Our new senator

BY NANCY YOUNG
MANAGING EDITOR

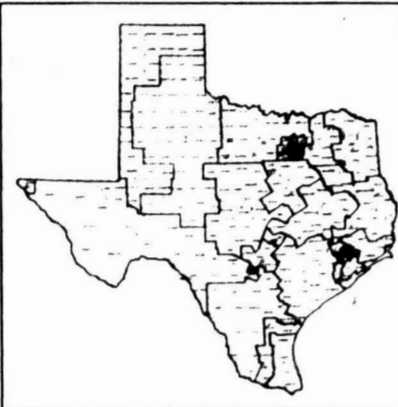

With the recent redistricting, Sen. Robert Duncan of Lubbock will soon represent more than 630,000 Texans who live on 43,465 square miles within Senate District 28.

Right now, Duncan represents 26 counties, but in January 2003, he will be representing 46 counties including Gray County.

Duncan visited Pampa and the Texas Panhandle area Tuesday to get to know some of the people who will be his constituents. Speaking to the monthly meeting of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, he assured the group he wanted to represent their needs.

Gray County residents are currently represented in the Texas Senate by Sen. Teel Bivins of Amarillo. When the change takes place in January, Bivins will be representing Howard County.

Every 10 years the U.S. Census Bureau conducts a census. Following the release of the 2000 census figures, redistricting of senate boundaries occurred.

The highlighted area represents Senate District 28 after redistricting.

Duncan became senator for Gray County after the Legislative Redistricting Board adopted the new districts on July 24, 2001.

The 2000 Census showed many rural areas are declining in population, but that metropolitan areas are growing.

Duncan told the Pampa business leaders that his area will now include Carson, Gray and Wheeler counties and extend south to include Schleicher County.

As he described the large expanse of his district, he said his district is larger than 17 of the 50 states. He will be representing 18 percent of the counties in the state.

The senator, who has 266,595 new constituents in his district, said he is trying to get around to meeting the people he will represent.

Health care, the school finance system, and water will all be major issues in the 2003 legislature, Duncan said.

Duncan has been a member of the Texas Senate since 1996, when he won a special election to represent District 28. His uncle, the late Marshall Formby, previously represented many of the same counties in the Texas Senate.

Prior to becoming a state senator, Duncan was a member of the House of Representatives. He also served as a legislative consultant for civil justice and charitable liability reform (tort reform) and general counsel for the Senate State Affairs Committee before serving in elective positions.

Elected to the Texas House in 1992, Duncan co-wrote a 1995 tort reform package.

Pampans preparing pig protest

ACCORD filing motion to overturn state permit for swine facility here

BY NANCY YOUNG
MANAGING EDITOR

Area residents have not given up on their fight to stop pigs from moving into Gray County.

Residents opposed to locating swine facilities in the Gray County area are gearing up to file protests with the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC) against the permitting of National Pig Development.

TNRCC gave NPD the nod on May 31 to go ahead with building a 50,000-head genetic research facility east of Pampa.

Members of Active Citizens Concerned Over Resource Development in Agriculture, Inc. (ACCORD) met Tuesday night and discussed the May decision by the TNRCC.

Concerned citizens can go to the north entrance of Lovett Memorial Library from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday, June 23, to sign the Motion to Overturn, according to Dr. Louis Haydon, an ACCORD advisor.

A copy of the TNRCC Executive Director Jeff Santos' report to the registration application was sent to more than 400 individuals and groups who had previously requested the notification.

"There are a number of things to file to overturn," said Haydon. "If people will read the report, they will find that 'anything goes' with the TNRCC."

He said interpretation of the guidelines by the agency is one of the key issues.

According to the TNRCC, the application was received Aug. 2, 2001, and declared administratively complete on Sept. 20, 2001. It was declared technically complete on Oct. 31, 2001.

A public meeting was held on Jan. 8, 2002, in Pampa. Approximately 45 residents made comments both for and against issuing the permit at the public meeting held at M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium.

Jean Preper Voshell, media representative of the TNRCC, said that approximately 250 comments were submitted to the state agency for evaluation before the Jan. 8 deadline.

She explained the task of evaluating large number of comments took considerable time by the TNRCC, and was the reason the decision took almost five months.

Preper Voshell said Tuesday Seaboard Corporation has applied for ten permits to place swine facilities in Sherman County. She said five applications are in the public comment phase and five are awaiting technical review. (See PROTEST, Page 3)

Visiting with Sanchez

Residents attend GOP convention

Eight Gray County residents recently represented the county at the Texas Republican Convention in Dallas last week.

Doug Ware, Republican County Chairman, said the recent state convention was "pretty calm."

"It was really pretty calm," said Ware. He said the selection of the Speaker of the House for the upcoming legislative session will not be made until after the November elections.

Midland Republican Tom Craddick announced several months ago he will be seeking the influential position he has held by Hale Center Democrat Pete Laney for 10 years.

Pampa's State Rep. Warren Chisum has also announced he will be a candidate for the position.

State Speaker of the House is selected by the 150 elected state representatives representing Texans across the state at the beginning of each legislative session which are held in odd-number years.

Gray County delegates who represented the local Republicans were Ware, James and Gaylene Bradley and Doug Locke, all of Pampa.

McLean residents who represented the county were Creed and Wanda Lamb along with Ben and Mary Reeves.

Accounting bill clears Banking Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate legislation to tighten oversight of the accounting industry has moved closer to a vote by the full Senate after months of lying dormant amid heavy industry lobbying against it.

The bill, a compromise between Republicans and majority Democrats pushing a stricter measure, cleared the Senate Banking Committee on a 17-4 vote Tuesday, three days after Enron auditor Arthur Andersen was convicted of obstructing justice.

It also would restrict the consulting work accountants can do for companies they audit and is more stringent than a measure passed by the GOP-led House in April in the aftermath of Enron's collapse.

Both bills would create a new board to oversee the accounting industry and discipline auditors, replacing the current system in which the industry largely polices itself.

The Senate version gives the new Public Company Accounting Oversight Board authority to establish auditing and ethics rules. Two members would have to be accountants; the other three must not have worked in the accounting industry.

All five members would be appointed by the Securities and Exchange Commission — which would oversee the new board — in consultation with the Treasury Department and the Federal Reserve.

The Senate bill also would require the SEC to impose new rules on financial analysts to prevent conflicts of interest. The rules go further than those recently adopted by the market watchdog agency.

The bill was endorsed by consumer groups, labor unions, former Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker, who was hired by Andersen in February to make internal reforms, and former SEC Chairman Arthur Levitt, who battled the accounting industry over auditors' independence from client companies.

"It appears that this is a win for consumers," Frank Torres, legislative counsel for Consumers Union, said after the vote. "This bill would definitely fix some of the accounting problems that we've seen crop up ... over the last six months."

It had been bottled up for months as the accounting industry and other financial industry groups lobbied against it and Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas, the committee's senior Republican, opposed it.

But as nearly every day brings new revelations of corporate wrongdoing, accounting abuses and unethical dealing, shaking investors' confidence in the market, the panel rebuffed Gramm's less restrictive proposal and sent the tougher legislation to the full Senate.

"I think we face a very fundamental choice," said committee chairman Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., who worked out the compromise with Sen. Mike Enzi, R-Wyo. If Congress doesn't enact effective accounting legislation this year, he warned, "We may face the historical verdict" of voters in the fall elections.

The SEC, meanwhile, is scheduled to propose Thursday an accounting oversight board, with at least six of its nine members to come from outside the accounting industry. The board will have a range of disciplinary sanctions available.

Amtrak president trying to avert shutdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amtrak's new president says the railroad needs financial assistance very soon to prevent a possible shutdown of all service next month.

"We are running out of time," said David Gunn, who joined Amtrak just a month ago. He said the nation's passenger railroad needs "a loan guarantee, a grant, an appropriation" to help it fill a $200 million budget gap.

In an interview Tuesday with The Associated Press, Gunn said Amtrak officials are planning how to shut down service in an orderly manner. Planning for such a contingency "is the responsible thing to do," he said.

A transit turnaround expert known for his blunt talk and back-to-basics approach, Gunn gets a chance to make his case Thursday when he testifies before the Senate Appropriations subcommittee that oversees Amtrak.

With its future being debated in Congress, Amtrak has struggled to satisfy its auditors that it will operate for at least another year. That in turn has hurt its ability to gain access to a line of credit essential for its survival until the new fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

Financial crises are old news for Amtrak. But supporters of the nation's passenger railroad say they hope the new warning carries more weight because it comes from Gunn.

Already, Gunn has ordered a company reorganization that will consolidate decision-making at Amtrak headquarters in Washington and slash the number of employees with the title "vice president."

He abruptly jettisoned a corporate consultant hired by his predecessor. He repealed orders that passengers be called "guests." He plans to de-emphasize Amtrak's "satisfaction guarantee," which rewards any unhappy passenger, for any reason, with a coupon good for future travel.

"If you look at our on-time performance and the condition of our equipment, 'satisfaction guaranteed' is not a particularly good slogan for us at this point in our history," he said.

Amtrak lured Gunn, who turns 65 this week, out of retirement on his family's farm on Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia. Amtrak is paying him an annual salary of $275,000.

Gunn, a dual citizen of the United States and Canada, succeeded George Warrington, who left Amtrak to head New Jersey's bus and rail agency.

Amtrak's governing board had expressed full support for Warrington during his four years there.

Yet in Gunn, they chose a straight-talking successor who has made no secret that he disagrees with many moves Warrington made.

"George has a different management style from David, and David has a different management style from other people," said Amtrak Vice Chairman Michael Dukakis. "I like them both."

Gunn worked for the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority when Dukakis was governor of the state. Dukakis called him a plainspoken "pro's pro."

"He's a little more diplomatic than he used to be," Dukakis joked, "but not much."

A Harvard Business School graduate, Gunn describes himself as "a focused, non-nonsense manager."

"When I get called, it's generally because there's an operational or financial problem and people have decided it's time to cease talking about it and do something," he said.

Airport security manager pleads guilty to lying to FAA

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An airport security manager whose failure to conduct criminal background checks helped a drug trafficker, a convicted murderer and other felons land jobs as screeners pleaded guilty to lying to aviation officials.

Rochelle Miles, a former training manager for the Huntleigh USA Corp., admitted that from 1997 to 1999, she routinely helped people get hired as screeners at Philadelphia International Airport by doctoring their job applications and skipping criminal history checks.

Miles, 44, faces up to five years in jail when she is sentenced on one count of making false statements to the Federal Aviation Administration. No sentencing date was set.

Huntleigh, based in St. Louis, provides security and screening services to about 50 airports nationwide. It stopped security work at Philadelphia International in 2000.

On Sept. 11, Huntleigh staffed the security checkpoint for United Airlines at Boston's Logan International Airport. One of the two hijacked planes from Boston that crashed into the World Trade Center that day was a United flight.

Another security company, Argenbright Security Inc., has also been accused of hiring screeners with criminal convictions at Philadelphia International. It has also since lost its contract to work at the airport.

A REVIEW BY
DEE DEE LARAMORE

No one should say, "There's nothing to do in Pampa," as long as ACT I's amateur thespians continue to bring their talents to the stage.

They may not be New York's Broadway or London's East End, but their brand of entertainment beats the sickly fare offered by television these days hands down.

While a good movie in the theater or a DVD at home can be enjoyable, there's no substitution for that special interaction between actors and a live audience.

ACT I's rendition of "Moon Over Buffalo" is a hoot!

Author Ken Ludwig's well-written play gives the cast a good foundation, but without this group's willingness to cut loose from normalcy, it would never work.

"Moon Over Buffalo" is set in (surprise!) Buffalo, N.Y., in the early 1950s. The Hays family troupe, that seems to be on the skids, is presenting "Cyrano de Bergerac" and "Private Lives" there while on tour.

George Hay, played by ACT I veteran Jimmy Lindsay, and Charlotte Hay, portrayed by Diana Bruner, another seasoned ACT I player, are an aging husband-and-wife acting team.

Lindsay's role provides a full range of comedic abilities from the extremely subtle to the blatant. He handles the challenge well, giving solid groundwork for the other actors' antics.

Bruner's born to this type of comedy. Melodrama comes naturally to her, as shown by her sweeping swoons, emotional swings, and out-and-out slapstick.

This may be Alan Gertonson's debut on the ACT I stage, but it's evident he's no stranger to the theater. His extreme facial expressions alone are worth the price of admission.

Refreshingly normal in the midst of her histrionic family, Lisa Blandford plays Rosalind, the daughter who tries to turn her back on stage life.

Joshuah Ellis' performance of Rosalind's bewildered fiance' Howard must not be overlooked, despite the more flamboyant characters surrounding him.

Then there's Ethel, played by Gina Kane, who suffers from hearing loss (when it's convenient). As Charlotte Hay's mother and George's mother-in-law, she serves as a delightful "straight man."

Hopefully, we'll see more of Dennis Boyd, another ACT I newcomer, in upcoming plays. Though he plays a supporting part in this production as Richard Maynard, "lawyer to the stars," Boyd appears to have a talent for acting that should be explored further.

Michelle Dabbs, also a first-time ACT I performer, had only a small part as Eileen, but executed the role well. She's another face to watch for in the future.

Director Berinda Turcotte's experience and expertise is the glue that holds this play together, along with the hard work of the stage, sound and lighting crew. Anyone that can build a set to endure all that physical comedy must be commended.

Because of some swearing and adult subject matter, I don't recommend "Moon Over Buffalo" for children. However, I highly recommend it to teens and grown-ups who want a fun evening of light entertainment — right here in Pampa!

This third and final production of ACT I's 2001-2002 season opens Friday, June 21, at 7:30 p.m. at the Area Community Theatre, Inc., at the west side of the Pampa Mall.

Performances are set for June 21 and 22, and June 28 and 29. A matinee performance is planned for 2:30 p.m., June 30.

For advance tickets, call Computech at 665-3291. Reservations are not required.

Approval has also been given by the TNRC to locate swine facilities in both Moore and Hutchinson counties. A meat packing facility is also planned in Moore County.

A 7,500-head dairy has also been approved in Hutchinson County.

A cover letter with the report dated June 10 stated a motion to overturn should be filed with LaDonna Castaneula, Chief Clerk of the TNRC, within 23 days of the date of the letter.

"If a motion to overturn is not acted on by the commission within 45 days after the date of this letter, then the motion shall be deemed over ruled," said Castaneula in the letter.

Haydon said the ACCORD group has hired an attorney to assist them in filing the protest.

Nineteen issues were listed in the 13-page report. The issues of concern include water quality, air quality, pollution, wildlife and endangered species, dry waste technology and dead animals.

Also included were general comments both against and for granting NPD registration.

"We're wanting everybody who is interested and concerned about this to show up, and the more people who do will help us," said Shirley Nicholson. "It is vitally important to our area because of the water supply."

"While we're concerned with running out of water, we don't want what little we have left to be contaminated," Nicholson said. "Also, many don't realize the runoff would pollute Lake Meredith." She said that would affect many people in the area because 11 cities, including Pampa and Borger, get their water from Lake Meredith.

"Just come by and sign Sunday," said Nicholson. "It requires only a signature, and doesn't require a voter registration."

For a few pennies more, pile on the fat

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Super-sized fast food meals may cost just a few cents more, but they are no bargain when it comes to calories, a study shows.

The report released Tuesday found that the so-called extra-value meals present a significant obstacle to overcoming America's growing obesity problem.

"Bigger is rarely better when it comes to food. The true price of larger portions is larger calorie and saturated fat numbers — and larger waistlines," said the report by the National Alliance for Nutrition and Activity, a coalition of groups that promote health and fitness.

The survey found that a large order of fries at McDonald's cost 62 percent more than the smaller version but included 157 percent more calories. A Classic Cinnabon cinnamon roll costs 48 cents more than the $2.01 Minibon but packs 370 more calories — double the Minibon — and has three times the fat.

"People need to be more aware of what they are eating," said Doris Montgomery, a dietitian for the Iowa Department of Public Health who helped conduct the survey.

The survey was conducted in Des Moines; Washington; Little Rock, Ark.; Oakland, Calif.; and Sacramento, Calif.

Nationwide, 60 percent of adults are overweight, and an estimated 300,000 people a year die from illnesses caused or worsened by excessive weight. Diabetes is linked to obesity, and overweight people are at greater risk for heart disease, high blood pressure, stroke, kidney failure and several forms of cancer.

PHS Drug & Alcohol Free All-Night Party's A Success

The Pampa High School Class of 2002 Drug & Alcohol Free All Night Party field on graduation night was a huge success due to the supportive community businesses, a number of great parents and other interested individuals.

There were 180 students of PHS and 80 guests at the party from 11 p.m. until 5 a.m. Over $18,000 in cash and prizes were given away, including $3,300 in scholarships. There were many gifts donated and given away as game prizes. Cash donations were used to purchase telephone cards, telephones with answering machines, CD player, DVD and VCR players, camera, microwave, televisions, CD burners, dorm refrigerator, camcorder, digital camera, Vtech e-mail, all of which were given away in raffle drawings during the night. Cash prizes were also given away every 15 to 30 minutes and through the night. All prizes were bought from Pampa merchants.

Entertainment was a combination of many games, contests, music by RT the DJ, Kid Dave, and a hypnotist. First Baptist Church provided a breakfast for every one in attendance at the conclusion of the party.

The party was an enormous success because of the generous donations of the local businesses and individuals. Senior parents and friends were able to provide a fun-filled night for a memorable occasion for the graduates of the Class of 2002. The donations of cash, gifts, food and drinks were greatly appreciated.

Thank you!

Harrington House announces all-new 'silver' lecture series

AMARILLO — The Board of Directors of Harrington House is adding a new chapter to the history of the home of Sybil and Don Harrington with the debut of the Connoisseur Lecture Series.

The first of the series will focus on the silver collection at Harrington House with two identical lectures offered on the first Tuesday of each month at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m., beginning July 2 and continuing through October, 2002. Each lecture will be limited to a group of no more than 10 individuals.

"The Connoisseur Lecture Series will be an extension of Mrs. Harrington's dream to enlighten the public on the beautiful furnishings and decorative arts of Harrington House," said Vicky Boxwell, chairman of the board of directors of the Harrington House Foundation.

Harrington House, located at 1600 Polk, is the historic home of the late philanthropists Sybil B. and Donald D. Harrington. Mrs. Harrington was a native of Amarillo and Mr.

Harrington was a pioneer oilman who came to Amarillo in the 1920's.

Mrs. Harrington endowed the historic home as a museum for the decorative arts and her collections. The home is open for tours, free of charge, by appointment on specific days and limited to people age 14 and older.

The Connoisseur Lecture Series will give visitors to the home an opportunity to learn more about specific collections in the home. The board of directors selected the topic "The Harrington House Silver" as the initial introductory lecture resulting from an educational training program for the Mentors, who serve as tour guides for the historic home.

The guest speaker of that training program brought by the board, was Jennifer Pitman, senior specialist in antique silver and vice president of Christie's, the auction firm of New York City.

"This lecture will enhance the public's knowledge of the contents of Harrington House," said Annette Doche, Mentor coordinator. "Visitors on a regular tour move through the House in about an hour; for the lecture series, a group will spend time in a central location and learn about as well as view a specific collection in a concentrated manner."

The lecture on silver will feature silver decorative pieces as well as holloware and flatware used by the Harringtons. Pieces range from a George III silver soup tureen made in 1800 to a sterling floral repousse decorated dresser set which belonged to Mr. Harrington's mother.

The "Connoisseur Lecture Series" as well as regular tours of the Home, are free. Lectures and tours are by appointment only; to reserve a place for either, call (806) 374-5490 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

"The Harrington House Silver Collection" lecture will be presented the first Tuesday of each month from July through October; regular tours are offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays, April through December. Visitors should arrive by the north door off 16th Avenue.

Dutch biologist describes his months of captivity with Colombian rebels

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Eight months ago, Dutch biologist Roelant Jonker was "put in storage" by rebels who kidnapped him while he was studying the parrots of western Colombia.

Last week the red-haired 28-year-old emerged from captivity, dropped off on a rural road by a rebel in a four-wheel drive vehicle with tinted windows, after sympathizers paid his ransom.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Jonker was relieved, but brimming with hatred for a rebel commander who had taunted him and kept him in chains.

The Dutchman was one of at least 28 foreigners — in addition to 3,000 Colombians — kidnapped last year in this South American nation. Some never got out alive, like three American pro-Indian activists who were kidnapped and executed by the rebels in 1999.

The two main groups of leftist rebels use ransom money, along with "taxes" from the drug trade, to fuel a 38-year-old civil war against the government and a rival paramilitary group. The war kills thousands of people annually.

The United States has backed the government with $1.7 billion in aid in recent years, most of it aimed at fighting drug production. The Bush administration has asked Congress to allow Colombia to use some of the money to fight guerrilla groups as well. President-elect Alvaro Uribe is visiting Washington this week to ask for more help.

Kidnappings of foreigners abroad frequently make headlines — but in Colombia, they often slip by unnoticed by the media. Diplomats want to keep it that way, believing ransoms and time in captivity increase with the level of press exposure.

For Jonker, the last eight months were spent enduring boredom, diarrhea and clouds of mosquitoes that deprived him of sleep and covered his body with itchy welts.

The rebels of the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia, known as the FARC, treated him like merchandise, while subjecting him and his loved ones to misery. In phone conversations with intermediaries, the rebels referred to Jonker as "the package."

"They don't think it is awful waiting for six months, or two years," Jonker said in the interview Monday. "They think that it's OK, that it's normal to dehumanize a person and put him in storage."

"It's hell." Jonker, a graduate student at Holland's University of Leiden, had come to Colombia on behalf of the World Parrot Trust to study breeding habits of the yellow-eared parrot, part of an effort to save the bird from extinction.

He was staying at a farmhouse in the Andean highlands when a dozen gun-toting FARC rebels arrived on Oct. 24, asked what he was doing there, and proceeded to search his bags. They pocketed his raincoat, his global-positioning system, flashlight, binoculars — and the notebook documenting his work.

"That was terrible. All my observations — everything was there," Jonker recalled as he tucked into a hamburger, fries and raspberry milkshake in a Bogota restaurant, trying to regain some of the 62 pounds he lost in captivity. A T-shirt and cargo pants hung loosely over his thin 6-foot-5 frame.

House Republican prescription drug plan moves forward

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration is lining up behind a prescription drug proposal that would require seniors to pay a $35 monthly premium and meet a $250 yearly deductible.

stiff criticism that the plan leaves seniors dependent on private insurers and stuck with huge out-of-pocket costs. Health and Human Services Secretary Tommy Thompson was scheduled to release on Wednesday an analysis of prescription drug plans offered by Democrats and Republicans. It was coming one day after the House Ways and Means Committee, in a 22-16 mostly party-line vote, approved the bill. Rep. Michael Collins, R-Ga., was the only Republican to vote against the bill. The Energy and Commerce Committee was to begin its consideration of the bill Wednesday morning, although a vote was not expected until Thursday.

The Bush administration analysis, a copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press, contends that the House GOP plan, which would cost $350 billion over 10 years, would give seniors a 60 percent to 85 percent savings per prescription and cut their out-of-pocket costs by as much as 70 percent. The analysis maintains that the competition from private insurers offering the drug benefit would push retail prices down even further and argues that the Democratic plans are too costly. President Bush had proposed spending $190 billion on a drug benefit. Senate Democrats have proposed spending $500 billion over 10 years while House Democrats want to spend $800 billion.

The administration's endorsement came amid contentious hearings over the issue. The Ways and Means hearing dragged past midnight as Democrats unsuccessfully offered a slew of amendments.

The bill is expected to come up on the House floor for debate next week.

Under the plan as approved by the committee, all but low-income seniors would be required to pay a monthly premium of $35 and meet a $250 yearly deductible. The government would pay 80 percent of costs on the first $1,000 of drug costs and 50 percent on the next $1,000. Patients would be responsible for drug costs beyond that and would have to reach $3,800 in out-of-pocket spending before additional government help would kick in.

Democratic plans have lower premiums, deductibles and copayments.

Republicans said their plan is the only viable option since the nation's budget is already stretched.

"We are cutting through the rhetoric to tackle some of the most vexing issues facing Medicare today," said Rep. Billy Tauzin, R-La., chairman of the Energy and Commerce Committee. "This is a good bill."

New York grand jury calls for laws to make cover-up of abuse a crime

NEW YORK (AP) — A grand jury has accused the Roman Catholic Church of protecting priests from sex abuse claims and called for new laws making it a felony for church officials to fail to report such allegations.

The church's treatment of sex abuse claims amounted to "an orchestrated effort to protect abusing clergy members from investigation, arrest and prosecution," the Westchester County grand jury said in its report Tuesday.

Joseph Zwilling, a spokesman for the New York Archdiocese, called the report "unbalanced, unfair and inaccurate."

"The archdiocese will continue to do all that we can to protect children and young people in accord with our policy," he said.

In Boston, state Attorney General Thomas F. Reilly has convened a grand jury to weigh evidence in the clergy sex abuse scandal in the archdiocese, there, two newspapers reported Wednesday.

The grand jury has been investigating for weeks whether Cardinal Bernard F. Law and other church leaders put priests in a position to sexually abuse minors. The Boston Globe and the Boston Herald quoted unidentified sources as saying.

The 13-page report by the grand jury in Westchester County was the result of a two-month probe. The grand jury reviewed tens of thousands of pages of documents and heard from eight alleged victims.

It said the church's past treatment of abuse complaints amounted to "an orchestrated effort to protect abusing clergy members from investigation, arrest and prosecution."

The grand jury recommended making it a crime for any individual or organization to allow a known sex offender to have access to children, barring confidentiality clauses in settlements of pedophilia cases and removing the statute of limitations when the victim is a minor.

The panel also said it found a disturbing pattern of abusers plying their young victims with alcohol and cigarettes to gain their trust.

Zwilling said the church requested a hearing before a judge Friday to discuss the report.

New York Cardinal Edward Egan has already agreed to notify prosecutors of sex abuse allegations before conducting an internal review. The archdiocese has given prosecutors files on 35 years worth of sex abuse cases and has suspended several priests pending further investigation.

Nationwide, at least 250 priests have either been dismissed from their duties or resigned since the sex abuse scandal erupted in Boston early this year.

DEAR ABBY

written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips

Grandparents Must Intervene To Ensure Grandchild's Safety

DEAR ABBY: My daughter and son-in-law have a 2-year-old and a 3-month-old. They live in a home with steep front stairs and two garages underneath. It's on a corner lot with an unfenced yard in a neighborhood with moderate traffic.

My husband and I are very worried. They allow their 2-year-old to be alone outside. When we express our concern, they laugh it off and say they only permit it for about five minutes, and if he wants to come back in the house, he can climb the steps and ring the doorbell.

We have warned them that in the blink of an eye, some pervert could pick the child up and they would never see him again — that he could run into the intersection or get seriously hurt on the steps. Other than this lack of judgment, they are good, loving parents. Are Grandma and Grandpa overly protective?

development. Their expectations of their 2-year-old are unrealistic, and the result could be something they'll regret for a lifetime. Please act now.

DEAR ABBY: I am 17. My boyfriend of 2 1/2 years recently broke up with me. He said he loved me, but was no longer in love with me and wanted to date others. He wants us to be just friends. I am devastated. I can't eat, sleep or concentrate, and the thought of seeing him with another girl makes me physically sick. I don't think I will ever be able to set foot in his home, much less be his friend. He broke my heart, and everything reminds me of him — a song, his favorite foods, places we've been, movies we've seen — everything.

"Keep busy. Avoid 'old reminders,' which tend to make you moody and broody. Get rid of the pictures, photos and gifts ... unless you enjoy punishing yourself.

"Attend parties and school affairs, and develop new interests.

"Speak only well of each other — or not at all — after the break.

"Turn a deaf ear to those who want to pry or question you.

"Once it is over, all of the note-writing, phoning or convincing will not help your cause. Don't ask a mutual friend to help you 'get him back.' It will only make you appear foolish.

SCARED AND CONCERNED IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR SCARED AND CONCERNED: Not at all. Now, let me get this straight. Your daughter and son-in-law leave their 2-year-old unsupervised in an unfenced yard, and if he wants them, he should climb the stairs and ring the doorbell? What you describe is child endangerment, and if they don't come to their senses immediately, they should be reported.

Your daughter and son-in-law could benefit from parenting classes so they can understand the various stages of child

ABBY, we had talked about marriage and having a family someday. I simply cannot accept that it's over. I'm in such denial I haven't even shared this terrible blow with my parents.

Help me, please.

BROKENHEARTED TEEN IN MAINE

DEAR TEEN: I'm sorry for your pain, but trust me, it hurts only for a while. Let me share with you what I've written about breaking up in my booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know."

"Chalk it up to experience and a part of growing up. There is no growth without a little pain."

Texas is one of four CWS semifinalists

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The semi-finalists at the College World Series share no secrets.

South Carolina and Clemson have played four times this season. Texas and Stanford have played 10 times during the past two years.

"If you live in South Carolina you know when South Carolina and Clemson match up, even if it's equestrian horse racing, there's going to be a lot on the line," designated hitter Trey Dyson said after South Carolina beat Georgia Tech 9-5 in an elimination game Tuesday.

This season, Clemson won three of four from its state rival, South Carolina. One more victory and the Tigers (54-15) will play in the championship Saturday for the first time in their 10 CWS appearances.

To stay alive, the Gamecocks (55-17) must win Wednesday and force a deciding game Friday.

Stanford moved into college baseball's final four by holding off Notre Dame 5-3 in Tuesday's second game.

All that stands between Stanford and a third straight trip to the title game is Thursday night's game with Texas, which beat the Cardinal 8-7 Monday.

Stanford went 2-1 against Texas last year in a regular season series and again in a rematch in the NCAA regional round. The Cardinal won 2-of-3 in a series earlier this season, but lost when it mattered most Monday. Stanford needs two wins over the Longhorns, who opened the CWS 2-0.

"There's not much we don't know about them. There's not much they don't know about us," Sam Fuld, who hit a two-run homer in the first.

The Cardinal, CWS runners-up the last two years, improved to 40-0 this season when holding the lead after eight innings by beating the Irish for the second time in the CWS. Stanford won 4-3 in the first round and used early homers by Fuld and Carlos Quentin to pull ahead Tuesday.

The Fighting Irish (50-18) had 22 comeback wins this season, but could not come up with one more.

"It just didn't happen for us today," said Steve Stanley who was 2-for-3 with an RBI, a stolen base and a run scored.

Dan Rich got his sixth save after relieving John Hudgins (10-1), who allowed two earned runs and six hits over 5 2-3 innings.

Peter Ogilvie (7-5) recovered well after being down 2-0 on just three pitches, but didn't get the support he needed.

"We just came up a little bit short," coach Paul Mainieri said. "I thought Stanford was just a little bit better than we were in these two games."

South Carolina survived its second straight elimination game and avenged an 11-0 loss to Georgia Tech in the CWS opener.

Steve Thomas and Justin Harris homered and Aaron Rawl pitched a complete game after struggling in a brief relief appearance in the opener.

Rawl (7-1) allowed 14 hits, 12 of them singles. Rawl also got Tech to ground into three double plays. The Yellow Jackets (52-16), didn't have an extra-base hit until Jeremy Slayden's two-run homer in the eighth made it 9-4.

Tech set a school record for wins this season, topping its 51-14 finish in 1987.

Matthew Boggs and Matt Murton drove in two runs for Tech, which fell behind early and could not recover for the second straight game.

The Yellow Jackets were in the elimination round after a 9-7 loss to Clemson on Sunday, with the Tigers scoring eight runs in the second inning.

"They kind of distanced themselves enough from us to where we couldn't muster enough offense to get back at them," Tech coach Danny Hall said.

Brian Burks (10-7) pitched 3 2-3 innings for the Yellow Jackets, allowing five runs and five hits.

BASEBALL

PAMPA — Rotary defeated Celanese 11-1 Tuesday night in a playoff to win the Optimist 11-12 Cal Ripken League championship.

Rotary, Celanese and Glo-Valve Service had ended up in a three-way tie for first, forcing a playoff to determine the league champions. Celanese drew a bye after winning a coin toss to decide which teams would play first.

Rotary opened the playoffs by defeating Glo-Valve 9-4.

The 11-12 City Tournament started last night with Cabot defeating Pampa Cybernet in the opener.

SOCCER

DAEJEON, South Korea (AP) — South Korea pulled off a stunning 2-1 upset of Italy at the World Cup, tying the score with just minutes left and then scoring the game-winner in overtime.

The victory sends the co-hosts into the quarterfinals against Spain, and sends the three-time champions home.

TOKYO, Japan (AP) — Portuguese forward Joao Pinto, ejected in a first-round World Cup match against South Korea, was indefinitely suspended for hitting a referee.

BASKETBALL

MIAMI (AP) — Michelle Snow and Janeth Arcain combined for 20 points in the second half to help the Houston Comets rally from a 13-point deficit and beat the Miami Sol 53-46 Tuesday night.

Sheryl Swoopes added 16 points for the Comets (7-3), who have won five of six. Snow finished with career-highs of 11 points and seven rebounds, and Arcain had 11 points.

Ruth Riley, still playing with a splint protecting her broken right pinkie, and Sheri Sam both had 11 points for Miami (2-6), which shot 25 percent from the field in the second half in losing for the first time in three games.

"I don't think at any point we felt like we were out of it," Swoopes said. "We kind of took a lot of pride in who we are and said we weren't going to go down like this. The second half was definitely a different ballgame."

Just as they did last year when visiting Miami, the Comets established a franchise record for first-half scoring futility. Houston missed 13 of 15 shots in one stretch and finished the half with 16 points, one fewer than it managed last July 20 against the Sol.

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Rockets attorney Mike Goldberg said Tuesday he expects Chinese center Yao Ming to receive a necessary letter of clearance from FIBA, the international basketball governing body, in time for next week's NBA draft.

The Rockets have been in discussions with the Shanghai Sharks about making Yao, their star player, the top pick in the draft.

Goldberg told Houston television station KRIV that meetings in China went well. "I don't expect a problem," he said.

Baseball, union divided on steroid testing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball union head Donald Fehr thinks it might be time for Congress to study androstenedione, but contends that testing players for steroids without cause would violate their privacy.

Fehr told a Senate committee examining steroid use in baseball that "no one cares more about the game, the health of the players, than the players themselves."

The players' association and baseball diverged sharply on testing.

Fehr said the players would work to come up with a solution as part of the collective bargaining with owners on a new contract.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., who requested Tuesday's hearing of the Senate Commerce consumer affairs subcommittee, said sales of androstenedione skyrocketed after the 1998 revelation that Mark McGwire was using the over-the-counter substance.

Muscle-building andro, like steroids, helps the body create testosterone. Steroids are available only by closely tracked prescriptions and can pose a variety of health risks.

"Like it or not, professional athletes serve as role models," McCain said. "That's more important than whether a group of highly paid athletes are using anabolic steroids."

Robert Manfred, baseball's executive vice president for labor relations, said Congress should consider regulating drugs like andro, which McGwire used in 1998 when he broke the home run record.

The Cardinals slugger hit 70 home runs that year and stopped taking the drug the following season, saying he was worried youngsters would follow his lead.

Tuesday's hearing was called following the admission by Ken Caminiti that he used steroids when he was voted National League MVP in 1996. Former American League MVP

Jose Canseco said up to 85 percent took steroids. Both players declined invitations to testify Tuesday.

Sen. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., who chaired the hearing, said it was too soon to say whether Congress would follow up with legislation.

"It's a complicated topic," said Dorgan, whose former chief of staff, Lucy Calauti, is now baseball's lobbyist. "There are so many substances — where does one start?"

The NBA, NFL, NCAA and the Olympics — all — ban androstenedione.

Frank Shorter, an Olympic marathon gold medalist who now chairs the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency, said andro was originally developed as part of the East German steroid program. He said a 12-year-old can purchase it at a dietary supplement store.

It would be an upset, but not a miracle

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

A few words for friends and foes alike when the U. S. soccer team beats Germany in Friday's quarterfinal:

Relax.

We're not on our way to world domination.

Yet.

Fans of American soccer haven't had a team in a World Cup semifinal since Herbert Hoover was in the White House. During the first Cup in 1930, only 13 teams traveled to Uruguay and a U.S. side with a few former British pros nearly ran the table. There haven't been many highlights since.

So beating Germany qualifies as an upset.

But it won't be a "Miracle on Grass," or whatever phrase Jack Edwards, ESPN's hyperventilating announcer, has planned to mark the occasion. He's already ended one U.S. game with, "Mine eyes have seen the glory," and another with, "The land of the free and home of the brave is moving on." Fortunately, TVs come equipped with volume control, because the chances are good you'll need it at the end of this one.

A few of the Americans play or have played — most of them sparingly — in the Bundesliga, Germany's top pro circuit. Another 10 or so play — again, most of them sparingly — in top divisions in England, the Netherlands and France. The rest play in Major League Soccer.

U.S. Soccer Federation people have said for years that opportunities like those would close the gap between the Americans and the rest of the world. Finally, they're right.

The U.S. players are smaller than the Germans, but faster. The Germans are more experienced, but not as adventurous. The German goalkeeper has the best reputation; the American goalie has been the hottest. The U.S. players are carrying the future of a sport on their backs. Still, it must feel light compared with the expectations of a whole nation.

Most important: In soccer terms, the Americans have become accomplished counter-punchers, which is good for two reasons: Counterpunchers always have a chance. And, it's a marked improvement over having no punch at all, which was the case when the two nations last met in the 1998 World Cup.

Soon after he took over, U.S. coach Bruce Arena said the national team wouldn't climb to the next plateau until it could dependably finish scoring chances. It's his luck to be in charge — and our good fortune — at the moment it finally became possible.

Any team gets lucky enough to scavenge the occasional goal. Finishing is more than that. It's the ability to hit back, to consistently punish teams who attack without taking the proper precautions.

Like every other team game, soccer is about numbers. The more attackers committed to each attack, the better the scoring chances. The flip side is that more men forward means more open space behind them.

Arena's genius, covering his successful stays at Virginia and D.C. United, was assessing his players' strengths and devising lineups and game plans to maximize them. At the World Cup, that has translated into a campaign of counterattacks orchestrated by skilled midfielders John O'Brien and Claudio Reyna, and finished by a corps of fast, opportunistic forwards.

These U.S. players still don't have the collective skill to play keep-away end to end, like the Brazilians. They can't string passes together with speed, the way the Spanish do. They don't have the work rate of the Germans, the athleticism of Senegal, the set-piece skills of the English ... and so on.

Mariners still doing fine without Junior in the lineup

By RICK FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

It was a classic Ken Griffey Jr. play: He ran full-tilt into an outfield wall, bounced off and popped to his feet, hatless, with the ball in his glove.

Griffey, making his first start in 10 games, turned his spectacular play in the sixth inning Tuesday night and the Seattle Mariners won.

Just like old times.

The Mariners are still doing just fine without Griffey, whom they traded to Cincinnati in 2000. In their first game against their ex-superstar, they rolled to an 8-1 victory that knocked the Reds out of first place for the first time in 52 days.

It was also the first time that Bob Boone managed a game in which both his sons played. And it was the first time Lou Piniella returned to manage in Cincinnati, where he led the Reds to the World Series title in 1990.

Hours before the game, it was not clear if Griffey would play because of a strained hamstring. But he started and got his 2,000th hit in his first at-bat, a spinning, 15-foot single.

"I was going to tell him, 'Your 2,000th hit should be a ringing double somewhere instead of a chopper in front of the plate,'" Piniella said.

In other games, it was Florida 4, Cleveland 0; Minnesota 6, New York Mets 1; Montreal 5, Kansas City 4; Detroit 6, Atlanta 0; Oakland 4, Pittsburgh 2; N.Y. Yankees 10, Colorado 5; Toronto 2, Los Angeles 1; Chicago White Sox 6, Philadelphia 3, in 12 innings; Boston 4, San Diego 2; Arizona 6, Baltimore 3; Chicago Cubs 4, Texas 3; and St. Louis 7, Anaheim 2. In the National League, it was Brewers 7, Astros 1.

Griffey said the reunion with his old team wasn't special.

"There are only five or six guys still there from when I left, that's it," he said. "So it's a little different because it says Seattle, but they're just another team coming in."

The catch in the sixth reminded Piniella of the Griffey he managed in Seattle.

"I've seen Junior make a lot of great plays," Piniella said. "It's good to see him back on the field. I hope he stays healthy."

Marlins 4, Indians 0

Luis Castillo went 3-for-4 to extend his hitting streak to 32 games, longest in the major leagues in 15 years, and Florida beat Cleveland in their first meeting since the 1997 World Series.

Castillo kept the streak alive with a double in the third. He topped a 3-1 pitch from Chuck Finley into the infield grass at Pro Player Stadium, and it bounced over third baseman Travis Fryman's head.

Castillo's streak is the longest since Benito Santiago hit in 34 straight in 1987.

Twins 6, Mets 1

Johan Santana pitched three-hit ball for six innings — the longest outing of his career — and Torii Hunter homered for Minnesota at Shea Stadium.

Dustán Mohr and A.J. Pierzynski also went deep for the Twins, who hold a five-game lead in the AL Central and won their third straight.

Santana allowed one run and struck out seven.

Expos 5, Royals 4

Wil Cordero's pinch-hit RBI single with two outs in the seventh capped a decisive three-run rally for Montreal at home.

The Expos won their fifth straight.

Montreal starter Tony Armas Jr. left the game after he was struck on his right forearm by Mike Sweeney's line drive with two outs in the first. X-rays were negative.

Tigers 6, Braves 0

Jeff Weaver pitched a five-hitter for Detroit at Turner Field. He improved his interleague record to 8-1 by shutting down a team that had won 13 of its past 16. Weaver retired 17 of the last 18 hitters he faced. He struck out seven.

Detroit's Robert Fick went 0-for-2 to end his 18-game hitting streak.

Athletics 4, Pirates 2

In Pittsburgh, Mark Mulder won his fifth straight start to give Oakland its 10th victory in 11 games in the first meeting between two of baseball's oldest franchises.

The 115-year-old Pirates and 101-year-old Athletics — who spent more than half a century across the state in Philadelphia — had never met in the regular season or postseason despite winning a combined five World Series in the 1970s and playing in 21 overall.

Yankees 10, Rockies 5

Derek Jeter and Robin Ventura homered and drove in three runs apiece as New York had 17 hits in its first visit to Coors Field.

Every Yankees starter had a hit by the third, including pitcher Mike Mussina, and New York scored in five of the first six innings. Shane Spencer also homered for the Yankees.

Blue Jays 2, Dodgers 1

Roy Halladay pitched a four-hitter as Toronto won the first game between the teams.

The win at Dodger Stadium snapped a five-game losing streak for the Blue Jays. The Dodgers lost for just the sixth time in 19 games.

Halladay walked two and struck out seven in pitching his second complete game of the season and the fifth of his career.

White Sox 6, Phillies 3, 12 innings

Kenny Lofton's two-run triple in the 12th inning led Chicago over Philadelphia at Veterans Stadium.

David Coggin walked Carlos Lee and Jose Valentin with one out in the 12th before Lofton snapped a 3-3 tie as Jose Mesa blew his fourth save.

Antonio Osuna brought the tying run to the plate in the 12th when he walked Mike Lieberthal and gave up a single to Marlon Anderson with two out. But Rocky Biddle retired Bobby Abreu for his first career save.

Red Sox 4, Padres 2

In San Diego, Shea Hillenbrand hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning to rally Boston in the first game between the teams.

Hillenbrand leads the Red Sox with 11 homers.

Willie Banks pitched one scoreless inning in relief of Rolando Arroyo, for his first win.

Diamondbacks 6, Orioles 3

Brian Anderson won for the first time in 18 regular-season starts and Erubiel Durazo homered and drove in three runs for Arizona at home.

Damian Miller had two run-scoring doubles and Craig Counsell drove in a run for the Diamondbacks, who won their first meeting with the Orioles to improve to 7-3 in interleague play.

Anderson allowed three runs on nine hits in 6 1-3 innings.

Devil Rays 8, Giants 3

Greg Vaughn and Aubrey Huff had homers as Tampa Bay won in its Pacific Bell Park debut. The Devil Rays got had back-to-back wins for the first time since a four-game winning streak May 18-22.

Joe Kennedy (5-5) allowed three runs on eight hits over seven innings. Kennedy was suspended for seven games late last week for throwing at Toronto's Ken Huckaby two starts ago, is appealing.

Livan Hernandez (6-7) allowed six runs on 10 hits in just 2 2-3 innings. Cubs 4, Rangers 3

Alex Gonzalez led off the bottom of the ninth with a homer off John Rocker as the Cubs beat the Texas Rangers at Wrigley Field in the first major league game featuring four players with 400 career homers.

Rafael Palmeiro hit his 460th career homer in the second. Sammy Sosa (475), Fred McGriff (459) and the Rangers' Juan Gonzalez (401) are all members of the 400 club.

Cardinals 7, Angels 2

Jim Edmonds homered in his first game against his former team and the St. Louis Cardinals won at Busch Stadium.

Darryl Kile allowed six hits in 7 2-3 innings, winning for the third time in four starts, and the Cardinals took sole possession of first place in the NL Central for the first time since April 15.

Kevin Appier lost for the fifth straight start. He lasted only two-plus innings, his shortest appearance of the year.

Brewers 7, Astros 1

Ben Sheets pitched a seven-hitter for his second career complete game and knocked in two runs as the Brewers won at Miller Park.

Sheets, whose start was pushed back one day after a four-inning, 99-pitch performance at Oakland last week, walked three and struck out seven in his first complete game since May 29, 2001, at St. Louis.

Sheets hadn't won since May 9 at Wrigley Field. He had four losses and two no-decisions in his previous six starts.

Hall of Fame broadcaster Jack Buck is dead at 77

A public memorial service will be held Thursday at Busch Stadium in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — One of most distinctive voices in sports has been silenced.

Jack Buck, who in nearly five decades as a broadcaster rose from Harry Caray's sidekick to a St. Louis institution, died Tuesday night after a long hospital stay. He was 77.

"He had a great life," said Joe Buck, who joined his father in the booth in 1991 and called the Cardinals' victory over the Anaheim Angels for Fox. "He didn't waste one minute of one day. He packed two lifetimes into one lifetime. He went from poor to wealthy in his lifetime, yet he never changed."

Buck underwent lung cancer surgery Dec. 5.

He returned to Barnes-Jewish Hospital on Jan. 3 to have an intestinal blockage removed and never left the hospital. Joe Buck said his father went in and out of a coma several times the last few weeks.

On May 16, Buck underwent another operation to eradicate a series of recurring infections, including pneumonia, and was placed on dialysis. Joe Buck said his father died with his family by his side.

"He made us proud every day," Joe Buck said. "He battled for his life."

Jack Buck began calling Cardinals games on radio in 1954, teaming first with Caray. Nationally, Buck called Super Bowls, World Series and even pro bowling for CBS, ABC and NBC.

"It's a sad day for the game of baseball," Arizona Diamondbacks manager Bob Brenly said. "He was baseball for a lot of people who grew up in the Midwest."

The gravel-voiced Buck, a heavy smoker for decades, authored several memorable calls.

After a gimpy Kirk Gibson hit a game-winning two-run homer off Oakland's Dennis Eckersley in Game 1 of the 1998 World Series, Buck was incredulous: "I don't believe what I just saw!"

Buck was also behind the microphone for the first telecast of the American Football League and at the NFL championship "Ice Bowl" in 1967.

In St. Louis and throughout the Midwest, it was Buck's calls of Cardinals games that made him a beloved figure. His signature call after Cardinals victories: "That's a winner!" In 1998, the team unveiled a bronze sculpture outside Busch Stadium of Buck's likeness behind the microphone.

"There only is and always will be just one Jack Buck," said former slugger Jack Clark, who played for the Cardinals in the 1980s. "He's a Hall of Fame announcer and a Hall of Fame person. He was in the game when it was at its purest. His calls of Stan Musial, (Bob) Gibson, Ozzie (Smith) and all the way up to Mark McGwire are classics."

Buck also told Cardinals fans to "Go crazy, folks, go crazy!" when Smith homered — his first ever left-handed — off Tom Niedenfuer of the Dodgers to win Game 5 of the 1985 NL championship series.

Buck took a minimalist approach when McGwire tied Roger Maris' home run record in 1998.

Then, he said, "Pardon me for a moment while I stand and applaud," while the crowd noise washed over the airwaves.

"It was a thrill just to be interviewed by the man and sit down and talk to him," Arizona ace Curt Schilling said. "He was living baseball history."

John Francis Buck was born Aug. 21, 1924, in Holyoke, Mass. He left home as a teen-ager to work as a deck hand on the iron ore boats of the Great Lakes and was drafted into the Army at 19 during the height of World War II. Buck shipped out for Europe in February 1945 and was wounded the next month in Germany. Back home a year later, Buck went to Ohio State and launched his broadcasting career at the school's radio station.

"When I went on the air to do a sports show at WOSU, I had never done a sports show before," Buck wrote in "That's a Winner," his autobiography. "When I did a basketball game, it was the first time I ever did play-by-play. The same with football, I didn't know how to do these things. I just did them."

In 1954, Buck beat out Chick Hearn — who went on to become an institution with the Los Angeles Lakers — for a job with the Cardinals.

Buck left the Cardinals booth for a year in 1960 to work for ABC. He later had a falling out with the network, which led him to not return, a phone call that could have landed him the first play-by-play role on the network's "Monday Night Football."

Instead, he called Monday night games and 17 Super Bowls on CBS radio with sidekick Hank Stram from 1978-1996.

In 1990, Buck began a two-year stint as lead baseball announcer for CBS.

All the while, Buck continued to call Cardinals games.

Joe Buck is now the lead baseball and football play-by-play announcer at Fox.

An amateur poet, Buck often read his work on the air and, on occasion, to crowds. When baseball resumed last year after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, Buck's patriotic poems were a highlight of a pregame ceremony at Busch Stadium.

Inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame's broadcaster's wing in 1987, Buck later became a member of both the broadcasters and radio halls of fame.

He was awarded the Pete Rozelle Award by the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1996 and received a lifetime achievement Emmy in 2000.

Buck, who had six children with his first wife Alyce, and two with wife Carole, is survived by his second wife; sons Jack Jr., Dan and Joe; and daughters Beverly, Christine, Bonnie, Betsy and Julie.

Lake Meredith Recreation Area to have fee free weekend

FRITCH — Superintendent Karren Brown announced today that Lake Meredith National Recreation Area will be participating in the President's Healthier US Initiative by having a Fee Free Weekend on Saturday and Sunday. The park will be waiving boating fees to promote a presidential initiative on physical fitness.

Nearly half of American adults report that they do not exercise at all, and seven out of 10 do so infrequently.

Each year, approximately 300,000 deaths occur related to obesity. In addition, five chronic diseases associated with obesity — heart disease, cancer, stroke, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease and diabetes — claim more than 1.7 million American lives each year and account for more than two-thirds of all U.S. deaths.

"On this special weekend to promote a healthier America, President Bush, Secretary Norton, and I want to invite you to the National Parks. As part of our welcome, we have waived entrance fees to all National Parks that charge them," said Fran Mainella, Department of Interior Director. "We hope you enjoy this opportunity to discover the benefits of improved health through physical activities and stress-reducing experiences that your National Parks provide."

For more information, contact the park headquarters at 806-857-3151.

Horoscope BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Thursday, June 20, 2002:

Your year contains unusually dynamic aspects if you go with the flow and don't try to orchestrate what goes on. Listen to others' ideas. Their choices could be quite varied and different from your own. You will grow from incorporating others' ideas and thoughts. Speak your mind clearly. You radiate and draw others to you. If you are single, you will meet someone close to the end of the year. This person will delight in your company and vice versa. If you are attached, your relationship will flourish as it hasn't for many years. Make special plans involving a long-term, much-talked-about trip. SCORPIO works well with you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Work with each person individually. Others cannot help but feel pleased by all your attention. Listen well to another's sharing. Your vision of what needs to happen transforms as a result of the talk. Don't hold your feelings back. Tonight: Make nice.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

You might not have certain matters as under control as you think you do. Another could launch into a wild diatribe or do something far-out. Just enjoy the moment, giving up any uptightness. Tonight: Where the folks are.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Others listen when you speak. You like that kind of responsiveness. Investigate other possibilities involving your work, especially if you don't feel as if your potential is being fulfilled. Fast changes seem more than possible. Tonight: Take a hard look in the mirror.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Speak your mind in a fashion that others can understand. You might want to keep a grievance to yourself, just for now. Tonight: Pick up the phone and make weekend plans.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Be a quick study. Become a money wizard before you get into trouble. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Review a matter that involves a child or loved one. A friend gives an unusually caring perspective. Think through a decision. Tonight: Happy as a clam.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec 21) Take your time. Someone makes a request that you don't really need to think about; just do it. Someone else might tempt you with quite an offer. Remember, there is nothing wrong with sharing deeper feelings. Others respond to your openness. Tonight: Catch up on e-mail.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't make anything more formal or difficult than need be. A meeting could be more meaningful than you considered. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your imagination takes you to another level. Others seek you out because of your strong imagination and your other creative qualities. You can be sure about another's affection or attraction. Just look at how he or she behaves around you! Tonight: Work as late as you need to.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) News puts a smile on your face. Recognize how deeply someone feels about you, be it because of the quality of your work or your positive attitude.
