Nabors' husband, a local handyman, noticed the porch was unsafe while doing work at the residence. Twice Mrs. Osby had fallen or slipped off the porch, requiring knee surgery both times. Nabors mentioned the problem to Wagner. A group of volunteers including the Nabors and several Atmos employees met one Saturday and built a new porch for Mrs. Osby. "It is very gratifying for me to have participated in a project of this nature with our employees," Wagner said. → HOUSTON (AP) — A federal immigration judge has ruled that a baby brought to the United States by a Houston couple will go back to Mexico to live with a great uncle.

Judge Clarease Rankin Yates handed down the ruling Wednesday based on a recommendation made by an appointed attorney.

The couple, Nick and Patricia Skafi, in June 2002 arranged to have the baby boy, Aldo Guadarrama, brought to Texas illegally. They argued that the baby was malnourished and they thought their action was necessary to save him.

In August, a judge ruled that the couple could not adopt the baby, known as either Aldo or Fabian, because he couldn't "condone smuggling."

A court-appointed attorney selected the great uncle as a possible caretaker after a government-appointed psychologist determined the child's mother, Griselda Guadarrama, was not fit to care for him.

The U.S. and Mexican governments contended that Guadarrama wanted to keep the baby, but she said she supported the Skafis' desire to adopt him.

According to court testimony, Aldo is her fourth child. Of her other three, two died in her up for adoption. The baby, 14 months old, has spent more than nine months in a foster home in Harlingen under contract with the government agency now known as the Department of Homeland Security.

The judge granted the child baby "voluntary departure," which means Aldo will return to Mexico rather than face deportation proceedings. The decision was made on behalf custody and the third was put of the child baby by his latest attorney, Laura Bachman, along with social worker Robert Barker.

Inmate walks away from work site, still at large

CANYON (AP) — A Randall County Jail trusty remained on the run Thursday, a day after he apparently drove away from a work crew and tried to use checks stolen from the jail, officials said.

Danny Kevin Dale, 38, was working at the city barn Wednesday when he walked off, said Randall County Sheriff's Department spokesman Danny Alexander. A sport utility vehicle owned by a city employee also was missing.

"We're running some traps today and hope to have him in custody soon," Alexander said

A short time after Dale left, a man attempted to cash a check apparently stolen from the jail at grocery store in Canyon. Store officials were suspicious and the man left without having the check cashed, assistant store director Joe Gonzales said.

At another store, a man used the check to buy about $30 worth of personal hygiene products, store director Steve Stockton said. Stockton said the man showed him Dale's bracelet ID and a work release paper.

"He told me he had just been released," Stockton said. "I thought he had already paid his time. Little did I know he was running." The county employee's vehicle was found at the second store. Alexander said correction officers didn't know the checks had been stolen until Wednesday, when another inmate told officials he had seen Dale steal them Monday.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Where does the money go?

To the Editor:

RE: the article in Tuesday's Pampa News where DPS Troopers Jason Henderson, Chad Grange and Jerome Ingle confiscated $723,790 dollars on I-40 and brought it to a Pampa bank: Hey, let's give some of that to the PEDC so they can stop limping along and do what they promised to do (shut down the PEDC) and the rest (along with a few more arrests like this) and Pampa/Gray County stop paying or worrying about tax income! Over the years I have read I don't know how many stories like this in the paper. Where does all this money go to? Where does it disappear to? Why cannot laws or ordinances be passed that this money would go to the county in which it was "recovered"? And not to office expansion (and thus more taxes needed in the end), but to existing budgetary needs of the county? For the life of me I don't understand it. I know there is some rule covering this, but it ought to be changed. I don't understand how it has not been changed before this. OK, I said my two cents worth (pun intended). Dave Schlewitz

Today in History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, March 6, the 65th day of 2003. There are 300 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

Franklin Roosevelt went into effect.

On March 6, 1853, Verdi's opera "La Traviata" premiered in Venice, Italy.

On this date:

In 1834, the city of York in Upper Canada was incorporated as Toronto.

In 1836, the Alamo in San Antonio, Texas, fell to Mexican forces after a 13-day siege.

In 1857, in its "Dred Scott" decision, the Supreme Court held that Scott, a slave, could not sue for his freedom in federal court. In 1933, a nationwide bank holiday declared by President

In 1935, retired Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes

Junior died in Washington. In 1944, U.S. heavy bombers staged the first American raid on

Berlin during World War II. In 1957, the former British African colonies of the Gold Coast and Togoland became the independent state of Ghana.

In 1981, Walter Cronkite signed off for the last time as principal anchorman of "The CBS Evening News."

In 1983, in a case that drew much notoriety, a woman in New Bedford, Mass., reported being gang-raped atop a pool table in a tavern called Big Dan's; four men were later convicted in the attack.

In 1987, 189 people died when the British ferry Herald of Free Enterprise capsized off the Belgian port of Zeebrugge.

Ten years ago: As a standoff at the Branch Davidian compound near Waco, Texas, ended its first week, authorities appealed publicly to David Koresh and his followers to give themselves up.

Five years ago: The Army honored three Americans who risked their lives and turned their weapons on fellow soldiers to stop the slaughter of Vietnamese villagers at My Lai in 1968.

Lent through a child's eyes

As the Lenten season began yesterday with Ash Wednesday, I was still pondering what sacrifice I would make for the next 40 days.

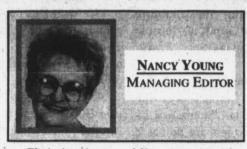

Sitting in the Ash Wednesday service last night with Peyton, 8; Christian, 6; and Paige, 4, I began to think the sacrifice had already begun.

These three were attending their first Ash Wednesday service and were they ever full of questions! Their mother and I had begun explaining to them several days ago about the service because we knew putting the sign of the cross on their forehead with ashes would definitely be something different to them.

They still had numerous questions, and Paige was especially fidgety.

Why do we do this? What is the page number of that song, Nana? I can't see. What is Father doing? What is going on up there? Why are there so many people here? Why do we have to go to the front two times? Who is that man and woman who said hi to us and knew our names?

Driving up to the church, Paige asked, "Are we going to have 'church school' tonight like we do Sunday mornings?" I explained this was a special event. "But why," she asked. "Just because," I responded. "But I want to go to church school," she said. Just about that time her "church school" teacher arrived and parked near us. She was satisfied.

Christian is grumbling as we go in. "But I don't want to go to Mask," he said. Older sister Peyton said, "Christian, it's not Mask- it's Mass." He responded, "Whatever."

Once inside they knew they had to be quiet. Now they knew it, but Paige doesn't always do what she knows she's supposed to do. She is a very "social" child. (I learned many years ago when their aunt was in school that is teacher-talk for talking too much.) She immediately made friends with a little girl sitting behind us and didn't want to turn around.

A well-dressed man I had never seen before was sitting next to her and I wondered how he was going to handle being seated next to an active 4-yearold. As I stole glances at him, he showed no signs of being ready to offer her up as a sacrifice. I was

Towards the end of the service when the parishoners were offering peace to each other, she really got into that. She was quite happy with being able to acceptably talk. That is a part of the service she always enjoys.

Peyton and Christian were looking to me throughout the service as if to say, "Nana, do something with her."

Trying to break eye-contact with them, I visually scanned the crowd and saw many teens and young adults I had watched growing up. I remembered them as 4-year-olds and, deciding this is only temporary, realized someday I would long for this day again. I've done that with my children.

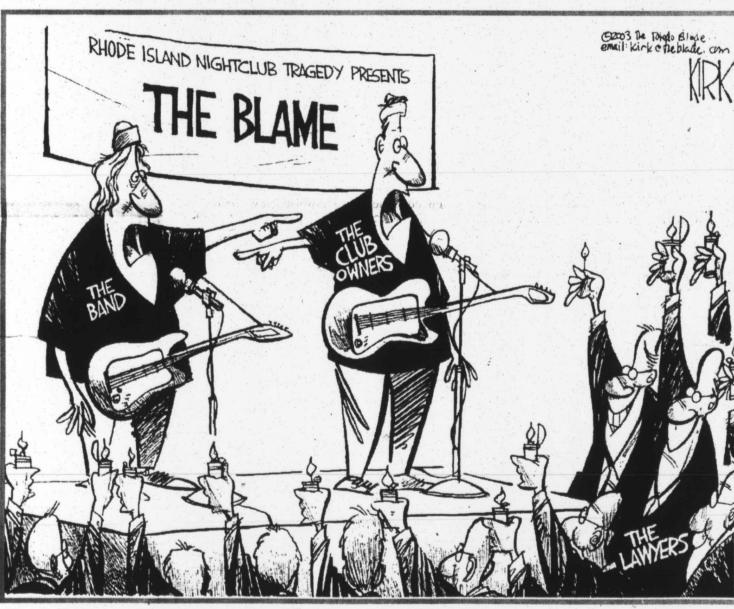

About that time Paige burst into tears. I asked what was wrong and she told me Christian had hit her. He said, "She hit me first." So much for "Peace be with you."

As we exited the church, the strange man told me how sweet Paige was. Peyton and Christian looked at him, then me, as if he was an escaped mental patient.

The children now had the first Ash Wednesday behind them and they felt they knew all about it.

Early this morning as we left home, I saw a cotton tail rabbit scampering across the yard. "Look," I said. "There's one of Peter Rabbit's kids. See they're getting ready for Easter, too." Peyton asked how I knew which rabbits were related to Peter Rabbit. "That's something that you'll know when you are a grandmother," I told

And you are teaching your grandchildren, too, I thought. I hope she remembers these times with fondness.

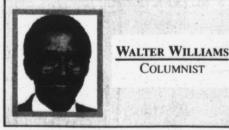

Different visions, different policy

We're often confronted by the enigma of decent people professing identical goals but advocating polar opposite policies. Sometimes the political alignment is seen as conservative versus liberal where, for example, conservatives fight against minimum wage increases and liberals support those increases.

The enigma is: Why is it that two groups of people, professing concern for low-skilled workers, advocate vastly differing means to help them? I think that part of the answer lies in differing visions of how the world works; but that answer only applies to honest people who don't have a self-interested hidden agenda.

Consider what might have been an argument between two Spaniards in A.D. 1300. One person's initial premise is that the earth is flat, while the other's initial premise is that the earth is round. The person with the flat-earth premise would argue that it's impossible to sail west from Spain and reach India. The person with the round-earth premise would argue the opposite -- while the voyage would be long, one can sail west from Spain and reach India.

The internal logic underlying both arguments, given the initial premises, are flawless. After all, if the world is flat, and India lies to the east of Spain, sailing west from Spain means that somewhere along the way you're going to fall off the earth. By contrast, with the premise that the earth is round, of course one could sail west and reach India. Here's the point: Given the initial premises, both arguments are flawless, internally consistent and believable to their adherents.

Let's apply this reasoning to the minimum wage debate to see how it might explain how two groups of decent and honest people can reach polar opposite conclusions. If one's initial premise is that employers must employ certain amount of labor, say 10 workers, to get a job done, the logic that higher minimum wage laws would help low-skilled workers is flawless. It simply means higher wages for those 10 workers coming at the expense of the employer's profits.

By contrast, if one's initial premise is that employers are sensitive to labor prices and can substitute capital for labor. or move their operation to places where there's cheaper labor, the logic that the minimum wage would hurt at least some low-skilled workers is similarly flawless. After all, a low wage is better than no wage as a result of having been replaced by machinery or your job has moved Competing visions of how the world works enters many areas of our lives and generate polar opposite policies. Another example is gun control. If it's your vision that an inanimate object such as a gun can cause crime, then you'll advocate gun control as a means to reduce crime. The logic is impeccable -- fewer guns means less crime. But, if it's your vision that evil people, not guns, cause crime, you might advocate more gun ownership as a means to reduce crime, namely giving lawabiders greater protection and providing more uncertainty for criminals.

A way out the conundrum of competing visions is to demand that people make their initial premises explicit so they can be challenged. Supporters of higher minimum wage law, as a means to help low-skilled workers, should be required to provide evidence that employers are insensitive to increases in labor prices, and those who argue against should be required to provide evidence employers are sensitive.

Gun-control advocates should be required to provide evidence that guns, not evil people, cause crime, and gunownership advocates should be pressed for their evidence that it's evil people, not guns, that cause crime.

Pregnant Wife Fears She's Lost Husband's Full Attention

DEAR ABBY: My fifth wedding anniversary is coming soon. I was looking forward to it until last night. I took my children to visit their daddy at his office. He is usually happy to see us. We found him eating his dinner in the company's break room.

We were enjoying a pleasant conversation when suddenly a female co-worker burst in and began telling a story. This woman, "Carmen," is very voluptuous and extroverted. My husband started laughing like crazy at Carmen's funny story which I didn't find amusing at all. But it didn't bother me until my husband came home from work and we started getting ready for bed. He began repeating this "funny" story he heard at work. When I told him I was there when Carmen told it, he looked surprised and said, "You

Abby, I was crushed! I had been in that break room for 15 minutes before Carmen came in, and my husband had forgotten all about our visit. I am trying not to let it bother me, but I am 71/2 months pregnant and beginning to believe my husband no longer cares for me. What story with you, you should not be threatened by one instance of short-term memory loss.

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 and in secret and are causing great tears as I write this. My parents met in college and married when Mom got pregnant with my older brother. They recently celebrated their 17th anniversary. Lately, it seems all Mom and Dad do is argue. My father's job requires him to work long hours and travel a lot, so things have been especially stressful.

Last weekend, my brother and I went to visit our aunt and uncle who live a couple of hours away. While I was sitting at their computer e-mailing some friends, I couldn't resist the temptation, so I pulled up an e-mail Mother had sent to my aunt. In it, Mom wrote that she "can't take it any longer" and finally talked to a divorce lawyer. She plans to file for divorce as soon as my brother graduates from high school. She doesn't want us kids to know because my brother needs to keep his grades up so he can get into a good college, and she knows the news would upset us.

But that wasn't the worst part. Mom went on to say she had con-BROKENHEARTED: First of fessed to our priest that she's been having an affair with a co-worker! Mom reads your column every day, so please give us some good advice. reconsider what she's doing.

HOUSTON (AP) Linebacker Jay Foreman, a key to the Houston Texans' defense last season, signed a five-year contract Tuesday remain with the team.

Foreman played inside right linebacker on the Texans' 3-4 defense last season and had the best season of his five-year career. He came to the Texans in a trade with the Buffalo Bills and made it clear afterward he didn't want to pursue free agency.

"Re-signing Jay was one of our top off-season priorities," Texans general manager Charley Casserly said. "Jay had a solid first season for us and we think he will continue to flourish in this system."

Terms of the deal were immediately announced.

Foreman was a key part of the inaugral Texans defense that ranked 16th in the NFL last, season in total defense. The Texans listed Foreman with a team-high 193 tackles.

Buffalo free agent linebacker Keith Newman, Foreman's former teammate with the Bills, visited the Texans on Monday.

The Texans expected a visit on Tuesday from Washington Redskins running back Stephen Davis, released by the Redskins in a salary cap move. The Texans'running game ranked last in the NFL last season with 3.2 yards per carry.

Lady Harvesters shut out Randall in district opener

RANDALL - Pampa broke in Randall's new softball complex in a big way Tuesday, defeating the Lady Raiders in convincing fashion 7-0 to open the District 3-4A season.

Pampa got a leadoff single from Jennie Rogers to open the first, followed by a perfect bunt from Amy Youree to put two runners on. Abbi Covalt walked to load the bases.

Randall starter Karen Taylor struck out the next batter, but Pampa's Haley Bowen reached first on an error to bring in the first run. That would turn out to be the only run needed.

Pampa's Chelsey Davis (1-0, 5-5) pitched the seven- Bowen (single).

inning game, working out of trouble in the third and sixth innings. Davis scattered six hits, gave up one walk and struck out five in picking up the victory. The Lady Harvesters had perfect defense behind her, not committing an error.

Pampa's leading hitters were Rogers and Youree with three hits each. Rogers scored two runs and Youree had two bunt singles. Stacey Johnson had two hits and scored two

Others with hits were April Amador (double), Teryn Garner (single), Whitney Roden (double) and Haley

Defensively, Amador madetwo outstanding catches of wind-blown flyballs to aid Pampa (1-0 in district, 14-5 overall) in the district win.

For Randall, Brittany LePage and Karen Taylor collected two hits each, but were left stranded both times. Randall's offense would get only two more hits.

This was also Randall's district opener. Pampa had lost to Randall 7-5 at the Borger Winter Classic in mid-February. The Lady Harvesters had seven errors in that game.

Nets at Frank Erwin Center had no chance as Texas gains share of Big 12 title

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The nets at the Frank Erwin Center had no chance.

Not after No. 5 Texas had clinched a share of its first Big 12 regular-season title Wednesday night with a 78-66 win over Oklahoma.

With the league trophy in hand, Texas players climbed the ladder to take their cuts at the nets in the arena, where the Longhorns went 15-0 this sea-

"Everybody got a piece," said Stacy Stephens, who led the Longhorns with 28 points on 12-of-16 shooting.

Texas hadn't gone unbeaten at home since the 1985-86 season, when the Longhorns became the first women's undefeated national champion.

"Cutting down the net was the greatest feeling I've ever had," said guard Tai Dillard, one of only two seniors. She concede the title without a scored 10 points and keyed the pivotal run late in the game with back-to-back layups.

"I've always watched it on TV and I finally got to do it," Dillard said.

Heather Schreiber added 16 points for the Longhorns (22-5, 15-1 Big 12), who finished the regular season on a 10-game winning streak.

The Longhorns could win the Big 12 outright if No. 8 Texas Tech beats conference co-leader No. 4 Kansas State on Thursday.

"I don't care," said Texas coach Jody Conradt. "The way really took it to us. I feel now is this team has won a share of the championship. I'll just enjoy what they accomplished."

Defending conference champion Oklahoma (18-11, 9-7) was already out of contention, but wasn't about to fight. Dionnah Jackson led the Sooners with 21 points and Chelsi Welch added 15.

"We're pretty accustomed to doing what they did, and that's cutting down the nets," said Oklahoma coach Sherri Coale.

The Sooners outrebounded Texas 24-10 in the first half and rallied from two nine-point deficits to pull within 33-31 at halftime.

"I was really fearful we would play not to lose, which we kind of did in the first half," Conradt said. "Plus, Oklahoma

"There were a lot of things riding on this game. I could have predicted it would be tight."

Oklahoma briefly took the lead 50-49 on Jackson's layup with 12 minutes left, and her 3point play made it 53-53.

Arizona loses Plummer, Boston to free agency

By BARRY WILNER

AP Football Writer

Arizona's once-dynamic pitch and catch tandem of Jake Plummer to David Boston has been torn apart by free agency.

Plummer, the Cardinals' quarterback for the past six seasons, agreed Wednesday to a seven-year, $40 million deal with the Denver Broncos. Boston, his favorite target, headed west to San Diego for a seven-year deal worth more than $6 million a year for the first four seasons. "When it came down to it, the opportunity to work with (Broncos head coach) Mike Shanahan was the determinant factor," Plummer said. "And also a franchise that has won Super Bowls and is on that same course to do it again, I believe.

"From what they've told me, what they believe I can add to this team, there's no reason we shouldn't be making a push very soon."

After a mediocre 2002 season, the Cardinals were expected to let Plummer leave. Now the Broncos, who gave incumbent Brian Griese permission to seek a trade, have their new quarterback. At 28, with 82 NFL starts, Plummer could blossom under offensive-minded Shanahan. In 1998, Plummer led the Cardinals to their first playoff victory since 1947. The Broncos also added defensive tackle Daryl Gardener, who started 15 games last year for Washington and had 71 tackles and four sacks. Gardener is expected to replace Chester McGlockton, who was released by the Broncos.

San Diego's young passer, Drew Brees, should be smiling at the prospect of throwing to Boston, the top wide receiver available in free agency. The 6-foot-2, 236-pound Boston, whose father, Byron, is an NFL official, caught 98 passes two years ago for Arizona, which drafted him in the first round in 1999. He led the league with 1,598 yards receiving and was voted to the All-Pro team.

Last year, slowed by a knee injury, Boston had 32 catches. He also pleaded no contest to driving under the influence of drugs.

'This situation seemed to have all the intangibles for me," Boston said. "They're trying to win and that's what I'm trying to do."

him."

Defensive tackle Cletidus Hunt signed a six-year, $25 million contract with the Packers, who were able to remove the transition designation they assigned to him Feb.

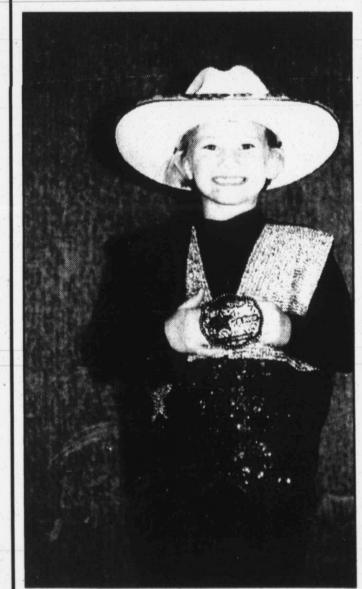

"I think that Cletidus Hunt is at just the tip of the iceberg in regard to what he's capable of doing," Sherman said. "I think he can be a dominant player in this league."

The Carolina Panthers signed former New Orleans backup QB Jake Delhomme and re-signed 37-year-old Rodney Peete, last year's starter, to a three-year deal. Then they cut running back Lamar Smith.

Delhomme, 28, threw just 86 passes during his five years in New Orleans. Carolina believes he could be a lateblossoming quarterback.

"He's a good young quarterback and he's very accurate," Panthers general manager Marty Hurney said. "He seems to bring some veteran He's expected to sign the leadership skills and some intangibles. Junior rodeo winner

Krysten Miller, daughter of Kelly and Lana Miller of Pampa, is a participant in the Junior Rodeo Association. She won a buckle and saddle for winning barrels, poles and goats competition in last year's 5-6 age division. Earlier last year, Krysten won a camper trailer valued at $2,000.

Sharp shooting Kellye Richardson is still following the bouncing basketball. She was Pampa's first female hoops star, at least in the Watching Fox Sports Southwest last weekend, viewers could catch a glimpse of her during the Class 5A girls' championship finals between Duncanville and Georgetown at the Frank Irwin Center in Austin.

Richardson is the No. 1 assistant to head coach Rhonda Farney, who has guided the Georgetown Lady Eagles to high school's final four three times.

Richardson has been the assistant varsity coach and head junior varsity coach at Georgetown for 10 years. She also coaches the cross country team, and is the administrator for all grade school athletic programs in Georgetown.

When big-school girls' basketball was revitalized across the state in the late 1970's, Richardson became of one Pampa's early standouts. As a pure shooter who could hit from anywhere on the floor, she was a scoring machine right from the beginning. Two-handed finger roll layups were a Richardson specialty.

Richardson was named the district's Sophomore of the Year, and earned the league's Most Valuable Player honors as a junior. The 5-10 guard averaged 25 points per game as a senior and won MVP honors at the Golden Spread All-Star Games in Amarillo. She missed by one vote of being district MVP two straight years. That summer following graduation, she was selected to play in the Texas-Kansas High School Girls' All-Star Game. Playing for the East squad, she got that second MVP award denied her as a senior.

One of her biggest fans was dad Kennith

Richardson, who was caught off-guard by Kellye's sudden success on the hardcourt.

"I don't remember Kellye playing much basketball growing up," Richardson said. "She started playing some as a freshman just within the school. They started the basketball program back up around that time and I was surprised at how good she was. I guess she was just a natural. I remember her senior year she had at least five games where she scored over 30 points."

After going over a quarter-century without a girls' basketball program, Pampa High launched the sport again in 1975 playing a sophomore schedule.

Richardson's sophomore season (1976-77) was the first year girls started playing 5 on 5 fullcourt basketball, instead of the traditional 3 on 3 — three players on offense, three on defense. The Lady Harvesters played a junior varsity schedule that first season, then went varsity in the newly-formed District 3-5A.

Stardom was just beginning for Richardson, who went onto play at Amarillo College where she helped lead the Lady

Badgers to the Texas Junior College Tournament title. They advanced to the nationals in Kansas City, winning five of six Richardson spurned college offers from West Texas State, Missouri and Kansas to sign with Marsha Sharp at Texas Tech. She started every game for the Lady Raiders her final two seasons and graduated in 1983.

Kennith, a retired Cabot supervisor, played basketball at Kelton High and went to Clarendon College on an athletic scholarship.

"I was a pretty good player, but I'd have to say Kellye was a little better," he laughed. "Her grandmother, my mother, was a good player. I guess it's in the genes."

Kellye's grandmother, Vena Clemens-Richardson, played on Pampa High's 1931 girls' basketball team. Vena, who had moved from Kelton to Pampa when she was a senior, wasn't in the starting lineup early in the sea-

After going into one game in the second half and scoring 24 points, she was assured of a starting role the rest of the year.

Barnes' 24 leads Cyclones's emotional victory over Missouri

Eds: New material for PMs By The Associated Press

Iowa State and coach Larry Eustachy put aside their heartache long enough to beat a tough opponent in an emotional game.

Playing just hours after the death of longtime radio announcer Pete Taylor, Iowa State got 24 points from Tim Barnes and big games from several others in beating Missouri 71-55 Wednesday night.

"There were a lot of emotions," Iowa State's Jared Homan said. "We were thinking of him, but we played hard. We wanted to go out and play hard for him and in memory of him." * It was especially emotional for Iowa State coach Larry Eustachy. Taylor, who died after brain surgery at University Hospitals in Iowa City, was an associate athletic director and had been Eustachy's closest friend in the department.

Tears streamed down Eustachy's cheek as he went to shake hands with Missouri coach Quin Snyder after the game. He was still crying when he walked into the interview room.

"Our wives used to kid each other, Judy Taylor and my wife, and say Pete was the brother Larry never had and Larry was the brother Pete never had," Eustachy said. "Nothing is

"I made my peace with Pete over at the hospital. He was not conscious, but I know he heard me."

each, but 6-foot-9 Arthur Johnson managed only two points and three rebounds.

Johnson had 21 points and 11 rebounds in a 70-60 victory over Iowa State in Columbia on Jan. 21.

"They played great defense on AJ and it was hard for him to find his rhythm," Paulding said. "Give them all the credit in the world."

Homan did the defensive work on Johnson and scored 15 points. Jackson Vroman had 14 points, 15 rebounds and seven assists, while Jake Sullivan and Adam Haluska each scored nine points.

Adding to the difficult circumstances for Iowa State, assistant coach Randy Brown resigned Monday after being charged with possession of child pornography and obstruction of justice. And top reserve Marcus Jefferson was unable to get back for the game after visiting his ailing mother in East Chicago,

"We had the eye of the tiger," Eustachy said. "You think about these guys, Marcus missed his flight because of weather ... nothing's matched this from any game I've been in since I've been here."

Oklahoma State (20-8, 9-6) continued its late-season struggles in its first trip to Boulder since 10 members of the program died in a plane crash two years ago.

Two players and eight others were killed after a game against Colorado on Jan. 27, 2001, when one of three planes carrying the team's traveling party crashed in a storm about 40 miles outside Denver.

Oklahoma State shot 32 percent — many were way off the mark — to lose three straight for the first time since 1998-99. Ivan McFarlin had 13 points and 11 rebounds to lead the Cowboys, who have lost seven of 10 following a 17-1 start.

Nazareth wins in AUSTIN (AP) - Nazareth outscored Oakwood 9-0 in the third overtime to win its second consecutive Class 1A Division II state championship Thursday 69-60.

Jordy Rowland had 19 and Chase Schulte added 17 — including the shots that sent the game into the first and second overtimes - for Nazareth (27-6).

Cousins Carlious and R.E. Owens combined for 53 points for Oakwood (24-8), which had won just seven games in the previous three seasons before the run to the state tournament.

Oakwood led 50-48 in the final seconds of regulation and was defending against a 3-point shot when Schulte drove into a wideopen lane to send the game into overtime on a layup with 1.4 seconds left.

the second extra period. Oakwood led 55-52 after Carlious Owens sank one of two free throws with 8.8 seconds left. Nazareth raced up court and got the ball to Schulte, who Eric Schilling scored 21 points, swished a 3-pointer from the right wing as time expired.

Schilling hit a turnaround jumper for the first basket of the third overtime, Rowland followed it with a layup and Nazareth hit 4-of-5 free throws down the stretch for the win.

Oakwood had a chance to seal the victory in the first overtime but missed the front end of two 1-and-1 situations and went just 1-of-4 from the line in the final 35 seconds of the

The Owens cousins shot 22 of 46 from the floor, but R.E. Owens 2-of-10 from the foul line.

Horry wins it at final buzzer; Lakers edge Pacers, 97-95

By The Associated Press

In an ending that so many Lakers opponents have seen so many times before, Robert Horry knocked down a jumper as the final buzzer sounded.

Horry's buzzer-beating 20-footer gave Los Angeles a 97-95 victory over Indiana on Wednesday night as Kobe Bryant became the youngest player in NBA history to reach 10,000 career points. After Fisher tied it at 95 with 31 seconds remaining, Bryant appeared to put the Lakers up when he hit a running 30-footer with 2.8 seconds left.

But the basket was waved off because Ron Artest had been called for a foul before Bryant got the shot off.

inbounded the ball, then Horry as he did in the Lakers' dramatic playoff victory over Sacramento last year - was in the right place at the right time, as a pass' into Shaquille O'Neal was deflected right to him.

. m just very, very blessed. I had good looks on our last three possessions before that," Horry said. "I'd missed two 3s and turned it over, so I was pretty mad at myself. I just let everything go and focused.

In other games, Sacramento outlasted Minnesota 96-95 in overtime, Phoenix defeated Portland 98-92, Utah downed Seattle 94-83, Washington beat the Los Angeles Clippers 99-80, Orlando topped Milwaukee 111-99, Memphis downed Denver 96-86, Boston defeated New York 97-95, Houston edged Toronto 97-95, and Atlanta defeated Cleveland 111-

The Staples Center crowd of 18,997 gave Bryant a standing ovation when he scored his 14th point of the game. At 24 years, 193 days, he supplanted Bob McAdoo as the youngest player to reach that milestone.

"I really can't grasp what it After a timeout, the Lakers means right now. I had no idea the crowd was going to stand up the way they did. It was a little embarrassing, but it was a good feeling," said Bryant, who finished with 20

Kings 96, Timberwolves 95,

At Sacramento, Calif., Chris Webber had 25 points and 11 rebounds and put the Kings ahead for good in overtime.

Webber made a jump hook in scored 23 points to lead Utah in the lane over Kevin Garnett, putting the Kings ahead 89-87. Following a shot clock violation by Minnesota, Webber backed Garnett down again and made a similar shot on the left side for a 91-87 lead with 1:24 remaining.

With Webber closely defending Garnett, Troy Hudson missed a long 3-pointer that would have given the Timberwolves a onepoint lead. Peja Stojakovic gathered the rebound and made two free throws for a 96-92 lead with 1.7 seconds left before Hudson made a 3-pointer at the buzzer.

Garnett scored 27 points and tied his career high with 24 rebounds.

Suns 98, Trail Blazers 92

At Phoenix, Stephon Marbury scored 33 points - his second 30plus effort in as many nights.

Marbury, coming off a-35-point, 48-minute performance in the Suns' 104-97 victory at San Antonio, topped 30 points for the ninth time in 14 games. He was 12for-22 shooting and 6-for-6 from the foul line in 46 minutes as the Suns snapped Portland's fourgame winning streak.

Jazz 94, SuperSonics 83 At Salt Lake City, Karl Malone scoring for the ninth straight game the Jazz snapped the SuperSonics' five-game winning streak.

Andrei Kirilenko scored 11 of his 19 points in the third quarter and pulled down 11 rebounds in his second straight start for Matt Harpring (sprained ankle).

Wizards 99, Clippers 80

At Washington, Michael Jordan played just 25 minutes one night after a bout of back spasms, and the Wizards had all five starters in double figures.

Moving gingerly and grimacing at times, Jordan finished with 10 points on 4-for-14 shooting with nine rebounds. He sat for good with 3:05 remaining in the third quarter with the Wizards leading

Magic 111, Bucks 99

At Orlando, Fla., Tracy McGrady scored 48 points as the Magic won for the seventh time in eight games.

McGrady shot 17-for-34 for his eighth 40-point game of the season. Drew Gooden added a careerhigh 26 points as Orlando (32-30) climbed two games over .500 for the first time since Jan. 22.

Grizzlies 96, Nuggets 86

At Memphis, Tenn., Stromile Swift scored a season-high 24 points and grabbed 10 rebounds as the Grizzlies sent the Nuggets to their 14th consecutive loss.

The Nuggets are in the midst of the franchise's longest losing streak since a 16-game skid in

Celtics 97, Knicks 95

At Boston, Antoine Walker scored 34 points and Tony Battie blocked the potential tying shot in the final seconds as Boston beat the Knicks for the eighth consecutive time.

Rockets 97, Raptors 95

At Toronto, Yao Ming scored 13 of his 21 points in the fourth quarter as Houston ended a four-game losing skid. Yao also grabbed nine rebounds before a crowd filled with fans from Toronto's Chinese community.

Hawks 111, Cavaliers 105

At Cleveland, Jason Terry scored 24 points with a career-high 14 assists. Shareef Abdur-Rahim and Glenn Robinson added 23 points apiece.

The Cavs lost their fourth straight to drop to an NBA-worst 11-50. It's the club's fourth Straigin 50-loss season.

Former forestry worker gets 12-year state sentence

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo. (AP) - A former U.S. Forest Service employee was sentenced Wednesday to 12 years in state prison for starting the biggest wildfire in Colorado history.

Terry Lynn Barton had already been sentenced to six years on federal charges. The state and federal terms will run concurrently.

Barton, 39, blotted her eyes with a tissue as prosecutors showed a video and photographs of the destruction caused by the 138,000-acre blaze. It destroyed 133 homes and one business, causing an estimated $29.9 million in damage.

A hearing on restitution will be held within 90 days. Barton's supporters, including three of her former co-workers and a nun, told the judge that Barton could not have started the fire intentionally.

"I feel like this fire would have happened one way or another. It was a tinderbox," said Mother Cassiana, acting superior of a monastery at Lake George, where the fire started.

She asked the judge to consider Barton's 15- and 18year-old daughters, who were in the courtroom. "They've already been sentenced to six years without their mother," she said.

Barton, whose job included spotting illegal fires, first told authorities she discovered the fire while patrolling a forest June 8. She later said she accidentally started the blaze, despite a fire ban at the time, while burning a letter from her estranged husband.

Barton pleaded guilty to federal arson charges in December and the state arson charge in January.

Last month, a federal judge rejected prosecutors' request to order Barton to make $14.7 million in restitution, saying he would not sentence her to a life of poverty. At her federal sentencing, Barton apologized for the fire.
