Dry weather has taken a toll on Gray County's wheat crop which is involve weather, however, but is the expected to be "way down from a normal harvest," said Danny Nusser, law, which encouraged farmers to county extension agent for agriculture. And that fact is also affecting cattle ranchers who use wheat fields for grazing and now must pay more to feed their herd or reduce their numbers. This past winter marks the second one in a row that supplemental feeding has by dry soil and insects and, in fact, been necessary.

A part of acreage cut doesn't result of the 1996 Freedom to Farm switch to crops such as soybeans and corn that offer better prices or higher subsidies.

Nusser doesn't have the exact figures on acres down locally but said much of the wheat has been destroyed some that was planted last fall nevercame up due to a lack of moisture.

Heavy insect pressure, he said, "stressed a lot of wheat that really was-

A smaller crop often means farmers will get higher prices for what they do harvest, but that may not be the case this year because the USDA is projecting the lowest exports in 30 years. The AP said. "A good rain," Nusser said would go a long way in helping the area's pastures "that are really starting to hurt" from little or no moisture.

Earlier this spring, rain greened up the cool season grasses but these are starting to die off and weather conditions are setting up the same pattern as Buffalo and other native grasses in pastures are not producing much thus setting up a "tough" scenario for ranchers. Nusser said. It's the same grass that ranchers depend on to help tide their cattle over during the winter.

"They'll either have to feed the cows or reduce their herd numbers," he said, noting that many ranchers have begun selling off cattle.

Realistically, however, Nusser said, You really can't afford to feed the way you need to in order to keep up the nutritional needs where they need to be and expect to make any money."

Taped plot lands former parole officer in prison

DALLAS (AP) - Former parole office Connie Stone never knew the woman she wanted killed. And she picked the wrong person to try to carry out the hit.

A videotaped payment to an ex-convict led to her arrest, conviction and 40year prison sentence for trying to arrange the murder of her lover's ex-wife.

Prosecutors said Stone, 40, seemed giddy while hammering out details, describing the would-be victim's car and work habits and handing over $1,500 in cash last August to another of her former parolees whom she hired.

"Well, uh, did you have any preference ... to how you want this done?" the wouldbe hit man asked on tape. "Do you want me to make it like ... a burglary gone wrong or a drug deal gone wrong or a rape gone wrong?

Laughing, Stone said: "It doesn't matter. I'm thinking

Woodward will be in the burn unit for about 20 days at which time he'll be re-evaluated.

Employees at the local Sonic said they aren't allowed to talk about the incident and referred an inquiry to the company's crisis management hot line.

Celina Abernathy at Sonic's corporate office in Oklahoma City told The Pampa News, "We feel terrible about this. Our employees are like family.'

The accident is similar to one a little over a year ago in which the Sonic building was damaged at the drive-in window when a speeding car struck a vehicle at the window, according to a police report.

In the crash on April 12, 2001, police said a red 1995 Chevrolet Camaro convertible, driven by Contessa Nicole Kingcade, then 16, of rural Gray County, struck a 1994 Chevrolet Blazer parked at the drive-in window. The impact pushed the SUV into the wall of the Sonic.

Officers said at the time that an employee at the window narrowly escaped injury from the impact that caused $10,000 in damages to the building. Two people in the SUV were injured.

Bush refuses to lift Cuba embargo intil Castro meets tough conditions

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Bush said Monday he won't heed calls to lift the Cuban trade embargo unless Fidel Castro releases political prisoners, conducts independently monitored elections and accepts a list of tough U.S. conditions for a "new government that is fully democratic."

"Freedom sometimes grows step by step, and we will encourage those steps," the president said, outlining his new U.S. policy on Cuban Independence Day.

Seeking to balance his hardline policy with a sensitivity to Cuba's grinding poverty, the president outlined administration actions designed to make life better for the Cuban people. One initiative would resume direct mail service to and from Cuba.

Bush's speech, which aides said has been in the works since January, came a week after former President Carter traveled to Cuba and urged the people to embrace democracy while calling on the United States to lift the 40-year-old trade embargo.

Carter and other critics argue that the restrictions have failed to end Castro's regime while making life tough on ordinary Cubans. Bush also has been accused of shaping his policy to win support of Cuban-Americans, a force in Florida politics and thus a key to his re-election hopes.

Bush was traveling to Miami later in the day to address Cuban-Americans eager to hear his anti-Castro rhetoric.

Speaking in Spanish at times, Bush said Cuba's legacy of freedom "has been insulted by a tyrant who uses brutal methods to enforce a bankrupt vision. That legacy has been debased by a relic from another era who has turned a beautiful island into a prison."

If all his conditions are met, Bush will support lifting the congressionally mandated trade ban said two senior White House officials, speaking on condition of anonymity. They said Bush does not envision Castro's making the necessary changes, prompting the new policy designed to foment change from within the country.

"If Mr. Castro refuses our offer he will be protecting his cronies at the expense of his people and eventually, despite all, his tools of oppression, Fidel Castro will, need to answer to his people," Bush said.

Last year, Bush proposed aiding Cuban dissidents, strengthening the impact of Radio Marti and TV Marti broadcasts and enforcing travel restrictions.

"Well-intentioned ideas. about trade will merely prop up this dictator, enrich his cronies and enhance the totalitarian regime," he said Monday. "It will not help the Cuban people."

To win his approval of easing restrictions, Bush said Cuba must:

-Allow opposition parties to speak freely and organize. -Allow independent trade unions. -Free all political prisoners. -Allow human rights organizations to visit Cuba to ensure that the conditions for free elections are being created.

Mom Carrying Full Load Takes Unexpected Detour

DEAR ABBY: A few days ago, while walking down our stairs holding my infant son, "Carl," in one arm and a cordless phone in my other hand, I tripped over our cat and fell down 14 hardwood stairs. I dropped the phone and cradled my baby close to my body.

I ended up with a black eye, six stitches, a fat lip, a broken hand, and more bumps and bruises than you can imagine. Miraculously, Carl is fine.

Since that day, my mind has been filled with "what ifs," especially regarding my son. I am haunted by all the horrible possibilities.

It's embarrassing to have fallen down the stairs, Abby, but I know many busy mothers are distracted every day. I'm writing because I hope my experience will help others avoid such an accident. BLACK-AND-BLUE MOM homes and have shown up uninvited. We don't tell them where we are going - they drive around until they spot our car.

DEAR MOM: You learned a painful lesson. There is an old saying, "You can't do two things at once." Although many people can safely multitask, when one is carrying a baby or small child, the safest course of action is to remember you are carrying precious cargo and give it your full attention.

This is very embarrassing. We are afraid our old friends will stop inviting us knowing that these neighbors will show up too.

How do we handle this without hurting their feelings? We have never had a problem like this before.

ANNA IN ATLANTA

DEAR ANNA: Your neighbors probably have no friends because they are so needy and possessive. However, following you and intruding on others' get-togethers is rude. Their unacceptable behavior will not stop until someone (how about you?) explains to them that guests who drop in uninvited are not welcome.

DEAR ABBY: My 21-year-old daughter has been dating a 28-yearold man since last summer. I feel strongly that he's too old for her and have expressed this to both of them. This guy is very good to my

Randall ends Pampa's playoff run, barely

AMARILLO - Pampa's miracle run in the playoffs ended in the regional quarterfinals over the weekend, but not before the Harvesters gave No. 1 ranked Randall a king-sized scare.

Pampa lost 9-0 in the opener of the three-game set, but bounced back to run-rule the powerful Raiders 10-0 in the second contest. Pampa's neversay-die Harvesters had a seventh-inning rally fell short in the finals and Randall held on for a 10-9 win.

Pampa's 18-19 record was the worst R among the Class 4A playoff teams. Just goes to show how records can be deceiving.

Wrestling camp scheduled in Pampa June 12

PAMPA — The Pampa Wrestling Camp will be held June 12-14 at the high school MPAC Building.

The camp, under thedirection of PHS head wrestling coach Justin Turner, is for youngsters ages 6 to 18.

Collegiate wrestlers Johnny Thompson and Pat Popolizio of Oklahoma State University, will be the camp technicians. Thompson, who has a 73-5 career record, is the 2002 NCAA National champion, a twotime All-American, twotime Big 12 champion and the 1999 Oklahoma State champion. Popolizio is a three-time NCAA qualifier, two-time Big 12 runner-up, the 1996 New York State champion and 1996 High School All-American. He compiled an 111-4 record at Niskayuna High School, including 97 victories by fall. Registration fee is $50 for wrestlers and $25 for coaches. Any coach who brings five wrestlers to the camp will have their fee waived.

The Harvesters scored at least one run in every inning against Randall hurler Daniel Betancourt.

Hot-hitting Wes Martin got things started with his firstinning triple. He scored on the same play after a wild throw from the outfield. Martin was 8 for 8 at the plate in the playoffs before his groundout in the fourth inning halted that streak. Pampa made it 3-0 in the second when designated hitter Charlie Craig came through with a 2-run single. Martin delivered again with a solo homer in the third inning. The Raiders' defense failed them again in the fourth inning on a wild pitch and throwing error that allowed Craig to score.

Randall's defense fell apart in the fifth as Pampa stretched the lead to 7-0. Evan Miller and Tyson Moree both reached on errors with Miller crossing the plate when Moree's groundball was misplayed. With the bases loaded and one out, Moree scored on when Craig grounded into a fielder's choice.

Martin reached on a single to start the sixth and with one out, he scored on Miller's double. Jones followed with a clout over the right field fence to even the series at 1-1.

Some unusual strategy played a key role in Pampa's win. Randall power hitter Chance Douglass was intentionally walked three times, and Craig Howard, who followed him in the batting order, was struck out three times by Jones.

Martin and Jones led Pampa's 11-hit attack with three hits each. Miller had two hits, while Jesse Francis, Jered Snelgrooes and Craig had one hit each.

Shortstop Sammy Sessler had two of Randall's five hits off Jones.

. . . . Randall 10, Pampa 9 (finals)

It took a seventh-inning appearance by ace pitcher Chance Douglass to stifle a Pampa rally and send Randall to the regional semi-finals.

The Harvesters dug themselves out of a deep hole after Randall had taken a 10-0 lead after three innings.

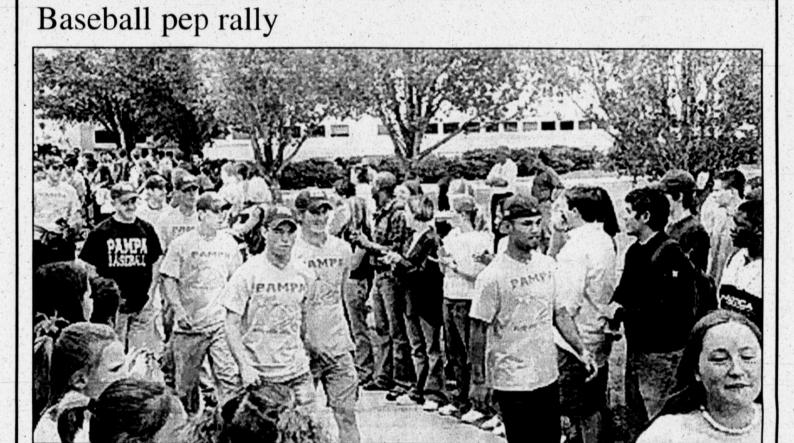

Pampa started its comeback in the fourth inning as Jered Snelgrooes had a run-scoring single and junior first baseman Ryan Zemanek followed with a three-run home run to, make the score 10-4.

Pampa crept closer in the fifth on a two-run triple by Tyson Moree.

The Harvesters starting putting on the heat in the seventh as Martin led off with a single and Michael Galloway reached on an infield error. Senior shortstop Evan Miller, the team's top hitter in what would be his last at bat for the Harvesters, smacked a threerun homer off Randall lefty Dalton Rucker to close the gap to one. Douglass - who had shut out Pampa in the opener - was brought in and he retired the side to end the threat.

Junior pitcher Max Simon settled down after a shaky first three innings when the Harvesters committed five errors behind him. Simon shut out the Raiders the last three frames to finish with four strikeouts and four walks. He yielded seven hits.

Martin had two of Pampa seven hits with a pair of singles. Galloway added a single. Douglass had a two-run homer for the Raiders.

A huge crowd of baseball fans line the sidewalk at the high school Friday afternoon, cheering and clapping as the Pampa Harvesters head for the bus that will transport them to Amarillo and the regional quarterfinal series against No. 1 ranked Randall. Leading the Harvesters down the walkway is senior second baseman Wes Martin. Even though the Harvesters lost the series, they won both the bi-district and area

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - After two weeks of frustration, Team Kool Green placed all three of its cars into the Indianapolis 500 field as rain disrupted the last day of qualifying.

Two-time winner Arie Luyendyk and two of A.J. Foyt's drivers found the speed they had been lacking all month. And Billy Boat squeaked in for the second straight year Sunday when the final nine spots in the starting grid were filled.

"Last week, I scratched my head, and I think we all did,' said Michael Andretti, one of the three teammates who drive for Barry Green. "We were like, 'Where did the speed go?""

On a cool afternoon, ideal conditions for quick qualifying laps, the speed was back. So was the rain, which forced the qualifying to end 65 minutes early.

For much of the afternoon, though, drivers who had spent so much time searching for answers finally found them as the 33-car field for the May 26 race set an average qualifying record of 228.648 mph.

Before it rained, the bigname drivers who hadn't yet qualified for next Sunday's race made their move.

Luyendyk, a three-time pole-winner, was the fastest. His speed of 228.848 put him on the outside of the eighth

Hurricanes win in overtime, 2-1

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) -The Eastern Conference finals have been a grind for every inch of ice, every possession, every shot.

It may well be more of the same from the Carolina Hurricanes and Toronto Maple Leafs when play shifts to Air Canada Centre on Tuesday night with the bestof-seven series tied at one game apiece.

"We got a little spoiled , series," Rod last Brind'Amour said after Carolina won 2-1 in overtime Sunday. "It's going to be scratch-and-claw against this team."

After a lot of open ice in the East semifinals against Montreal — a series won in six games by the Hurricanes

- the Maple Leafs 'took the opener 2-1 and tied Game 2 with 7.4 seconds left in the third period on a goal by Alyn McCauley.

But Carolina won 13:42 into overtime when defenseman Niclas Wallin's shot went off the shin pad of a Toronto player and past a stunned Curtis Joseph.

Wallin's goal was his second OT game-winner in these playoffs, and came through traffic.

Nets take 1-0 lead in Eastern conference finals opener EAST RUTHERFORD, finished in double figures in N.J. (AP) — Maybe Byron Scott is right. The New Jersey Nets aren't going to get much respect until they points. make it to the NBA Finals.

The Nets beat Boston 104-97 Sunday in the opener of the Eastern Conference finals. That didn's stop the Celtics from becoming the latest opponent to discredit the Nets.

"This ain't nothing, no sense worrying about this," said point guard Kenny Anderson, acknowledging the Celtics were lax in their first conference final appearance since 1988.

"Right now, this is over with," he added. "I have been around 'my team long enough that I know we are going to come all out Tuesday. This was just a practice run, like to see what they threw at us." What the Nets tossed at the Celtics was an up-tempo transition game that Boston had better find a way to defend in Game 2 at New Jersey on Tuesday night. If they don't, this could be a quick best-of-seven.

In the West, Los Angeles plays at Sacramento on Monday night, with the Lakers ahead 1-0.

New Jersey got one easy basket after another in embarrassing a Celtics defense that had limited Detroit to an average of 75 points in the final four games. of the conference semifinal. Jason Kidd again led the way, recording his first triple double of this postseason with 18 points, 13 rebounds and 11 assists. Seven Nets scoring with Kerry Kittles, Keith Van Horn and Todd MacCulloch all adding 14

Boston got 27 points apiece from its one-two punch of Paul Pierce and Antoine Walker, but little from anyone else on a consistent level, especially on defense.

"We didn't even play a lick of defense all night," said Pierce, who averaged 37 points against the Nets in the regular season.

Twenty of the Nets' 30 baskets in the first three quarters came on layups, dunks or shots within 10 feet. Boston had only five easy baskets.

"In the first two series, we didn't get the opportunity to get out and run," Kidd said of matchup with Indiana and Charlotte. "To be able and get out and run like we did in the first quarter really helped everybody relax."

Hearing what the Celtics said after the game might provide more motivation for New Jersey, which felt the Pacers, and Hornets talked a little too much in the first two rounds. Listen to Pierce:

"We feel good about this game to tell you the truth," he said. "Even though we lost, we know we did not play our best basketball." The Nets did.

New Jersey shot 49 percent and outscored the Celtics 48-20 in the paint. It held a 171 point lead early in the fourth quarter, and only a late run made the score respectable.

"I don't understand why people think that just because it's the playoffs, you're not going to be able to run the ball up and down the floor," Scott said. "We're going to play the way we played all season long.

That style allowed the Nets to post the best record in their conference, but all season there have been doubters waiting for them to revert to the style that made them one of the league's worst teams.

The doubters are still waiting.

The Nets put this gameaway after Pierce picked up his third and fourth fouls in a 16-second span in the third quarter.

Pierce had insisted no Nets player could stop him. He ended up doing it himself, picking up a silly offensive foul because he was annoyed at getting his third foul on an apparent block of a Kittles' shot

When Pierce went to the bench, the Celtics trailed 63-58. New Jersey closed the quarter with an 18-10 spurt that gave it an, 81-68 lead that was too big to overcome.

golfers.

The feeling was a little different Sunday when the 45year-old Price won the Colonial again for his first PGA Tour victory in four years.

"It wasn't sitting in front of me like so many of those wins' in the early '90s," Price said. "I came here knowing I felt I was going to finish in the top 10 again because I was playing well, but I didn't have any idea I was going to win."

Price closed with a 3under-par 67 to finish the Colonial at 13-under 267, five strokes better than David Toms and Kenny Perry. It was his 17th PGA victory, and first since the 1998 FedEx St. Jude Classic.

Just like many of his 15 wins in the 1990s that matched Tiger Woods for the most in that decade, Price

Price two-putted for par on the 178-yard 13th. He then put the tournament out of reach, getting to 13 under with a chip-in birdie from 30 feet on the 457-yard 14th after pitching his second shot over the green.

"I thought I had a shot, but Nick just kept making birdies," Perry said. "He was cruising."

Price earned his biggest ayday on tour at $774,000. That gave him $1.6 million this year, his tour-record ninth $1 million season, and moved him over $16 million in career earnings.

While he limits his schedule to spend more time with his family, Price has made the

> For Price, the victory erased doubts about winning again.

"It feels like it's been 10 years. I didn't think this day was going to come," he said. "That self-doubt has been cast away now."

Toms had gotten to 9 under with a birdie at No. 13, but then had a double bogey at No. 15, where his second shot at the 430-yard hole found the bunker and he blasted over the green.

"I knew it was pretty much over with," said Toms, who had his third straight finish in the top 10. "It was the first bunker I've plugged all week and it was actually on a solid shot. It was just bad timing."

Pirates hand Astros 5-3 setback

HOUSTON (AP) - When it was finally over, Kip Wells was happy with his hometown outing.

Wells (6-2) won for the fifth time in six starts as the Pittsburgh Pirates snapped a four-game losing streak with a 5-3 victory Sunday night over the Houston Astros. He went 6 2-3 innings and allowed one run on five hits and three walks. He struck out five.

Wells, from the Houston suburb of Missouri City, admitted he felt some pressure to perform well in front of 40 friends and family for whom he obtained tickets.

"They were a little rowdy at times," Wells said after his first win over the Astros. "I felt like my major league debut again. The Astros were my hometown team. I've always kept up with Mike Scott and Nolan Ryan."

Scott and Ryan happened to be in the front luxury box behind home plate, returning to honor, former player, broadcaster and manager Larry Dierker, whose number was retired in a pregame ceremony. But even with all that swirling around him, Wells enjoyed the experience.

'One advantage of coming to the Central is being able to come home, sleep in your own bed and eat at your favorite restaurants," he said.

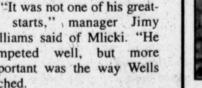

Manager Lloyd McClendon said Wells, who came over in a trade with the White Sox, is performing as advertised.

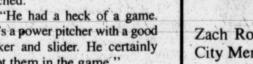

"We thought his stuff was plenty good coming out of spring training," McClendon said. "We weren't sure of his command. But his command has been outstanding the last four starts. He's getting better every time out."

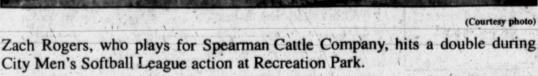

The Astros were more impressed by Wells' outing compared to that of Houston starter Dave Mlicki.

est starts," manager Jimy Williams said of Mlicki. "He competed well, but more important was the way Wells pitched.

He's a power pitcher with a good sinker and slider. He certainly kept them in the game."
