DEAR ABBY

written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jenna Phillips

Woman Not in Giving Mood For Office Gift Exchange

DEAR ABBY: I work for a small company with 25 employees. Four of us are in the office all day — all women. To put it mildly, I have never felt accepted by these "ladies." During this past year, they've been especially hateful to me. Other employees tell me it's pure jealousy. My problem: The holidays are now here. What should I do about participating in the traditional gift exchange at the office? Should I buy each gal a gift out of the spirit of giving, even though I have no desire to do so? Or should I make it clear that I do not wish to exchange presents, which could make matters worse? I feel stuck, Abby. Please help me out.

TO GIVE OR NOT TO GIVE IN WASHINGTON STATE

DEAR TO GIVE OR NOT TO GIVE: Buy a lovely pastry or some other treat that everyone in the office can enjoy. Include a card with it that reads: "My budget this year does not allow me to give individual gifts to each of you. — Enjoy! Merry Christmas." That way, you'll have participated "in the spirit of giving" without feeling hypocritical.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old single mother of five. I have been married and divorced three times. Right now that's the least of my problems. I've been dating "Gordy" for two years, and the idea of marriage has crossed my mind more than once.

Gordy loves my kids and they love him, but he says he's not ready to make the kind of commitment that comes with marriage. The kids are not the problem; I don't have custody. I get them only every other weekend and holidays, so it's not the responsibility of taking care of a big family that's holding Gordy back. He says he'd be OK with all that. I'm afraid my past three failed marriages bother him. All he's willing to admit is that he's "not ready."

Abby, I feel that I am ready. Should I sit back and give Gordy more time, or confront him and give an ultimatum? Please help.

CONFUSED AND TIRED OF WAITING

DEAR CONFUSED: Let me get this straight. You've had three failed marriages and five children by age 26 — and now, at 28, you're tired of waiting for yet another man to propose?

I should think you'd be grateful for the respite. Please take more time to get to know yourself better and get counseling to understand why your last three marriages failed before you embark on a fourth trip to the altar.

A final thought: Never issue an ultimatum unless you're prepared to lose.

DEAR ABBY: I am not an astronomer or a religious person. I just like to have a heart-to-heart talk with God whenever I am outdoors under the stars and moonlight sky. I think they make a great pair. Is there a religion that encourages this? Thank you.

J.B. IN WATERLOO, N.Y.

DEAR J.B.: All religions encourage meditation — which is what you are describing. You don't even have to do it under the moon and the stars. Talking to the God that dwells in your heart is enough, because God is everywhere.

DEAR ABBY: is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeane Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

board) can do something for someone about," he said. He said grant proposals are reviewed by the grant committee which is composed of THF directors.

Pitner said THF is a non-profit organization, explaining if a group of people seeking financial assistance to preserve a historic structure or area establishes as a non-profit organization the THF could assist them by being a financial intermediary for people who donate money.

He said the THF also administers endowments and trusts for certain designated projects.

"Many times these are restricted to certain types of projects. They leave the money with us, and right now we have eight different funds we are working with," he said. Pitner said the funds operate from the interest earned on the principle placed in the special fund.

He said many phone calls the agency receives are intended for the state-run Texas Historical Commission. "That's okay, though," he said. "That gives us a chance to tell more people about who we are."

He said he visited with Larry Oaks, executive director of the THC, just a few days ago.

"When I told him I was coming to Pampa, he told me to check on the courthouse restoration project," he said. "I have been by to see it and intend to tell him it's doing fine."

THC awarded a $3.8 million grant to Gray County for the restoration, and Oaks has been in Pampa in connection with the project. Gray County received the largest grant ever awarded by the THC for the courthouse restoration project in Texas.

Pitner said he has learned a great deal about Texas history in the short time he has been executive director of THF.

He said he has learned that at one time one-third of San Antonio's population was of German ancestry.

"I'm just learning things all the time," he said.

He also spoke of the efforts of groups in the area who are working to preserve the history of the Red River Wars in the area and Lyman's Wagon Train project in Wheeler County.

Learning more about Pampa's history is a goal of Pitner as he plans to be visiting his son and his daughter-in-law often.

we could see a 10 billion bushel crop, which would be the first time since 1994 that we've seen a crop that large."

A tighter supply of cattle, the major input in the cattle feeding industry, combined with an increased supply of corn, the other major input in the industry, should translate to beef costs at the supermarket remaining steady.

"All this is going to relate to basically no change in the retail meat counter," Gill said.

Despite the tight supply of feeder cattle, cattle going into the feedyards, Gill said cattle feeders should see higher prices for the finished cattle coming out in 2003.

"The year 2002 was a pretty tough year for the cattle feeder," Gill said. "Really for about the last 18 months, up until the first of November, it's been awful tough. Equity losses in the cattle feeding business in Texas have probably been close to $400 million. It's only around the first of November that we began to get back into a profitable position in cattle feeding."

Gill said he hopes equity in the industry will begin to be built back up.

The year 2002, generally, was a tough year for cattle feeders, McDonald said.

In addition to losses in the market, McDonald said that legislation was proposed in Washington that would have regulated the ownership and marking of cattle and that will require country of origin labeling.

While the ownership legislation was defeated, country of origin labeling was passed. Under the new law, country of origin labeling is voluntary until September 2004, when it becomes mandatory. Such labeling will be costly and complex for the beef industry, McDonald said.

McDonald said he does not think that ownership regulations will return as a major issue in the industry in 2003. He said it was primarily a function of a Senate race this past fall on the northern Great Plains.

Another disappointment for the beef industry this past year, McDonald said, has been groups that have challenged the Beef Checkoff program. Each time an animal is sold, a dollar is collected for beef industry research and promotion.

"The Beef Checkoff program is what we use as an industry to fund new products for consumers," McDonald said. "It's what we use for funding consumer education and those types of programs."

The Beef Checkoff has been challenged in federal courts in Montana and in South Dakota. The federal judge in Montana ruled that the program was constitutional while the federal judge in South Dakota ruled it was unconstitutional.

McDonald said he expects the issue to be settled by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"That's been a real disappointment for us," McDonald said.

Another disappointment was the new Confined Animal Feeding Operation (CAFO) regulation announced by the Environmental Protection Agency Monday, which regulate cattle feeding operations.

"This was a project that started almost five years ago. It started in March 1998," McDonald said.

While Texas cattle feeders have long been involved in establishing environmental programs in the industry, the new rule could add a burden of reporting and record keeping that will increase costs to area feedyards.

Cattle feeding operations in other parts of the nation could suffer more, Ross Wilson, TCFA's vice president for legislative and regulatory affairs, said.

"CAFO regulations will be one of the major challenges next year," Gill said.

being surveyed to death. Agencies expend all these resources assessing the status quo and planning, but don't provide resources for implementation.

"It was interesting how different agency people responded to rural needs as compared to how rural residents responded. Agency people tended to say, 'Give us more money and we'll fix it for you.' Rural residents tended to say, 'Give us flexibility, give us responsibility, and give us the resources to do it ourselves,' Tessen said.

"In the agency world it's a sign of failure if you get appropriated less money by the legislature than the year before. But if we're able to take existing resources and make them more efficient by cross-fertilizing our goals with complementary programs in other agencies, why is that failure?" he added.

Tessen said that doing more with less is a much better governmental model than doing less with more.

"What if the sufficient resources to rebuild rural Texas are already there? What if we already have enough money? What if the challenge isn't getting more, but working smarter with what we've got?" he asked.

The first-ever rural Texas summit is being held in Austin on Feb. 19-20, bringing together a wide group of multi-disciplinary people involved in rural development.

What happens now with Cardinal Law gone?

By RICHARD N. OSTLING
AP RELIGION WRITER

Rank-and-file Roman Catholics driven by the clerical sex abuse crisis to fight for reform within the church are about to find out if their movement can handle success.

Some Catholic observers have credited pressure from the laity, in particular the fast-growing group Voice of the Faithful, for playing a role in Cardinal Bernard Law's decision last week to resign as archbishop of Boston. Voice leaders issued a call for Law to step down two days before he quit.

"Much as the institutional church is loath to admit the influence of outside pressure, especially from the laity, this time the pressure worked," said the Rev. Thomas Doyle, a longtime adviser to abuse victims.

While others question the laity's influence, the fact remains that Law — who tangled with Voice and was a prominent symbol of the church's mishandling of molestation claims — is out of the picture.

The question now is whether the laity will stay energized — particularly in Boston, the archdiocese most affected by the crisis — in the wake of Law's departure.

Deal Hudson, editor of the conservative Catholic magazine Crisis, says Law's situation means lay Catholics elsewhere "will be emboldened to make demands upon bishops and upon the Vatican."

But William Donohue of the Catholic League, an organization which defends the church, takes the opposite view.

"They're toast," he says. "Let's face it. If you have a goal of reforming the church in the midst of crisis and the epicenter has imploded, what's left?"

What's left, says Voice of the Faithful President James Post, is the long-term aim of changing church government, which never revolved around Law's removal.

The organization "is running a marathon, not a sprint," he says.

"When you look at this crisis you see mismanagement of personnel, mismanagement of information and mismanagement of money. Those are the arenas in which Catholic lay people have enormous talents to contribute," says Post, a business professor at Boston University.

And that's what Voice is all about, he maintains, denying the charge of some conservatives and bishops that the group seeks to undermine church teachings and the hierarchy's spiritual authority.

Voice originated in open forums at a suburban parish early this year. It grew rapidly and by July drew 4,000 supporters from 35 states to its first national rally.

Post is bullish about the group's prospects. He expects Law's permanent successor, who is still unnamed, will be more friendly toward the group.

Law rejected Voice's effort to channel $56,000 to designated Catholic causes. His interim replacement, Bishop Richard Lennon, will have to decide about another $50,000 in a few weeks.

Meanwhile, no bishops have lately joined those who forbid parishes to host Voice chapters. Also, the same day Law resigned, Voice of the Faithful learned it won federal tax-exempt status — a key to fund-raising and financial survival.

Post says Voice's membership of 25,000-plus is still growing, particularly in the New York City area and California.

He thinks California could become the 2003 equivalent of what Boston has been this year because the state is lifting the statute of limitations on abuse cases for one year. Dioceses there are bracing for an onslaught of lawsuits.

"Who knows what will be revealed in these records?" Post said. "But no doubt a lot of ugly and painful information will be released."

University of Notre Dame historian Scott Appleby says that if Boston-style documents appear in other dioceses "we can predict greater impact for Voice of the Faithful."

To Post, the American bishops "have lost a tremendous amount of moral authority with their people and stature in society." That can only be overcome by restoring trust among parishioners, he contends, and "that's going to be earned back through participation, not authority, through sunlight, not secrecy."

Even lay conservatives who distrust Voice of the Faithful agree that church culture must change.

Russell Shaw, a former spokesman for the U.S. bishops' conference, believes the events culminating in Law's departure "have produced a radical, permanent change in the way many American Catholics think of themselves in relation to the church and its leaders."

Chicago religious leaders join in march to protest war in Iraq

CHICAGO (AP) — More than 1,000 people joined local religious leaders protesting a possible war with Iraq.

Leaving from a vigil in a packed downtown church Sunday, protesters carried lit candles and sang "We Shall Overcome" and other protest songs while marching down Michigan Avenue.

"There is beginning to move in this nation a voice of sanity in the midst of insanity," Bishop C. Joseph Sprague, a leader of the United Methodist Church in Illinois, said to loud applause. "The polls are beginning to show that we are not as alone as we once thought we were."

The vigil came two weeks after the city's top Christian, Jewish and Muslim leaders drafted a joint letter to President Bush explaining their opposition to a pre-emptive strike on Iraq.

Events of the origin of Christmas

"... saying where is he that is born King of Jews? For we have seen his star in the east and are come to worship him." — Matthew 2:2

Christmas, Dec. 25, is an annual festival which celebrates the birth of Christ. This date is very uncertain and was not celebrated until possibly 300 years after Christ was born. The event is more important than the date. We will, therefore, consider the event surrounding the origin of Christmas.

Christ Was Born

The rich and people of average circumstances had found room in the inn, but Mary and Joseph were refused room and were glad, at last, to share a shelter with beasts of burden. It was upon this lonely night that Christ was born, born in obscurity. There was no telephone, telegram or broadcasting station to herald the good tidings of great joy to the world. The average man did not seem to be interested in the arrival of the newborn babe. To them it was just another baby. But there were a few God-fearing people who accepted the news with great jubilation.

The Shepherds in the Field
Luke 2:8-16

There were rich and educated people living in and around Bethlehem, also in Jerusalem only six miles away. But God preferred to notify first those humble shepherds of the appearance

Minister's Musings

JIMMY FLYNN, PH.D.
IGLESIA BAUTISTA EMANUEL

of the Savior into the world. Angels Appeared Unto Them

The first angel consoled them. "Fear not," he said and then stated his purpose. "I bring you good tidings of great joy." After announcing the birth of Christ, suddenly a multitude of the heavenly host appeared, praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest and on earth, peace, good will toward men."

The Shepherds Go In Search for Him

Leaving their flocks for the wild beasts to prey upon, they sought the young child. They found Mary and Joseph and the babe lying in a manger. Did it ever occur to you why God appeared to the shepherds first? It was only a pretty story to me until I learned the deeper meaning. These shepherds to whom the angels appeared were temple shepherds. They took care of the sheep that were offered as a sacrifice. In that day, if you desired to make a sacrifice you could not raise a sheep and offer it. You had to buy it from these experts who had a corner on the market. They were trained for this task and the sheep were bought from them.

When Christ appeared in the manger, the angel appeared to these men first to let them know that they were out of a job. The coming of Christ put them out of business. God was saying to them, "If you care for the Lamb of Sacrifice, go to the manger. There is my Lamb from now on. We are shifting gears; we are going into a new era. No more sheep killing; we are moving from the shadow to the substance. We are shifting from the figure to the reality; you are out of a job. The fullness of time has come and my Son will die on the cross for the sins of men because without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness."

Christmas Is a Time of Giving

Most of us give and receive Christmas gifts. I wonder if we know why our gifts should be significant, should be an expression of our appreciation of the gift that God gave us - John 3:16.

We give Christmas gifts as tokens of our love, our love to God who gave to us, our love to Christ who gave us all, our love to our friends in commemoration of the supreme gift unto man. Only God could have given the supreme gift, the life of no other would have atoned for our sins. Since Christmas originated in giving, it is right and proper for us to give to our friends on Christmas.

Have a merry, merry Christmas.

Pass offense made for exciting year

It wasn't a perfect season, but it had to be one of the most exciting ones in Pampa's football history.

Watching quarterback John Braddock at work in Pampa's pass-heavy offense was the primary reason for all the commotion.

Braddock would end up shattering school passing records, throwing for 2,857 yards and 23 touchdowns. The 6-2, 195-pound senior didn't just throw the ball up for grabs. He had a 65 percent passing efficiency with only nine interceptions in 13 games.

Tailback Johnny Moore and flanker Jesse Tarango, both just juniors, set records at the end of Braddock's tosses. Tarango had 83 catches for 1,083 yards and seven touchdowns while Moore had 93 receptions for 834 yards and six touchdowns.

Moore would certainly have added to those statistics if not for an ankle injury two minutes into Pampa's regional semi-final tilt with Denton Ryan. Moore finished as the team's leading rusher with 876 yards and seven TDs.

Braddock also targeted other receivers in Pampa's spread formation. Tight end Ryan Zemanek had five TD catches, fullback Seth Foster four and split end Jordan Klaus three.

Opponents would use different stunt packages and blitzes to try and slow Pampa's air attack, but few had any success.

Pampa's season would have a dubious start, losing to Class 3A Perryton 9-7 in the 2002 opener. Things would get much better.

There was more than just a touch of irony in the season. Pampa's only other regular-season losses were to Plainview and Dumas, two teams that didn't make the playoffs. But Pampa beat both Palo Duro and Randall, District 3-4A's other playoff representatives.

Pampa's heartbreaking 20-18 loss to Plainview was hard to handle because it put a damper on winning an outright district championship. Pampa's 31-21 setback to Dumas three weeks later was even tougher because it put the Harvesters in jeopardy of missing the playoffs.

If there was pressure, the die-hard Harvesters didn't show it. They chewed up Caprock 58-0 to clinch a playoff spot, then posted solid wins over Andrews 28-14 in bi-district and El Paso Riverside 27-7. It took a defending state champion to end the season, leaving the Harvesters with a 9-4 record.

For the third time in school annals, Pampa reached the third round of the playoffs. In 1991 the Harvesters advanced to the fourth round, which was the state quarterfinals.

Braddock, Zemanek, Klaus, center Brandon McElroy, guard Aaron Burrows, tackle Brian Watts, tackle Matt Murray, will all be gone from Pampa's offense next season.

With the wide-open offense there was always an air of expectancy for Harvester fans. They saw exciting football in both victory and defeat. It was an offense that produced 367 yards per game, including 402 ypg during the regular season. The Harvester would average almost five touchdowns per outing.

There were few dull moments, win or lose, when the Harvesters were on the field.

It wasn't easy for head coach Dennis Cavalier to give up something he was comfortable with, a ground-oriented offense that emphasized ball control.

"We were venturing into untried territory, not knowing what the outcome would be," he said. "What we had to do was get our players, especially our linemen and skill position players, to buy into what we wanted to do."

A tall, strong-armed quarterback and a group of sticky-fingered receivers was a tell-tale sign that Cavalier and his coaching staff were willing to completely revise the offense.

"Call it an educated guess or intuition, but we felt before the season started that this was the correct way in which to go. I think their performances bears that out," coach Cavalier said.

Graduation had eroded the other side of the line with only alternating free safeties Tristan Brown and Andrew Curtis returning as starters, but it didn't take long for the Pampa defense to assert itself.

Progressing rapidly from one week to the next, the Harvesters would end up holding five opponents to seven points or less, including the shutout over Caprock.

Departing seniors include Brown, tackle Michael McCormick, ends Tommy Abernathy, and Landon Baker, linebackers Curtis Pritchett, Zack Cobb and Carlos Solis, cornerbacks Jered Snelgrooves, Trey Curtis, Joel Botello and Derrick Williams.

Zack Cobb would remind fans of another middle linebacker named Zack who played for the Harvesters. The 6-0, 190-pound Cobb was the team's leading tackler with close to 300 total tackles to his credit.

Robson Rodriguez and James Lee were the other seniors listed on the roster.

"My goal every year is to get the players to the point where they're glad they played football," Cavalier added.

Judging from the boundless enthusiasm and energy that came from the Harvesters at practices and games, Cavalier accomplished his goal.

The annual football banquet is set for Jan. 15, starting at 6:30 p.m. in M.K. Brown Auditorium. This will be the final appearance for these Harvesters as a team, so let's turn out and honor these deserving players.

Fans could be saying good-bye to Smith

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Emmitt Smith figures there are two ways of interpreting the Dallas Cowboys' request that fans wear No. 22 jerseys to the home finale Saturday night against the Philadelphia Eagles.

The conspiracy theorist thinks the team is subtly saying this is the last chance to see Smith with a star on his helmet because he won't be back with the Cowboys next season.

The other view, which Smith prefers, is that the team wants fans to congratulate him for becoming the leading rusher in NFL history and to try lifting everyone's spirits as they close yet another disappointing season.

"We've been through quite a bit," Smith said. "Just say, 'We appreciate how hard you all have worked all year long and we understand you all have been in some adverse situations, but you've hung in there and you've fought, and you're doing the best you can.' Period."

"That's a great way of looking at it, versus look at it that this is my last (home) game."

Smith is owed $7 million next season, virtually guaranteeing his contract will be torn up. Team owner Jerry Jones has been tightlipped about whether he'll release the NFL's all-time leading rusher or try signing him to a new deal, possibly for as little as the veteran minimum.

Smith has made it clear he prefers to stay. After 13 seasons and two prolonged contract battles with Jones, remaining in Dallas is more important to him than cashing another big check.

"I can only think positively," Smith said. "It's just a matter of communicating, talking about what needs to be done, how it needs to be done, how I can restructure and so forth."

It might not be that easy. Jones is considering big changes and keeping a running back who will be 34 in May might not fit the new plans.

But that's a tough call when the running back is Emmitt Smith, a four-time rushing champion, three-time Super Bowl winner and former MVP of the regular season and Super Bowl.

Though no longer dominant, he's been effective this season. He needs 68 yards in the final two games to reach 1,000 for a 12th straight season, extending a record he set last year.

What to do with Smith is a tougher decision for Jones than the one he faced two seasons ago with Troy Aikman. Jones did not immediately respond to an interview request.

Aikman's frequent concussions made him a health risk, and he was due a huge bonus. While cutting him meant a big salary-cap hit in 2001, it was a blow that was going to happen eventually.

Smith, though, is in good health and willing to help the cap. And, unlike Aikman, Smith won't even consider retiring.

Smith might accept a reduced role, such as sharing carries with backup Troy Hambrick, or help groom a rookie; Dallas is likely to have a top 10 pick.

But Smith also has talked about wanting to stretch his career rushing total of 17,119 to 20,000. It's pretty likely some team will give him that chance if the Cowboys won't.

Could Smith really see himself wearing another uniform?

"I have uniforms at the house of all 32 teams and I've tried them all on," Smith said, smiling. "You know I'm lying. Obviously I can't see myself doing a whole lot of things."

"Right now, it's not in the forefront. I have a big game to play Saturday, so that's my focus — not this extracurricular stuff that has to take place six, seven, 12 weeks from now. That's my mindset. I'm not going to let anyone change it."

If this is it for Smith as a Cowboy, playing one of his final games against Philadelphia provides a nostalgic farewell.

Smith has more yards rushing against the Eagles (2,436) than any other team, including a career-best 237-yard game.

Horoscope BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Dec. 21, 2002.

You might often feel pulled in two different directions, not sure which way to go. This duality expresses itself through other people wanting something from you that you don't want to give. Other times, you find that you go through inner conflicts between what you think and what you feel. Learning to juggle these different sides will determine the success of your year. The key to your success will be one-on-one relating until September 2003. At this point, detaching and absorbing the big picture will help you see the right way or answer. If you are single, an important relationship will enter your life this year. You will need to relax and relate more openly. If you are attached, you could find your significant other to be quite demanding. Learn to give and flow with this person more easily. CANCER can be challenging, having many of the same issues but manifesting them differently.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 ***** Plans might have you a bit confused. Clearly you do need to meet some responsibilities. Give up feeling pressured. Whether it is a holiday gathering or a must visit with someone who can be trying, you aren't getting out of it! Tonight: Head home as early as you can.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 ***** Keep communication flowing, even if you might have the impulse to slam the door. Ultimately, your openness to different ideas will help you make all the difference. Others appreciate your calmness. Little do they know! Tonight: Spread Christmas cheer.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

***** You might feel pulled in different directions, trying to deal with some last-minute expenses. You might not be comfortable with what you have to do, but ultimately, having others feel cared about could be more important. Tonight: Express your generosity.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 ***** Others turn to you for answers and meaningful responses. You might not like everything you hear, but on the other hand, you find it important to remain responsible and open. Your popularity peaks in the next few weeks. Tonight: Where you want to be.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 ***** Step back and allow others to share more of themselves. Sometimes the strength of your personality can be quite intimidating. You also seem to do certain things better than many. Learn to play the role of follower. Tonight: Be discreet.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 ***** Understand more of what others want from you. When a child or loved one complains, he or she lets you know much more about his or her desires. You have a rare opportunity to grace this person with unusual happiness. Tonight: Let love filter through the evening.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
 ***** What you are experiencing might be the result of having pushed others way too hard. You could be miffed, but if you really are honest with yourself, you'll gain another perspective. Don't kid yourself about what you're seeing. Tonight: You might not have much choice.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 ***** News might force a readjustment of plans. Yet with your happy ways and dynamic energy, you'll find it more than easy to integrate everyone's needs.

Consider someone at a distance. You might need to make an extra effort for this person. Tonight: Let your imagination lead the celebration.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
 ***** Try another approach with a loved one or an associate who seems bent on confusion. Show your strong ability to think through problems. Give more careful consideration to your options that surround an important relationship. Tonight: Say "Yes."
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 ***** Others might test your ideas, but you will prevail without a problem. Be sensitive to others and what they are trying to do. Air out ideas, leading others to your conclusion. Knowing how to move a touchy topic can and will make a difference. Tonight: Just don't be alone.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 ***** Dig into a project and express the zest and energy your sign is known for. Put anxiety on the back burner, allowing yourself to let go of a problem. Tension dissipates as a result of your new focus. Indulge a child or associate. Tonight: Where the fun is.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 ***** Others need your feedback but might push you in a way you don't like. Ask a friend a question if you need an answer. Avoid making a guess right now. Allow yourself to express your loving and caring side. Tonight: Enjoy the specialness of the night.

One letter stands for another. In this sample, A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
