Anti-Nazis Ask Martial Law In Saar After 15 Are Shot In Riots

NAZIS BLAMED FOR CLASHES IN WEEK-END

HITLER'S ENEMIES IN SAAR GENERALLY OVER-POWERED

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin, Territory, Dec. 31 (AP)—Anti-Nazis asked the League of Nations governing commission today to institute semi-martial law in order to suppress "terrorism gripping the Saar."

The request was made after a dozen violent week-end political clashes in which the opponents of a return to Germany in the January 13 plebiscite were generally overpowered. Serious outbreaks took place at Malstatt, a Saarbruecken suburb, early today and in the town of Eilkesketal yesterday afternoon. There were several minor clashes Saturday night and further trouble was expected on New Year's eve, when cafes and restaurants will be permitted to remain open until after midnight.

A petition asking that troops of the international army sent here by Geneva to maintain order said "the secrecy of the plebiscite vote has been assured but freedom of speech in the campaign has not."

The request was forwarded to the governing commission by Johann Hoffman, a Catholic leader of the German people's party, opposed to a union with Reichsherr Hitler, who was in the midst of the battle at Eilkesketal when nazis allegedly broke up an opposition rally.

The anti-nazis also asked the commission to ban the German front's (nazi organization) "flying disciplinary squad," which the petition says is largely responsible for the series of week-end clashes.

Nazis have no need of such a squad, the petitioners asserted, now that troops occupy the territory. More than 50 shots were fired in the Malstatt disorder.

The league plebiscite inspector's

Will Vote

From the four corners of the earth flock Saar residents of 1919 to vote in the plebiscite January 13. Even a Japanese girl, Margott Yagi, 21, New York City, will vote, because she was a resident of the Saar in 1919. She is shown here leaving New York for Europe.

SHERIFF-ELECT TALLEY NAMES FIVE DEPUTIES

Ben Lockhart To Be High Deputy in New Set-up

Sheriff-elect Earl Talley today announced the personnel which will be in his office beginning tomorrow.

The chief deputy will be Ben M. Lockhart, Laketon farmer and stockman, and longtime resident. Another deputy will be O. H. Hendricks, farmer living south of Pampa, also a resident of the county for a long period.

Sheriff Talley will retain Buford Reed as desk sergeant, A. S. Cambren as jailer, and O. T. Lindsey as deputy sheriff at McLean.

The new sheriff will not complete his plans until he has studied the problems of the department under actual working conditions.

Federal Tax on Checks at End

The federal 2-cent tax on checks will end today.

After being in effect more than two years, the tax ended under the limitations of the congressional act creating it. It will be off until and unless the lawmakers reinstate it.

MEN STRANDED IN MOUNTAINS ARE RESCUED

WOODSMEN FIGHT WAY THROUGH SNOW TO CRASH VICTIMS

MOREHOUSEVILLE, N. Y., Dec. 31 (AP)—The four survivors of Friday's plane crash near here were brought safely back to civilization today and rushed to St. Elizabeth's hospital in Utica. Ernest Dryer, pilot of the American Air Lines ship, was suffering severely from exposure, frozen feet and apparently congested lungs. His brother Dale, the co-pilot, had a fractured jaw. J. H. Brown, aviator, and R. W. Hambrook of Washington, a passenger, also received emergency treatment here.

MOREHOUSEVILLE, N. Y., Dec. 31 (AP)—Three of the four men stranded for three days with wrecked plane in the Adirondacks eight miles from here were walking in this direction with their rescuers today, while the fourth waited at the scene of the wreck with a wrenching grip the state conservation department announced today.

Reached at 10 o'clock last night by four woodsmen from Hoffmeister, the cold and hungry men realized they had been rescued when ten men of the conservation department arrived on the scene at dawn today.

By 11:30 a. m. the trip to Morehouseville had started, through

Sen. Robinson Favors Seating Of Sen. Cutting

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—Senator Robinson, the democratic leader, said today it was "assumed that if and when" the certificate of election of Senator Cutting (R-N. M.) is received "he will be seated unless some issue unknown to me respecting the subject arises."

Dennis Chavez, democrat, is contesting Cutting's re-election. At the same time Chairman Byrnes of the senate campaign funds committee said he was opposed to further investigation by that group into Cutting's campaign expenditures.

"It is my view that there should be no further investigation by my committee," Byrnes said, "but if there is a contest it should go to the privileges and elections committee."

Byrnes said he would call a meeting of the committee in a few days to decide definitely on the Cutting case.

RUSSIANS ARE BANISHED TO 'ARCTIC HELL'

400 Suicides in Russia During Last 2 Weeks; Communists Exiled.

LONDON, Dec. 31 (AP)—The Daily Express in a dispatch from Warsaw today says Gregory Zinovieff and Leon Kamenef, once powerful in communist circles, with their families are en route to a "living death" in Russia's arctic "devil's island."

The exiles, the dispatch says, were dispatched to Solovetski island, in the White Sea, for participating in a recent plot against the government.

"Both were shackled before being placed in cold freight cars for the fortnight's trip," the account says, "and the only concession made Zinovieff was a large bundle of books."

"Both Zinovieff and Kamenef appeared happy and astonished to anything less than death, and the former smiled as he walked along the station platform," the dispatch added.

"Under the plot, it was alleged, Zinovieff was to have supplanted Joseph Stalin, marked for death."

The dispatch says the exile is a virtual death sentence because the temperature seldom rises above zero and in addition Zinovieff is in an advanced stage of tuberculosis.

A Warsaw dispatch says passengers arriving from Moscow and Leningrad communist leper, Trams have been crowded recently, it added.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (AP)—Ernesto Chacon Quiroa, Ecuadorian Charge D'Affaires to Germany, was found dead today in the vestibule of a building at 69 West 32nd street under circumstances regarded by police as mysterious.

QUESTION NOT UNDERSTOOD BY VETS HE SAYS

BUSINESS WOULD NOT BE STIMULATED, HE CLAIMS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—President Roosevelt today renewed his opposition to immediate payment of the bonus and was promptly answered by the Veterans of Foreign Wars with the statement that the chief executive misunderstood the issue.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—In an obvious effort to head off a strong congressional movement for immediate payment of the bonus, President Roosevelt today made public a letter expressing opposition.

The president contended the obligation was not due until 1945, would prove very costly, and that past experience had shown full payment would not result in much stimulus to business.

"The bonus question," he said as congress prepared to convene Thursday, "is not well understood even among the veterans themselves." He added that many "have not given the question sufficient study to realize the vast sums required."

In money, he said it would cost $1,620,000,000 above the present certificate value of $2,100,000,000 and $2,320,000,000 more than the original basic adjustment of $1,400,000,000.

Writes To Texas
The president's views were expressed in a letter, dated December 27, to Commander Garland R. Farmer, of the American Legion post at Henderson, Texas, an area whose congressional members almost invariably have supported cash bonus demands.

At a press conference, Representative Byrnes of Tennessee, who will be the next speaker, reiterated his "personal opinion" that the bonus issue should be settled soon.

He declined to commit himself on the proposals that have been advanced, but said he had "heard some talk of paying it by installments."

"When the session begins, there will be half a dozen or more proposals submitted," Byrnes said, "I would not suggest that proper committee consideration should not be given, but I see no reason to delay the thing until May."

"If the committee reports a bill, I think it should be given a rule (legislative right-of-way) and be brought to a vote."

Compromise Suggested
Some leaders on capitol hill said they considered the president's action a serious obstacle to the bonus movement but others were quick to emphasize that Mr. Roosevelt did not close the door to all compromise.

With the president engaged in last hour polishing of his message to congress and especially with planning a new human relief program, special interest was centered on his statement that "all expenditures for relief have been made in the interest of recovery and for all our citizens, non-veterans as well as for veterans."

The chief executive said "all citizens in need have shared in the direct distribution for relief, and in employment... a very definite

A REAL SANTA CLAUS

During Christmas the city of Waco played Santa Claus to a "real" Santa Claus. This little story was one of the most unusual of the holiday, yet it was overlooked by the press, and we heard it yesterday from a Wacoan.

For many years an old man, growing more wrinkled and plump as the seasons rolled by, had sold pencils on the streets of Waco, making a few cents each day if business was good. He wore a long, snow-white beard and flowing white hair.

Christmas came and an electric company was in need of a Santa Claus. It was a woman who thought of the old fellow, his typical appearance and jolly personality. He was "dug out" of his little shack in the railroad yards and given his first job in many years. He had been orphaned at the age of seven, the story goes, and now he was knowing his first real Christmas.

The old fellow attracted such attention at the electric company during the day with his sparkling eyes, and cheery voice that he was then made "official greeter" at night by a theater.

Then Christmas passed. He had been Santa Claus for a day, but unlike his predecessor, the original "Apple Annie," he was not returned to his old profession to slip again into oblivion and perhaps to starve to death in his little shack.

The people who had placed him in his wonderful position sought some means of providing for the fine old man and hit upon government relief. He was to be given some odd job that would pay him room and board and a dollar a day.

Then came the really fine part of this story. The bearded, wrinkled old man who had struggled for existence for years, made this reply:

"I'll take the job on one condition, and that is that you'll let me pay 50 cents of that dollar for my room and board."—Memphis Democrat.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Senator-elect Theodore G. Bilbo of Mississippi just isn't doing right by his public.

He's keeping his mouth shut. If you're acquainted with Mr. Bilbo's remarkable past, you will appreciate how that shocks the Washington correspondents who knew the man when he was chief clipping-scissors of AAA and very voluble indeed, but who now can't get a word out of him. There's a strong tendency to suspect Pat Harrison, the other Mississippi senator.

Pat apparently took on the gargantuan job of convincing Bilbo of the virtues and delights of silence for a green senator in Washington. For the present, at least, Pat wins.

Checking back with correspondents in Mississippi, one finds that the last—or nearly the last—thing Bilbo said before leaving his native heath was:

"The biggest news that will come out of Washington in the next 12 months about the man Bilbo will be that he kept his mouth shut!"

The man Bilbo also indicated to his friends that he wouldn't be having any truck with his neighboring senator, Huey Long. In fact, he seemed to have decided to high-tail Huey. When somebody asked if he thought Huey was starting a third party, he replied:

"He's got to start a third party. He ain't got him no party now—he's been kicked out of the other two. He's at cross purposes with the Democrats and he certainly ain't a Republican."

Three men observed within the space of a couple of hours seem to stand out in your correspondent's memory:

Benny Meiman gave a lunch at the Press Club for Julius Deutch, who was commander of the Socialist army, or Schutzbund, when the late Dollfuss wiped out the Socialist power in Austria at the supposed behest of Mussolini.

Deutch, a blond, red-faced, stocky, short fellow—I think you'd like him if you met him—escaped and is recovering from his wounds. He is over here to plead for an international agreement to declare and guarantee Austrian neutrality, which, he says, would make Austria again a democratic nation instead of an "Italian colony" and would guarantee European peace now threatened by Germany and by the hatred between Italians and Yugo-Slavs.

Deutch was minister of war and foreign minister of Austria in better days. He and Dollfuss and Schuschnigg (present Austrian chancellor) were officers in the World War in the Tyrol against Italy.

Then, at the senate munitions hearing, Major Casey, who runs the du Pont munitions business. A dark, thin, gray-haired, hawk-faced alert little man—much smarter than any of the du Pont brothers. Some of his sallies make even the pacifist squad laugh. Proud of his success in selling, one way and another, weapons of death. And hoarse from days of explaining.

The third was a handsome, curly-and-red-headed fellow who was famous in early war days as one of the first conscientious objectors. One of the army's ideas of how to win the war was to torture him in a military prison and he hasn't been the same since. But he's terribly interested in the munitions investigation and got a job writing it for some British newspapers, so he could be right up next to it, day after day.

And so, little children, Donald Richberg and General Johnson had a merry, merry Christmas, after all—though they grumbled some.

The terrible Tommy Touhy, the gangster, threatens to blow himself up, and anyone who tries to capture him. A martyr, eh?

Professor at the University of Nevada will start a course on marriage and divorce, but there's still the problem of which should be taught first.

Britain's Law Revision Committee proposes legal equality for wives, who can still fall back, for a thrill, on the old system at home.

Robber Bresnahan, famous catcher, who used to handle those dizzy hops on fast balls, now is connected with a Toledo, O., brewery. Still handling the hops.

TEXAS HISTORY

Brushing Up on Facts
You Ought to Recall

Sad-hearted Franciscan fathers in 1724 took their small belongings, bade farewell to their churches, and went with heavy footsteps back to Mexico, Bexar, or Spain. Their tasks in the province of Texas were completed—not through their own will, but because of circumstances in Texas and unsympathetic rulers and hypo-critical Indians. If they admitted failure, then a century of constant prayers and labors would be in vain. Yet they could not say they had been successful, as, indeed, they had not been. They were forced to bow to the odds against them. Apache and Comanche tribes would never submit to Spanish rule. Missions erected for them were as much stone. They were unwilling to be cooped up in the pueblos. They took the gifts offered, and for awhile they would be friends. Out among the people at their first opportunity, they were soon ready for the warpath, valuing human lives and friendships as nothing.

Ever since the beginning of Spanish occupation of Texas, there were those who watched with skepticism and tried to face the situation at division. The building of missions among savage tribes was no way to take charge of a new land! General Pedro Rivera was one of those who objected to the means used. When he made his inspection tour in 1727-1728, he recommended the abolishment of the Texas missions, the vesting of his beliefs that too many pesos were being spent, and too little being accomplished.

Constant pressure, direct and indirect, lack of funds, and fickleness of the Indians were responsible for the secularization of missions. Opposition, unfriendliness, and ill treatment never daunted the missionaries, and the tragedy in lack of conversions was not due to their poor efforts. Only five hundred Indians were in the missions in 1793. Missionary work continued in Texas, but the curtain was drawn in the real life of the missions. It is of little consequence that the fathers failed to Christianize Texas. It is enough that they strove without ceasing, that they kept to their posts, that they possessed courage, zeal, and ambition.

Standing in Texas today are the churches in which those earnest teachers lived and worked. Centennial visitors in 1896 may not know the story of the founding of missions in Texas, but the missions remaining will be fitting monuments to them. Though two hundred years may have passed, those fathers will receive due credit and gratitude for their life's work.

CAPITAL CHATTER

BY CHARLES E. SIMONS

AUSTIN, Dec. 31, (AP)—A grudge of long standing that all but disrupted the 42nd legislature and simmered the last two years will be renewed at the regular session of the 44th legislature when motor truck interests seek liberalization of the laws governing commercial motor traffic.

Motor truck operators fought desperately to prevent passage of the present strict law regulating their operations. It places a load limit of 7,000 pounds on all trucks, except those having special permits to carry commodities in excess of this limitation that cannot reasonably be dismantled and trucks carrying loads to rail points.

Truck operators feel this limitation is too burdensome and constitutes an undue and unnecessary load on their operations. At the time the 7,000 pound load limit was proposed the truckmen asserted it was sponsored by the railroads in an effort to get back some of the business they had lost to the trucks.

The situation will be discussed in detail at a three-day meeting of the Texas Motor Transport association starting Dec. 27. The drive for revision of the trucking laws will be directed by Walter Beck, manager of the association and a former member of the house.

Constitutionality of the law was upheld by the United States supreme court in an opinion that has had far-reaching effect of motor truck traffic in other states. The legislature enacted the law as a safety measure following much criticism of the big trucks that dotted the highways and endangered passenger automobile traffic.

The criticism was directed particularly at trucks transporting cotton. The truckers also will seek to stop purported racketeering in which truck operators are victims of local officials who harass them almost constantly in certain localities.

The Association will urge amendment of the law to permit trucks to carry loads that are reasonably economical and that would not endanger highways or other highway travel.

BREAKS WILL DECIDE ROSE BOWL CHAMPIONSHIP TUESDAY, COACHES AGREE

STANFORD LINE CALLED BEST IN 10 YEARS

THOMAS SAYS HIS LINE IS WEAKER THAN IN PAST

BY PAUL ZIMMERMAN, Associated Press Sports Writer.

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 31 (AP)—Head coaches of the Alabama and Stanford football teams agreed today that victory in the Rose Bowl classic tomorrow will go to the eleven capitalizing on the breaks.

"I feel that the two squads are so closely matched," said Coach Frank Thomas of the Crimson Tide, "that the breaks will decide this game. Naturally I hope we get them."

Claude (Tiny) Thornhill boomed the same thought in his deep bass voice, but he enlarged upon it.

"The team that makes the breaks," said Topping, "and then takes advantage of them, should win. I say 'makes the breaks' because that is just what a good football team does."

"Blocked punts don't just happen. Most of the time they are premeditated bits of strategy. And fumbles come more often from hard, clean tackling than from bad handling of the ball."

These carefully chosen remarks were made before the two mentors took their squads to their final practice for the New Year's day classic to be enacted before a capacity crowd of approximately 85,000 persons.

For the most part, the coaches feel their teams will be at full strength. Thomas of the southern eleven, still is a bit dubious about Jim Angelich, first string halfback, who has a weakened ankle.

Thomas frankly admits his line this year is not as good as that of other Bama teams which have appeared in the 19-year-old Rose fiesta contest. But he is convinced that the present eleven is more versatile.

Thornhill, on the other hand, classifies the Stanford line as the greatest since he went to Palo Alto more than a decade ago. He hardly feels that the backs measure up to some of those of other fine Stanford teams but is satisfied they can take care of the situation tomorrow.

While Thornhill expressed the opinion that his injured stars, Bobby Grayson, Monk Moscrip, and Keith Topping, would be ready to start, there was a question of how well they would weather the expected hard knocks. Grayson's rib injuries have handicapped him in his passing but he has shown no evidence of being impeded in his running.

Stanford will work out lightly in the Rose Bowl this afternoon to top off an intensive final training session.

Alabama planned to work lightly. Yesterday was a Sunday of rest for the red regiment as it visited the United States fleet.

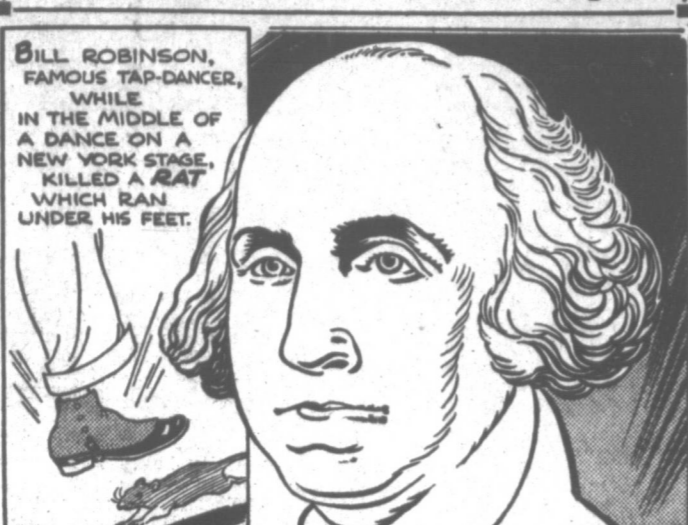

While the odds of the game were quoted at 7 to 5 in favor of Alabama, or 6 points, little betting was being done except at even money and it was expected there would be no favoritism by game time tomorrow.

Ideal weather was forecast. The opening kickoff is set for 2:15 p. m. (Pacific Standard Time).

AMARILLO SANDIES RECEIVED $9,788.81 AT TITLE BATTLE

DALLAS, Dec. 31 (AP)—The score, attendance and gate receipts of the finale to the Texas Interscholastic football league played here Saturday in Fair Park stadium were record-smashing, officials said today.

The 48 to 0 battering Amarillo's Golden Sandstorm handed Corpus Christi's Buccaneers was the most lopsided ever recorded in a league championship game.

A crowd of 21,175 persons who paid $21,182 was set down as the largest paid throng in Texas high school history. Nearly 23,000 attended the game.

After all expenses were deducted, Corpus Christi received $9,838.81 for its share and Amarillo $9,788.81. The Buc was allowed $50 more for traveling expenses.

The Sandies amassed a total of 191 points to the opposition's 34 after winning the title in district one, while the Pirates were making 74 to 77 for their foes after taking the district sixteen flag.

Business Snaps Ahead Over U. S.

(Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press)

The final week of the old year snapped business ahead like the crack of a whip.

Reports from leading cities throughout the country show an extraordinary demand for goods, with inventories healthy low, in many cases too low for comfort.

An unusual situation prevailed in many manufacturing lines during the week, which is usually a period of slack operations and shut-downs for inventory purposes.

Steel production pushed up to the highest for the holiday week since 1929. After long delays in getting production of new models under way the automobile makers have opened up full steam, and are pressing steel and parts makers for delivery. Detroit is talking of a possible shortage of skilled labor.

New Plan to End Leprosy Advanced

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 31 (AP)—A new idea for ridding the world of leprosy—segregating all children of known degeners immediately after their birth—was advanced as the best way of fighting the disease by a scientist today.

Such a system may well prove to be the "first important pathway" toward wiping out the disease, said Dr. Frederick P. Gay, of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia university. He spoke before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The idea behind segregating all children of leprosy at birth would be that most lepers probably are infected in early childhood, although they may not show signs of the disease until later in life.

Dr. Gay said one scientist in Honolulu found that only one case of leprosy occurred in 15 years among 219 children of lepers there who had been taken away from their parents at birth.

Sandies, Badgers To Be Banqueted

AMARILLO, Dec. 31 (AP)—Amarillo's two championship grid teams, The Amarillo high school Golden Sandstorm and the Amarillo college Badgers, state junior college title-holders, will be honor guests at a banquet to be staged jointly New Year's eve by Texas Exes and Texas Ex-Aggies.

While the Sandies won the state schoolboy championship Saturday by swamping the Corpus Christi Buccaneers, 48 to 0, in Dallas, the Amarillo college Badgers defeated Lamar college of Beaumont here December 14 by the score of 34 to 7. Amarillo college won the state junior title in 1933 also.

The government has allotted $200,000 for three subsistence homesteads in Alabama as part of a back-to-the-land movement for negroes.

WESTERN CLUB WEAKENED BY THIRD INJURY

DETROIT'S BACKFIELD ACE LIMPS FROM ANKLE SPRAIN

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31 (AP)—Another injury today weakened the squad of 22 college football players from beyond the Mississippi as they wound up training for the tenth annual East-West charity contest here tomorrow.

Doug Nott, Detroit backfield ace, limped from an ankle sprain grown stiff since the injury occurred in a practice Saturday at the East's Berkeley camp.

The Detroit player joined "Pug" Lund, Minnesota halfback, recovering from a severe cold, on the doubtful list. Duane Purvis, Purdue halfback, has a torn knee tendon which is expected to keep him out of the game.

Although both Nott and Lund were expected to see some service, their doubtful status and the injury to Purvis caused sentiment among fans to swing sharply to the 22 western stalwarts. Even money, instead of the previous 10-to-8 odds for the East, was reported available.

Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley, eastern coaches, indicated they may use an air attack against the heavy western line, leaving the ground assault to Lzy Weinstock, line smashing Pitt fullback.

The western squad completed training with a light workout at the Palo Alto camp under the direction of Coaches Orin Hollingsbery and Perc Lacey. All players were declared in good shape.

Probable starting lineups:

WEST POS. EAST
Maddox, Kan. State LT. Pacetti, Wisc. Steiner, S. F. U. G. Akerstrom, C. State Theodoratus, W. Sta. RG. Bareley, N. C. Barber, S. M. U. RE. Borzanski, C. State Warburton, U. S. C. QB. Munjas, Pitt. Sobrero, Santa Clara LH. Lutz, Minn. Foushee, S. C. C. RB. Shepherd, W. Md. Nichelini, St. Mary's FB. Weinstock, Pitt.

HELEN GILLIS TOLD AGENTS ABOUT CHASE

Arrest of 18 Persons, Alleged to Have Harbored Chase, Nelson Sought.

CHICAGO, Dec. 31 (AP)—John Paul Chase, Dillinger gangster arrested in California as the associate of George (Baby Face) Nelson slain desperado, in the killing of two federal agents in suburban Barrington last month, arrived today.

The gang of which Chase was a member has been almost annihilated during the last year by police bullets, and execution was predicted for Chase if convicted. Six federal agents took him from the train at suburban Oak Park. The gunman was reported to be in leg irons.

CHICAGO, Dec. 31 (AP)—The government had its guns trained on the outposts of the shattered Dillinger gang today.

With John Paul Chase facing a government demand for death on the gallows, San Francisco operatives disclosed they have thrown all their resources into play in a drive to exterminate the last auxiliary of the gang.

The arrest of some 18 or 18 persons alleged to have harbored Chase and George "Baby Face" Nelson when they two reputedly hid out from authorities in California and Nevada after Nelson shot his way to liberty from a trap in the Little Bohemia resort in Wisconsin, was the immediate object of the drive. The two had returned east only a few weeks before the slaying of the two federal agents in the Chicago suburb of Barrington, agents believe.

Arthur Pratt, 30, of Helena, Mont., is already under arrest on a charge of obstructing justice, but by an ironic twist of circumstances, authorities believe, his connection with Chase drove the latter straight into a long-shot trap the government had set.

A $1,740 cache, mailed by Chase to Pratt in Helena, was the lure that drew Chase west after the Barrington gun battle with Inspector Samuel P. Cowley and Agent Herman J. Hollis on November 27, agents believe. The agents were killed, but fatally wounded Nelson.

Warned by Pratt that Helena was "too hot" for Chase to make an appearance, agents said Chase went on to his former haunts in Mt. Shasta, Calif., where he was arrested when he sought to borrow $20 from his former fellow employes in the state fish hatchery. Agents had warned employes at the hatchery to be on the lookout for him.

Meanwhile, a federal grand jury here called back from a New Year's recess, awaited only Chase's arrival under heavy guard, before hearing evidence against him which United States District Attorney Dwight M. Green described as "ample."

"I'm convinced," Green said, "Chase will be hanged."

A broken gangland tradition, was reported to have given the federal men their first "line" on Chase. Nelson's widow, Mrs. Helen Gillis, arrested soon after the shooting, disclosed for the first time the identity of their companion the night of the slayings.

DEMOCRATS EXPECTED TO FOLLOW LEAD OF PRESIDENT

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER, Associated Press Staff Writer, WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)

With explosive issues in the offing, the dying year found the democratic leadership laboring to conserve on the "right," leaders acknowledged that controversies are in store. But they said they found a consensus among many returning members that the last election was a mandate to follow President Roosevelt's lead.

The president's program—embracing a vast range of problems topped by relief of the unemployed—has yet to be revealed in many details. Legislators expect him to give an outline of principles and aims in a message which he will deliver on Friday, probably in person.

On Saturday, with the delivery of the president's budget message, will come the answer to one paramount question: How much will be spent for public works? Speculation has ranged from $1,500,000,000 to $7,000,000,000 but no one has given any authoritative statement.

From Rep. Byrns (D. Tenn.), slated to be the speaker of the hour, there came today a prediction that although debate may be "extended and widespread" on some issues, in the end the democrats will "work together."

Placing relief at the top of all problems, he said the federal government had acted wisely in taking the lead in the attack on it. Now, he added, business is improving and "it will be one of our aims to determine whether and how to taper off the federal government's activities."

The Republicans, weaker numerically in congress than at any time in years, are in no position to wind-out party fight. They say their role will be one of conservative criticism.

Rep. Snell (R. N. Y.) regarded as the probable choice for republican leader in the house, said his party's function was to put each proposal "to a test of merit, pure and simple."

President Roosevelt secluded himself for the third successive day to glue together what he calls the scraps of his message. The democratic steering and leadership committee of the senate planned to meet with Leader Robinson of Arkansas to formulate strategy plans and committee ratios.

As for the house, several state delegations prepared to caucus on the speakership and leadership nominations. The appropriations committee continued a fast pre-session pace, hoping to have three or four annual money bills ready for the floor by January 7.

Just now, the $2,000,000,000 soldiers' bonus issue looks like a real liner. Though the president has made no official statement, high administration officials have shown no favor for immediate payment in full. So strong is the congressional support for such payment, however, that there has been much talk of possible compromise.

Leaders were watching closely also in an attempt to gauge the strength of drives for currency inflation.

Besides relief, public works and an administrative social security which will include unemployment insurance and possibly old age pensions, many other topics are expected to be debated, among them:

Permanent NRA legislation, extension of the reconstruction corporation's life, changes in agricultural adjustment and Bankhead cotton control act, more money for home owners' loans, taking the profit out of war, regulation of utility holding companies, the St. Lawrence seaway treaty and the world court.

Three Billions Spent During '34

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—Uncle Sam looked back today on a 12-month in which some $3,000,000,000 was poured out in the drive to aid the distressed by providing cash, goods or jobs.

About one out of every seven persons in the country looked to government for support in whole or in part. This did not count benefits paid to farmers in the year.

A huge item in the expenditure was for relief. Federal emergency relief administration figures show that in 1934's first nine months, $972,505,173 was spent, of which 65 per cent was contributed by the federal government, states and local governments put up 14 per cent and 16 per cent respectively. The year's total, assuming the December relief load to require no more than the $1,750,742 for November, was estimated at about $1,480,000,000.

The cost for the year of the civilian conservation corps was set at $360,000,000. Some two billion dollars has been poured out on public works and civil works construction projects since they were started in 1933.

BONUS ISSUE IS HEADLINER FOR CONGRESS

Boxing Needs An Operation Says Foster

BY EDWARD C. FOSTER, President National Boxing Association, PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 31 (AP)

Boxing certainly needs a major operation for 1935. In contrast with the record in all other major professional sports, especially baseball, football and hockey, boxing continued on the downward slide last year from the standpoint of public interest as well as prestige.

Attendance in most of the larger cities has fallen off to a point where a promoter is lucky to have 25 to 50 per cent of his arena filled for professional fight shows. The sport will continue to go downhill unless those interested in its support, not only for the sake of competition but as a business, realize that drastic steps must be taken to clean house. We need a new deal in boxing, from top to bottom, sweeping out the chiselers and poor fighters.

It's time to face the situation honestly and seek some remedies when it develops that a "world championship contest" was held in our largest city (Rosenbloom-Olin in New York) and only a little over 6,000 paid admission to see it.

Unquestionably, this deplorable condition today in boxing is due entirely to the present-day boxer and his so-called manager.

I honestly believe that 75 per cent of these so-called managers should be relegated to the position which they really should hold, namely, that of trainer or rubber for the boxer.

With practically every state in the union that has legalized boxing having a state athletic commission, it is really unnecessary for the average young boxer to be burdened with a manager. It is the absolute duty of every state athletic commission, when a contest is arranged in their state, to see that everybody concerned is amply protected, and this certainly goes for the boxer.

Wrestling Fans Are Wondering About Next Card

Pampa wrestling fans are wondering when there will be more wrestling in Pampa. They have learned that Danny McShain, wild Irish rose, is back in the Panhandle and also that several new faces are to appear on Panhandle mats soon.

The local promoters have not definitely announced when the next local card will be held. The last card was presented in the city auditorium Christmas night. It was a charity card and was not well attended.

Local fans have also learned that Lobo Brown, Amarillo's fiery youngster, has been making derogatory remarks about Pat Garrison, local Irishman. Garrison and Brown were to have met on the charity card last week but Garrison developed an illness or a sore leg or something, according to Brown, and could not make the mat.

"Garrison has beaten me once but he can't do it again even though he outweighs me considerably," the battling Amarilloan writes.

Last time the two met, they went 30 minutes to a draw in one of the wildest bouts of the year.

ALLISON WILL PLAY HERE ON TUESDAY NIGHT

GAMES TO BE PLAYED FOUR NIGHTS IN THIS WEEK

The Harvester basketball squad was to go through a stiff workout this afternoon in preparation for a hard week of basketball, against some of the strongest teams in this section. Games will be played Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights, starting at 8 o'clock, with admission 25 cents for adults.

Opening the series, the Allison quintet, with Coach John Peoples at the helm, will be here for a game tomorrow night. Allison holds the only victory over the Harvesters this season. It was a 21 to 20 win in the second game of the Miami tournament. Allison has practically the same team that went through last season with few losses.

A new cage team will come to Pampa Wednesday and Thursday nights when the Tulsa Hornets appear here for games. Tulsa is said to have a team of veterans, comprising one of the strongest teams in the Panhandle. Their strength will be tested by the Harvesters who are fast coming to the front through competition.

Another unknown team will appear against the Harvesters on Friday night when Coach Al Duncan, former Pampian, brings his Turkey Turks to Pampa. Coach Duncan saw the Harvesters play last week and immediately matched a game. The Turks are undefeated in seven starts this season.

Coach Odus Mitchell of the Harvesters plans on taking his boys to strange courts during January so that they will get used to playing away from home before the conference season, which will open early in February.

Plot to Kidnap President Told To U. S. Solons

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—A reputed communist plot to kidnap the president and an alleged fascist scheme to set up a dictatorship were made public today by the house committee which has been investigating un-American activities.
Walter S. Steele, of Washington, D. C., appearing for the American coalition of patriotic, civil and paternal societies, said a red plan was being widely circulated in communist circles to create civil war during a general strike; invade the white house; kidnap the president, his cabinet too; take over the government and supersede it with a soviet state.
An army captain, Samuel Glazier, of Baltimore, in charge of a civilian conservation camp at Eldridge, Me., gave the committee the testimony concerning the dictatorship plan.
Glazier said that Jackson Martin, New York attorney, had discussed with him formation of the "American Vigilantes," half a million strong, and backed with $700,000,000 to turn out the administration and set up Martin as dictator. Glazier testified in New York recently. His testimony was made public today before Steele appeared before the committee.

Stitzer says Gunnison has experienced only 17 entirely sunless days since he started keeping his record.

Rules Masons

The richest Masonic regalia ever designed for a woman Mason is worn by Mrs. Seton Challen, grand master of the only Masonic fraternity organized entirely for women, as she was installed at the mother lodge, St. Ermin's, Westminster, England. It is a replica of that worn by the grand master of England, the Duke of Connaught.

continued: "It would make things a lot simpler if I could pass on what you've told me to Jerry and Miss O'Brien. You see they both know about my visit. . . .

"And I take it that they are both waiting anxiously to hear the result." He blew out a ring of smoke and contemplated it reflectively. "Well, on the whole, now I come to think it over, I am not sure that it wouldn't be the wiser plan, you'll impress upon them, of course, the necessity for absolute discretion."

"They'll keep their mouths shut all right," I assured him.
A clock on the mantelpiece chimed out the hour, and with a surprised glance, Sir William consulted his watch.

"Three o'clock," he exclaimed, pushing back his chair. "I didn't realize it was as late as that." He rose to his feet. "I have to attend a meeting in the City at half-past, so I am afraid I must be making a start. If you're coming in the same direction perhaps I can give you a lift?"

"I've arranged to meet my friends at the Millam," I said. "If you could drop me there. . . ."

"Why, of course. We pass the door."

Pressing the electric bell, he led the way through the sitting room to the outer hall, where the manservant was waiting to present us with our hats. Preceding us along the corridor, the same polite functionary then rang for the elevator—an additional attention to which, I presume, a millionaire employer is automatically entitled.

I must confess that, as I stepped inside, I was in a distinctly elated mood. The knowledge I had acquired, if it did not enable me to prove my innocence to the world, at least provided a promising starting point from which to commence our researches.

I had a queer unreasoning conviction that somewhere or other down in those lonely Essex marshes lay a clue to the mystery of Osborne's death. Jerry, as I was well aware, knew that particular district inside out. Pottering about the East Coast in a small sailing boat was one of his favorite hobbies, and as far as that part of the work was concerned, there was no one alive who was better qualified to assist me in ferreting out the truth.

The elevator came to a halt, and escorted by a uniformed attendant, Sir William and I advanced in a stately procession towards the revolving glass door. Outside stood a magnificent limousine. A chauffeur with a rug over his arm was awaiting our arrival, and I was on the very point of taking my seat when I heard a remark which made every muscle in my body suddenly stiffen.

"How do you do, Sir William? It is quite a long time since I had the pleasure of meeting you."

I jerked my head around, scarcely able to believe my ears. Two paces away from me a tall, clean-shaven, middle-aged man, dressed in a smartly cut grey suit, was shaking hands with my companion.

Whether he had seen me or not I couldn't say. Gone was the beard, and gone were the gold-rimmed spectacles, but the voice beyond all question was the voice of Mr. Steliman.

It is amazing to me that I didn't make a fool of myself. I think I must have acted instinctively. Anyway, before I realized what I was doing, I had brushed past the chauffeur, who with exemplary politeness was holding open the door, and dropped onto the luxuriously cushioned seat.

Nick learns, tomorrow, another name for the man who wanted to murder him.

5 CATHOLICS ARE SLAIN BY MEXICAN REDS

WORSHIPPERS SHOT TO DEATH AT STEPS OF CHURCH

BY CLARK LEE.
MEXICO, D. F., Dec. 31 (AP)—Armed reserves held back aroused residents of suburban Coyoacan today as 57 young members of a revolutionary "red shirt" organization, charged with slaying five defenseless Catholics just outside their church, were transferred to the federal penitentiary.

One of the red shirts was beaten to death by the townspeople and authorities ordered the prisoners removed after reports that residents were arming for an attack on the jail.

Four men and a woman of the crowd which emerged from worship fell dead under the volley fired at close range. The red shirt group was holding an anti-clerical demonstration almost at the door of the church.

Serious developments, including the possibility of a general religious conflict, were feared as a result of the killings.

President Lazaro Cardenas was expected to take a vigorous stand against the red shirt organization and probably order its dissolution. He was out of the city, but his secretary promised a delegation of Coyoacan residents Cardenas would see that justice is done and urged them to await his action.

Government spokesmen denied the red shirt group is an official organization and said it would not be protected.

The outbreak was the culmination of a campaign against "the church, religion and God" which the red shirts have been carrying on for a month. They first made their appearance in the capital as an escort for Tomas Garrido Canabal, governor of Tabasco and secretary of agriculture in the national cabinet.

As the crowds left the church after hearing mass yesterday, they encountered the anti-clerical demonstration, hissed the speakers, and according to the statements of numerous witnesses the red shirts then drew revolvers and opened fire.

Georgian Held In Nazis' Toils

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Dec. 31 (AP)—Guards along the French side of the Saar frontier were heavily reinforced tonight as two Americans struggled to extricate themselves from difficulties with German and Saar authorities.

Meanwhile, Americans back home in the Saar to vote in the plebiscite Jan. 13 were frightened at reports published in European newspapers that they might lose their United States citizenship.

In the toils of the rigid regulations intended to keep undesirable and more curious out of the Saar, short as it is in a signed statement rooms, was Chester Watkins, of Atlanta, Ga., arrested at Mettlach, Germany, because he had no special permit to cross the border.

In prison at Waldmohr, Germany, was Miss Elsa Stittel, of New York, jailed because she allegedly made derogatory remarks about Adolf Hitler's storm troops and picked Nazi guards.

Stories Conflict In Child Slaying

LEVELLAND, Dec. 31 (AP)—Ben Alsop, 45, tenant farmer—relief worker charged with murder in the shotgun slaying of his 13-year old daughter, was remanded to Hockley county jail without bond today.

Justice of the Peace Vialle, at the request of District Attorney Daniel A. Blair and County Attorney Wendon F. Johnson, refused to grant bond for Alsop.

Conflicting stories of the shotgun slaying of Martha Beulah Alsop early Wednesday were told.

Speaking slowly, Alsop declared the death was an accident.

Berna Alsop, 16, Martha Beulah's sister, said in a signed statement she struck a shotgun in her father's hands to save her mother.

When the gun fired, the charge struck Martha Beulah in the head.

Some one in the crowded courtroom applauded when Blair asked that bond be denied. Berna had identified a statement she made to Johnson.

A satirical pamphlet on a hypothetical "Limberg" trial, written by Mrs. Mary Belle Spencer, Chicago lawyer, above, has aroused wrath of counsel for Bruno Hauptmann, soon to face trial in the Lindbergh kidnaping case. # CLAIM HAUPTMANN NOTEBOOKS SHOW DISPOSITION OF RANSOM

NEW WITNESS WILL SAY SHE FOUND MONEY

SAW PACKAGES HIDDEN IN HAUPTMANN CABINET

By WILLIAM A. KINNEY
Associated Press Staff Writer
FLEMINGTON, N. J., Dec. 31. (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's pocket notebooks, containing careful accounts of his expenses, will be used, an official source disclosed today, in a prosecution effort to show that the $200,000 Lindbergh ransom figured in his income.

To substantiate this evidence, the prosecution has a woman witness ready to testify she saw packages of money secreted in a cabinet in the Hauptmann Bronx home.

The state also expects Betty Gow, Scotch nurse of the slain Lindbergh baby, to testify the child was dead or dying when he was borne past the spot, a scant hundred yards from his home, where she found a thumb guard stripped brutally from his hand.

These three factors became known as the state made a final survey of its case for the trial of Hauptmann, starting Wednesday, for the slaying of the kidnaped infant.

The patient work of a federal statistical expert, uncovered traces of the ransom money in Hauptmann's notebook accounts, it was learned, and this expert will explain the carpenter's accounts to the jury.

The identity of the woman witness is being guarded carefully. She visited the Hauptmann home one day while Hauptmann was absent, the authority said, and was admiring a new article of furniture—a cabinet—of which Mrs. Hauptmann appeared very proud. Examining the cabinet closely, the visitor said she came on a cache of neatly wrapped currency in one of the compartments.

The discovery made her exclaim in surprise, the authority said, but

Mrs. Hauptmann made light of the matter with the remark: "That is some money Bruno earned in stock market transactions."

Accounts Accurate

The state regards this testimony as a damaging blow at Hauptmann's contention that the ransom money given him in a shoe box by Isadore Fisch, a business associate since deceased, Hauptmann has maintained he did not know the contents of the shoe box until it broke open, after it had become water-soaked from rain which leaked into the closet where he put it for safe keeping.

Hauptmann's books and ledgers were found when his house was searched after his arrest in September, authorities described them as "exceedingly accurate," saying they contain itemized accounts of such trivial expenses as pennies for a box of matches and two-cent stamps.

They show frequent totals, investigators said, in which Hauptmann reckoned up the amount of his income and his outlay. It is here, the official disclosed, that the first evidences of the ransom money were found. From this point on the expert has repeatedly traced how the ransom money crept in and out of the former German machine gunner's financial accounts.

Thumbguard Theory
The thumbguard, which Miss Gow found a few days after the kidnaping, had been tied by tape to the wrist of the child's sleeping suit. The tape was still tied when it was found, and the state will contend, it was learned, that the sleeping garment was hastily stripped from the baby's body by a kidnaper who did not have time to untie the tape.

The thumbguard, the state believes, will be evidence that the kidnaper, realizing he held a dead or dying baby in his arms, knew he could not return the baby safely to collect the ransom and decided to take the sleeping suit as proof he was the one who took the child. It was the return of the sleeping suit that brought about the ransom payment.

New Defense Witness
While Hauptmann spent the Sabbath quietly in his cell, an elderly woman, who did not give her name, came forward with what she called valuable evidence for the defense.

She said that on the night of the kidnaping she was in downtown New York, became confused in the subway, and turned for assistance to a passerby. That man, she said, was Hauptmann. He took her to a subway and accompanied her as far as 225th street, the station nearest his Bronx home.

The woman, who sought to visit Hauptmann in his cell, was denied admission by the jail authorities. Defense attorneys hinted they would interview her later.

SAAR

report on the Bliesskastel riot was understood to have named Nazis as the instigators, and said that the Nazi leader in that region was in the hall to lead the attack which began with the firing of a gun. Police officials said their investigation as to who was responsible for the riot was not completed.

The common front told the commission the Nazi "flying disciplinary squad" was deliberately provoking incidents throughout the territory in an effort to induce the government to cancel a big anti-Nazi rally January 6 at Saarbruecken to which special trains are to bring delegations from all parts of the Saar basin.

A Hitler youth was injured and the restaurant where the fight took place was wrecked.

The outbreak was the second violent one of the week-end. Several persons were injured yesterday at Bliesskastel when an anti-Nazi political meeting was broken up, allegedly by a band of Nazis.

Half a dozen unidentified men, described by Nazis as "German emigrants," were said to have attacked a group of Hitler youths in the restaurant by breaking in through the door and windows.

Guns were drawn and the Nazis barricaded themselves behind chairs and tables. The attackers fled when residents, warned by the shooting, ran to the scene.

Fifteen persons were injured. It was estimated, in the most serious week-end political fighting the Saar has had in months.

Charges that France is financing Catholic opposition to Reichsfuehrer Hitler in the Saar basin territory were made by Hugo Haase, Hagn, editor of a Catholic newspaper.

In a public statement Hagn, who resigned in protest said the German people's party, which opposes a return to Germany in the January 13 plebiscite, receives "French money monthly."

"I will have nothing to do with French propaganda," said Hagn in explaining his resignation. "I had been assured that the new Saar Post (of which he was editor) was supported by German Catholics, but I discovered otherwise."

French mining interests, the editor asserted, were back of the alleged subsidies. Similar charges were made recently by the German Front, Nazi organization.

BONUS

and distinct preference is given to veterans."

Text of Letter

Here is the text of President Roosevelt's letter on the soldiers' bonus question:

I appreciate your letter of recent date, and it is particularly interesting in that it confirms an impression that I have had for some time; that is, that the bonus question is not well understood even among the veterans themselves.

I am particularly impressed with one paragraph of your letter which confirms another conviction I have that the service men generally have the interests of their country and government at heart.

I have had prepared for me a memorandum which outlines in detail exactly what congress did in 1924 when they authorized the issuing of the adjusted service certificates known generally as the "bonus." This memorandum I am inclosing herewith.

I am sure that you will find in this memorandum sufficient information to enable you to decide for yourself the stand you should take on this issue as well as being in a position, as I feel you should be, to advise legislators who come to you seeking information in regard to the immediate payment of the balance due on the adjusted service certificates.

It is quite apparent from your letter in which you advise me of the reasons why the service men are demanding immediate payment of the bonus, that there is a general misunderstanding in regard to the government's obligation in the matter.

Payment Deferred

When in 1924 congress decided to issue the adjusted service certificates, they actually authorized a bonus of $1,400,000,000, but because of the stand taken at that time by those advocating the measure who felt that it would be in the interest of the service men themselves, this cash outlay was not made immediately, but was deferred for twenty years.

Because of this deferment the initial bonus was increased 25 per cent so that the $1,400,000,000 invested for the service men at 4 per cent compounded annually, would mature in twenty years $3,500,000,000.

Or putting it another way, suppose that a veteran's original grant by congress in 1924 was $400 and the veteran did not borrow on his certificate, permitting the interest to accumulate to maturity, the $400 would grow so that it would pay the veteran when due in 1945 $1,000.

In other words, the amount which is printed upon the face of every adjusted service certificate is not the amount of the basic or original bonus voted by congress, but is an amount plus 25 per cent added for deferred payment which with interest at 4 per cent compounded annually over a twenty year period, will produce the face or maturity value.

Obligation Not Due

This would seem to dispose of the question as to whether the obligation is immediately due.

There is another feature in connection with this matter that impresses me, and that is the fact that out of 3,500,000 certificates outstanding 3,038,500 veterans have borrowed thereon approximately $1,800,000,000.

In other words, some have borrowed more than the present worth of their bonus certificates.

This is brought about by the action of congress permitting a veteran to borrow up to 50 per cent of the face or maturity value of his certificate, even though that certificate may have been issued only a few days before the loan is made.

Of course, all the certificates were not issued at the same time in 1925, but have been issued from that date up to the present time, so their present value or earned value, as we may put it, is not the same in all cases, but taking the aggregate of all the certificates issued they have a present value of $2,100,000,000, whereas their face value is $3,500,000,000.

Then too, I believe it has been suggested that the interest paid or now accumulated be canceled or remitted. If this plan were carried out the total amount would increase to $3,720,000,000; or putting it another way making the cost $1,620,000,000 over and above the present value and $2,300,000,000 above the amount which the congress fixed as the original basic adjustment.

I feel sure that many of the veterans have not given the question sufficient study to realize the vast sums required to meet the demands suggested.

Relief Questions Answered

Your statement advising me that those who favor the immediate payment of the bonus feel that a good reason for doing so is because the government has spent millions of dollars on the recovery program, and that much of these funds will not be repaid, while by the payment of the bonus the obligation will be discharging an obligation, and by so discharging this obligation the money spent by the veterans will do much in a practical way of stimulating recovery, is interesting.

I know that you appreciate that all expenditures for relief have been made in the interest of recovery and for all our citizens, non-veterans as well as for veterans.

All citizens in need have shared in the direct distribution for relief, and in employment, as you no doubt are aware, a very definite and distinct preference is given to veterans.

I am advised that at the time the issue of paying the balance of the bonus was up and a compromise was made by increasing the loan value to 50 per cent of the face value, there resulted a distribution of approximately a billion dollars, and at that time the same argument was advanced that the expenditure of such a large amount of money by the veterans would greatly stimulate business and aid recovery.

No Business Recovery

A survey of the results showed otherwise. This large payment resulted in little stimulation of business, and in many of the larger cities no material change was indicated at all.

It was found that indebtedness created by the veterans prior to the payment was liquidated, and the money advanced to veterans went to clear that indebtedness rather than to create new business. No doubt the same results would obtain if the balance were now paid.

However, in this connection what to me is very important, having in mind that the bonus certificate is a paid-up endowment policy payable either to the veteran upon its maturity or to his beneficiary, generally the wife and children in the event of his death, is the fact that of the veterans who die, approximately 85 per cent of them leave no other asset to their family but the adjusted service certificate or the balance due on the certificate.

I feel, therefore, that those who advocate the payment of these certificates at this time for the purpose of stimulating business certainly can not have given the interests of the veterans much thought.

Cattle Buying Extended Until Jan. 15 by AAA

AMARILLO, Dec. 31. (AP)—Extension of the AAA drought-relief cattle-buying program in Texas until January 15 was announced today by Grover B. Hill, AAA field representative.

The program, under which $2,738,000 was allotted early in December for the purchase of 225,000 head of cattle, originally was scheduled to end today. Only 1,719,812 head had been bought by December 20.

Hill said the extension was made by the government in an effort to lighten the cattleman's burden. He said December 31 was an inopportune time to close the program as it was too soon after the Christmas holidays for many cattlemen to make deliveries.

Cattle which cannot be delivered by January 15 will not be accepted, Hill said.

He estimated that the money remaining from the December allotment would be sufficient to buy all of the cattle offered to the government. The cattle supply already is fairly well cleaned up, he said.

MEN RESCUED

three feet of snow and at temperatures about 30 degrees below zero.

Hamilton Chequers, a foreman of the CCC, who went in with the group, returned early and told of the joy with which the survivors of the hillside crash greeted their rescuers.

He said one of the fliers, either Ernest, the pilot, or his brother Dale, the co-pilot, had wrenched his hip and would be taken out later by sled. The others were expected to reach Morehouseville at 2 p. m. Dryer's injury was only serious enough to prevent his walking.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 31. (AP)—Rescue of the four men stranded with their wrecked plane in the Adirondacks was effected today.

The rescuers, hardy woodsmen from Hoffmeister, N. Y., eight miles north of the forested hillside, started for civilization at 11:30 a. m., about 6 1/2 hours after the giant American Airlines plane crashed in a snow storm Friday night enroute from Syracuse to Albany.

Lieut. Al Mitchell of the Massachusetts national guard radioed from his plane on vigil above the spot that five men of the group of 11, which included searchers, left the spot for the highway to Hoffmeister, and that four men followed them shortly afterward. They left two men at the wrecked plane. Their identity could not be established from the air, but it was believed that not more than one was a survivor of the plane crash.

The courageous effort of the Hoffmeister woodsmen, including Lester Partello and Floyd Krueger, to take the cold and hungry fliers to their home eight miles away, climaxed the three-day fight of state police, national guard fliers and airline company officials to rescue the quartet in 30-below weather and waist-deep snow.

The four, Ernest Dryer, pilot of the airliner; his brother Dale, co-pilot; J. H. Brown of Boston, American Airlines pilot flying as a passenger, and R. W. Hambrook of Washington, D. C., were located from the air last night but not contacted from the ground until nearly midnight. Then Partello and his brothers, John and Charles, struggled through with Krueger from Hoffmeister.

He estimated that the money remaining from the December allotment would be sufficient to buy all of the cattle offered to the government. The cattle supply already is fairly well cleaned up, he said.

Mrs. Tommie Yeary is reported slightly improved today after a blood transfusion late yesterday. She underwent a major operation several weeks ago and was able to be up when she suffered a hemorrhage Friday evening.

MINNEAPOLIS. (AP)—A 5-pound pickler jumped out of a hole in the ice on Coon lake and bit Alvin Michelson on the nose. Two pals vouch for the story while Michelson is exhibiting the fish and a scratched prodicus as proof.

Michelson says he will get his revenge—biting into the fish.

Long Moves to Oust Officials of Alexandria

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 31. (AP)—The Huey P. Long administration today took the first step in plans to take over the city administration of Alexandria, La., when the civil service commission met in executive session to decide upon the "competency" of Chief of Police Clint O'Malley of Alexandria.

Gov. O. K. Allen, as ex-officio chairman of the commission, presided, and after preliminary matters were disposed of called the commission into executive session.
