WAR

having applied to a high authority of the Coptic Christian church to intervene with Italy in behalf of peace.

The Franco-British proposals were not, it was said in diplomatic circles, fixed plans for peace, but merely "suggestions" to forestall any possibility of complete rejection by Mussolini.

These suggestions were said to be based principally on an exchange of territories between Italy and Ethiopia, the latter to receive its long-sought seaport and to remain absolutely independent, save for the lands granted to Italy.

British and French foreign office experts on African affairs, including Maurice Peterson and Count Rene de Saint-Quentin, have been working here on some such basis of negotiations for eventual peace between Italy and Ethiopia.

The first direct suggestions by the British and French experts, were reported to include: 1. Cession of a seaport in Italy's East African colony of Eritrea to Ethiopia.

2. Slight change in the frontier between Ethiopia's northern Tigre province and Eritrea, leaving Ethiopia in control of the holy city of Aksum.

3. Acquisition by Italy of Ethiopian territory south of eight degrees north latitude, including Omdurman province, and west to 38 or 40 degrees east longitude.

4. The remainder of Ethiopia to be entirely independent.

The experts were unable to agree on some points, informed sources said, the British opposing a French suggestion to let Italian territory extend as far as 38 degrees longitude because this would include important Ethiopian lakes.

Informed sources said it was extremely doubtful whether Mussolini wanted any settlement now, before his East African armies have penetrated more than the northern Tigre province and southern Ogaden province of Emperor Haile Selassie's domain.

Two of the central figures in the crisis—Premier Laval and British Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare—will confer on the latest developments Saturday, Hoare stopping here en route to a vacation in Switzerland.

From London came word that the battle cruisers Hood and Renown, and other British naval vessels which were due to Gibraltar at the height of Anglo-Italian tension in the Mediterranean, are going to the Atlantic for exercises this week.

Political sources in London speculated whether the move was a friendly gesture to Italy, which recently recalled one of four troops divisions from its North African possession of Libya, to aid Italian-Ethiopian peace negotiations.

Informed sources, however, gave no hint that this interpretation was true. The scene of the fleet exercises will be within easy reach of Gibraltar.

The house of commons awaited British Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare's explanation in final form of Britain's stand on application of the oil embargo on Italy. He will confer with Laval in Paris on the East African situation.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 5. (AP)—Uncertainty over the possibility of the government's selling some loan cotton depressed futures during the morning and net losses of 6 to 10 points were shown by active positions as neither the trade nor producers were much inclined to absorb contracts at current prices.

One advice from Washington, while unconfirmed, was to the effect that carrying charges on loan cotton might be paid by some other agency.

This would make selling of the loan cotton profitable above twelve cents and might bring some of this impounded stable into competition with the year's yield.

COMMITTEE HAS NO TROUBLE IN OBTAINING EXPENSE MONEY

BUSINESSMEN PAY SHARE OF SANTA EVENT

MERCHANTS REALIZE FULL VALUE OF SANTA DAY

Santa Day sold itself to merchants so satisfactorily in the past that the finance committee of which Tommie Chesser is chairman, had little difficulty in obtaining funds to pay the costs of the celebration. Solicitation was completed last night.

Members of the committee personally interviewed local merchants and business men, and obtained assessments which had been declined on before solicitations were attempted.

Merchants are aware of the value of Santa Day. They know that it is a boon to the merchant who would like for every buyer to do his or her Christmas shopping early. In the past, it has been the sad experience of merchants to come down to their stores after Christmas and find nearly full shelves, due to the fact that shoppers waited until Christmas eve to buy, and then had weather came.

Mr. Chesser reported that practically every merchant called upon contributed to the Santa Day fund. Members of Mr. Chesser's committee are Jake Garman, G. C. Malone, Herbert Beatty, Frank Hood, H. S. Berry, Doc Mitchell, Bob Knox, Harry Lapsky, Marvin Lewis, Fred Cullum, Dave Finkelstein, Delbert Brown.

Teachers To Be Given Arms to Protect Lives

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 5. (AP)—President Lázaro Cárdenas promises that Mexico's 15,000 rural school teachers would be given arms to protect their lives as they spread socialistic education throughout the country.

He gave this pledge to representatives of the thousands of teachers who gathered in the capital yesterday, demanding guarantees of safety against rebels who have killed and mutilated many of their number recently.

The instructors, led by two women teachers from Jalisco whose cars have been cut off their heads, coupled their call for protection with a request for higher wages and a pledge of support to President Cárdenas and the program of socialistic education.

New Bridge Law Code Announced

NEW YORK, Dec. 5. (AP)—A new code of laws for duplicate contract bridge was promulgated today by the American Bridge League, the American Whist League and the United States Bridge Association. It is effective Monday and will be used for the first time in the tournament of the American Bridge League starting in Chicago today.

Since the laws of rubber bridge have been changed last March duplicate has been played under a tentative code, which in the main is the basis of the final code approved by the three major bridge organizations.

"Perhaps the only change in the duplicate code from the rubber laws other than the changes positively necessitated by the differences in the two games," says the introduction to the code, "is the elimination of the count for honors in match-point play. This change has long been discussed and its overwhelming popularity since its adoption has fortified the committee's belief in the wisdom of the innovation."

A bid of eight is possible under certain circumstances in rubber bridge. It is forbidden in the duplicate code.

If in the opinion of a tournament director the bidding or playing conventions of a pair are so complicated as to place an undue burden upon the opponents, it may bar the use of such conventions. Any conventions widely known, however, are permitted.

The duplicate code seeks to prevent "races" to condone irregular bids if of advantage to the non-offending side. In the case of an insufficient bid, hastily corrected by the offender, the committee provides that the first bid is void; the correction may be honored, in case there is no penalty on the suffice penalized.

Scanning New Books

It would be difficult for anybody who frequents bookstores to overlook the current revival of interest in the dance. Nijinsky's sensational biography of her husband, Haskell's "Disagreement" and some less pretentious books such as Irving Deakin's "The Ballet" are the witnesses, starting from every shelf.

There is a new one this week with Lincoln Kirstein, the wealthy young man who helps with the American Ballet, who edited "Hound and Horn" for several years, who published a pretty good novel and some nice verse, who lectures on the dance in the theater—and that's enough about him.

His book is called "Dance: A Short History of the Development of the Dance" (Putnam). It is, like its author, perfectly serious. It is also a fully documented critical history of the dance from its beginnings in prehistoric times down to this year 1935, and one of the most valuable books on the subject now in print, at least in English.

It answers many questions, such as the sneering one about the dignity of the profession. All the great names in dancing may be found in it, with enough about their owners to satisfy all but the most minutely demanding. All the movements are discussed and evaluated, and some of the critical opinions you have read will stimulate controversy. The illustrations are beautifully chosen, the chronological table is valuable, and there is even a list of phonograph records useful for dancing.

The book is, in short, a further product of the modern court of the body, and of those who believe that our decreasing false modesty is a cheering sign will (in Woolcottish phrase) "beat the drums for it."

Thumbnail Reviews
"Reindeer Trek" by Allen Roy Evans (Coward-McCann): a novelized version of the famous reindeer drive across the frozen north.

"Arnold Bennett's Letters to His Nephew" (Harpers): the novelist in a new role, not always one which shows him a great man, but a legitimate and homely and pleasant addition to the record.
"Seven Leagu" Boote" by Richard Halliburton (Bobbs-Merrill): Dicky has some new adventures, including that masterpiece of futility, his elephant ride over the Alps.

"The Face of Mother India," by Atharine Mayor (Harpers): nearly 400 pictures, and 10,000 words of text amplifying Miss Mayo's famous "Mother India"; Miss Mayo just will not conform to the wishes of our Yogi-minded seekers after the "wisdom" of India.

Just Look!
"More Zerk" by Donald A. Laird (Whitely): inspiration. "A Child's Story of the Animal World," by Edward G. Huey (Reynolds & Hitchcock): a grand job of introducing the animal kingdom to the young and their parents.

"Cyrus Hall McCormick," by William T. Hutchinson (Appleton-Century): Mr. Hutchinson's monumental biography of the reaper's inventor marches on.

"Ivalu," by Peter Freuchen (Furnman): a novel by the celebrated Danish explorer of the Arctic, in which Ivalu, the heroine, is drawn from Freuchen's first wife—who was an Eskimo.

If you have nobody else you can give "Anthony Adverse" to, and still feel like a bookish Christmas, try a bigger book still.

This is the Columbia Encyclopedia. Prepared at Columbia University, it will take care of anybody who has even a peer and light wins thirst for knowledge. It's good for college boys and girls especially.

The suitable novel crop is especially good this Christmas. For those who can take their reading rough-hewn, there is Vardis Fisher's "We Are Betrayed," in which a man's taunted soul batters against life. These have their place also:

A Whole Shelf
"A House Divided" (Pearl S. Buck); "Lions Starve in Naples" (Johan Fabrics), and one of the god ones which was passed by; "Forgive Adam" (Michael Poster, of which the same is true); "Of Time and the River" (Thomas Wolfe); "A Few Foolish Ones" (Gladys Hasty Carroll); "Europa" (Robert Briffault); a dig at intellectual snobs; "Claudius the God" (Robert Graves); "Roll River" (James Boyd); "It Can't Happen Here" Sinclair Lewis' best in years; "Vein of Iron" (for Ellen Glasgow's admirers); "The Wind Blew West" (Edward Lanham, strong-willed Texas); "Horn in the Horn" (H. L. Davis; strong novel of Oregon).

For the slightly more literary, what could be wiser than Vincent Sheean's "Personal History," or Francis Hackett's "Francis the

MENTAL HAZARDS SUGGESTED BY GILCHRIST AS ACCIDENT REMEDY

BY HOWARD C. MARSHALL,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

AUSTIN, Dec. 5. (AP)—A man who has built more than $200,000,000 worth of highways for speed and safety, only to find them taking an enormous toll of human life, has turned to psychology in further efforts to safeguard the motoring public.

In the removal of mental hazards, Gibb Gilchrist, state highway engineer, thinks the tragedies on the nation's arteries of automobile travel may be lessened.

"The engineer is leaving nothing undone to make highways safe," said Gilchrist, who supervised construction of more than 23,000 miles of highway in Texas.

had crooked roads not been straightened out, corners rounded and wide bridges built.

"Yet, the engineer can do more. In addition to removing the actual hazards, he can remove the hazards which exist primarily in the motorist's mind."

He cited as an illustration a perfectly straight, concrete highway of standard width, physically safe for fast travel.

100 feet in the air," he said. "Would you drive rapidly over it, or at all? Very likely you would run off; and so would the average person. That's a mental hazard."

Hazards which make the motorist nervous and liable to an accident are deep ditches, bridges, tops of hills, and valleys. Gilchrist is filling the ditches, widening approaches to bridges and laying extra concrete at turns and hill tops.

"SO RED THE ROSE", FILM OF OLD SOUTH, WILL BE FEATURE AT BIG PREMIERE

Arrangements are being completed for a most colorful presentation in true Hollywood style of the picture, "So Red the Rose," at the La Mesa theater Friday, Dec. 6, which is one of the features of Pampa's annual Santa Day celebration.

The theater will be closed until 7:30 in the evening that day in order that the stage and interior may be put in order for the show which starts at 8:15.

The entire theater front will be ablaze with spot lights and the street program will be broadcast by remote control by station KGNC at Amarillo. The stage show will be under the direction of Harry Hibson who will present a number of novelty acts in addition to specialty bits by members of the orchestra. Prominent citizens from all over the Panhandle have been invited to attend and a great number have made reservations for the event.

"So Red the Rose," Paramount's stirring adaptation of Stark Young's novel of the same name, has Margaret Sullivan as the star, and the supporting cast includes such well known names as Walter Connolly, Randolph Scott, Janet Beecher, Elizabeth Patterson, Harry Elber, and the child actor, Dickie Moore.

"So Red the Rose" is a story of our South, a romantic and poignant account of those turbulent days of the war between the States. More than that, it reveals the ideals and hopes and bravery of a gentle Southern family when the clarion call of strife made men and women array themselves on the side of duty, sure of the righteousness of their cause.

It is the story of a young girl's love for a man, a man who hesitates to answer the fighting call of his people, and who, in his efforts to do what he believes is right, is even willing to sacrifice love on the altar of his beliefs.

Margaret Sullivan is the girl, Vallette, a pretty, vivacious belle of the South. It is a role delicately in tune with Miss Sullivan's subtle gifts as an actress and she brings to her portrayal the artistry that has distinguished her work on stage and screen.

The boy, Duncan, is portrayed by Randolph Scott, a handsome and talented actor who in "So Red the Rose" forsakes his "western" characterizations which have won him fame and proves his versatility as an actor.

Walter Connolly, one of the foremost character actors of our day, is splendid as Vallette's father, and Janet Beecher, Harry Elber, and Elizabeth Patterson in one of her

ABOUT NEW YORK

BY GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—In New York where so many people know the price but never share the value, it's as refreshing as a dawn breeze to meet someone like Francis Hackett.

Hackett is over from Ireland, burning with the spirit of a new Erin emerging painfully from the bog of centuries of poverty. He has been around some weeks, dropping out of the clouds to do a lecture here and there and only now able to catch an urban breather before journeying south to bask in Florida sunshine. I came upon him in the lounge of his hostelry, the Tuscan, the other evening, thumbing a recent tract on local economics and pausing thoughtfully to translate it into terms of troubled Ireland.

I could hardly believe that here was the man who penned that rollicking tome, "Henry VIII," and consequently was responsible for Charles Laughton's strutting, glutinous characterization of the much-married monarch. In repose, Hackett's small features are amiable. There is an air of slightness about him but it's an amusing deceit.

He starts talking and the seeming fragility vanishes in a quiet inner fire that burns deep in his eyes and gives his arguments a consuming persuasiveness. If you doubt it, get him started some time on the literary censorship in Ireland.

Hackett's a phrase-maker, too, qualifying his criticism of the bitterness in Ireland's young writers with the assurance that "each has his net to catch the stars." And when you pass a compliment his wit flashes out with "Oh come. They moved the Barney stone, you know, and now even the children can kiss it."

Sure and there's no doubt about Hackett's Irishness despite his years in Chicago as a newspaperman or his later season in New York as editor of The New Republic. And even now the riddle is getting a generous dose of Irish patriotism of another generation to which Hackett is related by blood.

"It's 'Parnell,'" the drama of Erin's great statesman, who founded the Home Rule party and then sacrificed his brilliant career for love of a woman. When Parnell's future was withered in the wind of scandal and the tragic end was drawing near, one friend stood by with unswerving loyalty. The friend was Francis Hackett, father of this same Francis who eight years ago proved that loyalty still runs in the family blood.

He turned his back on what had become certain economic security closed his ears to the rising tide of praise and "went home" to take a little cottage in the Irish country where the cause of a land beaten deep in the economic mire by decades of struggle for existence.

Fictionists often have never been near the scenes of the locales of their stories. For example, Edgar Rice Burroughs grew wealthy writing about "Tarzan" who lived in the African jungle, but Burroughs never has been there.

They were hungry in their younger days and can't forget it. Anyway, Al Singer, former lightweight champ, is opening a restaurant and hopes to emulate the success of Jack Dempsey, who is now one of our most illustrious restaurateurs.

AAU Will Take Up Matter of Olympic Games

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP)—The blizzard of words which has been blowing from all sides on the question of whether the United States should send its athletic teams to the 1936 Olympic games at Berlin and garmisch-partenkirchen will be directed as one point tomorrow.

Meeting for its annual three-day convention, the Amateur Athletic Union probably will take up that matter as soon as possible and decide definitely whether to support the participation of American teams.

The question will probably be threshed out tomorrow at a caucus meeting of the executive committee with the leaders of the "pro" and "con" factions, Avery Brundage of Chicago and Jeremiah T. Mahoney of New York, on hand to dispute in person. It is expected to come before the general convention Saturday.

In decisions were that the fight for a boycott of the Berlin games might come down to a struggle between Brundage and Mahoney for the A. A. U. presidency. Brundage, former president and chairman of the American Olympic committee, has been carrying on an active campaign in favor of participation.

Mahoney, who took the presidency last year with the understanding that he would serve only one year, recently indicated he might run again in order to carry on his fight for the boycott.

SIGNIFICANT MONEY ANGLES ARE ANALYZED

CHINA LEAVES SILVER STANDARD FOR PROTECTION

AUSTIN, Dec. 5.—The more significant financial developments of the last month include the apparent abandonment of the silver standard by China, the continued stock market last month include the apparent of administrative concern over the inflationary possibilities inherent in the present huge excess reserve balances of commercial banks, Dr. J. C. Dolley, financial expert for the Texas Business Review, published by the University of Texas Bureau of Business Search, has pointed out. "Early in November the Chinese National government announced a rather sweeping monetary reform program," Dr. Dolley said. "Under the decrees then issued, silver stocks were nationalized and required to be surrendered in exchange for bank notes; the existing bank note issues were to be gradually replaced by new notes issued by the Central Bank of China; exchange rates on China were to be maintained, artificially if necessary, at the present level; and the Central Bank of China was to evolve into a genuine national central bank. The program was not intended to take China off the silver standard since the Government had already accomplished that purpose in October, 1934, by placing an embargo on silver exports. Apparently the moves were designed to place China on a managed currency standard and to permit a more effective governmental control over silver exports."

"The Chinese monetary troubles are the direct result of the American silver purchase program which has raised artificially the price of the white metal from approximately 35 cents an ounce to 65 cents, thus causing a sharp price deflation in silver standard countries and at the same time draining away monetary silver reserves. It would seem that the Treasury silver buying which was undertaken in part to increase the world monetary use of silver has had precisely the opposite effect, having thus far compelled Mexico to debase her silver coin and China to abandon the silver standard."

"The stock market continued to advance steadily during the month, reaching the highest levels of the past four years. The present bull market thus far has carried the Dow-Jones average of seventy leading stocks from 35.42 on February 27 to 51.43 on November 19, an appreciation of some 46 per cent. Industrial stocks as a group have recorded the greatest advances, the Dow-Jones average of thirty such stocks rising from 102.55 to 148.44 during this period. At levels reached during the middle of November, many leading industrials were selling at 20 to 30 times current per annum earnings, prices relatively as high or higher than obtained in the speculative orgy of 1929."

"Various factors have contributed to the development of this mild stock market boom. The improved level of business activity together with the prospect of further gains; inflation fears, the flight of foreign capital to New York and the pressure of idle funds seeking investment have stimulated the purchase of common stocks. A large part of the buying has been for investment rather than speculative holding as is evidenced by the relatively small increase in broker loans. An unusually large proportion of the buying has been on a cash basis which, together with the higher margin requirements in force, has rendered the market much less susceptible to technical reactions than in the past."

"The long-continued and relatively step advance in stock prices together with the existence of enormous excess bank reserves which could easily finance further price rises, is beginning to cause responsible officials real concern. Within recent weeks, the Federal Reserve Board has seriously considered the advisability of cutting down the volume of loanable bank funds. Two devices are available for this purpose. The Board could authorize extensive open market sales of government obligations, a procedure which would undoubtedly depress the government bond market, or, under the authority of the Banking Act of 1933, the Board could order material increases in the legal reserve ratios of member banks. It would seem that the latter procedure would be preferable and extremely desirable at the present time before an inflationary psychosis has become well established. The deflationary reaction to such a move coupled with the existing political control of the Federal Reserve Board suggests, unfortunately, that no such action will be taken either now or in the near future."

"Commercial banking trends have revealed little change during the month. Because of a material change in the number of reporting member banks as well as a change in the classification of data reported, it is impossible to present comparable statistics on the condition of these banks for the months of October and November. However, it appears that demand deposits have continued to grow, as have holdings of government obligations. A slight increase in total secured loans, real estate loans, and other loans has occurred, but there is no indication as yet of any general expansion of bank lending. Excess reserve balances of member banks continue substantially above three billions. A renewed flight of capital from France has apparently developed, leading to increased exports of gold from Paris. It now seems probable that by the end of the year, our monetary gold stock will reach the amazing total of ten billions."

GUING AND UNIQUE STORY TEXAS UNIVERSITY'S LAND DOWMENT TOLD BY BENEDICT

Nov. Dec. 4.—The in- and unique story of the landowment of the University of Texas was recounted by President Benedict of that institution at the annual meeting of the Board of Governing Boards of Universities in session here.

Benedict described the landowment which the landowment act of 1890 provided and discussed the political and administrative problems facing his discussion of the landowment. Benedict called attention to the fact that Texas alone among the 48 states was for 10 years a dependent republic, having declared its independence from Mexico in 1836. This declaration of Texas independence, President Benedict pointed out, introduced a new element into history which had been neglected in the existing government.

President Benedict pointed out that the Texas landowment was voted in 1890 to become the United States but that the federal government was unable to carry out its duty regarding the landowment of Texas until 1843, considered that annexation for war. The Mexican war in a huge addition to the United States and an intimation in the area of valueless that the Texas & Pacific railway rejected it and left it for the university."

President Benedict pointed out that money received for grazing leases on this land virtually built all of the university buildings down to 1920 and paid a considerable portion of the running expenses besides. He commented upon the fact that the state constitution prohibits the appropriation for university buildings out of tax money, which he characterized a unique provision. He told of the efforts of the university to take care of its buildings and other needs out of its meager income and of the fortunate discovery of oil on these university lands in 1924. He outlined the policy of the institution in managing the oil lands and accounting staffs which must be maintained.

He called attention to the fact that all money received from oil and gas royalties and other mineral leases must go into the permanent fund of the university, only the income of which may be spent. He outlined the manner in which the permanent fund was invested, there being now $625,000 in state of Texas bonds belonging to the university, $9,680,000 in United States bonds, $5,800,000 in Texas municipal and county bonds, $6,000,000 in building bonds issued by the university itself and to be repaid to the permanent fund.

With the $6,000,000 derived from selling university bonds to the permanent university fund the institution was able to finance a $4,000,000 building program for the university, and a $2,000,000 program for the Agricultural & Mechanical

College of Texas. Subsequently, at the request of the Board of Regents, the privilege of investing the permanent funds in the bonds and obligations of the board of regents in the future was withdrawn. The president expressed the belief that this widening and narrowing of the field of investment is a unique episode in the history of higher education in the United States.

Dr. Benedict said that since 1925, at Galveston and Austin and Mt. Locke, including construction now in progress, $14,500,000 has been spent for buildings and other permanent improvements, this amount having been secured as follows: $2,175,000 from the Sealy and Smith Foundation, the Littlefield family, W. J. McDonald, and the Ex-Students' association; $1,030,000 from gifts from the federal government via PWA and direct grant for a Centennial museum; $1,887,000 from loans from the federal government via PWA; $4,000,000 from "building bonds"; and $5,425,000 out of income from the university endowment fund.

He discussed various problems confronting the university including the rapid increase in enrollment and the decrease in the amount of funds available for teaching purposes, maintenance, etc. The university of Texas, he pointed out, was operating at the lowest cost per student of any of the institutions in its class. He announced that enrollment had increased by another ten percent or more this fall.

Specialists of Associated Press To Cover Parley

LONDON, Dec. 5 (P)—Five specialists of the Associated Press staff will cover the international naval conference opening December 9 for the Pampa Daily News.

They will be headed by Frank H. King, chief of the London bureau of the Associated Press and for 4 years an expert on European affairs.

Lloyd A. Lehrbas, who "covers" the state department in Washington, is accompanying the United States' delegation to London to give the readers of the Daily News a first-hand account of the proceedings from the purely American angle.

Both King and Lehrbas have been newspaper men in Tokyo and know the Japanese attitude on naval affairs.

The three other Associated Press naval experts, all with wide international backgrounds, are Elmer V. Peterson, Charles P. Nutter, and Harold P. Braman. The whole Associated Press staff in London will assist.

Decisions reached at the conference, which will try to determine what will happen to the navies of the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France, and Italy after the present limitation treaty expires on December 31, 1936, may affect history.

POLITICS at random

BY BYRON PRICE,
Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington.

Viewed from any angle, the massing of business opposition to President Roosevelt is a matter of prime interest politically, as well as economically.

Politics always is uncertain, but at least interesting possibilities can be predicated on the lessons of political history.

One lesson of the past is that it is almost impossible to elect or reelect a president over a determined and wisely-directed opposition by organized business. From that the democrats may take warning.

Another is that the bringing together of powerful business organizations for political action usually results in extravagant campaign spending, and is likely to eliminate in a scandal benefiting the other side. The republicans may learn from that.

One way or the other, it is not improbable that business opposition to the Roosevelt policies, and to Mr. Roosevelt himself, will be one of the dominating factors in 1936.

Sentiment Crystallizing.

Of course there is nothing new in business distrust of Mr. Roosevelt, or in the prospect that many important business leaders will be against him next year.

The interesting thing about it, however, is that recently there has been a drawing-together of this sentiment, and a tendency to express it in organized fashion.

Wholesale refusal of the utility companies to register under the new holding company act coincides with a number of significant developments elsewhere.

Returns from a referendum among members of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, on whose board are represented all of the great financial interests of the country, show an overwhelming majority against current "legislative trends."

The American Bankers association, in annual convention, gives a cold reception to new deal speakers. The Liberty League, which manifestly has ample financial backing, extends its attack to include most of the president's major proposals.

These organizations all maintain they are not in politics, but their effect on politics is beyond dispute.

Campaign Funds.

That the republicans intend to make a thoroughgoing job of raising campaign funds is evident from the personnel of the new finance committee appointed by Chairman Fletcher. It is headed by leaders who represent concerns accustomed to deal in millions.

A year ago, the republicans were having great difficulty raising money. Those who were asked for funds replied in many cases by asking what assurance there was that the party would not go off at a tangent, and permit itself to be dominated by the radical elements, particularly in the west.

The general tenor of discussion at the "grass roots" conferences appears to have satisfied many eastern republicans that the party would at least be more conservative than the democrats.

The danger of too much emphasis on financial backing is illustrated by the experience of Edward P. Hutton, chairman of General Foods. He urged business, in a magazine article, to "gang up" against administration policies, but he found it advisable later to withdraw the expression and explain that he only meant "get together."

Too Early to Conclude.

It would be easy to draw hasty conclusions from all of this, with no facts to support them.

For one thing, the degree to which all business, big and little, is against the president has not been established. The democrats contend that they will have much business and banking support next year, particularly from communities largely dependent on agriculture.

Another thing to be borne in mind is that the mere existence of important financial backing for the republicans does not prove that the election is to be "bought" or that any illegal or immoral methods are to be indulged in. The legitimate expenses of a national campaign are tremendous, and both parties spend plenty of money when they have it.

All that can be done now is to

WOMAN WHO ENTERTAINED HOGG, REAGAN, CAMPBELL STILL LIVES

RUSK, Dec. 5 (AP)—In a tiny, weatherbeaten cottage within a stone's throw of the only house on the bank townsite when it was chosen for the county seat of the newly organized Cherokee county in 1846 lives "Aunt Ida," who will be 92 Dec. 15. She entertains her white friends with tales of plantation days on the old San Antonio road when she knew "the boys," Jim Hogg and Tom Campbell; days when John H. Reagan, visiting his brother, Cherokee county sheriff R. B. Reagan, bragged of her cooking.

No modern food, in "Aunt Ida's" estimation, can compete with sausage pounded to perfection in wooden mortars, stall-fed beef pickled in the old-time way, breast of wild turkey, sliced, dipped in meal and fried like fish.

When the youthful Ida and her "little misters" failed to get permission to stay home from church and then slip away to the creek in absence of their elders, she sat demurely behind the women in the "whitefolks churchhouse." "No courtin' at meeting in those days," she chuckles, "cause the men sat on one side and the women on the other."

His granddaughter, Miss Jessie Boone, has the bill of sale showing his purchase of Eda, her mother and two brothers, for $1,300. According to "Aunt Ida," she was offered for sale but Roark refused to separate her family so her first master sold all four members.

Having outlived her husband 32 years, nine of her ten children and all the white children she nursed, "Aunt Eda" doesn't "want to be in the way" long enough to reach the hundred mark. As she never learned to read her chief pastime is sewing after Mag. her "baby child" and present guardian, threads the needle.

Born in Little Rock, Ark., as a slave of James Carter, Ida was brought to Linwood, pioneer Cherokee county shipping point on the Angelina river, at the age of seven and sold to William Roark, a surveyor for the Burnett colony and a member of the commission appointed to locate Rusk.

POLITICS at Random

BY BYRON PRICE, Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington.

The effort to revive NRA, or at least to preserve its essentials in one form or another, quietly is assuming proportions which seem to insure widespread discussion during the coming session of congress and in the 1936 campaign.

Already there have been many rumblings of speculation about the fact that NRA headquarters carries on, with hundreds of employees, months after the supreme court declared the codes unconstitutional; but less public notice has been taken of numerous scattered hints that the venture scarcely can be regarded as a closed incident.

have left little trace. It now develops that Major Berry has been taking his job quite seriously. He has not been saying much for publication, but he has not been idle. What little he has said, and the evidences of his activity, have been exceedingly interesting.

For instance, the "coordinator" is quoted as saying that he understands one of his duties will be to find out whether industry and labor want some sort of permanent NRA. To this he adds his own conviction that "a permanent institution" to regulate industrial competition is "of first importance."

Whether it will be regarded as a part of the "history" of NRA or not, it now can be recorded in the archives that the American Federation of Labor has voted at its Atlantic City convention in favor of a constitutional amendment which, among other things, would seem to make it possible to revive NRA. Major Berry also has been in touch with industry. The details remain undisclosed, but it can be recorded also that the automobile industry feels the situation has reached a stage where it is time to declare itself. Accordingly it announces publicly that it does not want to see NRA revived.

Simultaneously, a highly interesting article appears in "The Consumer," a publication put out by the consumers' division of NRA, of which Major Berry is kingpin. The unidentified author of that article rather indicates he does not regard the supreme court's anti-code edict as entirely overpowering. He concludes by suggesting the possibility that "a national industrial administration" might be founded to replace both NRA and the federal trade commission.

Other signs, such as the continued protestations of Gen. Johnson that the old NRA was far better than it has been painted, and the recent suggestion of Secretary Roper that the supreme court's findings did not injure the basic objectives of the recovery act. Where it all will head up—whether the swing will be to the A. P. of L.'s constitutional amendment or to some less drastic action—seems anybody's guess. That it is heading toward renewed controversy certainly is beyond question.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION EXPLAINS COMING EXAMS—NOTICES WILL BE SENT OUT

The United States civil service commission has received more than 200,000 applications for the railway postal clerk examination, receipt of applications for which closed on October 28.

It is necessary to hold this examination in certain cities on succeeding dates, because of the large number of competitors. The commission has received very numerous inquiries from applicants who have heard that some persons in their own cities have been notified to appear for examination, whereas they themselves have not yet received notification cards. The fact that an applicant has not as yet received an admission card has no significance and is due solely to the different examination dates necessary.

All applicants whose applications have been accepted will in due course be sent admission cards, giving the date and place of examination. Applicants examined on the first day will, of course, have no preference in appointments over applicants examined on any of the succeeding dates, as the entire register will be made up on the same date. Applicants are urged not to write to the civil service commission concerning the date of the examination, as this tends to retard the work of the office.

VALUE AND MEANING OF BUDGETING

Texas a few years ago began mandatory budgeting in her units of government. The results have not been startlingly good, certainly the plan is no cure-all, but is a step toward orderly and efficient spending.

When first passed, the budgeting bill provoked debate, though the hearings from the start were poorly attended. Shortly, however, it was discovered that the budgets were so easily amended as to be almost worthless.

But, in the confusion and stress of the last few years, the work of compiling budgets and studying estimates of needs and income was valuable. It is not possible to make such estimates infallible, but a study of figures for a period of years is often illuminating. Budgeting forms have been simplified greatly. Although it has been claimed that an out-going administration could embarrass its successor by setting the budget too low investigation will show that such a state can be achieved both with and without the budget system.

Some flexibility in the budget plan is necessary and desirable. But, as in all such cases, the officials administering the budget can use it rightly or wrongly, as they choose, with doubtless most courts attempting to use good judgment. Budgets from year to year give both the officials and the interested taxpayers figures for comparison. Those who are inclined to "view with alarm" can find in the budgets their best ammunition for argument.

In setting up the new salary system, replacing the fee system, the legislature could have simplified records greatly by providing a central, unified receiving point for fees. It did not do so. Every fee office must continue to keep records of fees, collect them, and make periodical reports. And, as usual, abuses will occur and there will be limited control over the fee system.

In matters of book-keeping, the average legislator is probably as incompetent as the average citizen in prescribing the proper forms. Slowly, however, the recommendations of office holders and the state auditor are being adopted.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The administration probably is brewing a storm for itself in the next Congress through its adventures in "neutrality."

Not just because it appears to have taken the worse of two alternatives in its desire to discourage shipments of oil and other raw materials to Italy. Its reason for that choice is being widely construed as an official desire to be in position to use neutrality legislation and sentiment as hole cards with which to play the game of international politics.

Popular support isn't lacking for the idea that the best way to keep out of war is to refrain from exporting war materials to belligerents.

But there will be a large contingent in Congress to charge that Roosevelt and Hull should formally have embargoed shipments of oil to Italy and Ethiopia instead of adopting a method so dangerous in its precedent at that of making extra-legal threats to those engaged in the traffic.

The temporary neutrality act says the president "shall" embargo "arms, ammunition, and implements of war" when a state of war exists. Secretary Hull has said oil isn't "strictly an implement of war," but could be classified as a "war material."

Lawyers have been debating here whether raw materials, and especially oil and chemicals, could legally be classified as "implements." Opinions is divided.

The chief question raised is whether such definition would stand up in the courts. Many have pointed out that oil is an essential of warfare, an indispensable part of such armament as tanks, battleships, and guns.

It seems obvious enough that an administration which has adopted a "Damn the torpedoes" attitude toward the courts in its legislation was not deterred by the fear of what the supreme court might decide—long after the present neutrality act expires—when it refused to class oil as an "implement."

And it can hardly blame outsiders who believe that in the back of the minds of Roosevelt and Hull is the fear that some time in the future such a precedent might bar this country from supplying oil to the British navy.

Those who believe it's important to play no favorites point out that this government beat the League of Nations—in whose policy England has played such a big part—to the jump, first when it officially recognized a state of war between Italy and Ethiopia and, second, when it began to bring powerful pressure against oil exports to Italy before the league laid down an oil embargo.

Without some underlying motive, they feel, this government hardly would have placed itself in what seems a more unneutral position than it would have assumed by simply placing oil on the embargo list. The latter course could easily have been defended as a carrying out of the congressional mandate.

But when the administration, without authority of the neutrality or other act, proceeds to discourage trade with belligerents, by threats of coercion, the Italians are able to charge unfriendliness and convince their own people of it.

The course chosen has many more seeds of war than the other.

CAPITOL JIGSAW

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL

AUSTIN, Dec. 3. (AP)—At least one Texan doesn't want to trifle with the new liquor law.

He checked the liquor control board a check for $2.40 the other day, explaining he wanted to pay the tax of 80 cents a gallon on three gallons of whiskey he intended to drink.

The tax is levied against liquor possessed for sale.

If Gibb Gilchrist, state highway engineer, had his way automobiles would carry only one license plate and that would be protected with a lock.

"Why have a license plate on the front of an automobile?" he asked a friend recently. "Now just why?"

"So a cop on a motorcycle can read the numbers when he faces a car," he friend replied.

"That's the only reason," Gilchrist said, reiterating it was not sufficient to warrant the dual display.

He suggested that if Automobile manufacturers would provide strong holders for the plates, with some form of lock, the appearance of cars would be improved and switching in cases of theft would not be so easy.

The state capitol no longer is the tallest in Austin. It has been topped by the new administration building at the University of Texas after an undisputed reign of 50 years.

The star in the hand of Lady Liberty on the capitol dome is 311 feet above ground level. The highest steel beam on the university building is 299 feet above the ground, but the elevation of the university grounds is 20 feet greater than that of the capitol.

Moreover, eight feet of masonry will be erected on top of the steel, giving the university building a maximum height of 307 feet above the ground, or 327 feet above the capitol ground level.

CHINESE MONK CAGES HIMSELF
SUNKIANG, China (AP)—To shut off contact with the world, a Buddhist monk has locked himself in a cage 4 feet square at a temple near this city, vowing to stay there three and a half years and to study the Buddhist scriptures. His only furniture is a straw cushion.

SANTA DAY PARADE AND WINDOW PRIZES BIGGEST IN HISTORY

CANDY SUPPLY MUCH LARGER THAN IN 1934

TWELVE JUDGES WILL SELECT CONTEST WINNERS

The Junior Chamber of Commerce which is sponsoring Santa Day with the cooperation of the merchants, is offering the largest amount of prize money in the history of the event.

Nine winners of first, second and third places in the parade will receive more than $68 in cash prizes. Awards to winners in the window display contest will receive three prizes as follows: First, $10, second, $7.50 and third $5. The same amounts will be given winners of the first places in three divisions—city, county and out of county—in the parade.

The doll-pet-hobby parade was favored this year over the float system because it was believed that the latter had been "worked to death."

Three judges will be selected to pick the winning decorated display windows, and nine judges will name the winners in the parade. The parade awards will be paid directly to the teacher who may use it as she sees fit, for the room or for the children. In the strictest sense, the room will win the prizes and not the children.

Anticipating an attendance of literally thousands of children for the parade, the gifts, prizes and judges committee, of which Archer Fullingim is chairman, ordered 350 pounds of candy for the youngsters, through F. S. Brown, local grocer. There will be three sets of judges for the parade, three for the city entrants, three for the county entrants and three for the out-of-county entrants.

The candy will be distributed under the direction of Santa Claus—there ought to be enough this year because there is almost twice as much on hand as last year.

Most Failures At Texas U. Due To Mathematics

AUSTIN, Dec. 5. (AP)—Applied mathematics, statistics of the registrar show, caused the highest percentage of failures of any course at the University of Texas.

Registrar E. J. Mathews said university students failed to pass an average of 12.4 per cent of the total hours for which they were registered.

In mathematics the story was different. Failures in applied mathematics averaged 31.3 per cent and in pure mathematics, 30 per cent.

A course in Italian language had no failures. Only 1.1 per cent failed physical education courses, 1.9 per cent in Bible, 2.1 per cent in Czech, 2.7 per cent in the art of teaching, and 3.2 per cent in public speaking.

Failures ranged from 12 to 18 per cent in the broad majority of university courses, such as chemistry, economics, English, French, physics, Spanish, and zoology.

Law courses were the biggest stumbling block in the professional groups. In it 18.7 per cent of all grades were failing. Only 11.7 per cent of the engineers failed, 11.6 per cent in pharmacy, 10.3 per cent in business administration, and 6.1 per cent in education.

'HUSH LITTLE OYSTER' SUNG IN BRITISH LAB

LONDON (AP)—English oysters are so widespread they won't go to bed. Two British women scientists are hard at work trying to solve that knotty problem, seeking a "biological lullaby" to cure insomnia among the bivalves.

"Young oysters swim around for a short period before permanently anchoring themselves," explained Dr. Margery Knight, "but in recent years oyster beds on the British coast have become seriously depleted. The oysters simply won't go to bed."

Dr. Knight and her co-worker, Dr. Mary Parker of Liverpool university, hope to establish artificial beds of oysters in the laboratory at the Manx biological station, Port Erin.

CONNECTICUT URGES HONOR FOR PIONEER

STATE MAY FINANCE MOSES AUSTIN MEMORIAL

The state of Connecticut may participate in the Texas Centennial exposition with an exhibit in the form of a reproduction of Durham Hall, in Durham, Conn., birthplace of Moses Austin, if a campaign inaugurated by the Waterbury, Conn., Republican is brought to fruition.

In an editorial entitled "Connecticut to Texas" the Waterbury Republican says:

"One of the elements of Connecticut greatness celebrated during the tercentenary, now closing, was the deep imprint which Connecticut colonization made upon other states. With Ohio, originally this state's western reserve, the ties were many and strong, but the far flung influence of Connecticut by no means ended there. Her sons marched westward with the frontier, and carried her stout spirit into many important enterprises, and in instance after instance the guiding genius of movements geographically far removed can be traced to an origin in the Yankee ingenuity and hard headed common-sense of our own commonwealth.

"A typical transplanting of Connecticut initiative resulted in the settlement of Texas which next year is to observe the centennial of its independence from Mexican rule. Entirely fitting it is, therefore, that Connecticut should have a part in that celebration and particularly happy is the suggestion made elsewhere on this page by Bernard Wall of Lime Rock, that a reproduction of the Austin birthplace in Durham should be authorized by Connecticut to stand at the Texas exposition as a monument to our state's part in the great migratory movement which won the Southwest to our federal union. Mr. Wall is a distinguished artist whose interest in Connecticut history and antiquities has been signified by his successful action for the preservation of the covered bridge at Cornwall, and equal with his determination that Connecticut ties with the past be respected at home is his eagerness that this state's part in distant colonization receive suitable recognition.

"The Moses Austin whose birthplace at Durham still stands was the father of Stephen F. Austin, called the founder of Texas, but it was the elder Austin who, in 1821 secured permission of the Spanish governor of Texas for the establishment of an American colony of 300 families. Previous to this time Moses Austin had been a dry goods merchant in Philadelphia, a lead mining magnate in Virginia and Missouri and a founder of the Bank of St. Louis. It was the subsequent failure of this banking house that wiped out the considerable fortune he had accumulated in a restless, active life and turned him to his colonization schemes in Texas.

"He died before actual colonization could follow the Spanish governor's grant, but Stephen F. Austin carried on the enterprise, had the Spanish governor's agreement confirmed by the Mexican revolutionary establishment after Mexico's independence, established the settlement, and rose to a leading position in the later Texas republic. Impossible in the space at disposal to outline in full his colorful career, climaxed by his defeat for the presidency of Texas by Sam Houston, after which he became secretary of state in the new government, and died a few months later at the young age of 43.

MORE FRENCH BABIES TEND OF ARMY MOVE

PARIS (AP)—Movies showing France invaded and absorbed by Germany are used to spur Frenchmen on to having bigger and better families. A film released by the National Alliance Against Depopulation uses animated cartoons and graphs to compare deficiencies of the French birth rate with the rapid population increase in Germany and Italy. Shown in French army barracks, it warns that France's citizens, who now number 40,000,000, will dwindle to 30,000,000 in 30 years unless Frenchmen have families of three children or more. Newsreels of Hitler's armies are included as a warning.

Milestones of American Genius

Statue of Benjamin Franklin, erected in Boston, 1859, sculptured by Richard S. Greenough.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

WHEN Benjamin Franklin, at the age of seventy, reached France as America's first "goodwill ambassador," the Old World saw in his energetic, versatile and charming personality a symbol of the new nation.

He still seems representative of all that is best in American character. Statesman, diplomat, author, scientist, inventor and philosopher, Franklin excelled in each of these high callings. Little wonder, therefore, that his image is so deeply impressed on our national memory, and tangible memorials to his genius are found in almost every city of our land.

Born humbly in Boston, Franklin reached the heights of achievement and world-wide esteem in eighty-four years of devoted labor. His simple, lusty, fun-loving character touched the human imagination, so that the sight of his wise and deeply human face on some public square, in the tangle and turmoil of a modern city, is heart-warming—like meeting an old friend!

By the age of forty-two Franklin had won fame through his "Poor Richard's Almanac"—still quoted after two centuries! He retired to his avocation, scientific research, making his memorable experiments with electricity and developing the lightning rod, the Franklin stove, bifocal glasses and other inventions.

But his country's need soon drew him into political life. His place among the fathers of our Republic is clear from the fact that he was the only signer of all four of the great documents that launched the American Republic—the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, the Treaty of Alliance with France and the Treaty of Peace with England.

The memorial pictured above is one of scores throughout the country. It stands in Boston, the city in which Franklin rose from printer's devil to fame, Philadelphia, is the place of his burial. A marble slab marks his final resting place, which is a shrine revered by the nation which he helped to found.

ALL CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS TO BE UP FRIDAY

Colored Lights, and Roping to Create Atmosphere

Clarence Kennedy, chairman of the decorations committee, was getting ready today to survey the results of some strenuous labor. Weeks ago, Mr. Kennedy and other Jaycees who are sponsoring Santa Day in cooperation with merchants of the city, let a contract for the decorations. This week, a few days before the event, Mr. Kennedy was informed that the decorations he had contracted to rent had been washed away in a flood. Then Clarence and Bill Fraser, the other member of the decorations committee got busy.

They located in Denver, Colo., the kind of decorations they wanted, and in the end obtained them for less money than they would have had to pay in the first place. The last of the green roping, colored lights and wire will be strung across the street today. It is impossible to feel that the Christmas season is not at hand, when one drives or walks down the "main drag" of the city.

ILLITERACY DROPPED 58 PER CENT IN MEXICO DURING PAST 35 YEARS, FIGURES DISCLOSE

GOVERNMENT SEEKING TO EDUCATE ALL PEOPLE

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 5 (AP)—The alarming extent of illiteracy in Mexico and the measures which the government is taking to educate the people are shown in official figures published recently.

Three-fifths of the population of ten years of age and over, or 6,962,157 persons, are unable to read or write, census data made public by the department of statistics reveals.

The census made last year disclosed that 40.74 per cent of all residents of Mexico are illiterate, but nevertheless this figure represented a great improvement during the past 35 years.

In that period illiteracy decreased 58 per cent while the population increased 22 per cent. In 1900, census figures show, 74.18 per cent of the population over ten years was illiterate, in 1910 it decreased to 69.73, in 1921 to 66.17 and in 1930 to 59.26 per cent.

There still are more than 1,000,000 children of five years and under who speak no language but their regional Indian tongue and have no acquaintance with Spanish, the government reported. Of persons over ten the percentage of illiterates is greater among women than among men. Figures show that 63.34 per cent of the women inhabitants and 54.58 per cent of the men cannot read or write.

In fulfillment of the program outlined under the six year plan by which he is conducting his government, President Lazaro Cardenas has announced that for 1936 the federal appropriation for education will be the largest in the history of the country.

A total of 48,509,000.00 pesos (about $14,000,000), representing more than one-sixth of the entire national budget, and 7,000,000 pesos more than the appropriation for the current year, will be turned over to the department of education to continue its campaign to wipe out illiteracy and make higher education available to every resident of Mexico.

Among the schools to be constructed are centers of Indian education, rural grammar, secondary and normal schools, regional peasants schools, technical industrial and polytechnical institutions, institutes "socialistic education," and schools for children of soldiers. Travelling libraries will be sent to parts of the country where the inhabitants now have no facilities for obtaining books.

Gonzalo Vasquez Vela, federal secretary of education, who is now on an inspection tour of educational institutions in the southeastern part of the country, announced that salaries of teachers will be raised from 25 to 30 per cent next year.

Raises in pay would be welcomed by the teachers but in many states they would be satisfied to receive the salaries which local and state governments have owed them for many months. Teachers in Coahuila, claiming they have not received a cent since last January, have threatened to go on strike, and in Hidalgo, Morelos and other states teachers have frequently left their positions during the past year because officials refused to pay them.

In addition, the life of a rural school teacher is becoming increasingly dangerous as a result of attacks by armed rebels opposing socialistic education. At least twelve teachers have been assassinated in four states in recent weeks and several others, including two women, have had their ears cut off by insurgents and been threatened with death if they resumed teaching.

Twelve persons arrested here for having supplied arms and ammunition to Jalisco rebels were formally charged by General Vicente Gonzalez, chief of police of the federal district, with having "incited rebels to direct all their hate and perversity against rural school teachers."

Since the arrests no cases have been reported of attacks on teachers.

QUEEN MARY'S COVERS WARM BABIES OF POOR

LONDON (AP)—Twelve London babies will sleep this winter under crib coverlets made personally by Queen Mary, who as first lady of the land is leading patron of charities in the British Isles. The queen, in addition to crocheting the 12 coverlets, collected 1,943 of the 64,210 gifts donated to Queen Mary's Needlework Guild, one of her favorite charities for distribution to the sick and poor.

Other members of the royal family also contributed. King George sent 287 articles of clothing.

TEXAS STILL OWES DEBT 100 YEARS OLD TO WAR FINANCIER

AUSTIN, Dec. 5 (AP)—Europe isn't the only place where war debts are hard to collect. For a century, legislators have toyed with the idea of repaying a $155,000 loan which helped the struggling young republic of Texas wage its war for independence in 1836.

Heirs to a rich Galveston shipper who advanced the loan still are whistling for their money or any part of it, but legislative reluctance, manifest ever since the matter came up for settlement, always seems to block payment.

The claim bobbed up again in the recent special session and the senate voted to pay $16,942, to Reynolds Lowry, Anna McKinney Lowry and Mrs. Mary Nelson Lowry Nolen, the surviving heirs, who live in Austin.

But a conference committee, beset with the task of whittling the total of a special appropriation bill, killed the item. Despite protest the claim was valid and should be paid, both houses concurred in its elimination.

Senator Grady Woodruff of Decatur pointed out that journals of the congress of the republic of Texas acknowledged that the money had been advanced by the Galveston shipping firm of McKinney and Williams in 1835 to the armies of the republic.

After Texas won independence from Mexico, the treasury was empty and an appropriation to repay the shipping firm was not made.

Thomas F. McKinney later acquired his partner's interest in the claim. Then the civil war swept away his fortune.

Legislative records, Woodruff said, contained an agreement in 1873 by McKinney to accept a stipulated amount of interest in full payment of the claim. Again the legislature failed to appropriate funds.

The years passed and, for a long period, the claim was not pressed. After the turn of the twentieth century an Austin attorney initiated an investigation, with the result that an appropriation was finally made. It was contained in a general claims bill which the governor vetoed, because, as usual, the state was "too poor."

CALES, LAND REFORMER, MAY LOSE RICH ACREAGE

MEXICO, D. F., Dec. 5 (AP)—General Plutarco Elias Calles, who while President of Mexico was one of the principal advocates of the government's land distribution program, may lose part of his huge holdings as a result of the same agrarian laws.

The government has been asked to parcel his hacienda of Santa Barbara, which consists of 1900 acres of rich farm land near this city. Calles, now in Los Angeles, owns numerous other properties in various parts of the country and several homes.

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

This danger may be the beginning of many ailments: backache, leg pain, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 quarts of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes. # SANTA TO RIDE PLANE IN PARADE; GNOMES TO FLING CANDY

CHILDREN ARE URGED NOT TO SNATCH, GRAB

ARE ASKED TO SHOW BEST MANNERS IN PARADE

Dick Hughes is chairman of a committee which will see to it that Santa arrives here promptly tomorrow afternoon, and in time for the parade. That's one thing Santa is particular about—he has never been late, mainly because he can be everywhere at the same time. It's hard for young-ones to understand, but they must accept the mysteries of Santa Claus—sort of like they accept the fact that they have ten toes.

Well anyway, Santa will arrive in town from the North Pole in the afternoon. He will arrive in his plane which will be loaded on to a truck and placed in the parade. Youngsters are asked to note the special fact that old Santa will not look a bit older than he did last year. One can never be as young as Santa is, and never as old. That's another strange fact that children and grownups too, just have to believe in whether it's reasonable or not.

When Santa Claus gets down town, he will pick up the candy (350 pounds) he told the Jayces to order for him for the children of Pampa. Then he will instruct his gnomes to distribute it to the good children. This year he was particularly insistent that his gnomes send and stuff in the pants of the children who snatch and grab and try to get more than their share of the candy.

NEFF PORTRAIT BEING PAINTED FOR UNIVERSITY

AUSTIN, Dec. 5 (AP)—At last, a new thing under the sun! A contractor who won't annoy office employees.

Workers who have tried to do their job with a rippling machine quite full blast under their windows will appreciate the innovation.

The steam shovel excavating a hole about 80 by 100 feet in which to place the new vault for the state treasury works only after office hours at the capitol.

The excavation is directly under the windows of the house of representatives chamber and about 50 feet from the private office of State Treasurer Charley Lockhar.

Edmond Fizzella, artist of New York and Washington who painted the portrait of Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, recently hung in the senate chamber, is doing another of former Gov. Pat M. Neff.

Mr. Neff has been coming to Austin about once a week to pose. The portrait probably will be hung in the hall at Baylor university, of which the former governor is president.

Members of the legislature, being very human, like their football. Those who stayed past the adjournment of the 1935 special session for the McDonald investigation were no exception.

Meeting Monday they diligently probed the affairs of the commissioner of agriculture for most of five days, in fact until about one o'clock on Friday.

Then the chorus demanding a vote became louder and more impatient, a resolution of censure was adopted and the investigation took out for the Arkansas-University of Texas game.

Newspaper readers who may have wondered what had become of the Texas relief commission, the board of control and various other governmental agencies will soon find out.

They have been sawing wood, fighting along, so to speak, but their activities couldn't stand up beside the legislature in news-making for the last several months.

Now that the legislators have gone home for a while, departmental news again will crowd into the papers. In January, probably, when the legislature troops back to Austin, the cycle will be repeated.

DISCOVERY OF PADDLE WHEEL IN RIO GRANDE RECALLS LEGEND OF GOLD IN HOLD SHIPPED IN 1867

BROWNSVILLE, Nov. 30. (AP)—The skeleton of an ancient fable of lost gold returned to haunt the credulous when Domingo Allala uncovered recently the paddle wheel of a boat believed to have been sunk in the Rio Grande during a tornado almost 70 years ago. The legend had Mexican gold in her hold.

The story, pieced together from recollections of older residents of Brownsville, is that a shipment of gold from mines in Mexico was made through here in 1867. It was brought in by mule pack train and transferred to a boat to be carried down to ships off the bar at the mouth of the Rio Grande. Great wind storm swept in from the gulf, however, and oldtimers say the gold-laden vessel sank.

Allala's land is in a big bend of the Rio Grande, almost within the city's boundaries, and the uneasy border river once flowed over the spot where the wheel was found. The channel, in after years, moved southward and sediment from overflows built up what is now Allala's potato farm.

Coincidence has lent credibility to the legend. A short time before Allala's plow-point struck the buried wheel, one of his laborers picked up a square 20-peco Mexican gold piece about 200 yards from the spot.

Allala's discovery consisted of a large shaft with an iron wheel attached. Remnants of the wooden paddles remain on the rim of the wheel. No further excavation has been done but the farmer requests that anyone wishing to search for the gold do his digging in a manner not to injure the land for a surer cash crop—potatoes.

Meanwhile, prospects of construction of a causeway across Laguna Madre from the mainland to Padre Island, has revived mild interest in the tale of the buried Singer wealth, that has been a tradition in this area for more than half a century.

Interest in the legend reached its maximum in 1930, when a "lost city" was found on the island. The mystery of the "city" was explained in letters from Alexander Singer, son of John V. Singer and nephew of Merritt Singer, inventor of a sewing machine.

Alexander Singer, who lives in central Texas, stated that in 1847, the family was shipwrecked off Padre Island while en route to South America. They established a camp ashore which subsequently developed into a cattle ranch of considerable proportions.

Before coming here John V. Singer loaned his brother, Merritt, $500 to obtain patents on his inventions. In 1860, Merritt Singer sent his brother $150,000 to establish a shipping business. When the civil war began, the legend relates, the Singers were advised to leave the island on account of alleged sympathies for the union.

Alexander Singer is quoted as saying that in 1860, Merritt Singer, $100,000 of the family fortune was buried. Tides and winds shift the hills on Padre Island and the only

Phares conducted Texas' first school for state officers when the
