no question but that James E. Ferguson, who opposed Allred's candidacy, would step aside in favor of John N. Garner, vice president. Allred was agreeable to the selection of Garner.

Official returns canvassed by the state democratic executive committee showed that Allred defeated Tom F. Hunter for the gubernatorial nomination by approximately 40,000 votes out of a total of nearly 960,000 cast.

The returns from the August 25 primary, with Hutchinson and Kimbrell counties missing, gave Allred 497,898 votes and Hunter 457,785.

Totals in other state races from all except the two counties were: Lieutenant governor, Walter F. Woodard of Houston, 526,832; Joe M. Moore of Greenville, 369,403.

Attorney general, William McCraw of Dallas, 499,664; Walter Woodward of Coleman, 409,381.

Railroad commissioner, Lon A. Smith of Austin, 508,171; John Pundt of Dallas, 392,655.

Associate justice of the supreme court, John Sharp of Waxahatchie, 452,694; H. S. Lattimore of Fort Worth, 433,571.

WOMAN FLIER CALLED FRIEND OF MUNITIONS

AMELIA EARHART GAVE AID TO MUNITIONS OFFICIALS, CLAIM

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Evidence that the British war office is disposing of surplus war stocks of such magnitude that the sale of even a part of these munitions could alter the balance of power in a small country, was presented today to the senate munitions committee.

This testimony came to light in a letter by the Solek Ammunition company Ltd., of London, to the American Ammunition corporation, saying it acted as agent for the British war office in disposing of small arms worth about $30,000,000.

"The stocks we control," the letter said, "are of such magnitude that the sale of a big block of them could alter the political balance of power of the smaller states involving corresponding complications from the point of view of finance and industry."

The letter was presented after the committee had been told that armament company officials were friendly with a group of prominent persons in the aviation industry, including Amelia Earhart and Clarence Chamberlin, and that these persons had aided munitions officials.

Other testimony told of help extended by commercial and military attaches in the American embassy in Rio de Janeiro had been "100 per cent helpful" to a munitions salesman.

500 Employees of Texas Company Attend Picnic

Reberne beef, prepared by John Snider of Amarillo who prepared the barbecue at the Texas picnic for the president in Washington, was served more than 500 employees of the Texas company in 50 families and a number of invited guests Saturday evening. Bulls, beans and all the trimmings for a picnic were added.

They were the guests of Mel B. Davis at a picnic on his ranch southeast of LeFors. The big "feed" was served following games and contests for men, women and children. The guests were held in their private homes and in the many sections of land to the Texas company.

Special guests from Wichita Falls were J. L. McMahon, division manager for North Texas; Jim Sullivan, land man; M. J. Adams, superintendent of the gasoline plants; L. R. Smith, chief clerk; M. J. McCaughey, division superintendent; Roy Wright, division engineer and former Pampa.

Mag' Employees Eat Four Beeves At LeFors Picnic

Shaw Park at LeFors was the scene of a picnic staged by the natural gas and gasoline departments of the Magnolia Petroleum company Saturday afternoon. More than 500 employees, their families, and friends were present to partake of four beeves and accessories following games and contents.

The big event was closed by a terrapin race which was won by an entry of William Chandler of Magie City. The small son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Poston of Skellytown was second place, with George Rogers' entry being third.

The Pampa high school band furnished music for the occasion. Special music and entertainment features were presented by Harry Kelley, Emmitt Smith and Howard Zimmerman.

Christies were welcomed by V. L. Dickenson, district superintendent. Other brief talks were made during the evening.

Special guests included D. E. West of Dallas, manager of the gas division; E. A. Koenig of Dallas, chief maintenance engineer; M. J. Norrell of Dallas, manager of industrial relations; C. E. McGrew of Irving, pipeline superintendent; Clyde Hollman, sales manager.

CENTENNIAL IS HANDED DALLAS BY COMMISSION

Second Largest City Bids $7,971,000 For Celebration

AUSTIN, Sept. 10 (AP)—Dallas, Texas, second largest city, today was the choice of the Texas centennial as the location of the central celebration in 1936 of the Texas centennial, an exposition to commemorate a century of independence.

Bids of Houston and San Antonio for the location of a celebration planners hoped would represent an outlay of up to $50,000,000 were rejected. Representatives of each, however, promptly pledged unqualified cooperation toward making the centennial a success.

Each was assured some form of historical observance of Texas' one hundredth birthday of freedom from Mexican rule. The statute which created the commission as the planning agency directed it to arrange suitable historical celebrations at Houston, site of the battle of San Jacinto in which Texans won their freedom; San Antonio, site of the battle of the Alamo; Nacogdoches, Huntsville, Goliad, Brenham and other like places identified with Texas' early history.

Father Worried But James Laughs It Off Lightly

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 10 (AP)—James Roosevelt, son of the president, smiled lightly today at the harrowing experience of being buffeted about on the storm-tossed Atlantic for more than 24 hours aboard the 50-foot racing schooner Black Arrow.

With the schooner's crew of amateur sailors, Roosevelt put into Portland harbor last night while 11 coast guard vessels, acting under orders of Secretary of the Navy.

IMMEDIATE CONTRACT ON ROAD TOPPING UNDER CONSIDERATION

After trying for many months without success to secure a PWA loan, the Gray county commissioners court is studying whether it would not be cheaper, all things considered, to complete the Pampa-McLean road by selling bonds in the open market and letting the contract immediately.

The PWA application was approved several weeks ago, but changes in the federal set-up have developed and there is no way of knowing when the loan will be ready. As matters now stand, the application will likely have to be re-filed with the new PWA authority in Texas. This would probably mean that the road could not be completed before warm weather next spring and the road-bed would be badly damaged by weather and traffic.

Another factor is that the PWA application cannot be perfected until all of the caliche is laid, although parts of the road are now ready for topping. Necessary delays for federal inspections, submission of materials and other items of red tape would delay starting of work until cold weather made topping impossible, it is believed.

Contractors, after examining terms of PWA contracts, including working hours and wages, have said that their bids would have to be around 20 per cent higher than ordinary private contracts. All in all, it appears to the court that

ATTEMPT TO FIRE SHIP MADE ON PREVIOUS VOYAGE

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—Three officers of the burned Morro Castle testified today to believe its catastrophic fire was deliberately spread.

"I can only believe that it was set—God knows what the motive is," exclaimed Ivan Freeman, one of the officers on the stand in the government's inquiry.

HAVANA, Sept. 10 (AP)—Capt. Oscar Hernandez, chief of the Havana port police, declared today:

"The Morro Castle fire seems to have been the work of communists, apparently of a passenger who boarded the ship with fire-making chemicals in his baggage."

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—Chief Officer W. F. Warm's told a federal board of inquiry today that he believed the raging fire which early Saturday reduced the luxurious liner Morro Castle to a charred hulk and caused a loss of more than 116 lives was of incendiary origin.

He said he based his belief on the fact that a locker in the writing room "blew out" at the start of the fatal fire.

"I believe there was gasoline or kerosene in it," he said.

Warm, who was acting master of the ship at the time of the disaster testified his belief that the disaster resulted from the work of an incendiary was based also on the fact that during the previous voyage of the Morro Castle a fire broke out in the hold and charred paper was found on cargo in that hold.

Warm broke down twice during his testimony both times when he spoke of Capt. Robert B. Willmott, master of the ship who died suddenly the night before the fire.

The chief officer described frantic scenes aboard the ship during the fire.

"I shouted orders to get the passengers in the life boats," he testified, "but the passengers were shouting and there was great confusion. Many of them wouldn't get into the life boats."

He testified the first word of the fire reached him at 2:45 a. m., Eastern Standard Time. An officer he sent to investigate turned a fire extinguisher on a locker and it "blew out," Warm said. A few minutes before three, he testified, he sounded a general alarm.

"I did all I could," he said. He added he ordered the crew turned out and ordered tin pans be used if necessary to arouse the passengers.

The first wireless message, a "stand by" signal went out about 3:15. Warm said, and the "SOS" about a minute later. He said he delayed sending a message because he thought he could control the fire.

Warm said there had been drinking parties in the lounge just before the fire, but as they were very common he thought there was nothing to be uneasy about.

Warm denied reports that life boats left the ship without orders. He said panic was created by passengers, many of whom refused to get into the life boats.

"I hollered for God's sake get into the boats and I saw a steward pick one guy up and forcibly put her in."

Miss Elizabeth Adams came yesterday from Lubbock to accept a teaching position in Pampa schools.

HUGE HAILSTONES KILL RATS AND BULL-SNAKE AT HOOVER. OVER 4 INCHES OF RAIN FALLS IN AREA

Three-Fourths of an Inch of Rain Is Welcomed Here

Hailstones so large that they killed rats and a 5-foot 3-inch bull-snake at Hoover, east of here, fell Sunday afternoon, accompanied by rainfall estimated at between 4 and 6 inches.

The rain drove rodents from their dens, then the hail pelted them, stunning the animals so that they were drowned and beaten.

The hail extended over a strip which included Pampa in one edge, but the rainfall here was only 75 of an inch. Large hailstones fell here, breaking a few windows, damaging some roofs, denting automobiles, and ruining some auto tops. A few persons who ventured into their yards to pick up "hail" as big as hen's eggs' had bruises to-day to show for their pains.

C. V. Fleming Colfax corporation at Hoover, told THE NEWS that as he drove into his yard from Miami he was forced to remain in the garage until the hail stopped falling. He could not talk to Mrs. Fleming loud enough to be heard above the roar of the hail on the tin roof.

The hail storm came in from the northwest and continued a straight course across the county.

At Hoover, the water in the creek rose above the small bridge, although the span was raised 3 feet after it washed out a few years ago. It stood the test yesterday.

Torrential rains also fell in the south part of the county, amounting to as much as 4 inches around Albrecht, accompanied by much hail in some instances.

Apple orchards belonging to L. L. Palmer, Paul Bruce, J. H. Hill, and T. T. Griffin were reported to have been badly damaged. More than 1,000 bushels of ripening apples were dashed to the ground at the 12 acre Palmer orchard north of Albrecht.

Cotton, too, was damaged, leaving only the stalks standing in some fields.

County to Get $50 for Taking Entry to Fair

Despite the drought and hail, Gray county will have some very good items in her exhibit at the Tri-State fair at Amarillo. The entry will be set up next Friday by Edith Thomas, county agent, assisted by George Briggs of the B. C. D.

There will be no competition between counties this year, but instead the counties will be given $50 each by the fair to bring entries.

Mr. Thomas has located some very good maize, kaffir, wheat, and fruit, and now is searching for vegetables. It is possible that the hail in the south part of the county will make finding of good cotton difficult for exhibit purposes. Farmers having individual entries in the county exhibit will be judged as usual for prizes.

Gray county club boys, who usually lead the Panhandle in number of crop entries, have been hard hit by dry weather this year and their items will be few.

B. C. D. Directors To Meet Tuesday

Directors of the Board of City Development will meet at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the city hall. Many important matters will be discussed, and the full membership has been notified to be present.

The busy time of the year for the B. C. D. is at hand and a winter program is to be outlined. Matters needing immediate attention will be passed at the board meeting.

James Day Sells First Bale Last Week at Alanreed

ALANREED, Sept. 10. — James Day brought in the first bale of cotton for the season early last week, receiving a premium made up by donations from local merchants.

The cotton graded strict middling with a slight staple, and the bale weighed 444 pounds. It was ginned at the All-Electric gin here, of which Mack Reese is manager. A second bale was ginned for A. E. Turner Saturday.

Wilmer Allison Defeats Stoefen

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 10. —Wilmer Allison, the Davis cup veteran who was beaten out of a place on this year's team by Lester Stoefen, today gained some measure of revenge by eliminating the giant Californian, 8-6, 4-8, 11-9, 6-8, 6-2 in a quarter final match of the men's national singles championships at the West Side Tennis club.

Each had won two sets when darkness stopped proceedings late Sunday after 58 sensational games. Allison won the first set at 8-6; Stoefen the second at 6-4; Allison the third at 11-9, and Stoefen the fourth at 8-6.

The overnight delay snuffed out the fire that roared through Stoefen in the fourth set yesterday when he came from behind to even the count. Allison was steady and precise as usual today and had the match under control before Little Rollo, a slow starter, could get himself untracked.

Stoefen had difficulty getting length to his shots and Allison consistently kept the ball in play until Lester erred. The Texan ranked number 2 nationally while Stoefen is rated just behind him, broke through in the fourth game and then held his own the rest of the way until Lester ran out of games.

The victory put Allison in the semi-finals where tomorrow he will meet today's winner of a quarter-final match between Sidney H. Wood and young Frankie Parker.

EYES FILLED WITH HOPE TURN AGAIN TO WEST

Whether that glittering vision of a million and quarter Americans migrating from impoverished farm lands in the east and middle west and settling on reclaimed land in the Grand Coulee region ever comes true or not, it at least revives the old-age American habit of looking to the west.

The picture is a little confusing, at first glance. It involves more of an effort to assert human control over natural forces than has ever been made in this country before.

Pulling enough people to populate a fair-sized state off of worn-out lands, where they have struggled to establish themselves, turning a desert a thousand miles away into fertile farm land and then transplanting these people to it en masse—here is a spectacular and ambitious program indeed.

It is so ambitious, indeed that it may prove impractical. But it does furnish an emotional lift of a kind that is badly needed in these days.

The optimism and drive of the American spirit owed much to the existence of the open west. The west was always the American's ace in the hole; the chance to drop everything, head toward the setting sun and start things over in a new land was the one card he could always use when everything else went bad.

But the west filled up. Its rich natural resources were all tapped, its homesteads were all pre-empted, and its horizon lost its allure. One reason why the recent depression was more unsettling than any of its predecessors was the fact that this western escape was no longer open.

Now, out of a clear sky, comes a revival of the western promise—new land, new homes, and a new start. It is like a rebirth of pioneer days; and it has an emotional importance that does not depend on the workability of the particular scheme involved.

It reminds us that our task of utilizing this great continent we inhabit has only begun. The job of building America is not ended, after all; it has simply passed through its first phase.

There is still much work to be done, there is still an abundance of opportunity, there is still a challenge to an energetic and restless race of people—in the west, in the east, everywhere.

We may do a good deal of fumbling around before we find the best way to tackle this job. But the job is there, and its possibilities are immense.

The president's dream of what may be done in the Grand Coulee region simply calls our attention to it.

MUNITIONS TRADE ONLY SYMPTOM OF HATE

It is easy enough to be horrified by the revelations now being made before the Senate Munitions committee. It is not nearly so easy to figure out just what ought to be done about it.

What is being learned is only an amplification of previous disclosures. The big munitions firms are true internationalists. They find ways of co-operating to insure bigger profits.

They divide world markets on a truly grand scale. They get the co-operation of naval authorities, and they have a broadminded way of exchanging patent rights. There is nothing especially new in all this; and yet the force of the disclosures, echoing from the vast sounding board which a senate committee can erect, has shocked the American people very profoundly.

For there is something about the munitions business which puts it in a class by itself. The men who market guns, submarines, and bombs are not dealing in ordinary merchandise; they are dealing in sudden death, and they have a proprietary interest in mass slaughter which makes their trade of direct concern to ordinary folk everywhere.

And yet, as things stand today, it is hard to see precisely how the business can be reformed.

For this great traffic in the machines of destruction is a symptom of trouble, rather than a cause. It is a symptom of a great division among the people of the world—of rivalries and suspicions and hatreds and injustices, innumerable and almost insoluble.

Granting that the munitions makers have not been above stirring up trouble, on occasion, to boom the market, the fact remains that, for the most part, this vast trade in weapons goes on because nations everywhere are expecting war.

The world, in fact, is pretty sick, and its intervals of sanity between spells of feverish delirium are not long. The munitions makers are a complicating factor, to be sure; yet the roots of the disease go beyond them.

To curb their activities might relieve the patient's sufferings slightly, but it would not cure him.

We live, in other words, by the sword—all of us, in every land. As long as we do, we can hardly be too horrified at the way the people who make and sell us the swords get rich.

CENTENNIAL

Details of the bids submitted by three cities also were announced. In gross values, the commission said other bids were: Dallas $7,971,000; Houston, $6,507,000, and San Antonio, $4,835,000.
Commissioners have referred to the celebration as a $15,000,000 project, but hopes for a centennial costing from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 were expressed. No definite plan for financing the exposition was announced, however. It was anticipated both the state and federal governments would be asked for substantial contributions.
While the commission declined to announce various items constituting the bids, it was learned Dallas offered $3,550,000 in cash and grounds of the State Fair, with properties, aggregating 245 acres, contingent upon the commission's procuring additional funds from other sources. Houston's bid was reported to be $3,000,000 in cash to be raised from a bond issue, $2,500,000 in voted but unsold bonds and 200 acres along Buffalo Bayou, including Sam Houston convention hall, location of the 1928 democratic national convention. It also was contingent upon the raising of additional funds. San Antonio's bid was reported to be $500,000 in cash, Brackenridge Park and other properties.
Houston Support Pledged
"Every member of the commission stood in approval of the choice of Dallas, Thomas said.
Mayor Oscar Holcombe of Houston, expressing disappointment, drew a hearty round of applause when he pledged unqualified support of his city. "To help make the Texas Centennial the success it ought to be."
Cullen Thomas of Dallas, president, said the commission "ultimately voted unanimously to declare Dallas as the site of the central exhibition." Early balloting on the selection was not revealed.
In a formal statement, the commission "reaffirmed its belief in and insistence upon the creation and conduct of an exposition Texanic in proportions, continental in ideals and international in scope," and proclaimed its purpose to provide for Texas a centennial celebration erected upon a basic capital of at least $15,000,000, to be augmented by the eventual contributions of industries in the United States, state governments of the American union, and foreign countries to perhaps an actual total of $30,000,000 to $50,000,000.

ROAD

An immediate private contract would be at least as cheap to the county as a PWA loan, without the delay. This is despite the fact that the county would be given $36,000 under the PWA grant.
What delay can mean was shown yesterday, when 5,000 feet of curb and gutter was washed out in the unfinished road at LeFors. This is a contract job, where the street had been excavated for a placing of caliche. The sand gave way under the pounding of rain water.
The court also today was hearing citizens voice their opinions of the county budget. The hearing was informal. A number of women's club representatives asked that more money be set aside for the care of dependent children.

Admitting an "uncomfortable" night in which waves broke over the Black Arrow, unmanageable in a northeast storm, Roosevelt scoffed at the danger element.
"There was nothing to be worried about," he said. "I don't know what there was to be upset over. The Black Arrow is sound as a church. We just had a little blow and we have to."
"Of course, it was blowing plenty. Water was coming over the boat so we batten everything down and made the best of it. It was mighty disagreeable and uncomfortable, but at no time were we in any danger."

FARM INCOME IS UP BILLION SAYS RICHBERG

STATEMENT ISSUED ON EVE OF NUMEROUS ELECTIONS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—A report to President Roosevelt by Donald Richberg that "you may take profound satisfaction in your leadership and in the achievements of your administration" appeared likely today to be a factor in the forthcoming political contests.

It was issued last night on the eve of the Maine election and primaries in ten states during the week. Democrats sought it out for material to bolster their cause while Republicans studied it with an effort to pick flaws.

In the concluding section of a series of reports on the progress of the new deal, Richberg, secretary of the president's executive council, told his chief more than 3,000,000 have been given employment and total farm income has increased "far more than one billion dollars."

"When the facts of our economic advance are squarely faced and the activities of the federal government are fairly appraised," Richberg said, "there is presented a record of many difficulties and some disappointments, but, on the whole, of achievement."

Farm prices of seven basic commodities were said to have been raised to 95 per cent of pre-war parity—an administration goal.

More than $5,000,000,000 the president was told has been disbursed in loans and grants "to relieve the financial distress of individuals and institutions, of which over $2,000,000,000 already has been repaid."

"The banking system of the nation has been restored to health."

"More than 1,000 farm and city homes have been saved from foreclosure by aid already extended or under way."

"The money expended in these great constructive efforts . . . has been a small price to pay for a great gain."

Over 188 Golfers Entered in U. S. Amateur Tourney

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 10 (AP)—The big scramble for the United States amateur golf championship, with 180-odd players seeking the crown now worn by George Terry Dunlap Jr., of New York, started under excellent conditions this morning.

Fifty-six first round matches, over the 18-hole route, were scheduled but the number was reduced at the outset by the withdrawal of Robert A. (Bob) Gardner of Chicago, a former national champion, who was called home by the serious illness of his mother.

Gardner defaulted to Leo J. Martin of Whitman, Mass., his first round opponent. The Chicagoan, who held the amateur title in 1909 and 1915, had planned to make his first start in the tournament since 1920.

He hits the second ex-champion to be scratched from the entry list, Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston of St. Paul having withdrawn previously.

FISHERMAN DROWNS IN NET BUDAPEST

BUDAPEST (AP)—Tangled in his own net, Sander Fabian, Danube fisherman, drowned before help could reach him. He fell into the net while attempting to land a fish almost as large as himself.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A GARDEN?

ALL STAND ADJOURNED By The Pampa Irish Farmer.

Well, boys, we better clear out of this office. They are so busy in here that they don't have room for us to sit around and spin our yarns, so we better get going.

These football boys and pep squad girls like to get a meager place now and of course we will be glad to turn our corner over to them, and let them yell for Pampa.

We sure have had a good time though all the summer talking about our gardens, and swapping seeds and plants with each other. The course the midsummer was a little unfavorable for us to make our gardens do their best and look as pretty as we hoped for, but you will all agree with me that we did not lose any time or expense on what we did. Just take a good look at old Dick over there. Did you ever expect to see him looking so fat and peppy?

Just take a squint at the whole bunch of gardeners now. All got enough sunburn and grins to last through the hardest winter. Boy, don't it make a feller feel like a million dollars?

No, I don't mean we are taking out for the winter now. We are just good started. But I mean to tell you that if you want to talk to me or any other gardener, from now on, you will have to look over the garden fence to find some one to talk to.

Just one of you try taking out now and hunt up those seeds and bulbs that you hear another norther, and see what a good target you make for a shot of the flu and rheumatism.

You better stay on that spade and hoe a little every day, if you want to keep those joints limber, and that appetite up and that blood pressure down, and have that ground ready for another planting this fall and next spring.

First thing we know, it will be snowing here, and we want that ground all spaded and loose, ready to drink in that snow. And too we want to see how deep we can spade under those pesky grasshopper's eggs, so they can't hatch out next spring.

Well, I got to get going now, and hunt out those seeds and bulbs that I want to plant right now and keep up with this moon in September. Yes I want to plant pansy seed and larkspur for early spring blooms. Those two are like our winter wheat. They like to be planted in the fall and make heavy, deep roots thru the winter and then shoot up fine big sturdy plants and lots of bloom in the spring.

The oriental poppy is ready now to be moved if you want to change it to another place for next year. Or you can just scatter the seed now and let them make a new poppy bed. Cover very lightly, or none at all, as the seed are so fine.

I am going to spade the ground for the Madonna lilies as deep as I can, and plant them this week, but I will plant the bulb not more than two inches below the top of soil. I will dust the bulbs with sulphur and lay them a little to one side, so they will not hold water and rot in case of a wet winter. They will make a cluster of leaves at once, which will stay green all winter, and they do not want to be covered with any mulch or anything. It is all right to mulch the tulip beds and other fall planted bulbs, but none on the white lily we call Madonna.

Yes, we can easily find something to do any day if we care to get out in the garden. Later we plant the tulips, narcissus, iris, and

LACQUERED FLOWERS ADORN WINTER HATS

P. A. R. S. (P) Lacquered satin, flowers shimmering like mother of pearl are Susan Talbot's favorite accents for winter hats. She uses a single bloom—gleaming white or shell pink—square in the front or back of small black panama velvet hats. When the hats turn down in the back, and up in back she poses the flower in the back; when they are fashioned in the form of a toque which rises to a sharp peak, she fastens the bloom in front.

Howe Hits 'Fear Propaganda' on Food Price Rise

Merchants who frighten consumers by implying a general shortage of canned vegetables and fruits are not playing fair with the public, Dr. Frederic C. Howe, consumers' counsel for the Agricultural Adjustment administration, stated today.

"There is no justification for attempting to persuade the public to hoard these foods under fear of a reduction in their supply," Dr. Howe said. "Supplies of canned fruits and vegetables promise to be close to six per cent greater this coming year than last, according to the crop reports of the department of agriculture. In some cases supplies are expected to be even greater than the five-year average."

"Instances of this scare propaganda have come to my attention," Dr. Howe said. "In some cases these merchants offer no special price inducement for quantity purchases, but seem to be trading simply on the fear of consumers that they may not have enough to eat next winter. Consumers who buy in open or cash lots are certainly justified in expecting a discount."

When reports on drought conditions were made public officially two weeks ago, a number of individual firms and organizations of merchants were quick to offer their cooperation in protecting consumers against possible food speculation and profiteering. Such offers have been made by the National Food & Grocery Distributors' code authority, the National League of Commission Merchants, and the Giant Food Arcade of Paterson, N. J.

"We welcome the support of these merchants, and are counting on them and on all other dealers to join with us in keeping the public posted accurately on the status of food supplies, and that consumers will not be frightened into accumulating non-exceptional quantities of food for later use," Dr. Howe said.

T. D. Hobart spent Friday at the J. A. ranch near Clarendon.

NEW MINING DECREE IN MEXICO STRIKES AT FOREIGN MONOPOLIES

BY C. G. LEE, Associated Press Foreign Staff, MEXICO, D. F., Sept. 10. (AP)—What is officially described as the first step toward nationalization of the Mexican mining industry, which supplies nearly two-thirds of the world's total silver production annually, 5 per cent of the gold and an important percentage of copper and other minerals, has been taken by the secretary of national economy in a decree revising and adding to the mining law of 1930.

The decree is also designed to "prevent foreign companies from continuing to monopolize mineral deposits," and thus is aimed at concerns in which about 500 million dollars of American capital and a large amount of British money is invested.

"Exportation of concentrated minerals will also be eliminated under the revised law both by means of increasing export duties and by encouraging the development of the metallurgical industry and the establishment of refining and smelting plants owned by Mexicans.

Under the reformed law protection and aid will be given to small cooperatives composed of Mexicans and to individual placer miners and prospectors who discover mineral deposits which later are exploited on a large scale. An organization to be called the commission of mineral development will be formed by the government to supply economic aid and technical advice.

Small refining plants will be required, up to 20 per cent of their total capacity, to treat metals brought to them by the public, thereby giving the small scale miner an opportunity to market his production. When the concession for a refining plant is rescinded, the government is empowered to take possession and continue operating it though the commission of mineral development, after "identifying the concessionaire, thus laying the foundation for a nationally owned refining industry."

All placer deposits will be added to the national reserves "with the object of putting them at the disposal of the greatest number of persons" and placer miners will be protected from having these deposits taken over by large concessionaires. At the same time, efforts will be made to prevent smuggling of gold and other metals into the United States.

Like other recent laws and decrees affecting the country's important industries, the reform of the mining law is based on nationalistic and socialistic considerations. It was inspired by the 6-year plan of the national revolutionary government party, which set forth that it is the duty of the state to regulate the development and exploitation of natural resources so that Mexico will receive a greater share of its national riches.

In many cases, the mining reform says, Mexicans are engaged in the mining industry "only as poorly paid laborers" and the nation obtains only an insignificant tax as its share of production profits.

The industry lately has been enjoying a period of prosperity, principally as a result of nationalization of silver in the United States and other steps to aid the white metal, and production and exports have been increasing steadily while prices continued to rise.

As has been true since the Spaniards first began to exploit Mexico's enormous mineral wealth on a large scale four centuries ago, most of the profits have been going to foreigners, and the present government is obviously determined to end this situation.

Dog's Strange Malady Was End Of Safety Pin

LUFKIN Sept. 10. (AP)—A police dog owned by Justice Smith, local resident, some two weeks ago was stricken with an apparent strange malady. Examined by a physician the dog was found to have "sore mouth." The animal's tongue had turned black and it was impossible for it to swallow food or drink water. To the surprise of physician and owner, the dog, after several days near death, began to grow better and apparently recovered. While playing with the animal subsequently Smith felt a scratch on his arm. He investigated and found the pointed end of a safety pin protruding from the animal's neck, the clasp being on the inside. The physician said an operation would be necessary to remove the pin.

Mule Pack Train To Carry Supplies To Grand Canyon

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 10. (AP)—Pack train No. 7, one of the few army transportation units still relying on the army mule for its motor power, will be sent to the south rim of the Grand Canyon of Arizona to carry supplies to a CCC company on the floor of the canyon during the winter months, according to announcement from Eighth Corps area headquarters. The pack train, which is stationed at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., is scheduled to reach the Grand Canyon about September 15. It consists of 14 men, including a packmaster, a cook, a caregiver to keep the packs in shape, and a blacksmith and horseshoer. There are 80 pack mules in the train, 14 riding mules and a bell mare. The only means of reaching the CCC company in its winter camp is over a dangerous and difficult trail miles long and frequently made slippery from sleet and snow. Last winter some mules were lost by falling off the train into the canyon thousands of feet below.

Maury Maverick's Grandfather Was 1836 Congressman

AUSTIN, Sept. 10. (AP)—Maury Maverick, democratic nominee from the new 21st congressional district, believes in the adage that history repeats itself. His grandfather, Samuel A. Maverick, at the age of 31 years, was the first congressman from the district of Bexar in the congress of the Republic of Texas. Almost a century later, the younger Maverick was nominated by the democrats as the first congressman from the reorganized twenty-first district, which comprises all of Bexar county only. As the old fourteenth, including several adjacent counties, it was the only Texas district to send a republican to congress. The elder Maverick's district comprised a much larger area, although it contained fewer people. It extended generally from San Antonio northwest into parts of Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming, the grandson recounted. Large families account for the broad span of years between Samuel A. and Maury Maverick, the nominee explained. His father, the youngest of nine children, and he is the youngest of 11, he said.

High Steppers, These Marines

These six planes seem to be welded together into an aerial ladder, but that's just an optical illusion. The skill of their U. S. marine pilots is such that they maintain this difficult formation merely as part of the day's work, as the squadron of "hell divers" demonstrated in recent maneuvers.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS and SOUNDS

BY HUBBARD KEAVY
HOLLYWOOD — He's virtually the forgotten man of the film industry; the technician. He works quietly and usually without notice. But nothing ever seems to stump him, not even the feat of turning humans into statues. The way he does this is unbelievably simple, but first hear why making statuary is necessary. The picture is "Night Life of the Gods," suggested by Thorne Smith's novel. "Suggested" is correct, since many of the Smiths wouldn't do in this or any other day's movies. There's a scientist who discovers a ray which turns people into statues and there's a girl, with the blood of witches in her veins, who can turn the statues back into persons again. Discovering this posterous gift, she decides to turn the statues of the Metropolitan Museum into humans. Lowell Sherman, who is directing (for $5,000 a week, which is more, it is said, than he earned as an actor) to have several changes accomplished with a minimum of effort and expense.

Red Make-Up And Filters
The technicians knew the answer. They had red make-up put on the hands and faces of the actors and had them dressed in similarly colored costumes. By putting red filters in front of the camera lens, the players became completely white. When a player moves into the scene, completely in red, other filters keep him looking natural. As the filters change, becoming redder and redder, the player becomes whiter and whiter. When he stops moving, he becomes a statue. For remaining scenes, a plaster copy of the particular actor is substituted. Tongue in his cheek, Sherman overcame another difficulty, namely that of clothing gods and goddesses. For instance, for instance, Apollo will be seen in swimming trunks and Venus, of all things, will have arms. Otherwise the reincarnated lady would have difficulty keeping her dress on.

Alan Hale Kept Busy
When Frank Capra directs a picture, Alan Hale usually is in it. He was the baggage stealer in "It Happened One Night," and since then Hale has been one of the busiest actors in town. He has just finished a role in "Broadway Bill," is currently playing in "Great Expectations" and has contracts for successive appearances in "The Good Fairy," "Little Minister" and "Babbitt." Alan used to be a heavy, but all of these roles are sympathetic.

SOME SURPRISE: IT'S LONDON SODA
LONDON (AP)—Soda fountains in London are almost as scarce as cricket fields in the states, but the few that are scattered here and about can more than hold their own when it comes to thinking up complex concoctions. One place on the Strand approached the ultimate when it produced a "Holiday Surprise" as an extra-special feature during the August bank holidays. It comprised, the menu revealed, the following ingredients: Strawberry, vanilla and chocolate ice creams; mixed fruit and nuts; chocolate and strawberry syrups; whipped cream and cherries; chartrouze. A couple of those would round out almost anybody's holiday.

Everyone in the Detroit baseball club's organization is confident that the Tigers will win the American league pennant, but they're not so certain that they are prepared to take orders for world series tickets. So many orders have been pouring in that President Frank Navin has publicly asked the fans to stop.

What Value Publicity?
On the same day that scarcely 5,000 baseball customers paid to see the eminent Dizzy Dean return to action in St. Louis and horse-collar the world champion Giants, a crowd of 17,000 cheap patrons turned out to see the National League to celebrate "Fobian's Night" in honor of the Buffalo International's star pitcher.

Dean pitched a shutout and Kowalk hung up his fifteenth victory of the season but the interesting point, of course, is that three times as many people paid to see a class "AA" game as were interested in a much-ballyhooed performance involving leading contenders for the National league pennant. It is one of the items that has revived the talk about shifting one of the St. Louis major league franchises to another city, such as Buffalo, and meanwhile led to speculation by baseball writers that the Cardinals will be obliged to sell some of their star players, possibly including Dean, to offset financial losses.

The System Falls.
Despite the most elaborate "chain store" organization in baseball and a progressive policy that has kept the Cardinals at or close to the top of the National league for nearly 10 years, the Cardinals have been in the "red" for the past several seasons. This situation is not peculiar to the St. Louis organization, so far as major league clubs are concerned, but the point is that even with a winner or a pennant-contender the Cardinals are lucky if they come close to breaking even.

I do not think the St. Louis "overhead" now compares with that of the Cubs or Giants, for instance. Pepper Martin was getting nearly $5,000 a year when he became a world series hero. The Dean brothers, if they collect $25,000 combined this year, are doing very well for themselves but Carl Hubbell of the Giants gets almost that much by being a pitcher.

Fritsch's salary probably is no more than half of Bill Terry's stipend for leading the Giants.

Thus it isn't hard to figure why there's frequent evidence of discontent or unrest in the St. Louis organization, the team as well as in the front office.

Giants Interested Too!
Reports already have been circulated around the baseball lobbies that the Cardinals and possibly the Cubs will experience a shake-up over the coming winter. There is no doubt both teams have been a big disappointment to their owners and followers because of failure to give the Giants a closer race.

If the Cards want to peddle any of their stars, including either of the Deans, Bill Hallahan or Pepper Martin, the Giants may be eager bidders, the Giants among them. Terry would be especially delighted to have Hallahan and Martin. Dizzy Dean is worth $100,000 to any club in either league but he is not likely to be sold, if that, to any first-class outfit. Brooklyn would be the happiest hunting ground for the ditty one.

The Cubs squandered upwards of $300,000 on player talent without getting commensurate results. They spent $125,000 alone for Chuck Klein, whose lame back is proving almost as expensive to the Bruins as Lefty Grove's sore arm did to the Boston Red Sox.

The world series is still several weeks away, with a few debates on the polo fields, the high seas and the golf courses to be settled in the meantime, but the big argument is already under way in the grandstands, at the lunch counters or around the 19th hole.

The luck of the Giants can't last forever. You can hear them say: "Those Tiger sluggers will break it up and scatter the pieces."

"Hubbell gave the best hitters in the American league a taste of his stuff in the all-star game and he will have two strikes on most of the top hitters before they know what it's all about."

"Schoolboy Rowe, when he was just a fresh kid two years ago, had the Giants eating out of his hand during the spring training trip and

Guard Mills to Avert Sabotage

All the outer aspects of war accompany the textile strike in which 600,000 workers were called out. Here is a typical scene outside the Lonsdale cotton mill at Seneca, S. C., as guardsmen search a worker entering the plant. Everyone arriving at the mill gate is searched for hidden guns or bombs, in an effort to prevent sabotage.

his speed will be too much for Bill Terry & Company."

"New York outsmarted the smartest team in the American league last year, the Senators, and justifiably so got to worry about this season? After Hubbell, there's Schumacher and Fitzsimmons to feed the Tigers a pitching diet such as they haven't swallowed all year."

"The Tigers have speed and extraordinary fighting spirit, in addition to a 300 batting punch right down the line, so how are they going to be stopped? The Cardinals and Cubs have been treating Hubbell roughly all season. Why can't the Tigers do the same thing?"

Rowe Vs. Hubbell
Whether you figure the Tigers have the edge because of their terrific hitting or that the Giants are bound to win because of their speedier and more experienced pitching staff, the 1934 battle for baseball's highest honors should furnish some of the briskest action since Pepper Martin conducted his one-man raid against the Athletics in 1931.

The entire country will tune in on the opening day at Navin Field, Detroit, if Schoolboy Rowe is nominated to tangle with Carl Hubbell in a first game pitching "natural." The Tigers as a whole have caught the popular fancy of baseball fans much the way the Giants did last year in their unexpected gallop to the top. Neither was picked even to land in the first division, and there's nothing so stimulating in sport as the triumph of a long shot.

Now that they are both up there, of course, the clubs piloted by the peppery Mickey Cochrane and third baseman Bill Terry are being given the old fair-weather cheer. It's an old American custom to climb aboard for a ride with the winner.

The Giants, if they win again, will be ranked with the great teams of John McGraw's day, the Tigers, if triumphant, will be rated beyond the machine that Hughey Jennings last piloted to the American league peak in 1909 but which failed in three attempts to capture the world series.

Judging Starts In Amarillo's Farm Contest
AMARILLO, Sept. 10 (AP)—Judging started Sept. 10 in the annual balanced farm contest sponsored by the Amarillo News-Globe. The judges, E. M. Regenbrecht, A. J. Smith, J. Lynn Thomas, Texas extension service; Frank R. Phillips, West Texas State Teachers college, and Garford Wilkinson, News-Globe editor, will make a 1,300 mile trip over the Panhandle-Plains country in search for the master-balanced farmer of the section. The prize winner will be the farmer in the contest who can show the greatest amount of gain in a live-stock program. Winners will receive awards during the Tri-State fair meet here Sept. 15-23.

The contest, which has attracted wide attention in the Panhandle and plains section, began in November, 1933, and was officially closed Aug. 31, 1934. Progress during that period will be taken into consideration by the judges.

FRENCH CRIME BLAMED ON SLOT MACHINE GANG
MARSEILLE (AP)—The American "slot machine" is blamed for a wave of crime in this Mediterranean port. Manufacture and use of "slot machines" is against the law in France but their importation is not. Hundreds are brought from the United States and on each one the government collects $65 import duties and taxes.

Marseille gangsters have turned to the "slot machine" racket on a wholesale scale. Each gang tries to force as many saloons as possible to install its machines. Proprietors who refuse to buy from the "enemy" are held up. Some of them have been murdered.

Because they themselves are violating the law, victims do not dare appeal for police aid.

G. D. Rhodes of LeFors was a Saturday visitor in Pampa.

LOBSTERMEN HAVE CODE
"Thou shalt not touch" is one way of explaining the code adhered to by lobster fishermen. Each man has his traps marked by a float, or buoy, which is designated by a mark or a color. That is, one may paint his buoys red, another black, and so on. Woe to the thief who is caught robbing another man's traps. All the fishermen in the locality join in the chastisement, and a cracked head is the least he may expect.

After that the government steps in, for there are state and federal laws to protect the men who make their livelihood from lobster fishing.

In gathering their hauls, each fisherman ruins his traps once a day. The catch is then placed into the "car," or escape-proof reservoir which is submerged at least a half mile off shore. There are so fitted that the catch may be kept alive almost indefinitely. One of the real joys of lobster eating is going down to the shore and riding out to the "car" with the fisherman and watching him net the particular ones you want. Then you know they are lively and fresh.

TOUCHING SCENES ENACTED AS RELATIVES IDENTIFY BODIES

27 YET TO BE IDENTIFIED AT JERSEY CITY

SOME RELATIVES ARE UNABLE TO FIND KINSMEN

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 10 (AP)—The Morro Castle's cruise ended here today on a funeral trip. Twenty-seven of the dead—27 of them yet to be identified—were brought from the militia camp at Sea Girt and carried on their cots and in their white sheets to Waters' undertaking establishment. The train came over the tracks of the New York and Long Branch railroad at a funeral pace—20 miles an hour. It left Camp Moore at Sea Girt shortly before 10 p. m. last night, arrived here at midnight. The slow pace was ordered by M. L. Moloney, superintendent of the road. Moloney was a passenger on the burned Morro Castle, and was rescued. The hour for identification today was set at 9 a. m. The funeral trip represented the shifting of the scene from poignant tragedy. From early yesterday until shortly before the bodies were removed from the erstwhile camp restaurant of the militia, people came in groups of two, three, and four to pick out their dead. There were four rows of cots in the restaurant, 18 cots to a row, a body on each cot, covered with a white sheet. Typical was this scene: A woman and an escort would enter. A Red Cross nurse would guide them down the aisle, at the feet of the dead. At each cot they would stop while a negro soldier lifted the sheet of each to expose the head. "No. 1. A shape of the head. Another. "No. 2. Quietly. Another. "Oh, oh, that's him, that's him!" Quickly the negro soldier would cover the face. The Red Cross nurse would put her arms around the aggrieved, comfort her and escort her to a little side office for a drink of water and a brief rest on a chair. The cots were side by side, touching. Sometimes a mother picked out her son, a wife her husband. Men were less affected. A man identifying his younger brother man out of the place weeping. "And he was only 23 years old." Sometimes grief was made even more bitter because of uncertainty, because beneath the white sheets there was not the face that was sought. Dr. Braulia Sanz of Cuba found his daughter. But what of his wife and three other children? Dead and still in the ocean? or alive some where? Little hope of that. Some came to see the dead already identified. R. A. Holden of Cincinnati, saved with his two sons, learned from his cousin yesterday that his wife was in the mangled heap. He rushed to see her. The cousin made the identification the day before, but he wouldn't awaken Holden from a sleep of exhaustion.

NOT SO SCOTCH LONDON (AP)—There's nothing Scotch about Albert Pickard, movie proprietor, even though he hails from Glasgow. When he was brought into a London court for driving his car past traffic lights, he produced a sketch of the road. "What is this?" asked the magistrate. "Have you made the plan on a $5 note?" "Oh, no," replied Pickard. "This is a £100 note. It is the only piece of paper I had." Pickard had only £99 when he left court.

NO WATER TO BATTLE FIRE, SAYS SAILOR

CLAIMS WEEKLY FIRE DRILLS WERE NOT CARRIED OUT

(Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press.) SPRING LAKE, N. J., Sept. 10 (AP)—William O'Sullivan, deck storekeeper aboard the ill-fated Morro Castle, said today he intends to tell federal steamship inspectors that no water came out of the fire hoses of the vessel when the crew attempted to fight the fire that swept the ship. He also intends to tell them, he said, that crew members were ordered into life boats and lowered away ahead of passengers; that weekly fire drills were not properly carried out; that the fire had spread over the midship section before any alarm was sounded. He said the Morro Castle had another small fire two weeks ago, the passengers unknowing. It was put out, he said, by the three night watchmen and the fourth mate. Only some tar paper in the hold burned. "We had fire drill every Sunday afternoon," he said, "but only two stations responded to it. They were the stations on the fire deck and on the 'D' deck aft, where passengers could see and be impressed. "Under federal regulations every member of the crew is supposed to take his station at fire drill. The majority of them lay in their bunks." Relating his experience in the fire of Saturday which burned some and caused others to leap to their deaths in a turbulent sea, O'Sullivan said: "I was at my station within two minutes after the alarm was given. "We tried to fight the fire from 'A' deck. As far as we could see down to the dining room salon the entire midship section was a mass of roaring flames. "We spread three fire hoses. No water came out of them. One of them broke at the coupling. "We were helpless. I grabbed the nozzle of the hose that broke and smashed in a cabin window to get a passenger out. I couldn't find anybody and I got lost in the smoke. The second officer pulled me out. "The crew dropped the waterless hoses when the order came to release the grips on the life boats on the deck above us. "Our boat, No. 5, was lowered to 'A' deck. The order came 'get in that boat.' We got in myself and ten other members of the crew. Through the whole thing I saw but one passenger and he was not in the life boat. "We were lowered away, just the eleven of us. He said the life boats were supposed to carry 70. There was no panic among the crew, he said, and no reason that he could see why the crew members should have been lowered away without passengers. He had no explanation for the failure of water pressure. The pressure was present, he said, during the Sunday drills.

'Dare' Bride

Rushing into a "dare" marriage with a truck driver and now preparing to rush out of it, Mrs. Kaletta Mulvihill Green, 17, thrill-seeking daughter of a Pittsburgh oil official, is shown here in fetching pose as she reached Chicago by plane, California bound, to seek annulment. She then may continue to Manila to rejoin her mother.

13 LOSE LIVES IN ACCIDENTS AT TEXARKANA

11 NEGROES DROWN EN ROUTE TO BAPTIST SERVICE

TEXARKANA, Sept. 10 (AP)—Thirteen persons lost their lives, and several were injured seriously in Texarkana and vicinity over the week-end. Eleven negroes drowned in Old river, 118 miles northeast of Texarkana, yesterday when the boat in which they were going to a baptismal service sank. Jim Bass, 49, McKinney, Texas, was injured fatally early today when his truck overturned after striking a culvert 11 miles north of Texarkana. Rich Hinsley, Paris, Texas, was injured seriously. He was brought to a Texarkana hospital. Hospital attendants doubted whether he would recover. Bass and Hinsley were members of a hay-hauling crew, numbering about 18 men, who were en route to Ogden, Ark., from Paris. The driver of the truck said he lost control of it and it hit the culvert after lights of an approaching car blinded him. A trailer on the truck skidded across and caught on the edge of the culvert, overturning the machine. Joan Medlock, two-and-a-half-year-old daughter of Mrs. Barbara Medlock of Little Rock, was injured fatally and other persons were hurt last night in a traffic accident 5 miles northeast of Texarkana. They hurt in the accident were Mrs. Medlock; R. M. Jernigan, Little Rock cleaning shop proprietor, and Price City, 30, of Texarkana.

Little Theater Meets Wednesday

All members and former members of the Little Theater were being informed today that an important meeting of that organization will be held Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in the city hall club rooms. Ed Damon, acting president, announced that members would be asked to take action on filling a vacancy in the office of president. The matter of selecting plays for the season will be discussed. The Little Theater has not yet organized for the new season, and this will be given attention. Theoretically, there is no Little Theater now, since no dues have been paid and since no current organization has been effected. All persons interested in dramatic productions are invited to attend the meeting. The Little Theater sponsored the production of the Hollywood premiere Friday and Saturday nights at the La Nora theater in its first activity of the year. All members and former members still interested in Little Theater work were requested by Mr. Damon to attend, since the future existence of the organization must naturally depend upon the amount of interest shown in the attendance.

Stewart Likely To Speak Here On Housing Act

R. A. Stewart, Texas director of federal housing plans, will likely make a trip to the Panhandle soon to talk at regional gatherings at Pampa and Shamrock. Meanwhile, it seemed probable today that a group of business men would form a company or corporation to lend repair and remodeling loans under the federally sponsored plan. Names of the Pampa advisory housing board members have been sent to Mr. Stewart, who is on a tour of other parts of the state. Travis Lively is chairman of the board. Highway ordered built Austin, Sept. 10 (AP)—Location survey of highway 24 between Denton and Deatur was ordered today by the Texas highway commission. Construction would start when funds are available. The county agreed to obtain a 100 foot right of way.

EL RENO AND PAMPANS SCHEDULED TO PLAY THIS AFTERNOON AND TONIGHT

LETTY THOMAS SAYS TEAM IS ONE OF BEST

GAME IS RAINED OUT HERE SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Yesterday's terrific rain caused postponement of the baseball game between Pampa's Road Runners and the El Reno team but did not dampen the spirit of the two teams for competition. They are scheduled to play a double header engagement today.

The field had dried off enough this morning to allow the teams to tangle at 3 o'clock this afternoon. They will meet again tonight at 8:15 o'clock if the weather is cool, fans are urged to wear their top coats and be in the grandstand because it will be worth their while.

Letty Thomas, former big league star and manager of the Ice Creams, says his team is ready to snap the Road Runner winning streak all of a sudden. Thomas admits he has one of the best ball clubs in the southwest and that they like cool weather better than sunshine and high temperature.

The popular left-hander was undecided this morning on his starting hurler. Wood and Chody will pitch tonight but which will start tonight will depend on this afternoon's contest. Wood is the curve ball artist who pitched for Pittsburgh last season. Chody is a former western league star with a speed and a nice breaking curve ball, which gives him the inside track on the pitching assignment for tonight.

Manager George Bulla of the Road Runners, also a lefthander, planned to send Stewart to the mound this afternoon. He hoped that the weather would warm up during the day so that he could use a veteran tonight. "This is pitching weather for youngsters and not old timers," the little left-hander said this morning. Lee Dancy may get the call tonight instead of Stewart, a pitcher who likes his pitching weather warm.

Starting lineups for tonight follow:

PLAY-OFF IN TEXAS LEAGUE WILL START ON WEDNESDAY

Dallas, Beaumont, San Antonio and Galveston to Play for Championship.

BY BILL PARKER, Associated Press Sports Writer.

The Texas league second annual championship pennant play-off will start Wednesday.

Dallas at Galveston and Beaumont at San Antonio is the schedule for the first two games for each of the first division winners.

Games will be played Wednesday and Thursday in Galveston and San Antonio, then the scene will be switched for the next three days to Dallas and Beaumont, providing 5 days are requested in the first round of the play-off.

Any games postponed due to the weather will be played off on the originally scheduled ground.

The four eligible teams are limited to 16 players each, all subject to the 30-day eligibility rule which requires participants to have been under contract and with their teams 30 days before the close of the regular league race.

The league closed its regular playing schedule yesterday, and as usual, several of the teams went in for baseball comedy.

Fort Worth split a doubleheader with Oklahoma City, 6 to 4, for the Cats in the opener and 4 to 3 for the Indians in the second contest.

Houston walloped Galveston, 11 to 1, a contest that almost cost the Buccaneers their place. Dallas won from Tulsa, 11 to 6, and San Antonio beat Beaumont, 6 to 5.

The four teams who played in last year's series were Galveston, San Antonio, Houston, and Dallas. Three are back in the play-off again, this year with Beaumont replacing Houston.

Georgia Team IS STRONGER THAN IN 1933

Ready To Go

LOOMS AS CONTENDER FOR CONFERENCE HONORS

TALLULAH FALLS, Ga., Sept. 10. (AP) — Blessed with experience, weight, speed and skill, prime essentials of a good football team, University of Georgia's gridiron forces loom as an outside contender for southeastern conference honors.

Harry J. Mehre, Bulldog coach who is starting his seventh season at the Athens school, expresses satisfaction with the manner in which the husky band of Athletics is rounding into form after a week of strenuous training here.

"The team will be stronger than in 1933," Mehre says, "largely because of experience. We'll have a heavier team and capable reserve material. But don't forget that at least six other conference teams, including three of our opponents, also will be stronger."

Mehre's hopes for a successful season hinge on the chances of avoiding injury. Outstanding players like George (Buck) Chapman, the pounding fullback, Cy Grant, a fast and deceptive running halfback, and Jack Griffith, veteran quarterback.

The backfield shapes up exceedingly well, Mehre says, "with Griffith, Grant, Chapman, and John Bond holding the inside track for regular duty."

At present the only critical situation is at center. Tom Perkins, the veteran pivot man, is troubled with a trick knee and may not be able to play regularly.

Mehre believes the team likely will have the best pair of guards that ever wore the red and black, with adequate reserves available.

"The tackle play will be better than last season," the Bulldog pilot says. "The veterans West and Opper, both earnest players, bring experience to the positions."

At the ends there is much to be done. An experimentation and intensive training will continue for at least a month. Bonner, Cordell and some of the other youngsters will get a thorough trial in competition for the regular job at which Charley Turbyville and Elick Wagner have seniority."

YANKEES CUT TIGERS' LEAD IN TWO WINS

22ND VICTORY IS WON BY SCHOOLBOY ROWE

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON JR. Associated Press Sports Writer

Detroit won yesterday, after a stiff ten-inning struggle with the Red Sox, but the Yankees came through with two hard-won victories, the first in the series.

The Red Sox gave Schoolboy Rowe plenty of trouble as he went after his 22nd victory, but he finally got it by a 5-4 count when Hank Greenberg's single brought Charley Gehringer in from second in the tenth. The Yanks had to go 14 innings to take the opener.

St. Louis, 6 to 5, with George Selkirk's homer providing the winning run. Lou Gehrig's 45th circuit swing, coming with one aboard in the sixth and last inning, won the second clash 2 to 1.

The Pirates and Giants played a game for the book as they struggled through eight innings with only two runners reaching, third and then Gus Suhr won it for Pittsburgh with a pinch-hitting homer.

Their St. Louis rivals found things somewhat easier as they pounded the Pills for a dozen hits behind Paul Dean's four-hit, ten-strikeout pitching to take the opener, 6 to 1, then went on with 13 more blows for a 7 to 3 triumph in eight innings.

The third place Chicago Cubs got an even break with the Braves, winning the opener, 4 to 1, behind the six-hit flinging of Jim Weaver and Bud Fleming but dropping the second, 11 to 1, as Wally Berger drove in five runs with four hits, including his 32nd homer.

Ray Benge and Van Mungo allowed only five hits as Brooklyn subdued Cincinnati 6 to 0 and 3 to 0.

The Indians made third place in the American league quite safe for Cleveland when they beat the Athletics twice, 8-3 and 6-5, with the aid of Hal Trosky's 32nd homer in the opener and Johnny Burnett's homer in the tenth which won the afterpiece.

Chicago and Washington divided their bargain bill, the White Sox winning the first, 11-3, and the Senators the second, 2-1, in 10 innings.

Stuckey Company President Dies In Wichita Home

W. A. Stuckey, 71, president of the Stuckey Construction Company with offices in Pampa and Wichita Falls, died at his Wichita Falls home at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The body will be taken to Coffeyville, Kan., the family home, for burial Thursday afternoon.

Until nine months ago, Mr. Stuckey was active in the paving business which bears his name. He became bedridden at that time, and has been slowly sinking. Mr. Stuckey spent much of his time in Pampa, where he had a host of friends who mourn his passage.

The Pampa office of the Stuckey Construction Company was opened in 1927 when the first paving was laid in Pampa. Since that time the company has had all of the paving in the City of Pampa, and has paved several highways in Gray and Carson counties. Mr. Stuckey spent most of his life in the paving and construction business.

He moved with his family from Coffeyville to Wichita Falls nearly 20 years ago. Soon after, he organized the company which bears his name. He has supervised the paving of many miles of highways in Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas.

Mr. Stuckey is survived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Warren Pool of Pampa and Mrs. Glenn Sparks of Wichita Falls, and two sons, Earl and Clyde, both of Wichita Falls.

Radical Group Blamed in Fire

BALBOA, C. Z., Sept. 10 (AP)—Several officers of the Grace liner Santa Rita, which made port today after a fire in her hold, declared after docking that "the fire here and also that on the Morro Castle were the work of an international radical organization."

They said that on July 23 the Grace line had sent a circular message to all vessels asking the formation of "The Grace Line Maritime Association," for the purpose of closer cooperation of the ship's personnel owners and asking the personnel to vote on the measure.

They said the officers voted "no" overwhelmingly while the crew members voted "yes."

"We are more than willing to cooperate with the owners and all ways have but we are unwilling to cooperate with the radical elements of the crew. If the association were formed, the crew would have an equal voice in the affairs of the ship, according to the suggestion from the main office and which we are unwilling to concede.

BLOCKING TO BE STUDIED IN GRID PRACTICE

The finer points in football will be absorbed by Harvester prospects this week. Coach Odus Mitchell announced this morning. Strict attention will be paid individual blocking practice sessions and will be followed by scrimmage sessions.

The last two weeks of practice have been spent in learning plays and assignments. The finer points were left until this week. The blocking will be studied in grid practice.

Coaches expect to be able to name a probable starting lineup this week. Thus far in practice, no set line-up has been fielded but it is now time to get an eleven together and work it up to speed.

Coaches hope that some of their injured prospects will be back this week. Red Fleming's broken rib is knitting nicely and he should be able to take easy workouts during the week. Tom Rose will be in uniform and Jack Powell should also be ready for duty.

Powell sprained an ankle in Friday's scrimmage. Chubby Stewart will not be ready for practice this week.

Blocking will be the feature of the practice sessions the next five days, coaches said this morning. That point of the game is to be featured this year. Interference will also come in for much attention during the practice sessions.

Coach Harry Kelley and his Gortilas will continue to work at top speed, with the coach planning to split his squad and start work on a first string for the season. He has 50 boys in uniform and others who have not been able to get uniforms are waiting to come out.

Pla-Mor Boxing Card To Be Held On September 18

Promoter B. W. Kelly will present his postponed boxing card at the Pla-Mor auditorium Tuesday night, September 18. He will use the same boxers scheduled to appear last Wednesday.

The 10-round main event will bring back that likeable youngster, Billie McDonald, 162, of Amarillo. McDonald will be asked to give away weight in meeting Tiger Gibson, 168, of Oklahoma City but that doesn't appear to worry the Amarillo speedster.

McDonald won a sensational fight two weeks ago and fans have been calling for him to appear again. He has been matched with a much tougher opponent and should have all the opposition he can handle.

The 8-round semi-final will be between Tom Martin of Amarillo and Kid Mitchell of Hot Springs, Ark. The peppery little Martin will also be outweighed but he cheerfully signed to meet the hard-hitting Mitchell who is also something of an acrobat.

Verdel Bowie, boxer lightweight, has been matched with Benny Whitmore of Amarillo in a 6-round special event. Both are little flashes with lots of power in either fist.

John Henderson of Waco and Lester Talley of all over will go together in the 4-round preliminary at 8:30 o'clock.

GEORGIA TECH COACH RELIES ON 'KEY MEN'

HE CANNOT AFFORD TO LOSE ANY OF FIVE PLAYERS

By DILLON GRAHAM
Associated Press Sports Writer

ATLANTA, Sept. 10. (AP)—As the writers in the press box would phrase it, Georgia Tech needs "a key man" who can get loose and go to work.

William Anderson Alexander, beginning his fifteenth year as Tech's coach, agrees with this summary of the gridiron outlook, but points a great forefinger at his 10-game schedule and adds another qualifying angle—"we're going to need all the luck and perfect condition of our key men to have a chance."

"We had a pretty fair crop of halfbacks last year but we couldn't seem to shake one loose. And when we did give them a clear track they'd get stagetruck or something," the pilot of the Engineers says. "The backfield prospects are better this year and we'll be O. K. if we can find one who can take care of himself out in a partially open field."

The real problem facing Alexander is that the possible injuries to any of his five "key" men.

The boys who Alexander says he cannot satisfactorily replace are Jack Phillips at fullback, Clarence (Shorty) Roberts at quarter, Clyde Williams at tackle and the Wilcox brothers at guards.

"Roberts developed into a fine little signal caller last season. The boys seemed to have great confidence in him. Phillips, in addition to being a good runner, line puncher, defensive ace, and kicker, was also the best short passer in the Southeastern conference. The 1933 team was built around him and he again will be the center of the offensive tactics.

"There hardly is a better tackle or a finer pair of guards than Williams and the Wilcox boys. At this time I know of no players who can be substituted for any of these five men without weakening the team to some extent. And I'm not optimistic enough to think these five boys can go through a long, tough season without injuries of some kind."

The Georgia Tech schedule:

- Sept. 29—Clemson at Atlanta.
- Oct. 6—Vanderbilt at Atlanta.
- Oct. 13—Duke at Durham, N. C.
- Oct. 20—Michigan at Ann Arbor.
- Oct. 27—Tulane at New Orleans.
- Nov. 3—North Carolina at Atlanta.
- Nov. 10—Auburn at Atlanta.
- Nov. 17—Alabama at Atlanta.
- Nov. 24—Florida at Gainesville.
- Dec. 1—Georgia at Athens.

TIGER ISLAND

By GOUVERNEUR MORRIS

SYNOPSIS: Not knowing that Captain Wong Bo and his radio operator, Flint, plan to scuttle the "Boldero" for the insurance, the big game hunter, Harvey Bowers, agrees to accompany a cargo of wild animals to Singapore for their owner, Angus McLeod, who has been put ashore at the Dutch port of Sinbao with acute appendicitis. Bowers engages as assistant an animal trainer from a stranded circus, Ivy Green. What is more important, he finds her very attractive. Flint is telling Bowers and Ivy about the "Boldero's" limited accommodations.

Chapter II. GETTING SETTLED

He turned his smiling face to Miss Green. "The cabins are pretty bad," he said. "You can have mine if you prefer. I'll sleep on the deck. I sleep on a mattress outside the wireless room. It's lots cooler on deck than below."

"Personally," said Bowers, "I am going to use my cabin or cabins as dressing rooms and parcel rooms. I understand that you are the owner. I'm therefore with regret that I must report that your ship seems to have been built for the convenience of cockroaches and worse."

"We do the best we can," said Flint. "I've never seen them so close all the ports, batten down all the hatches, and do a great extermination act with sulphur or formaldehyde. The only trouble is we don't exterminate. They seem to like it."

"The bath room," said Bowers, "ought to have been a de luxe cabin. It is only a shower, but it has two portholes and an open transom over the door. The bolt, with which the door was formerly fastened, has shorn off, and the key to the lock is doubtless in the collection of some seamy hunter."

"The bath is airy in more ways than this. The curtain, which formerly may have contained a percentage of rubber, now resembles that material which, in the best dressmaking establishments, goes by the name of 'peekaboo.'"

"The best way," said Flint, "to bathe on this ship is to come on deck and have some of the crew douse you with buckets of seawater."

"I think," said Miss Green, "that I'll have to give the shower a fair trial first."

"I had an idea," said Bowers, "that the sleeping accommodations on the Boldero might not be as represented in the company's recent world-wide advertising campaign, so I bought two mattresses at a tramping store. They may be a little hard and a little thin, but they are clean. I bought also some pillows, pillow-shams and sheets. I thought Miss Green would probably wish to keep on deck."

"I ought to sleep somewhere near the animals," said she.

"You pick the place," said Bowers, "and we'll do the rest."

"There is no place like this place," said she. "What do you call it?"

"The forecastle-head," said Bowers. "If there is any breeze, you'll get it, and if there is, sometimes, a strong jungle smell, it will be carried aft."

"What will I do if it rains?" she asked.

"You will go below," said Bowers, "in a dawning condition; but it is not apt to rain. It shouldn't rain for several weeks, and the sea ought to be like glass."

The sun had long since gone down behind the mountains which were back of Sinbao, and the short tropic twilight was coming to an end.

"We dine early," said Flint. "Does anyone mind?"

"Do we dress?" asked Miss Green.

"Not the first night out," said Flint. "We borrow our manners and customs from the best English liners. In about two minutes, the 'Get Ready' gong will be sounded, and 20 minutes later the 'Come eat' gong."

"And where," asked Bowers, "is the dining salon?"

"Nobody knows," said Flint. "It was abandoned years and years ago. Captain Wong Bo has asked you to sit at his table. Except in bad weather he is always served on deck, usually just aft of the bridge-structure; but you can always locate his table by ear."

"Is it one of those tables that raps?" asked the girl.

"No," said Flint. "The table itself is unusually quiet. It has been very nicely brought up. The sound that I refer to is made by a cork coming out of a champagne bottle. At luncheon and dinner, instead of soup, we serve a glass of champagne. At breakfast, of course, this is optional. Captain Wong Bo has some cases of excellent champagne. We have, as you know, a refrigerating plant, and so our champagne comes to the table in a bucket of ice."

"I have an awful feeling," said Bowers, "that this voyage is not going to last long enough."

"By the way," said Flint, "do either of you play bridge?"

"They both did."

"That will be good news for the skipper," said Flint. "I play a little while. I get a chance, but it is his particular madness. When he can't get a game, he is always dealing experimental hands and working out end-plays."

It was extraordinarily still. The ship's progress was hardly fast enough to create a ripple. The buried thudding and clattering of the engine seemed rather to accent than to disturb the stillness. You might have thought, so still they were, that the birds and the animals were all dead.

Then suddenly the air began to throb with a soft musical and continuous vibration. It seemed to draw nearer and nearer, and to swell and swell, and then to recede and to wane.

The "Get Ready" gong had sounded, and Ivy Green announced that although he was not going to dress for dinner, she was going to change. Bowers showed her where the cabins were, her luggage and the shower.

While she was changing, he located the cabin steward, tipped him handsomely and told him to vary the mattresses to the forecastle-head and make up two beds.

Later that night he succeeded in overruling Miss Green's objections to the arrangement which he had ordered.

"Except for Flint and me," he said, "there is nobody on this ship but Chinamen. A Chinese sailor can be one of the most unpleasant things in the world. Your bed is right up in the butts. Mine is well aft and crosswise to the ship."

"I don't care, and I don't annoy young women who dislike me. Aren't you perhaps flattering yourself a little too much? The facts are these: you're in my employ, therefore you're under my protection and I am responsible for you. I am going to protect you whether you like it or not."

"You're a pretty girl on a ship full of men, mostly young and mostly bad characters. No one is going to annoy you or molest you in any way, and that goes for me too."

People in the tropics make a habit of going to bed late are people who can get along with a minimum of sleep. Daylight itself is the universal alarm clock.

That first night out, Ivy turned in at 9 o'clock. She had changed in her superheated cabin to a suit of men's pajamas and a wrapper. It was a black night, and it was not without difficulty that she found the way to her reservation between the captain and the extreme bows of the ship.

If Bowers had not been an animal murderer she would have taken him from the start. She could not but believe that he was honorable, and that his promise to protect her was valid. Presently she heard the sound of his slippers feet. One of the tigers growled warningly rather than menacingly as he passed, and one of the long-legged birds said something to the others about his passing.

Flint's emotions, tomorrow, lead to a defiance.

Coleman Senator Proposes Plans For Centennial

AUSTIN, Sept. 10. (AP)—Unlike many other democratic nominees for legislative membership, E. M. Davis of Brownwood, party primary victor to succeed Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman, didn't wait until he was officially a member to tell the senate what he would and wouldn't do.

Davis drew a round of applause when, in a courtesy talk, he promised: "I didn't declare open season on the senate in my campaign, and I won't come here with the idea of reforming it."

He is a former member of the house of representatives, and defeated Representative Penrose McCullough of San Angelo by a narrow margin.

Then he outlined his program. The first point was simplification of governmental machinery, "so we can reduce costs without cutting salaries."

His chief aim as a senator, however, is to have a part during these hectic times in helping work out a plan for the Texas Centennial in 1936.

"I propose, instead of a celebration in only one city, to have a really statewide commemoration. Let Dallas have an exposition depicting commerce; San Antonio, history; Houston, transportation and oil; Austin, cultural advancements, and San Angelo, the pioneer spirit. Let each portray its other qualities in miniature.

"By that we can make ministers travel from one end of the state to the other, and we will collect some gasoline taxes, too."

Davis delivered practically the same speech in the house, but there he received a friendly jibe from Speaker Coke Stevenson.

"It looks like 'Epp' takes his new duties seriously," the speaker observed. "He has started off long-winded."

Forgotten Debts Paid at Memphis

MEMPHIS, Sept. 10. (AP)—Payment of old, forgotten debts is getting to be a common thing at Memphis. It's happened twice recently.

W. L. Wheat recently received $7 in a letter which stated the sender had cheated Mr. Wheat out of that amount.

Within a few days Coleman White, local ginmer, made an unexpected collection of $4.

An inclosed note read: "Mr. White, here is $5.00 I beat you out of. I am sending it to you. I sold you some cotton."

The New York chairman of that cancelled all debts probably would appreciate such collectors.

STERLING IS DIRECTING HEAD OF A MILLION-DOLLAR OIL COMPANY

BY CHARLES E. SIMONS.
AUSTIN, Sept. 10. (AP)—When R. S. Sterling retired from the governor's office less than two years ago he was said to have been a poor man, his once substantial holdings wiped out.

Today he is the directing head of a million dollar oil corporation and appears well on the way to a position of power and influence in the oil world.

Friends of the former governor who witnessed his fight while governor, are gratified that his plucky efforts have been successful.

Sterling was defeated when he retired as chief executive. He had served during two of the most trying years of the depression and had put aside his personal business worries to steady the ship of state. He lost a, to him, heart-breaking election by only a few votes and was convinced that had a court contest which he instituted been tried he would have been declared the winner.

Sterling started immediately to recoup his fortunes. He had developed the Humble Oil company from a baby to one of the giants of the oil industry and hoped he could build another company.

For months nothing was heard of the former governor except an isolated news item stating another suit had been filed against him on some obligation he had incurred.

Then he began to appear in the Gulf Coast field.

The secretary of state recently chartered the Sterling Oil & Refining company. Its assets total more than $1,000,000.

Pat Dougherty, an assistant attorney general but Sterling's secretary when the oil man was governor, attributes the recovery to Sterling's intimate knowledge of the Gulf Coast field and to his sagacity.

"He always had an idea there was a deep pay sand in the Gulf Coast field," Dougherty said. "One night we had worked late and was talking. The governor told us about his ideas of finding oil by drilling through the shallow sand to a deeper strata."

"Some day when I get out of the governor's office I'm going to prove I'm right," he said. It looks like he was right."

Reports that Sterling may attempt to duplicate in the political world his comeback in the oil business are not given credence by his friends.

"He is through with politics for good," one said.

Devil's Sinkhole Rivals Carlsbad Caverns, Claim

SAN ANGELO, Sept. 10. (AP)—The Devil's sinkhole in Edwards county near here, which as a scenic wonder has been pronounced by Dr. Frank E. Nicholson, explorer of Carlsbad Caverns and many other caves, a rival to the New Mexico cavern, may supply Italy with rich fertilizer for that country's impoverished farming lands.

Negotiations are under way now involving the sale of several shiploads of guano to Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy. Dr. Nicholson said here today. The bat manure would be taken from the sinkhole, in which the main bat chamber has not yet been discovered, and from other West Texas caves containing rich deposits. Five carloads of guano have been taken from the sinkhole during the last month.

Further exploration of the cavern near here is in progress and the operators are planning to install an electric elevator and make other improvements that will make the cave more accessible to tourists.

Sam Rayburn Is Out for Speaker And Is Confident

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10. (AP)—Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas told reporters here he expected to be the next speaker of the house.

Returning to Washington to open his campaign, he said he would not be running for the high post unless he thought he would win.

Rayburn, who has the support of some administration officials, is opposed by five other democratic candidates including Representative Joseph W. Byrnes of Tennessee, the party leader, Bankhead of Alabama, Rankin of Mississippi, Green of Florida, and Sabath of Illinois.

There are reports that McCormack of Massachusetts and Mead of New York are considering running.

The post was made vacant by the death of Speaker Henry T. Rainey of Illinois.

Questioned as to his support for the speakership, Rayburn said he had "quite a number of votes pledged" and added:

"I am satisfied with the situation at this time. I have not enough votes pledged to elect me now and don't expect to until after the November elections when the real campaign gets started."

NOTED WOMAN PHYSICIAN RETIRES

BUENOS AIRES. (AP)—Dr. Rosa Pavlovsky, one of Argentina's first woman physicians, has retired after a career of more than 40 years in this country. She came here from France in 1886, and did notable work during the cholera epidemic in Mendoza in 1887.

Tax Payments May Be Delayed

Fear that the legislature will pass measures affording little tax relief but discouraging normal payments is shared by local county officials.

Letters from Paul Williams, secretary of the Texas Tax Collectors' association, has written that one proposed measure would remit interest and penalty very largely over a period extending through 1936. This, it is contended, would tend to discourage payment of 1934 taxes.

Mr. Williams concluded: "What Texas needs is a graduated discount to encourage early payment in the fall and graduated penalties to remunerate counties and districts for the loss of their taxes by delinquent payments."
