from injuries she received in an apparent assault.

According to a police spokesperson, a Pampa Police officer was on patrol in the 600 block of South Gray about 1:55 a.m. when the woman flagged him down. She had been hiding in a trash can. The officer radioed for an ambulance to transport her to the local hospital. She reported to police that she had been in a local bar earlier in the evening in south Pampa, and said six men had been harassing her periodically. She told police that when she left the bar that the men followed her and assaulted her. The victim said the men were in a red four-door car. According to the police report, the woman's injuries were not life-threatening. The matter remains under investigation.

Winborne: '02 building permits 'average'

By DAVID BOWSER STAFF WRITER

The number of city building permits in December was about half of what they were a year before, but Danny Winborne, code enforcement officer with the City of Pampa, said that may not accurately reflect what's happening in Pampa.

The value of the building permits issued in Pampa in December is about double what it was for the same period the year before, but that again may not accurately reflect construction in the city.

Actually, Winborne said, last year comparisons difficult. was a pretty average year, probably much more so than the numbers on the monthly report would indicate.

Because of the way the report is produced and how the information is gathered, city officials said, the monthly report isn't always an accurate indicator of Pampa's economic activity.

The monthly report lists permits issued for and inspections of buildings, driveways, sidewalks, electrical, mechanical, moving, business licenses, plumbing, signs and miscellaneous inspections.

The information for the city permit reports comes from different departments. Changes in computer software over the years also makes historic building permits issued this fiscal year to date. For the same period for the last fiscal year, there were 43 building permits issued.

According to the city's December permit inspection report, there were 23

The value of the 43 building permits in the 2001-2002 fiscal year to date, however, was $270,035. The value for the 23 building permits in the 2002-2003 fiscal year to date was $578,750. Overall, there were 200 total permits issued through December for the 2002-2003 fiscal year, and 291 issued for the same period for the 2001-2002 fiscal year.

he said.

The value of the 200 permits issued year to date for the 2002-2003 fiscal year was $648,450, while the value of the 291 permits issued year to date for the 2001-2002 fiscal year was only $372,823.74.

The value of all permits for the entire 2001-2002 fiscal year was about $5.5 million.

The past several years, Winborne said, have been good, looking at the value of the permits, but those figures include some large projects like the courthouse renovation, the new United Supermarket and an addition to the Pampa Regional Medical Center.

KUWAIT CITY (AP) - At least one gunman opened fire on an SUV carrying two American civilians near a U.S. military camp Tuesday, killing one and wounding the other in what the U.S. Embassy called a terrorist attack.

The men, contractors working for the U.S. military, were the first civilians to come under fire in recent attacks on Americans in Kuwait.

Their four-wheel drive Toyota was ambushed and riddled with bullets at a stoplight near Camp Doha, a military installation serving as a base for 17,000 troops in this oil-rich Gulf nation, where 8,000 American civilians also live.

welcomes Americans out of lingering gratitude for the U.S.-led coalition that expelled Iraqi invaders in the 1991 Gulf War. The pro-American sentiment here is not universal, though, and other attacks in recent months killed one U.S. soldier and wounded three.

The U.S. Embassy identified the man killed as Michael Rene Pouliot. 46, of San Diego. Pouliot was an employee of the San Diego-based software development company Tapestry Solutions, which specializes in military modeling and simulation training tools

The wounded man's identity was being withheld until his relatives are notified.

In Washington, the White House said U.S. authorities were working with Kuwaiti investigators to determine who carried out the attack.

"The president's heart goes out to the families affected by this attack," White House spokesman Ari Fleischer said. "It's a reminder of the dangers and risks servicemen and women face every day in service to our country."

No group claimed responsibility for the attack, in which the assailant or assailants apparently fired from behind roadside bushes with an assault rifle and fled.

"We condemn this terrorist incident, which has tragically cost the life of an innocent American citizen," U.S. Ambassador to Kuwait Richard Jones said in a statement.

A Kuwaiti security official, speaking on condition of anonymity, agreed with the U.S. assessment of the shooting as a terrorist act.

The wounded man was in stable condition after surgery at Kuwait City's Al-Razi hospital, a hospital official said on condition of anonymity. Doctors including a heart surgeon removed bullets from the man's body - two from his chest. The man also Mexico had initially sought to spare 54 citizens, but said at the start of hearings that three were removed from death row by Illinois Gov. George Ryan, who this month commuted the sentences of 167 inmates, mostly to life in prison, over concerns about capital punishment in his state.

The Mexican government is first seeking a court order to postpone the executions until a 15-member panel of judges can hear its arguments that the United States has violated international conventions in imposing the death penalty on its citizens.

Although its judgments are binding under international law, the World Court has no way of enforcing its rulings.

"The United States should not be allowed to set any execution dates until the court has heard the merits of the case," Mexico's lead attorney, Juan Gomez Robledo, said in opening remarks.

Barring appeals and other delays, six Mexicans could be executed by June. There are

Dentist's murder trial to begin

HOUSTON (AP) - A Houston dentist accused of killing her husband will spend the next few weeks in a Harris County courtroom where jurors will determine whether she purposely or accidentally ran him down a hotel parking lot.

Clara Harris, 44, is accused of killing her orthodontist husband, David Harris, on July 24 at a Houston area hotel following a hotel lobby confrontation with him and his alleged mistress.

Jury selection began Tuesday morning.

Jurors selected to hear the case must decide if Clara Harris intentionally ran over her husband, or if 44-year-old David Harris' death was an accident, as Clara Harris says. She faces life in prison if convicted.

Jurors are expected to view a videotape taken in the hotel's parking lot by a

The hearings come a week before Fox travels to the Netherlands in a trip that will include a visit to the U.N. court.

It won't be the first time the World Court, formally known as the International Court of Justice, hears a challenge to the death penalty against the United States.

In June, 2001, the International Court of Justice ruled the United States violated the Geneva Convention in the 1999 execution of Walter and Karl LaGrand. The two German brothers murdered a bank manager during a 1982 robbery.

The World Court, the U.N.'s highest legal organ, was formed in 1946 under the United Nations charter.

private investigator Clara Harris had hired to follow her husband.

Testimony also is expected from Lindsey Harris, Clara Harris' 17year-old stepdaughter. She was a passenger in the car with her Mercedes Benz in when David Harris was struck and killed.

> Defense attorney George Parnham said Clara Harris learned her husband was having an affair a week before finding him at the hotel with Gail Bridges, a divorced mother of three who once worked in David Harris' orthodontics office.

Parnham says Clara Harris didn't set out to kill the night she struck her husband, but instead to "bring David home." Parnham said Clara Harris wanted to save her marriage and family. Lindsey Harris could be LUBBOCK (AP) — A Texas Tech professor accused of lying to federal agents about the whereabouts of 30 vials of plague bacteria was released from jail Tuesday after posting $100,000 bond.

Federal prosecutors withdrew their motion to deny bail for Dr. Thomas C. Butler, 61, during a court hearing Tuesday morning. Butler is charged with making a false statement to a federal agent in an incident that sparked a bioterrorism scare last week.

"We felt like the combina- documents. He had initially

Butler was released from custody shortly afterward. Because he was allowed to be released, Butler waived his right to a preliminary hearing where prosecutors would have had to provide witness testimony to establish probable cause for the charge.

He had been held without bond since being arrested late Food Wednesday after admitting he had accidentally destroyed the 30 vials, according to court said they were missing.

Among the conditions for making bond, Butler must surrender his passport, abide by a curfew that has not been set, not travel outside Lubbock County and wear an electronic monitor.

He also is prohibited from contacting any potential witnesses at the university or federal agencies with whom he has worked, including the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the U.S. and Drug Butler refused to comment after the hearing at the federal courthouse.

A federal grand jury will hear the case within 30 days, Baker said.

According to court records, Butler gave a handwritten statement to the FBI saying he had accidentally destroyed the 30 vials and that he made a "misjudgment" in telling authorities they were missing. He said he didn't realize his story would result in "such an extensive investigation," according to court documents. Butler, who was chief of the infectious diseases division of the department of internal medicine at Tech's medical school, has been involved in plague research for more than 25 years and is internationally recognized in the field.

The university has placed Butler on paid leave, changed the locks on his laboratory, blocked him from computer access and barred him from campus.

Butler's son, Phillip, told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal his father is "perhaps the most patriotic man I know."

Some of his colleagues have also stepped forward to support him.

Ted Reid, a professor of ophthalmology at Tech, told the newspaper the situation "was totally overblown" and highlights a void in the way cases such as Butler's are treated by authorities.

"I don't think they've really formulated a way to deal with problems and tell the minor problems from the major problems," Reid told the newspaper. 'This is a minor problem that's been handled with a wartime mentality."

If convicted, Butler faces up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

Perry, Dewhurst take oath of office at inauguration

Rick Perry took the oath of office at the state Capitol on Tuesday, marking the start of his first full term as leader of Texas.

Perry had no inauguration, only an austere swearing-in ceremony, when he moved up from lieutenant governor and took over the top job in December 2000 after George W. Bush resigned to become president.

This time Perry is getting his longawaited party.

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican Gov. Perry's alma mater, Texas A&M University, played under a sunny sky at the inauguration ceremony. Hundreds of smiling supporters packed the spectator section. A huge Texas flag hung above the doors of the Capitol.

David Dewhurst, who joined Perry as part of a statewide Republican election sweep in November, was sworn in as lieutenant governor. He'll now take his place presiding over the state Senate.

Both men kept with tradition and used Sam Houston's Bible, a book used in Texas inaugurations since the late 1800s.

Perry, 52, was a state representative and state agriculture commissioner before he was elected lieutenant governor in 1998. He served only two years of that term before succeeding Bush.

Early Tuesday morning, workers were busy tightening security, setting up chairs for guests and getting ready for the parties that would follow the inauguration speeches. The inauguration platform was draped in red, white and blue.

To start the day, Perry and family members attended a private prayer service at First United Methodist Church.

The city collected $5,662.50 this fiscal year to date and collected $5,544.66 for the same period last fiscal year to date.

Winborne said that's not unusual. He said that he's been in his job for about eight years now and the fees that the city collects have remained stable, fluctuating very little.

One of the reasons is that government projects, like the $3.5 million renovation of the had fractures in his right arm and thigh.

A U.S. Embassy official said the embassy was reviewing its security in Kuwait with the State Department and would share its recommendations with the American community. "We're urging Americans to be alert to their surroundings and to continually assess their security," he said on condition of anonymity.

Kuwait's deputy prime minister and foreign minister, Sheik Sabah Al Ahmed Al Sabah, sent a condolence message to Secretary of State Colin Powell.

He expressed "sincere regret" and Kuwait's "strong condemnation of such criminal acts that target the historic relations and strong ties between the two friendly nations," the official Kuwait News Agency reported.

The attack took place Tuesday morning at a stoplight at the intersection of Highway 85 and Abu Dhabi Road north of Kuwait City, along the edge of a built-up with a neighborhood McDonald's and other businesses. The road leads to Camp Doha, about three miles away, and is lined with trees and bushes with open desert behind.

The area was cordoned off with yellow crime tape, and the bullet-riddled SUV was loaded onto a flat bed truck and taken away.

Kuwaiti and U.S. military police and black-clad Interior Ministry investigators wearing rubber gloves were at the scene. The pavement was littered with broken glass.

The pro-American attitude among many Kuwaitis is unusual now in the Muslim world, where anti-U.S. sentiment and opposition to war in Iraq run high. Still, attacks on Americans here have increased recently, targeting U.S. troops,

Bush returns to principles

Bush 41 compromised more as his presidency wore on. Next week's State of the Union address will emphasize that Bush 43 is returning to principle on many domestic issues after a tepid first two years.

One example is the president's plan to end the double taxation of corporate dividends. Liberal journalists are framing that as a boon to the rich, but the real (and largely unrecognized) benefit of the plan is its reduction in Wall Street's recent tendency to imitate a Powerball lottery.

Now, companies are taxed on their profits, and when they pass on some of those profits to investors in the form of dividends, those individuals are taxed on that income once again. This means the federal government can grab over half of each dollar in profit that a company makes available to its shareholders.

Corporations looking to the interest of their shareholders have reacted to double taxation by pushing capital gains. In the 1990s, that emphasis led to companies with hyped prospects soaring, as human greed created stock-market bubbles. Some people started betting instead of investing, hoping to strike a spike and then sell quickly.

An emphasis on dividends is much healthier. Corporations that pay dividends to stockholders actually have to be making money. As Frank Sullivan, a chemical company CEO, put it: "Dividends are one of the easiest ways to gauge the quality of a company's earnings. You need real cash to pay dividends. You can't pay them with Tyco or Enron accounting."

George W. Bush in 2001 stressed temporary tax cuts. Now he is displaying a plan based on the moral sense that investment is good and speculation isn't. He's also proposing what will help in the long run and not merely provide a short-term fix for markets and re-election campaigns.

The other correction Bush apparently is making is in the faith-based initiative, which suffered in 2001 as the administration tried to pick up liberal support by' playing to fears about "proselytizing."

According to the Oxford English Dictionary, that word apparently first appeared in 1679. It means to induce or coerce a person to convert. That's something the Bible opposes, because an expression of faith is a lie if it's made without faith. Evangelicals especially don't favor that kind of proselytizing.

Liberals, however, have often stretched the definition to make it seem as if any mention of God to a person seeking to turn around his life is proselytizing. The Bush faith-based initiative floundered in 2001 as its key spokesman, John DiIulio, regularly said that religious groups offering spiritual help alongside material help were not welcome.

In recent statements, though, Bush has gone to bat for groups like Victory Center, an evangelical homeless shelter in Iowa that offers the needy a chapel service and Bible studies, and for that reason had a federal grant taken from it by the Clinton administration.

Bush has also ordered the Federal Emergency Management Agency to "revise its policy on emergency relief so that religious nonprofit groups can qualify for assistance after disasters like hurricanes and - earthquakes." Organizations that incorporate religious teaching, such as the Seattle Hebrew Academy, will be treated like other social service providers that suffer dam-

Bush also has signed an executive order establishing new centers for faithbased and community initiatives, including one at the Department of Agriculture. That's important, because the Clinton administration cut off the long-established flow of surplus food to many faith-based homeless shelters and did not allow long-term residents in jobtraining programs to use food stamps at religious centers.

Look for more hints of this in the State of the Union address, which should include Bush's pledge to establish a level playing field for all helping organizations, including religious ones. In 2001 the White House faith-based office compromised the Bush principles by tilting the level playing field away from evangelical groups. The new, principled understanding that opens partici-. pation to all except those who practice coercion should give the faith-based initiative new life.

Take the tax cut - under protest

Any tax cut without an equivalent spending cut is a con job. Whatever money the tax cut provides will have to be paid back with interest. The government doesn't grow money on trees. What it spends it has to get by taxing us or by borrowing from that great fraud, the Federal Reserve System.

President George W. Bush, the alleged conservative, has gone from a government surplus to a government deficit and intends to go right on creating an ever-larger annual deficit while at the same time making no effort whatsoever to reduce the national debt. In the long run, this is economically injurious. Apparently, he intends to go down the same path as Lyndon Johnson and have his guns as well as his butter - and put it all on the cuff fur future generations to pay. Bad economics. Worse morality.

All of the above also applies to the Democratic alternative. The intellectual sterility of both of our major parties is appalling. They can't get past simple bribery by their respective special-interest groups. Somebody ought to tell all of them that an economy whose main problem is excess capacity will not perk up by handing out piddling amounts of cash to consumers who are now up to their ears in debt from having already bought far more than they need of just about every adult toy you can think of.

There are better ways to stimulate economic activity. One is to reverse this free-trade business - another example of fraud. Free trade simply means corporations off-shoring their manufacturing to cheap-labor countries, eliminating American jobs in the process. A good, stiff, punitive tariff on any product formerly made in the United States and now produced elsewhere would cure that problem.

Another way would be to go ahead and socialize health care completely. This might sound strange for a conservative, but the fact is we have socialized medicine for the elderly and the indigent, and the struggling middle class has to pay for the care of those two groups, as well as its own. It is politically impossible to salvage free-enterprise medicine. Therefore, the government ought to go ahead and include the middle class in the socialized system. Of course, the only way to make that work is to socialize the doctors, too. You can't have a system of socialized health care and millionaire doctors at the same time.

In human affairs, there are some things that cannot be undone. Medicare and Medicaid killed the free-enterprise health care system, and right now we all have to carry around its very expensive corpse. The government should just set the fee schedules and hand everybody a health-insurance card, then adjust the tax rate to pay for it. The working middle class is already paying a health care tax but is receiving no benefit from it. The difference would still leave working families more of their own money for discretionary spending. Private health-insurance companies could just sell life insurance or go out of business. They've all become too expensive anyway.\

Figally, a constitutional amendment that forbids the U.S. armed forces from engaging in hostilities for any reason other than defense of the United States would save enormous amounts of money. The same amendment should forbid, with the exception of the Navy, the deployment of any members of the armed forces outside U.S. borders unless there is a declaration of war by Congress. We could then bring our soldiers home from the far-flung corners of the earth and tell the rest of the world that they are on their own - we've gone out of the world policeman/ socialworker business.

Of course, none of this will happen until we elect a better class of politicians. In the meantime, you might as well accept whatever scrap the politicians throw you in the way of tax cuts, though at least do it under protest.

TENNIS

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Venus Williams served at nearrecord speeds and overcame distractions from the crowd to reach the semifinals.

After spectators loudly called some of her shots out, second-seeded Williams responded with a burst of winners midway through the first set that helped carry her to a 6-4, 6-3 victory over seventh-seeded Daniela Hantuchova.

Williams served six aces at speeds of up to 125 mph. Since hitting the fastest recorded serve in women's tennis, 127 mph in 1998, Williams said she had been concentrating more on placement, hitting her fastest serves when she hasn't been trying.

Andre Agassi moved within two victories of his fourth Australian Open title by beating Sebastien Grosjean 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

BASKETBALL

PAMPA — Pampa slipped by Canyon 42-40 in 9th grade boys basketball action Monday night.

Jarret Kotara and Ryan Torres were Pampa's top scorers with 14 points each.

Sharod Young added 9 points.

During the weekend, Pampa posted a 57-50 win over Caprock.

Young topped Pampa in scoring with 19 points.

SAN DIEGO (AP) ----Wearing his trademark black jacket and white slacks, Al Davis stepped off his team's chartered plane - the one tattooed in Oakland Raiders' decals - looking fit for a fight and ready to conquer the NFL again.

Behind him were the American Football Conference champions, sporting the same no-nonsense look of their maverick owner, only a tad more formal in shirts and ties.

"We're dressed for business," All-Pro tackle Lincoln Kennedy said.

The business of winning the Super Bowl began Monday with the arrival of the Raiders and Tampa Bay Buccaneers, winners of the National Football Conference.

The Raiders haven't been to a Super Bowl in 19 years; the Buccaneers are making their debut.

Davis once made a living out of going to Super Bowls with his team - they won three of four visits until their long dry spell. He also made a habit of suing the league, winning his share of the battles and reinforcing his rebel image.

"There is a mystique about the Raiders and it starts with the owner," said Raiders linebacker Bill Romanowski, who owns four Super Bowl rings, two with San Francisco and two with Denver. "The owner only cares about two things: players and winning. Who else would you rather play for?"

Jon Gruden, maybe? He's the coach who taught the Buccaneers how to vanquish the demons of failures past. The same Gruden who coached the Raiders the season before and joined Tampa Bay only after the Bucs paid a very high price four high draft picks and $8 million. A bargain, certainly, in hindsight.

Gruden was set to make another transcontinental journey on Tuesday after staying behind an extra day with his coordinators to game-plan. His players, though, were loose and playful.

Keyshawn Johnson arrived wearing a black No. 44 San Antonio Spurs jersey with Gervin, as in George, on the back. All-Pro defensive tackle Warten Sapp was in a No. 7 Philadelphia Eagles jersey that said Jaworski, as in Ron, on the back.

"I like 'Jaws.' He's a good dude," Sapp said, referring to Jaworski's nickname.

Costumes aside, the Bucs were serious about their mission.

"I live on the only peninsula in the United States of America," Sapp said. "If I want vacation time, I live it every day of my life. I'm not here for a vacation."

And he won't have to worry about getting one. Tampa Bay's top-ranked defense will be challenged by the league's No. 1 offense. It's the first time the top-rated units have met in a Super Bowl.

Sapp and company know how dangerous the Raiders are. It has nothing to do with Oakland's mystique, but it has everything to do with Rich Gannon, the NFL's MVP, throwing to Jerry Rice, the league's all-time leading receiver. Or to Tim Brown, who finally has reached a Super Bowl in his 15th season. Or to rapidly developing Jerry Porter. Or multipurpose back Charlie Garner.

"We know what they are all about," Bucs cornerback Ronde Barber said. "They have two Hall of Fame wide receivers. It's a great experience to play these guys. They've done things throughout their career to deserve a lot of recognition." The Raiders also recognized the need for a quick start in preparing for Sunday's game. Coach Bill Callahan, Gruden's successor, also skipped a news conference Monday night.

Garner wondered if mind games have already begun. Was Callahan really working on a game plan or did he stay away because Gruden did?

"It might have been a little of both," he said. "Neither one of those guys are going to let the other guy know that he is outworking you. So it's going to be a battle all week long."

Just what Davis encourages. He loves games with an edge, so a swashbuckling Super Bowl with plenty of saber-rattling beforehand would suit the Raider Nation to a tee.

"Everybody knows Al Davis," said safety Rod Woodson, who won a championship in 2000 with Baltimore. "He likes to go against the grain, and it's working so far this year."

Spurs outshoot Rockets SAN ANTONIO (AP) -Rudy Tomjanovich didn't deviate from his usual strategy during the seconds. deciding minutes of Houston's game against San Antonio. The Rockets coach kept the players who were shooting well on the floor — even if they weren't the team's stars.

And the game plan seemed to be working, but Tim Duncan was fouled while making a tiebreaking layup with 59 seconds remaining and he converted the free throw to lead San Antonio to an 87-82 win Monday night.

Yao Ming, the Rockets' 7foot-5 rookie center, was parked on the bench. And point guard Steve Francis, the NBA's sixthleading scorer, stood at the end of the Houston bench with a towel draped over his head.

One starter - guard Cuttino Mobley — and four reserves erased a 13-point Spurs lead in the final quarter, and the Rockets even went ahead for about 40

Tomjanovich explained his lineup choice by saying that Francis, who went 1-for-12 shooting and finished with 4 points, just had an off night.

"But I think overall we had a great leam effort to fight through some of the misses that he had," the coach said.

Mobley, who scored 15 points, agreed that the players on the court were the ones who got the Rockets back into the game. Asked whether the loss might have been a win had Francis and Yao played down the stretch, he said, "Woulda, shoulda, coulda - who knows?"

Francis, coming off a careerhigh 44 points in Friday's win over the Los Angeles Lakers, didn't openly second-guess Tomjanovich.

Braydon Barker followed with 12 and Torres had 11. Pampa is 13-3 for the season and 6-1 in district.

FOOTBALL

MIAMI — Miami kicker Hal Rogers and Fort Elliott split end Junior Newman were first-team picks on the 2002 Six-Man Coaches Association All-State Football Team.

Newman made the big catches for Fort Elliott all season long. He caught two touchdowns to help the Cougars upset defending state champion Whitharral in the area round.

Rogers was a secondteam all-state pick for the Warriors a year ago.

Fort Elliott had three players on the second team, including quarterback Jason Hathaway, utility player Wes Hathaway and defensive lineman Junior Gonzales.

The Cougars posted a 12-1 record and advanced to the state quarterfinals this season.

Offensively, the most valuable player was Brandon Hoskins of Defensive Whitharral. honors went to Paul Green of Sanderson.

Coach of the year was Coylin Grimes of Calvert.

SAN DIEGO (AP) -Charlie Garner insists the Oakland Raiders haven't thought much about Jon Gruden since their former coach abandoned them last February.

The Raiders won't get a chance to forget Gruden this week, though. When they arrived in San Diego for a week of Super Bowl preparations, their first interview session was filled with questions about Gruden, who will lead Tampa Bay against Oakland on Sunday.

GROOM — McLean came from behind in the second half to defeat Groom 50-49 in District 4-1A basketball action last weekend.

Groom led 18-9 after the first quarter and 26-21 at halftime. McLean cut the gap to three (35-32) after three quarters.

James Alexander was McLean's high scorer with 19 points. Zane Richardson followed with 9.

Cody Babcock had 16 points for Groom. Doug Fields added 12.

Amanda Conrad tossed in 23 points as Groom won the girls' game 56-19.

Groom improved to 17-6 for the season and 3-2 in district.

Brittany Martin added 7 points for Groom.

Danielle Dampier had 10 points and Shaley Steel 7 for McLean.

DENVER (AP) — Patrick Roy has a knack for playing his best when the games mean the most.

He proved it again against the Dallas Stars.

Roy stopped 29 shots on the night he became the first goalie to play in 1,000 games, helping the Colorado Avalanche salvage a 1-1 tie against the Stars on Monday.

"It was good for Patty and special for us to be involved in his 1,000th game and it's a great hockey game to be a part of," Colorado coach Tony Granato said. "He is always primed, but he has had a lot of special occasions and moments throughout his career. This was another one."

Roy has won four Stanley Cups and is the only three-time winner of the Conn Smythe Trophy as MVP of the playoffs. He also is the league's career leader in playoff victories, shutouts and games, and holds nearly every significant goaltending record.

OU downs Texas Tech in overtime

Oklahoma guard Hollis its first since 36-35 early in Price has had a troublesome the half. shooting elbow for two years. He wears a brace on each of his ankles and has been bothered by a knee injury.

After all that, a little cut under the eye wasn't going to keep him off the floor against Texas Tech.

Price came through in the clutch Monday night, hitting a 15-foot jumper at the buzzer to force overtime, then scoring five points in the extra period as the seventh-ranked Sooners won 69-64 for their 32nd straight home victory.

; "We just found a way to win this game tonight," Price said, sporting a butterfly bandage under his right eye. "I'm proud of what our guys did tonight.'

The Sooners (12-3, 3-1 Big 12) saw an eight-point second-half lead turn into a three-point deficit with 35.3 seconds remaining before Price bailed them out.

: First he made three free throws after getting fouled near the top of the key with 22.3 seconds to play. Those tied the score at 58.

Then, after Will Chavis sank both ends of a 1-and-1 with 4.5 seconds remaining to give the Red Raiders a 60-58 lead, Price pushed the ball up the floor, got open on the left side of the lane and hit his jumper as the buzzer sounded.

"I almost tripped at the other end but I found a way to stay up and hit the bucket," Price said.

Was his eye a problem? "I can see," he said. "I made the shot."

Price, who finished with 23 points, had to leave early in the second half after getting hit by Nick Valdez while chasing an outlet pass. He returned three minutes

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — gave Tech a 56-55 lead -

Oklahoma missed two shots on its next possession and Kasib Powell, who scored 19, hit from inside for a 58-55 Tech lead with 35.3 seconds remaining in regulation.

Then came the three free throws by Price, the two by Chavis at the other end, and Price's tying shot at the buzzer.

The Sooners scripted the final play during a timeout after the first Chavis free throw.

"We tried to contain him," coach Bob Knight said. "During the timeout, we told our kids that four seconds was enough time to get a shot off. He's just really so hard to contain. It was a tremendous effort he made.'

Price started the overtime by making two free throws, then added a 3-pointer with 2:46 remaining for a 67-62 lead.

Tech got to 67-64, then Powell missed the front end of a 1-and-1 and Quannas White made two clinching free throws with 40.9 seconds remaining.

"If you're a basketball fan, you have to admire the kids on both teams," Knight said. "We made the plays we had to to stay in the game. We got back in it and made a couple of plays. Price just made a tremendous play.'

Oklahoma coach Kelvin Sampson was at a loss for words in describing Price.

"I don't know," he said. "Look in your archives. Whatever my best stuff is, pull it out."

Texas Tech played much better than in its previous conference road game, a 68-44 loss to Kansas State in which the Red Raiders shot 26 percent. They had four players in double figures, shot 45.8 percent, turned the ball over just nine times and were only outrebounded by later with the Sooners leading 43-37.

Oklahoma's biggest lead was 47-39 after Price made two free throws at the 10:29 mark, but Tech (11-3, 1-2) rallied, going on an 11-5 run to get to 52-50 and it stayed close the rest of the way.

A layup by Ronald Ross with 1:29 to play, coming after Chavis stole the ball from Price near midcourt,

"It was like two stubborn donkeys butting each other and neither will give," Sampson said. "Texas Tech didn't lose that game. We

Foreman is no longer grilled about his boxing career

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) -Lunch with George Foreman is more about crab salad than grilled burgers.

He's made millions with one liners about fat and food, but for the most part of two hours, Foreman just picks at the salad on his plate.

"I still have a lot of fun, but you've got to watch what you're eating," Foreman said. "It can be a death sentence if you don't control yourself."

Foreman knows what he's talking about when it comes to dieting and food. He's probably made more money from it than anyone since Jenny Craig.

The was Big George Foreman, he sold the public on his boxing comeback by joking about his weight and appetite for cheeseburgers. Then he agreed to put his name on a line of kitchen grills and got rich as the jolly chef George Foreman.

On this day in a Portland restaurant, though, Foreman is just as eager to talk about life, second chances, Muhammad Ali and his ministry as he is about the grills that made him far more famous than did his fists

He's interrupted by young women and children coming to the table with cameras. Ever obliging, he puts his meaty hands around them and smiles, making sure the camera flashes, and exchanging a few words with them.

They know he's famous, but they don't know Foreman once thrilled America by waving flags at the 1968 Olympics when some of his fellow black athletes were raising clenched fists.

They don't know he was once the most fearsome heavyacknowledge them with a grunt, weight around, or that he lost to much less an autograph. Muhammad Ali in a huge upset "In his first career, I never knew what George I was going to deal with day to day," said Bill Caplan, a veteran public relations man Foreman calls his best friend. "I didn't know if it was going to be that sweet kid who won the gold medal and waved the flag, or if it was going to be the other guy with the scowling, intimidating look who was uncooperative. It was like he was two people."

Caplan doesn't have to worry anymore.

"Today, I always know who I'm going to deal with," he said. "One of the most wonderful human beings on the planet."

Foreman regrets the earlier image.

"I wish I would have known champion in the 1970s, a glowthen what I know now about ering Foreman would refuse to, people and life," Foreman said.

"I'd stare guys down, mistreat people. I thought that's what you had to do to be the heavyweight champ."

A similar scene unfolded a few weeks later in Las Vegas, where Foreman stopped as he walked through an arena, knelt to have his picture taken with a child and then patted him on the head.

"You're a good man, George," called out a man watching nearby.

That night, he was in a tuxedo to do boxing commentary for HBO. Then, he went straight to the airport to grab the redeye home to Houston.

The fights are a fun diversion. The grills are a way to make lots of money.

For Foreman, though, the real work takes place on Sundays at his Church of the Lord Jesus Christ, where the congregation mono mill do no preacher.

"That's what I do," Foreman said. "I may moonlight as a grillman and all of that. But being a preacher is my profession.

On this Sunday, his sermon is about how the world's problems today aren't much different than a half-century ago.

Some of his 10 children five boys named George and five daughters - are usually in. the church listening to the message

"I know the headlines were so similar that you can just change the dates," he said. "That's my message, that things never really change."

Things may not change. People, though, do. Foreman is one of the most visible examples of that.

"Sometimes," he said, "you ... a second chance."

Pampa Nursing Center serves Pampa

Resident Dorothy Crump gets a new hairdo from Kim Voss at Pampa Nursing Center. She is owner and operator of Kim's Mane Attraction.

Pampa Nursing Center has been serving Pampa and the surrounding communities for 40 years.

Pampa Nursing Center can help anyone in the community with the decision of placing a relative or loved one in a nursing home. Whether it is for rehabilitation, respite or long-term care, Pampa Nursing Center can help make that decision easier with the compassionate and competent staff.

The staff works closely with physicians in Pampa and the surrounding area to provide the best possible care for each resident. Dr. Craig Shaffer is the Medical Director at the center. He, along with Nurse Practicioner Janet Bilyue, R.N., make rounds at the nursing home two or three times a week.

Director of Nurses is Mitzi Devoll. She, along with Medicare Coordinator, Melinda Hillman, oversee the care the residents receive from the nursing staff. "We have a good staff here," states Mitzi. "They care about each individual and worry when they are sick."

Pampa Nursing Center has the distinction in that all beds are Medicare and Medicaid certified. The home also has a VA contract and accepts most types of insurance and private pay residents.

Nancy Mears is the Business Office Manager. She helps families with the financial aspects of nursing homes. She directs families in the best possible way to make sure that every dollar spent is in the best interest of the resident.

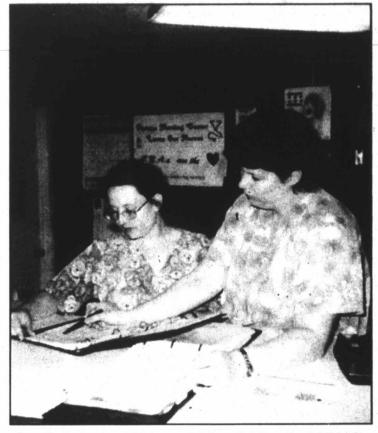

A secured area for residents who may wander due to dementia, Alzheimer's or other related illnesses is available at Pampa Nursing Center.

"We are very proud of our secured area," said Marketing Director Terri Adams. "Our residents are content and feel protected in the secured area. We have one resident who calls it his little apartment where his friends never go home."

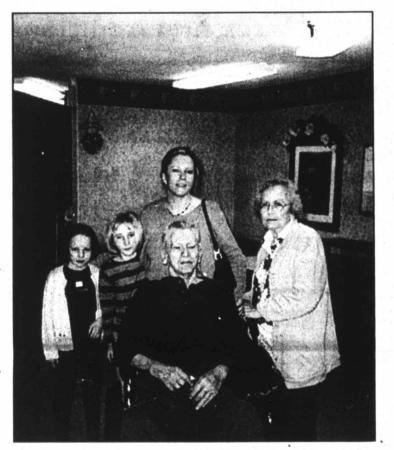

The secured area also has a fenced yard with trees and benches for the residents' enjoyment.

Other services that the facility offers are transportation to and from doctor's visits, cable and a beauty shop. "We want this to be a community," said Adams, "with services that the resident had when he or she lived at home."

Activities are very important for the residents' well being. Pampa Nursing strives to help each resident maintain social activities with an emphasis on individual needs and wants. Kristie Fuller is the Activity Director. "If a resident can't come to the activity, I will take an activity to them," said Fuller. Vickie Hutton is the Administrator at Pampa Nursing Center.

Sandi Galaviz, CNA, and Mandi Martin, LVN, discuss a Pampa Nursing Center resident's care.

Thomas Loter, a PNC resident, receives therapy from Linda Sickler, restorative aide, and Deborah Elliott, physical therapy assistant. "The residents here come first and foremost. As the Administrator, I will not tolerate people who do not want to work here for the resident. The residents are our number one priority," said Hutton. PNC resident George Flaherty was thrilled to have a visit from relatives. Katie, Grace and Shawn Peters visited their granddad and great-granddad. They accompanied his wife Virginia to see him.
