Gramm debates Krueger before cattlemen's group

Gramm

San Antonio...The state's ranchers appear to be backing a "Boll Weevil" for the U.S. Senate rather than a fellow cattleman who also is after the job.

In a debate yesterday before an estimated 1,400 members of the Texas & Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, Republican U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, a former economics professor at Texas A&M University, garnered cheers and loud ovations, while Democrat Bob Krueger, a former congressman who operates his family's Comal County ranch, was greeted only politely.

The pair are front-runners for their parties' nominations for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by veteran Republican John Tower.

Campaign sparks flew when Gramm charged that Krueger, whose congressional district included part of San Antonio, had apologized for his congressional voting record during appearances before more liberal groups such as Black Democrats and the AFL-CIO Council.

"I have no apologies to make for my voting record," Gramm said.

Declaring that throughout his six years in the U.S. House he supported efforts to mandate a balanced federal budget through a constitutional amendment, Gramm said other candidates "come here and say they are for it, but they go to the Black Democrats or the AFL-CIO and say, 'forgive me for my voting record because I represented a conservative district.'"

But Krueger retorted: "I make no apologies for wanting to represent black Democrats....I would be proud to represent union members.

"I want very much to be a United States senator, but I want to be a United States senator for all the people of this state."

Krueger said that the primary issue of the campaign is effectiveness and charged that Gramm cannot offer that.

"He who votes conservative or liberal all the time is not effective," Krueger said, adding that his record is that of a representative who analyzes issues on their merits rather than on ideology.

Responding to a question from an audience member who admitted that many ranchers employ illegal aliens, Gramm said he is "adamantly opposed" to the proposed Simpson-Mazzoli immigration bill because it imposes sanctions on employers.

He called for a return of the guest worker program and for changes in the welfare laws "to make incentives for jobs that are drawing illegal aliens (across the border) for work that our people will not do."

Responding to the same question, Krueger said he opposes Simpson-Mazzoli because the bill does not guarantee that Mexican-Americans will not be discriminated against.

Admitting that his stand probably was unpopular with the cattlemen, Krueger added he believes employers of illegal aliens "must be held accountable."

Referring to Gramm's comments, Krueger said: "If wishes could only make it come true, it would be great."

Texas Low Level Radioactive Waste Meeting

According to a news-release on March 20, the Board of Directors of the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority met by teleconference on Monday, March 19, to review the progress toward selection of a waste disposal site. Several counties in west and southwest Texas are under consideration by the Authority.

The Authority staff was instructed to extend an option to buy 456 acres of land in Dimmit County. The present option expired Friday, March 23. The option was renewed and will continue until August 31, 1984, the last day of the Authority's fiscal year.

Two sites in Hudspeth County, presently owned by The University of Texas, have also been under consideration. After hearing the staff report on the sites, the Board directed the Authority to pursue the design of engineered safety barriers at those sites to enhance their natural integrity. The staff will also ask a special committee of The University of Texas also studying the sites to delay their final report until these

Mary Anderson Anderson Captures Midland Theatre Role

"Stella is a pivotal role. The actress who plays this role may receive little glory, but if her portrayal is not right on the mark the portrayals of Blanch and Stanley won't fly.

Miss Anderson is completely believable as the wife torn between remaining loyal to her abusive husband and her emotionally disturbed sister"...so reads the Midland Reporter review of "Streetcar Named Desire."

Considered by many to be Tennessee Williams finest play, "Streetcar" opened Friday for a nine performance run in Theatre Two at Theatre Midland.

Mary Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rich Anderson, plays the "pivotal" role of Stella.

This is the second time Mary has performed in the Midland Theatre, the first being a very small role in "Catch Me If You Can" in 1981. Her only other experience with drama was while she was attending Borden County High School.

As a freshman in BHA, Mary won the Regional Best Actress Award in the UIL One Act Play competition, as well as District Best Actress the following two years. She was under the direction of Ben Jarrett and Sharon Huddleston.

The Midland Reporter goes on to say, "...she plays the role straight as it must be played, is neither too strong nor too weak and allows the audience to see how emotionally disturbed she is by appearing so normal in such an abnormal situation."

The lead role of Blanche is played by Elizabeth Hewlett, a recent graduate of Tulane University school of drama. She has also done the lead role in "A Glass Menagerie by Tennessee Williams.

"Streetcar Named Desire" is directed by Ted Strickland.

Performances will be at 8:30 p.m. March 29, 30, 31, April 5, 6, 7 and a matinee on Sunday April 8. Tickets may be obtained by calling 915 682-4111.

Coach Marsha Sharp Receives Contract

Texas Tech Women's Basketball Coach Marsha Sharp was granted a three year extension on her contract, Athletic Director Jeannine McHaney announced today.

"Since the women's athletic department was first established back in 1975, our coaches have been employed by the University under a one year renewable agreement. Based on the improvements Coach Sharp has made in our basketball program and the University's commitment to continue its support, we felt that such a contract extension, a first in our history, was both timely and well deserved," McHaney said.

Marsha Sharp, 45-16 in her two years as the Tech head coach, directed the 1982-83 club to a 22-9 record and a postseason appearance at the National Women's Invitational Tournament in Amarillo (NWIT). She also received Southwest Conference Coach of the Year honors as voted by her peers.

This past season, Sharp led Tech to a 23-7 record and a first-ever postseason appearance in the 32 team NCAA playoff field. In conference action, the Raiders twice came within ten points of Texas (the nation's top ranked team) before settling for a second place finish in both regular season and tournament play.

"The contract extension is a vote of confidence from the University that my staff and I feel very good about. It is important to our recruiting efforts because of the security and stability it signifies," Sharp said. "I'm excited personally because I feel like we have an excellent situation here at Texas Tech, and there is no place else I would rather be. The support we have received from the University, the women's athletic department and the West Texas area has been tremendous."

Sharp, a native of Tulia, graduated from Wayland Baptist in 1974 and received a Master's Degree from West Texas State in 1976. She was the girls' basketball coach at Lockney High School for six years before coming to Texas Tech as an assistant coach in 1981-82. Sharp was promoted to head women's basketball coach in August of 1982.

TEXAS

Canyon, Texas, March 19, 1984...It's almost time again. For the dancers to begin limbering up, the actors learning their parts, and the singers practicing their outside voices.

It's almost time again. The phones are ringing, the budget has been made, and the restroom facilities are being improved.

The souvenirs have been counted, the new T-shirts ordered, and the caterer is ordering beef.

It's almost time again. A new tape machine has been ordered, fifty state flags purchased by members of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, and brochures have been passed out to thousands of travel show visitors.

It's almost time again. For "Texas" Paul Green's story of the settling of the Texas Panhandle during the 1880's, to hit the board for its nineteenth season on June 13, 1984. The show has played to almost one and one-half million visitors since it opened in 1966. Each summer, guests come from all fifty states and scores of foreign countries to see this musical drama told in song, dance, and drama.

Eighty performers will be supported by twenty technicians and forty hospitality crew members

But there's more to "Texas" than the show. Palo Duro Canyon State Park is a major attraction all by itself. The largest state park in Texas, Palo Duro contains more than 17,000 acres, and last year it hosted hundreds of thousands of visitors. While in the state park, patrons can ride horses, enjoy the Sad Monkey Railroad, explore cliffs, snack at the Goodnight Trading Post, and still have time to see the show.

In the city of Canyon, is the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum which boasts one of the country's best collections of cowboy and Plains Indian artifacts.

Near Amarillo, visitors can experience "Cowboy Morning," and have breakfast around a campfire. There is also a cattle auction, which is the largest in the world, planetarium, Helium Monument, and Art Center.

In the area, is Cal Farley's Boys Ranch, Alibates Flint Quarry, and Lake Meredith Recreation Area.

So it is almost time. Rehearsals start in May, but the office is working already. "Texas" opens June 13 and runs through August 25, 1984. For further information, call or write "Texas", Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015 806-655-2181.

Eggs have been important to man for centuries. History reveals that eggs were a food delicacy in ancient and biblical times, and a staple food wherever abundant. History also associates eggs with science, sports and superstition, and exalts them as a symbol of pagan and Christian custom.

One of the big questions of all time is "Which came first, the chicken or the egg?" Theologians say the hen, certainly. They quote as their authority Genesis 1:20: "And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life, and fowl that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven." Evolutionists may argue that birds evolved from reptiles, therefore, the egg came first. At this stage in our economy the question itself seems relatively unimportant. What really calls for universal recognition is that eggs have been rated a great delicacy ever since primitive man first removed them from the nests of birds and wild fowl.

Eggs were revered as a sacred symbol by the ancients, who believed the egg represented the world and its elements: shell (earth), white (water), yolk (fire), and air (under the shell). The breaking of eggs was a ceremony and a means of augury. Men of early times hung eggs in Egyptian temples of worship. Artists glorified them in paintings and sculptures. The serpent's egg of the Druids was an omen of power and success.

This particular egg was the distinguishing badge of that ancient order of Gaulish and British priests.

The early Malay did not eat the chickens or their eggs, but kept the birds for timekeeping and recreational purposes.

Superstition played its part, too. Livia, the wife of Roman Emperor Augustus, was advised by an oracle to carry an egg in the warmth of her corsage. The sex of her unborn child would be indicated by whether a male or female chick was hatched in this cozy nest! A young cock was hatched, and Livia soon gave birth to Tiberius. This happenstance led to the start of an absurd, and certainly uncombortable custom among the young matrons of ancient Rome.

The early Christian Church adapted some of the ancient pagan customs. Pope Paul V drew up a ritual for England, Ireland and Scotland. Eggs, after being blessed by a local priest, became holy gifts beneficial to both the giver and the receiver.

Egyptians believed that Ptah was the creator of the egg of the sun and moon; an ancient drawing shows him at the potter's wheel turning out a golden egg. Phoenicians thought the egg was formed and split open to form two parts-heaven and earth.

Eggs were believed to insure fertility. German and Slav peasants smeared their ploughs with eggs and French brides used to break an egg on the threshold when entering the new home. Weddings in Moroccao, Persia and Java were accompanied with the breaking of egg. The association of eggs with fertility and rebirth is reflected in Christian Easter customs, where the egg assumes resurrection significance. This all means much more in the spring of the year.

Our modern custom of decorating and giving eggs at Easter is a symbol of the Resurrection, but history reveals the custom originated in pre-Christian times. The custom was already long established in China in 772 B.C. Functionaries in the State of King-ts-oo were sent out to towns and countryside to proclaim that all fires must be put out, and must remain out for three days of the great Spring Festival. One provident Chieftain accumulated supplies of painted eggs and set the fashion of dispensing them as gifts to friends and acquaintances.

Persian history reveals a similar custom. Jemsheed, the mythical monarch, sixth in descent from Moses, marked the beginning of the Religious Year each spring with a Feast. kTravelers gave eggs dyed in the barious colors or painted with gilt as gifts to everyone the encountered, friend and stranger alike.

Children have long enjoyed the tradition of coloring Easter eggs. The first mention of egg rolling in Britain is in 1984. This is still popular as a sport at Easter. The eggs are rolled on grassy slopes. The last child to have his egg break wins the roll. English children also dress in costumes and go from house to house asking for eggs, similar to the Halloween custom in the United States. Swiss children receive eggs from the Easter cuckoo, but in other parts of Europe it is the hare that leaves the eggs.

Decorated eggs predate Christianity by thousands of years. They are especially associated with Russia and other Slavic countries. The peasants used a stylus, beeswax and brightly colored native dyes to fashion the renowned Ukrainian eggs. In Russia, this folk art blossomed. The court jeweler, Carl Faberge, was commissioned to create imperial gifts for the Czar's family and friends. Hemade eggs in gold, platinum, enamel and put on precious gems. The jeweled eggs opened and contained intricate models inside.

NCA Political Action Committee Raised $84,000 in 1983

The National Cattlemen's Assn. Political Action Committee (NCA-PAC) raised some $84,000 in 1983. The total contributions represented about 70 percent of the NCA-PAC goal for the year.

As the national political action committee for the beef cattle industry, NCA-PAC offers a means by which cattlemen can make contributions to support the campaigns of congressional candidates who understand the cattle industry. The PAC program supplements the association's strong Washington lobbying effort; it helps in communications of industry positions to key members of Congress.

Some $57,000 of the 1983 total was raised in state-by-state efforts directed by the NCA-PAC executive committee and state and breed association PAC chairmen. Some $27,000 was generated by the NCA-PAC raffle held at the NCA convention. Tom Remington, Calesico, Calif., NCA-PAC chairman for 1983, guided the effort.

On a regional basis, NCA Region IV exceeded its $7500 goal by $7300, under the leadership of NCA-PAC

NCA Region IV exceeded its $7500 goal by $7300, under the leadership of NCA-PAC vice Chairman & Region IV rep Rich Anderson, Gail, Tex.

NCA President John Weber has announced that Rich Anderson, Gail, Texas, will head 1984 election year fund-raising efforts. Anderson will serve as chairman of NCA-PAC. He served on the NCA-PAC executive committee for several years, and he was vice-chairman in 1983. John Schwarz, Lloyd, MT, was appointed vice-chairman.

Most of the NCA-PAC state chairmen structure for 1984 is in place from the 1983 effort. An overall goal of $150,000 set to be raised prior to the 1984 national elections. Efforts are now underway to fill any remaining chairman slots and to establish state-by-state goals for 1984.

Anderson will meet with the executive committee in Denver in early April to finalize plans for the 1984 fund-raising effort, develop a program of liaison between NCA-PAC and the industry's PAC's of commercial companies that are national associate members of NCA, and agree on strategy for contributions to congressional campaigns leading up to the fall national elections.

Ross Perot

Perot Well Received

A record crowd of over 2,000 attended the Texas and South West Cattle Raisers annual convention held in San Antonio last week.

Amid committee and business meetings, art and livestock sales, dinners and dances, the convention goers were privileged to hear a slate of national and international speakers.

Speaking at the kickoff luncheon on Monday was Dr. Henry Kissinger. He shared his personal thoughts about the unrest in Central America.

A debate between Senatorial hopefuls Krueger and Gramm was well attended as was an address by Kent Hance also a Senatorial candidate.

The Cattle-PAC breakfast on Wednesday was oversold. H. Ross Perot entertained as well as informed his rapt audience with facts and figures being uncovered by the Governor's Select Committee on Public Education.

At no time did Mr. Perot intimate doing away with sports, U.I.L. or extra curricular activities as he has been criticized as doing. He simply stated they must be put in the proper perspective. He believes the first step in returning our schools to the basics is by chancing the state board of education from an elective body to an appointed one and urged us to support our state legislatures on this very important issue.

Mr. Perot received a standing ovation following his address.

Attending the meeting from Borden County were; the E.L. Farmers, Bill Phinizies, Dan Turners, Rich Andersons and John and Kevva Anderson
