JURIES CONVICT WILSON AND BARROW

Mother Nature makes many mistakes. The Palo Duro canyon was probably one of them, but for this topographical error a monument is built to her. Perfection is not always beautiful.

Santa Claus won't have to make so many trips this year, since Uncle Sam is his chief ally.

Tom Connally, Clarendon banker, was recently in Pampa without a cent in his pockets. But that isn't news—not many bankers stress money; character is more important.

A Clovis News-Journal headline says "City Cracks Down on Traffic Rules." We're asking the News-Journal for a report on the results two weeks hence; if any.

There is always hope for a "younger generation"; even Clara Bow settled down.

Musing of the moment: Making of appointments is one of the "meanest" jobs an office-holder can have. Through job-giving he can build up a machine, it is true, but he will be criticized right and left regardless of how pure are his intentions. Mr. Alfred is in an unhappy position at the moment. After January 1 he will be far less popular than he was as a candidate.

Brevitorials

HERE IS ONE newspaper man who is not going to decline any invitations to Miami, if he can walk, ride, fly, or manage to get over there. The people are as friendly and courteous as any we know and the steaks that Jack Graham can cook should be a boon to the cattle industry. Miami is just half an hour from Pampa by paved road. That old "north route" was one of the longest we ever traveled. We Pampanians raised Cain a plenty about changing the route, but we knew down deep within us all the time that the state highway department was right in its choice of a route. We still need a north road and need it badly, to serve Pampa, Miami, Spearman, and Pteroyton across the Canadian river.

MIAMI TOMORROW will open the first basketball tournament of the season, both boys and girls—from all over this section will compete for the loving cups. Pampa will have three boys' teams and two girls' teams in the meet. Basketball is a clean, body-building sport and in some ways preferable to football, although as a spectator it appeals to far fewer persons. It is not a game for a sissy, as some folks imagine. Speed, endurance, brains, skill, timing, and clean-living are demanded.

PROPOSALS FOR building of thousands of dams and ponds throughout the drought area of the southwest appeal to us more than do the government's plans for a shelter belt of trees. Maintenance of the trees would be a continual cost and a large per cent of them would die for want of water. If the government wishes to spend millions to make trees where nature evidently is not cooperating, we will remain "from Missouri" but without much comment. We doubt that the government should draw very closely from the unbalanced treasury to build ponds, but it can help some and the land owners involved can do much of the work themselves.

THE NEW PLAN is to keep the water that falls on the drought area from rushing into the Gulf of Mexico and carrying valuable top soil with it. Building of ponds is a logical follow-up of terracing. Indeed, it is a form of terracing and is based on the same principle. Whether the water goes into the soil or stands as a pond or lake is of little moment.

TO BE EFFECTIVE, the ponds must be built in nearly all the ravines and smaller water courses. The amount of water which could be saved in a normal year would be enormous. And the hope is that in this way the sub-soil moisture will be replenished and droughts made less devastating. Moreover, water is cooling. Blistering winds would be tempered by passage over evaporating bodies of water. We cannot control the rains but we can retain far more of the moisture than we are now doing.

THE WEATHER WILL eventually chance for the better, but that day may be hastened by adoption of a moisture conservation program of wide extent. Our soil is wonderfully fertile and can produce bountiful wheat crops and small grains. But moisture is necessary. The top soil is blowing and washing and must be

THREE TEXAS COMPANY RIGS ARE DAMAGED

TWO FIRES OF LAST NIGHT WORST—BIG REWARD POSTED

Two Gray county wells of the Texas company were damaged last night when the rigs burned. The rigs were saved. Today the Texas company offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons damaging its property. An investigation of the fires was under way. The first blaze was at the Texas No. 2 H. M. Davis, section 86, about 5 miles south of Pampa. Guards placed on the lease following recent labor trouble, were some distance away toward the middle of the lease when they discovered the flames. The Pampa fire department, notified by telephone, dispatched one truck and saved the derrick. The gas pumping engine was destroyed. Shortly afterward, Supt. D. J. Gribbon of the company was notified that the Texas No. 16 J. B. Bowers, section 63, about 5 or 6 miles south of the first well, was blazing. Mr. Gribbon drove to the Davis well and the gas pump was destroyed. The gas engine had been ruined and tubing released into the well, doing as yet undetermined damage. It also was discovered today that Texas company No. 4 T. J. Boney in Carson county was slightly damaged.

STATE ENTERS DUNCAN DEATH IN TESTIMONY

Evidence Is Offered In Huey Trial Despite Objections

CANADIAN, Dec. 13.—The State rested today in the murder trial of Arthur Huey, Hutchinson county tax collector charged with the slaying of A. P. (Ace) Berger. The prosecution succeeded in putting into the record testimony concerning L. J. Duncan, a by-stander who was wounded fatally during the Berger postoffice shooting last August 31 in which Berger was killed. A controversy over that testimony yesterday halted presentation of ev-

Huge Crowd to Welcome Lions' Chief on Friday

Reservations for the Lions club's banquet tomorrow evening at the Pender hotel must be made by 10 a. m. Friday. Tickets may be purchased here today at 75c each from a committee composed of Clarence Kennedy, W. H. Curry, C. Otto Studer, Bob Thompson, C. H. Walker, Edward Damon, or Gilmore N. Nunn, or tomorrow morning from John Osborne, secretary of the club. Out-of-town reservations should be made with Mr. Osborne immediately. The occasion will be in honor of International President and Mrs. Vincent C. Hascall of Omaha, Neb. It was decided today to make the dance separate from the banquet. Those who wish to remain for the dance will pay $1 for tickets instead of 75 cents. Chick Talcott and his famous orchestra have arrived and will furnish music for the dinner and dance. The dinner will begin at 8:15 p. m. A capacity crowd of clubmen and ladies from this part of the Panhandle will crowd the dining room of the Schneider.

TREBLE CLEF'S FINE PROGRAM TO BE TONIGHT

Christmas Music Offered at Methodist Church—Public Invited to Attend.

An outstanding Christmas program of the season is to be given tonight at the Methodist church, when the Treble Clef club presents its impressive program on the nativity of Christ. One feature of the program will be a sextet with vocal solo and piano accompaniment, also the organ in playing a flute obligato. The obligato represents the Shepherd's flute known in the tune of the infant Jesus. A short resume of each number will be given, aiding in the interpretation of each number. Trios, sextets, solos, and instrumental numbers will be featured on the program. The program will afford an evening of promising entertainment. The public is invited to attend. Twenty-four members of the club will sing the choruses under the baton of Mrs. A. N. Dille, director.

"The Messiah" Is To Demand Much Of Big Chorus

Although "The Messiah" is sung every Christmas in many cities, the great oratorio is never done exactly the same as before and the work gives full play to the individuality of the director and soloists. Locally, the oratorio will be presented at the First Baptist church next Sunday evening at 8:30 by the Philharmonic choir, or community chorus. Church services are to be closed in time for the program. The work has some of the most beautiful music, instrumental and for chorus and soloists, that has ever been written, and some of the most difficult. Some of the solos demand unusual precision, and breath control. The entire oratorio calls for feeling and volume. The big local group will be assisted by singers from Hereford and Amarillo, and an orchestra from Amarillo. On Sunday afternoon, the local chorus will go to Amarillo to assist in a presentation and broadcast at the municipal auditorium at 2:30 o'clock. The broadcast will not include all of the program but will begin at 3 p. m., it was said by Prof. Emil P. Myers, director of the Amarillo chorus. Mrs. May Foreman Carr directs the Philharmonic choir and Miss Mattie Mae Swisher the Hereford chorus.

One Window At P. O. To Remain Open Until 6

One window at the postoffice will remain open until 6 o'clock both Saturday afternoons before Christmas. Postmaster D. E. Cecil said today. Patrons will be able to secure stamps and mail packages at the window. Mail will not be given out after business transacted after the usual closing hour of 1 o'clock. "We urge that people shop early and mail their parcels early so that there will not be a last minute rush." Postmaster Cecil said this morning. "It is also a good idea to purchase a quantity of stamps in advance."

Motherless Child Delights Callers, Makes a Pal of Family's Dog, "Pepper."

Everything is a-til in the C. E. Lancaster household. Callers arrive: the telephone buzzes; gifts are received; interesting new dishes are prepared in the kitchen. And no wonder. Rev. Lancaster, pastor of the First Baptist church, and Mrs. Lancaster are making a new home for little Margery Jayne Wilson, a charming 20-month-old Indian baby. Margery is the child of highly cultured parents, but the mother died at her birth and the father, George Wilson, who conducted the singing at a recent revival meeting here, is unable because of his travels to give her the care he wishes her to have. Local persons heard him sing over Station WOAI a few nights ago. There are three other children in the family. Many gifts have been presented the child. Recently a shower was given in her honor by Mrs. J. A. Arwood and Mrs. C. O. Huber in the home of Mrs. Robert Seeds. Margery well-deserves all the attention she is receiving. A few minutes with her will convince the caller that she has an intelligence quotient above the average. She speaks words and short sentences distinctly and learns new words very day. She handles her silver carefully at meal time, helps to dress herself, and cries but little. "Reading in bed" is one of her favorite diversions. She has already made a pal of the family's dog, "Pepper," and pictures of small dogs are referred to by her as "the Pepper." She is in excellent health. The youngster was born April 9, 1933, in the Indian hospital at Albuquerque, N. M. Her father is a

Walls Reel as Flames Rage Through Death Trap

Tottering walls of the Kerns hotel, Lansing, Mich., in which more than 50 people died when flames swept the building, are shown here, silhouetted against the night sky as the blaze spread with terrifying swiftness through the four-story brick and wood structure. Guests trapped in the hotel leaped to death or serious injury in the street below, and several lost their lives when they jumped into the icy water of the Grand river, immediately back of the hostelry. Among the known dead are five legislators, who just had arrived in the capital for the legislative session.

EDDIE CANTOR FINDS NO FUN IN MUSSOLINI

Film Comedian Says Il Duce Is Second Greatest Personality In World.

(Editor's note: Eddie Cantor, American comedian, has written for the Associated Press the following account of his interview with Premier Mussolini yesterday in Rome.) By EDDIE CANTOR (Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press) MILAN, Italy, Dec. 13.—When I first went in to see Premier Mussolini I thought to make him laugh. But the man's intense seriousness pretty soon changed my tactics. He was greatly interested in my proposals for producing Italian pictures in Italy with Italian scenery as a background, but with American actors and American capital. I told him America can't produce enough good pictures to fill the theater and satisfy the insatiable demand for good films. We have hundreds of millions of dollars worth of film properties to feed

DEPUTY STOPS FISTIC ATTACK IN COURTROOM

CONVICTED SLAYER OF WIDOW GETS LIFE; L. C., 5 YEARS

EL PASO, Dec. 13. (AP)—Arthur C. Wilson was convicted of murder for the desert slaying of Mrs. Irene De Bolt, Ohio widow, today by a jury which fixed his penalty at life imprisonment. Before a courtroom crowded with women, the jury of 12 men, which began its deliberations at 5:55 p. m. (MST) yesterday, brought in a written verdict.

Swings at Wilson

As Wilson, 29-year-old former steel chemist, was led from the courtroom he grinned at Leo Rattigan, a brother of the slain woman. Rattigan leaped to his feet and swung his fist toward Wilson. A deputy sheriff sprang between the men and averted the blow. The spectators were quiet as Judge W. D. Howe mounted the bench at 8:49 a. m. "Have you reached a verdict, gentlemen?" the judge inquired. "Yes, sir," responded the foreman, Norman Klein, passing a slip of paper to the court clerk. When the clerk finished reading, Judge Howe pointed out that the jury should state the place of confinement as required. The jury was directed to retire again for a moment and returned with the specification that Wilson should serve his life sentence at the state prison which is located at Huntsville, Tex. The jury deliberated four hours and 12 minutes. One juror indicated the first ballot taken last night before dinner was unanimous for conviction. When the question of penalty was taken up on the second ballot the jury stood evenly for execution and one against it. In the remaining deliberations the sentence of life imprisonment was agreed upon. Relatives Disappointed Wilson, who was apprehended in Port of Spain, Trinidad posing as a ship's steward some eight months after the crime, offered only a brief defense of character, depositions and did not take the stand himself. He was in court early this morning, commenting to questioners on the scornful remarks directed at him after the jury retired yesterday by Mrs. Frank Cheske, sister of Mrs. De Bolt. He protested a description of him which said "courage drained from him like a water faucet." After the verdict Mrs. Cheske said

MIAMI FLA., Dec. 13.—Posting a 75 on the last round for a 72-hole total of 294, Mike Turnesa of Elmford, N. Y., today led early finishers home in the $12,500 Miami Biltmore open golf tournament, hotly pursued by Olin Dutra, national open champion, and Orville White of St. Louis.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Slightly injured in the crash of a bridge that threw a dozen spectators into five feet of water in a canal at the 7th green, Olin Dutra, national open champion, came back to sink a 45 foot putt for a birdie four on the last hole and win the $12,500 Miami Biltmore golf tournament today with a 292. His victory enriched him by $1,200.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Representative William B. Bankhead of Alabama today withdrew from the speakership contest but announced his candidacy for the house democratic floor leadership. STATE MUST DESCRIBE HOW BABY MET ITS DEATH

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Dec. 13. (AP)—Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trechard today denied eleven defense requests for particulars on the murder indictment against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, Lindbergh kidnap-slaying suspect, but directed the state to fulfill the defense demand for the prosecution theory on how young Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., met his death. In an hour-long hearing in the presence of the defendant Hauptmann, the justice told the state that five days after the service of a defense request it must supply all the information it can "with reasonable certainty" give its theory of the cause of the young child's death. The court declined to order the state to specify whether it would proceed against Hauptmann on the theory that he murdered the child

Housing Problem Is Expected To Be Solved Soon

Members of the new B. C. D. planning committee which was appointed following the recent industrial banquet, held a meeting yesterday afternoon that was described as very much worthwhile. Several projects for immediate attention were studied. Among other things, it was decided that cooperation of all business men must be sought and that each should be made thoroughly familiar with the plans. It was decided that nothing very large could be attempted without solving the housing problem. This problem is expected to be solved, in part at least, soon after January 1. Members of the committee present were F. M. Culbertson, Gilmore N. Nunn, Judge Ivy E. Duncan, R. Earle O'Keefe, and Guy E. McTaggart. This afternoon and tonight a number of Pampanians will attend the meetings and banquet in Amarillo for D. A. Skinner, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. They were to include Supt. R. B. Fisher, George Briggs, Travis Lively, and Jim Collins.

A. P. I. Banquet To Be Tonight

The annual banquet of the Panhandle chapter, American Petroleum Institute, will be held at 8 o'clock tonight in the Schneider hotel. Dr. H. H. Hicks will act as toastmaster. The banquet will follow a business meeting when officers for the coming year will be elected. The business session will be at 7 o'clock in the city auditorium. C. E. "Dan" McGrew, retiring president, will preside. Officers for the coming year will be installed at the banquet. Talks will be made by several well known speakers. The attendance will be limited to 160 persons. An interesting musical program will also be presented.

CONTROL OF WAR PROFITS

Panhandle Legionnaires doubtless read with satisfaction that President Roosevelt was endorsing their long-sought move for conscripting of wealth as well as men in time of war. The Clarendon Legion convention passed resolutions on this subject this week.

In the past, war has been a boon to manufacturers. War is an emergency. The demand for munitions is always greater than the supply. Speed is essential. Money talks. Lacking the necessary organization to prosecute a war, the government tries to make up for lack of preparedness by spending money lavishly.

It has been proved beyond debate that certain manufacturers have greatly desired war and that some of them have, to say the least, made peace less likely than war. Future wars will involve more than those in the trenches. We may as well admit now that no resource of the nation will be secure. Those at home will have their hazards from enemy planes. Money, certainly, should not be more secure than men.

Wartime sacrifices should be shared and war should not be a manufacturers' picnic.

To take the profits out of war is to make war less likely and to eliminate, in large measure, the question of future bonuses. Mr. Roosevelt has courage in getting behind the movement to control profits in wartime.

THE WAY I SEE THE SCHOOLS

Free and universal education is deeply rooted in the ideals of liberty-loving people. America's pioneer statesmen were wise enough to create schools to lay the basis for intelligent cooperation necessary to make democracy a success. A century and a half of building for justice and right to all men has proved the wisdom of those early leaders.

The present world breakdown is forcing the revelation of many long-accepted ways of thought and action. The nations are meeting the crisis in different ways. Some have resorted to dictatorships—a type of despotism which the people themselves hope may be temporary. The people of our own country are now making readjustments of the greatest importance. Our national future depends upon the wisdom and loyalty with which this generation and the next make the decisions which lie ahead. The result will depend upon how well we prepare our people to think straight and to act wisely.

During our recent American Education week, teachers, school officers, and citizens joined in a renewed dedication to the ideals of democracy and the free public school as the most powerful means for achieving those ideals. Let us study the schools and seek to make them better. Let us support them. They are the safeguards to our democracy.—J. W. Crabtree.

A Washington Daybook

By RODNEY DUTCHER

NE AService Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The administration usually is smart enough not to burn its fingers twice on the same red-hot poker.

That's why you shouldn't anticipate much if any fuss over the seating of Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico.

Not that the administration didn't try hard to defeat Cutting this year. Not that the Farley-Hurja political machine still wouldn't like to replace this Republican progressive with a regular Democrat. Not that Congressman Dennis Chavez, defeated by fewer than 1300 votes, isn't aching to contest the election if he can get enough support from Democratic forces. Not that partisan politics doesn't usually figure as importantly in such contests as the merits of the case or that the huge Democratic majority in the senate which would have to pass on the contest wouldn't ordinarily be a tempting set-up for a man in the position of Chavez.

But the red-hot poker in this instance is a solid bloc of progressives, including the ablest fighters in congress and determined that no one is going to do Cutting any dirt. If the administration wants to take on the battle of its career with Norris, LaFollette, Borah, Cutting, Costigan, Wheeler, McCarran, Bone, Johnson, Capper, Long and a few more of those fellows, it can encourage Chavez. The bitterness certain to be stirred up by such a move might easily mess up the whole next session.

So you needn't be surprised if Chavez is appointed to some federal job.

Sentiment for Cutting, shared even by some conservative Democrats, might cool if it developed that any serious monkey business figured in Cuttings election. No evidence of that has been supplied by Chavez, and progressives have assurance from Cutting that there wasn't any.

Senate inquiries needn't worry the munitions manufacturers, so long as Norman Davis in Europe promises we'll keep on building battleships as fast as Japan does.

Britain Seeking Pacts With Both Japan And U. S.

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP)—Both Japan and the United States are courting Great Britain for a possible future bi-lateral naval accord, diplomatic quarters said today.

This development came with the current conversations of the three greatest sea powers on the threshold of adjournment. They may be resumed next year.

The Japanese delegation joined the British in expressing optimism that an agreement may be possible in 1935 and that it would make every effort to reach one when the talks are resumed.

There appeared little possibility, however, that Tokyo would give up its demand for full equality—what deadlocked the present conversations.

Japan, diplomatic quarters reported, appears just as interested in an accord with Great Britain as the Americans are. While the British privately indicated they might later welcome an agreement with the United States, in the event there is no general naval treaty after 1936, they are doing everything possible to retain friendly relations with Japan.

For this reason separate accords with both Tokyo and Washington are possible.

Rayburn Quits Speaker's Race

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP)—Now that the choice of Representative Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee as speaker is all over but the formalities, several democrats strove hard today for the next highest post in the house—the floor leadership.

Among men seeking the office or mentioned for it were Representatives John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, John E. Rankin of Mississippi, James M. Mead, and John J. O'Connor of New York, William W. Arnold, and Adolph J. Sabath of Illinois.

Seeing the Byrns band wagon roll swiftly along, Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas, withdrew from the speakership contest last night.

Rayburn, in withdrawing said: "I am no longer a candidate for speaker. There are no alibis. Under the circumstances, I cannot be elected."

The latest state to go for Byrns is West Virginia, whose democratic delegation made its decision last night. The Illinois delegation is slated to go on record for him tonight in Chicago.

"I'm in," Byrns has said, "I have more than enough votes to win."

Are You Going To Let "STRIPPING PLANTS" Make A GHOST CITY OF PAMPA?

In the early nineties, Nevada, Colorado, was a very flourishing city. The ore reserves of the rich mines in the vicinity were said to be practically inexhaustible.

NATURAL RESOURCES do not renew themselves. Once they are gone, no wishful regrets can bring them back... no tearful promises to use them wisely the next time can do the least good.

Cities built upon a foundation of the exploitation of natural resources all make the same mistake. They underestimate the rate of exploitation and the ingenuity of mankind in trampling through the gifts of nature.

Here in the Panhandle, a further mistake is made. It is assumed by many, that while our oil and gas reserves and industries are of great importance... they are by no means vital to our future.

This is proved readily by valuation and taxation figures. In the six principal oil and gas counties of the Panhandle... Wheeler, Gray, Carson, Hutchinson, Moore and Potter...

Some of these plants are said to have used several hundred times the natural gas under their leases—draining the rest, without compensation, from adjacent leases.

After the oil field and all of the refineries and other industries dependent on it are gone, the gas reserves will be next. The Panhandle will be back to burning coal; and our carbon black plants, zinc smelter, and other industries which have been built around the plentiful supply of cheap fuel will have vanished.

HELP STOP THIS DESTRUCTION Your new governor and representatives in the State Legislature would like to know your views.

IN THE NEWS REELS . . . See and hear "stripping plants" blowing our natural gas reserves to the winds! The new Universal News Reel made during the Congressional Committee's investigation will be at the Texas Theatre, Amarillo, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, December 16th to 18th.

Glad She Lost 22 Lbs. of Fat

"When I started to use Kruschen Salts I weighed 153 and now with my 3rd bottle I weigh 131 pounds without any harm done. Thanks to Kruschen. I like it because it doesn't weaken me as some other salts I had taken. I have lost 3 pounds in one week and haven't starved a single moment." Libbie J. Lahut, Parma, Ohio (Dec. 6, 1932).

Here is the debris of the storage vaults at Virginia City! Gold and silver were literally oozing out of this giant young metropolis, when, about 1870, these vaults were built as a haven for the treasure.

BAKER P-TA HEARS DELEGATES; AIDS SCHOOL MUSIC FUND

CAROLS SUNG TO OPEN THE MEETING HOUR

SPEAKER GIVES NEW "RECIPE FOR A P-TA"

A clever "Recipe for Making a Good P-TA" was given to B. M. Baker Parent-Teacher association yesterday afternoon by Mrs. C. T. Hunkapillar, who stressed the membership suggestions presented at the recent state Parent-Teacher convention she attended in Corpus Christi.

"Choose a goodly number of parents and teachers with genuine love of children in their hearts (avoid the imitation)," the recipe said. "Add a pinch of the salt of the earth, season well with good common sense and moisten with the milk of human kindness."

"Mix in a generous quantity of a keen sense of humor. Be sure no sour grapes are allowed or they will curdle the whole mixture. Stir all together with programs well flavored with variety, the spice of life. Bring to the boiling point of enthusiasm with clever publicity."

"Cover with the blanket of state and national guidance and set to raise in a pleasant school, guarded by an understanding principal. If mixed by the hand of a wise leader who measures ingredients with the golden rule, there can be no failure. Students to demonstrate will leave a pleasant taste and kindly glow in the entire community."

Mrs. Hunkapillar mentioned the state suggestions that associations present some programs for fathers, and allow the students to demonstrate their school work in programs.

Mrs. Raymond Harrah, another delegate to the convention, spoke on the conference on motion picture. The character and conduct of children are affected by the type of movies they see, she said. Recreation, like education, should be for welfare and not profit.

Mrs. Claude Lard concluded the delegates' reports, reviewing the address given by Mrs. Langworthy on "The Bridge Across the Chasm."

Christmas carols led by Miss Evelyn Shanklin were sung by the group to open the program, and Maxine Holt played a piano solo.

In the business session, with Mrs. Roy Holt presiding, members voted to purchase music memory records for the school, and also to purchase new song books.

Play and Letter By Pupils Tell Christmas Story

An imaginary Christmas trip in 1942 is described in a letter written by Aubrey Green, sixth grade pupil from Miss Loma Grooms' room at Horace Mann school. This room has been studying Christmas customs in other lands, and pupils have chosen various ways to describe them.

One who received honorable mention was Ellen Keough, who wrote a play, Jane's Dream, with characters including an American girl who falls asleep with her Christmas book, a good fairy, and children from foreign lands.

Aubrey starts his letter, "Yesterday I bought a new rocket ship and started to take a little Christmas trip in the evening after work."

"We zipped across the English channel. We got out for a cup of coffee in Paris, and as we walked down the street we saw little shoes on the porches. We asked a taxi driver what the shoes were for. He said that children put them out for old Saint Nicholas to fill with sweets. If they were very good, they would have money in them."

"As soon as we had our coffee we zoomed over to little Belgium. There they have the beautiful habit of singing Christmas carols."

"We shot back across the ocean, in time for a good American Christmas dinner."

Excerpts from the play tell of customs in other lands. "English child speaks) In England the children sing carols to wake people. Long ago when people would go to mass on Christmas morning they would call it Christes Masse, meaning Christ's Mass. That is how we got the name Christmas."

"Armenian child speaks) In Armenia we celebrate Christmas on January 6. We give our friends gifts, and then go around to the houses of our aunts and uncles. If they wish to give us something they put a coin in the apple which we carry. We also climb upon an older friend's house and put a basket tied to a long rope down the chimney. It's filled with home made things. When we think it is filled we pull it up and see what it contains."

"Brazilian child speaks) Our Christmas or Yuletide comes in mid-summer and we wear our finest clothes. We are told that if we go out after the clock strikes 12 we may hear the animals talk of the birth of Christ. We usually, however, stay close to our grandmother and take her word for it."

Auxiliary Members To Exchange Gifts. Gifts will be exchanged by members of American Legion Auxiliary at a social meeting at Legion Hut tomorrow evening. Each member is to bring a gift not exceeding 25 cents in value, for exchange on the tree.

A part of the meeting will be spent preparing Christmas boxes for war veterans in hospitals.

Dagmar's Adventures in Santa Claus Land

BY SIGRID ARNE

SYNOPSIS: Santa is so discouraged because something unexplainable has ruined his holly Christmas wreaths, but Dagmar, his favorite doll, and a tin soldier follow two moles into the ground, thinking the moles know something about it.

Chapter IV THE EARTHWORM HELPS. The winding stairs which the toys had taken in following the moles wound down, down and around and around into the earth. The dolls felt as if they had walked a mile straight down, but that was only because they were frightened.

The air was stuffy, and once in a while they saw an earth-worm stick his head out of the walls of the stairs and look at them goggle-eyed. The moles had gotten some distance ahead of the dolls. Soon the dolls heard, "way ahead of them, the muffled sound of a door opening and closing. They felt a draft of cooler air."

"Well, they either went out or went in somewhere," said the wise tin soldier. "Sure enough, after a while the two dolls came to the bottom of the stairs, and there was a big, wooden door with black hinges, and a little window set high in it."

"Here," said the toy soldier, "I'll hold you up. You peek in and tell me what you see." He boosted Dagmar up to the window. She peered and then she said, "O-o-o-o. It's the queerest big room, and dozens of moles are sitting around on little crooked chairs of tree roots that seem to come right out of the ground. There is one old, gray mole sitting on the highest chair, wearing spectacles and writing on a piece of paper with a quill pen. The two moles followed are standing in front of him and talking. All the rest are listening."

The tin soldier set Dagmar down and they looked at each other solemnly. They wanted to go in and hear what was being said. But they didn't know how to do it. They were afraid.

Just then another earth-worm popped right up out of the floor at their feet and looked at them goggle-eyed. "When are you two going?" asked the worm.

"We want to go in there," said the dolls pointing to the door. "That's dangerous," said the worm. "The moles might put you in prison."

Then the earth-worm looked very solemn. He lashed his tail around, and dug in a pocket way down at the end of him, and pulled out a tiny, white pebble.

"This is more than a pebble," he said. "The Queen of Fairies gave it to me once when I helped her. I'll lead it to you. Rub it once, and it will make you invisible. Rub it twice, and you will be visible again."

"Oh, thank you," said the dolls. "How can we return it to you?" "Just tap on the ground five times, and I will hear you," said the worm. "Good luck." In a minute he had slid back into the earth floor, and was gone.

The two dolls took long, deep breaths. Then the toy soldier rubbed the pebble, and in a flash he couldn't see Dagmar and she couldn't see him. But they could hear each other. They laughed softly, pulled open the door to the moles' big hall, and slipped in unseen by the moles.

MOVE TO HALT ARMS INQUIRY IS PROTESTED

FDR'S ACTION CALLED 'AMAZING' BY NYE, CHAIRMAN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP)—A warning that any attempt to sidetrack the senate arms inquiry would lead to a bitter fight in congress came today from members of the investigating committee as President Roosevelt's independent move to make war profits got under way.

At the same time it became clear that the program to be drawn by Bernard M. Baruch, Hugh S. Johnson and other prominent new dealers named by the president probably will center around these cardinal points:

1. Should war break out, prices would be frozen immediately to prevent skyrocketing.
2. War profits would be seized by drastic taxation. A 1932 report of the war policies commission, on which the president's new board will base its study, urged a 95 percent tax on all income above "the previous 3-year average."
3. Machinery would be created for the swift mobilization of the nation's industrial resources in time of conflict.

Administration officials strove today to remove an unbecoming feeling by some members of the senate munitions committee that the president's move was designed to check the senate inquiry.

After the committee chairman, Senator Nye (R., N. D.), had said it was "amazing" that "efforts should now be made to seem to check and halt" the committee work, President Roosevelt made plain that congressional leaders would be consulted in the program to take profit out of war.

Also, Baruch, who heads the presidential board, said after a conference at the White House that he hoped the senate committee would continue its work, which he praised highly. Secretary of War Dern, who omitted to keep a reported engagement with committee members recently, planned to confer with them today.

Four of the seven senators on the munitions committee agreed the inquiry would go ahead. They planned to plunge today into an investigation of how the war department procures its supplies.

tion is the stylish young doctor who seems to prefer society girls to the practice of medicine.

Following in his dad's footsteps, Robert (Buck) Talley represents the law in this mystery comedy. He will be remembered for his excellent performance as Judge Carlisle in "Attorney for the Defense" last spring. L. J. Coombes as the nervous gardener plays a different part well.

Two negro characters lend comedy. Nadine Randolph is Aunt Sue, who won't marry Uncle Jake until he saves $5.50. Jim Bob Johnson as white haired Uncle Jake has matrimonial intentions and is always pestering Aunt Sue with his sweet words.

Tickets for the play are on sale by all seniors at 20 and 35 cents. Proceeds will be applied on the class trip to Carlsbad Cavern next spring.

I did not kill Osborne

By VICTOR BRIDGES

SYNOPSIS: Nicholas Trench has been acquitted of the murder of his former school friend, Osborne, but finds indications that the public does not agree with the verdict. His cousin, Sir Seymour, has suggested that Nicholas leave the country, and Nicholas has furiously denounced him. Now, after a dinner alone, Nicholas is walking down a lonely road to his studio when a hoarse voice accosts him.

Chapter Eight
TWO MESSAGES
"Gorblimey!" the voice exclaimed. "Strike me dead if it ain't Mr. Trench!"

Out of the gloom a tattered but familiar figure lurched into view. It was Bob Hicks, a genial old dervish who hung about outside the neighboring pub, and whom I sometimes employed to fetch me a taxi.

"Hello, Bob," I said. "Waiting to welcome me home?"

"Lorlume! you could 'ave knocked me down with a feather, you could!" He thrust out a grimy paw. "If you don't mind, guv'nor, I'd be proud to shake you're 'and."

We exchanged grips. "Thanks, Bob," I said. "It's nice to know that somebody's pleased to see one."

"Pleased! Why, when the noose comes along this afternoon, I was that glad I could 'ave turned a bleedin' cartwheel. If it 'adn't been close on openin' time I don't know as 'ow I'd 'a carried on."

I searched in my pocket and discovered a shilling. "You look a bit shaky even now," I said. "Perhaps you'd feel better after you'd drunk my health."

He took the coin and spat on it explosively. "Gawd bless yer, guv'nor! 't's a fair treat to see you back again, an' I only 'ope the party as done the dirty on yer will get it in the blinkin' neck. Pinchin' a gentleman like you, and tryin' to make out as 'e goes about 'corpsin' folks. Never 'eard such blasted foolishness!"

I laughed. "How have you been getting on out here?" I inquired. "Anything exciting happened while I've been away?"

He tilted back his cap and scratched his head. "Nothin' special, guv'nor. Old 'Arry, the newspaper seller, 'e's rumored over to be a bus in Camden Town last Sunday, and I did 'ear tell that the stoodle next door to your's been tooked by a lady."

"What sort of a lady?" I inquired. "I ain't seen 'er meself. It was the bloke at the milk shop as told me."

"Well, it can't be helped," I said. "As long as she doesn't play the piano I dare say we shall hit it off all right." I paused. "By the way, Bob," I added, "if you're around in the morning you might give me a look up about nine. I'll probably want you to do some shopping for me."

"Right you are, guv'nor. I'll be there."

He stumbled off into the dusk, and continuing my journey up the hill, I arrived at the narrow passage which led to my retreat. I was just turning the corner when a diminutive telegraph boy appeared from the opposite direction.

"Be' pardon, sir," he inquired. "but does this 'appen to be Queen Studios?"

"Yes," I said. "who are you looking for?"

"That's me," I replied ungrammatically. He produced a buff envelope which he thrust into my hand, and wishing me good night, sauntered off with surprising trustfulness.

Pushing open the gate in the fence, I found everything in complete darkness. The next door building showed no sign of life, and concluding that my new neighbor had not yet taken up her residence, I unlocked my own front door and switched on the electric light.

The first thing that met my eyes was a note lying on the hall floor. When I picked it up I saw that it had been sent by special messenger. The envelope was addressed in typewriting, and wondering who was in such a hurry to get in touch with me, I walked on into the studio.

Ever since my arrest the place, had of course, been in the hands of the police. It was obvious, by what had come out at the trial, that they must have ransacked my belongings from top to bottom in the hope of discovering further evidence against me, but of this laudable activity there seemed at first sight to be practically no trace.

Except for a neatly arranged pile of letters on the desk everything appeared to be exactly as I had left it. Even the timetable in which I had looked up my train to Brightington that fateful morning was still lying on the table—a mute, but not uneloquent witness to the truthfulness of my defense.

I glanced up the stairs that led to my bedroom. The door was shut other newspaper reader I had, of course, heard of Sir William Avon. I knew that in addition to being one of the foremost engineering contractors in the world, he was also a man of enormous wealth, but what his object could be in seeking an interview with me I was utterly at a loss to imagine.

Was it, I wondered, in any way connected with Osborne? That the dead man had been mixed up in some queer and sinister business I had no doubt whatever. His obvious nervousness and his attempt to arrange a plan for escaping secretly to the Continent both pointed to the same conclusion, but that such a distinguished and important person as Sir William could be implicated in the same mystery was too startling a theory to be readily accepted.

I was on the point of reading the letter through for a second time, when, considerably to my surprise, I heard a ring at the front door bell. The sound indeed was so unexpected that I gave an involuntary start.

Who on earth could it be? I had confided my plans to nobody except Mr. Cresswell, and, surely, if it were one of my friends who had come round to congratulate me on my acquittal, he would at least have taken the trouble to ring me up first in order to make certain that I was back at the studio.

The bell thrilled again, and putting down the letter I went out into the hall and jerked back the latch. Two men were standing outside—one of them a tall bearded figure in gold spectacles, and the other shorter and clean-shaven, with a soft hat pulled forward on his forehead. As far as I could remember I had never seen either of them before in my life.

It was the taller man who spoke first. "Good evening," he said in a slightly foreign accent. "Am I addressing Mr. Nicholas Trench?"

"You are," I admitted. "My name," he went on, "is Stellman. I must apologize for disturbing you at this hour, but I have just come into possession of a certain piece of information which I think you ought to be acquainted with at once. If you can spare us a few minutes I assure you it will be to your advantage."

Tomorrow, a mysterious voice interferences with a murder.

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything. What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and 1/2 of our food decays in our 28 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped tomato, don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a calomel (mercury) pill, which loosens the bowels and sends the rest of your bile juice by mail and get what you ask for—25¢. ©1934, C.M.C.O.

BUT THE WOLF'S AT THE DOOR
LOS ANGELES—"Help," screamed a woman over the telephone, "there's a wolf at my door!"

Police rushed to the address and sure enough, a big gray timber wolf sat on the front porch, howling dismally. A sergeant advanced to lasso the animal. It trotted out to meet him. The sergeant retreated. Then Miss Jean Tabot appeared. "Oh, I'm so glad you found him," she sighed, and calmly took her pet wolf home.

GREENVILLE CLUB IS WEAK ON PASS DEFENSE AND CORSICANA IS STRONG

BOTH CORPUS AND AMARILLO ARE FAVORED

BIG SPRING'S OFFENSE IS UNORTHODOX AND TRICKY

By BILL PARKEE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cautions will be just a meaningless word Friday at Greenville when the Corsicana Tigers tie into the Greenville Lions. It will be one of the four crucial Texas interscholastic league bi-district football games carded this week-end.

What a thriller it promises to be. In 1932, Corsicana eliminated Greenville from the state race in a scoreless game which the Tigers won on a 20-yard penetration. Last year Greenville won the championship.

Greenville's weakness is pass defense. Corsicana's strongest offense is passing. Passes enabled Corsicana to turn in one of the season's biggest upsets—a district victory over a powerful Temple team. Three Corsicana backs are passers, and they feature a wild assortment of aerial heaves. Greenville is worried over Corsicana's passing and the Tigers are working like trojans to perfect a defense for Greenville's deceptive ground formations.

Friday's South Texas football crowd will move into Corpus Christi where the invading Houston Jeff Davis Panthers battle the Corpus Christi Buccaneers. While this game doesn't promise the rivalry of the Corsicana and Greenville tussle, it probably will be well staged with action. With both teams in top condition, they probably will keep fans wondering what's going to happen next.

In Haas, Corpus Christi boasts a one-man football team. No defense has stopped him. He led his district in scoring and easily ranks as one of the league's finest ball carriers.

Saturday's schedule will pit the Amarillo Golden Sandies against the Big Spring Steers at Lubbock, and the Dallas Highland Park Scotties against Masonic Home at Fort Worth. Amarillo and Masonic Home are overwhelming favorites. Both rely on power plays and have the material to depend on.

Big Spring will attempt to beat Amarillo with a tricky offense that features plenty of unorthodox football. Highland Park hopes its Notre Dame shift will bewilder Masonic Home.

Walker And Haner Were Outstanding

WALKER, end

Coming to the front rapidly at the close of the season, Odell Walker got his big chance against Lubbock and Amarillo. He was outstanding. Walker was a good pass receiver and a stellar defensive player. He will not return next season.

HANER, center

One of the best defensive players on the team was Bill Haner, big center. His offensive work was erratic, however. He played his last year, being shifted from guard to center.

RICE PLAYER IS ON CAMP'S ALL-AMERICAN

COLLIER'S PUTS BILL WALLACE AT BACK WITH BORRIES

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Selections for Collier's All-America football team, which is a perpetuation of the original All-America founded by Walter Camp 50 years ago, were announced today. The players chosen are:

Ends: Hutson, Alabama; Larson, Minnesota.
Tackles: Lee, Alabama; Reynolds, Stanford.
Guards: Barclay, N. Carolina; Egan, Minnesota.
Center: Shotwell, Pittsburgh.
Quarterback: Grayson, Stanford.
Halfbacks: Wallace, Rice; Borries, Navy.
Fullback: Lund, Minnesota.

In awarding the Walter Camp gold footballs to these players, the judges declare that "a leading feature of this year's campaign was the wide spread of football talent thru every section of the country, although there was a slight decline among the headlines in line play, five of the eight sections reporting no tackle quite up to All-America consideration."

The completed team has players from seven colleges. Minnesota's fast, crunching team gets three places, Alabama lands two, Tennessee and Stanford have a tackle and the quarterback. Sectionally, the eastern colleges are represented by only two places, occupied by representatives of Pittsburgh and Navy; the South has four players; the mid-West, three Minnesota men; the Pacific coast, two players from Stanford.

Southern football comes to the forefront more prominently than ever before in the history of the Walter Camp awards.

Larson of Minnesota is the only player whose name appeared on last year's list. The closest battle was in the backfield, where twelve candidates ran neck and neck for only four places. Berwanger of Chicago is adjudged to have been "the star all-around" of the year and the most brilliant of all the lot, until injured before the Ohio State, until Purvis of Purdue is another star who suffered the same hard luck.

Walter Camp, who died about ten years ago, would hardly recognize this year's selections as a believable All-America team, for practically none of the colleges which were football leaders in his day are any longer represented.

MAJOR LEAGUE MEETING MAY END WITHOUT ANY BIG DEALS

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—There is a strong probability that the current major league baseball meeting may wind up tonight without a single major deal to put an edge on the otherwise dull and lifeless proceedings.

This unheard of situation develops when the three-cornered swap between the New York, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia Nationals began wobbling and threatened to go by the boards entirely.

Until midnight the thing seemed to be all right, but the Cincinnati Reds in exchange for Don Brennan or Allyn Stout, pitchers.

No deals were closed yesterday and word went around that the Boston Red Sox have about given up hope of landing Oscar Melillo, St. Louis second sacker or Buddy Myer, key-stone guardian for the Washington Senators.

The matter of the Boston Braves and dog racing apparently was settled with a brief, but carefully worded statement by Judge Emil C. Fuchs, president of the National League, who said that nothing will be done by me to embarrass baseball or the National League under the rules of which betting is prohibited in "parks where baseball is played."

ARCHEOLOGIST RE-ASSEMBLING FOSSIL BONES OF MONSTER

CANYON, Dec. 13.—Stuart Johnston of the archaeology and paleontology department of the West Texas State Teachers college is restoring fossil bones of prehistoric Panhandle monsters. The source of Mr. Johnston's finds is near Canyon, where he and his classes have excavated many valuable remains of prehistoric beasts.

Among the recent discoveries in this bed was a collection of elephant teeth, some of which belonged to what then were the largest mammals or warm blooded animals. Another find was a number of fossil pieces which when replaced by Mr. Johnston took the form of the lower jaw bone of a shovelled-mouth mastodon. At present, Prof. Johnston is restoring the upper leg bone of the imperial elephant, the largest of the mammals. When the leg is completed it will give a tangible idea of the size of the creature upon which it belonged.

An exhibition in the Panhandle-Plains Historical society museum of all the fossil discoveries on hand will be given upon the completion of the present projects.

Cummings Urges 'West Point' For U. S. Policemen

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP)—A "West Point" for policemen of the nation and a permanent anti-crime organization to unify the efforts of all peace officers are salient developments expected to result from Attorney General Cummings' crime conference, which ends tonight.

Friends of the attorney general predicted the gathering would empower a selected group—probably a portion of the arrangements committee—to act as a clearing house on crime problems.

This would meet with the suggestion of Scott M. Liffin, president of the American Bar association, that the conference set up a permanent organization.

The justice department was said to be ready to begin the instruction of a small group—perhaps two dozen—police officers as a starter.

Plans for a curriculum have not been worked out, but the division of investigation was understood to be ready to frame a set of courses.

Besides these goals, the leaders of the colorful assembly of sociologists, detectives, and jurists hoped arrangements for a survey of various aspects of the crime problem could be worked out today.

MEXICO GAMBLING JOINTS SHUT UP
MEXICO, D. F., Dec. 13 (AP)—Closing of the two most luxurious gambling and night life centers in this part of Mexico, the Foreign Club and the La Selva Casino, is seen in governmental circles as the start of a campaign which will not leave a single gambling house in the country open by the end of the year.

President Lazaro Cardenas, at whose suggestion the joints were ordered shut, has received hundreds of congratulations on his action.

The Foreign Club, just outside the federal district, and the Casino de la Selva, 50 miles south, are to be converted into schools, hospitals or community houses, it is reported.

Relief And NRA Are Criticized By Farm Bureau

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 13 (AP)—The American Farm Bureau Federation closed its sixteenth annual convention with a criticism of federal relief administration and the NRA.

The new deal agencies were criticized in resolutions adopted by the farmers at the final meeting last night. They turned to resolutions after hearing David E. Lilienthal, power director of the Tennessee Valley authority, describe rural electrification such as has been undertaken by the TVA as a major factor in strengthening American agriculture.

Subsequently they elected new directors, including Mrs. Abbie Sargent of Bedford, N. H., the first woman ever to sit on the federation's board.

The resolution on federal relief was directed at the purported dependency of relief recipients, the achievements of work projects and the scales of pay on such projects.

"We cannot approve a continuation of plans and operations connected with federal relief projects during the last two years," said the resolution, "which have in many instances promoted a desire on the part of some of our citizens to be unemployed, and have in other instances developed an alarming thought in the minds of many voters that the government owes them a living, irrespective of whether or not they do anything to justify the governmental relief given them."

To Make Blood Test in Trial

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 12 (AP)—The perjury trial of the Rev. William D. Welburn Jr., took an unexpected turn today when Mrs. Wineta Long Welburn, divorcee, agreed to the witness stand to a blood test for her 12 months old son, William Drummond Welburn, III.

"This blood test will show that this defendant is not the father of her baby," Defense Attorney Dave Watson informed the court.

Stepping from the witness chair as the noon recess was called, Mrs. Welburn declared:

"The blood test will show Bill Welburn is the father."

The Rev. Mr. Welburn's perjury trial is a direct result of previous testimony at a divorce trial that he was never married to the mother and that he was not the father of her child.

the world, just as we are happy at seeing the finest boat in the world. A mistaken idea is that it takes great capital to make swell films. I know lots of million dollar failures and many more hundred thousand dollar successes.

It is not the money put into the film that counts. It is the story, thought, inspiration, and honesty behind the film that counts.

Years ago Italy made some of the best films in the world. "Quo Vadis" and "Cabiria" are among them. But the advent of talkies changed the situation. If you take American actors and put them into gorgeous Italian situations in Italy you have undoubtedly a wonderful success for a picture.

I thought to go into Premier Mussolini's office to have some fun, besides giving him a message. But I saw he was interested far more in doing something that was good for Italy than just cracking jokes.

I found him a very human sort of man. I first realized then why Italy has worshipped him all these years. I wonder if they appreciate him in Europe.

He not only is a great man in Italy. He is the policeman of Europe. You have but to show Mussolini on a news reel in the United States and the theater will be swept with applause. The only other man who can equal him in this is President Roosevelt.

conserved. To let a farm lose its fertility is to damage that land for many years and rob the next generation. In this section, trees naturally grow along water courses. It would be far more logical to plant the trees around the ponds, it appears to us, than to plant them in belts. It is our guess, and only a guess, that without soil and water conservation, the drying winds would continue to blow, searing trees as well as crops, in every drought year.

"We respect the jury's verdict but we are disappointed," District Attorney Roy Jackson said "we feel the death sentence should have been imposed."

DALLAS, Dec. 13. (AP)—L. C. Barrow, brother of the slain outlaws Clyde and Buck Barrow, was convicted today of robbery with firearms and sentenced to five years imprisonment. The jury found him guilty of participating in the $29 robbery of W. B. Dougherty's drug store here the night of Oct. 27.

Young Barrow attempted to establish an alibi, claiming he was at a dance the night of the robbery. Several defense witnesses supported his plea. The state, through Dougherty and George Henry Giddings, employe of the store, positively identified him as one of the three gunmen.

The defendant's brother, Clyde, and Bonnie Parker, were shot to death by officers in Louisiana a few months ago, ending an intensive hunt for the outlaw couple. Buck was killed in a gun fight with Iowa officers.

L. C. Barrow was convicted some time ago and given a five year suspended sentence for automobile theft. Other charges are on file against him in automobile theft and robbery cases.

Instructions for Mailing Issued

Shop early wrap and address parcels carefully, and then mail early, is the plea of local postoffice officials, who are beginning to worry about the lack of early mailing.

There are only 11 mailing days left before Christmas, and it is time that parcels for the far east are being mailed so that delivery before Christmas will be assured. Cards, letters, and parcels for foreign countries, should be in the mail by this time.

All parcels should be wrapped securely and tied with strong twine. Fragile articles should be more carefully wrapped and a fragile sticker placed on the parcel. The same is true of perishable goods. Addresses should be plainly printed in ink, or written on a typewriter.

Use of fancy Christmas paper for wrapping parcels should be discouraged. Plain white or brown paper should be used. Air mail and special delivery is recommended for speed and safety.

Additional clerks will be used at the local office until after the Christmas rush. Efforts will be made to deliver every letter and parcel received before Christmas day.

Cotton Contracts Made Effective

COLLEGE STATION, Dec. 13.—All cotton reduction contracts signed in 1934 have been declared effective in 1935 by the secretary of agriculture, and require a reduction of 25 per cent of the base acreage with optional reduction and payments being made up to 30 per cent, according to information received from Washington by H. H. Williamson, vice director and state agent for the Extension service.

Rental payments of 3 1/2 cents per pound on the average yield and parity payments of not less than 1-1/4 cents per pound on the farm allotment will be made. New one-year contracts will be offered growers who did not sign contracts this year. There are expected to be ready soon so that they can be signed and accepted by March 1.

In recommending this program, C. A. Cobb, chief of the cotton production section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, emphasized that the rate of reduction would permit an expansion of about 25 per cent of the acreage planted by contracting producers over the acreage blanketed in 1934.

If the Bankhead act is continued in 1935, the yield is estimated at 12 million bales. If the Bankhead act is discontinued, the total production would be greater and probably would result in a crop of slightly more than 13 million bales. Among the factors which would tend to increase total production if the Bankhead act were not in effect would be the development of new cotton lands and the probability of a smaller per cent of non-signers entering into contracts for the 1935 season. It was pointed out by the Cotton Production section of the Bankhead act is a matter of opinion and not subject to precise economic analysis. After a searching examination of

AMERICAN JAIL SYSTEM FLAYED BY U. S. JUDGE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13. (AP)—The American penal system was called "purposeless, haphazard, cruel and disgraceful" today by Judge Joseph O. Hutcheson of the fifth circuit court of appeals.

Previously, the attorney general's crime conference heard Scott M. Loftin, president of the American Bar association, urge annual nation-wide crime conferences and selection of judges for criminal courts who are "fair and unbiased" and "free from political or other prejudice."

Judge Hutcheson, who lives at Houston, said the present "unsocial system of caging and uncaring men for periods of time without classification based upon their past or provision for their future" should be corrected.

He said that in the southern district of Texas when he examined county jails he found conditions "so medieval and barbarous and so contrary to the ordinary principles of democracy and social justice that I was shocked beyond expression."

"I found that men with lungs and hearts, nerves and brains like mine were penned up for months on end with hardly a single decent thing to do. They had no access to the open air, no opportunity for exercise except in the bull pen and runarounds inside of dark walls. Their workout yesterday morning, however, was so realistic that neighbors ran out of their homes offering to help him. He explained that Chiquita was "only playing."

Conservation of Water Planned at Perryton Meeting

George Briggs and J. S. Wynne Tuesday attended the moisture conservation meeting held in Perryton, where an organization was formed to work for the project.

The movement ultimately is intended to result in building of small lakes and ponds of farms and ranches, together with terracing of all rolling lands. In this manner the rain water will be conserved, erosion retarded, and, it is hoped, a favorable change made in the weather.

W. H. Sewell, Pollett attorney, was elected president of the organization, which was called the Great Plains Farm Pond and Terracing association.

Hamlin Opposes Bankhead Cotton Reduction Plan

STAMFORD, Dec. 13 (AP)—James D. Hamlin, president of the West Texas chamber of commerce, and other officials of the body, declared against the acreage control feature of the Bankhead cotton reduction act in a letter mailed to directors of the organization yesterday.

Hamlin said the domestic allotment plan endorsed by J. E. McDonald, state commissioner of agriculture and Congressman Marvin Jones, "will result in a far more beneficial measure for our section."

Cotton farmers of Texas and the nation will vote tomorrow on continuation for another year of abandonment of the Bankhead act. Hamlin said the acreage control act would "stagnate West Texas' future agricultural development; take cotton acres away from us and give them to other nations; cause a loss of the foreign market for cotton and increase unemployment by throwing idle cotton tenants and croppers on relief rolls."
