KTOT hits airwaves

Nov. 9 was the official beginning for the new public radio station, KTOT - 89.5, and people from this area sponsored that day as a memorial to Pampian Ken Sutton, who had been active in promoting public radio before his death a few months ago.

Sutton's co-workers from Celanese as well as others involved in public radio have already contributed more than the needed $360 for the day sponsorship. All funds over $360 are going into the Ken Sutton Memorial Fund, which is designated to help develop KTOT radio.

HPPR (High Plains Public Radio), the regional station which manages KTOT, is still accepting donations. Tax-deductible contributions may be sent to HPPR, 210 North 7th, Garden City, KS 67846. Memo to Ken Sutton Memorial Fund/Pampa.

For more information, call 1-800-678-7444 or log on to www.hppr.org.

'Door's open,' says new PPD chief

By NANCY YOUNG
 MANAGING EDITOR

New Pampa Police Chief Trevlyn Pitner's door is open to the public. He wants to hear from the residents.

"I want to hear the public's concerns, complaints and, hopefully, compliments regarding the police department," said Pitner.

The new chief officially began his duties on Monday, and has been busy meeting the people who compose the police department as well as the people in the community.

Pitner, 39, comes to Pampa from Fritch where he was police chief for two-and-a-half years. He joined that department as its chief in June 2000.

"We had some challenges there," he said. "It is one of the best police departments for a community that size."

The new chief wants the people of Pampa to know their officers, and the officers to know the people.

"I'm sure that most of these officers do know the people here," he said. "These officers are doing a good job, and they know their jobs."

His immediate goal is to get the Pampa Police Department fully staffed. Currently, the department is short three patrolmen and a deputy chief.

Trevlyn Pitner, Pampa Police Department's new chief, settles into his new office.

"I have no immediate plans to fill the deputy chief position, but I do want to get the three patrol positions filled," said Pitner. "The officers have been working a lot of overtime to cover these vacant positions and I hope to get them filled as soon as possible." He said the Amarillo Police Academy will soon be graduating a new class and he hopes to be able to get the three positions filled.

Regarding the deputy chief position, he said he wants to assess the need for the position.

Pitner said three new officers who recently joined the department have been working with direct supervision and will be patrolling on their own in just a few weeks. "That will add more patrolling on the street," he said.

He said he doesn't have any immediate plans for restructuring the department. "I have to get settled in and review what is in place," he said. "It will take time."

Pitner said all law enforcement agencies are dealing with drug problems. "That is what we hear most about," he said. "That is a top priority. (Illegal drugs) are not going to be tolerated here."

The new chief said he has been getting acquainted and reacquainted with many of the local law enforcement agencies. He said he had previously met Sheriff Don Copeland and is looking forward to working with him and his Chief Deputy Kelly Rushing. "They are very professional officers," he said.

He's pleased to be in a community where a Texas Ranger is stationed and where the area Department of Public Safety Office is located. "I'm really looking forward to working with Ranger Gary Henderson and DPS Sergeant Chad Grange," he said.

Pitner said he will also be working (See CHIEF, Page 5)

FBI warns of 'spectacular' terrorist attack

By CURT ANDERSON
 ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is warning that al-Qaida may be planning a "spectacular" terrorist attack intended to damage the U.S. economy and inflict large-scale casualties. The White House said Americans should remain vigilant, although it left the alert status unchanged.

"The American people are in many ways the first line of defense," said national security adviser Condoleezza Rice. She said the latest warning contained no new information, calling it instead a "summary of intelligence as we know it."

White House spokesman Scott McClellan cited the lack of any intelligence about specific time, date, location or method of possible attack as the reason for keeping the nation's official terrorist threat level at code yellow, the middle of a five-level scale of risk developed after the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks.

"We continue to be on high levels of alert, we continue to take additional precautions," McClellan said.

The FBI warning was unusual because of its dire language.

Rice, briefing reporters at the White House on President Bush's trip next week to Europe to attend a NATO summit, said a lot is being done by the administration behind the scenes to protect "critical infrastructure" around the country from possible attacks.

Safeguarding the nation against terrorism "is a central focus of this administration," she said. The campaign against terrorism is "a war that is many times being fought in the shadows, so it's not always on television screens," Rice added.

"The warnings that have gone out recently really are a summary of intelligence, not a new warning," she said.

Gordon Johnrdre, spokesman for the White House Office of Homeland Security, said that the new threats build on ones that the FBI and the White House have been making public since last month.

"Sources suggest al-Qaida may favor spectacular attacks that meet several criteria: High symbolic value, mass casualties, severe damage to the U.S. economy and maximum psychological trauma," says the alert, which was posted on the FBI's Web site early Friday after its existence was reported by The New York Times and The Associated Press.

The highest priority targets remain within the aviation, petroleum and nuclear sectors, as well as significant national landmarks, the warning says.

Pakistani who shot two CIA employees executed in Virginia

JARRATT, Va. (AP) — A Pakistani man who gunned down two CIA employees outside the agency's headquarters was executed under tight security in Virginia, while armed soldiers patrolled the streets in his hometown in Pakistan to guard against retaliation.

No violence had been reported by Friday evening.

Aimal Khan Kasi, given a lethal injection, softly chanted "There is no God but Allah" until he lost consciousness Thursday night at the Greensville Correctional Center.

His execution focused international attention on the tiny town of Jarratt, where security around the prison was greatly increased in response to warnings from the State Department that his death might put Americans in danger. After Kasi's conviction in 1997, four Americans were shot to death in Karachi, Pakistan.

State troopers accompanied Kasi into the death chamber. Two correctional officers with shotguns stood on each side of the road near the prison entrance, and several armed officers were posted in front of the prison.

Kasi, 38, told The Associated Press last week he had no regrets about the 1993 killings but did not want any retaliation for his execution. Kasi's family near Quetta, Pakistan, also pleaded for calm.

"Kasis are a peaceful tribe. We want peaceful solutions to every problem," said his older brother, Nasibullah Kasi. "We do not want the Kasi name to be used to harm anybody."

Kasi killed CIA communications worker Frank Darling, 28, and CIA analyst and physician Lansing Bennett, 66, as they sat in their cars at a stoplight in McLean. Three other men — another CIA analyst, an engineer and an AT&T employee — were (See PAKISTANI, Page 5)

Teacher, students wrestle gunman to ground

SCURRY (AP) — A shot-gun-wielding man believed to be a former student threatened a rural East Texas high school until students and a teacher wrestled him to the ground Friday morning, authorities said.

The 20-year-old man went into the school office and ordered students into the school cafeteria at about 8:30 a.m. at Scurry-Rosser High School, Dallas, said Principal Larry Sneed.

The man reportedly began pouring gasoline on the floor. Students then jumped him and subdued him.

"He did not say a word, didn't really look at anybody," said Courtney Robertson, a junior at the high school. "Everybody was crying, it was horrible. We thought we were all going to die."

Robertson said a teacher and Principal Larry Sneed slowly walked up to the man and grabbed the gun, then wrestled him to the floor.

"I shoved the barrel up toward the air," Sneed said. "I got it around his neck so I could hold him and a couple of football players and teachers came up and we got the weapon secured. He never said a word."

A Kaufman County Sheriff's Office dispatcher said the man was in custody.

Sneed, who said the man was a former student, dismissed classes for the day.

"From what I understand he was a former student. I've been here two years I did not know him. Supposedly he made a statement he was looking for a former principal that was here. When he was told he wasn't here he turned around and walked out of the office and started squirting gasoline down the hallway of the school," Sneed said.

Sneed said the suspect claimed he had planted bombs in the area. Police were sweeping schools looking for evidence of bombs.

School district superintendent Steve Nash said no bombs had been found.

The school has an enrollment of about 220 students.

Florida sinkhole swallows barn; two horses die

SANFORD, Fla. (AP) — A 50-foot-wide, 30-foot-deep sinkhole destroyed a barn, killing two horses despite rescuers' desperate efforts to save the second one Friday.

Bob Bonwit had returned home from his nursing job Thursday night and was walking to his barn to feed carrots to his horses when he discovered the sinkhole had engulfed the barn.

"I nearly stepped into it," Bonwit said. "The whole world was wrong."

The horses were at the bottom of the pit, which was filling rapidly with groundwater. By the time Seminole County sheriff's officials and other fire-rescue personnel had arrived, the older horse, Jack, 17, had drowned.

The other horse, 13-year-old Magic, was perched atop the dead horse, barely keeping its nose above water.

Rescue workers were able to place a harness around Magic's body early Friday morning and tried to lift him out of the hole, but his back legs were stuck in the mud. He eventually died.

Bonwit's house is close to the sinkhole, but authorities could not say if that structure was in danger.

Sanford is 19 miles north of Orlando. Sinkholes occur when sand beneath the surface begins to erode and falls into underlying limestone cavities, causing the surface to collapse. Several factors may contribute to the collapse, including drought, excessive water pumping, traffic, construction or heavy rain.

The geology of Florida makes it especially vulnerable to sinkholes.

Key allies support decision to suspend American oil deliveries to North Korea

NEW YORK (AP) — Demanding the speedy elimination of North Korea's nuclear program, key allies backed the U.S. decision to suspend future oil deliveries to North Korea as punishment for its secret program to develop a uranium-based bomb.

South Korea, Japan, the European Union and the United States said in a joint statement Thursday after a daylong meeting that future shipments will depend on North Korea's "concrete and credible actions" to completely dismantle its highly enriched uranium program. This must be done "in a visible and verifiable manner," it said.

The isolated, communist nation is destitute and depends heavily on the U.S. oil shipments. The United States and its allies are hoping the prospect of a cold winter for millions of North Koreans will pressure Pyongyang to abandon its nuclear ambitions.

"We strongly ask North Korea to take our message seriously and scrap its plan to develop nuclear arms immediately," Japan's Chief Cabinet Secretary Yasuo Fukuda said Friday.

The three allies gave their support to the suspension a day after President Bush made a decision to stop oil shipments, accusing North Korea of violating a 1994 agreement with the United States in which it pledged to become a state free of nuclear weapons.

In exchange for the pledge, the United States had promised to provide more than 500,000 tons of heavy oil per year. In addition, South Korea and Japan offered to pay most of the cost for two light water nuclear reactors that are of limited use for a country intent on developing nuclear weapons. The fate of that project is unclear.

The European Union, the United States, Japan and South Korea are members of the Korean Peninsula Energy Development Organization, known as KEDO, which operates the 8-year-old oil assistance program.

The KEDO statement said the suspension would begin with the December shipment. In light of the oil cutoff, "other KEDO activities with North Korea will be reviewed," it said. Other programs include economic aid and construction projects.

The allies coupled the suspension with a condemnation of North Korea for violating the 1994 agreement and its treaty obligations to remain nuclear-free. They also warned that North Korea's future relations with South Korea, Japan, the European Union and the United States "hinge on the complete and permanent elimination of its nuclear weapons program."

North Korea's nuclear program threatens regional and international security and undermines the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, the allies said.

Bush decided to suspend the oil shipments following North Korea's acknowledgment of its uranium bomb program on Oct. 4 during a meeting with U.S. officials in Pyongyang. His only concession was to agree to allow a vessel already en route to North Korea to deliver a final oil shipment.

Before the suspension was announced, Secretary of State Colin Powell told a news conference in Ottawa, Canada: "We cannot continue to provide fuel in this manner, in light of North Korean violation of the understanding."

Australian authorities clash with protesters

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Hundreds of protesters tried to storm a meeting of trade representatives in Australia on Friday, pulling at a steel fence around the conference site before police pushed them back. Thirty-five people were arrested.

Chanting "WTO and CIA are the real terrorists of the world today!" the protesters marched down one of Sydney's busiest roads, tying up traffic as they headed to the meeting at a hotel in Sydney's Olympic Park.

Inside, the 25 members of the World Trade Organization were trying to strike a deal to provide cheaper drugs to developing countries — a crucial step in efforts to negotiate a new global trade pact, Australia's trade minister said.

As many as 1,000 protesters tried to rip down sections of steel mesh surrounding the hotel on the second and final day of the talks. They said they were protesting globalization and a possible war with Iraq.

Riot police charged the crowd and formed a human chain to prevent demonstrators from getting close to the hotel while other officers repaired the breaches and dragged protesters off.

Police said 35 people were arrested and would likely be charged with trespassing and violent disorder.

An Associated Press photographer was briefly held before being released without charges.

Such protests have become routine at trade gatherings around the world. Police in Italy said an estimated 500,000 demonstrators attended a protest against the war and globalization in the Italian city of Florence earlier this month.

Determined tornado victims marry one day late despite losses, injuries

HARRIMAN, Tenn. (AP) — A tornado that destroyed their home and half of their community didn't stop the wedding of an injured bride and groom, who tied the knot just one day late by moving the ceremony from a church to an intensive care unit.

Jimmi Langley wore white — and bandages from head to toe — when she married Ronnie Ray from a hospital bed at Roane Medical Center on Thursday, four days after a tornado struck the rural Mossy Grove community.

"The wedding date had been set for Wednesday," Langley said after the wedding. "November 13 was the two-year anniversary of when we met, and we wanted to get married on that day. But I had to have more surgery Tuesday and we couldn't. I was determined not to put it off any longer."

The couple had taken shelter in Langley's home when the storm hit. The tornado was one of a string of weekend twisters that killed 17 in Tennessee, including five in Mossy Grove.

"One minute I was in the bathtub with everything blowing up around me," Ray said. "Next thing I know, I'm on the ground and Jimmi is gone."

Ray was cut on his face, arms, and back and is severely bruised on his legs and chest.

The tornado hurled Langley and the tub a hundred yards across the street.

Langley said that "the ride was fine. It was all just all the other things flying through the air and hitting me."

She suffered two broken legs, a broken arm and deep gashes on her hips and ankles, including a cut from a piece of kitchen countertop that slit her hip open to the bone. She is in intensive care, unable to stand or raise her arms, and faces a series of operations.

Hospital workers and the community rallied to make the wedding possible.

Paperwork was refilled, because the wedding certificate blew away in the storm.

ATTACK

likelihood of success may be as important to a weakened al-Qaida as the target's prominence," according to the warning.

"Thus, al-Qaida's next attack may rely on conventional explosives and low-technology platforms such as truck bombs, commercial or private aircraft, small watercraft, or explosives easily concealed and planted by terrorist operatives," it said.

The White House is sensitive to criticism from Democrats that the focus on Iraq is distracting Bush's attention from the broader war on terrorism. "He does not start his day on Iraq. He begins his day on the threat level ... and the war on terrorism," Rice told reporters.

Yet she acknowledged the war against al-Qaida is far from over.

"I don't think we can be certain of what role Osama bin Laden is or is not playing" in the re-emergence of al-Qaida, Rice said. She walked through a long list of victories the United States and its allies have had in the war on terrorism, including the victory in its home base of Afghanistan and the disruption of cells in Buffalo, N.Y., and Germany.

Federal authorities previously have issued warnings for specific industries and national landmarks in general. But there is clearly worry that the danger of an attack is growing because of increased "chatter" picked up through intelligence channels, the continuing U.S. showdown with Iraq and the recently revealed audiotaped warnings believed to be from al-Qaida leader Osama bin Laden.

The government's additional precautions include unspecified "additional steps to ramp up our protection and prevention measures" within federal agencies, he said. The FBI and other agencies also are communicating possible threats and assessments of risk to state and local law enforcement agencies and specific industries that could be targeted.

In recent weeks, the FBI has issued warnings about possible attacks on U.S. railroads and on the energy industry, as well as a more general warning about heightened risk during the Muslim holy month of Ramadan, which started Wednesday and ends Dec. 5.

"We're especially sensitive to timeframes which might be thought by the enemy to be a time when they might want to make a statement," Attorney General John Ashcroft said.

On Wednesday, the FBI told authorities in Houston, Chicago, San Francisco and Washington to be aware of threats against hospitals. Even though that threat was assigned low credibility by senior law enforcement officials, the FBI is preferring to err on the side of caution in terms of giving out information, officials said.

The idea is to increase vigilance among local police and people working in industries that are potential targets.

Last week, the State Department warned that Thursday's execution of Pakistani Aimal Khan Kasi in Virginia could lead to reprisals against Americans. Two days after his November 1997 conviction, assailants shot and killed four American oil company workers in Karachi, Pakistan. Kasi was executed for killing two CIA employees in a 1993 shooting outside the agency's headquarters.

The recent nightclub bombing in Bali, Indonesia, the assault on Marines in Kuwait and the attack on a French oil tanker near Yemen — as well as the U.S. strike on a car carrying suspected terrorists, also in Yemen — are described by several law enforcement officials as actions that point to an increased threat.

PAKISTANI

wounded as Kasi shot into a row of stopped cars with a semiautomatic AK-47 rifle.

He fled the country and spent most of the next 4 1/2 years hiding in and around the city of Kandahar in southern Afghanistan. He was caught in a hotel while visiting Pakistan in 1997 and was returned to the United States.

Kasi confessed to the slayings during the return flight, saying he was angry over CIA meddling in Muslim nations.

One of the prosecutors who helped convict Kasi witnessed the execution.

"I'm satisfied that justice was done," said Raymond F. Morrogh, Fairfax County chief deputy commonwealth attorney.

Also present for the execution was FBI agent Brad Garrett, who was on the investigative team that found Kasi in Pakistan.

Garrett told CBS' "Early Show" Friday that he agreed to come to the execution because Kasi had asked him, adding that talking to suspects was part of his job as an agent. "Was Mr. Kasi an interesting person to deal with? Absolutely. Did he have a bad side and a good side? Absolutely."

He said Kasi felt somewhat apologetic toward victims' relatives but was "not remorseful about the act itself." He also said he was inclined to believe Kasi's claim that he acted alone.

Kasi spent Thursday in a cell a few feet from Virginia's death chamber. He met with two of his brothers, his attorneys and his spiritual adviser, corrections spokesman Larry Traylor said.

For his last meal, he requested fried rice, bananas, boiled eggs and wheat bread, Traylor said.

No family members of the victims attended the execution.

About 80 death penalty opponents held a candlelight vigil in a field near the prison. Bundled against the cold, they read the names of the 87 people Virginia has executed since capital punishment was reinstated in 1982, along with their victims. A Muslim cleric read a prayer in English and Arabic.

Hours before the execution, the U.S. Supreme Court rejected an appeal and Gov. Mark R. Warner denied a request for clemency, saying Kasi had "shown absolutely no remorse for his actions."

Some Pakistani politicians pleaded with American officials to spare Kasi's life, saying commutation could "win the hearts of millions" and help the United States in its war on terrorism. Hundreds of religious students protested in Pakistan this week, warning Americans there that they would not be safe if Kasi was executed.

In Kasi's hometown of Quetta on Friday, an extra 2,000 heavily armed paramilitary troops patrolled the streets.

The family of Judy Becker-Darling, widow of Frank Darling, hoped for calm.

"We will spend time in prayer for Kasi, that God will have mercy on his soul, for his family, that there be no terrorism reprisal, and for world peace," the family said in a statement.

CHIEF

closely with 31st District Attorney Rick Roach and Gray County Attorney Todd Alvey.

He and his wife Ashly are excited about living in the Texas Panhandle.

A native of Snyder, Pitner said he loves the Texas Panhandle weather. "I really don't think the wind blows are much here as it does at Snyder," he said.

Ashly teaches second grade at Sanford-Fritch schools and she will finish out the year. He said she hopes to find a teaching position close to Pampa.

The couple is expecting their first child in March, and learned last week it is going to be a girl. Pitner has a 13-year-old daughter, Kelbi, by a previous marriage.

"She lives in Snyder," he said. "She is so excited about the baby."

House-hunting keeps the couple busy on weekends, he said. In the meantime, he is commuting the 40-mile one-way trip.

In his off-time, Pitner said he enjoys getting out on his motorcycle.

"It's a release from the tensions in the work," he said. He also has a pilot license and hunts and fishes.

The new chief enjoys his chosen profession. "It's nice to be in a profession that I both love and have fun," he said. "Too many people are in jobs they don't like. Life is too short for that."

RELIGION

Cupholders, cushions take seat in churches

PERRYSBURG, Ohio (AP) — Laurie Wuerfel and her two young sons slipped their coffee and hot chocolate into the cupholders, eased into cushioned chairs and waited for the sermon to start.

"Who wants to sit in church if you're uncomfortable," said Wuerfel as she sat in the burgundy theater-style seats at CedarCreek Church in suburban Toledo. "I grew up in a Catholic church, and I hated sitting on those benches."

Some denominations are increasingly moving away from rigid, wooden pews that have been around for centuries, manufacturers say. Chairs with cupholders, and plenty of space and padding are finding their way into churches where clergy say the seat can be as important as the message.

"For many first-timers, the only way they make contact with the church is on their behind," said Steve Korn, a teaching pastor at CedarCreek, a non-denominational Christian church. "If they're comfortable, like the service and the building, they'll probably come back."

The 1,400 seats in the church's 2-month-old building have 4-inch padding and cupholders.

Mike Wedel, president of Garnett Church Furnishings, which has been making pews since 1879 in Garnett, Kan., said pews also have been getting wider and more comfortable in recent years.

"I don't know if it's because rumps have gotten bigger or because of the demand for more comfort," he said.

Theater-style seats are popular in large, new Christian churches, southern Baptist churches and synagogues, said Les Lundberg, worship sales manager for Irwin Seating Co.

Still, some denominations — such as the Roman Catholic church — prefer traditional pews, said Lundberg and other seat makers.

In early churches through medieval times, worshippers stood throughout services, said Duncan Stroik, an associate professor of architecture at Notre Dame University. Pews began appearing as sermons lengthened.

Stroik said the current trend of theater-style seating is a throwback to a movement in the mid-19th century, when Protestant churches in America modeled their buildings after theaters with sloping floors and individual seats.

Within a few decades, churches and architects wanted to return to a more traditional look and began designing simpler worship buildings.

The new boom in comfortable church seats has coincided with the growth in the last decade of mega-churches that seat thousands.

"The theater has become the model again," Stroik said.

Irwin Seating, one of the world's biggest seat makers, jumped into church seating within the last year after installing seats in places such as Carnegie Hall in New York and Atlanta Motor Speedway.

"We expect we'll double our business in the next five years," Lundberg said. The Grand Rapids, Mich.-based company, which only installs the theater-style seats, now works on up to 15 church projects a month, he said.

Part of the strategy of putting comfortable seats in churches is to attract those who may have been turned off by traditional denominations.

"They're almost looking for a non-church look," Lundberg said.

The company is hoping to expand its reach into denominations such as the Roman Catholic church.

"We're never going to sell there until we develop a kneeler option," Lundberg said. "What you fight is really tradition."

Sauder Manufacturing of Archbold, Ohio, which says it is the nation's largest maker of church pews, says its sales have increased over the last two years.

Sauder's designers and engineers work on making church pews that retain a traditional look while still providing comfort.

Leaders at Montgomery Community Baptist Church near Cincinnati decided on a compromise when building a new sanctuary in 1998 — wooden pews with individual padding, made by Sauder.

"You still see pews when you walk in from the back of the room," said building supervisor John Sedziol. "For some people, that's important."

St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in Auburn, N.Y., chose wooden pews without padding during a renovation in 1997.

Church leaders wanted the pews to retain the traditional look inside the sanctuary but didn't want padding because they were worried it would muffle voices. The pews are better designed than older pews and provide better back support.

Presbyterians collecting cans

Empty aluminum cans are needed for the Dec. 7 downtown celebration, "Come Back to Christmas." Sponsored by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, this event welcomes churches and civic groups to have booths for bake sales, entertainment, and — as First Presbyterian Church is doing — collecting aluminum cans.

This collection is to help raise funds for The Heifer Project, an agricultural service agency that provides farm animals for families and villages around the world, giving them a chance to improve their economy.

First Presbyterian Church members have been involved in collecting empty aluminum cans for several years, which they recycle for funds to send to The Heifer Project. This year they are attempting to "buy" an Ark. An ark costs $5000. But for a limited time, an anonymous donor is matching any gift 3 to 1, so $1,250 raised locally turns into $5000 for The Heifer Project.

Aluminum can donations can be brought to the First Presbyterian Church booth at the northeast corner of Kingsmill and Cuyler streets from 9:00 am to 4:00 pm.

For more information, call First Presbyterian Church at 665-1031. To learn more about The Heifer Project, call 1-800-698-2511 or log on to www.heifer.org.

God's house cannot crumble

Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord and the people whom he has chosen for his own inheritance.

— Psalm 33:12

God has given us a pleasant land, a very fruitful land, a land blessed with intelligence, liberty and Christian faith. This country of ours has a Godly heritage. We believe it was wise forethought in our fathers which led them to set apart Independence Day for yearly observance when the attention of all our people would be turned toward a review of our past history and toward a consideration of questions bearing upon our future national interests and welfare.

One of the facts of the day should fix in our minds is that the founders of our republic recognized God. The last sentence of the Declaration of Independence reads "And for the support of this Declaration with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge..."

We may learn also from this day something of the power of woman's influence. When Great Britain placed a tax on silk, the women of America said, "We will wear no silk." when a tax was placed on tea, they said, "We will drink no tea." While history speaks of the Warrens and the Jaspers, let it not fail to mention also the women of the Revolution and let us not forget the influence of women today upon the nation's welfare.

We may learn also from Independence Day the necessity for putting one's heart into one's work. The signers of the Declaration of Independence pledged their "lives, fortunes, and sacred honor." All they had they threw into that movement for independence.

Let us learn lastly the importance of committing one's self publicly to the support of right principles. Fifty-six men put their names on the Declaration of Independence. Placing a name there meant victory or death. Had they not committed themselves thus publicly, they would have been more likely to waver before the war ceased. After the names were down, there was no retreat.

As Benjamin Franklin said, "We must either hang together or hang separately. Our victory is not that of force but of divine ideas. The house of evil is crumbling faster than it can be built. The house of God cannot crumble; it is eternal."

DEAR ABBY

written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanna Phillips

Student Plans Post-Graduate Dating Course With Teacher

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with my teacher. I'm 18, he is 23 and single. I have been in love with him since I met him 18 months ago. He hasn't done anything that could cost him his career, but there have been times when he has shown interest in me. Recently, though, I was told by the principal to "be careful." Not to stop, mind you — just be careful. I still love him as much as I ever did, but I can't show it. I graduate in December and was planning on talking to him about this then. Between now and then, though, what should I do?

IN LOVE IN LA FAYETTE, GA.

DEAR IN LOVE: Until then, you and the teacher should do as the principal urged. Be careful. If you don't, you could harm your reputation and this young man's career.

The best advice I can offer is to play it cool — very cool — until at least six months after you graduate. That way, if your interest is reciprocated, he cannot be accused of jumping the gun and starting a relationship while you were still a student. This may seem like a long time to wait, but it's best for both of you. Tongues will wag even then, so I urge you not to give them grist for the rumor mill.

DEAR ABBY: My live-in boyfriend constantly gives me hickeys. Despite the fact that I have asked him not to, he intentionally marks my neck and throat on a weekly basis.

I am in my mid-20s and find these bright-red marks both unprofessional and unnecessary. I have also tried wearing perfume or moisturizer on my neck to get him to stop.

How do I prevent the hickeys, or do I have to get rid of the boyfriend? EMBARRASSED IN ORLANDO

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Either your boyfriend has an immature sense of humor, or he is making the marks so others will know he is intimate with you. I can understand your embarrassment in the workplace.

Tell him the hickeys have to go — or he will. You shouldn't have to spend the rest of your life wearing turtleneck sweaters because you have a boyfriend who is insecure unless he has "marked his territory."

DEAR ABBY: Prior to my older sister's recent death, she shared a family secret. She told me that in the 1960s, while he was serving in the U.S. military in a foreign country, our brother had fathered a child. He was young and fresh out of high school.

My sister said our now-deceased mother had opened a letter addressed to my brother from the baby's mother saying his child was born. She read it — and tore it up. To my sister's knowledge, Mother never shared the news with my brother.

Now that I am over the shock, I am struggling as to what to do with this information — if anything. (My brother is happily married with grown children.)

What would you do? CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR CAUGHT: Since the woman had your mother's address in the States, she clearly was more than a one-night stand. If I were you, I would tell my brother privately. He has a right to know.

Lefors freshman off to fast start on cross country career

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

LEFORS — For Rachel Stubbs, the 2002 cross country season may have been just the beginning of an outstanding high school career.

Stubbs, a 14-year-old Lefors freshman, went against more experienced runners at the Class 1A state meet last weekend in Round Rock. She covered the 3,200-meter course in 12:33.20, good enough for sixth place individually in the girls' division. Stubbs wasn't that far behind winner Christy Reynolds of Forestburg, who had a time of 12:11.55.

"Rachel is a natural runner and she just keeps getting stronger," said Lefors coach Craig Summers.

The slender long-legged Stubbs came close to having a perfect record going into the state meet.

After taking third in the first meet of the season, she went unbeaten until Round Rock.

Stubbs placed first individually as she led Lefors to the district team championship. Stubbs won the regional title and Lefors placed 12th in the team standings.

"Rachel did what she had to do to win and her teammates helped her all year long," coach Summers said. "All of them are good runners and they're good girls. I'm proud of all of them."

Stubbs and teammates Kayla Andis, Jonelle Tinney, Alicia Whitehead, Savannah Smith, Amanda Daugherty and Lindsay Duckworth were recognized by the school board during its regular meeting Thursday.

Stubbs was an instant success in her first year of cross country. Dominating the competition at every middle school meet, she won district as both a 7th grader and 8th grader.

Stubbs, who is also an outstanding student, says her favorite sport is basketball, not cross country.

"You may as well do what you're good at," she pointed out. "I'm hoping I can win state at least one year. That's my goal."

Rachel Stubbs and coach Craig Summers display the district championship trophy Lefors won this year.

BASEBALL

TOKYO (AP) — Barry Bonds outslugged Japanese star Hideki Matsui in a home-run hitting contest Friday at Tokyo Dome.

Bonds, who hit 46 homers in the regular season, defeated major league prospect Matsui 8-5 in the showdown before Game 5 of the seven-game exhibition series between the major league all-stars and their Japanese counterparts.

Bonds hit four out of 10 homers in the first round while Matsui managed only one. The National League MVP added four more in the second half, and won when Matsui failed to connect on his fifth swing.

"It was great to go up against Matsui," Bonds said. "I hope to do it again one day in the States."

Bonds walked over to Matsui after he finished his first 10 swings and massaged the shoulders of the former Yomiuri Giants slugger, telling him to relax. The advice paid off as Matsui connected for four homers, including one into the upper row of seats in right field.

"At least I had five homers, and 8-5 looks pretty good to me," said Matsui, who led Japan's Central League with 50 homers this season.

"I really admire his power, and he sure is the No. 1 hitter in the world. He told me to relax and also told me to close my shoulder. It was a memorable day for me."

The 28-year-old Matsui has struggled so far in the seven-game series, going 3-for-19 with no homers.

Bonds has three homers, including a grand slam that lifted the major leaguers to a 6-5 win over the Japanese all-stars Thursday.

A&M's McNeal earns starting spot

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M quarterback Reggie McNeal and Missouri quarterback Brad Smith took different paths to their starting roles.

Even before he enrolled at Texas A&M, McNeal predicted he'd be starting within four or five games. It took him 10. At Missouri, Smith spent his first year running the scout team.

"I just don't think it's the right thing to do," Missouri coach Gary Pinkel said of playing freshman quarterbacks. "In fact, I think most quarterbacks, you want to train for a couple of years and start them as redshirt sophomores."

McNeal defied Pinkel's theory last week. He exploded into the spotlight by throwing four touchdown passes and leading the Aggies to a 30-26 upset of then No. 1 ranked Oklahoma.

His performance earned him his first start against the Tigers on Saturday in a battle of Big 12 also-rans aspiring for late-season positioning.

"I've been trying to ease him along," A&M coach R.C. Slocum said. "I know how quickly bad things can happen to young quarterbacks. If you have too many bad things happen to you, it does start to affect your confidence and you start questioning your ability."

The Aggies are having a tumultuous season. McNeal is the Aggies' third starting quarterback this season. Slocum stripped offense coordinator Dino Babers of his play-calling duties after the third game and gave them to assistant head coach Kevin Sumlin.

The Aggies blew big leads to Texas Tech and Nebraska before pulling off the big upset against the Sooners.

Now, they'll try to push forward against the Tigers (4-6), who have played tough and still lost against top competition this season.

The Aggies see Smith, a redshirt freshman, as a mirror of McNeal, who froze Oklahoma's defense with his ability to run.

"He's a guy similar to Reggie," Slocum said. "He's got an excellent arm and he's got excellent running skills. He's a gifted athlete. I see him throw some great passes and he has a good awareness."

'Horns take reborn title hopes to unruly Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Once written off as a pretender, Texas spent the last month crawling its way back into the national championship picture.

Now the Longhorns have to make sure it doesn't slip away in one afternoon in Lubbock.

The No. 4 Longhorns (9-1, 5-1 Big 12) take their four-game winning streak to Texas Tech (7-4, 4-2) on Saturday, where Red Raiders quarterback Kliff Kingsbury has made a career out of carving up defenses.

Kingsbury leads the Big 12 in passing with 362 yards per game and 35 touchdowns. He's spread the ball around to 20 different receivers and even threw a pass to himself when a ball got deflected off a player and came back to him.

"The type of offense they run, they score points on you quick," said Texas linebacker Reed Boyd, who noted Tech's late comebacks in overtime games against North Carolina State (a loss) and Texas A&M (a win).

"You can't let up, even with a little lead or a substantial one," Boyd said. "They're going to fight the entire game."

Texas counters with a defense that leads the Big 12 and ranks second nationally in pass defense, limiting opponents to 125 yards a game.

The 'Horns' pass rush may be limited because the defensive line is banged up with nagging injuries. Two starters, Kalen Thornton (ankle) and Marcus Tubbs (calf) were held out of last week's win over Baylor and are listed as questionable for Saturday.

Cornerbacks Rod Babers and Nathan Vasher and safety Dakarai Pearson, who have 11 interceptions between them, will be counted on to shut down Tech receivers.

Today is Texas Recycles Day.

This year, there is a special focus on reuse. One way you can be part of Texas Recycles Day is to take your own reusable bags from home for groceries. You can also reuse by donating used items to charity rather than throwing them away. To find out more about reuse and recycling, visit www.TexasRecyclesDay.org or call Keep Texas Beautiful at 1-800-CLEAN-TX.

Horoscope BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Nov. 16, 2002.
 You might be unusually focused on work this year. You demonstrate a capacity to get a lot done effectively and quickly. You have high energy when focused. However, one of your issues this year will be your ability to communicate your dissatisfaction before it builds to anger. Also learn ways to rid yourself of stress. You will gain professionally with a promotion or even a pay raise. Others often look to you for answers. You will get much more of what you want emotionally during September 2003. If you are single, you could meet that special person in the next 12 months. If you are attached, your relationship will benefit from learning how to handle your stress. Plan a special trip together for September. ARIES works well with you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have:
 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 ***** You appear to have the magic touch. Whatever you do, you do well, with perhaps the exception of that special relationship. Understand what makes you tick, especially regarding your personal needs. A partner lets you know if you cross the line. Tonight: Smile away. TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 ***** Work demands your attention, whether you like it or not. If it doesn't, a responsibility in some other form knocks on your door. Respond accordingly. Attempt to schedule some free time just for yourself. You'll need some recycling time. Tonight: Do your thing. GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 ***** Your efforts do make a difference. Don't discount them. You sometimes feel as if you take wild stabs in the dark to help others. Join with a friend to loosen up and lighten up. Remember that this is your weekend, too. Tonight: Where your friends are. Invite a loved one along. CANCER (June 21-July 22)

 ***** A partner gives you unusual feedback. You might be confused by what he or she means, but also delighted on another level. Go with what you think you heard. Forget reality for now! A must appearance could be in conflict with some personal matters. Tonight: Perform a juggling act. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 ***** Reach out for others. Your ability to understand helps you with a key associate or partner. Suggest a drive in the country or doing something different. Don't overly intellectualize. Someone could be baiting you for a fight. Tonight: Where music can be heard. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 ***** Use caution with your finances, though you might want to dote on someone. Remember, there are many ways to indulge a loved one. Start using your imagination. Plans change radically before you know it. Go with the flow. Tonight: Say "yes" to a loved one. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
 ***** Though your inclination could be to defer to your partner or friend, you find that in the end, you become quite angry. Avoid harsh words: Remember that you decided to defer. In that sense, you made a decision. Flow with opportunities. Tonight: Out and about. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 ***** Stay close to home if you like. Others decide to seek you out. You might not realize how much of a difference you do make to loved ones and parents. Resist lashing out at a loved one or associate. You could be overly tired. Tonight: Soak in a hot, bubbly bath. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 ***** Your playful side emerges when dealing with others. Speak your mind but don't be surprised if someone reacts or gets his or her dander up. You might not be ready for the "fireball" you provoke. Talk through a problem. Tonight: Dance away any stress. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 ***** What someone else might adore could be your anathema. You could find yourself quite put out by plans and/or what an authority figure decides you need to do. How you say "no" could make all the difference. Tonight: Put your feet up and relax. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 ***** Reach out for those in your immediate surroundings. As social as you might be, you could forget to make an important call to a friend or associate. You'll hear about your forgetfulness later. Give this person a ring before you walk out the door. Tonight: Where the action is. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 ***** Your efforts help someone verbalize what ails them. Be smart and don't take his or her comments personally. Get into a project at home that might be long overdue. You could be surprised by what you accomplish. Tonight: Your treat.
