Arrests may solve sniper mystery

FREDERICK, Md. (AP) — Two men, one of them described as an Army veteran who recently converted to Islam, were arrested at a roadside rest stop Thursday for questioning in the three-week wave of deadly sniper attacks that have terrorized the Washington, D.C. area.

The arrests — linked to a telephoned boast about a deadly Alabama robbery — raised hopes of a conclusion to the intensive and often frustrating investigation of the shootings that have killed 10 people and critically wounded three others since Oct. 2.

The men taken into custody were not immediately charged in the sniper attacks, but authorities made it clear the arrests were considered pivotal. A newspaper report said the men were motivated by anti-American bias; police in Washington state, where the men recently lived, said they were not part of any organized group.

President Bush was told that federal authorities were reasonably sure the case had been solved, a senior administration official told The Associated Press on condition of anonymity.

"There's a strong feeling these people are related to the sniper shootings," said Douglas Gansler, state's attorney in Maryland's Montgomery County, where the sniper task force is based. Asked if he believed the sniper was still at large, he said "no."

The arrests occurred hours after authorities descended on a home in Tacoma, Wash., believed to hold clues important to the investigation. They then issued a nationwide alert for the car, spotted by a motorist and an attendant at the rest stop.

Charles Moose, the Montgomery County police chief who is leading the investigation, had said John Allen Muhammad, 42, was being sought for questioning in the slayings and called him "armed and dangerous." Muhammad was said to be traveling with a juvenile, identified by a law (See SNIPER, Page 3)

Many Pampans on state's list of unclaimed property

By NANCY YOUNG
 MANAGING EDITOR

Need some money? Over $950 million worth of unclaimed property awaits many Texans, including several Pampa residents.

Almost 100 Pampans are newly listed as having unclaimed property with the state of Texas. Over the past year, the Texas Comptroller's office has returned more than $54 million of unclaimed property to its owners, said Comptroller Carole Keeton Rylander.

The list is updated weekly, and some people on the list have had unclaimed property listed from transactions made several decades back. Each year new names are added to the published list.

Financial institutions and businesses report unclaimed cash and valuables to the state every day — from unclaimed checks, deposits, or refunds, to the contents of forgotten safe deposit boxes.

Sources of these monies include mineral interests, insurance, pay checks and utility deposits.

This is valuable property that may have slipped through your fingers, and the State Comptroller's office is wanting to return it.

All people who have unclaimed property in Texas are listed on the web site — www.window.state.tx.us/up. People may search to see if their name or anyone in their family by entering their name and/or city 24 hours a day, seven days a week by visiting the online database.

The comptroller's office may also be contacted at 800-654-3463.

The e-mail address is unclaimed.property@cpa.state.tx.us. Anyone with their name on the list may complete a form on the internet. Documentation will be required to receive the funds.

Even if your name is not on the list released this week, it (See LIST, Page 3)

First freeze

Moments before this photograph was taken this morning, the temperature was listed as 32 degrees, evidence that Pampa had received its first freeze of the season. Freezing rain contributed to several minor accidents in the area early today. Pampa Fire Department officials were also kept busy this morning investigating reports of ice-covered electric lines becoming entangled in tree branches also covered with ice, causing a fire hazard.

Horst earns excellence award

For the 14th consecutive year, John Horst, Pampa's director of finance, and the City of Pampa and been awarded a Certificate of Achievement for Excellence in Financial Reporting by the Government Finance Officers Association of the United States and Canada for the city's comprehensive annual financial report.

"John's been here for 14 years," said Interim City Manager John Hatchel, in announcing the award to the Pampa City Commission Tuesday night, "and this is the 14th consecutive year that we've received the award."

The Certificate of Achievement is the highest form of recognition in the area of governmental accounting and financial reporting, according to the GFOA, and its attainment represents a significant accomplishment by a government and its management.

The city's comprehensive annual financial report, said the association, has been judged by an impartial panel to meet the high standards of the program, including demonstrating a constructive spirit of full disclosure to clearly communicate its financial story and motivate potential users and user groups to read the CAFR.

ACT I auditions continue tonight

Gold-diggers, schemers, gossips, and social climbers — these are the women who populate "The Women," a 1936 comedy by Clare Boothe Luce being presented by ACT I as their season opener in January.

Fourteen women and one young man auditioned for roles Friday and Saturday, still not enough to cast 20 actors needed to do the show.

"I still need about five or six actors for a mix of roles," said Kayla Pursley, the show's director. "The turn out was super. Everyone who auditioned gets a part and some are going to be playing two and three characters."

The play revolves around women and the people they meet in course of their daily activities — at the hairdressers, the dressmakers, the gym.

Anyone interested in auditioning for the show will get another opportunity on Thursday, Oct. 24, beginning at 7 p.m. at the theater located on the west side of Pampa.

For information or to review a script call Pursley at 665-8848.

Kirk admits experimental drug use; Cornyn declines to answer

BY APRIL CASTRO
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

DALLAS (AP) — Republican U.S. Senate candidate John Cornyn dodged answering questions of drug use while his Democratic opponent, Ron Kirk, candidly acknowledged smoking marijuana during his college days.

"It tends to distract more than contribute to the discussion of issues," Cornyn said, responding to a panelist's question during a debate between the two candidates Wednesday.

Kirk said that even though he tried pot, he "didn't like it."

After Cornyn's response, Kirk joked: "I wish I'd have let you answer first."

Despite political analysts' predictions of a more lively exchange, Wednesday night's debate remained a polite and reserved exchange.

The two seemed more alike than different on many issues during the debate, but disagreed on Social Security, prescription drug benefits and affirmative action.

On affirmative action, Cornyn said that he ultimately believes it is unfair to use race as a factor in admissions policies.

"Affirmative action was never meant to be a permanent solution. It was meant to be a transition," Cornyn said. "I believe what we need is a national standard, one that is fair to everyone. And I believe that should be a colorblind standard, and one that applies to people across the board based on their academic circumstances."

Kirk disagreed, saying the state had suffered since the so-called Hopwood case effectively ended race-based policies in Texas.

"I agree with the attorney general that we should be color blind," Kirk said. "But all the criteria that universities look at they can't take into account ethnicity?"

"I think it's absurd to say that of all the criteria colleges and universities look at, that they can't even take into account ethnicity."

Asked about prescription drugs, Kirk said he supports passing generic drug legislation before either of the Republican or Democratic plans in Congress to add a prescription drug benefit to Medicare.

"Let's do something that will reduce the cost of prescription drugs for all Americans and then get started on a measured plan to add a real prescription drug benefit program to Medicare for our seniors," Kirk said.

Cornyn, who has embraced the Republican plan, criticized Kirk for not having his own plan for drugs and for stabilizing Social Security.

"Mr. Kirk talks about ending the blame game and finding common ground but it's hard to do that if you don't have a plan," Cornyn said. "Mr. Kirk is really just trying to scare our senior citizens and I think that's not leadership. That's shameful actually."

Asked about an anticipated $1.7 trillion shortfall in Social Security, Cornyn said workers should be allowed to invest their benefits in a private fund such as an Individual Retirement Account.

"We should never, ever cut benefits for current retirees. And younger workers should be given the opportunity to invest a portion of their benefits in something like an IRA to get a better rate of return," Cornyn said. "Unless we have better investment for Social Security, we're going to get a train wreck."

Kirk, who sharply disagrees with letting Americans invest part of Social Security trust fund in the stock market, said lawmakers could help preserve the fund by leaving it alone.

"The way to extend the life of Social Security by 20 years is to stop borrowing from it," Kirk said. "The greatest threat right now is that Congress keeps borrowing. The second thing we need to do is to pay down the debt."

Asked what he would do as president of the PGA about moving tournaments to golf courses that allowed women, Kirk said he had a policy as mayor to not attend places that discriminated against certain groups.

Afterward, Kirk admitted attending a Dallas golf club that had a discriminatory policy. But he said he didn't know about the policy at the time, and never went back. Kirk said as head of the PGA, he would do "everything in my power" to get the Augusta National Golf Club where the Masters is played to allow women.

"If I was head of the PGA, or if I was king," Cornyn responded, "I would not have any clubs or have any tournaments at places where they discriminated on the basis of sex, ethnicity or race. But by the same token, I don't believe we need federal intrusion into such local matters."

United Way almost half-way to goal

Entertainment by Pampa Sheltered Workshop clients highlighted the fifth United Way check-in Tuesday.

United Way volunteers and guests responded with a standing ovation after clients signed "Love Can Build A Bridge." The meal was provided by CASA of the High Plains, the Salvation Army, and Pampa Sheltered Workshop.

This past week brought a large increase in the number of pledges that pushed the 2002 drive to $178,742.24 — 48 percent of the $375,000 goal.

Executive Director Katrina Bigham encouraged those workers who have finished their cards to contact her for entities that still need to be contacted. She said she expects a strong finish as the divisions complete their campaigns.

Final check-in meeting is set for 11:45 a.m., Tuesday, Oct. 29, at the Pampa Community Building, 200 N. Ballard.

Texas Ranger Gary Henderson displays the engraved Colt 45 semi-automatic pistol he has donated to help raise funds for Pampa Downtown Kiwanis Club's community projects.

Texas Ranger's pistol to help raise funds for club's projects

An authentic Texas Ranger Colt 45 semi-automatic pistol (fully engraved and nickel plated) will be raffled to support special projects of the Downtown Kiwanis Club of Pampa.

The local civic organization's projects which will benefit from the fundraiser include the Children's Shopping Tour, college scholarships, Optimists Club, foreign exchange students, Gray County Livestock Show, Scouting events, Celebration of Lights, and building a chapel at the Jordan Unit.

Pampa Downtown Kiwanis Club adopted all of these projects and many others because they fit the overall purpose and mission of Kiwanis International, said Pampa Kiwanis President Harold Eggert. Globally, Kiwanis clubs like the one in Pampa exist "to improve the quality of life for children and families worldwide," he said.

A typical Kiwanis club is a snapshot of its community, with members from all walks of life and at every step of the career ladder, said Eggert. They are unified in their belief that children and their communities benefit from the efforts of a proficient group of caring and involved volunteers, he added.

In a typical year, Kiwanis clubs invest more than 6.2 million hours and US$170 million in communities worldwide.

Kiwanis Club in Pampa periodically conducts fundraisers to improve the quality of life for children and families in the community, Eggert said.

Texas Ranger Gary Henderson who is helping the Kiwanis in this project has carried this pistol in the line of duty.

Along with a letter of authenticity from Ranger Henderson and a display case designed and built by Kiwanis member and longtime Pampan Daniel Edwards — a highly sought-after engraver who has decorated many guns for Texas Rangers — has decorated this Colt 45.

Because of the nature of the fundraiser, Edwards came out of retirement to help. Edwards said that this pistol might be his last engraving project.

For a $1 ticket, Eggert said, one is first investing in Pampa, and secondly, in a chance to have an authentic Texas Ranger Colt 45 semi-automatic pistol which one day may be a museum piece.

The winner, who must pass a firearms registration background check, will be announced by Dec. 27 on KGRO and in The Pampa News.

SNIPER

enforcement as John Lee Malvo, 17.

The key break, authorities said, was a phone call to the sniper task force tip line suggesting investigators check out a liquor store robbery in "Montgomery." The caller claimed credit for both the robbery and the sniper shootings, officials said.

Investigators checking the tip matched it with the Sept. 21 liquor store robbery in Montgomery, Ala., in which two employees were shot, one fatally. Montgomery Mayor Bobby Bright said Malvo's fingerprint was found at the scene on a magazine about weapons.

Police then traced Malvo to a home in Tacoma, Wash., that was searched Wednesday by authorities looking into the sniper shootings. Malvo had been living in the home with Muhammad, a source told the AP.

Driving home last Friday I decided to stop by Borger and see my grandchildren. I knew they wouldn't be spending the weekend with me because Paige and Peyton weren't feeling well, so I thought I'd just stop by to see them.

NANCY YOUNG
MANAGING EDITOR

As I drove up I saw Christian playing in the yard with several neighborhood children. He ran to the car to meet me, and said, "NaNa, I want you to meet my new friend." Quickly scanning the situation, I knew he was experiencing his first "love." With admiring eyes toward the little girl, he introduced me to her. His six-year-old eyes wouldn't leave her.

After talking with them a few minutes, I went into the house to see his sisters. Paige wasn't happy she couldn't play outside as she was just getting over an ear infection and Peyton was lying on the couch.

I visited with my daughter for a few minutes, and Christian came into the house. I asked him where his friends had gone. He said Jane had to go home, but he didn't seem to know where the other children had gone. And I don't really think he cared that much. Love was blossoming.

Yesterday evening I stopped by their home on my way home. Christian was busily doing his homework — writing his "I" words and drawing pictures. I asked him how Jane was, and he said "Who?" I repeated her name, and he just shrugged his shoulders and continued his homework. That love didn't last long.

Peyton asked if she could go home and spend the night. As I had been needing some help in getting the Halloween decorations out of the attic, I agreed and her mother approved. Paige wanted to go, too, and wasn't at all pleased when her mother told her she couldn't. Explaining that Peyton was older and was going to help me as I retrieved some boxes from the attic. Those little four-year-old eyes certainly give looks just like her mother when she doesn't get her way.

Arriving at my home, we quickly got the items from the attic. Then Peyton looked around and said, "Nana, your living room is messed up." I explained to her I had been going through countless boxes of papers belonging to my parents and grandparents, and was deciding what to keep and what to throw away.

After surveying the situation, she asked if her mother would have to do that with my things someday. I told Peyton she probably would, but I didn't keep nearly as much as my parents.

When I got supper on to cook, I began showing her some of the items I had found. One of the biggest treasures were the handwritten recipes of my grandmother in an old cigar box. I explained that many of those recipes were what I used as does her mother. She thought it really neat to see recipes written on the back of bills, a scrap of paper and, in some instances, a recipe card.

I showed her the countless newspapers from the '40s, '50s, '60s, and '70s that I still had to sort through. Occasionally, she would ask what something was and I would explain. She noticed one stack of papers and inquired about them. I explained they were chattel mortgages, deeds of trust, warranty deeds, etc. on property no longer owned. "Why did G-G keep them?" she asked. Searching for an answer I told her "Your G-G just kept EVERYTHING."

We found all their electric bills from the '50s as well as a 1949 letter from the manager of the Borger Southwestern Public Service office in response to my mother's complaint of a large bill. How many managers would do that today?

As we sorted through papers, Peyton asked me many questions about the previous generations. Realizing this was the way the younger generation learns of their ancestry, I imparted several anecdotes about her great-grandmother and great-great-grandparents, and she was enthralled.

She asked if I would still be alive when she got grown. I wanted to say you don't know about life from minute-to-minute, but decided she didn't need that at the particular moment. So I just told her I would always be in her heart, and I certainly hoped to be here when she is grown.

"You will be," she said. "You beat the cancer."

Oh, the faith of a child is magnificent.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PHS has double standard

Every school has some kind of dress code that students have to abide by.

Like you can't wear baggy pants, shirts with profanity, nudity or contraband on it, tube tops, short skirts or shorts, halter tops and yes, I have found out, you have to wear shoes. All students have to follow these rules are you have to change.

But a few select students are given leeway on the dress code. Cheerleaders are allowed to wear their uniforms on game day. That's not my point. The point is that these uniforms break the dress code. The top is a halter top that reveals a lot and the skirt is short enough to see their underwear.

My question is — why do the cheerleaders get to wear these revealing garments when others get in trouble for it? For whatever reason, the school should treat the students equally.

U.S. gets a kick-in-the-pants

Please let me try to reason once more with a media that just hasn't in the past gotten the message.

I wish to warn America of the "kick-in-the-pants" that's coming if we fail not only to deal with Saddam's Iraq, but with the rest of the Arab world.

First it was our failure to control immigration. The media in the past was quick to destroy anyone that disagreed with them on how important this issue was. (Pat Buchanan comes to mind.) I spent about 20 years trying to make it an issue. I wanted to run for office on this issue. I even sued our federal government over this issue.

Then came the first attack upon the World Trade Center. Now, I thought, we will put our house in order. But, no, 9-11 was to be the kick-in-the-pants America deserved for such a failure to understand - and act.

Not long after 9-11, I wrote my representative to urge we "nuke" the whole known Arab world. I view it as an act of self-preservation. I hate to confess I can think of no other solution. Failure to do so will surely invite another kick-in-the-pants. I think we may very well get what we deserve if we fail again.

This time I doubt I will live long enough to say, "Too bad! Too bad! Oh, too bad! Why didn't you listen?"

Mallard Fillmore by Bruce Tinsley

Wanting blacks to think alike

When asked to comment about Secretary of State Colin Powell's position on the possible use of military force against Iraq, singer/activist Harry Belafonte said: "There were those slaves who lived on the plantation, and there were those slaves that lived in the house. You got the privilege of living in the house if you served the master exactly the way the master intended to have you serve him. Colin Powell's committed to come into the house of the master."

WALTER WILLIAMS
COLUMNIST

Powell's master, according to Belafonte, is President Bush. In a statement later issued through his publicist, Belafonte said, "This was not a personal attack on Colin Powell; however, speaking on behalf of so many African-American citizens, I have found Colin Powell to be a tragic failure."

I can't help but wonder what prompted such a vicious attack on a man who served as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff during the Reagan administration and now serves as secretary of state in the Bush administration. These are the two most important government positions ever held by blacks, and it was conservative Republican presidents who made these appointments. Plus, Condeleeza Rice, a black woman - but more importantly a person of impeccable credentials - is President Bush's national security adviser, his go-to person in matters of foreign affairs.

Previous presidents bought and paid for the black vote by appointing blacks to high positions like secretaries of: housing and urban development, labor, health and human services, and education. Winning less than 8 percent of the black vote, not to mention political attack ads funded by civil rights groups portraying him as a racist, Bush didn't have to buy or pay off the black vote, yet he appointed blacks to the most important federal positions ever - a secretary of state is the first political appointee in the order of presidential succession.

Bush's appointments demonstrate a respect conservatives have for blacks that's often absent among liberals. Powell and Rice have their jobs in the administration not as tokens, but because Bush sees them as among the best Americans for the jobs. Regardless of whether black people agree or disagree with President Bush's policies (a New York Times/CBS News poll reports a 68 percent job approval rating by blacks), we should take pride in his appointments of Powell and Rice.

Belafonte-type liberals always accuse others of what they've made an art of doing. Take their "serving the master" accusation. There's little question that the education delivered to blacks by the public education establishment is a disgraceful fraud. Many black students graduate with diplomas that attest they've achieved 12th-grade proficiency, when in fact they might not have achieved the eighth- or ninth-grade levels.

According to the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies, a black think tank, more than 60 percent of black parents support school vouchers so that their children can attend better and safer schools. Civil rights organizations and 69 percent of black elected officials oppose vouchers. In the "service to their masters," namely the National Education Association, civil rights groups and black politicians fight tooth and nail against vouchers. Their payment for helping to protect the monopolistic stranglehold on education is political and charitable contributions.

Belafonte's criticism has all the marks of a racist claim that blacks should think alike. There's uniqueness to that vision in today's America. Bush has Jews and Irish in his administration, yet we haven't heard Jewish and Irish people labeling them as sellouts and servers of the master. For liberals like Belafonte, black people think alike and any deviation makes one a sellout.

That's stupid, despicable and something black people ought to condemn.

Unclaimed property auction planned

AUSTIN — Texas Comptroller Carole Keeton Rylander will publish the names of more than 142,000 unclaimed property owners in newspapers throughout the state Sunday, Oct. 20. Rylander is holding at least $100 million in unclaimed money for each person on the list — more than $71.2 million in forgotten wealth.

Rylander urges all Texans to check the Unclaimed Property List every year. "It's a completely new list each year," she said.

"Unclaimed property can be anything from a forgotten rent or utility deposit, to an uncashed check, a long-dormant bank account or an abandoned safe deposit box," Rylander said. "Banks and businesses turn this money over to the state after three to five years, if the owners cannot be found, but the money continues to belong to its rightful owners. The annual Unclaimed Property List published in Texas newspapers is one method the state uses to locate unclaimed property owners."

The most convenient way to search for forgotten funds is to visit the Unclaimed

Property Web site www.window.state.tx.us/up. The site allows users to search a more extensive unclaimed property database than the newspaper list and to begin the claim process online.

In addition to the $71.2 million included on this year's Unclaimed Property List,

Boy Scout popcorn sale under way

Golden Spread Boy Scouts Council is currently holding its annual popcorn sale through Nov. 11. This marks the 19th year the Scouts have held the sale.

"Escalating program costs, the need for camp equipment and maintenance, as well as continued growth in youth participation, have prompted the Council to sell a great product like Trail's End Popcorn," said Barry Oxley, Scout executive for the council.

Council Executive Board President Tom Riney emphasized the primary income for assets remaining unclaimed from previous years bring the total amount of unclaimed property held by the state to more than $950 million.

Since Rylander took office in 1999, more than $211 million in unclaimed property has been returned to its owners.

Scouting activities will continue to come from community support through area United Ways and from the Council's annual Friends of Scouting campaign.

"Local scouts," Riney said, "contribute a great deal to our area and by helping to support them, you are actually helping every community in the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandle. And what better way to help them than through the purchase of popcorn."

DEAR ABBY

written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanna Phillips

Witness Deplores Bigotry Disguised as Patriotism

DEAR ABBY: I recently witnessed something outside the local Kmart that left me livid. A man was speaking to a young lady in a foreign language, when all of a sudden, another man who appeared to be in his 60s began to chastise them for not speaking English. His exact words were: "What the hell is the matter with you? This is America. People speak English here!" He stormed off when I stepped in and pointed out that his ancestors weren't born here, and they probably didn't speak English, either.

When I ride the train to work, I see people with Middle Eastern backgrounds get dirty looks from other passengers. Where exactly is this "newfound patriotism" I keep hearing about? All I see are people using terrorism as an excuse to act like bigots.

Patriotism isn't slapping an American flag on your car. It's remembering the principles this country was built on. That is how you honor the people who died protecting our freedom, not by infringing on the rights of people who aren't exactly the same as you.

A DISILLUSIONED AMERICAN

DEAR DISILLUSIONED: What happened in front of Kmart was a textbook example of xenophobia, which Webster's defines as "fear and hatred of strangers or foreigners or of anything that is strange or foreign." Unless the person who did the "chastising" was a part of the conversation, he was rude.

aggressive, and a mile out of line. With the recent war on terrorism and fear of terrorist activity from the Middle East, there have been incidents of hostility aimed at people from Middle Eastern backgrounds and those who resemble them. With that in mind, it's important to remember that no one can tell by looking what is going on in other people's hearts. It is quite likely they are American-born or naturalized citizens, and as fervently patriotic as those of us who have been here for generations.

DEAR ABBY: I am a Hispanic male. Most of my extended family lives in Mexico. My parents and some aunts, uncles and cousins live near me in East Texas.

My girlfriend, "Cyndi," and I have been dating for three years. She recently decided to move to San Antonio to be closer to her parents — and to "find herself."

Cyndi has met my parents several times and told me she intended to learn Spanish so she could better communicate with them. (They speak little English.) I was delighted because when we visit my family in Mexico, Cyndi would not feel left out of our conversations.

Cyndi and I spoke over the weekend. She told me she had signed up for language classes. When I called her last night, she informed me that she's taking German. Then she gave me a lecture about how my family needs to learn English because they live in America. (They try hard.) Then I asked her how she intends to communicate with my family in Mexico. She ignored the question.

Abby, Cyndi and I have split up several times over the past three years. We always seem to find something to argue about. Now this. What do you think about this, and what should I do?

ERNESTO IN EAST TEXAS

DEAR ERNESTO: Face it. Cyndi has no interest in communicating with your family. She's moved on. Tell her adios or auf Wiedersehen — whichever comes first.

SPORTS

BASKETBALL

PAMPA — "We are going to have to get more coaches," said an excited Commissioner Buffie Schaeffer on Tuesday after the first day of sign-ups and tryouts for the Pampa Optimist Youth Club Girls' Basketball.

Enthusiasm abounded as a record 112 girls enrolled the first day. Registration continues today and Friday from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Optimist gym.

"We had 75 fifth and sixth grade girls register," Schaeffer said. "We had 47 third and fourth graders. Last year we had a total of 120 girls in the program. We are expecting a large increase this year."

Teams will be selected by the coaches on Saturday for the Pampa United Way Agency. Practice begins Monday with games following early next month.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Yao Ming's NBA debut ended in an exhibition loss, but the 7-foot-5 center's welcome to the league was a memorable one.

Seconds after entering the game, Yao took a pass in the low post and made a decisive move to the basket. But as his outstretched right arm rose above the rim, San Antonio 7-footer Tim Duncan, the league's MVP last season, slid over and launched the newest Rocket with a hard body bump that left him sprawled on the floor.

AUTO RACING

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Ward Burton lost 25 driver points, team owner Bill Davis lost 25 car owner points, and crew chief Frank Stoddard was fined $10,000 because NASCAR found unapproved front springs on the No. 22 Dodge during post-race inspection Sunday at Martinsville Speedway.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Chip Ganassi's Indy Racing League team will expand to two cars next season with Scott Dixon and Tomas Scheckter as its drivers.

GOLF

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (AP) — It's a good thing Chris DiMarco doesn't hold a grudge. He might not have a trophy from the Buick Challenge.

DiMarco's first trip to Callaway Gardens in 1999 was memorable for all the wrong reasons. He was bitten by a tick while sleeping in his cottage and got Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

"I was really never going to go back there," he said.

He changed his mind last year and came away with another important stepping stone in a career that slowly is on the rise. DiMarco made a birdie on the 18th hole to force a playoff with David Duval, then won on the first extra hole when Duval's approach went over the green.

It wasn't the first time DiMarco had won on the PGA Tour, but it was his first victory against a field of top players. Duval was the reigning British Open champion.

Harvesters have the momentum going their way

PAMPA — After back-to-back wins over Palo Duro and Hereford by the combined score of 62-13, the Pampa Harvesters are in that momentum mode going into Friday night's District 3-4A contest at Dumas.

Pampa head coach Dennis Cavalier is just hoping his team won't be looking past the Demons, who have only one win to their credit.

"Dumas has played everyone tough. They played Plainview tough, they played Palo Duro tough. We can't underestimate them," coach Cavalier said.

Middle linebacker Chad Ollinger (205-pound senior) may be the most consistent player for a Dumas squad that has been hit hard by injuries.

"Ollinger is a very good linebacker. He was one of the better linebackers in our district last year," Cavalier said.

Ollinger, who also starts at tight end, played a key role when Dumas almost upset favored Palo Duro two weeks ago. Ollinger had 11 unassisted tackles, one solo tackle, and recovered a fumble in Dumas' close 13-10 loss.

Another linebacker, Cody Ames (182-pound junior), has also been playing well for Dumas, Cavalier added.

"The key for us is pass protection and completing our passes," Cavalier noted. "Dumas' defense has always given us problems, as much as any team we've played."

Offensively, linemen Michael Gaddis (240-pound senior), Anthony Kiskaden (185-pound senior), Darrell McKay (195-pound senior), Jorge Lucio (195-pound senior) and Jared Cook (213-pound junior) are proficient at run-blocking, says Cavalier.

"They're not real big, but most of them are seniors and they do a nice job. We're not for sure who's going to fill in all of their positions because they've had a lot of injuries," Cavalier said. "However, their offensive line has been stable all year long."

"He left Pampa when he was in the 7th or eighth grade," Cavalier said. "He's also a defensive starter and an excellent athlete."

Dumas is averaging 14 points a game while its defense has allowed 19 points a contest.

Pampa's pass-oriented offense — led by senior quarterback John Braddock — is averaging 27.8 points per game, tops among district teams. Braddock was recently honored by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce as one of its athletes of the month for October.

Braddock, along with flanker Jesse Tarango and tailback Johnny Moore were a potent trio in Pampa's 27-6 win over Palo Duro last week. Braddock rushed for three touchdowns and completed 15 of 23 pass attempts for 145 yards. Moore scored the other TD and rushed for 81 yards on 15 carries. Tarango was Pampa's leading receiver with 8 catches for 76 yards.

Pampa's defense, sparked by middle linebacker Zack Cobb, is giving up 13.7 points a game, second only to Palo Duro in fewest average points allowed among district foes. Cobb leads the team in tackles with 125 unassisted tackles and 66 solo tackles. The 190-pound senior had one of his better games against Palo Duro, finishing with 20 tackles, including 11 solo stops. He also had a quarterback sack and a fumble recovery.

Brittin East, Pampa's sophomore noseguard, also had an outstanding game versus the Dons. East made five solo tackles, two unassisted tackles and had a quarterback sack.

The Harvesters (3-1, 6-2) share the district lead with two games left in the regular season.

"Right now we're at the top of our game. We've played the four teams in the top half of our district and we're relatively injury-free," Cavalier said. "I felt like we played our best game overall against Palo Duro and it's logical to think we're going to keep getting better and better."

Three sophomores, middle linebacker Mark Williams, center Michael Pergeson and quarterback Tyler Doughty, have been moved up from the junior varsity to bolster the varsity's depth chart.

"We're considering moving a couple of others up, but we just don't know yet. If they play in the varsity game Friday night, they won't be able to play in the JV game next week," Cavalier said. "We don't want to leave them short-handed."

Dumas canceled tonight's junior varsity game with Pampa.

Volleyball seniors

Senior volleyball players Angie Williams (left) and Teryn Stowers were recognized during the Pampa-Amarillo High match Tuesday night. Angie is the daughter of Victor and Patti Williams and Teryn is the daughter of Dennis and Tonja Stowers. It was the final home match for the Lady Harvesters.

Giants even World Series at 2-2

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After Francisco Rodriguez breezed through Barry Bonds and the middle of the San Francisco lineup, Bell Park. Forget about a run. Would the Giants ever get a hit against the Kid?

Quickly, it all changed — the rookie's aura of perfection, and the momentum in this World Series.

David Bell lined a go-ahead single off Rodriguez in the eighth inning and the Giants came back to beat the Anaheim Angels 4-3

Wednesday night, leaving the Series tied at two games each.

"I was just trying to get a pitch I could handle and hit it hard," Bell said. "He's had a lot of success so far. He's done a great job for these guys."

"So to get a win tonight was big. I think to get a run off him is important, too."

Jason Schmidt will start for the Giants in Game 5 Thursday night against Jarrod Washburn. It'll be a rematch of the opener in which Schmidt outpitched the Anaheim ace.

Down 3-0 early and in danger of being blown out again, the Giants somehow slowed down Anaheim's persistent hitters.

Schmidt will conduct basketball clinic at Pampa Optimist gym

Pampa Lady Harvester head basketball coach Steve Schmidt will present a clinic at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Optimist Club gym for girls, coaches and parents, Optimist Basketball Commissioner Buffie Schaeffer announced Wednesday.

Schmidt, a Southwestern Oklahoma State graduate, has been coaching 13 years. He was an assistant coach in Tulia for five years and spent six years in Clarendon as head coach before moving to Pampa.

"We plan to have a quick-hitting review and teaching of fundamental skills in shooting, ball handling, passing and defense," said Schmidt, who is in his second year as coach of the Lady Harvesters. "If we want to get Pampa girls' basketball on track for the playoffs in high school, we have to begin teaching the fundamentals to the younger age kids."

Schmidt and his wife, Michelle, have been married for 12 years. They have a two-year-old son, Joseph.

Armstrong will have easier route for next year's Tour de France

PARIS (AP) — Lance Armstrong's bid for a record-tying fifth Tour de France title just got easier. The route for next year's 100th anniversary race features more stages in the mountains — where Armstrong has taken control and dominated since 1999. "I don't think Lance Armstrong has anything to worry about in this itinerary," Tour director Jean-Marie Leblanc said Thursday as he unveiled the 2003 race. "There is scope for him to impose his superiority, if there is a superiority (next year)." Four riders have won the world's toughest cycling race five times. Only Spain's Miguel Indurain captured five back-to-back. Armstrong is the only American to have won more than three Tours. The three-week Tour is usually decided in the peaks, and Armstrong sealed his fourth straight victory in July by crushing rivals in six mountain stages. A year earlier, there were five legs in the Alps and the Pyrenees.

Next year's Tour, which starts in Paris on July 5 and ends in the French capital July 27, has seven mountain legs. The hardest is likely to be the 130.82-mile eighth stage from Sallanches to L'Alpe d'Huez. At 2,109.55 miles, the 20-stage race will be the seventh shortest in Tour history. Although 2003 marks the Tour's 100th anniversary, it will be the 90th edition of the race, which was canceled during each of the World Wars. None of the stages starts or finishes outside France, although the 14th leg in the Pyrenees crosses briefly into Spain. There are two rest days, three individual time trials including the prologue, and one team time trial. There will be 22 teams in next year's race, compared to 21 this year, with nine riders in each team. The top 14 squads in the International Cycling Union's end-of-year rankings qualify automatically, and Tour organizers will hand out eight wild cards.

Reports: Howe agrees to manage Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Art Howe will be the next manager of the New York Mets, two newspapers reported on their Web sites Wednesday night. One of the papers also said Lou Piniella had agreed in principle to manage the Tampa Bay Devil Rays. Howe, who guided the Oakland Athletics to three straight playoff appearances, agreed to a four-year contract worth $9.4 million, according to the New York Daily News. Newsday also reported that Piniella, who had been pursued by the Mets, has agreed in principle to a $13 million, four-year deal to manage Tampa Bay. The newspaper said highly regarded Oakland bench coach Ken Macha will be promoted to replace Howe, and that he also has agreed in principle to a multiyear contract for almost $1 million a year. The Mets, who fired manager Bobby Valentine on Oct. 1, would not confirm that a deal with Howe has been finalized. "I can't comment on it at all," Mets spokesman Jay Horwitz said when reached on his cell phone by The Associated Press on Wednesday night. Athletics spokesman Jim Young said last Saturday that Howe would return to the team next season. Young declined comment when contacted by The AP on Wednesday night. Teams are not permitted to make managerial announcements during the World Series. In addition to Howe, Nero also represents Piniella and Macha. Last April, Oakland exercised its option on Howe for the upcoming season. Since becoming the Athletics' manager for the 1996 season, Howe has never had more than one year of job security, even though he's the third-winningest manager in franchise history. Under Howe, the A's have made three straight playoff appearances, losing in the division series each time. Oakland won the AL West with 103 victories this year, but lost a five-game series to Minnesota. Howe has 12 years of experience as a big league manager, including five with the Houston Astros before joining the A's. Macha has interviewed with several teams about their managerial openings — including the Mets. The Mets had hoped to talk to Piniella but were unable to reach an agreement with the Seattle Mariners on compensation. The Devil Rays, based in Piniella's hometown, did agree to compensation and offered him their managing job Tuesday.
