YOUTH WANTS A CHANCE GEORGE J. FISHER

(Doctor Fisher, deputy chief Scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America, in a convention of national character training agencies released this statement to the press.)

Recently a youth hearing was held in New York City sponsored by the several national character training agencies. Five panels of approximately eight youths each—young men and women approximately 17 to 21 years of age, were organized under the guidance of an adult chairman. These panels discussed great areas of experience such as "Finding a Job," "Meeting Friends," "Living up to One's Ideals," "Marriage," and "Occupying Leisure Time."

The outstanding impression one received in listening to the discussions was the directness, the frankness and yet the pathos of their expressions. They revealed that they were facing a world of defeatism and yet revealed no bitterness. They asked that adults go half way with them. They asked for no easy world. They were not cynical. In fact, they were profoundly serious. They wanted to help build a new world, but frankly confessed that they did not know how. They wanted a world of fine character in the world where fine character seemed impossible. They came out of school with a high idealism only to find that the world was cynical toward high idealism. They were asking themselves, "do our ethical principles break down in practice?" They believed in the Golden Rule but complained that it was practically impossible to live according to the Golden Rule. They were not bitter, they were sad about it.

They seemed to be very desirous of being given an opportunity for service in their communities and in politics, but they felt they were given no opportunity to serve civically. Youth seemed exiled from the major activities. They were kept in "Adolescent Nurseries," as the chairman put it.

Youth does not know the way out. They are perplexed. Some one said, "They should show us." Here is a great challenge. Something great might come out of such a leadership by adults.

Newton Baker remarked that youth is living in a world which needs just the thing they have to give. Older people should enter into a treaty with youth and help them find the way.

Incidentally it was revealed that the youth who were related to social groups like the character training agencies were receiving much help with their problems of friends and work and leisure, but he reminded us that literally millions do not belong to such groups.

Here is the call to such agencies as Scouting. As the age span in Scouting lengthens, as the senior program is expanding, as the numbers reached are rowing, Scouting may become an increasing factor in giving youth its chance, of helping them find opportunity for self-expression and civic service."

TEXAS HISTORY Brushing Up on Facts You Ought to Recall

It was well that Marquis de Rubi in 1767 made his recommendation that the Apache Indians be trusted no longer, and that the missions built for them be given up. Attempts to make good friends and good Christians out of the Apaches had ended in the massacre at Mission San Luis on the San Sabá river. Still, the priests had persisted in their work, and would have been faithful to their task throughout many years to come, had not Marquis de Rubi urged them to use their efforts elsewhere. The few ornaments and valuable records that were saved from the plunder of the Indians during the massacre were moved to Coahuila in 1722, and San Luis existed no more.

The Spanish had progressed rapidly to their new province, but in 1722, the frontier of actual occupation had receded as far south as Bexar and La Bahia. If it had not been for those loyal men and women who followed Antonio Gil y Barbo back to their old homes in East Texas, it is entirely probable that ownership would have been weakened and practically broken. A settlement on the Trinity river, called Buesard, was the home of the new settlers until they moved, five or six years later, to the old mission of Guadalupe, founded by Ramon in 1716. There they remained, perfect evidence of Spanish authority in the Province of Texas.

Before the order for secularization of all missions was passed in 1794, one last mission was founded. It was Mission Nuestra Señora del Refugio. The story of its founding is as fascinating and eventful as the story of the first mission in Texas. Refuge will not be forgotten in 1896 when Centennial celebrations will honor those fathers who spent their lives making their visions come true.

CAPITAL CHATTER BY CHARLES E. SIMONS

AUSTIN, Dec. 27. (AP)—It is going to require more than the slight frosts the capital has experienced thus far this winter to cause the plums of political patronage to drop from Governor-elect James V. Allred's gubernatorial tree.

Before leaving the capital for the holidays Allred announced he would issue no advice concerning appointments until after the first of the year and "probably not until after the legislature convenes January 8."

Some interpreters of the why and wherefore of politics saw in Allred's announcement of no appointments until after the legislature gets underway a possible "ace up the sleeve" in the race for the office of speaker of the house. Allred is supporting the candidacy of youthful Rep. R. W. Calvert of Hillsboro against the veteran Speaker Coke Stevenson of Junction and certain observers are of the opinion that a few patronage plums dropped at strategic places might aid Calvert's cause.

Allred's disinclination to announce his appointments may be attributed partly to a failure to reach a definite decision on several applicants. By delaying he recognizes he is subjecting himself to further punishment from job seekers but resorted to the vacation plan to rid himself of those who like to find themselves on the state's payroll.

Attorney General-elect William McCreary relieved himself of a heavy burden by announcing his appointments early.

The underground telegraph has carried the names of a few appointments regarded as almost certain to be made by Allred. Gerald Mann of Dallas, appointed by Allred as an assistant attorney general, is confidently expected to be appointed secretary of state. Carl Nesbitt of Longview is reported to have the inside track for the adjutant generalship.

An appointment that is causing Allred much worry concerns the highway commission. Allred has been petitioned from all points to retain W. R. Ely of Abilene as a member. Speculation, however, is that Ely is out of the running. A name frequently heard in connection with this appointment is that of Bert King, a fellow townsman of Allred in Wichita Falls.

Allred receives a letter each week from an inmate of one of the state institutions for the mentally unbalanced suggesting enactment of certain legislation. His latest proposition is passage of a law to require superintendents of state hospitals to keep the trees free from bees so they won't harm the inmates as they sit in the shade.

Many letters with humorous twists are received at Allred's office daily. One school teacher who has been teaching steadily 10 years asked a job with the state just to see some of the world and get away from her apparently tiring task of teaching.

Holt Will Wait Before He Takes Senatorial Oath

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27. (AP)—Friends of Rush D. Holt, 39-year-old senator-elect from West Virginia, expect him to wait until his 30th birthday before presenting himself to take the oath as senator.

The youthful democrat is five and a half months younger than the minimum age of 30 set by the constitution for senate membership. Holt himself has declined to disclose his plans, except to say he would be present in the senate when it convenes January 3.

"I shall be there," he said, "but I will not announce until then whether I shall present my credentials then or wait until later. I never reveal plans in advance."

Friends here base their forecast that he will wait until June 19, his 30th birthday, on the fact that to do otherwise would be to go against the counsel of several democratic veterans in the senate, including Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the floor leader.

Senator McNary of Oregon, republican leader, has said he would challenge Holt's right to take his seat if he offered himself when the senate opened.

A Washington Daybook By RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Vive President Jack Garner, who holds a position of concealed prominence in administration counsels, has quietly let it be known that he strongly opposes any Democratic political effort to bar Progressive Republican Senator Cutting of New Mexico in any contest by Congressman Dennis Chavez. Cutting's narrowly defeated Democratic opponent.

This news coincides with the leak—at last—of an explanation of Roosevelt's opposition to Cutting in the campaign. Although they were once good friends and although Cutting bolted the G. O. P. for Roosevelt in 1932 and although the president even offered Cutting a cabinet job, White House opposition to the senator's re-election was unmistakable.

It dates back to June, 1933, when Cutting was leading the fight for restoration of some of the veteran's relief taken away under the economy act.

Came to town Peter Reno, sent by disabled veterans at the tuberculosis hospital at Fort Bayard, N. M., who didn't know the senate rules and thought he could be exhibited on the senate floor.

Reno had served in five major A. E. F. engagements and had been decorated for gallantry. He had been gassed at the Marne and by 1933 was a wreck of a man as the result of tuberculosis and operations.

The Veterans' Bureau, since the economy act, had cut his compensation from $100 to $20 a month. He had a wife and three children.

Cutting had a photograph made of Reno's back, which he displayed during debate. He had Republican Senator Hatfield and Democratic Senator Coneland—the two physicians in the Senate—examine Reno carefully. Both told their colleagues they were satisfied Reno's condition was traceable to war service.

Many other cases were cited, but Reno had as much as anyone to do with the subsequent defeat of a large portion of the administration economy program. And Roosevelt was very angry at Cutting because he had used Reno as a "horrible example."

He didn't forgive Cutting. New Mexico Democrats advertised this fall that Senate Leader Joe Robinson, who had just seen Roosevelt, was coming into the campaign with "a message from the White House."

One of Robinson's charges was that Cutting had accused Roosevelt of inhumanity toward a veteran. Incidentally, Reno's compensation was restored.

It looks very much as if the Hitler government would not get any of America's surplus cotton.

The administration has pretty well made up its mind to turn thumbs down on Foreign Trade Adviser George N. Peek's plan to unload somewhere between 100,000 and 800,000 bales on Germany in a barter deal.

This represents another licking for Peek at the hands of Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

It also means a crack at Herr Hitler himself. Germany wants cotton to keep her textile mills going and she wants it for munitions manufacture.

The case of the yawning housewife of Morrison, Ill., was the more unusual in light of the fact that husbands generally do the yawning.

President Roosevelt is reported as healthy as though he were the defeated candidate.

Huey Long, after all, may not carry out his plan for political appointment of teachers in Louisiana, having a sense of forgiveness of those who taught him.

UNARRESTED CAGERS AND SAYRE WILL CLASH AGAIN TONIGHT

FIRST TILT IS WINS 20 TO 5

SECOND GAME DUE TO BE MUCH CLOSER THIS EVENING

Sayre's first little basketball team was unable to make field goals last night and the Pampa Harvesters romped through a 20 to 5 victory over the visitors.

Both teams missed opportunities to score as passes were dropped or crisp shots went wild. Definitely the game was one of mid-season form.

The Harvesters missed more first shots than the visitors but made up for the misses by taking second and third tries.

Wooten, Robinson, and Pearson provided most of the speed for Sayre. Pearson managed to get Sayre's only field goal, a nice attempt from inside the circle.

Woodward and Orville Heiskell, former Harvesters basketball and football stars but now students of Baylor university, Waco, refereed.

Alabama Eleven Eats Lunch With Film Celebrities

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 27. (AP)—Alabama's football team tackled preparation for the New Year's Rose Bowl game with Stanford here today after a brief respite from their gridiron chores.

Spurred on by the anticipated early arrival of their opponents from Palo Alto, the team was expected to put in his heaviest workout of the week in the seclusion of Occidental college field.

Coach Frank Thomas planned an extended dummy scrimmage, both on offense and defense and hoped to include in the activities an additional siege of work with the line.

Stanford was slated to take a light workout this afternoon at Brookside Park.

LEN KOENECKE SETS A MARK FOR FIELDERS

COMMITTED ONLY TWO ERRORS ON 318 CHANCES

NEW YORK, Dec. 27. (AP)—Len Koenecke, the $75,000 "bust" of a few years back, celebrated his return to the major leagues last season by setting up a new National league record for outfielders.

The former Indianapolis ball-hawk, for whom the New York Giants reputedly paid $75,000 in 1931 only to cast him adrift after a short trial, committed only two errors on a total of 318 chances in the Brooklyn Dodgers' outfield during the 1934 campaign.

Koenecke's closest outfield rivals were George Davis, who compiled a .988 average with the Phillies, and Paul Waner of Pittsburgh whose mark was .985.

Manager Bill Terry of the Giants nosed out Gus Suhr of the Pirates for first-base fielding honors, .994 in 1933 and another Giant, Hushy Critz, beat out Frankie Frisch, manager of the world champion Cardinals, .978 to .977 among the second basemen.

TRINITY, Dec. 27. (AP)—H. L. Patton of Houston, specialist in extinguishing oil well fires, laid plans for a new effort today to snuff out flames billowing above a big flowing well in the new Kirtland field of southern Houston county.

He expressed hope the fire would be snuffed out with the use of a manifold capping device. The well caught fire several days ago, three days after it blew in as a big producer and the fourth flowing well in the area.

YALE VICTORY NOTED YEAR'S NO. 1 UPSET

Princeton Downfall Given First Place; Cardinals' Drive Wins Second Place

BY ALAN GOULD. Associated Press Sports Editor. NEW YORK, Dec. 27. (AP)—Judging from the reaction of the country's sporting "experts," 1934 is the year of the big earthquake in athletic results.

There may be sharp differences of opinion as to just what constitutes an "upset" in sports, but there appears no doubt, on that basis, of the Associated Press fourth annual poll, that the experts experienced more and bigger shocks this year than ever before.

Biggest of all "upsets," apparently, was the football triumph of Yale's "iron men" over previously unbeaten and heavily favored Princeton, but the experts had a difficult time choosing between this stunning achievement and the collapse of the New York Giants in baseball or the consequent rush of the St. Louis Cardinals to the year's major league heights.

Arriving at a decision on "points," based upon the listing of first, second, and third choice of surprise packages, Yale's victory tops the list with 126 points, one more than the combined National league and world series conquests of the Cardinals, already proclaimed the year's outstanding team.

BAER TO RISK TITLE AGAINST KING LEVINSKY

SIX-OUNCE GLOVES TO BE USED IN BOUT AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 27. (AP)—Max Baer tomorrow night will do something no other boxing champion ever dared to do by risking his heavyweight crown in a four round match against King Levinsky, Chicago's wild swinging fist peddler, at the Chicago stadium.

Never before has any ring champion risked his title under such conditions. Other titleholders took precaution to have such matches labeled as exhibitions to safeguard their crown.

Levinsky is a good fighter, but he wouldn't beat me, let alone register 27 wins in 30 rounds," said Max. "How can he do it in four?" He was referring to their two previous battles, the first in 10 rounds at Reno, Nevada, both in 1932, when Max was climbing the heavyweight ladder.

RULES TO BE DISCUSSED AT GRID MEETING

ONE COACHING GROUP FAVORS PROFESSIONAL RULES

NEW YORK, Dec. 27. (AP)—The evil twins of football—recruiting and subsidizing—and the eternal question of what should be done about the rules were dominant today as the National Collegiate A. A. and the American Football Coaches Association began their yearly deliberations on athletics in general and the gridiron sport in particular.

A round table discussion on the recruiting and subsidizing of star athletes, particularly football players, was listed as one of the early features of the N. C. A. A. convention.

Prof. Z. G. Cleveland of Indiana, chairman of a special committee named a year ago to study these subjects, was chosen to preside at the round table discussion.

The same topics may come before the annual meeting of the sportsmanship brotherhood, with the principal speech by Howard J. Savage, author of the Carnegie Foundation's famous Bulletin No. 23 five years ago.

Sandies to Work Out Today In Greenville; Corpus to Practice in Houston.

DALLAS, Dec. 27. (AP)—Football enthusiasm mounted rapidly toward fever pitch in Dallas today as both of the teams which won their way to the Texas schoolboy championship contest set out for the scene of the encounter Saturday.

Amario and Corpus Christi, home towns of the finalists, each took 1,000 seats at the start, and Corpus Christi called for 500 more yesterday.

The Buccaneers from the coast city held their last hard workout yesterday and planned to start toward Dallas by bus today stopping in Houston this afternoon for a workout. Defense was stressed in the last scrimmage.

Plans to run a second special train, based on early ticket sales for the one already decided on, were under consideration in Corpus Christi to bring the fans here. John Robb, coach of the team, and Taft were invited to make the trip as guests of the Corpus Christi Junior and Senior chambers of commerce.

'HOT OIL' IS DEAD AFTER A YEAR'S BATTLE

VILLAIN MEETS DEATH AND GOVERNMENT TRIUMPHS

BY WILLIAM VOIGHT Jr., Associated Press Staff Writer.

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 27 (AP)—"Hot" oil, the villain stalked through every month of the year just passing and met his death in its declining days while righteousness prevailed in true melodramatic style and left the petroleum industry and government agencies triumphant.

Code struggles, labor troubles, a congressional investigation that may result in new control legislation, and government experiments under the code, all had a part in the industry's year, but "hot" oil overshadowed everything.

In January, the first month, an injunction in a Texas federal court against the Amazon corporation, and others, restraining them from overproducing allowables under state order, was the signal for a year-long battle that still is awaiting a final decision after proceeding thru an appellate court at New Orleans to the United States supreme court.

Dipping into statutes and orders seeking material for legal battle, government attorneys found that an important paragraph of the code, which constituted the "teeth" of the document, inexplicably had been left out of the official copy.

This prevented an ultimate test of the code itself in the supreme court, and left only a question of the validity of section 9-C, of the national industrial recovery act, which reaffirms federal control over interstate commerce, to be answered.

The "battle of the tenders," fought through the spring and summer, found the "hot" oil guerrilla forces retreating only after stubborn resistance.

For several months "O. E. S. 6," a tender affidavit form issued by Secretary Ickes was found to have been signed with spurious names. This tender was withdrawn and the government hit upon the tender board idea, and a new form to be signed, that proved successful.

It consisted simply of sending a three-man board down to East Texas and have the shippers appear and prove that their crude oil and crude oil products were legally produced and manufactured before releases, or tenders, were issued to allow shipment interstate. It worked.

Meanwhile, the state of Texas struck a snag in its efforts to stop interstate shipments of oil products. A state court held invalid the Texas contention that application of heat in the process of refining gasoline from crude oil did not technically alter its status as petroleum.

By October 29 Secretary Ickes was able to report that interstate shipment of "hot" oil had been stopped.

Later, a Texas appellate court overruled the trial court and held that the state did have control of refined products, and finally, about the middle of December, the interstate shipment of "hot" products was brought to an end.

American Girl Back from Nazi Jail in Berlin

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—Isobel Steele, dark-haired Hollywood girl who was held four months in Moabit prison in Berlin by Nazi political force, returned to the United States today on the liner President Harding "to nervous to tell of my experiences."

"I'm am so nervous," she exclaimed. "I can't possibly tell what happened."

Before leaving her third class cabin, however, she gave her opinion of the experiences which befell her in the German capital after she was arrested for alleged espionage about four months ago and held incommunicado in Moabit prison. Formal documentary charges were never presented in the case, which was concluded when the American consular authorities effected her release.

"I have been four months in prison and I am plenty glad to get home," she said while waiting nervously to disembark.

"I want to thank all who have helped me get over here. "I'm terribly nervous. You would be, too, if you were in a German prison four months. It's no fun and I advise every one to go elsewhere if they are seeking pleasure."
