Scott Sabins, Gary Mazzone and Bob Anderson, get ready to call it a day after arriving in Pampa as part of their 3,000-mile bike ride from California to Georgia. They ride about 115-120 miles each day.

Just peddling through Cyclists stop in Pampa on 3,000 mile trek

BY KATE B. DICKSON Associate Publisher

What do a California stockbroker, a Minnesota airlines employee and a Virginia Commonwealth attorney have in common?

A shared love of cycling. So much so they are taking part in a 3,000-mile ride that brought them peddling north on Hobart Wednesday to Pampa's Best Western for the night.

Scott Sabins of San Clemente, Calif.; Gary Mazzone of Minneapolis, Minn.; and Bob Anderson of Purcellville, Va., are part of a group of now 17 riders who are making their way from Irvine, Calif., to Savannah, Ga. It's part of "America By Bike Fast Ride South."

Twenty riders set out on Sept. 29 and the plan is to be in Savannah by Oct. 24 if they keep up their 115- to 120-mile daily pace.

Four women started with the group, including one who had to pull out when she broke her shoulder, Sabins said. Two are still riding. The feminine duo beat the men to Pampa.

Two support vehicles travel with the group that sports riders who are "just riding" and some who are biking for charity, like prosecutor Anderson, who is taking pledges per mile to help fund a Rotary scholarship.

The three, who pulled into the motel together, were anxious to know the day's news and asked what the latest reports were with regard to the Maryland sniper shootings.

The stockbroker just frowned when told the market had dropped more than 200 points.

"Is the weather always like this during this time of year?" Anderson asked. "It's been cold and dreary all day."

While they're taking to side roads now, in parts of the west there was no way to escape riding along the interstate, Sabins said.

And, though a day-long ride is never easy, Mazzone said one day was especially tough when the group climbed 12,300 feet in elevation. He says they each burn about 7,000-to-8,000 calories a day.

Speaking of which, one asked the reporter, "Where's a good place to eat ... that we can walk to."

Economy: Weekly jobless claims fall to two-month low; retail sales weak

By JEANNINE AVERSA ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP)-New claims for jobless benefits unexpectedly plunged last week to the lowest level in two months, providing a dose of encouraging news for workers and for companies as the nation's economy muddles forward. But September's retail sales were weak.

For the work week ending Oct. 5, new applications for unemployment insurance dropped by a seasonally adjusted 40,000 to 384,000, the lowest point since the beginning of August, the Labor Department reported Thursday. Many analysts were expecting jobless claims to rise.

In less encouraging news, the nation's biggest retailers reported dismal sales for September as shoppers, spooked by the yo-yo stock market, a possible war with Iraq and the lackluster jobs market, turned more cautious. Department stores and apparel stores were hit the hardest. But even high-flying Wal-Mart Stores Inc., Target Corp. and Kohl's Corp. also posted disappointing results. The weak performance led several merchants, including Target, Talbots Inc. and Federated Department Stores Inc., to reduce their earning outlook for the remainder of the year.

The retail sales report raised new questions about how much energy consumers will have as they head into the holiday shopping season.

The behavior of consumers, whose spending accounts for two-thirds of all economic activity in the United States, will shape the economic recovery. Thus far, consumers have been the main source of power for the economy.

On Wall Street, stocks rose as investors were cheered somewhat by the jobless claims report. The Dow Jones industrial average gained 62 points, while the Nasdaq index was up

16 in morning trading. While the decline in jobless claims offers a promising sign, Labor Department analyst Thomas Stengle cautioned against reading too much into the drop, saying it may partly reflect difficulties adjusting for seasonal factors. The unadjusted claims figures, for instance, showed an equally sharp rise.

Instead, Stengle suggested that the more stable four-week moving average of new claims, which smooths out weekly fluctuations, was a better barometer of the layoffs picture.

The moving average last week fell to a seasonally adjusted 412,250, a decline of 12,250, to the lowest level since early September. Still, for week claims have been above the 400,000 mark, a level associated with a sluggish labor market.

The effects of the uneven economic recovery could be seen vividly in the government's employment report for September released last Friday. That report showed the nation's unemployment rate dipping to 5.6 percent for September even as the economy lost 43,000 jobs.

Heavy job losses in manufacturing, transportation and at public utilities swamped job gains in finance, insurance and real-estate and other service businesses.

Because profits took a hit during last year's recession and are still hurting, some compahies have been reluctant to make big commitments in hiring and capital spending, factors restraining the recovery. At corporate boardrooms, economic uncertainties, including a possible war with Iraq and the West Coast dock workers labor dispute, complicate the business climate, economists say,

STATEWIDE

Rains should diminish over the state today, but the southeast Texas should see some moisture today, as well as northeast Texas.

It should be warm in South Texas and cool elsewhere today, but chillier temperatures are on the way. A cold front should hit the Panhandle and North Texas on Saturday, bringing daytime highs down to the 60s in North Texas. The front will bring temperatures down in central Texas and the Valley by Saturday night. The northwest Panhandle may see freezing temperatures Saturday night.

nsurance tops gubernatorial debate

HOUSTON (AP) --- When Democratic gubernatorial candidate Tony Sanchez arrived at Rice University for his first debate with Republican opponent Gov. Rick Perry, the sound system from Sanchez's campaign bus blared, "Let's get ready to rumble!"

During the next hour Wednesday, the candidates for Texas' top job took some shots at each other's record. But the Rice University debate sponsored by KHOU-TV and the Houston Chronicle was not nearly as nasty as the multimillion-dollar television ad war Perry and Sanchez have been waging.

Still, both sides declared victory after the debate that was televised statewide. The pair focused on issues, mainly Texas' homeowners insurance problems, a projected state budget shortfall and education.

"I feel great about this debate and I feel that I won on the issues," said Sanchez, who unlike Perry, met with reporters after the event.

At Stovall Middle School in Houston on Thursday, Perry said, he was pleased with his performance at the debate and said the real winners were the people of Texas because they heard the candidates talk about issues.

Perry said he believed Sanchez was short on details and long on criticism. "When you don't have any ideas, your only altegnative is to tear down and attack."

Perry was at the school to talk about his education plan and pick up an endorsement from actor Chuck Norris.

Sanchez planned to talk about insurance in Houston on Thursday.

Perry, who became governor when George W. Bush resigned to become president, repeatedly assailed Sanchez for his failed savings and loan in his home town of Laredo, his lack of experience in government and for not voting.

Sanchez's Tesoro Savings and Loan failed, resulting in a $161 million federal taxpayer bailout. The same thrift was used by alleged drug dealers in 1983 and 1984 to launder $25 million from Mexico.

Sanchez again denied any wrongdoing. No charges ever were filed against any Tesoro officials. He said he felt good about how the bank was managed during a time when the banking industry overall was suffering.

"I feel that the institution was managed well," Sanchez said.

"You shouldn't feel good when the federal authorities tell you that there was drug money that came into your bank in suitcases," Perry rebutted. "You failed the test of leadership."

The incumbent listed his expenditures as Postmaster, $518; Lamar Poster Co., $650; Williams Sign, $561.25; Texas

Instead of spending millions of his own money on the campaign, Sanchez should pay back taxpayers, Perry told Sanchez. "That would be morally responsible."

Sanchez accused Perry of being beholden to corporate interests and of being slow to react to insurance troubles that led to the state's largest homeowners insurer, Farmers Insurance Group, abandoning 700,000 Texas customers.

"My opponent has been spending too much time, in my judgment, working for his big contributors, and not enough time working for Texas families," Sanchez said, citing $1 million in Perry donations from the insurance industry.

Perry's people dispute the contribution amount, but offer no number of their own.

Sanchez said, if elected, he would call for a court inquiry investigation led by the state attorney general of the insurance problems, including "criminal conduct of officeholders, former officeholders, lawyers, lobbyists and consultants."

Sanchez refused to specifically name Perry when discussing his investigation idea, but did not exclude the possibility that Perry would be included.

Perry's camp brushed off Sanchet's proposal as desperation.

As governor, Perry said, he has called on the Texas Department of Insurance and lawmakers to investigate insurance companies and file a state lawsuit against Farmers.

Perry said his message to insurers is clear: "If you can't cut state taxes.

do work in the state of Texas ethically and legally, then you're going to face some of the stiffest fines that you've faced in your life."

Perry called Sanchez hypocritical for decrying the high prices of unregulated homeowners insurance yet profiting from such policies through an insurance agency subsidiary of his International Bank of Commerce.

Sanchez has said the agency has no control over how policies are constructed. He says his business sees little, if any, profit from the policies.

The two defended their spending of a record $72 million so far on the governor's race, much of it fought via slick campaign commercials. Both said the governor's office was important.

Sanchez, a banker and oilman who serves as a University of Texas regent, said he would look at proposals for publicly funded campaigns.

Perry touted his 17-year experience as a former lawmaker, state agriculture commissioner and lieutenant governor.

He was critical of Sanchez's spotty voting record.

"I made a mistake not voting as often as I should have," Sanchez replied.

Neither candidate offered specific proposals to deal with a projected $5 billion state budget shortfall.

Sanchez said he'd use his business experience to trim waste in the $114 billion spending plan. Perry said he's demonstrated experience to balance five state budgets and

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR Spend quality time here

This letter is in regard to the lady in California who thought our town is just horrible because of our lack of eating establishments.

The lady obviously hasn't spent any quality time in Pampa because we have so much more to offer here.

First off, in comparison we have very little crime. I feel safer here in Pampa than anywhere else I have lived. I am raising three children in Pampa and feel they are safer here than anywhere else I have lived.

I have lived in Pampa about three years and have never run across friendlier people. Sure we have our grouches, but for the most part, everyone is very friendly.

It is a nice feeling to be a part of a town like Pampa where people aren't afraid to stop and help someone else in need. The Chamber of Commerce is always bringing and planning activities for the citizens of Pampa. As far as restaurants, if I had the money, I would open a restaurant all of Pampa would be proud of. However Pampa does have a few very good restaurants here.

If she doesn't enjoy our food, maybe she should focus on our good points, because we have so much more good than bad. Like I said in the opening, she obviously hasn't spent

VIEWPOINTS

Pampa people to be proud of

One of the first people I met shortly after I arrived in Pampa was Miss Eloise Lane. I took an instant liking to Miss Eloise, and she has continued to be one of my favorite people.

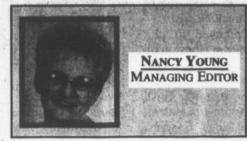

She related to me a couple of weeks after I joined The Pampa News that she had a niece, Pat Petty, who lives in Stinnett who knew me. Of course I knew her. We raised our children together, attended many school functions and worked on many projects together for many years. Her children - Brian, Carol and James - were good kids, and still are. Since Pat was one of my favorite people, I knew I would like Miss Eloise. And I was right.

Her love of history is another reason I enjoy visiting with her. She has been preserving the history of Gray County for many years. I have been involved in preserving the history of Hutchinson County for many years.

When I learned Miss Eloise was selected to Pampa High School's Hall of Fame, I couldn't think of anyone who or "Who was that person?". possibly could be more deserving.

While I didn't get to attend the induction ceremony last Friday morning because we were busy getting the Friday edition of the newspaper out, I did get to to spend my time reading books and attend the luncheon honoring Miss Eloise and Col. Dewey Wheat at noon. I was told by several that I certainly missed an outstanding speech by Miss Eloise. I wish I could have heard it.

At the luncheon the former music teacher told how she became so involved in preserving the history of Pampa and Gray County.

For many years Miss Eloise has written a column, Museum Momentos, for The Pampa News. Her grandparents were the first people to live here before it was Pampa. Many stories were passed down in her family through the years as well as many other early-day families.

As Dr. Dawson Orr, Pampa school superintendent, said Friday at the noon luncheon, she tells us about Pampa in her column by answering questions such as "Why is that street named what it is?"

Miss Eloise related how she came to write the column for the local newspaper, saying it wasn't her doing.

"I thought when I retired I was going playing the piano - my favorite occupations. But Clotille Thompson, my good friend that I've known since we were both 5 years old, thought differently. She pushed me, prodded me and finally, tricked me," Miss Eloise exclaimed. "Once when I was out of town she went to the Pampa News when Larry Hollis was the editor and got it all set up.'

Not only does she work to preserve history, the very active Miss Eloise continues to teach piano lessons to her great-great-nieces each Saturday.

After listening to Dewey Wheat speak, I couldn't think of two better people to represent Pampa in 2002. He was such a lively speaker.

Miss Eloise has lived most of her years in Pampa. She taught music to hundreds of children through the years, including Dewey. Staying in this community, she has researched and written about so much historical information that will be preserved for future generations. Because of her, our children will be able to know so much more about the town in which they are living.

While she has preserved our history, Dewey was working to preserve the people's freedom. Spending 30 years in the military, he will retire at the end of the month. He has amassed many honors and medals in his pursuit to protect Americans, including Pampa residents.

In these uncertain times, Pampa residents came together to pay tribute to honor a 1932 PHS graduate as well as a 1969 graduate. Both are outstanding, and both compliment each other. They were extremely gracious recipients.

Let's be proud of them. They both are proud of their heritage.

U.S. Senate race holds key to national power

From the Austin American-Statesman:

There has never been any doubt that the race between John Cornyn and Ron Kirk to succeed U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm was the object of intense national interest. The withdrawal of U.S. Sen. Robert Torricelli of New Jersey, a Democrat, from his re-election race makes the Texas race even more important.

Democrats have salivated at the prospect of Kirk defeating Republican Cornyn in the president's home state in the midterm election. But the stakes here involve more than just' embarrassing the president. Democrats hold a one-member majority in the Senate. Of the 34 Senate seats to be decided in the November general election, 20 are held by Republicans, 14 by Democrats. Republicans obviously have more seats to defend, and 16 of the 34 are considered vulnerable. Half of those — including the Texas contest — are considered too close to call.

Neither party has much room for error, and Torricelli's 11th-hour withdrawal complicates matters considerably on a national level.

If you think you've seen out-of-state influence in the race up to now, "you ain't seen nothin' yet," as the line from the "Jazz Singer" goes.

In that kind of supercharged atmosphere, the rhetoric tends to get emotional. Cornyn has wrapped himself tightly around the president. Kirk has emphasized his record of success as mayor of Dallas.

That is fine as far as it goes, but what is lacking in this race is much depth. Texans really haven't had the opportunity to see the two together to make side-by-side comparisons. That Cornyn backs the president's play in Iraq is no surprise. That Kirk has reservations about the coming war with Iraq is no surprise, either.

In short, they are just like the rest of us. What separates them from the rest of us, however, is that one of them will eventually take a place in the U.S. Senate.

The issues that define our age need more discussion that what can be had in a 30-second television commercial. It may sound corny, but Texans are entitled to know in some detail how their next senator would handle Social Security, national security, health and education issues, the budget and taxes. Those aren't the only ones, but they are a start.

This is too important of a decision to be made on whether John Cornyn looks good on television or Ron Kirk can crack a good joke. One debate between Cornyn and Kirk is scheduled for Oct. 23; more would be welcomed.

Both are able, intelligent leaders. Insiders know that. The rest of the state ought to be able to see for themselves as they decide who will represent them in the U.S. Senate - and, possibly, which party will hold the majority in the upper chamber.

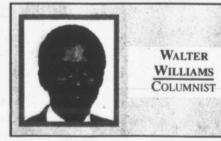

Environmentalism can be fatal

Activists in the environmentalist movement have a callous disregard for people. You say: "What do you mean, Williams? We can't think of a more caring people."

First, I'm not talking about sensible people who're concerned about clean air and water. I'm talking about the movement leaders and the politicians they have under their thumbs. Let's look at it. The New York Green Party said in its opposition to pesticide spraying to halt the spread of West Nile disease, "These diseases only kill the old and people whose health is already poor." In East Meadow and Hempstead, N.Y., local officials, following the advice of environmental activists, decided not to Nassau County's Health spray. Commissioner said, "We believe the risk of infection for residents remains quite low."

Two county residents became infected with West Nile disease and died. Environment activist Lynn Landes says, "West Nile may be a nasty experience for a very few, fatal for an exceedingly rare number, but as diseases go it's no big deal." According to the most recent Centers for Disease Control statistics, 2,530 Americans have been infected with West Nile disease and 125 died, but to environmentalists that's "no big deal."

American deaths due to environmental activist callousness pale in comparison to other countries. How about a few statistics? In 1972, the activist-controlled Environmental Protection Agency banned DDT, a pesticide once considered a "miracle" for all of the lives it saved by killing the mosquitoes that carried malaria. The ban went into effect despite the evidence that with proper use it posed no health hazard to humans and only little substantial harm to animals. The EPA ban led to diminished DDT production, making the pesticide less available to the world.

What were the effects? In what is now Sri Lanka, there were 2,800,000 malaria cases and 7,300 malaria deaths in 1948; with the use of DDT there were only 17 cases and no deaths in 1964. After DDT use was discontinued, Sri Lankan malaria cases rose to 500,000 in 1969

Worldwide, malaria's devastating effects all but ended during the time that DDT use was widespread, roughly from 1950 to 1970. DDT was seen as such a miracle that it earned Dr. Paul Muller the Nobel Prize in Medicine in 1948. In 1970, a committee of the National Academy of Sciences wrote: "To only a few chemicals does man owe as great a debt as to DDT. In a little more than two decades, DDT has prevented 500 million deaths due to malaria that otherwise would have been inevitable."

According to the World Health Organization, now about 2.5 million people die of malaria each year. Most of the victims are in Africa and are children. According to the American Council on Science and Health's president, Dr. Elizabeth Whelan, some 60 million or more lives have been needlessly lost since the ban on DDT took effect. Whelan says, "It's a real tragedy that DDT has been so demonized over the years by activist organizations such as Environmental Defense and the regulatory bodies that they have duped."

C.S. Lewis made an observation applicable to do-gooders everywhere: "Of all tyrannies, a tyranny exercised for the good of its victims may be the most oppressive. It may be better to live under robber barons than under omnipotent moral busybodies. The robber baron's cruelty may sometimes sleep, his cupidity may at some point be satiated; but those who torment us for our own good will torment us without end, for they do so with the approval of their own conscience."

United Way funding augments local Red Cross programs

This article is one in a series of articles of profiles on the agencies and organizations supported by Pampa United Way. This information is being provided by Pampa United Way as part of its 2002 "The Way America Cares, Community by Community!" fund-raising campaign.

The Gray County American Red Cross is known for performing many activities in the community. Through the generous donations to the United Way and the local Red Cross chapter, the Red Cross has been able to offer disaster services, health and safety services, and service to military families.

In the last fiscal year, many Gray Co. and surrounding area families were given emergency disaster assistance. Trained and dedicated volunteers helped with emergency needs such as temporary shelter, food, new clothes and shoes, prescriptions, basic household furnishings such as beds, linens, and kitchen utensils - and occupational supplies.

The American Red Cross assists those who have no resources of their own to begin their lives again. All Red Cross assistance to disaster clients if free. These services are available 24-hours a day, every single day of the year. It is given because of the generous financial and volunteer support of people like yourselves. The Gray County chapter also responded to several wildfires. It was there to provide food and drinks to the firemen.

The Gray County chapter also serves as the communications link between local citizens and their families in military services stationed around the world. Red Cross volunteers and staff verify deaths, serious illness, financial problems, and births. Emergency messages are then relayed through a worldwide communications network to military personnel. Like Disaster Services, this program is available 24-hours a day, and is given without charge to the family or the service person.

Health education programs are a vital part of the American Red Cross mission. A total of 935 people enrolled in First Aid and CPR classes while 220 enrolled in Aquatics and Water Safety programs, ranging from beginner level swimming to life guarding. Certified volunteer instructors taught these life-saving skills for the community at large as well as in workplaces throughout the country.

Another available Red Cross service is a free medical loan closet. There are wheelchairs, potty chairs, crutches, canes, and hospital beds to name a few of the items. Red Cross also accepts donated items to add to its loan closet.

THE PAMPA NEWS - THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10, 2002 - 5

The Gray County American Red Cross relies solely on the United Way and public donations, so please remember to give to the United Way this campaign season to help continue the much-needed services in our own community.

HAVANA (AP) — A producer for the Arab satellite station al-Jazeera said a cameraman allegedly detained at the U.S. naval base in Cuba "did not commit a single crime."

Producer Yousuf H. Al-Shouly, a former supervisor of cameraman Sami al-Haj, told war correspondents meeting in Havana that the cameraman was detained by Pakistani authorities on Dec. 15 while working on the Pakistan-Afghanistan border.

The cameraman, a Sudanese national, later was turned over to the U.S. military and taken to the American base at the extreme eastern end of this Caribbean island, Al-Shouly said.

"I swear that he did not commit a single crime," Al-Shouly said Wednesday at Cuba's third annual World Encounter of War Correspondents.

The event is sponsored by the Cuba Journalists Union, made up of reporters for the island's state-controlled media, the Cuban Red Cross and the official Jose Marti International Institute of Journalism.

Pampa Mayor Lonnie Robbins recently signed a proclamation in honor of American Business Women's Day, celebrated each year on Sept. 22, the anniversary of the founding of the American Business Women's Association. Present at the signing were local ABWA members Donna Swindle, Evelyn Boyd, and Glenda Malone, along with County Commissioners Faustina Curry, Jeff McCormick, and Jeff Andrews. In 1983 and 1986, joint congressional resolutions were passed designating Sept. 22 as ABWA Day in recognition of the achievements of millions of employed women in the U.S. Following each resolution then-President Ronald Reagan issued a presidential proclamation.

Iraq issues challenge

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) -Iraq repeated denials that it is rearming and said Thursday that even without sophisticated weapons, it will teach the United States an unforgettable lesson if it is attacked.

Minister of Military Industrialization Abdel Tawab Mullah Huweish spoke at a news conference Thursday, after U.S. officials claimed that Iraq is rebuilding at weapons research and development sites.

"I am in charge of the weapons programs and I am saying here and now that we do not have weapons of mass destruction and we do not have programs to develop them," Huweish said.

After President Bush's speech Monday in which he accused Iraqi President Saddam Hussein 01 of pursuing a nuclear weapon and plotting to attack the United States with biological and chemical arms, the White House released satellite photos of two alleged weapons sites. An analyst at the Defense Intelligence Agency identified two more Tuesday.

Iraqi officials have repeatedly denied they are working on nuclear weapons. U.S. intelligence does not believe Saddam has developed any, but thinks he may by 2010. All four sites — the Al Furat centrifuge development center, the Nassr-Taji Steel Fabrication and Military Production Facility, the Al Qa'im uranium ore refinery and the Tuwaitha Nuclear Research Center - were bombed, during either the Gulf War or the four days of U.S. and British airstrikes in 1998 that began after U.N. inspectors accused Iraq of failure to cooper- . . ate and left the country.

the government's International Press Center include reporters from 10 foreign countries and about 100 Cuban journalists. The U.S.-based Committee to Protect Journalists last month sent a letter to the American government seeking information on reports al-Haj held at being was Guantanamo's Camp Delta along with al-Qaida suspects.

"Although CPJ is continuing to investigate the circumstances of al-Haj's detention, the organization is concerned that he may be wrongly detained," said the Sept. 27 letter addressed to Defense Donald Secretary H. Rumsfeld.

Al-Jazeera, based in Qatar, said it was notified by the Sudanese Foreign Ministry that al-Haj reported his passport missing in 2000, "thus making it reasonably possible that it (the passport) was subject to misuse by other people."

About 600 detainees from 43 nations are being held in Guantanamo for suspected links with al-Qaida, the terror network Washington blames for the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks in the United States. American authorities have yet to press formal charges against the detainees.

Bomb attack in Philippines kills at least six

MANILA, Philippines (AP) A bomb exploded in a crowded bus station in the southern Philippines on Thursday, killing at least six people and wounding at least 10 others in what a military official called a terrorist attack.

Superintendent Casimiro Medes, police chief in Kidapawan city, said the "incendiary bomb" had been left under a concrete bench at the bus station. The victims included a 12-yearold boy. Two parked buses were damaged. Officials initially thought it was a grenade attack.

No one immediately claimed responsibility for the 3:15 p.m. blast in North Cotabato province, which came a week after a bombing in the southern city of Zamboanga killed four people, including an American Green Beret commando, and injured two dozen others.

"We have deployed soldiers backed by armored personnel carrier and a team from EOD (Explosives Ordnance Division) to search for more bombs," Philippine army spokesman Maj. Julieto Ando said. He said he did--n't know the motive for the attack, "but this is terrorism."

He said it was too early to pinpoint any group, adding that Muslim separatists, communist guerrillas and bandits have a presence in North Cotabato.

"If this is the handiwork of rebels, how could they say that they're champion of the masses?" Ando asked. "They're killing innocent people who could not defend themselves.'

North Cotabato, about 570 miles south of Manila, is an agricultural province where the Moro Islamic Liberation Front, a Muslim group waging a separatist uprising, and other armed groups operate.

Extortion groups have carried out attacks on bus companies operating in the area.

A bomb attack about a month ago injured nine people in the same terminal, and police suspect that and Thursday's attack were carried out by groups trying to extort money from the Weena Bus Co.

Officials blamed the Zamboanga attack on the Muslim extremist group Abu Sayyaf, which warned a week earlier it would mount attacks on civilian, military and U.S. targets to retaliate for the ongoing government offensive against Muslim rebels in the southern Philippines.

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) - The second driver killed in a year at Lowe's Motor Speedway has led to questions over whether or not the minor league ARCA series should be competing on the 1 1/2-mile track.

Eric Martin crashed into a wall Wednesday, then was broad-sided by another car, killing him instantly.

Last October, 25-yearold Blaise Alexander was killed instantly when he wrecked with Kerry Earnhardt during an ARCA

The Whitefaces had their most explosive game of the season last week, demolishing Dumas 35-18. Hereford back Jorge Gonzales (170-pound senior) led the attack with three touchdowns and 166 yards rushing.

C.J. Berryman (170-pound senior) ,the Hereford quarterback, had a good night of passing. He passed for 184 yards, including a 76-yard bomb to Russell Carr.

Linebacker Jay Alejandre (170pound junior) leds the Hereford defense. He had one solo tackle and one assisted tackle.

"I was thinking back during the pre-season that Hereford may have more returning all-district players and more returning starters than any team in district."

> The Whitefaces do return three alldistrict players in offensive guard Tim Schlabs (240-pound senior), tight end Kyle Daniel (190-pound senior) and linebacker Derek Mendoza (215-pound senior).

> One of those all-district players was receiver Tyler Yenzer, who is playing his senior season at Midland High with dad, head coach Craig Yenzer.

"Hereford has played extremely well the last two weeks against Palo Duro 'It's going to be another difficult and Dumas. Even in the games they've lost, I saw a good team. They've made they're a little heathlier than they have been," said coach Cavalier.

Speaking of adjustments, the Whitefaces have made only a few on the field under new head coach Bryan Gerlich.

"Their offense is very similar to what they've been doing for several years. They run a combination of a Pro-I and 2-I blended with a shotgun offense," Cavalier noted. " Their defense has changed from a 50 to a 40 or even front."

Junior flanker Jesse Tarango on offense and senior safety Tristan Brown on defense were the Pampa standouts against Plainview.

Tarango scored twice on a 5-yard run and a 9-yard pass from quarterback John Braddock. He caught a 12 passes for 161 yards and rushed six times for 23 yards.

Brown's defense was highlighted when he saved a touchdown by stripping the ball at the goalline at the end of a 68-yard run by Plainview running back Tabor Minner. He finished with six solo tackles and four assist-

PLAINVIEW — Pampa played well, but came up on the short end of the score as Plainview won 9-15, 15-6, 15-13 in District 2-4A volleyball action Tuesday night.

"This was probably one of our best matches of the year even though we lost," said Pampa head coach Mike Lopez. "We were able to come back and put some good plays together."

Coach Lopez praised Angie Williams and Shelby Patton for their efforts. "Angie played an excellent offensive game and Shelby probably played the best defense of her career."

Williams scored 8 service points and 8 kills, while Patton had 9 kills, and 6 blocks. Jennie Rogers had 8 service points. and Jaclyn Spearman had 5 blocks.

"If we didn't think the combination of the ARCA cars and the track worked, we would not allow the series to run here," said track spokemsan Jerry Gappens. "But we feel very good about the series and understand this wreck was a violent one that was very, very rare."

Martin radioed his team, "I'm all right," after he spun and rammed the wall backward coming out of the fourth turn during practice. But the other car, driven by Deborah Renshaw, came around the turn going at least 160 mph and plowed into Martin's car on the driver's side.

The 33-year-old Martin died of massive internal injuries.

Renshaw, 25, was taken to University Hospital in Charlotte, where she was in fair condition and being examined for possible ankle injuries.

She has had a tumultuous racing year, beginning in July when fellow drivers plotted to ruin her Late Model Series title chances at Nashville's Fairgrounds Speedway. They pooled their money, had a driver intentionally finish behind her during a race and paid for him to protest her finish.

She was disqualified when her car failed inspection. But the protest led to considerable attention and caught the eye of Rick Goodwin, who planned to put Renshaw in a Busch series car next season.

Martin wrecked during practice for the EasyCare 150, the final race of the season for the Automobile Racing Club of America, a 50-year-old training series for drivers hoping to move up to NASCAR.

Qualifying was canceled and the field for Thursday night's race was set by season points.

Giants win opener of NL championship series

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Barry Bonds deliv- Giants tattooed Matt Morris, and it was a Bonds and Cardinals reserve Eduardo Perez ered yet another big hit, then almost got into a real slugfest with the St. Louis Cardinals.

In a postseason that is rapidly becoming all his own, Bonds was in the middle of the action Wednesday night. He lined a two-run triple and later became part of a benchclearing brouhaha as the San Francisco Giants beat St. Louis 9-6 in the opener of the NL championship series.

Though no punches were thrown, there was plenty of pushing and shoving in the fifth inning after Kenny Lofton, who had admired a home run he'd hit in his previous at-bat, took exception to a high-and-tight fastball. Bonds jawed with the Cardinals as tempers flared.

'My job is to protect my teammates, and I will neutralize it, that's that," Bonds said.

Bonds went 1-for-2 with three walks and scored twice. He'd already put his previous playoff failures in the past, hitting three home runs against Atlanta in the opening round.

"The thing this win does, it guarantees us four more games, that's it," the four-time MVP said.

Benito Santiago, batting behind Bonds, homered and drove in four runs, and David Bell and Lofton also connected.

It was 6-1 after three innings as the good omen for them — the team that has won the last nine NLCS openers has reached the World Series.

Game 2 is Thursday night with Woody Williams, who hasn't pitched since Sept. 20 because of a pulled muscle in his left side, starting for St. Louis against Jason Schmidt. There were two versions of what started the trouble at Busch Stadium.

Cardinals manager Tony La Russa said it began because Lofton overreacted to reliever Mike Crudale's pitch - which nonetheless prompted plate umpire Randy Marsh to issue warnings against future brushbacks.

"That was very unnecessary. It's a trick I've seen him pull before," La Russa said. "It caused a lot of stirring around and people saying nasty things to each other."

Lofton, naturally, disagreed. He said Crudale was to blame.

"This is the playoffs, you have fun, you enjoy it. I don't think I did anything wrong," Lofton said. "We were kicking their butts, and they wanted to do something to upset me."

Lofton had to be restrained by several teammates, a coach and an umpire.

"I don't think I overreacted," Lofton said.

As players sprinted toward the plate, had to be separated, with Cardinals reliever Steve Kline pacifying the Giants slugger.

La Russa and Giants manager Dusty Baker, who a day earlier gushed about how much they liked each other, started screaming in an animated exchange that forced a pair of umpires to pull them apart.

About the only one to keep cool was Kirk Rueter. Born and raised right across the Mississippi River, he kept winning at the ballpark where he rooted for the Cardinals as a kid.

The big lead enabled the Giants to hold off a rally fueled by home runs from Albert Pujols, surprising Miguel Cairo and pinchhitter J.D. Drew. Robb Nen pitched the ninth for a save.

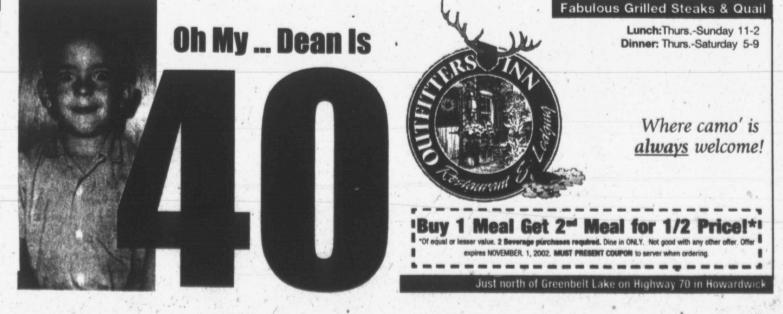

Down 1-0, Morris retired the first two batters in the second. But the Giants followed with six straight hits, with Lofton singling, stealing second and scoring on Rich Aurilia's single. Kent followed with a single, and that brought up Bonds.

Bonds timed a hanging curve and lined a one-hop drive off the right-center field wall for a two-run triple, and an RBI single by Santiago made it 5-0.

"Batting behind that man, I'm going to have a lot of chances to do damage," Santiago said.

Stars open with overtime win

By JOHN MOSSMAN AP Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — The Dallas Stars acquired three "impact free agents in the off--season, making them perhaps the NHL's most improved * leam.

It was a holdover, however, who made the biggest contribution Wednesday night.

Marty Turco, elevated to the team's No. 1 goaltender spot after the Stars let Ed Belfour leave for free agency, made 40 saves as the Stars and Colorado Avalanche skated to a 1-1 tie in their NHL regularseason opener.

"I thought our goaltender was very good," Dallas coach Dave Tippett said. "He bailed us out.'

Added forward Bill Guerin, one of the big free-agent acquisitions: "Marty played great, he played outstanding. He made big saves at big times, and we're going to need that throughout the year."

Colorado's Radim Vrbata scored the tying goal in the third period. Each team had a power-play opportunity in overtime but failed to convert.

The NHL's crackdown on interference seemed to produce more skating and more open ice:

"I thought the referees called the obstruction rule the right way," Hartley said. "I think we saw an entertaining game. We saw power plays on both sides, and both teams came up with unbelievable penalty-killing and great saves during those power plays."

Dallas' Niko Kapanen scored at 4:20 of the first period - the first goal of the NHL season and the first of his career.

Colorado goalie Patrick Roy had 24 saves.

Dallas center Jason Arnott had to be helped from the ice after injuring his right leg when he was dragged down by Vaclav Nedorost near the goal in the first period. He did not return and was to be re-evaluated Thursday.

Besides Turco's 40 saves, Dallas fought off seven straight Colorado power plays.

"We had a great start, then shot ourselves in the foot a few times and gave them momentum," Tippett said. "We spent a lot of time in the penalty box.

"We'll take the point, but we have a lot of work to do." Avalanche coach Bob Hartley said his team "would have loved a win. But if we work every night like we did tonight, we won't lose too many games."

Dallas dominated early, building a 12-0 edge in shots before Colorado got its first shot on goal 12 minutes in.

"I don't know why we came out so flat the first 10 minutes," Avs forward Peter Forsberg said. "It was a bad staft and something we have to work on."

Fans celebrated an apparent Colorado goal at 17:32 when Mike Keane looked to have poked the puck past a sprawled Turco, but it was disallowed because the whistle had blown.

Colorado got a power play out of that threat, but Turco withstood a flurry of scoring chances. The Avs outshot Dallas 16-15 in the period.

Vrbata tied it at 7:18, flipping the puck over a prone Turco just seconds after Forsberg and Joe Sakic had shots at the net.

"It was a great effort by Joe and Peter," Vrbata said. "We were cycling the puck well. I was just lucky to find myself in front of the open net."

Notes: Colorado extended the NHL's longest current sellout streak to 348 games, including the postseason. ... Tippett was an assistant coach with the Los Angeles . Kings the last three years.

Boren wants OU-Texas game rotated

(AP) Oklahoma University President David Boren has suggested the annual Texas-Oklahoma football be rotated between Austin and Norman, Okla., and its traditional home in Dallas every three years.

"While playing the OU-Texas game in the Cotton Bowl is a great tradition and should not be changed without a great amount of thought, it does seem to me that Dallas seems to take the game for granted and has not really provided any incentives to keep it there," Boren wrote in a recent letter to University of Texas at Austin and we'd prefer to keep it in Dallas," Faulkner said.

UT associate athletic director for business Ed Goble said the athletics department was more receptive to moving the game to another part of the Dallas-Fort Worth area instead of relocating.

"From a purely economic point of view, at this point in time, we could sell a lot more tickets than we have inventory in the Cotton Bowl," Goble said of the 72,000-seat facility. "To have the game in a viable venue would obviously be something I'd be interested in."

Boren's comments come after officials with the Texas Motor Speedway earlier this week offered to host the matchup.

TMS manager Eddie Gossage said officials were looking at ways to convert the race track to a football stadium seating as many as 150,000 people.

"I know that we can't compete with the tradition and all the history that the Cotton Bowl and state fair has with this game, but I know we can bring some other forms of revenue to the table that can be divided between the schools," Gossage said.

President Larry Faulkner, the Austin American Statesman reported in its Thursday editions.

Boren called the rotation an experiment for the Red River Shootout, which has been held at the Cotton Bowl during the Texas State Fair since 1929. • The teams meet again this .weekend, drawing thousands of tourists who spend much an estimated $21 million over three days starting Friday.

Faulkner said after consulting with school officials he decided the game should stay in Dallas.

STILLWATER, Okla. -Pampa's cross country runners competed in the Oklahoma State High School meet last weekend.

"We only took four runners, but we ran better times which is encouraging," said Pampa coach Mark Elms. "We're just not finishing in the places we would like to be.'

In the girls' varsity division, Kori Dunn was 60th (14:28) and Jerica Timmons was 70th (14:59)

Steven Smith and Chase Phillips competed in the boys' varsity division for Pampa. Smith was 158th (22.01) and Phillips was 170th (23.02).

There were 260 runners competing in the OSU meet.

"It was a big meet and it was encouraging that we ran faster times," added coach Elms.

beat the perky, pesky Twins 6-3 Wednesday night to head home with a split in the first two games of the AL championship series.

A night after Joe Mays stymied Anaheim's high-octane offense in the Twins' 2-1 opening victory, the Angels got to Reed from the start. Erstad, the No. 2 batter, sent Reed's sixth pitch over the fence in right-center, where it landed 409 feet away - nestled in a stacked-up seat used for football games.

Anaheim tacked on three more runs in the second, two of them unearned because of a costly error by catcher A.J. Pierzynski - who couldn't hold on to a throw home after Reed caught a runner off first.

When Fullmer chased Reed with a two-run homer in the sixth, it seemed over. But Minnesota battled right back, knocking Ramon Ortiz out in the sixth when Corey Koskie hit an RBI single and Doug Mientkiewicz, who had three hits, had a two-run single.

Brendan Donnelly replaced Ortiz and got out of the inning, and 20-year-old rookie Francisco Rodriguez struck out two in a 1-2-3 seventh.

After a two-out walk to Torii Hunter and a single by Mientkiewicz put runners at the corners in the eighth, Angels manager Mike Scioscia brought in Troy Percival, whom he had been reluctant to use in the eighth until after the New York Yankees rallied to win the division series opener

Percival, who hasn't allowed an unearned run to Minnesota in 35 innings during the regular season, got ahead 1-2 in the count on pinch-hitter Bobby Kielty. With the crowd on its feet, shouting and waving Hankies, Kielty took a called third strike over the inside corner. Percival finished up with a perfect ninth for the Angels in September 1999.

With Tuesday's win, Minnesota improved its postseason record at the Metrodome - where grounders to shortstop can turn into doubles to 13-2. Reed has two of the Twins' three postseason losses in the dome

Anaheim found the solution: Get a big early lead to quiet those Homer Hanky-waving fans.

A Metrodome baseball record 55,990 filled the ballpark, and they didn't like what they saw early. Erstad, 5-for-12 against Reed in his career, put the Angels ahead in the first with his first postseason homer.

After failing to get a leadoff hitter on in the first 10 innings of the series, Anaheim's first three batters got hits in the second, with Scott Spiezio's bloop double near the right-field line bouncing over an onrushing Michael Cuddyer to make it 2-0.

After Reed threw out a runner at the plate on a comebacker, Pierzynski's error cost the Twins, the top-fielding team in the major leagues during the regular season, two more runs.

Reed caught Adam Kennedy leaning and threw to first for the pickoff. Kennedy broke for second, Spiezio then headed home from third, and Mientkiewicz threw to the plate.

But Pierzynski couldn't handle the throw, which was to the first base side, as Spiezio made contact with him and scored. David Eckstein's RBI single made it 4-0.

Minnesota, which had just 74 errors in 161 games during the season, had six in seven postseason games.

BY JESSE I. HOLLAND MATTED PRESS WRITE

WASHINGTON (AP) -With the legislative year quick-ly waning, Republicans are pulling out all the stops to try to force Democrats to confirm some more of President Bush's judicial nominees before Congress adjourns for the year. Senate Republicans, including 99-year-old Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, denounced Senate Democrats Wednesday; President Bush called an emergency GOP meeting at the White House and criticized the Democratcontrolled Senate Judiciary Committee; and even House Republicans, who have no say in judicial confirmations, jumped into the argument with a hearing all of their own.

Bush has nominated 126 U.S. Appeals Court and U.S. District Court nominees, and the Senate has confirmed 80 of them: 14 judges to appeals courts and 66 to district courts. But Republicans fear the Democrats won't allow any more votes this year, stranding 20 judicial candidates until the next Congress. If true, GOP senators say that means Judiciary Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., broke promises to get appellate court votes on controversial nominees like Bush favorite Miguel Estrada, Utah professor Michael McConnell and Thurmond's former aide, Dennis Shedd.

"I am hurt and disappointed at this egregious act of destructive politics," an angry Thurmond said in a rare Senate speech. Thurmond and other Republicans later took their complaints to the president at the White House, who was described by Sen. Arlen Speciet, R-Pa, as being "mad-

Democrats defended Leal with Sen. Harry Reid, D-New pointing out that the Sena already confirmed Thurmond's son, Strom Thurmond Jr., as U.S. attorney in South Carolina, and made another Thurmond aide, Terry Wooten, a U.S. District judge last year. "I understand Senator Thurmond's disappointment, but he has to understand that Senator Leahy is doing an outstanding job," Reid said.

The president criticized the delay on Estrada at a White House celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month. Estrada is Bush's choice for the U.S. Appeals Court in the District of Columbia and a rumored choice for a Supreme Court seat if a vacancy should open.

"There are senators who would rather not give him the benefit of the doubt, senators looking for a reason to defeat him as opposed to looking for a reason to herald his intelligence, his canabilities, his talent." Bush said. "I strongly object to the way this man is going to be treated."

A Leahy spokesman said committee votes on Estrada, McConnell and Shedd may still happen this year, but that depends on the Senate schedule. "We'll see how long the session lasts, or whether there is a lame duck session," said Leahy spokesman David Carle.

Republicans say the possibility that Shedd's nomination may not go through is an insult to the South Carolina senator. Thurmond, the oldest person ever to serve in Congress, ends a nearly half-century career in the Senate in January.

White House sides with automakers in California's zero emissions policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Act permitting the state to Automakers opposed to regulate auto emissions. California's requirement that a percentage of passenger vehicles sold in the state achieve zero emissions have won the support of the Bush administration.

The Justice filing main-

Federal law overrides any state effort to regulate fuel economy for cars and trucks, the Justice Department said.

In a 37-page filing with a federal appeals court in San department Francisco, lawyers argued that California's zero emission mandate impinges on what is solely a federal responsibility.

"The Energy Policy and Conservation Act provides that when a federal fuel economy standard is in effect, a state or a political subdivision of a state may not adopt or enforce a law or regulation related to fuel economy standards," the department argued.

In its court papers, the state of California says there is an exception to the federal Clean tained that Congress has never authorized California or any other state to enact regulations related to fuel economy standards.

California's zero emission mandate, covering an increasing percentage of new cars and trucks, was to have taken effect next year, but General Motors Corp., DaimlerChrysler Corp. and several California auto dealers won a preliminary injunction that delays implementation for two years.

The standard says that for model years 2003 through 2008, at least 10 percent of the passenger cars-and lightduty trucks in California must emit no pollution. The state argues that the auto companies have various technologies to meet the new standards, but the federal court which granted the injunction found that these are impractical.

El Nino may deliver some drought relief

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) ---New federal research suggests the worst of the drought may be over for Colorado and the Southwest, with El Nino potentially bringing more snow this winter.

But scientists with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration cautioned Wednesday that it will take a while to recover from the drought, one of the most severe on record.

Scientists also are unsure of the long-term impact of rising ocean temperatures that may have worsened the drought stretching from the United States to central Asia this year. They said the higher temperatures may be linked to higher volumes of carbon ' dioxide and other man-made, heat-trapping gases associated with global warming.

"This has certainly been a huge drought for the Western United States, with substantial implications across the board," said Randall Dole, director of the Climate Diagnostics Center at the NOAA lab.

The drought is severe to extreme in 80 percent of the West, the worst since the Dust Bowl of the mid-1930s, Dole said. Nearly 50 percent of the country is in a drought.

Relief could be on the way, particularly for the Southwest, including New Mexico and Arizona, because of the return of El Nino, meteorologist Klaus Wolter said. The Northwest, including Montana, historically is "a bit on the dry side," during El Ninos.

The weather phenomenon, which started in April, is a warming of the large area of water in the tropical Pacific. The change influences wind and weather patterns passing over the 'area and can have impacts worldwide.
