Cracks in schools cause concern

Jim Melton of BGR Architects discusses drainage problems at Pampa Middle School at a recent board meeting. Seated behind him is Mike Briggs, BGR senior partner.

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
 EDITOR

Architects, reporting to Pampa Independent School District's Board of Education last week, cited improper drainage as the culprit of major structural problems at Pampa Middle School.

A large crack runs through the east end of the building near the auditorium gaps as much as four inches in some places, said Jim Melton, architect with BGR Architects, a firm hired by the school district to investigate and offer solutions to problems at Pampa Middle School and Pampa High School.

Melton, Harold Harris, structural engineer, and Mike Briggs, senior partner of the firm, presented their report to the school board at the Oct. 24 meeting.

Melton said a collapse of the foundation slab due to water not draining and pooling under the floor caused the huge crack. He said the roof drain line had degenerated.

He offered several solutions. One, fix the existing drain or abandon the old drain and install new drains. He recommended that new drains be installed.

After the drainage problem is addressed, Melton said the floor needs to be leveled and the damage to the finishes repaired.

Deteriorating brick on the outside of the middle school is creating more than an aesthetic problem for the school district. Falling bricks pose a safety problem.

Melton said the brick deterioration has been aggravated by improper detailing — in other words, poor drainage — open joints, flashing not installed properly, water pooling around the base of the building.

The bricks can be repaired, he said, an expensive process involving demolition and replacing many of the bricks.

"The repair work is feasible, but I don't believe it will be total fix," Melton said.

"The other option is double the cost but will be the most beneficial," he said. "I can guarantee it will fix the problem."

He said he feels the best option is to remove the existing veneer and replace the brick or another acceptable surface. The east addition would not have to be replaced, he said.

Enclosing the breezeway at the west end of the structure can be easily accomplished, the architect said, but creates some difficulty with access and maintenance of the adjoining courtyards.

The cost to enclose the breezeway "varies" he said according to what finishes are chosen and whether air conditioning and lighting is included.

Grading the land away from the building and installing a concrete strip around the structure would help end the pooling or "ponding" (See CRACKS, Page 3)

Police seek McRobber

 MANAGING EDITOR

Pampa police today continue to investigate a reported early morning robbery of McDonald's restaurant Sunday.

According to police reports, McDonald's store manager Manny Ortiz said a lone robber armed with a small handgun entered the Coronado Center restaurant as he was making his last security check of the premises shortly after 1 a.m. All other employees had left the fast-food restaurant as Ortiz was checking the doors, officials said.

Police received the call at 1:18 a.m.

Ortiz described the intruder as tall and slender with his face covered. Police reports indicate the manager was unable to describe the ethnicity of the robber or estimate his/her age.

Ortiz said the robber had him remove the money from the safe. Amount of money taken was undetermined.

Ortiz told police the robber ran northwest of the restaurant on foot. Police officers Tom Pickering and Toby Bias responded to the call and searched the area. No one was located. No injuries were reported.

More power to them Putin: Military will get more power to strike against suspected terrorists

MOSCOW (AP) — President Vladimir Putin said Monday he will give the military broader power to strike against suspected terrorists "wherever they may be" after a hostage siege at a Moscow theater ended with 118 captives dead, most from a knockout gas used by Russian authorities.

Doctors said all but two of the hostages who died succumbed to the fumes pumped into the theater by Russian special forces before they stormed it, 2 1/2 days after heavily armed Chechen rebels staged an audacious raid.

Russian officials kept the substance a secret even as doctors treated the hundreds of survivors. U.S. officials identified it Monday as an opiate related to morphine.

In televised comments, Putin said he would step up measures against terrorists because of what he called growing threats that they could use powerful weapons, and he suggested Russia would not refrain from launching strikes abroad.

"Russia will not ... give in to any blackmail. International terrorism is becoming more impudent, acting more cruelly. Here and there around the world threats from terrorists of the use of means comparable to weapons of mass destruction are heard," Putin said at a meeting with government ministers.

"If anyone even tries to use such means in relation to our country, Russia will answer with measures adequate to the threat to the Russian Federation. In all places where the terrorists, the organizers of these crimes or their ideological or financial sponsors are located," he said. "I emphasize: wherever they may be."

Putin has sought to portray the Chechen conflict as a battle with international terrorists, partly to get broader support abroad.

The Bush administration refused to criticize Russian special forces for using the gas, laying all of the blame for the deaths squarely on the captors.

"We are working to ascertain all the facts and circumstances," Bush spokesman Ari Fleischer said. "But as that information is developed the president feels very strongly that the people who caused this are the terrorists."

Putin has said the theater raid was planned abroad, and the Russian Foreign Ministry alleged Monday that al-Qaida was involved.

In a statement, the ministry said a Chechen conference that opened Monday in Denmark was organized "by Chechen terrorists, their accomplices and their patrons from al-Qaida, who, as is now absolutely obvious, stand behind the monstrous terrorist act in Moscow." It did not provide evidence.

The statement came amid increasing (See POWER, Page 3)

Workshop to help students bound for college, parents

Pampa High School students and their parents are encouraged to participate in a workshop, "The Road to College," at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 29, at the PHS library.

The program, which will be in both English and Spanish, is designed to help both parents and students get informed about college if college is being considered for the future.

"It is never too early to learn about the procedure," said Ramona Hite of the Pampa Independent School District.

By attending this workshop, she said, parents and students will receive guidance through the college admissions testing calendar, college admission forms, financial aid forms and see what is available on the internet.

Those who attend will see what is available for those who prepare ahead of time, make good grades and take the time to explore all opportunities available to them.

Senior parents may also attend a session on what to expect from your child the first year of college.

"The road in this century requires more than a high school education," said Hite. "Parents and students must both be determined they are prepared. The time to begin preparation is now."

Parents or students may receive additional information by calling 669-4700.

OBITUARIES

ROBERT KENNETH SWANSON

SAN ANTONIO — Robert Kenneth Swanson slipped the surly bonds of earth for the last time on Oct. 23, 2002, at the age of 80. He is preceded in death by his granddaughter, Ashley Biechlin. He is survived by his loving wife, Enid Carole Swanson and younger brother Donald Swanson of Dallas as well as five children, Steve Swanson, Janet Biechlin and husband, Rusty, Dr. Keith Swanson and wife, Laurie of Lake Tahoe, Roger Swanson and wife, Lena of San Francisco, and Richard Swanson and wife, Cheryl of Austin, and step-daughter, Jane Scarborough of Boston. He was also blessed with 14 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren, all of whom will miss him dearly.

Bob was born in Kansas City, Mo., on Aug. 7, 1922, the first of two sons raised by Fred and Ruth Swanson, an attorney and English teacher. Descended from Swedish immigrants on his father's side and on his mother's side, from the Perry family which included veteran's of the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, the Civil War and World War I. The family moved from Oklahoma City to McAllen, Texas, when he was 10. Bob graduated from McAllen High School second in his class in 1939.

Early studies in engineering at UT in Austin were interrupted in 1943 when he enlisted as an Aviation Cadet in the U.S. Navy. As a 20-year-old cadet, he married Carole Williams of Houston, a move entirely against Navy regulations, but the beginning of a 60-year-long love affair. After graduation from Naval Flight School Pensacola, he continued as a flight instructor before being assigned as a pilot with VBF-13, a fighter squadron of F6F Hellcats, based on the USS Saratoga in the South Pacific.

At the end of World War II, he returned to civilian life and finished his studies at the University of Houston, obtaining a BS in Electrical Engineering in 1947. The first 16 years of his professional career were spent in the field of petroleum engineering in Houston and Pampa, Texas. During this time, he developed and patented several ground-breaking electron exploration and perforating devices used in petroleum exploration.

In 1963, he accepted a position as Senior Research Engineer with Southwest Research Institute (SwRI) in San Antonio. He had an illustrious 23-year career at SwRI culminating in his retirement in 1990 as Director of Electronic Physics, in one of the world's foremost private scientific research entities. He also spent four years in two Silicone Valley computer start-up firms in the early 1970s, but he was persuaded to return to his Texas roots and to SwRI as Assistant Director to head up a project that led to new ultrasound bridge safety detection instrumentation. This technology helped stem a raft of failures of older American bridges, which had become a national bridge emergency. He also worked on projects for NASA space missions, top secret government projects including the forensics and destruction of the infamous bugged U.S. Embassy Building in Moscow, early experimentation in the 1960s with lasers and holography. Above all else, he was proud of his involvement in developing alternative energy sources. He directed the design and installation of the first commercial wind energy application to the mid-1970s in Clovis, N.M. Bob remained throughout his life interested in energy matters, and was a nationally recognized expert in many related fields, including geophysical and geothermal energy production.

His faith was always important to him as evidenced by his longtime membership in the Alamo Heights Methodist Men's Bib Study. He was also a volunteer at the Southwest Texas Methodist Hospital for many years.

His proudest accomplishment in life was his family. He always found time to spend time with his children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. He taught two generations of Swansons how to crawl, walk, run, swim, fish, fly, write, speak in public, tune up a car, play tennis, cook, photograph, fix things, think, and be a parent. Above all else, his lessons of fatherhood and the memories of his humor and wit will be forever remembered and treasured by all who grew up influenced and loved by him.

A memorial service to celebrate his life will be held at 3 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 2 at Alamo Heights Methodist Church, 825 E. Basse St., in San Antonio.

The family requests donations be made to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation or to Methodist Children's Home.

Lancaster woman's capital murder retrial set to start

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas County woman whose death penalty conviction was overturned by the state's highest criminal court is set to begin her second fight in four years to avoid the death penalty.

Kimberly McCarthy, a former nursing home therapist, is accused in the 1997 stabbing and robbing Dorothy Booth, her 71-year-old Lancaster neighbor.

Testimony in McCarthy's trial was scheduled to begin Monday morning.

An appeals court overturned her 1998 conviction and granted her a new trial.

McCarthy is only the second Dallas County woman in a century sentenced to death.

McCarthy was granted a new trial in December when the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals agreed that a statement taken by a Dallas police detective violated her constitutional rights.

In her first trial, McCarthy denied playing a direct role in the crime, in which Booth was stabbed five times with a knife and bludgeoned with a candelabra before her finger was cut off to remove her wedding ring. She blamed the grisly killing on two drug dealers.

at the base of the school, Melton said. He also recommended placing a new catch basin in one of the courtyards.

"There are catch basins in each of the courtyards according to the original plans," he said, adding that he only found evidence of one. "The other could be hidden or covered up," he added.

Melton did not give cost estimates in his presentation, but indicated the written report included estimates. Dr. Tim Powers, assistant superintendent for administrative services, had not returned a call to his office by press time today.

Harold Harris, structural engineer, also reported on cracks in the south face and east wing of Pampa High School.

Powers explained to the board that Harris had been asked to look at the cracks after Principal John Kendall said he was concerned about the structural safety of the building in this area.

Virginia files charges in sniper case

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia officials filed the state's first murder charges against the sniper suspects Monday and a prosecutor said the teenager in custody may have killed an FBI analyst during the spree.

Fairfax County prosecutor Robert Horan Jr. said there is "an equal possibility" that John Lee Malvo, 17, or John Allen Muhammad, 41, gunned down analyst Linda Franklin outside a Home Depot on Oct. 14 in Fairfax.

The pair was charged in Spotsylvania County with the murder of Kenneth Bridges on Oct. 11 and the wounding of an unidentified woman Oct. 4. Both shootings were part of the three-week string of attacks that left 10 dead and three others wounded in Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Muhammad was indicted on charges of capital murder, conspiracy to commit capital murder, attempted capital murder, aggravated mali-

"I asked him to see if it is safe, and in doing that, he found this problem with the wall," Powers said.

The cracks, Harris said are due to a wing wall built with an addition to the east side of the building in 1959. The original building had a round corner, but the addition was to be rectangular, as a result the wall was built as a screen to make the addition more architecturally pleasing, he explained.

Harris said he believes a diagonal steel beam travels from the roof line to about the middle of the wing wall, but added that he has not yet seen how it is actually done.

The expansion joint has "stretched greatly" he said.

"It's been done by movement - a lot of movement," he said, adding, "Something is causing a lot of movement there."

He said he believes the wing wall is leaning out a foot or two beyond the original building, causing the cracking both inside and outside.

He recommends stabilizing the wing wall, a process that may be as simple as tightening nuts and bolts on tie rods, depending on how the wall is connected to the other building, and then repairing the cracks inside and outside.

He said he could not give a cost estimate, explaining, "There's too many unknowns at this point."

But he said the wall should be stabilized as soon as possible.

"It could be very dangerous if we get high winds from the north," the engineer said.

Board members took no action on the architects' report. School superintendent Dr. Dawson Orr recommended that the facilities committee study the report in depth and bring a recommendation back to the board.

criticism about the number of hostages killed at the theater and the way they died.

Three top Moscow doctors revealed Sunday that many of the people found dead inside the theater were killed by the sleeping gas, and they were not sure how to treat the survivors.

Russian authorities did not tell medical officials what type of gas they pumped into the theater shortly before special forces troops raided it early Saturday, chief Moscow doctor Andrei Seltsovsky said.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said Monday that Western doctors had examined some of the former hostages and concluded "the agent they were exposed to appears consistent with an opiate rather than a nerve agent."

Russian officials have refused to tell the U.S. Embassy what exactly the gas was "despite repeated formal requests," the spokesman said on condition of anonymity.

The gas can paralyze breathing, blood circulation, and cardiac and liver functions, doctors said. The effects were worsened by the extreme conditions endured by the hostages during their 58-hour ordeal and by the chronic medical problems some suffered.

"In standard situations, the compound that was used ... does not act as aggressively as it turned out to do," Seltsovsky said.

There were about 800 people in the theater when it was seized by Chechen gunmen during Wednesday night's performance of the popular Russian musical "Nord-Ost," or "North-East." The Moscow Health Department said 405 former hostages, including nine children, remained hospitalized Monday after 239 were released. At least 45 remained in grave condition Monday, Deputy Prime Minister Valentina Matviyenko said Monday.

Two foreign women, one Dutch and one Austrian, were among the dead, and officials in Kazakhstan said a 13-year-old girl from their country died — one of three children who perished.

Anguished relatives crowded the gates of Moscow hospitals, begging for news of their kin, while others scoured the city morgues.

Tatiana Lukashova's 26-year-old daughter, Masha Panova, was a hostage and now is missing.

Lukashova saw a broadcast on the ORT television station Saturday that showed her daughter lying on a mattress in a hospital corridor with an oxygen mask on.

"But we didn't hear what hospital it was, and our search through all the hospitals was in vain," Lukashova said in a telephone interview.

"It's unbelievable," she said, tears choking her voice. "Even the head of the district where we live went to meet officials of ORT to find out in which hospital they filmed the girl, but they told him they can't tell without permission from prosecutors."

Even diplomats had trouble finding information about the estimated 70 foreign citizens among the hostages. U.S. consular officials searched the city's hospitals for one of two American citizens known to have been inside.

Putin declared Monday a day of national mourning.

Schools in Moscow started the day with a moment of silence. Hundreds of mourners streamed to the theater to lay flowers, candles and teddy-bears along a driveway leading to the building.

Pensioner Lyudmila Yemelyanova lamented the deaths but said, "There was no other way."

"If the explosives inside had gone off, not only the theater but all the neighboring buildings would have been destroyed," she said, echoing the explanation offered by officials.

The death toll among the hostages stood at 118 on Sunday, including the 116 who died from the gas, a woman who was shot in the early hours of the crisis and a hostage who was shot in the head early Saturday.

Moscow officials said Monday that relatives of the dead would receive about $3,150 in compensation, while hostages who survived would get half that, Interfax reported. The city will pay for funerals, it said.

The Federal Security Service said 50 assailants were killed at the theater; several were shot in the head apparently as they lay incapacitated from the gas. Three gunmen were captured, and authorities searched the city for accomplices who might have escaped.

ANIMAL CONTROL HALLOWEEN SAFETY TIPS FOR PETS

Halloween can be a festive and fun time of year for children and families, but for family pets, it can be stressful and even dangerous time of year. Animal Control offers pet owners some common sense tips to help pet owners keep their pets safe during this time of year.

- Don't leave your pet out in the yard on Halloween: There are plenty of stories of vicious pranksters who have teased, injured, stolen, even killed pets on this night.
- Keep your outdoor cats inside several days before and several days after Halloween; black cats in particular may be at risk from children's pranks or other cruelty-related incidents. Many shelters, do not adopt out black cats on Halloween as a safety precaution.
- Trick-or-treat candies are not for pets: Chocolate is poisonous to a lot of animals, and tin foil and cellophane candy wrappers can be hazardous if swallowed.
- Be careful of pets around a lit pumpkin: Pets may knock it over and cause a fire. Curious kittens especially run the risk of getting burned.
- Don't dress the dog or cat in costume unless you know he or she loves it. Otherwise, it puts too much stress on the animal.
- If you do dress up your pet, make sure the costume isn't annoying or unsafe; it should not constrict her movement, hearing or ability to breathe or bark. Also, there should not be small, dangling, or easily chewed-off pieces on the costume that your pet could choke on.
- Be careful not to obstruct your pet's vision; even the sweetest animal can get snappy when he or she can't see.
- When opening the door for trick-or-treaters, be very careful your cat or dog doesn't dart outside.

All but the most social dogs and cats should be kept in a separate room during trick-or-treat visiting hours; too many strangers in strange garb can be scary for a dog or cat.

Make sure your dog or cat is wearing proper identification. If for any reason they escape and become lost, you increase the chances that they will be written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY

Mom's Ever-Present Boyfriend Is Unwelcome Guest To Daughter

DEAR ABBY: My parents are divorced. I'm glad, because all they ever did was fight and put my brother and me in the middle. I am now away at college. Dad has found a terrific girlfriend who I love. The problem is Mom.

Mom has also found someone. His name is Tom, and I can't stand him. She never drank or gambled before she met him. Now they frequent casinos, and she has multiple beers with dinner — even when she is on medication that specifically warns not to mix with alcohol. The other problem is that Tom is always there when I come home to visit. I want some private time with Mom, but he refuses to respect that. In the 12 days that I was there, Tom ate every meal at our house. He even came along when Mom drove me back to school.

I have tried talking to her. She keeps pushing us together and has invited him to come for the weekend when she visits me at school next month. She has invited Tom to my graduation, even though tickets are limited, and has made plans to invite him to my wedding, which is almost two years away.

Abby, I don't want Tom at any of these special occasions. How can I get her to stop inviting him to things I'd prefer only my family attend?

HAD IT IN ITHACA, N.Y.

DEAR HAD IT: You may not be able to, particularly if your mother thinks this new man in her life "completes" her in some way. She appears to be an addictive personality — she's addicted to alcohol, gambling and him.

Since your mother refuses to visit you without her boyfriend, face it: Your mother has decided the price you must pay for her company is to tolerate Tom's presence. If that price is too high, limit your time with both of them. But accept the fact that having your mother at your graduation and/or your wedding means you will have to tolerate the person who has become the new center of her life.

DEAR ABBY: Please add this to your "acts of kindness" file.

I moved into a courtyard apartment three years ago. After settling in, I planted two containers of spring flowers and placed them outside my front door. They were colorful, and my neighbors commented how much they enjoyed them. Imagine my surprise and disappointment upon returning home one day to find one of the containers missing.

I was so upset that I placed a sign on the empty spot. It read: "In memory of my beautiful, lovingly tended container of flowers taken from this spot on May 22." Four days later, to my surprise and delight, in its place I found a new container of flowers. Next to it was a sign that read: "We wish we could find who took your flowers. Please enjoy these. From, A Kinder World." I tried for days to find out who left the container, but they never revealed themselves.

Abby, we should all be grateful to people who make our world a kinder place.

V. IONE MOODY MURCHISON, SACRAMENTO, CALIF.

DEAR V: Indeed we should. I see the flowers as a metaphor for optimism, and I'm pleased that yours was restored.

Angels win World Series, beat Giants 4-1

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Tim Salmon hoisted the World Series trophy and took a victory lap around Edison Field. He'd always imagined what the trip would be like, and it was harder than he thought.

"It was pretty heavy," he said.

And well worth it, for the Anaheim Angels and all their fans who wondered whether this day would ever come.

Behind rookie starter John Lackey and a big hit by Garret Anderson, the Angels became one of the more improbable champions in baseball history, beating Barry Bonds and the San Francisco Giants 4-1 Sunday night in Game 7.

"These fans have been waiting a long, long time for this," MVP Troy Glaus said. "And I know we're all happy to be part of the team to bring it to them."

The Angels took 42 years to win their first title, and didn't even need their Rally Monkey to clinch it.

Bonds, meanwhile, is still hoping.

As Anaheim players celebrated all over the field, the best hitter in the world watched from a dark corner of the Giants' dugout. Bonds knew this moment could have been his — a day earlier, it almost was.

"You want the results to be different," Bonds said. "They outplayed us, they deserve it. They beat us. They're world champions."

In Game 6, the Giants blew a 5-0 lead in the seventh inning. In Game 7, San Francisco never got close to winning its first title.

"The turning point was basically they came back last night," Giants manager Dusty Baker said.

His 3-year-old bat boy son, Darren, took it hard. He wailed as his dad carried him from the dugout.

Bonds closed out one of the most dominant overall Series performances ever, yet it wasn't enough. He went 8-for-17 (.471) with four homers and a .700 on-base percentage.

After watching the Angels party, Bonds walked down the dugout and picked up his glove. He walked back, tapped his son on the back and walked down the runway.

"I went 1-for-3 with a walk, that's a good day. Am I supposed to go 3-for-3 with three home runs?" Bonds said. "What do you want from me?"

The highest-scoring Series in history came down to pitching, as it always seems to do in October. And Lackey and the bullpen gave Anaheim enough to win baseball's first all-wild-card matchup.

The Angels became the eighth straight home team to win Game 7 of the World Series. History was on their side from the start and so was an omen — a skywriting plane put a gigantic halo over Edison Field before the first pitch.

The Rally Monkey was ready, but the mascot only showed up a couple of times on the video scoreboard.

"We love the monkey because of what it does for us. It's a good-luck charm," Lackey said. "But it's good not to see him because that means we're winning."

Lackey, pitching on three days' rest, became only the second rookie to win Game 7 of the Series. He joined Babe Adams, who pitched Pittsburgh past Ty Cobb and Detroit in 1909.

Lackey wasn't even with the Angels, stuck in Triple-A, when they went 6-14 for the worst start in team history. But with both staffs worn down, the 24-year-old righty gave Anaheim exactly what it needed with five innings of one-run ball.

"It's not bad. This is where you want to be," Lackey said. "It's a long way from Salt Lake."

Anderson, now due to get the recognition he's always deserved, hit a three-run double off Livan Hernandez in the third for a 4-1 lead.

"Well, I just wanted to get into a situation where I'd be able to hit my pitch, not do too much," Anderson said.

Brendan Donnelly, Francisco Rodriguez and Troy Percival closed it for manager Mike Scioscia's bunch. Percival escaped a two-on, one-out jam for his third save of the Series.

"Unbelievable for us, for our fans," Percival said. "This team has worked as hard as any team ever. We deserve it."

And when it was over, Southern California, the land of celluloid stars, had just added a whole teamful of them while Hollywood luminaries Pierce Brosnan and John Travolta watched from the stands.

It was particularly sweet for Scioscia, who won a title with Baker as players in 1981 for the Los Angeles Dodgers, the team that long overshadowed its neighbors to the south.

"I'm enjoying it, but what these guys have done — they're going to enjoy it for a long time," Scioscia said.

After the game, Scioscia and Baker spoke on the phone.

"We had everything fall into place," Scioscia said. "If we didn't win it, you know I wanted you to. You guys are champions, hold your heads high. You're awesome."

The game might have been the last for Baker with the Giants. There are growing indications he'll soon leave, possibly to take over the Chicago Cubs or Seattle.

Before this year, the Angels were known mostly for heart-break, epitomized by the blown save by Donnie Moore that cost them a chance to reach the 1986 Series.

Beloved owner Gene Autry never saw his team get this far before passing away, and it didn't look like these guys would do it, either, especially after finishing 41 games out of first place in 2001.

Somehow, the Angels pulled it together. They led the majors in hitting, overwhelmed the New York Yankees and Minnesota in the AL playoffs and then knocked out Bonds and Co.

"Wherever he is, my husband is smiling down at these ballplayers and he's having a wonderful time watching me get drowned in champagne," Jackie Autry said.

Owned by The Walt Disney Co., the Angels are still for sale. Before then, though, they can certainly travel the 3 miles or so to Disneyland to enjoy this most improbable championship. That's where the victory parade will be Tuesday.

"This has taken over as the happiest place on earth tonight," Disney chairman Michael Eisner said.

Anaheim and the Giants combined for a record 85 runs and 21 homers. Hernandez had been 6-0 lifetime in the postseason before losing twice to the Angels.

Hernandez walked Scott Spiezio with two outs in the second and Bengie Molina followed with a double that tied it at 1.

Molina added another double, and the hits were his way of honoring his father who was faraway. Earlier Sunday, former amateur outfielder Benjamin Molina Santana was in Puerto Rico, where he was inducted into the island's hall of fame.

The Giants took a 1-0 lead in the second on singles by Benito Santiago and J.T. Snow and a sacrifice fly by Reggie Sanders.

Tony Stewart was fourth, and increased his lead in the championship battle to 146 points over Mark Martin with only three races remaining.

Scioscia leads Angels to victory

By STEVE WILSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — In his moment of triumph, Mike Scioscia didn't forget his old teammate and mentor.

Amid the Anaheim Angels' wild celebration of their World Series championship Sunday night, Scioscia paused to write a note and asked an aide to take it to San Francisco manager Dusty Baker.

Moments later, the phone rang in Scioscia's office.

"We had everything fall into place," Scioscia told Baker after the Angels' 4-1 victory in Game 7. "If we didn't win it, you know I wanted you to. You guys are champions. Hold your heads high. You're awesome."

Scioscia was the kind of player who was always thoughtful, a catcher who asked questions and listened.

He turned into the kind of manager who listened to veterans not much younger than himself on the Angels, won their respect and led them to a championship in only his third season.

Scioscia learned from Tommy Lasorda. He asked a million questions of Roy Campanella. He found a friend and teacher in Baker, who was 10 years older and had the locker next to him in the Los Angeles Dodgers' clubhouse.

Scioscia learned from all of them, and others in the Dodgers' organization, that champions are built on the fundamentals of the game, playing baseball the right way.

Roxie Campanella, the great catcher's widow, was in the dugout after the game Sunday night.

"I feel so happy for Mike," she said. "Roy loved him from his first game and stuck with him. Roy taught him everything that he knew, and he wanted to know everything."

Don't throw this one Troy — it's the Series MVP trophy

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Troy Glaus can stop throwing his equipment now.

He's tossed his helmet, tossed his bat.

He's not going to throw around the World Series MVP trophy.

Glaus, who won the honor after Anaheim's 4-1 victory over San Francisco on Sunday night, is the Angels' fire.

And when the championship was securely in their hands, what made him happiest was coming through for those halo-wearing, monkey-waving fans, some coming to games for four decades, hoping for this moment.

"These fans have been waiting a long, long time for this," Glaus said. "And I know we're all happy to be part of the team to bring it to them."

Glaus, the AL home run champion two years ago when he hit 47, symbolized a team that came back to win the World Series following a 6-14 start, bringing the trophy to Anaheim for the first time in the Angels' 42 seasons.

He was knocked down by Jason Schmidt in Game 5.

He was knocked down by Russ Ortiz in Game 6.

He bounced back up both times, just the way the Angels did in the Series.

"Actually, we've had that way of thinking all year," Glaus said. "No matter what we came up against, we were going to play hard and leave it all out there, and that's what we did here."

On a team where many players stood out, Glaus had the most consistent Series, batting .385 (10-for-26) with three doubles, three home runs and eight RBIs.

He homered twice in Anaheim's opening 4-3 loss and hit a two-run drive in Game 4, another 4-3 defeat.

His biggest hit didn't go over the wall, but instead swung the momentum of the Series.

When he came up in the eighth inning of Game 6 Saturday night, with the Angels having clawed back to 5-4 after trailing by five runs, his two-run double off Robb Nen sent the Angels on to a 6-5 win and gave them life when they could have been going home.

"Baseball is a funny game. Anything can happen," he said then. "Our goal today was to get to Game 7. Now we're giving ourselves that chance."

Perhaps because the 26-year-old third baseman from Tarzana has 20-12 1/2 vision (with contacts), he can see the future better than most.

Before Wednesday, his first six homers of the postseason had been solo shots, including a go-ahead drive in the eighth inning of Game 3 against Minnesota, another hit that pivoted the postseason for the Angels.

He didn't do much in Game 7, going 0-for-2 with a pair of walks, but on Saturday he turned the Series around.

"I don't really know if there's anybody on our club that has gotten attention that's probably in line with their accomplishments," Angels manager Mike Scioscia said before the game. "I think Troy, in the baseball community, gets all the respect he deserves. I don't think there's any team that doesn't know Troy's talent.

"As far as the fans getting a chance to see Troy play, forming their own ideas on him, I think it's great. They're going to see an incredibly talented young player."

Seahawks down Cowboys, 17-14, in record setting game

By JAIME ARON
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — On Trent Dilfer's final pass of the season, he hopped on his left foot and threw a 6-yard completion to Shaun Alexander.

Dilfer had to hop. The Achilles' tendon in his right foot had torn, ending his season in the second quarter of the Seattle Seahawks' 17-14 victory over the Dallas Cowboys and new rushing record-holder Emmitt Smith on Sunday.

"I feel so bad for him," Seattle coach Mike Holmgren said. "It's been an unlucky year for him."

Matt Hasselbeck started the opener when Dilfer was out with a sprained knee, and now the job is his again. He played well in relief Sunday, going 12-of-19 for 131 yards with an interception that bounced off a receiver's hands.

Hasselbeck completed his first five passes and his second drive ended in Seattle's first touchdown. His other two scoring drives both came on the series following Dallas touchdowns, which is especially impressive for a team that was winless on the road.

"We needed him to be playing well and he did. He'll be our quarterback for the rest of the season," Holmgren said. "He was excited to get into the game. I think he did a good job of playing within himself."

The victory party was a bit muted for the Seahawks (2-5) after receiver Darrell Jackson had a seizure in the locker room. Jackson, taken to a hospital in stable condition, sustained a concussion when hit by safety Darren Woodson in the fourth quarter.

"He kept breathing the whole time and recovered from the seizure and was a bit confused afterwards," team physician Ed Khalfayan said. "He was not receptive to any information and had movements in his extremities."

The drama in the visiting locker room played out while the Cowboys (3-5) were celebrating Smith's feat.

Smith broke Walter Payton's record with 9:10 left on an 11-yard run through the left side. He finished with 109 yards on 24 carries, both season highs, to give him 16,743 yards over his 13-year career. Payton had 16,726 yards over 13 seasons.

"I'm still moving on and don't plan on stopping any time soon," Smith said.

Another milestone for the Cowboys was Woodson setting the franchise record for tackles. With his second of eight on the day, he broke the mark set by linebacker Lee Roy Jordan.

While Smith and Woodson reaped the rewards of long careers, Dallas quarterback Chad Hutchinson was just starting his.

Playing his first game since he was a sophomore at Stanford in 1997, Hutchinson went 12-of-24 for 145 yards with a 39-yard touchdown to Joey Galloway. He was sacked twice and had no interceptions.

"Chad did some good things," Cowboys coach Dave Campo said. "He made no mistakes from my point of view and did make the plays that he needed to make."

Smith breaks Payton's career rushing record

By STEPHEN HAWKINS
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Emmitt Smith never considered leaving Texas Stadium without the NFL's career rushing record. He even dressed for the occasion.

Smith went through four No. 22 jerseys during his historic game Sunday. But under them all he kept on the same white T-shirt, one with his image on the Dallas Cowboys star logo, the phrase "All Time" and the number 16,727 — a yard more than the late Walter Payton had.

With an 11-yard run in the fourth quarter against the Seattle Seahawks that was classic Emmitt, he became No. 1.

Smith cut left, saw a hole and plunged through it. He got tripped up, but put his right hand down to keep his balance and surged forward. And past Payton.

"Trust me, I knew what I needed," Smith said. "Once I broke the line of scrimmage I knew that would have to be the one."

The 33-year-old Smith wanted to get the record at home, and he knew this was his last chance because the Cowboys play their next two games on the road. So he went out and had his best game of the season.

Smith ran for 109 yards on 24 carries, both season highs, and scored a touchdown, giving the Dallas fans something to remember even though their team lost 17-14. Many of them even stayed around for a postgame celebration.

"To do it in front of the home crowd makes history of this magnitude such a special thing," Smith said. "I've learned how special it is when I saw Cal Ripken go through what he went through, and I saw Mark McGwire and Sammy Sosa, and watched Barry Bonds do what he did, and saw the fan reaction."

After Smith came back on the field in full uniform, he took a victory lap around Texas Stadium — a la Ripken — and slapped hands with fans before making his way to a star-shaped stage in the middle of the field.

Smith gave an eloquent speech filled with thanks and memories, and then was presented a silver football from Cowboys owner Jerry Jones before the team unfurled a banner that reads: "All-Time Leading Rusher ... 22 ... Emmitt Smith."

With the song "Simply the Best" blaring, Smith looked at the banner and squeezed his eyes shut trying to gather himself. But the tears flowed as he embraced Jones.

Among the others there to share the moment were Payton's mother and brother, Pat Summerall, Marcus Allen, Daryl Johnston and Michael Irvin, who said: "We all want to thank Emmitt for allowing us to enjoy every yard."

Midway through his 13th season, Smith has 16,743 yards. Payton finished his 13-year career in 1987 with 16,726. Smith broke Payton's record for career carries earlier this season and topped his yardage record in his 193rd game; Payton played 190.

Payton, who played his entire career for the Chicago Bears and earned the nickname "Sweetness" for his beautiful playing style, died in November 1999 from cancer. He was 45.

Payton once said he wanted "to set the record so high that the next person who tries for it, it's going to bust their heart." Smith has displayed so much heart that Payton's widow, Connie, said he would've been happy to see No. 22 take the title.

"So, I didn't bust my heart, but I sure worked hard and tried to get here," Smith said. "I don't know how long it's going to last. I don't know if you are going to find anybody to do it with one team like Walter did it and like I did it."

The rushing record had been a goal for Smith since he scribbled it on a piece of paper before going to his first Cowboys training camp in 1990.

Now the running back whose denigrators have said he was too small and too slow has proved them wrong and reached his goal.

Smith got the record on his 20th carry Sunday, getting just enough yards to pass Payton and sustain the 1-yard loss he had on his first carry after play resumed.

After the play, Smith ran to midfield and was lifted by fullback Robert Thomas. He took the ball to the sideline and shared long hugs with former and current teammates. He and Johnston had an extended embrace.

"The reason I wanted to continue to play when I got hurt was to be on the field when he did this," said Johnston, who overcame a neck injury before retiring in 1999. "Being on the sidelines with him today was absolutely tremendous, the highlight of my career."

Smith had four more carries after the record run, all on the same drive. After the 1-yard loss, he exploded for 14 yards — his sixth carry of at least 10 yards — and had consecutive 1-yard runs, the second his 150th career rushing TD, extending his own NFL record and tying the game at 14.

Seattle then drove for Rian Lindell's 20-yard field goal with 25 seconds left, but it was still Smith's day.

"Today is a special day for me, my family and the Payton family," Smith said. "Because without Payton doing what he did in the National Football League and representing all he represented, he wouldn't have given a young man like myself a dream, something to shoot after and a person to look up to and try to emulate in every way possible."

Now everybody else will be shooting for Emmitt.

Houston wins on the road in Jacksonville

By EDDIE PELLIS
AP Sports Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Seth Payne and Gary Walker enjoyed a feeling that came far too infrequently in their final years with the Jacksonville Jaguars.

They won. With a team full of former Jacksonville players and coaches, the expansion Houston Texans won for the first time on the road Sunday, 21-19 over the downtrodden Jaguars.

A trick play on a punt return set up Kris Brown's 45-yard game-winning field goal with 2:11 remaining. Kailee Wong sacked Mark Brunell twice to thwart Jacksonville's final drive.

An angry fan spit on Jaguars coach Tom Coughlin as he left the field, and with that, any question over whether it was better to be in Jacksonville or from Jacksonville on this day were definitively answered.

"Someone said it was pathetic, and that's where we are right now," Coughlin said after losing his third straight and dropping to 3-4. "It was pathetic."

But it was nothing less than joyous for the Texans (2-5), who snapped a five-game losing streak and looked right at home doing it.

A sign in the northeast end zone said it all: "All our Ex's play in Texas," and on this day, the Jaguars probably wished they had some of them back.

The Jaguars jettisoned Payne, Walker and Tony Boselli to Houston in the expansion draft so they could get their salary-cap mess in order in the offseason.

Boselli, the All-Pro left tackle and one-time cornerstone of the Jacksonville franchise, watched from the sideline — out for the season with an injured shoulder.

Walker and Payne, meanwhile, led Houston's domination of the Jacksonville offensive line. The Texans held Fred Taylor to 84 yards, and the Jaguars gained only 290 yards. Payne was lining up and shouting out Jacksonville's plays in the first half, and it was working.

"They figured that out and they started changing things a little," Payne said. "Then, we got to just playing football, and things worked out pretty well."

Of all the former Jaguars, maybe former defensive coordinator Dom Capers deserves the most credit for the victory.

With 3 minutes remaining, the Houston coach called for punt returner Jabar Gaffney to throw back across the field to Aaron Glenn. Glenn took the lateral and ran 42 yards through open field to give Houston the ball at the Jacksonville 33. Four plays later, Brown's field goal put the Texans ahead.

"It was just go out there and make a play, catch the ball and go from there," said Gaffney, a native of Jacksonville. "It feels real good to do that."

It was the kind of play an expansion team with nothing to lose might try.

Coughlin remembers: He called the same play on a kickoff return in 1995, Jacksonville's first season, and Jimmy Smith scored a touchdown against Denver. But that came during a loss.

Seven seasons later, the Jags have that expansion feel about them again. They've lost three straight, and all the buoyant optimism from their earlier three-game winning streak has vanished.

"This is a low point for us," Smith said.

Two weeks removed from a concussion, Jacksonville's Mark Brunell still doesn't look the same. He went 16-for-34 for 202 yards. He was sacked five times and took a vicious helmet-to-helmet hit from Walker, although the quarterback said he was OK.

"Offensively, up front, we got our butts kicked," Coughlin said. "There is no explanation. No other words needed."

The Texans were far from explosive. David Carr went 11-for-18 for 184 yards, and Houston had only 242 total yards.

The Texans won for the first time since opening week, when they beat Dallas in a game most people called their Super Bowl.

Learn to clear out your feelings, even if you're uncomfortable with them at times. Moderation helps you make the right choices. You put in many long hours, but you also gain professionally. In fact, you're likely to receive a pay raise or promotion. If you are single, you will encounter that special person mid-2003. Meanwhile, enjoy the busy pace and meeting new people. If you're attached, share more of your professional life with your mate. You bond because of your willingness to share. LEO pushes you into the limelight.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
***** Be extremely playful and direct. Your ability to understand where others are coming from makes a significant difference in how you deal with what might be dropped on your plate. Kick back and be understanding. Then make a decision. Tonight: Be your playful self.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
*** Stay calm, even with a lively work situation. You might not appreciate what is tossed on your plate. On the other hand, do some firm thinking about what you want. Realize more of your goals by working with others. Tonight: Move on home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
***** Your belief that a problem could work itself out throws a different perspective on an issue. Brainstorming easily unearths solutions. Someone backs down from a previously untenable stand. Make your best offer. Tonight: Hang at a favorite spot.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
***** Financial matters will work out if you just relax. Sometimes when you push too hard, you manage to get others' dander up. Handle personal matters directly. Understand a work or health issue and what needs to happen. Tonight: Treat yourself to a new item.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
***** Your smile helps you push through paperwork and get the job done. Your personality melts others' natural resistance, especially a friend's. Carefully consider your options that revolve around a friendship. Use your resourcefulness. Tonight: Share your happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
*** Listen to what someone tosses in your face. Think carefully about your long-term desires. Honor more of what you would like to do financially. Don't automatically close doors. Instead, work on opening them. Listen to suggestions. Tonight: Curl up with a good book.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
***** What you say goes. You don't need to push to have someone agree with you. You gain through forcefully presenting your facts. Understand someone and where he or she is coming from. Try another way of communicating. Tonight: Attend an important meeting or get-together.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
*** Others watch your performance. You might want to assume a greater leadership position, but others test your mettle. You might want to adjust some of your views when you get a broader picture. Read between the lines with a boss or older relative. Tonight: A must performance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 31)
***** Understand that you need to adapt. Not everything is always as you see it. Be open to new possibilities that come through a friend or perhaps someone at a distance. Take a risk, even if you might be a bit uncomfortable with a choice or decision. Tonight: Browse through your favorite music store.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
***** Work with associates. Refuse to push others into doing what you want; instead, work individually with those who might be instrumental to a key project. You might have to revive your thoughts and ideas. Someone praises you. You love it. Tonight: Allow a partner to date on you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
***** Allow others to come forward and share more. Your efforts to understand could be helped by key associates. Let someone else think that your idea is his or hers, as hard as that might be. Know when to back down. Look to the overall good. Tonight: Go along with another's plans.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
*** Do your best to work with others. You don't have to agree, but you do need to come to terms with a personal or business partner. This person could be overly verbal or difficult. Know when to put a halt to a situation. Listen, but be able to say "no." Tonight: Work off stress at the gym.

U.S. diplomat shot dead outside his home in Jordan

By JAMAL HALABY
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — An assassin pumped eight shots into an American diplomat outside his home Monday in the first known killing of a Western envoy in the Jordanian capital.

The U.S. Embassy identified the victim as Laurence Foley, an employee of the U.S. Agency for International Development mission in Jordan, which handles foreign aid and humanitarian programs.

While Jordan is officially allied with the United States, anti-American sentiment has been rising with public opposition to a threatened U.S. attack on Iraq, Jordan's eastern neighbor and primary trading partner. The kingdom's 1994 peace treaty with Israel also has made it a target for Muslim militants and terrorist groups.

White House spokesman Ari Fleischer said President Bush deeply regretted the shooting. However, Fleischer, speaking to reporters aboard Air Force One en route to New Mexico, said it was too early to say whether the attack was terror-related.

"The investigation is just getting under way," Fleischer said. "We don't rule that out but we won't go beyond that for the moment."

Jordanian Information Minister Mohammed Affash Adwan would not speculate on whether terrorists were involved, but called the attack "an aggression on Jordan and its national security."

Foreign Minister Marwan Muasher went to the U.S. Embassy to express condolences and promised swift action to catch the shooter.

"The Jordanian government is going to deal seriously with this horrible crime," the Jordanian news agency Petra quoted him as saying.

The gunman escaped and there was no immediate claim of responsibility.

The U.S. Embassy said in a statement that U.S. authorities "are working closely with Jordanian officials to investigate this horrible crime." The embassy warned Americans to "remain vigilant."

The estimated 3,000-strong American community in Jordan generally consider Amman safe, despite occasional warnings of security threats.

The American Embassy in Amman, one of the largest in the Mideast, is known as "the fortress" for its high walls and sprawling structure. Anti-American demonstrations are less common and smaller than in other Arab capitals, and usually tied to protests against Israel.

Security was immediately increased at other embassies and diplomatic missions. In an unusual scene for Amman, red beret-clad special forces riding jeeps mounted with machine-guns escorted diplomatic vehicles through the city.

Foley, 62, was shot as he walked to his car at 7:30 a.m., according to a senior Jordanian security official, speaking on condition of anonymity. The bullets came from a 7 mm pistol, he said.

Foley died instantly, Adwan said.

While initial reports spoke of "gunmen," the official said the preliminary investigation indicated that one gunman, working with accomplices, killed Foley. Doctors who performed the autopsy recovered eight bullets from the head, chest and abdomen.

Jordanian security officials said Foley's wife called police after the attack outside his house in a middle-class district of Amman.

Neighbors said they did not hear any gunshots, raising questions about whether a silencer was used. The Jordanian security official said only that the attack was apparently "well-organized and well-planned."

Large numbers of police searched the shooting scene for fingerprints and other evidence.

"We are all sad for his killing because he and his wife were a nice couple and everybody liked them in the neighborhood," said one veiled woman, who gave her name only as Um-Ayman.

Another Jordanian neighbor, Um-Saeed Sbeih, said Foley and his wife would walk their dog every day and always wave and greet them in Arabic.

"It is a heinous crime, who ever did it should be punished," she said. "Why should ordinary people get killed and punished for the crimes of their leaders? We like the American people and we were happy to have this man as a neighbor."

On Sept. 27, the U.S. government said had received uncorroborated information indicating that, as of this summer, a member of Osama bin Laden's al-Qaida terror network was considering a plan to kidnap U.S. citizens in Jordan.

State Department Spokesman Richard Boucher said then that the government could not determine whether the threat was credible or when it would be implemented.

The U.S. Embassy in Jordan notified Americans to be vigilant, and renewed that warning Monday.

West Texas A&M to host Mystery Dinner Theatre

CANYON — West Texas A&M University students will have the opportunity to put their problem-solving skills to work at the Mystery Dinner Theatre set for 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 2 in the Mary Moody Northern Hall Atrium.

The event, sponsored by the WTAMU Theatre Department, Student Activities Council, the Multicultural Center and the Residence Hall Association, will begin with a catered dinner, during which scenes of a mystery will be acted out by students from the theatre department. Those in attendance will be given the opportunity to try to solve the mystery and pinpoint the villain of the story.

This year's Mystery Dinner Theatre marks the first time theatre students have taken part in the annual event. In the future, organizers hope to use proceeds from the event to support the WTAMU theatre department through scholarships.

UW funding benefits Southside Senior Citizens Center programs

This article is one in a series of articles of profiles on the agencies and organizations supported by Pampa United Way. This information is being provided by Pampa United Way as part of its 2002 "The Way America Cares, Community by Community!" fundraising campaign.

Southside Senior Citizen's Center served 1,895 individual meals last year. The center's greatest accomplishment is its Senior Citizen's mobile meals program.

Southside Senior Citizen's Center provides a variety of activities for its members, including recreational activities for the elderly - and otherwise helps to meet the needs of the underprivileged in the city.

The center regularly assists individuals in its Mobile Meals Program on Saturdays, providing hot meals to Pampa residents who are homebound due to illness, physical handicap or advancing age and who cannot prepare their own meals and might otherwise not have a nutritious hot meal for the weekend.

In the Telephone Reassurance Program, these people get a phone call every day from someone at the center to reassure them that someone cares about their well-being.

Also, the center offers recreational activities. In addition to ceramics, the center offers music, dominoes, bingo, pool and other forms of recreation. There is an exercise bike and a treadmill for the fitness-minded and a Fellowship Luncheon on the last Thursday of each month. Every Friday night is Fun Night with refreshments and games.

The Way America Cares

Community by Community

Money from Pampa United Way plays a big part in making Southside an important part of the lives of our community's deserving elderly citizens. Without your help, the invaluable services of this and other local agencies receiving UW assistance would not be possible.

If a United Way volunteer has not contacted you, please call 669-1001 today and receive your pledge card or mail your donation to Pampa United Way, P.O. Box 2076, Pampa, TX 79065.

Southside Senior Citizen's Center is located at 438 W. Crawford. To find out more, call 665-4765.
