Texas dropout rate more than reported

DALLAS (AP) estimates of Texas dropout rate show that the state has a bigger problem than what state tallies show

The report by the National Center for Education Statistics found that five percent of Texas high school students dropped out in the 1999 2000 school year The Texas Education Agency, however, says the dropout rate that year was 1 3 percent

The Center for Education Statistics, a research arm of the US Department of Education, calculated annual dropout rates for the 100 largest school districts in America. It found rates of 6.3. percent in Dallas and 9 percent in Fort Worth. The state's official dropout rates for the two districts are 1.2 percent and 2.7 percent, respectively.

BY KATE B. DICKSON ASSOCIATE PUBLISHER

The latest money busts of suspected drug cash have brought District Attorney Rick Roach's seizure account to $863,635 but most of it is still a long way from being able to be used.

"We've got a heck of a lot more money in the seizure fund than in the forfeiture fund," he said.

That's because many seizures are contested by those whose money was taken and civil court proceedings are held on all money before the final verdict is in on its disposition, Roach explained.

"I'm working on one (civil action) right now." Roach said during an interview Tuesday.

Once the court declares the money forfeited, it is divided

When troopers seize cash in the 31st District, 30 percent of it goes to the DA's fund and 70 percent to the state, Roach said. When money is seized by a county officer, the split is half to the county involved and half to the DA's fund. Currently there is $112,866 in the forfeiture account that can be used for law enforcement purposes, the DA said. That account, when Roach took office in January 2001, stood at about $1,100.

Vargas' bond lowered

By KATE B. DICKSON ASSOCIATE PUBLISHER

Tears streamed down the face of 15-year-old Erica Vargas as she gave her testimony and looked over at her father who was dressed in orange and white county jail stripes.

Watching her late Tuesday afternoon were two sad families and their friends who lined the wooden benches in the small, makeshift courtroom in the Hughes Building. One group sat in the front. The other in the year.

What brought them all together was the June 25 wreck in which Cecilio Sosa Vargas, 35, 405 Hughes, is accused of causing the death of Pampan Bob Douthit.

Douthit died when Vargas' pickup ran off the road and hit a bus that Douthit was hooking up to his wrecker, DPS trooper Daimon Jones said at the time. Douthit was crushed between the two vehicles.

He was the owner-operator of Bob Douthit Autos and was a well-known member of the Pampa community.

Alcohol played a role in the crash that happened about 11 p.m. on Texas Highway 152 about a mile west of the Wheeler-Gray County line, Jones said shortly after the incident

Several hours later Vargas was found six-to-10 miles away in rugged terrain after he allegedly fled the scene, according to the DPS. Vargas was located with the help of search dogs from the Jordan Unit.

Vargas' attorney, Harold Comer, stood before 223rd District Judge Lee Waters asking that his client's "excessive" $1.125 million bond be reduced to one that is possible for Vargas to

later board debates cloud seeding effects

By DAVID BOWSER STAFF WRITER

WHITE DEER - As rain spread over the central panhandle, rancher Jay O'Brien told the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District that he wanted them to stop their cloud seeding program.

O'Brien, who manages five ranches around the Texas Panhandle, said to the PGWCD board of directors at their regularly scheduled meeting here

Tuesday that since they had started their rain enhancement program, he had not gotten enough rain on an 80,000-acre ranch he runs in northwest Potter County to fill the stock tanks.

While admitting that it may be coincidence, O'Brien said his research into rain enhancement indicated that some people could be hurt by such a program.

O'Brien said they had canceled the project because they did not show any rain enhancement using aircraft that

Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms covered the northern Texas Panhandle and upper Trans Pecos region early Wednesday, pushing high clouds into northern parts of the state. The high cloudiness was expected to linger as long as the thunderstorms continued in the panhandle, spreading into the South Plains. A few storms lingered in far West Texas, east of El Paso. Skies there were mostly cloudy. Early-morning temperatures ranged from the 60s to 70s, with a few 80s in urban areas. Extremes ranged from 64 degrees at Marfa to 83 at Corpus Christi Naval Air Station.

Other readings included 80 degrees at Wink, 69 at both Amarillo and Guadalupe Pass and 89 at both El Paso and San Angelo.

Winds were mostly southerly and southeasterly at 5 to 15 mph, except for southwesterly at 10 to 20 mph in the far west and Guadalupe Mountains.

Isolated to scattered thunderstorms were expected through Thursday from the panhandle south through the South Plains and Permian Basin to the Davis Mountains and Big Bend.

Sources: Former Enron exec to plead guilty to money laundering

By KRISTEN HAYS ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

HOUSTON (AP) - The government's probe of Enron Corp. appears to have gotten a boost.

The right-hand man to Enron's former chief financial officer was set to provide the first guilty plea from an executive at the failed energy giant and has agreed to cooperate with investigators, sources close to the investigation say.

Michael Kopper, 37, former managing director of Enron Global Finance under former CFO Andrew Fastow, was expected to plead guilty to money laundering and conspiracy to commit wire fraud before a federal judge in Houston on Wednesday, two sources said on condition of anonymity.

One of the sources also said Kopper will surrender $12 million in illegally obtained assets.

Kopper's attorney did not return

Department spokesman declined com-

As part of the plea agreement, Kopper has agreed to cooperate with investigators, a drastic shift from February when he invoked his Fifth Amendment right not to testify before Congress.

His cooperation represents a potential watershed event in the investigation since he has knowledge of Enron's innermost workings and financial deal-

As Fastow's one-time top lieutenant, Kopper can lead investigators through the complex web of accounting and financial transactions that fueled Enron's implosion last year. Investigators are looking into whether Enron managers, including former chairman Kenneth Lay, knew that the network of partnerships was being used to hide debt.

"He embodies the perfect cooperat-calls seeking comment. A Justice ing witness because he is not viewed by the public as being one of the most culpable defendants, but at the same time, he has a vast array of knowledge and can point the government in the right direction," said Robert Mintz, a former Justice Department prosecutor.

Fastow was ousted in October, a few days after Enron admitted a $618 million third-quarter loss and wrote down $1.2 billion in shareholder equity, exposing years of inflated profits and hidden debt.

When Enron declared bankruptcy last December, it was the largest such filing in U.S. history. Millions of investors lost money and thousands of current and former Enron workers lost the great bulk of their retirement sav-

It also led to the unraveling of Arthur Andersen LLP, the auditing firm convicted of shredding documents to obstruct a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of Enron's accounting practices.

Since then, executives from Andersen and other major companies, including WorldCom and Adelphia, have been accused of improper accounting.

Fastow ran partnerships that allowed Enron to shift debt from its books. He also negotiated deals with Enron on the partnerships' behalf.

That makes Kopper a critical connection to Fastow and Enron's accounting practices, said Thomas Ajamie, a former federal prosecutor and securities lawyer.

"He could give them a colorenhanced map of Fastow's movements and thoughts," Ajamie said.

Kopper became a focus of investigators because of his involvement in Enron-financed partnerships. An investigation by Enron's board determined Kopper and his domestic partner used Enron partnerships to turn a $125,000 personal investment into $10.5 million in less than three years.

Kopper has not been charged. In a plea agreement, the government generally brings charges just before a guilty plea is entered in court.

One of the sources said the plea offers no guarantee that prosecutors will not seek prison time for Kopper.

Kopper ran a partnership called Chewco, named for the "Star Wars" character of Chewbacca, until he left Enron in 2001 to run another Fastowcreated entity called LJM2.

Ken Johnson, spokesman for the House Energy and Commerce Committee, said Kopper likely is the first of many executives who will be charged.

"Clearly this is just the first shoe to drop, based on the information our committee has in its possession,' Johnson said. "We have a wealth of information in our possession suggesting a number of people at Enron took part in fraudulent activities."

regarding the issuance of a registration for a 50,000-head genetic research swine facility in Gray and Roberts counties. Office of Public Interest

Counsel

OPIC's response calls for additional investigation of the claims. It states that the comments "clearly described problems with both the site and the application, and warranted further investigation by the ED."

In the response signed by Coy, he said, "We find that the ED (Executive Director Saitas) has in several instances either failed to directly respond to a comment or has responded that further investigation was limited, the response which were under the Subchapter B regulations."

He continued by saying the extensive interest by the public should be a factor in the considerations.

"In light of the intense and overwhelming show of concern from the public and residents of the area, we think the ED has the responsibility to address the above listed concerns in a more substantive manner than he has done," he said. "Anything less than a full response acts to render the review meaningless. Moreover, it acts to erode the confidence of the public that the TNRCC will hold applicants accountable not only to the letter, but to the spirit of

Protecting the water in the area and odor control from the swine facility are two main concerns of the opponents.

Four issues were cited in raised by the public in asking that the permit not be granted.

· The sensitive nature of area recharge features linked to a vital aquifer combined with the lack of consideration given to the low permeability of the soils present on waste application

The Ogallala Aquifer's value would almost certainly be affected by any discharge from this site only magnifies this concern, Coy said.

Additionally, he said a general prohibition exists in the registration against the application of wastes in a manner that will result in the discharge of wastes into the waters of the state.

Coy's response says Saitas' staff recognized specific limitations that will foresee and prevent such discharges that are warranted dependent upon the particular soil conditions at the site.

He added "that the proximity of this site to such an important aquifer justifies further review and the inclusion of additional protections in this registration." He further says "that the City of Pampa has underground wells supplied by this same aquifer. The tremendous risk involved with contamination of this aquifer argues for a closer scrutiny of this application."

This issue was raised in the Motion to Overturn of Mindy Reeves and Donna Clyde.

 Possible fissures which were not considered by the ED (resulting from past seismic blasting likely conducted on site) capable of transporting waste water through otherwise low-permeability soils to the aquifer.

Coy said the Spearman family questioned what implications historical seismographic blasting in the area, and potentially directly on the site, might have regarding a hydrologic connection analy-

According to the response,

Saitas offered no response to the Spearmans' claim that this type of seismographic blasting could have created fissures that would serve as conduits for waste water from the lagoons to enter the aquifer.

 Lack of any prohibition in the permit against placing waste retention facilities directly over plugged recharge features.

Concerns were also raised by the Spearmans regarding the placement of waste water laggons over artificial penetrations which have subsequently been plugged, according to the OPIC response.

Opinions by expert consultants that the plugging of these types of penetrations is frequently inadequate to prevent the preferential flow of water through them were included, the response stated.

"Nothing in the permit categorically forbids the placement of waste water lagoons over plugged penetrations," said Coy. "In his response to these comments, the ED has neither acknowledged, nor responded to, this risk.'

· Failure to use the best available control technology (BACT) to deal with odors.

Adequacy of the air pollution control measures to be employed has been raised by several parties who also offered alternative control technologies for meeting BACT.

Alternative recommendations were submitted by the Spearman family, Dale Roth and others, stated the report. Coy said the TNRCC executive director made no changes to the registration in response to the proposals.

"The ED has simply stated that the application met all the requirements for a registration and provided no comparative reasoning for why the control measures applied were sufficient," said Coy.

"We think a comparative analysis of technologies would be the most appropriate means to show that the technology chosen is BACT. Without this analysis the ED has not responded to the protestants on this issue."

He concluded by saying "the ED's failure to provide a comparison of technologies means that the factual determination of what technology should be required is being made in a manner that is inconsistent with the intent of the Clean Air Act, since the lack of response indicates that no other technologies were even reviewed as possibly appropriate in the permit review process.'

Deputy District Attorney David Holmes called Trooper Jones to the stand who disputed that Vargas can't speak English saying he had talked with him after the capture. Another trooper, Jesse Cerda, who speaks Spanish, also talked with Vargas in that language, he said.

Jones, lead officer on the case, described Vargas' flight from the scene and the "rough and ragged" terrain in which the search was conducted.

Comer said in a statement to the court the bond, set by Justice of the Peace Kurt Curfman, is "oppressive and excessive," adding that bond is not meant as punishment but rather to guarantee someone's appearance in court.

Comer said Douthit's death was "not intentional murder" and said, "It's tragic what happened but it certainly was an accident. We don't try people in the news media or by popular demand."

Holmes spoke against reducing the bond pointing to Vargas' flight from the wreck scene as well as the defendant's ties to Mexico.

"He has ties (relatives) to Mexico and is not a citizen of the United States albeit he is here legally," Holmes told Waters, adding that Vargas, by virtue of his actions, "has a propensity for flight."

After taking a few minutes to consider the matter, Waters said, "We would have an entirely different situation if the defendant had not run. I do feel the $1 million bond is excessive and will reduce it but I still have to take into consideration the flight risk aspect of this case.

He then set bond on the manslaughter charge, for which a grand jury indicted Vargas earlier in the day, at $250,000,' and set bond at $25,000 each on the other two

Farmers Insurance to stop writing homeowner policies

By JIM VERTUNO ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

AUSTIN (AP) - Already under fire from state officials over its pricing practices, Farmers Insurance said Tuesday it will stop writing new homeowners policies in Texas after Oct. 31.

Farmers spokesman Bill Miller said the company had no other choice after state officials last week issued a cease-and-desist order on what regulators called illegal pricing practices.

That order gave Farmers 90 days to develop a new pricing structure. The state also is seeking $150 million in restitution for policyholders and fines of $25,000 for each policy written under the disputed practices.

Farmers, the state's second largest home insurer, has denied any wrongdoing.

Robert Black, spokesman for the Texas Department of Insurance, called Farmers' decision an "extreme overreaction" that would hurt consumers.

We have not ordered them to stop writing policies," Black said. "We have ordered them to stop writing illegal policies."

In an Aug. 16 letter to its agents, Farmers said it must put a freeze on new policies to comply with the state order and avoid the fines. Miller said current policy holders will be able to renew after the Oct. 31 cutoff.

"As we have said repeatedly, it is Farmers desire to do everything within reason to remain in the Texas homeowners market," said the letter from John P. Hageman, Farmers state executive director.

Black said any policy renewed under the current rate structure would be subject to

The state sued the company earlier this month, accusing Farmers of charging consumers excessive and unjustified rates for homeowners' coverage through deceptive trade and discriminatory practices.

Farmers historically has had a customer base of about 700,000 homeowners in Texas and this year it has added about 50,000 homeowners.

Dan Lambe, director of the consumer group Texas Watch, said the move will hurt homeowners already facing rising premiums and reduced coverage in Texas' burgeoning insurance crisis.

"Unfortunately, this represents just one more example of irresponsible games being played by the insurance industry while Texas families are left to suffer the consequences," Lambe said.

Cruz survived by eating leaves and drinking muddy water and his own urine, Camp said. The only item to protect him from the temperatures that dropped to 45 degrees at night was a green nylon jacket.

Cruz's SUV had become disabled when its gas line broke Aug. 9, so he decided to walk to his home in nearby Arleta.

Grandmother's Murder Sparks Ongoing Strife Within Family

DEAR ABBY: My widowed grandmother was recently murdered in a home invasion. My father (her son) wanted my family and me (my children are 5 and 9) to come immediately. I wanted to leave the kids at home because we live in another state and it's a six-hour drive. Dad insisted their presence would be helpful.

We made the decision not to take the children with us. When we were en route, we discovered that the family was gathering at my grandmother's home - where she had been murdered.

When my parents found out that we hadn't brought the kids, they became very angry with me and have not spoken to me since the memorial service. ## Kingsbury at quarterback is Tech's ticket

LUBBOCK (AP) — On paper, ers. Texas Tech has ticket to ride: lots of returning starters and Kliff Kingsbury's passing arm.

But when play gets going for real, the Red Raiders will face a monster 13-game schedule against some tough, proven teams.

Kingsbury is coming off a junior year in which he led the league in passing, thanks partly to coach Mike Leach's air-based offense. That style, based on the short pass, has helped the Red Raiders play in bowl games the last two seasons. They were 7-5 last season, tying for third in the Big 12 South.

"The system is designed to take advantage of what they give you," Kingsbury said. "I know people want to see it chunked downfield, but that's not the way it works when they're dropping eight people. We'll take what they give us and be happy with

Leach believes that his ideas are becoming second nature to his play-

He's hoping that having more players with more experience will translate into more success.

"Some stuff happens more automatic now because everybody has a lot more expertise in what we're trying to do," Leach said. "And I think it rubs off on the new guys faster because the older guys are able to tell the young guys.'

The "Air Raid" offense spotlights Kingsbury, who was named the Big 12's preseason offensive player of the year. Last season, he led the Big 12 in passing with 3.052 yards and 25 touchdowns. He also had league highs with 365 completions and 529

Those numbers have prompted Tech to produce a Kingsbury CD-ROM and to create a web site (www.KLIFFKINGSBURY.COM) with an eye to the Heisman Trophy finding its way to West Texas.

"I think the whole Bob Knight deal with the basketball team brought a huge amount of attention to the whole athletic program, which has been great," said Kingsbury, adding that he's a bit embarrassed by the hoopla surrounding him.

"And I think they're trying to keep that going with a good football sea-

Tech will be without its top receiver from last season, running back Ricky Williams who pulled in a Big 12-best 92 passes. But the Red Raiders return eight players who caught passes a year ago.

One of those is 6-foot-5 Anton Paige, whose preseason injury last season limited his contributions early.

"He's definitely going to be a big player this year," Kingsbury said. "I just throw it up and he goes and gets it."

Four players want to replace Williams in the backfield: Foy Munlin,, who played briefly last season, Taurean Henderson, Loliki Bonga-Wanga, who sat out last season Texas and Oklahoma State.

with a Achilles tendon injury, and Johnnie Mack, a junior college trans-

"All of them have different qualities, but they all can get it done," Kingsbury said. "The running back's got to be able to catch in this offense."

On defense, the Red Raiders have only two new faces on a squad that includes linebacker Lawrence Flugence, who led the Big 12 in tackles last season with 145, and Aaron Hunt, who had a league-best 12 sacks.

Despite losing linebacker Jonathan Hawkins and safety Kevin Curtis, a defensive coordinator McMackin said he has more than enough talent to replace his losses.

"We've got more depth than we've ever had," he said. "I feel like we're solid all along."

After opening at Ohio State, Tech has a week off before playing 12 straight, including home games against North Carolina State, Mississippi,

Comets ousted from WNBA playoffs

HOUSTON (AP) - Natalie Williams' best was just enough to get the Utah Starzz into the Western Conference finals.

Williams scored a careerhigh 25 points as the Starzz eliminated the Houston Comets from the WNBA playoffs with a 75-72 win Tuesday night in a game delayed when referee Bill Stokes collapsed early in the second half.

Marie Ferdinand had 10 of her 18 points down the stretch after play was stopped for 25 minutes when Stokes collapsed near the scorer's table during a time-out with 15:33 left in the game. Stokes was treated immediately by medical officials from both teams before play resumed.

"That decision was made by the WNBA," Comets coach Van Chancellor said. "They just told me we were going to play in five minutes.

"At that time he was stable and breathing on his own. Sure, I think the league is going to get criticized but I didn't see any other solution. It was just a tough loss any way you slice it. It was a tough night for us. tough night for him."

Stokes was taken to a Southwest Memorial Hospital where team officials said he was listed in critical, but stable condition. WNBA president Val Ackerman left the game and joined Stokes at the hospi-

The Comets led 43-40 when Stokes collapsed. When play resumed, the Starzz went on an 19-10 run and took a 59-53 lead with 7:34 to play.

The Starzz will play for the Western Conference championship against the defending WNBA champion Los Angeles

Rangers beat Red Sox in 10 innings

BOSTON (AP) — Carl Everett was not a factor in his return to Boston. Neither was the Red Sox offense.

Ivan Rodriguez homered to tie it in the ninth inning and Todd Hollandsworth hit a solo shot in the 10th as the Texas Rangers won their fifth straight Tuesday night, 3-2 over Boston.

'We're at a point right now where it's like we have to pass an act through Congress to score a run and other teams are scoring with one swing of the bat," Boston manager Grady Little

Derek Lowe pitched sevenplus innings of four-hit ball in his bid to become the AL's first 18-game winner. But the offense struggled again and closer Ugueth Urbina blew a 2-1 lead as Boston missed an opportunity to gain a game in the AL wildcard race.

Urbina blew his fifth save in 33 chances when Rodriguez led off the ninth with his 11th home Hollandsworth, who came off the disabled list before the game, opened the 10th with a drive off Willie Banks (2-1) that cleared the right-field fence. Rich Rodriguez (2-1) retired Trot Nixon with two runners on to end the ninth. Francisco Cordero recorded three outs in the tenth for his fifth save, getting Tony Clark on a popup with two runners on to end the game.

Everett went 0-for-4 in his return to Boston and was booed loudly throughout the night.

Traded to the Rangers in December for pitcher Darren Oliver, Everett sarcastically tipped his cap after the crowd booed when he caught Johnny Damon's first-inning flyball. He refused to comment after the

The Red Sox lost for the fourth time in five games.

Lowe allowed one unearned run, striking out three and walking three. He hasn't lost since July 12 and has thrown 14 consecutive innings against the Rangers without giving up an earned run.

"He's got great stuff and has been pitching like that all year," Alex Rodriguez said. "You can flip a coin between him and Pedro (Martinez). Both have been outstanding.

Jason Varitek led off Boston's third inning with a double. Aftera two-out walk to Nixon, Nomar Garciaparra's infield single over the third-base bag scored Varitek for a 1-0 lead.

Hollandsworth followed with a double, chasing Lowe, and Kevin Mench's sacrifice fly off Bobby Howry made it 2-1

Alex Rodriguez had a chance to tie it, but he was called out for running out of the baseline on a check-swing roller in front of the mound Rafael Palmeiro flied out to

Rocket to miss rest of season

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Replacing Raghib Ismail won't be as easy for the Dallas Cowboys as just putting one of their young receivers in his place.

The Cowboys have several options to fill Ismail's spot on the field, but their 10-year veteran receiver, who is expected to miss the season after neck surgery, did more than catch passes.

"We lose more in the competitive spirit and what he does in the locker room than we do in the talent," coach Dave Campo said Tuesday. "We really think we have some young receivers that are going to step up. We feel we're in better shape than ever, but you don't replace experience very easily."

Ismail was scheduled to have surgery Wednesday to repair a herniated disk caused in an awkward collision with linebacker Dat Nguyen during practice a week ago. Dr. Dan Cooper said Ismail's injury was serious, but not considered career-threatening.

The injury was described as because Ismail has a relatively small spinal canal, although Cooper said it's not the same chronic narrowing that contributed to the end of Michael Irvin's career.

After the disk is removed, the two vertebra around it will be fused together. It is the same procedure that former Cowboys fullback Daryl Johnston had and then returned to play again in the

The news that Ismail likely won't play this year came as a

"We thought it was just a stinger. That's what everybody was depending on, and then all of a sudden to find this out," said Joey Galloway, the other veteran speedy receiver in new offensive coordinator Bruce Coslet's West Coaststyle offense.

"We're pretty deep at receiver and I think these guys will step up and play," he said. "But there's no substitute for experience. That's 10 years of experience that's not going to be there."

The likely candidate to a huge herniated disk. The replace Ismail in the starting problem is made worse lineup is rookie Antonio Bryant, a second-round pick who has impressed the coaches during camp. The other options are second-year players Ken-Yon Rambo and Reggie Swinton, who between them have just 10 career receptions. "We're still in the process of making that decision," Campo said. "I think Antopio and Ken-Yoh have both started to step up to the plate, and both are capable of stepping in there."

Bryant and Rambo should get plenty of chances Saturday against Atlanta, a game in which 25-year-old rookie Chad Hutchinson will start at quarterback before regular starter Quincy Carter plays in the second and third quarters.

Swinton, the team's primary kick returner, strained his right hamstring making a catch in last Saturday's preseason win at Carolina, and was day to day. He could be back in time for this weekend's game.

Ismail wasn't available for comment, and his agent didn't return phone calls Tuesday.

Explosion rips through apartment building in Moscow, at least seven dead

MOSCOW (AP) - An explosion tore through a residential building in Moscow. blowing open a 50-foot-wide section and collapsing five stories of apartments. At least seven people were killed, and as many as five others were feared trapped in the rubble.

Authorities said the explosion on Tuesday night was likely caused by a natural gas leak. not a bomb, but it evoked memories of apartment bombings in 1999 that were blamed on Chechen guerrillas.

A spokeswoman for the Emergency had been killed in the blast. Russian television reported that the bodies included that of a mother and her eight-month-old baby, and a 6year-old girl.

Earlier Wednesday, Emergency Situations Minister Sergei Shoigu said 12 people in all might have been trapped by the collapse.

He said a natural gas leak was the most likely cause of the explosion at the building in northern Moscow, near the Ostankino television tower. A Moscow prosecutor, Mikhail Avdyukov, said that investigators had identified the source of the gas leak as an apartment on the second floor.

Shoigu said that four people were rescued from the ruins, according to the Interfax news Situations Ministry, Tatiana Andreyeva, said agency, ITAR-Tass, however, said that eight Wednesday morning that at least seven people people were pulled out, including a woman with burns over 80 percent of her body.

Russian news agencies said about 40 apartments had been destroyed. "It was such an explosion," said 78-yearold resident Zinaida Burlakova, who sat outside a first aid tent. "I thought at first it was thunder, the walls were shaking. I was afraid to go outside. Then someone came to my door and started yelling, 'Go outside!'

Outside the building, Nadyezhda Medvedeva waited for news of her friend, who lived with her family in a fourth-floor apartment that was wrecked in the blast.

"They just got back from vacation today,"

Medvedeva, who lives around the corner, said the blast made her windows shake. As emergency workers used a large crane to pick through the wreckage under floodlights, people every year.

the interiors of apartments were visible where the wall had come down — revealing curtains, interior doors, carpets and other furnishings suddenly left open to the night air.

Rescuers used heavy machinery to move large chunks of rubble, then clambered on the piles and shined flashlights down into the wreckage. Toward dawn, emergency workers cut the engines of bulldozers and other equipment at the site several times to listen for sur-
