"I looked at it, I remember looking at it, but I didn't file it. I didn't think our landfill would not meet the capacity," Morris said.

Lack of the two filings surfaced when TEQC area enforcement inspected the landfill in May, Morris said. The city received the order of violation in November with an administrative penal-

Morris told the commission he wants to request TEQC to allow the city perform a supplemental environmental project in lieu of paying the penalty.

He asked the commission to approve a plan to control erosion along the steep banks of Red Deer Creek in Central Park as the project. He said the commission would need to draw up a Letter of Intent to include in his proposal to the TEOC.

In other action Tuesday, commissioners canceled the Dec. 23 meeting and heard a request from Monty Danner of Lubbock who asked that a city park be named after his grandfather George Keaton, a longtime Pampa resident who will turn 104 on Dec. 27.

City commissioners plan to meet in special session again today for second hearing of the ordinances approved Tuesday and approval of the final plat for the Wal-Mart addition.

Flashing Game Goes Too Far When Boys Start Playing Rough

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 and I have

I was shopping with my friend "Crystal," and we saw some guys we know. They're a year or two younger, so I thought they were just being stupid kids when they not-so-subtly tried to get me to flash them.

I'm ashamed to say I played along and lifted my top a little and unintentionally gave them a glimpse of my bra. They kept pestering me for more. It was just annoying until one of them reached for my top and tried to pull it down twice. Then one of them said to grab my arms and hold me down, which two of them did, while another one held Crystal back. They nearly succeeded in removing my top and bra, and more than one of them got a hand down my bra.

Was I at fault for this incident because I encouraged them? Am I making a mountain out of a molehill, or is this kind of thing no big deal?
HUMILIATED

IN SAN BERNARDINO, CALIF.

DEAR HUMILIATED: The answers to your questions are yes and no. Children who play with fire run the risk of being seriously burned. And girls who engage in sexual teasing run a similar risk. That's the lesson you should have learned from this embarrassing and, I'm sure, frightening incident. When you lifted your top, you sent a signal to the boys that you were willing to "play" and things got out of hand.

However, whether or not it was intended as horseplay, the boys went too far. Because of that, you should inform your mother and/or dad so they can. discuss it with the parents of the boys involved. An authority figure — preferably a parent — needs to talk to those boys about the definition of sexual assault and battery, because that's what occurred. Unless they are warned, it will happen again. And next time, the police could be involved.

DEAR ABBY: Every year you discuss practical gifts for senior citizens. When my late second cousin, "Pat," turned 94, she was having serious problems with her vision. She loved corresponding with friends, but could no longer write in a straight line, so her envelopes could not be read correctly by the post office.

I asked a friend if she would create some stationery that my cousin could use; she removed the thread from her sewing machine, and on the back of each sheet of paper "stitched" parallel lines about 1/2 inch apart. I asked her to do the same with the envelopes, but to make only four lines where the address would go. Cousin Pat loved her beautiful—and useful - stationery. Her friends were able to read her handwriting, and so could the U.S. Postal Service. It's easy to write in a straight line when your fingers can feel the tiny "bumps" that the needle makes.

I'm a retireu former Braille teacher, and machine-stitching is one of the techniques I would use to make geometry drawings for blind students. (I wonder if banks would permit this on personal checks?)

I hope this idea will help more people with fading eyesight to keep

HOUSTON (AP) -The NFL on Tuesday showed off the centerpiece of its annual Super Bowl invasion, the traveling "NFL Experience" football theme park that will cover nearly half the George R. Brown Convention Center for five days leading to the big game on Feb. 1.

The league gave about 100 Houston-area schoolchildren a sneak preview of the skill-oriented games that will be among the 50 interactive displays covering 800,000 square feet of the downtown convention center.

"I love it because I play football ... wide receiver and backup 'quarterback," said Christopher Hall of Orange Grove Elementary School. He successfully caught a pass among a maze of padded dummies on the floor of Reliant Stadium. "It makes me feel like I'm there."

Despite coming from a big family, Christopher said he looked forward to visiting the full-scale version next month and wasn't put off by the $15 tickets for adults, $10 for kids 12 and under. Then again, at 10 years old he probably won't be asked to pony up.

Proceeds go to NFLsupported charities in Houston.

Jim Steeg, the league's senior vice president of special events, said the NFL Experience is a major drawing card to attract tourists to Houston and its newly redeveloped downtown area, even those who aren't planning to be here Super Bowl weekend.

was unavoidable for Texans

Capers wasn't in a smiling mood.

He watched his Texans suffer their first shutout in person Sunday. Then he and his staff watched the game film Monday, although the movie was just as bad and had the same sorry ending, 27-0.

Capers predictably gave the effort two thumbs down when he met with reporters afterward for his weekly press confab. He was understandably subdued as he discussed the stagnant offense and defensive breakdowns.

13th Texan was headed for Pro Bowl cornerback Aaron the injured reserve, meaning he was out for the season. Outside linebacker Charlie Clemons' season officially became a bust Monday thanks to a bum left ankle. A reporter asked Capers if he could remember a team in his 32 years of college and pro coaching that has been hampered more by injuries.

The question evoked a bittersweet smile.

"My last year in Carolina," he said. "I think we had 15 players on injured reserve."

Injuries, age and the salary

HOUSTON (AP) - Dom and he was out after four seasons. The Year Two Texans have managed to exceed expectations despite a fierce schedule and a training room that resembles the battlefield hospital scene in "Gone With the Wind."

Capers said last month he thought the last six weeks would define the 2003 Texans. That was before David Carr injured his right shoulder, backup Tony Banks had a season-ending right hand fracture, standout rookie running back Domanick Davis missed last week with a He also revealed that a deep right thigh bruise and Glenn reinjured his problematic groin.

The Texans, without years upon years to stockpile draft picks like every other team except the Browns, have little to no proven depth at most positions. The wide receiving corps is the only area that hasn't had a player miss time this season, and every other position has contributed to the injured reserve except cornerback, although Glenn could be headed there soon.

The cynic might celebrate the murderer's row that faces cap decimated his Panthers Houston in its last three games - a trip to worldchampion Tampa Bay, clinging to its playoff life, followed by postseason-bound AFC South rivals Tennessee and Indianapolis at home. A season-ending four-game losing streak, while discouraging, would mean another plum first-round draft pick next season and a chance to look at younger players currently on the roster.

Capers isn't a cynic.

"We're not going to just write this off to see a bunch of young guys play," Capers said. "We're going to try to win games. The first priority is to try to win these last three football games and the more we can get a look at guys we think can be part of our plans next year, then that much the better."

The silver lining to the scalpels, casts and bandages the Texans have seen has been some unexpected finds. Necessity has given linebacker Shantee Orr, nose tackle Steve Martin, fullback Moran Norris and right tackle Greg Randall chances to shine, albeit at the expense of injured players like Seth Payne, Jarrod Baxter and Tony Boselli.

Unfortunately, truly getting better - better as in playoff caliber — is going to take more than a few fortunate free agent pickups, as valuable as guys like Orr, Martin and Norris have been and could be next season. Better is going to take successful draft picks and highprofile free agents to plug holes.

When the Texans are backing up high draft picks with other high draft picks, they'll be in a position to endure the normal amount of injuries that plague every NFL team after 16 weeks.

And even still, the Texans had braved their injury problems to a 5-7 record before a meltdown in Jacksonville that, perhaps, might have been inevitable after a string of closely contested games.

"One of the things that our team has been able to do prior to this is every football game we've been able to hang in there and battle and keep it close and win our share," Capers said, regretting that the trend ended Sunday.

"It kind of all caught up with us."

School board members can umpire

SAN ANTONIO (AP) -School board members can umpire baseball games, Attorney General Greg Abbott has ruled.

Abbott said in the opinion that public officials cannot receive payments from more than one agency. But school trustees are unpaid so umpiring baseball games would not be a conflict.

"It's nice to know the wheels are still turning in Austin," Michael Knight, attorney for Bee County, said in a story in Tuesday's online edition of the San Antonio Express-News. Bee County had sought the opinion delivered Monday.

A spokesman for the Texas Association of School Boards was not sure how many trustees in the state's more than 1,000 districts are affected by the opinion.

The July request for the opinion was triggered by Eloy Rodriguez, a veteran umpire who accepted an appointment in 2000 to the Beeville School District Board of Trustees.

District officials were unsure if Rodriguez, 58, could continue calling games. He stopped umpiring, but had to judge a softball playoff between Edna and George West.

percent of its games at the oncampus McKale Center. That's nothing.

The Wildcats are unbeaten at Madison Square Garden under coach Lute Olson. Maybe it's just a case of a team from the West doing well on the West Side of Manhattan.

The ninth-ranked Wildcats beat No. 6 Texas 91-83 Tuesday night in the Jimmy V Classic to improve to 9-0 under Olson in the Garden.

"We talked at the end of practice yesterday that we were 8-0 in the Garden and told them you wouldn't want to be the team that breaks that streak," a smiling Olson said. "Our guys came out just right. They weren't tense and that's what you hope for as a staff. That's the way they handle a big game against a big team in a building like Madison Square Garden."

Hassan Adams had a careerhigh 30 points for Arizona (3-1), while Andre Iguodala had a triple-double with 13 points, 13 rebounds and 10 assists.

It was another balanced offensive effort for the Wildcats, who entered the game with six players averaging between 14.0 and 9.7 points. It was also a solid performance on defense as Texas (4-1) shot 36 percent, a figure augmented by 25 offensive rebounds.

"We were concerned with a number of things about Texas, their size and depth for two," Arizona has won almost 85 Olson said, "Defensively, I think we created more problems for them than they created

> Adams, a 6-foot-4 sophomore forward whose previousbest 22 points came against Western Kentucky last season, didn't seem to have many problems all game, going 12for-21 from the field, including 3-for-5 from 3-point range.

"I just went out there and played my game. The shots came to me and I took them in rhythm," he said. "I was feeling it today and I was ready to Providence beat No. 14 Illinois 70-51 in the opening game of the doubleheader. In other top 25 games No. 12 Saint Joseph's beat Boston College 67-57; Northern Iowa defeated No. 24 Iowa 77-66; and No. 25 Dayton beat Louisiana-Lafavette 66-59.

The Wildcats took command with a 20-3 run early in the second half that gave them a 61-43 lead with 12:50 to play.

Their biggest lead was 79-60 on a 3-pointer by Adams with 6:03 to play and it seemed as if it would be a matter of watching the clock run out.

But the Longhorns were relentless on the offensive glass the rest of the way and held the Wildcats to just one field goal - a four-point play by Salim Stoudamire with 4:02 left. They got as close as 86-80 on a 3-pointer by Kenny Taylor with 31 seconds left, but Arizona went 5-for-6 from the free throw line to close it.

"We should have performed better," Texas coach Rick Barnes said. "I thought our perimeter shot selection was awful. We can be an outstanding team. It's early in December. We feel we can play with anybody but we have to Iguodala's triple-double was the seventh in school history and first since Luke Walton had one in 2001-02.

"Our chemistry is coming together and I'm having a good time with it," Iguodala said.

Stoudamire had all 17 of his points in the second half for Arizona, while Channing Frye had 15 and Mustafa Shakur 10.

"Our guys can score or they wouldn't be at Arizona," Stoudamire said. "Our guys are always going to step up, it's a matter of being positive."

Freshman P.J. Tucker had 16 points and 14 rebounds for the Longhorns, who shot 36 percent for the game (32-for-89) and outrebounded Arizona 53-48, including 25-11 on the offensive end

Texas' worst shooting period of a poor shooting game was when the Longhorns went 1-for-13 from the field during the 20-3 run. Stoudamire had half of Arizona's points in the Supreme Court considers politics in redistricting

BY GINA HOLLAND ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP) -The Supreme Court has a chance to give politicians new rules for the drawing of election districts in a case that questions whether the process has gotten too political.

Justices were reviewing a fight from Pennsylvania over a congressional map that essentially redistricted three Democratic House members out of a job.

Democratic voters who challenged the plan want the high court to spell out rules limiting partisan gerrymandering, the practice of drawing districts to favor one party over another.

The Supreme Court has made it almost impossible to win a claim that partisan gerrymandering is unconstitutional, although justices left the door open to such claims in a splintered 1986 ruling.

The case being argued before the court Wednesday is important because of the high stakes in boundary-drawing for political parties. States must redraw boundaries afterevery census to reflect population shifts, and redistricting has gotten more sophisticated.

Richard Hasen, an election law expert at Loyola Law School, said justices may be "seriously considering giving partisan gerrymandering claims some teeth." Or, after 17 years, they may just feel it's time to revisit the subject, he said.

If the high court backs away from its 1986 ruling, as the GOP is urging it to do, Republicans could lock in their control of Congress for years to come, said Nathaniel Persily, a professor and redistricting expert at the University of Pennsylvania Law School.

But if the court endorses the greater judicial involvesought by Democrats, the ruling would probably lead to legal challenges to the new congressional maps in at least a halfdozen other big states, he said.

The Democrats' attorney, Paul M. Smith, told justices in a filing that "as line-drawers have become more brazen in their willingness to instill bias in electoral maps, the need for judicial intervention has become compellingly clear." He called the court's attention to a bitter court fight over redistricting in Texas that also involves Democratic .charges of blatant GOP gerrymandering.

John P. Krill is the lawyer who represents the Pennsylvania Senate president pro tem and the House speaker, both Republicans. He told justices that redistricting is political and said it would be impessible for judges "tasked with exorcising partisanship from mapmaking" to know how to do it.

Because of Pennsylvania's slower-than-average population growth, the state lost two of its 21 seats in Congress after the 2000 census.

The new 19-seat maps were approved' with substantial Democratic support, but they were engineered by the Republicans who control both houses of the Legislature at a time when powerful computer software makes it possible to trace voting patterns down to individual streets and houses.

Largely because of where the district boundaries were drawn, the GOP tightened their grip on the state's congressional delegation, winning 12 of the 19 seats in 2002. Previously, Republicans had 11 seats to the Democrats' 10.

The case is Vieth v. Jubelirer, 02-1580.

Russia: Suicide bomber stirs up fears of future attacks suicide bomber who may have intended to attack Russia's parliament blew herself up outside a nearby upscale hotel across from Red Square on Tuesday, killing five people and sparking fears of a new wave of terror attacks in the Russian capital.

The bombing, which also wounded at least 12 people, came on the heels of Sunday's nationwide elections for parliament's lower house and only days after a suicide bombing of a train in southern Russia, killing 44 people.

Police were searching for a second woman suspected of involvement in Tuesday's attack, warning that she blast and asked a passer-by might also be carrying explosives. No group claimed responsibility, but past attacks - including ones carried out by female suicide bombers — have been blamed on rebels from MOSCOW (AP) — A the breakaway republic of Chechnya.

> The midmorning explosion outside the National Hotel, shortly before President Vladimir Putin addressed a meeting at the Kremlin nearby, left the Russian capital on edge. People in Moscow were already jittery after a suicide attack in July and a Chechen rebel hostage-taking raid on a Moscow theater last year. This year alone, nearly 300 people have been killed in Russia in bombings and other attacks blamed on Chechens.

Two women, possibly the suicide bomber and her accomplice, appeared lost near Red Square before the for directions to the State Duma, said Moscow's mayor, Yuri Luzhkov.

The National Hotel sits on a corner diagonally across from a gate leading into Red Square and the Kremlin. The State Duma, which officials said appeared to be the intended target, is located across the street, one of the capital's most elegant shopping boulevards.

"Evidently, the bomb went off by accident," Luzhkov said, according to the Interfax news agency. "The National Hotel was not the place where the suicide bombers had planned to stage the explosion."

Security cameras near the hotel picked up footage of the suicide bomber, a woman dressed in a lightcolored coat and carrying a purse, Luzhkov said on Russia's NTV television.

He said the purse was rigged with explosives and that she also was wearing an explosive belt, which the Interfax news agency reported was packed tightly with metal balls. The bomb contained more than two pounds of TNT, Moscow police spokesman Yevgeny Gildeyev said.

The blast shattered a Mercedes sedan parked nearby and smashed out windows on the upscale hotel, leaving white curtains billowing in the wind. Bodies and body parts were strewn about, including a head and a headless female Twelve people were wounded, five of them in grave condition, Zhomova, the Lyubov spokeswoman for Moscow medical directorate. A Chinese national was among the injured.

Repeated attacks including Friday's train bombing have exposed the inability of Russian authorities to protect the public against suicide bombings, a technique that Chechen rebels have turned to in the most recent conflict over the breakaway republic but hadn't used in the past.

The blast at the hotel came after Sunday's parliament elections, which handed a major victory to Putin's allies, strengthening his grip on the country.
