Practically all the Harvesters saw action last night. Norman Cox led the scoring with 11 points.

BETTING ODDS FAVOR BEARS

By ROBERT MYERS

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 29 (AP)—Having spent days taking the two teams apart to find out what makes them tick, sideline observers came to the conclusion today that betting odds favoring California over Alabama in the Rose Bowl are slightly askew.

Since the day the Golden Bears named the Crimson Tide as their foe in the New Year's day grid tussle, California has ruled the favorite. Some even went so far as to accuse the Pacific coast champions of picking a soft touch.

Things have changed, and most of the so-called experts view the game as a toss-up between Alabama's speed and accepted smartness, and California's power, superior weight and experience.

The Bears have more 200-pounders than the Tide squad, but any notion that the Dixie eleven is made up of featherweights is erroneous. Since it is impossible to put the various individuals on the scales, the hand-out weights will have to do.

Here they are: lined up against each other:

California	Pos.	Alabama
Belman (184)	lt.	Shoomaker (172)
De Varona (188)	lt.	Ryba (197)

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (AP)—Here are the latest odds on the various "Bowl" football games, fresh from James J. Carroll's price factory in St. Louis: California is rated seven points better than Alabama and the professional bookies are laying 8 to 1 against the Crimson Tide.

Same odds prevail on Louisiana State over Santa Clara in the Sugar Bowl. Rice is figured 13 points better than Colorado at Dallas with the price 2 to 1 against Whizzer White and Co.

Auburn and West Virginia are given three point margins over Michigan State and Texas Tech in the Orange and Sun Bowl games but the bookies are betting 4 to 5 and take your pick.

You risk $5 to win $4 in these two games. . . . Same figures go for the all-East-all-West game at San Francisco. . . . Now write your own ticket.

Cotton Bowl Overflows As Dismal Rain Falls

Whizzer to Try Rugby, Cricket

PORT WORTH, Dec. 29.—Byron (Whizzer) White, Colorado's all-America quarterback who also is an all-America student, takes his athletics and scholarship in straight doses. He doesn't mix them.

In other words, the 190-pound triple-threat will face Rice in the Cotton Bowl game New Year's Day, concentrates on football when that's the subject at hand, and on the text books when the classroom bell rings.

Right now he's ready to go into action on the gridiron so he'd rather not mention his Rhodes Scholarship, which will take him to Oxford for three years of study.

"You know," he claims, "if I weren't a football player, my winning a Rhodes scholarship wouldn't rate more than a paragraph in the papers."

Athletics at Oxford? Yes, he'd probably take a fling at rugby, or perhaps cricket and rowing. He thinks he'd like the way athletics are handled in England. Not so commercialized as in America.

One thing will come first—his study of civil law. That's the big thing in mind.

"Football is swell," says Whizzer. "It's lots of fun and if I had it to do over I wouldn't hesitate."

Meanwhile, he was all set to take his final whirl at the college game, and unless the Owls are fully prepared for him, the Whizzer probably will roam high, wide and handsome.

Byron (Whizzer) White tries the trick of balancing a tea cup and saucer, as he will have to do when he arrives in England to attend Oxford as a Rhodes scholar.

TEN COACHES LOSE JOBS IN LAST SEASON

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (AP)—Football coaching, a profession as exciting as lion taming and just as hazardous, presents its annual casualty list, a regular if unwelcome feature of the post-season inventory.

At least ten coaches already are out of jobs. Business interests, ill health, and in the case of Army's Gar Davidson, service requirements claimed some, but the majority, including such notables as Harry Kipke of Michigan and Pennsylvania's Harvey Harman, were victims of the alumni war cry.

The casualties take in every section but the Southwest and four major conferences. Here's the injured list:

Pennsylvania—Harman resigned Monday after a disastrous season in which the Quakers won only two games. Bert Bell, coach of Philadelphia Eagles, and Lou Little of Columbia have been mentioned for the post along with a score of others.

Michigan—Pilling Harry Kipke's job has created a furor. He resigned after a season in which the Wolverines broke even, but alumni say the grumbling started when a peer year in 1936 was followed this year by defeats in key games with Minnesota and Ohio State.

Eastern alumni are touting Benny Friedman of City College, for the berth. Others lean toward Jack Blott of Wesleyan.

Oregon—Prince Callison is the lone victim of alumni disfavor on the Pacific Coast. Two unsuccessful seasons in a row forced Callison's resignation.

Georgia—Harry Mehre resigned although his Bulldogs had a fair season. He has been unofficially "selected" for half a dozen other jobs but Mississippi is the leading claimant and will talk turkey with him soon.

Mississippi—Ed Walker, a pupil of Pop Warner, resigned after winning four games, losing four and tying one.

South Carolina—Don McCallister lost six games this year but apparently had survived alumni attacks. A junior alumni group got together, however, and McCallister went out and Rex Enright, former Georgia backfield coach, came in.

Manhattan—Chick Meehan, after giving Manhattan its best season, had a choice between business and football. Chick took business.

Army—Gar Davidson, transferred after five years, is replaced by Bill Wood.

Mississippi State—Ralph Saase was forced to resign because of ill health after several fine seasons.

John G. Bowman and other administrative officers at the university.

Keck added he had been informed by a source he did not disclose that the canny Scot who came to this country an immigrant boy, and received his education and his opportunity to make good at the university "was virtually signed to succeed Howard Jones as coach at the University of Southern California beginning with the 1939 season."

Liberty Magazine Trophy Presented To Whizzer White

FORT WORTH, Dec. 29 (AP)—Whizzer White, all-American half-back of the Colorado university football team, today held a trophy which annually goes to the football player selected by gridmen of leading college teams as "most valuable."

"Many thanks," said White, blushing, when his coach, Bunny Oakes, and Norman Speer, who presented the trophy, praised his character, scholastic standing and play ability.

White, practicing here with the Coloradoans in preparation for the New Year's Day game at Dallas with the Rice Institute Owls of Houston, recently won a Rhodes scholarship.

The football award is made annually after a contest conducted by a magazine (Liberty).

Who Is President Of University Of Alabama?

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 29 (AP)—Screen Actor Humphrey Bogart sat down next to a young but baldish gentleman at a luncheon honoring the Alabama football team, and the two fell into a conversation without an introduction.

"It's a funny thing about football," began Bogart. "Most every one can tell you the name of the coach of a team, but no one ever knows the name of the president of the school."

"Yes, that's true," agreed his pleasant speaking neighbor.

"Now I know all about Frank Thomas being the coach of the Alabama team, but I couldn't tell you for the life of me who the president of the university is," continued Bogart.

"I don't suppose many people could," his dinner companion said.

"By the way, Bogart is my name," said Bogart, extending his hand.

"For is my name," returned the other, smiling—and forgetting to add that it was Dr. Richard C. Foster, president of the University of Alabama.

North Texas Teachers In Hoop Semi-Finals

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 29 (AP)—With only one major upset behind them, four teams from four states pointed for the semi-finals tonight of the second annual Oklahoma collegiate basketball tournament.

The Oklahoma Aggies, champions of the Missouri Valley conference and winners of last year's tournament, meet the North Texas Teachers of Denton in the first of the night's two championship bracket games.

Southwestern of Winfield, Kas., meets Arkansas U. in the other.

The Denton boys scrapped their way past the Rice Owls from Houston for the tournament's first major upset yesterday, downing the Owls 43 to 33.

Stubby Max Hyman, Rice forward, was ineffectual against the towering Teachers, while lanky J. D. Wright, guard, and lankier Dan Yarbrough, center, pitched in 26 points for the Teachers.

The Oklahoma Aggies ran over Baylor's Bears from Waco, 38 to 24. The Aggies played a listless first half but threw a tight defense around their bucket to stave off Baylor attacks.

Yesterday's results in the championship quarter-finals: Southwestern College, 45; Tulsa University, 38; Arkansas University, 43; Warrensburg, Mo., Teachers, 36; Oklahoma Aggies, 38; Baylor University, 24; North Texas Teachers, 43; Rice Institute, 33.

Among the consolation tilts were: Stephen F. Austin, 48; Texas Tech, 38; Phillips University, 24; East Texas Teachers, 23; Northwestern Oklahoma Teachers, 43; West Texas Teachers, 40; Oklahoma City University, 33; Panhandle Aggies, 23.

Today's consolation bracket include: 9:45 a. m.—Southwestern Oklahoma Teachers, Durand, vs. Stephen F. Austin, Nacogdoches, 11 a. m.—East Central Oklahoma

CHANGE IN OWNERSHIP ONLY CURE FOR HELPLESS DODGERS

BY GALE TALBOT

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (AP)—With what promises to be one of the most prosperous baseball seasons on record coming up in 1938, the sorry plight of the Brooklyn Dodgers fast is becoming of serious concern to rival clubs in the National League.

They are sitting helplessly and not laughing while strife and indecision in the Dodgers front office tears the stuffing out of one of the most valuable holdings in the business. The antics of the "daffiness boys" aren't funny any more.

There is gloom in the other offices when the subject comes up. They just have heard the Dodgers' 1938 spring training schedule has been made out for them by the demoralized Brooklyn headquarters to attend to such chores since General Manager John Gorman got his walking papers some weeks ago.

"We can't deny we're worried about it," said one National League official. "Naturally, we can't try to tell them their business or offer any kind of help, but we know that if something isn't done we're all going to lose. The Brooklyn fans have been loyal, but there must be a limit."

There is no clear indication yet what disposition the Dodgers will make of Van Lingle Mungo, the pitcher, or whether the warring owners even have given Manager Burleigh Grimes permission to make a deal. Some of the fellows came away from the recent Chicago meeting with the distinct impression that Grimes was handcuffed.

A deal whereby the Dodgers obtained several useful players and some cash for Mungo would tide things over temporarily, but it's realized that nothing except a change of ownership can ever effect a complete cure. That's what the rest of the league would like for a New Year's gift.

"There's been some talk about it lately, too. A syndicate headed by former Mayor Jimmy Walker is said to have made a bonafide offer and something might come of it yet. The Brooklyn franchise would be a grand buy for any group that worked in concert and had the cash to go into the market for players. Ebbets field last season had a bigger opening crowd than the Polo Grounds.

12 TEAMS ENTERED IN ALANREED TOURNAMENT

ALANREED, Dec. 29.—Thirty-five individual awards and six team awards are the trophies offered in the annual basketball tournament to be held at Alanreed.

Some twelve teams have entered the tournament and others are expected to enter before the closing date.

The bracket for the tournament will be published as soon as all entries are in and Alanreed will furnish night's lodging to all teams desiring to stay over night.

FANS QUESTION GOPHER COACH ABOUT GAMES

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 29 (AP)—The football fan who likes to "play" the game over again the minute he leaves the stadium has a chance to do it with experts in the Midwest.

He can haggle his point with the coach himself, said Harry A. Stuhlreher, University of Wisconsin mentor, who is attending the meeting of the American Football Coaches' Association.

"The street corner critic is a pretty big headache to all coaches but we think we're really doing something about him in our section," he said.

"Each Monday, after a big game, fans attend a luncheon at which motion pictures of the contest are shown. I explain various points of offense and defense as the reel is shown. Afterwards, the fans send up written questions which I answer."

These "down-town coaches' clubs" originated at the University of Minnesota, Stuhlreher said. Others are in existence at his own university and the University of Michigan and are spreading to the East.

Stuhlreher said the discussion with the athletic officials gave fans a "feeling of importance because they were taken into the confidence of the coach."

Stuhlreher was one of Notre Dame's famous Four Horsemen in 1924, under the late Knute Rockne.

More than 1,000 coaches and college athletic officials are attending the grid meeting and gathering of the National Collegiate Association.

The college group opened its meeting last night with a dinner and business session of the council. The coaches set their first meetings for today.

Boys 16 And Over May Enter Gloves Tourney

Alabama Star Arrives Bandaged

Capt. Leroy Monsky, right, star guard of Alabama's Rose bowl eleven, and his running mate, Louis Bostick, are shown as they rested after their arrival at Pasadena, Calif., to practice for the clash with California New Years. Monsky's bandage is the result of a collision with Bostick in a workout on way West.

No boundary has been set for entrants in the Pampa Daily News Golden Gloves boxing tournament to be staged the first week in February. Boys 16 years or over who are amateurs and who can pass the medical examination are eligible to enter the tournament at no cost excepting the 25 cents membership in the Southwestern association of the A. A. U.

Any boy in the southwest meeting the requirements will be eligible to enter. Letters of invitation are being mailed by the tournament directors to high school coaches in this area to enter teams in the tournament.

Eight classes will be available and winning boy in each class will be eligible to enter the State Golden Gloves tournament in Fort Worth, all expenses paid. Texas winners will go to Chicago, expenses paid, to the national tournament.

Boys interested in entering the tournament should mail their entries immediately or call at the Pampa Daily News and talk with the Golden Gloves Editor or with Cliff B. Chambers, tournament director.

Workouts will begin next week under capable instructors. Watch The News for time and place of first meeting.

"Sign up now for the big event and win a trip to Fort Worth and maybe to Chicago," urge tournament directors.

A hunt for a "white hopeful" to succeed Joe Louis as heavyweight champion is in progress with the amateurs being closely watched. Classes in the local tourney will be from flyweight to heavyweight.

WEATHER, INJURIES AND FANS IRK ASSORTED BOWL COACHES

(By The Associated Press)

The tapering off process starts today for the 12 squads engaged in Saturday's extra-season football warfare. Climatic conditions, injuries and hordes of inquisitive spectators constituted the main worries of the assorted coaches as the teams went into the last phase of training.

ROSE BOWL—Secrecy is the keynote at Pasadena with both Alabama and California working behind locked gates. Henry Sparks, reserve end, is still limping and the Bears may not be able to use him Saturday. From Alabama's hideout comes word that Captain Leroy Monsky's eye injury will be protected by a special mask.

SUGAR BOWL—Louisiana State refurbished its aerial attack, its best weapon this season, for the meeting with Santa Clara. The fact that Coach Bernie Moore chose to spend the last real scrimmage on aerial plays yesterday strengthened the belief that the Tigers will strike through the air against the Broncos.

COTTON BOWL—Rice held its final strenuous workout yesterday in a heavy rain, which lengthened the odds on Rice. The Owls have three complete backfields to pit against Whizzer White, Colorado's one-man attack. Both teams expect to ease down today after long drills yesterday.

ORANGE BOWL—Coach Jack Meagher says his three teams of PUBLIC LEMON NO. 1

A pretty fair sample of why Gray county frowns on WPA domination of the proposed Beaver Dam lake on McClellan Creek, was the announcement yesterday that WPA is "washing its hands" of the Fairgrounds Recreation Park project in Pampa and, so to speak, "giving it back to the Indians."

The park is unfinished. Only recently, WPA wrecked the grandstand in a weight test, and now it is walking off, leaving it unrepaired. The project will be of no use to anyone unless the city goes ahead and spends its own money to make repairs and put the grandstand and park into shape for public use.

If WPA will do that to the Fairgrounds Park, it is reasonable to assume that WPA might start the lake project and walk off of it before the job is done, leaving the county holding the bag to finish the work.

There may have been a lot of misunderstandings and red-tape rules to cause such action in connection with the Fairground park project, but one only knows that that is exactly what happened.

It would seem logical, then, that the county should be reticent about putting its neck into the same kind of a noose that the city got into.

The Fairgrounds Park project can rightfully be called "Pampa's WPA Lemon No. 1."

Washington Letter

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—Echoes of the rebel yell which rang out in the House as the dilapidated wage-hour bill was shoved into its tomb will reverberate for a long time to come.

This issue has all the earmarks of one of those tormenting problems which continues to plague Congress until the "reformers" agitating it finally get some legislation on the books. Furthermore, it has shaped up as a sectional economic struggle, with northern and southern groups bitterly arrayed against each other.

Whether any bill will come out of the forthcoming session is doubtful, but the fact that the issue is no dead duck is also attested by the narrow margin in the House vote to recommit the labor committee bill. A switch of 10 votes could have saved it.

It is important to note that nothing has been done about wages and hours and child labor, and that nearly everyone, not to mention the Democratic and Republican platforms, professes to agree that something must be done. Communities in certain areas are still able to invite sweatshop operators with the lure of "cheap labor."

The current recession threatens a spread of "chiseling" wage-cutting and longer hours. Even when business was humming earlier in the year a huge number of workers were being worked more than 40 hours a week, while millions were unemployed who might have been taken into industry under a maximum hour law.

The recent battling for a wage-hour child labor law at least has shown the type of labor standards under which many men, women and children are working. And any assumption that the south has a monopoly on low standards is unwarranted.

Tex's Topics

What you read here is merely one man's opinion. This is the one place in the paper where I can say what I think. . . . And, right now I'm thinking that the Gray county lake project down on McClellan Creek is nothing more than a castle in the air. . . . I do think that Marvin Jones, the Panhandle congressman, would like to see a lake built on the Beaver Dam site. . . . But, just as he points out—it would be suicide for him to go to bat for any one particular project. . . . To keep the other counties off his neck, apparently he must leave the matter of selection of sites up to the government agencies and to the counties who work the hardest to get their project put thru.

The matter right now is being left up to the Works Progress Administration, and that's why I (one man's opinion, again) think that the Gray county lake project is a castle in the air. . . . If Gray county wants a lake, she's going to have to fight like all get out to get it. . . . In the first place, WPA can't buy a site for a lake. . . . In the second place, WPA is so ham-strung with rules and orders that it could never complete a lake solely on its own, even if it did start it. . . . The whole thing, no doubt, would resolve itself into another mess like the unfinished Fairgrounds Park project, which is Pampa's Public Lemon No. 1.

All I can observe is exactly what is on the table to observe. . . . From these observations one draws the conclusions that that the original plan for four or five major lake projects in the Panhandle has gone haywire. . . . Everybody tells Gray county, now, that it is every man for himself and nobody can do anything for you anymore. . . . The Tierra Blanca lake project has been okayed and work begun. . . . The Boggy Creek lake project over in Hemphill county also is in the bag. . . . And that's as far as the program has gone. . . . These are the only two projects that are being carried out under the original plan of Farm Security Administration. . . . Gray and Ochiltree county lake projects were knocked out of FSA and put into the WPA bundle, which means little or nothing, because WPA, no matter how willing, isn't set up nor equipped to take the bull by the horns and go ahead.

Gray county has the best of all arguments for a lake. . . . It would be situated such as to serve a greater number of people in a wider area than any of the other so-called major lake sites. . . . After all, that should be of first consideration. . . . The projects are to be recreational centers for the people, and the more accessible they are, the more people they will serve. . . . Certainly, that is a factor that cannot be overlooked. . . . Carl Hinton, of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, employed by the Panhandle counties to represent the Panhandle Water Conservation Association in Washington, has done a good job so far on the Tierra Blanca and Hemphill county lakes. . . . But, can he keep on getting the job done down in Washington? . . . He says he will, and he's in the capital now, working in the interest of the lakes. . . . It isn't fair to jump on him with all four, yet. . . . He has accused WPA of breaking a pledge to the Panhandle, and he's in Washington now to see how come.

The plaint of Gray and Ochiltree counties is that they are not getting the same consideration in the major lake set-up that Tierra Blanca and Hemphill county projects are getting. . . . It is a squawk that is justifiable, and an explanation of why Gray and Ochiltree were knocked out of FSA and the other two should be left in, and who did it, is something to which a lot of folk would like to hear an answer.

Mr. Hinton said at the annual meeting of the Panhandle Water group last week that he didn't care whether the FSA, the WPA or the Salvation Army built the lakes, just so somebody builds them. . . . I imagine everybody is pretty well agreed on that. . . . One feels certain that the Salvation Army won't build the lake, and that the WPA can't—so that leaves FSA as the only hope. . . . One reason Gray county is so anxious to get its lake back under the Farm Security Administration direction, is that it seems to have worked so well with the Tierra Blanca project.

mon" among child laborers. A six-state survey showed nearly a fourth of employed children under 16 on a 60-hour or longer week, and nearly a fifth of them earning less than $2 for a week's work. Child labor appeared to increase about 150 per cent in 1936 over 1935.

When business was much better earlier this year, the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated that about one-third of full-time wage and salary workers were not getting enough money to "buy the bare minimum necessities of life."

That's why another federal survey found about 18 per cent of relief cases to be those of full-time workers whose pay checks had to be supplemented, the effect being to subsidize low-wage manufacturers. In Pennsylvania the grants-in-aid-of-wages relief cases were 29 per cent of the total.

People You Know

The mother of five children came to the lawyer to talk about getting a divorce. The lawyer had known her for a long time. He called her by name and asked her why she wanted a divorce. "Well, he just doesn't support me, that's all. When he gets any money it doesn't go to support the family. He spends it on liquor and gambling, and he doesn't work at his job like a man with a family should. Then the lawyer called her by her first name again and said, "I want to ask you some questions. . . . Does your husband ever beat you?" "Oh, no, he never laid a finger on me in his life."

"Well, does he ever bawl you out?" "No, he never says an unkind word to me." "Does he ever brag on your cooking?" "Oh, yes, he thinks I'm the best cook in the world, and is always bragging on my cooking."

"Well, does he ever say that you are not a good mother?" "No, he often tells me that I'm the best mother in the world, and that he's certainly lucky to have me for a wife to raise the children." "Does he ever bawl you out for giving time to club work and school activities?" "Oh, no, he's proud of my social activities."

"Well, does he ever notice when you have your hair fixed in a new way, or have a new dress, and does he compliment you?" "Oh, yes, he always does that!" Then the lawyer called the woman by her first name again and he said, "You'll never get a divorce from your husband, so go on home to him. He's one of those men that women may think they'll divorce but never will." Well, that was several years ago, and she hasn't got a divorce yet.

Hermit By Habit George Sanders (Lloyd's of London. "Lahcer Spy." "Shanghai Deadline") lives on Hermit Lane in Laurel Canyon, which is a fitting place for him to live. He's aloof from Hollywood's extracurricular life, spends most of his spare time at home in Hermit Lane. He has a workshop there, and labors on gadgets. He has patented three inventions to animate water boys.

But these do not explain his seclusion. Solitude is a habit. For four years Sanders rode, tramped or flew, mostly alone, through isolated sections of South America. The habit of solitude, with him, is hard to break. It is not, he insists, that he doesn't like people. He thinks he may get over it after he gets a "bit more polishing here."

latrias and public health authorities. This concerns the installation of nose drops into infants' nostrils for the relief of nasal congestion. In a number of cases the oil so deposited was aspirated, that is, breathed into the lung, and there caused a type of pneumonia.

Warnings have been issued by medical authorities urging the greatest care in the use of oily materials in the respiratory tracts of infants. Like precautions must be exercised in the use of oily nose drops by debilitated elderly people, and adults weakened through illness.

When the oil enters the lung, it acts as a foreign body irritant and sets up inflammatory changes favorable to the invasion of the tissues by bacteria. The pneumonia may then develop.

Around Hollywood

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Ethel Merman is a different sort of a "one-picture star." The species generally is pitted in Hollywood, but not Ethel. The blues-shouting brunette from Broadway has been a "one-picture star" in five pictures.

"Each time I came out to Hollywood before—a one-picture deal—I already had a commitment to return to New York for a play as soon as the film was finished," she says. "By the time I would sign for another picture, the last one was long off the screen and forgotten. Each time I had to start my movie career again as a newcomer."

This time she will have a chance to make it stick. She signed a term movie contract, made "Happy Land" as her first film under its terms, then will go into the Irving Berlin musical, "Alexander's Ragtime Band,"—and she didn't sign any stage contracts before she came.

Farewell To 'Bad Girl' Sally Ellers was a "one-picture star" and didn't know it—until recently. After six years, she says, she has awakened to the fact that she no longer is "Bad Girl." It was the title role in that Frank Borzage picture that brought Sally her first big opportunity. She's been trying to be that young ingenue in all her pictures and—she admits it—without too much success.

"It was about three months ago I realized that I have grown up and am no longer a kid," she confides, "and with the realization came the knowledge that if I was to succeed I would have to quit being 'Bad Girl' and act my age."

So, you can take it from her, she's been acting 29 in those three films of the past three months.

How's Your Health? The physician who rails against self medication is always a little subject to suspicion. He appears like a prejudiced preacher.

Yet the old saying, "He who treats himself is a fool for a patient," was coined by laymen, and not by physicians.

Extensive experiences, and recent ones in particular, have substantially justified the oft-repeated warnings against self medication.

These warnings appear especially warranted when drugs of unknown nature and potency are used.

Picking at random, we have recently witnessed the disasters caused by "trick" diets. Persons who have lived upon an unbalanced diet have been known to develop a multitude of disturbances and diseases, including tuberculosis. Some have died.

The Capitol Jigsaw

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL

AUSTIN, Dec. 28 (AP)—At least one able politician who also is head of an important state department does not take much stock in the argument that former Gov. Jas. E. and Miriam A. Ferguson are too old to seek the governorship again.

In discussing what the Ferguson might do about this politician pointed out that Mrs. Ferguson seldom has made extensive political trips, that she never speaks, that Mr. Ferguson makes only a few speeches and that, by means of the radio, he could reach more people directly than in his most active days of old.

"I am not saying Jim will get into the race personally," he said; "but there is nothing to this talk that he is too old to do so if he wanted to."

Mr. Ferguson is 66; Mrs. Ferguson, 62. The Bible is not dusty in Texas' governor's mansion. Gov. James V. Allred regularly "returns thanks" at the family meals, but, he admitted recently, his prayer doesn't vary much and is brief.

A minister had dinner with the Allreds and went to some length in "asking a blessing." At the conclusion, one of the governor's boys, David, 4, spoke loudly, amid the silence: "He didn't say it right, did he, daddy?"

Both the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Texas Department of Public Safety took note recently of a nationally-distributed picture in which twin children in Austria were depicted as having identical fingerprints.

On request of the department, the bureau made an inquiry, later reporting the prints were not identical. J. Edgar Hoover, bureau director, informed the Texas Department the fingerprints would be published in the bureau's next bulletin.

C. G. McGraw, chief of the state bureau of identification, said numerous cases had been uncovered where fingerprint classifications were identical, but none in which the characteristics were identical. More than 70,000 fingerprint records are on file in the Texas department and approximately 7,000,000 in the Washington bureau.

Fingerprint experts regarded it as important that the case of the Austrian twins be run to earth and the truth established lest evidence based on fingerprints be weakened.

Gov. Allred received a Christmas gift from a convict in the Texas penitentiary, a sort of knitted spread for a chair. He isn't quite sure what its purpose is.

Informed that Attorney General William McCraw had received a somewhat similar gift, the governor laughed.

"Maybe you had better check Ernest Thompson and see if he got one too," he said.

McCraw and Thompson are candidates for the governorship. The governor has never said whether he would or would not run again.

There is a racket in selling wild game to vain sportsmen, says William J. Tucker, secretary of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, urging his wardens to combat it vigorously.

In the department's new publication, the "Monthly Bulletin," Tucker says: "Because of the vanity of deer and turkey hunters who do not want to return home and admit their inability to kill a deer or a gobbler, there has developed a considerable racket, particularly in the Hill Country, of selling wild game to hunters."

The game and fish wardens have done some good work in arresting the sellers and buyers this season. More of this sort of work is needed.

"Hunters should be informed that the man who buys a deer or turkey to take home and 'brag on his kill' is a sorry sportsman."

"The man who is making business of the state's game resources, by killing game for sale, should be

NEITHER MAJOR PARTY CONSTRUCTIVE We have repeatedly said that the Republican party has not had a constructive idea since 1890, when it passed the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

The Democratic party has practically abandoned the only real constructive ideas it has had during the same period; that is, free trade, and state rights. Although the President is more or less inclined to free trade, we cannot have free trade when we do not have free competition in our national affairs.

It is high time that one party would adopt a constructive platform which history has shown would result in prosperity. As long as both parties are more interested in holding office and having the salaries than they are in a long time view of a government that will permit permanent prosperity, there is little hope that either party will adopt a constructive program.

No One Knows How High Wages Can Be The difficulty of the government, or labor unions, or theorists, or moralists attempting to establish wages is that no one knows how high the basic wage should be in order that all people may be employed. If it is theoretically established at a point above what the workers can produce with the machinery and natural resources available, then there is unemployment.

We have been obliged to do without hundreds of billions of dollars of the comforts of life because people believe that wages can be artificial. And the end is not yet in sight!

Ham is to some men what locusts and honey are to prophets. Every so often everyone gets a yen for a bit of ham that simply must be satisfied. So look up a few new ham recipes and you'll never let your menfolk down.

Ham Butt With Sour Cream (4 to 6 servings) Two pounds smoked ham butt, 1-2 cup clear vegetable stock, 2 tablespoons cider vinegar, 1 tablespoon heavy molasses, 1 cup sour cream.

Soak ham butt in cold water for 2 hours. Dry carefully, and place in large baking dish. Mix vegetable stock, vinegar and molasses thoroughly, then pour over the meat in the baking dish. Cover and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 3-4 hours, basting with the molasses mixture every one-half hour.

In a saucepan, combine tomato, bay leaves, seasoning and butter. Break up the tomato pulp with a fork. Place the ham in hot, heavy skillet and sear on both sides. Cover with brown sugar and onion finely sliced. Pour a little of the tomato juice to moisten the sugar. Pour the remaining tomato around the ham, but not over it. Cover and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 1 hour. Baste only once. Remove ham to platter, boil the sauce quickly for 5 minutes to cook down a bit, and pour over the meat. Squeeze of delight from the hungry family.

Before icing a cake always brush off any loose crumbs on the top and sides and cut off rough edges with scissors. If the crumbs get into the frosting they make it look lumpy.

FLAPPER FANNY By Sylvia

"Now, don't call me a minute before seven-thirty tomorrow. These holiday parties are awful and I simply must get a good rest."

If We Could Hear Ourselves

When a girl goes to college these days, she gets a chance to hear herself as others hear her. At Byrn Mawr College, Pa., students are pictured taking voice tests, with Dr. W. Cabell Greet operating the recording machine.

They don't like the way we talk. "They" are the people who sit out in front of a lecture platform, and "we" refers to women in general, women lecturers in particular.

Dr. Russell Potter, director of Columbia University's public lecture and entertainment course, says American audiences don't like to listen to women, and thinks our voices are greatly to blame.

According to Dr. Potter, our voices are pitched too high, lack tonality, and tend to break and scratch at an emotional climax.

College and universities all over the country are doing something about that. Students are being given, by the use of voice-recording machines, a chance to hear themselves as others have to hear them.

No doubt they get a shock the first time, for those machines pick up every whine, every hint of affectation, every ugly rasp, and every last lip. They pick them up and throw them back at the poor listener's ears as if to say, "Now that you know how awful you sound, what are you going to do about it?"

Once you've heard your own voice, you are determined to improve it. And improvement isn't difficult, once a person really understands his voice faults.

The colleges go into the enchantment business, and make checkup tests so often, to see if the burrs and rasps are being smothered out of a disagreeable speaking voice.

Radio stations in most cities have these recording machines, and if you are willing to pay for a record, many of them will let you make a transcription of your voice, to be played back for your own criticism. If that kind of experimenting is not available to you, at least you can make your ears listen as you talk, if you only will. And if your voice doesn't fall pleasantly on your own ears, you can be sure it isn't any more agreeable to the people you want most to carry it in their minds.

Bargain Buys Help To Cut Down on Food Expenses

Bills going up? Oh, take heart—and take a banana, for bananas can help you out! These golden-skinned beauties cannot solve your whole problem all by themselves, but they can certainly help to get the right answer! Here's why: Bananas are a food-fruit of the first rank, a good source of essential minerals and vitamins A, B, C and G, with their energy-giving qualities and they are always available, always in season.

Bananas can stretch the main course dish, can combine with more expensive items to make a satisfying and delicious meal. Those who at their doctor's direction, have followed the famous banana-milk diet know the "satiety value" of the banana—how it keeps you from getting hungry and leaves you feeling well-fed.

With the meat course, bananas—baked, broiled or fried—will stretch that single chop or glorify the thrifty hamburger or meat loaf. As an entree, bananas can be served as a vegetable or turned into scallops. Salads are satisfying when they are made with bananas, and they have been a favorite dessert for decades.

Forgetting the glamour and the glow that is the banana's own, and concentrating this time on the thrifty notes in your scale of living, here is a collection of cost-cutting recipes.

Banana Meat Loaf 1 lb. raw beef, chopped fine, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 2-3 cup mashed banana (2 bananas), 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, 3 peeled bananas, cut lengthwise into halves.

Mix together the meat, onion, salt, pepper, bread crumbs and mashed banana. Add mustard which has been moistened with a little water. Form mixture into a flat roll and place in a greased baking dish. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) basting occasionally with juice from meat. When loaf has baked about 45 minutes, place banana halves around and on top of loaf. Baste bananas with juice from meat and sprinkle with salt. Continue baking for about 15 to 20 minutes longer or until bananas are done. Six servings.

This makes a meat loaf with an unusual and pleasing flavor, one which costs little, but goes far!

Bananas Au Gratin 1 cup grated dry American cheese, 1 tablespoon dry bread or cracker crumbs, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 6 bananas, peeled and cut crosswise into halves, 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Mix together the grated cheese, crumbs and salt. Roll bananas in lemon juice and then in cheese mixture. Place in well-greased baking dish and bake in a moderately hot oven (400° F.) 15 to 20 minutes or until bananas are done. Serve hot. Six large servings.

Cheese and bananas "go-together" in this luncheon entree to make a nourishing and satisfying dish. This interesting combination also offers a new way to make use of dried left-over cheese.

Mixed Grill 4 lamb chops or hamburger steaks (about 1-inch thick), 4 half slices canned pineapple, melted butter, salt, 4 peeled bread slices.

Arrange meat and pineapple on preheated rack of broiler. Brush pineapple with melted butter and sprinkle with salt. Place rack about 3 inches below broiler and broil in a very hot oven (550° F.). At the end of 6 minutes, turn meat and pineapple, and place the bananas (brushed with melted butter and sprinkled with salt) on rack of broiler. Continue broiling about 8 minutes longer. Four servings.

Cooked and served as a vegetable, bananas extend the main course and add their food value to a mixed grill which is appropriate for either luncheon or dinner for family or guests.

Party Entertains Group on Tuesday

Celebrating her seventh birthday, Bobby Jo Tucker entertained a group of friends with a party at her home yesterday afternoon.

Guests were greeted at the door by the honoree and her mother, Mrs. R. W. Tucker. Mrs. P. O. Gaut assisted her mother in the entertainment.

After games were played and gifts were opened, refreshments of cake and fruit salad were served from a table centered with a pink and white birthday cake topped with seven pink candles. Pink dishes were used in the serving.

Guests for the afternoon were Carman Joy, Constant Lou Garber, Sarah and Ruth Ann Spears, Jimmy LaVern Martin, Margaret Covington, MaJorie Ruth and Bonnie Bell Lewis, Florence Wagner, Charlene Cheatham, June Cummings, Kathryn Dean, Mary Jo Shellabarger, Betty Jean and Rosemary Prigmore, Jeannine May, and Doris Janet Salmon.

A gift was sent by Kitty O'Keefe.

MIND your MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

- 1. Should an older woman rise for an introduction to a younger woman? 2. Is it good manners to carry on a private conversation in a crowded elevator? 3. Is it good manners for one to put on his wraps while the Star Spangled Banner is being played at the end of a concert? 4. Does being a chatterbox mean being a good conversationalist? 5. Is it good manners to emphasize the meaning of a statement by saying "Get me?"

What would you do if— You are teaching your small child the way to answer your neighbor. Teach him to say— (a) "No, Mrs. Smith?" (b) Simply "No?" (c) "No, ma'am?"

Answers 1. Not unless the younger person is a guest of honor. 2. No. 3. No. 4. No. 5. No. Best "What Would You Do" solution—(a).

CAST OF CHARACTERS
LINDA BENTON—Heroine, daughter of a famous singer.
CAPT. BARRYMORE TRENT—Hero, flying "daredevil."
MIRANDA TRENT—Barrymore's grandmother, a "strong" woman.

Yesterday, Newspapers report screen actress engaged to Barrymore Trent; Rita professes grief and Judge Baldwin is dead. Linda is left without proof of her secret marriage. And tonight Barrymore was to have trimmed the tree!

CHAPTER XII
 That night after they went to their rooms, Linda went about the thing she had set herself to do. Throwing a few things into a bag, she packed the rest of her clothes into her trunk. She could send for that later when she knew where she was to be.

Then she remembered again that this was Christmas Eve—the night when Barry was to have trimmed that tree whose clean, pungent fragrance was even now drifting to her nostrils.

She got out her knitting basket she had bought for Barry's grandmother, wrapped it carefully, and left it on the trunk. The book she had got for Barry she could not bear to even unwrap. When she had finished, she stood for a moment, her brows puckered. She supposed she should leave some word of explanation. Sitting down at the desk in the corner, she wrote:

"Dear Mrs. Trent:
 I hope you will forgive me if I seem discourteous—that wasn't enough. She must give some reason for her abrupt leaving. And what better reason than the truth? Now that she was going, she need not deny herself this last indulgence.

"I am going," she wrote, "because, although you have been most considerate, now that Barry is gone, I cannot bear this house any longer. Because, you see, Mrs. Trent I love Barry; and I could not stay and go on pretending."

That was enough. She would not make any claims—even if she had had her wedding certificate, she would not. But something deep within her refused to be satisfied with less than this, as if without it, she had somehow failed Barry.

Slipping the note under the ribbon about Mrs. Trent's knitting basket, she crept downstairs and let her silently out of the house.

After she had climbed aboard a train for the nearest city, she tried to think—dim, groping thoughts of dazed weariness. Somehow she had managed to begin to seem childish and futile.

Linda had never learned to take care of money. When she opened her purse to buy her ticket she saw that she had barely enough to pay her fare to the nearest city, and buy something to eat. It was hard to imagine where her last month's salary had gone—even with the small balance she still had in the bank.

She must remember to save enough for bus and carfare, and for some advertising in the newspapers. Because she must begin to hunt work at once, and vaguely she supposed the way to find a job was to advertise for it.

She was absorbed in her thoughts when she noticed a man smiling and nodded to her across the aisle. It was the funny foreign looking little man who had talked to her about her singing. Now, watching her eye, he leaned over, his round face crinkling like a wistful little boy's.

"Going home for Christmas dinner?" he asked with that strange twist to the words that was not quite an accent.

"No," said Linda after a moment during which she remembered that today was indeed Christmas. "Just—to the city."

"Ah!" he said. "Me, too, worse luck! I was lucky to have even Christmas Eve with my mother. Christmas is a big day in my business. And when you get a business of your own, it seems nothing goes right unless you are there."

"No, I suppose not," murmured Linda, wondering without interest what his business was.

"You have friends in the city, mibbie?" he persisted.

Linda wished he would leave her alone; but his bright dark eyes were so full of inoffensive friendliness that she answered: "No, I'm going on business. I wonder if you can tell me something about the hotels?"

"Of course. On business," he nodded as if it were the most natural thing in the world to plan a business trip for Christmas Day; but he shot her a shrewd, appraising glance.

"You go to the Somerset," he advised her. "That's a nice quiet place for ladies alone."

When they parted at the depot, he slipped a card into her hand. "Well, a happy Christmas!" he said with his puckered, wistful smile. "Maybe you look me up sometime. If there is something I can do, I shall be very happy."

Linda paid for her room at the hotel for two days in advance. That, at least, was secure. But the "nice quiet hotel for ladies alone" proved unexpectedly expensive, and she had forgotten that taxicabs were not within the limits of her budget. She would need to cash a check; but over the hotel desk she had seen the notice, "No Checks Cashied."

Perhaps the little man on the train—his eyes had been very kind. She hunted out of her purse the card he had given her.

"Tony Abruzzi," she read on it. "Villa Abruzzi, Floor Show, Fine Wines and Liquors, Select Parties a Specialty."

Well, she might as well eat her dinner at Tony's, since she was to ask a favor of him. For suddenly she realized that she had not eaten that day, and that she was faint with hunger.

It had not occurred to her that Tony's place could be so pretentious. In its luxurious, sophisticated setting, his round black-clad figure seemed droll and insignificant. Yet Linda, watching from her table, saw that many of the guests seemed pleased and even flattered when he noticed them personally.

He discovered Linda just as her order was put before her—a modest one, for Tony's prices were in the upper brackets.

"What?" he cried, glancing at her slip. "Salad—for Christmas dinner! That will never do. . . . Pietro!" He summoned a waiter. "There is a mistake here." He scribbled an order. "And this lady is my guest tonight, Pietro," he added. "See that she has every attention."

When Linda, annoyed and embarrassed, tried to protest, his round face was droll with disappointment.

"Ah, I shall be hurt—but hurt!" he cried. "If you go away without tasting the best we have. If you do not tell all your friends how super-colossal the Villa Abruzzi is. . . . And are we not all friends on Christmas?"

Linda was too numb to object further. She thanked him in her sweet, low voice and let him place the food before her.

It made the matter of cashing the check a little embarrassing. But Tony made it very easy. He brought the money for her, himself, without question or comment, as if it were all quite in the day's routine.

When he had put it on the table before her, he drew up a chair opposite her and sat down.

"Miss Benton," he said, glancing about him and lowering his voice "I am in what you call 'one spot' tonight. You can help me."

Linda murmured vaguely, surprised beyond words.

"Tonight is a big event for me. I had planned a magnificent show, all in the Christmas spirit—like you see."

With a wave of his hands he indicated the elaborate decorations, the Christmas trees reflected in every mirror.

"Always I have that," he went on, pointing to the revolving stage where two sleek dancers were going through a complicated routine to the music of a white-coated orchestra. "But Christmas needs something special. People's hearts are warm and soft then. They want to be taken back to the days when they hung up their stockings and believed things. . . . Tonight I was to have real Christmas music. But suddenly the soloist is ill, and I do not know until too late to get another who would be just right. . . . You are very like that singer, Miss Benton—only better. Your voice, your—something about you—how shall I say it?—as if you had come from another world. . . . Sing for me tonight."

Flashes of LIFE

(By The Associated Press)

HARD WORK
SHELBYVILLE, Ind.—The burglars who broke into the County Highway garage had quite a time before they collected any dividend on their labor.

They broke three windows before they got in. They tried to crack the safe, and failed.

They tried to break a candy machine, and failed.

Finally they broke open a desk drawer that held the key to the gasoline pump.

The total loot was 65 gallons of gasoline.

NO REGRETS
HARLAN, Ky.—Deputy Sheriff Allen Bowen will not be sorry to see 1937 pass off the calendar, because:

Last January, his right arm was broken in a fall.

A few months later, his right leg was broken in a fall.

A couple days ago, he fell on an icy pavement and his left arm was broken.

GREATLY EXAGGERATED
OKLAHOMA CITY.—James A. Barton quit his WPA job last May. When newspapers reported the death of a man by the same name, the WPA crossed him off the list.

Nov. 3 Barton again applied for a WPA job—and has spent 30 days convincing officials he is who he says he is.

HIGH HEELS AND BIG APPLE
LAMAR, Colo.—Square dances may have to compete with the Big Apple at the annual cowboy ball here.

Invitations have been sent to 1,000 old-time range riders, but their grandsons have been invited, too—and two orchestras have promised to play dance favorites of both.

STIRRING MISHAP
CHICAGO.—It's common for babies to swallow pins and buttons accidentally.

But when Miss Bernice Gurevitz, 17-year-old high school girl swallowed a six inch teaspoon while eating ice cream, physicians were a bit puzzled. They said it was the first time in Chicago medical history.

X-ray photographs showed the spoon in the girl's stomach. A surgeon removed it.

COURT RULES AGAINST LOCKER ROOM SALONS

AUSTIN, Dec. 29 (AP)—The State Liquor Control Board today held it had no power to grant the Crown and State cafes and Wayside Inn of Fort Worth permission to install locker rooms to permit patrons to drink their own liquor.

Bert Ford, liquor administrator, said he thought the proposal illegal. "We cannot permit a man to operate a business without a license," he said, "especially if there is no license for that purpose in the law."

Morris L. Swartzberg, attorney representing the eating establishments, said he would file two cases in federal court to "test" the issue. One, he said, would attempt to determine if it was legal for a business establishment to mix drinks, supplying non-alcoholic mixers for a patron-furnished liquor. The other would seek to obtain approval for the proposed lockers where in a customer could store his liquor.

The eating places have been scenes of "sit down" activities by state inspectors.

The State cafe and Wayside Inn recently lost their beer and wine permits on complaints of violations.

GLAMOUR GIRLS WANT TO HIDE THEIR LEGS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29 (AP)—If the acute case of modesty currently enjoyed by the screen glamour girls gets any worse, look for a revival of hoop-skirts and pantalettes. And also, film fans, look hard for a glimpse of a neatly-turned ankle because it will be an event.

Legs are going into retirement. Dorothy Lamour, the "jungle queen of the screen," is the latest recruit to the anti-leg association.

Miss Lamour was tastefully clad in a sarong in the pictures "The Jungle Princess" and "The Hurricane," and she is wearing the same revealing garb in her current film.

"But when I am finished with 'Her Jungle Love'," she said today, "I am stepping out of the sarong forever."

Among the most determined hold-outs against displaying legs to the film public is Claudette Colbert, but whether she likes it or not her underpinnings are going to be unveiled in her next picture, "Blue-berd's Eighth Wife."

The script calls for her to appear with Gary Cooper in a beach scene and a bathing suit seems inevitable.

JAPS PAY NO DUTY ON CARGOES AT SHANGHAI!

SHANGHAI, Dec. 29 (AP)—There was growing apprehension in Shanghai today over the future of American and other foreign firms in China and the nation's ability to pay her debt to the United States and other powers.

Increased daily landing of mercantile cargoes from Japanese vessels without customs examinations or duty payments caused the concern.

China's internal and external indebtedness, guaranteed by customs revenues, has been estimated at $80,000,000. Of this amount, foreign loans total $180,000,000 and Boxer indemnity payments $36,000,000. Major loan and indemnity holders—The United States, England, France and Japan—thus far have received full payments, but payment of the next installment, due February 1, was considered questionable.

American and other foreign firms pointed out that Japanese cargoes were being landed without duty at Japanese controlled Yangtzepoo, Hongkong and Pootung docks, while their own consignments were subject to customs payments. This inequitable situation, they said, might soon make profitable business impossible.

American firms understood the position of the United States to be insistence on customs administration which would accord uniform and equal treatment of all nations in accordance with the open door policy.
