Lefors skunk tests positive for rabies

A positive rabies case was confirmed Thursday when a rabid skunk in Lefors was brought to animal control. This makes the 29th rabies case in the Pampa area over the last two years.

"This is a serious problem in the area, not just here," said Sandy Burns, local rabies control authority.

Burns said she wants people, especially in Lefors, to be aware and make sure pets have rabies shots.

"They need to vaccinate their dogs," she said. "Vaccinate, vaccinate, vaccinate."

Pampa ISD seeing lots of changes

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
EDITOR

Pampa Independent School District board members took a first look at the proposed $20.4 million 2003 - 2004 budget last night, but staff vacancies seem to be uppermost in the minds of the public.

An Amarillo television crew stopped by prior to the meeting for on-camera interviews with school officials regarding the assignment of Coach Richard "Dick" Dunham as the new athletic director who will take the place of Coach Dennis Cavalier. Cavalier died unexpectedly of a heart attack in May.

After an executive session on personnel, the school board choose to vote for Coach Heath Parker as head football coach as a sign of their support for the selection.

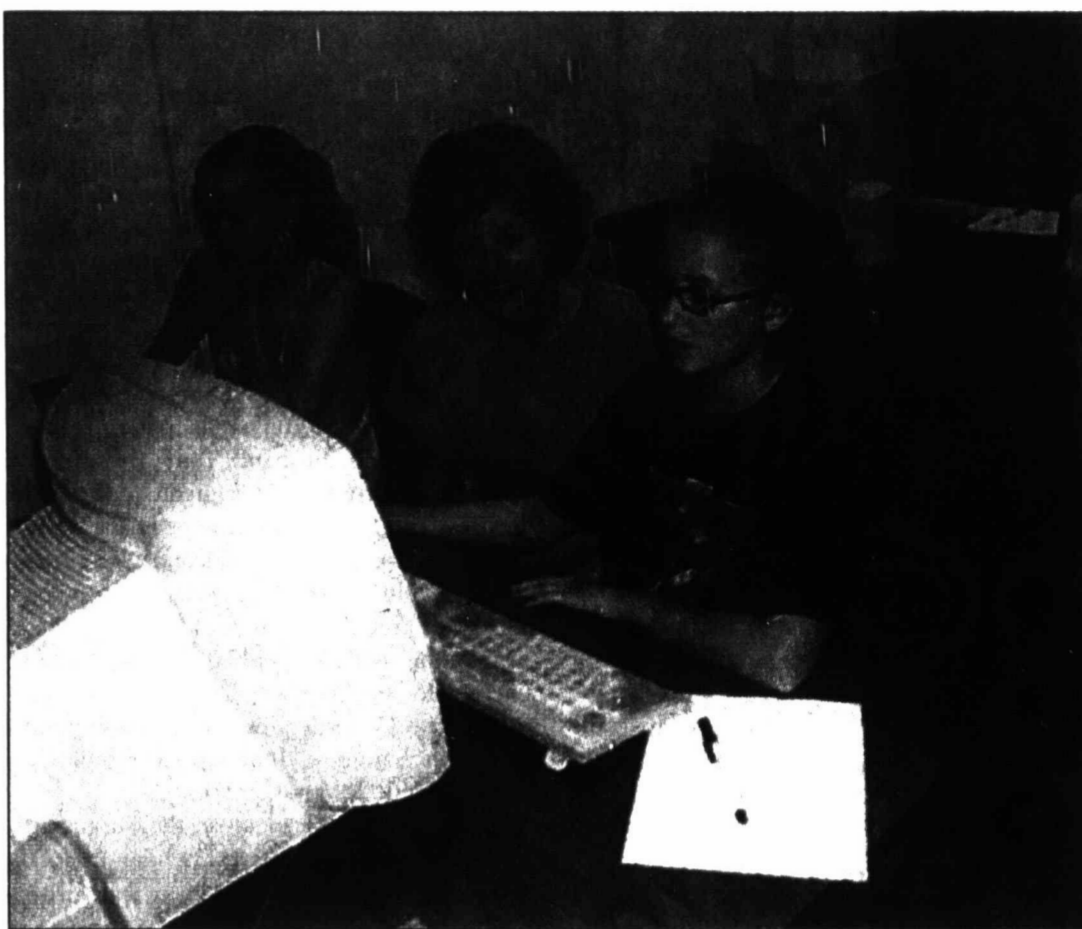

Several parents and Pampa High School and Middle School swimming students attended the board meeting to find out the fate of the school district's swimming program after the resignation of the swimming coach.

Superintendent Barry Haemisich reassured those attending that the swimming program remains the same as it was in next year's budget and school officials are "actively seeking" a new swimming coach.

"We are doing all we can to find a swim coach. We have budgeted the same amount and at the same rate as in the past (for the swimming program)," he said.

Today Haemisich confirmed that Pampa High School Principal John Kendall is the new director of administrative services, filling the vacancy left when Tim Powers accepted.

Computer courses prove to be popular

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY
FOR THE NEWS

The news is bad. A loved one has just been diagnosed with an unexplainable, rare illness. A first instinct might be to run to the library for a copy of the medical encyclopedia, or to get to the house and jump on the Internet. But now things have changed. Pampa residents have the luxury of having computer, printer and Internet access at their fingertips, even in the most unlikely of places — the local hospital.

Computer access ports were being set up at Pampa Medical Center Wednesday in conjunction with what has become a successful community network computer project funded by a $250,000 state technology grant through the efforts of Pampa ISD and the district's technology coordinator Lee Carter.

"It's exciting that things are working out so great," Carter said.

The hospital is the fifth computer access site to be installed in town, joining the Pampa Senior Citizens Center, the Southside Senior Citizens Center, M.K. Brown Auditorium, Pampa Chamber of Commerce and City Hall. The hospital and the county courthouse are the remaining two sites to be configured. Local business Centramedia was contracted to provide all the networking services for the project.

The school district applied for the grant on behalf of the county and as a result is getting a new Dell computer lab at the high school, which community members can also use a couple of evenings a week beginning in the fall, Carter said.

But, he also said, it's the free computer training classes that are turning out to be the highlight of the entire project. As stipulated by the grant, the school district must not only provide community computer access, but free computer classes.

"The response has been so overwhelming," he said. "They love the computer training."

Two three-hour courses are being offered to teach computer beginners programs like Powerpoint, Excel and Printshop along with word processing and Internet/e-mail access.

"A lot of people are taking these to increase their job skills," Carter said. "We're just trying to provide a jump start."

The classes, typically ranging anywhere from 10 to 16 in size, are kept limited so that students receive the highest level of individual instruction. Local, professionally certified technology instructors have been hired through the grant funding and will continue to teach the courses weekdays and evenings until the fall when the program will be expanded to weekends because of the tremendous response, Carter said.

So far, he said, the classes are usually full and there is no one class more popular than another.

"They're all full ... I can't tell what's more popular," he added.

That's why Carter is asking the community

Entry deadline straight ahead

The deadline is fast approaching for the Top O' Texas Kid Pony Show.

All entries must be received in the rodeo office by 5 p.m. on Thursday, July 3, 2003. Contestants are encouraged to enter as early as possible as the rodeo office will be closed on Friday, July 4.

Entries are also being taken for all other events of the Top O' Texas Rodeo including Mutton Busting, Double Mugging, and the Rodeo Parade.

The Challenge Pick Up Race has a new twist this year. The Top O' Texas Rodeo Directors have challenged the Gray County Sheriff Department, Pampa Police Department and the Jordan Unit of the TDCJ to compete for bragging rights. This fun-filled event will be held during the free barbecue on Thursday, July 10.

Tickets are on sale at the rodeo office and at Wayne's Western Wear for the 57th Annual Top O' Texas Rodeo performances July 10, 11, and 12. Tickets are also available for the Queen's Luncheon and Style Show scheduled for Thursday, July 10, at the Pampa Community Building. Deadline for purchasing these tickets is noon on Monday, July 7. Seating space is limited.

For more information, contact the rodeo office at 669-0434 or come in for tickets in the Pampa Community Building, 200 N. Ballard.

Pantex among candidates for DOE plutonium facility

AMARILLO (AP) — Between 150 and 175 people heard officials talk Thursday about the Pantex plant at Amarillo being among the sites considered by the Department of Energy for a plutonium pit production plant to replace a closed facility in Colorado.

A National Nuclear Security Administration official said that in trying to decide if the government should build a plutonium pit production plant to replace the closed Rocky Flats facility that became too contaminated to use, the DOE is proposing a facility with several safety factors not available when Rocky Flats operated.

Jay Rose, the environmental impact statement document manager for the proposed pit facility, said a new DOE facility would not stress production over safety or the environment. The cost of the new facility has been estimated at between $2 billion and $4 billion.

Rose and Jerry Freedman, director of the pit project office, outlined the plant proposal for the group at Amarillo College on Thursday, the Amarillo Globe-News reported Thursday night on its online edition.

The DOE was also collecting comments of people who support or oppose such a facility being built at Pantex.

DOE locations at Carlsbad, N.M.; Los Alamos, N.M.; the Nevada Test Site; and the Savannah River Site in South Carolina are also being considered for the facility.

If a new plant is built, production would likely begin in 2020, making between 125 to 450 plutonium pits annually. A pit, a sealed radioactive plutonium core, serves as the trigger for a nuclear warhead.

According to DOE reports, the proposed facility would recycle existing plutonium metal and older pits, which would be cut in half. The recycled plutonium would be purified and the purified metal would be transferred to a manufacturing area, where it would be melted and cast into required shapes.

Those plutonium castings then would be combined with other components and assembled into pits. The new pits would be inspected and prepared for eventual storage at Pantex, where they will be installed in warheads and bombs.

The Energy Department is expected to decide by next April whether to proceed with the new facility. If the plant is built, construction would begin in approximately 2011, peak in 2014 and last about six years. Once operating, the plant is expected to employ about 1,000 workers.

OBITUARIES

WILLIAM C. "DUB" FERGUSON 1922-2003

CONWAY, Ark. — William C. "Dub" Ferguson, 81, died Wednesday, June 25, 2003, at Conway Regional Medical Center. He was born at Stuttgart, Ark., to William Clarence and Alice Beeble Ferguson on Feb. 18, 1922.

After graduating from Peabody Demonstration School in Nashville, Tenn., Mr. Ferguson attended ASTC (now UCA) and graduated from California Institute of Technology with a degree in aeronautical engineering.

Mr. Ferguson served with the U.S. Air Corps during World War II as a B-25 pilot, training at Pampa Air Force Base, Pampa, Texas. He later became an active member in the PAAF Reunion, serving several times as president, and was instrumental in establishing the U.S. Freedom Museum in Pampa. He continued to fly privately until 1990.

Following World War II, Mr. Ferguson was plant engineer at Ward Body Works in Conway. He later engaged in several aspects of the aluminum industry, building and managing extrusion plants worldwide, and obtained a number of patents.

While in Conway, Mr. Ferguson was a member of First Baptist Church. Upon moving to Magnolia, he became a member of Central Baptist, where he served as a deacon, Sunday school teacher, and choir member and on missions with the Rio Grande River Ministry.

Upon returning to Conway in July 2002, Mr. Ferguson renewed his UCA ties. He helped design a new memorial to WW II students killed in action to be dedicated this fall. He also was active on a committee to replace the Minton Carillon in Ferguson Chapel.

Mr. Ferguson was preceded in death by his wife of 57 years, Elsie McMurtry Ferguson, and his parents, Dr. W. C. and Olive Meadors Ferguson.

Surviving are his wife, the former Mary Ince Wilkerson; son, Thomas William Ferguson and wife, Tonya; daughter, Tracey Marie Hudson and husband, Tony; five grandchildren, Adrienne Ferguson, Melody Chandler, D. C. Chandler, Taylor Hudson and Daniel Hudson; a sister, Eleanor Ferguson Baldrige and husband, Doyle; and brother, Hubert L. Ferguson and wife, Mary Virginia.

Visitation will be held at Roller-McNutt Funeral Home, Conway, from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, June 27. Graveside services will be at 2 p.m. on Saturday, June 28, at Magnolia Memorial Park, Magnolia, Ark.

Memorials may be made to the Ferguson-Minton Carillon Fund, UCA Foundation, P.O. Box 4986, Conway, Ark., 72035, or a favorite church or charity.

MARY MERLE COMBS ROSSER

HOUSTON — Mary Merle Combs Rosser of Houston died Tuesday, June 24, 2003. Funeral services are scheduled for 2 p.m., Sunday, June 29, at Park Place United Methodist church in Houston with services under the direction of Kingwood Funeral Home of Kingwood.

Mrs. Rosser was a graduate of Lefors High School. She married Woody Rosser Jr. during World War II. The couple made their home in Houston since 1945 except for two years when they lived in Slaton.

Mrs. Rosser was preceded in death by her husband, Woody; a daughter, Jana Hartmann of Houston; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W.R. Combs of Lefors; a brother, Harold Combs of Levelland; and a sister, Bobbie Koscheski of San Antonio.

Survivors include a daughter, Carol Price of Houston; three granddaughters; two grandsons; two great-grandchildren; a brother, Joel R. Combs of Pampa; and a sister, Billie Jinks of Amarillo.

GLENN STUDEBAKER 1913-2003

McLEAN — Glenn Studebaker, 89, died Thursday, June 26, 2003, in McLean. Graveside services are to be at 10 a.m., Saturday, June 28, at Fairview Cemetery in Pampa with the Rev. Thacker Haynes, pastor of the United Methodist Church of McLean, officiating. Arrangements are under the direction of Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors of Pampa.

Born Nov. 13, 1913 at Minco, Okla., Mr. Studebaker moved to the Grandview area in 1930. He married Laura Prater on Feb. 3, 1934. She preceded him in death on Feb. 15, 1999. He had been a resident of the McLean area since the early 1960s. He was a farmer and a rancher.

He loved playing the fiddle, and since 1951 had made violins as a hobby. He was preceded in death by four sisters and three brothers.

Survivors include one son and daughter-in-law, Harold and Dianne Studebaker of McLean; one grandson, Derek Studebaker of Canyon; one sister, Lorene McConnell of Vancouver, Wash.; and one brother, Wes Studebaker of Salt Lake City, Utah.

Memorial may be made to BSA Hospice, 800 N. Sumner, Pampa, Texas, 79065; or to the United Methodist Church Choir Fund, P.O. Box 125, McLean, Texas, 79057.

Jury convicts Mallard in windshield death

FORT WORTH (AP) — Driving home from a friend's apartment after a night of drinking and doing drugs at a bar, Chante Mallard was suddenly hit in the face with shards of glass and wind.

She soon realized she had hit a man, whose head and torso were in the car and whose leg was sticking through the jagged windshield. She briefly got out of the car and touched his leg but got back inside, drove home and parked in her garage, she said.

Mallard heard the man moan and knew he was alive, but she never called for help. She was too afraid she'd be arrested, she said.

"I was asking God to tell me what to do," she said. "I didn't know what to do. I was scared and I was crying."

Mallard testified Thursday during the punishment phase of her trial, hours after she was convicted of murder. Jurors were expected to decide her penalty Friday.

Mallard, who faces life in prison, said she deserves to go to prison but did not say for how long. She said she "couldn't think to do the right thing" after hitting Biggs because she was high on Ecstasy.

She also apologized to the man's son and her own family. "I have ruined the lives of other people," Mallard said, sobbing. "I have ruined my family's life. I have put people through pain. And I am so truly sorry. I'm so sorry. Brandon. I am so sorry for what I have caused your family and I am sorry for the pain that I have put my family through."

A jury took less than an hour Thursday to convict Mallard, 27, in the death of Gregory Biggs, 37, who was hit along a highway about 3 a.m. Oct. 26, 2001. His battered body was found in a park the next day, dumped there by Mallard and two men.

Prosecution witnesses said Biggs, who had been homeless nearly two years, probably lived for two hours and could have survived with medical treatment.

Defense attorney Jeff Kearney argued that Mallard was guilty of a lesser charge, failing to stop and render aid — not murder. Mallard said her life had been in a downward spiral since the mid-1990s. She had been smoking marijuana several times a day, even while she worked in retirement homes, she said. Mallard, a former nurse's aide, spoke after friends, church members and family testified on her behalf, seeking leniency from the jury.

Biggs' 20-year-old son, Brandon, and other relatives showed no emotion when the verdict was read.

In addition to the training and computer sites, Carter said free web pages are being offered to any non-profit or faith-based organization in town.

He also foresees the Gray County website offering a host of different computer services, such as a "help desk" where citizens can submit requests or pay their city bills online. He is also projecting a "online store" where local businesses can sell their products online, with a small percentage of the sales going toward the project to help maintain it after the grant funding is gone.

A representative from the grant funding state board sent Carter an e-mail expressing his pleasure with the community network project in Pampa.

"Your web portal is outstanding! I know your community will benefit greatly from the access and training you will be providing. Please offer my congratulations to everyone who had a part in making this project a reality," said Richard Brown, director of grants and services.

"Your training sessions look like they will be extremely helpful. Maybe I'll drive up and take one myself :-). Keep up the good work. You've done an excellent job in putting the network together and in staying true to the purpose of Community Networks."

Medicare bills clear House, Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Medicare prescription drug legislation eased through the Senate and squeaked through the House early Friday, setting up challenging negotiations on a final compromise that President Bush hopes to sign later this summer.

Bush praised lawmakers for the progress. "I urge the Congress to reconcile their differences and to get a bill to my desk as quickly as possible," he said at the White House.

The legislation, which creates both a drug benefit and a large new role for private health plans in Medicare, won an overwhelming endorsement in the Senate, where Republicans and Democrats worked together from the start and the vote was a bipartisan 76-21.

In the House, the debate was largely partisan, reflected by the razor-thin 216-215 vote.

There was drama in each chamber as lawmakers finished their work.

It took House leaders nearly an hour of up-close cajoling after the vote began to get over the top. Hundreds of lawmakers looked on as GOP leaders hovered over Reps. C.L. Otter of Idaho and Jo Ann Emerson of Missouri until they switched their votes. House Speaker Dennis Hastert said he won them over with a promise for a future vote on a bill allowing the importation of cheaper drugs from Canada, but he wouldn't provide details.

Across the Capitol, the Senate bill stumbled over a proposal to charge wealthy seniors higher premiums for doctor visits and other health services. It had the votes to pass, but Sen. Edward Kennedy threatened to hold up action if it was not dropped from the bill.

ed a position with the Wichita Falls school district. Kendall will be in charge of personnel, maintenance and transportation, officials said today.

Carol Fields will be the new business manager, replacing Mark McVay whose last day with the school district is to be June 30, officials said today, adding that vacancies remain for the principal positions at Pampa High School and Austin Elementary.

Board members hired Keeley Topper to teach third grade and Amber Jones as music teacher, both at Wilson Elementary. Annie Baker has been hired to teach fifth grade at Travis Elementary. Sara Carmichael will be a new sixth grade science teacher and John East will teach boys physical education at Pampa Middle School this fall. John Seal was hired as tennis coach and history teacher at Pampa High School.

In his last appearance before the board Thursday night, Mark McVay presented a proposed 2003-2004 budget of $20,403,199 with a projected surplus of $324,989.

"This is better news than we expected," McVay told the board. "We expected our state funding to go down a lot more than this."

In his projections, McVay estimates the school district will receive approximately $7.5 million in state funding, down about $100,000 from the 2002-2003 school year.

He believes the district can save about $900,000 by continuing a hiring freeze and staff attrition. He also put in the budget a three percent raise for employees which he says will barely offset the loss of the $1,000 per employee from the state for health services. A new state payroll tax will cost the district $60,000, he says.

Pampa ISD's Option IV agreement with Plano ISD that brings in approximately $600,000 in revenue will continue through this year, McVay explained, allowing for the budget surplus. However, he warned the board that state lawmakers will probably cut this option out of the new school finance legislature.

"You're going to need this extra money when you come up with a deficit next year," McVay said.

In other action Thursday, the board approved bids for various insurance services and supplies. They added Fields and Haensch as authorized representatives for banking investment and credit card accounts and picked new board member Charles Smith as their delegate at the Texas Association of School Board convention in Dallas next September. Dr. Jay Johnson agreed to serve as alternate.

NASA chief promises to meet, exceed safety recommendations of Columbia investigators

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA will meet and even exceed the safety recommendations of the Columbia accident investigators, doing everything "humanly possible" to prevent another disaster, the space agency's chief says.

"The effort we need to go through, the high bar we need to set for ourselves, ought to be higher than anything else anybody else would levy on us," Administrator Sean O'Keefe said Thursday during a visit to Kennedy Space Center.

"We've got to not only focus on the findings and recommendations, but beyond that, to correct everything we think may stand in the way of flying as safely as humanly possible."

O'Keefe said he hopes to resume shuttle flights by April.

His statements came two days after the Columbia Accident Investigation Board outlined what NASA should do before launching another shuttle. Among the suggestions that will be in the board's final report next month: eliminate as much fuel-tank foam loss as possible, strengthen the shuttle's exterior so it can withstand debris, and improve astronauts' ability to repair damage from such blows.

NASA likely will put a robot arm and space-walker jetpacks on every mission for wing inspections, O'Keefe said. Columbia's crew was equipped with neither.

The accident investigators believe a 1 1/2-pound chunk of foam insulation that broke off the fuel tank during liftoff breached Columbia's left wing and doomed the spaceship. The shuttle shattered over Texas on re-entry Feb. 1 after hot air penetrated the hole and melted the wing. All seven astronauts were killed.

O'Keefe agreed with the chief investigator's assessment that NASA should be able to make all the necessary repairs in time for a launch six to nine months from now.

"We're roughly in the same pew, as it were," he said.

Based on what the board has indicated so far, shuttle Atlantis could fly anywhere from December to April, O'Keefe said. He suggested that December is unlikely, given that there are only a few days in December that Atlantis, the next ship in line, could be launched to the international space station.

NASA's new requirement for daylight liftoffs, in order to photograph any shedding foam and other debris, severely limits the number of potential launch days, O'Keefe noted.

"We want to make sure every square inch of this is photographed," he said.

The shuttle fleet was grounded nearly three years after the 1986 Challenger explosion. If flights resume in April, the fleet will have been grounded for 14 months this time.

NASA's top spaceflight official, former astronaut Bill Readdy, said foam almost certainly will be eliminated from the section of the tank where it broke loose during Columbia's launch in January and on at least six previous flights. Heaters will be attached to the surface there to prevent ice from forming once super-cold fuel is pumped into the tank.

O'Keefe and Readdy were at Kennedy Space Center on Thursday to announce its new director: James Kennedy.

Kennedy, the center's deputy director, will assume the top job in August from Roy Bridges, a former shuttle pilot who will manage NASA's Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va. Bridges will establish a team of engineers there to independently review all aspects of shuttle safety.

Sign up open for national don't-call list

WASHINGTON (AP) — People pestered by telemarketers can start signing up Friday for a national do-not-call list intended to block most phone sales pitches.

Consumers can register for the free government service by visiting the Web site www.donotcall.gov. Telephone registration using a toll-free number — 1-888-382-1222 — is available in states west of the Mississippi River, including Minnesota and Louisiana, the Federal Trade Commission said. Nationwide registration should be available by July 7.

The national registry, an FTC project more than a year in the making, was being inaugurated Friday at a White House ceremony led by President Bush.

The list will block about 80 percent of telemarketing calls, FTC Chairman Timothy Muris said.

"People own their homes and their phones and now they will have a choice about whether they want the calls," Muris said in an interview.

Telephone registration is being done in stages to ensure the system can handle the volume of calls expected, the FTC said. The commission expects up to 60 million phone numbers to be registered in the first year.

"I think this has been a complaint of consumers for a very long time," Federal Communications Commission Chairman Michael Powell said on NBC's "Today." "This is a day they've awaited for a long time."

People who sign up this summer should see a decrease in telemarketing calls after the FTC begins enforcing the do-not-call list on Oct. 1, said Muris, who joined Powell on NBC.

Registrations will have to be renewed every five years.

On the Web site, people will have to provide the phone number they want protected and an e-mail address to receive confirmation.

Consumers calling the toll-free number will have to call from the telephone number they want to register.

Telemarketers attempt up to 104 million calls every day, according to the FCC.

The industry has said the registry will devastate their business and has sued the FTC, saying the program amounts to an unlawful restriction on free speech.

The FCC voted 5-0 Thursday to add its authority to the do-not-call list, blocking telemarketing calls from within a state and from industries whose calls the agency regulates, including airlines, banks and telephone companies.

Others watching Iraqi scientist's chaotic ordeal in coming forward

By DAFNA LINZER
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

Mahdi Shukur Obeidi wanted to make a deal. In exchange for asylum, the Iraqi scientist would turn over hidden information about Saddam Hussein's former nuclear weapons program.

Instead, he was arrested by the U.S. military in Baghdad, released by the CIA, sent into hiding and then whisked out of the country after he went public.

The Bush administration, which went to war to disarm Saddam of unconventional weapons no one has found, has said intelligence would be forthcoming once Iraqis scientists begin to cooperate. Experts say the scientists' willingness to cooperate will depend on how the Americans handle Obeidi and others.

"Many scientists are watching the Obeidi case as they decide whether to come forward," said Corey Hinderstein, with the Washington-based Institute for Science and International Security, a nuclear research center which facilitated contact between Obeidi and the CIA.

U.S. military broadcasts in Iraq have repeatedly called on scientists and other experts to come forward. But the announcements have not included guarantees or offers in return.

Senior Iraqis in custody who were involved in chemical, biological and nuclear weapons programs have continued to insist the programs ended years ago.

Obeidi has not provided any evidence to the contrary, though he has claimed Saddam intended to revive the nuclear program once U.N. sanctions were lifted.

Two months after he first asked for help in coming forward, the materials Obeidi buried 12 years ago are in the hands of U.S. officials and he is in Kuwait with his family. But his future remains unclear.

Reward money promised to Iraqis with details about illicit weapons programs hasn't been granted and his asylum request remains uncertain.

U.S. authorities said the information he provided wasn't the long-sought "smoking gun" they sought. But White House spokesman Ari Fleischer said it buttressed the administration's claim that Saddam had concealed weapons of mass destruction.

Nuclear experts disagreed and said the revelations strengthened U.N. findings that the program was not being revived.

David Albright, a former U.N. nuclear scientist who runs ISIS, first heard from Obeidi through an American reporter he met in Baghdad.

Obeidi, who led Iraq's pre-1991 program to make centrifuges that would enrich uranium for nuclear weapons, was well-known to Albright and other nuclear inspectors who uncovered and dismantled the program in the early 1990s.

After the two men spoke on April 22nd, Albright went to the U.S. government for help. "I was rebuffed by the Pentagon and relayed a new request for help through three different agencies," he recalled.

Thurmond, longest-serving senator ever, dies at age 100

By AMY GEIER EDGAR
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

EDGEFIELD, S.C. (AP) — In a century of life driven by fiery political passion and sustained through legendary endurance, Strom Thurmond, the longest-serving U.S. senator in history, left a trail of superlatives on American political history.

Thurmond, who died Thursday night at a hospital in his hometown at the age of 100, held the Senate record for filibustering. He was the only person to capture a seat in Congress by write-in. His political career spanned seven decades.

And the one-time Democratic segregationist's defection to the GOP helped fuel the rise of the modern conservative Republican Party in the South.

"He had enthusiasm and passion like no one I've ever met in my life," said Sen. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C., who replaced Thurmond following his retirement on Jan. 5, 2003, after more than 48 years in office. "South Carolina's favorite son is gone but he'll never be forgotten."

Thurmond died at 9:45 p.m. after having been in poor health in recent weeks, his son Strom Thurmond Jr. said. He had been living in a newly renovated wing of a hospital in his hometown of Edgefield, S.C., since he returned to the state from Washington earlier this year.

"Surrounded by family, my father was resting comfortably, without pain, and in total peace," Thurmond Jr. said in a statement released by the hospital.

From the halls of Congress to his home state — where his name adorns high schools, federal buildings, streets and a lake — Thurmond was remembered as a tireless worker for his constituents and a political force even by those at odds with the sometimes controversial Southern icon.

In Washington, the Senate temporarily suspended debate Thursday on Medicare legislation to pay tribute to Thurmond.

"Strom Thurmond will forever be a symbol of what one person can accomplish when they live life, as we all know he did, to the fullest," said Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist, R-Tenn.

U.S. Sen. Fritz Hollings, D-S.C., served with Thurmond for more than 35 years. "Even though we ended up on other sides of the aisle, there was never any doubt about the interest of South Carolina," Hollings said Thursday night.

Thurmond won his first election in 1928, to local office, and his last in 1996, to his eighth Senate term. "We cannot — and I shall not — give up on our mission to right the 40-year wrongs of liberalism," he said during his last campaign. "The people of South Carolina doesn't like unfinished business."

His voting record was pro-defense, anti-communist and staunchly conservative; his tireless devotion to constituent services was widely revered.

Thurmond's physical vigor was also legendary. He was a lifelong exercise buff, who shunned tobacco and alcohol and was known for his vigorous handshake. He had a storied, lifelong reputation as a ladies' man.

But age took its inevitable

as he neared retirement, and he was guided through the Capitol in a wheelchair. Yet he wielded political power virtually to the end, prevailing upon President Bush to appoint his then-28-year-old son, Strom Jr., as U.S. attorney in South Carolina in 2001.

Thurmond ran for president as a Dixiecrat in 1948 and won 39 Southern electoral votes as part of a states-rights uprising. Nearly a decade later, he set the Senate record for filibustering when he spoke for a straight 24 hours and 18 minutes against a bill to end discrimination in housing.

"The sweet, wonderful Strom Thurmond we know today was an abrasive, aggressive wielder of power" during the Civil Rights era, University of South Carolina historian Dan Carter said late last year when Thurmond was celebrating his 100th birthday. "That ought to be part of what we remember about this extraordinary individual."

Thurmond's presidential campaign sparked controversy last year, when then-Majority Leader Trent Lott declared at Thurmond's 100th birthday party that voters of Mississippi were proud to have supported the South Carolinian when he ran for the White House. Lott was forced to step down as the Senate's Republican leader in the ensuing uproar.

Thurmond's racial politics changed over the years; he became the first Southern senator to hire a black aide, supported the appointment of a black Southern federal judge and voted to make Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday a national holiday.

"Senator Thurmond was symbolic of the Old South, but his willingness to change over time set an example for many South Carolinians," said Democratic U.S. Rep. James Clyburn, the only black member of the state's congressional delegation.

Thurmond grew up a Democrat — his father once ran for office — but switched to the GOP in 1964 to support Barry Goldwater's conservative campaign for the White House.

Like other Southern states, South Carolina had been a one-party Democratic state since the end of Reconstruction nearly a century earlier. Thurmond's switch anticipated a broader trend; by the 1990s, the South favored the GOP, and Republican candidates generally triumphed in statewide races in South Carolina.

The first time he ran as a Republican, in 1966, he won easily.

In 1968, Thurmond played a pivotal role in executing the "Southern Strategy" that helped Richard Nixon win the White House. The South Carolinian helped hold Southern delegates in line at the GOP convention when a charismatic conservative, Ronald Reagan, made a late play for the nomination. In the general election, he sought to blunt George Wallace's third-party candidacy in the South, arguing that anything but a vote for Nixon would help elect a liberal Democrat, Hubert Humphrey.

Born Dec. 5, 1902 in Edgefield, James Strom Thurmond — Strom was his mother's maiden name — was elected county school superintendent, state senator and circuit judge before enlisting in the Army in World War II. He landed in Normandy as part of the 82nd Airborne Division assault on D-Day, and won five battle stars and numerous other awards.

The war over, he returned home to resume his political career and won election as governor in 1946. His record was progressive by contemporary standards for a Southern Democrat. He pushed for repeal of the poll tax and boosted education spending.

He lost a race in South Carolina for the only time in his career four years later, when he challenged incumbent Sen. Olin Johnston for renomination. In defeat, he returned home to practice law.

But in 1954, Sen. Burnet Maybank died unexpectedly. When party officials tapped a state lawmaker to run for the post, Thurmond challenged as a write-in candidate, saying the voters, not the party's leaders, should decide who got the nomination.

To underscore his credentials as an insurgent, he pledged to resign his seat before seeking reelection in 1956.

Michael Decker, once a Mafia hitman, will present his testimony for the public Sunday, June 29, at M.K. Brown Auditorium. Also featured at the city-wide event will be the music of Christian recording artist Garre LaGrone.

'Power-full' pair to bring message

The public is invited to hear the dynamic testimony of Michael J. Decker, pastor/evangelist/ author, and recording artist Garre LaGrone at 6 p.m., Sunday, June 29, in M. K. Brown Auditorium. All seats are free.

Pastor Decker experienced violence in his early years. After years of abuse, he became a warrior who learned his trade in military school. Then the military trained and educated him in Vietnam. When he came back home, he joined the Sicilia-Falcon Mafia family as their hitman/enforcer. He served three tours totaling 26 years in the toughest prisons of America and other countries around the world.

Finally through his deliverance, Decker said he began to study with the Crossroads Bible Institute, graduated and became an ordained minister. He is now a part of "Beyond the Walls Prison Ministry".

Garre LaGrone is a talented praise and worship leader and powerful music evangelist. He also has a strong testimony of God's saving grace in his life. LaGrone recently finished recording a new CD at Trinity Broadcast Network's new digital recording studios in Nashville, Tenn. He is seen regularly on Prime Time Christian Broadcasting and the GLC Network and keeps a busy schedule with concerts around the country.

His name was Don Fulton. The first time I met him was when he walked into our secretary's office in a church where I was the youth minister in Pueblo, Colo. Several of us were on a coffee break when Don's presence in the doorway silenced everyone. He was the palest white I had ever seen anyone who did not have an albino skin condition. He was shaking as he asked to speak to someone. I motioned him down to my office and then told the secretary to call me in 3 minutes "just in case".

Don, not yet 20 years old, sat down and began struggling to tell me what brought him to my office. "I was in my room playing with my .22 pistol just a few minutes ago, you know, twirling it around my finger. I was sure that it wasn't loaded; until the discharge about burst my eardrum." He then lifted up the front part of his hair to show me the burn mark on his skin that the bullet had left as it blazed toward the wall.

"I've gotta get right with God, right now. I've gotta get baptized. Help me! Please, help me!"

What would you have said to Don if you had been there that day? Would you have immediately led him in the "sinner's prayer"? Would you have baptized him right then? Well, I didn't do either one.

Minister's Musings

MIKE SUBLETT
HI-LAND CHRISTIAN CHURCH

I have believed for many years that we live in a time that seeks to make redemption so easy and quick that we make it cheap. There is no doubt that salvation is "free", but it is the most expensive free treasure that we will ever encounter. And how we share that gospel message needs to resemble the presentation of Jesus more than what we can see on television or hear on the radio almost every day.

I have been immersed in a study of the life of Jesus Christ for the past two years that exceeds anything I have known before. Several times I have told my class that Jesus surely wasn't trained at any of our modern seminaries, Bible colleges or preacher training schools. Jesus just didn't seem to realize that getting that person saved as quickly as possible was the goal. He was constantly confronting them with their sin, pointing out the areas of their lives that they weren't ready to surrender and forcing them to count the cost. When he preached His "bread of life" sermon he drove off most all of the multitude who had been following him. What was Jesus thinking? I think his thinking was fine, but I'm not sure about ours.

Now let's get back to Don. I didn't try to lead him in the "sinner's prayer" and I didn't baptize him. I asked him what meant more to him than any other thing in his life. He fired back, "Oh, that's easy. Bull riding! I'm going to the state champ next year when I'm a senior."

Then I asked him, "Don, if I can show you in the Bible where Jesus says that He never wants you to ride bulls again, will you give that up for Him?" Don looked confused and asked, "Where does it say that?" I replied, "I won't tell you until you answer the question first. Will you give it up for Jesus? Will you commit to never ride another bull if he wants it that way?"

He left my office that day sad and angry. You may be reading this article right now and finding it very easy to relate to Don's anger. But you see, you weren't there when my home phone rang about three weeks later and Don said, "If Jesus says so, I'll never ride another bull." Don surrendered to Jesus Christ that night. Don was baptized that night. And Don has never questioned his conversion. He counted the cost. The Lord and Don sorted out the terms of the surrender: Unconditional.

What about your salvation? What about how you witness to others? If you and I don't help someone "count the cost," we haven't followed in the footsteps of Jesus. We need to get our witnessing techniques from Jesus. And if we haven't ever counted the cost, we better go sort out those unconditional terms of surrender with him right now.

And by the way, Don was really happy to learn that Jesus was looking for some godly bull riders who loved Him more than riding the bulls. God bless.

DEAR ABBY

written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips

Simple Safeguards Can Protect Your Home While You're Away

DEAR ABBY: The summer travel season has officially begun. The criminals are prepared; are your readers?

According to the FBI's Uniform Crime Reporting Program (2000), the greatest number of burglaries occurs in July and August — and 60 percent of all residential burglaries occur during the daytime. The Home Safety Council recommends simple safeguards that will reduce the chances of being victimized:

- (1) Evaluate your home's security. Do all door and window locks work?
- (2) Is outside lighting bright and focused to illuminate potential entry points?
- (3) Are hedges and trees trimmed so intruders can't use them for cover?
- (4) Have you removed any extra keys that you've hidden outside? (Burglars know all the good hiding places.)
- (5) Make your home look "lived in" while you're away. Buy timers to set lights to come on at different times.
- (6) Ask a neighbor to park in your driveway while you're gone.
- (7) Stop newspaper and mail deliveries, or have someone pick them up daily.
- (8) Do not invite trouble by changing your answering machine greeting to say you're out of town on vacation.
- (9) Provide a neighbor, relative or close friend with your itinerary and contact information so you can be reached in case of emergency.

Thanks for sharing this information with your readers, Abby.
MERI-K APPY, PRESIDENT,
THE HOME SAFETY COUNCIL

DEAR MERI-K: Thank you for the timely tips. Readers, for even more safety suggestions, a free checklist can be downloaded at the Home Safety Council's Web site: www.homesafetycouncil.org.
Happy trails to you, fellow travelers!

DEAR ABBY: There has been a new arrival in our family and I have an important question. Is it true that two brown-eyed, dark-haired people cannot be the parents of a blue-eyed, fair-haired child? If so, this is completely contrary to what I was taught in school.

It has always been my understanding that a child carries not only the genes of his or her parents, but also the genes of grandparents, great-grandparents, etc.

Please check with your experts and let me know as soon as possible. This debate has caused a huge rift in our family.

RICHMOND, VA., READER

DEAR READER: I hope this short biology lesson will silence the nay-sayers:

In the 19th century, an Austrian monk and botanist named Gregor Mendel discovered the existence of "dominant" and "recessive" genes.

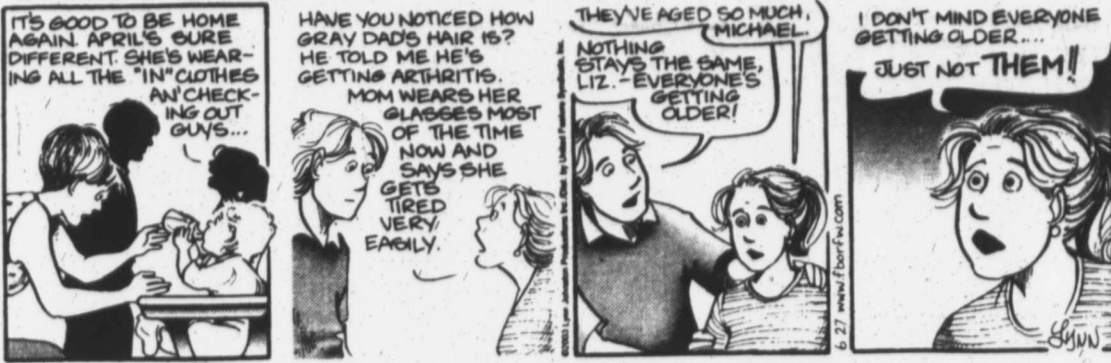

In a nutshell, his research proved that a child can inherit a recessive gene from an ancestor and have eye color, hair color, skin color and other features that are different from both its mother and father. This is called Mendelian law.

You can prove it to your unbelieving relatives by going to the library and checking out some books on Mendel's law of genetic inheritance and recessive genes. Please don't wait. They need educating before their ignorance causes the rift to be permanent.

NOTEBOOK

BASKETBALL

DALLAS (AP) — The three-year extension of Don Nelson's coaching contract hasn't been completed, but Dallas Mavericks owner Mark Cuban said that's no reason for concern.

"It's a lawyer thing, not a me and Nellie thing," Cuban said Thursday night after the NBA draft ended. "We'll get through all of that."

Cuban and Nelson have an agreement in principle to extend the coach's contract through 2005-06, running concurrently with remaining three years of his contract as general manager.

Nelson, who never visited with reporters during the team's draft night gathering, had previously indicated that the deal should be finalized before the draft.

COLLEGE SPORTS

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Miami put off a decision on whether to join the Atlantic Coast Conference until next week.

The Big East has made Miami a counteroffer to try to keep the school from leaving the league. Miami president Donna Shalala wouldn't discuss the specifics, but she acknowledged they were part of the reason why the university's trustees didn't vote on an invitation to join the ACC.

She said a final decision will be announced Monday — the day Miami must inform Big East officials if they decide to join the ACC or risk doubling a penalty fee for leaving to $2 million.

TENNIS

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Vera Zvonareva moved a step closer to a possible rematch with Venus Williams after upsetting the two-time Wimbledon champion this month at the French Open.

Zvonareva, an 18-year-old Russian seeded 16th, beat Iroda Tulyaganova 6-3, 7-5 Friday in the third round at Wimbledon. She could next face Williams, who was scheduled to play later Friday.

When Williams lost to Zvonareva in the fourth round at Roland Garros, it was her earliest defeat at a Grand Slam event in two years.

Zvonareva faced only one break point against Tulyaganova and committed just 10 unforced errors.

Maria Sharapova, a 16-year-old Russian playing in the tournament for the first time, advanced Thursday with a 6-3, 6-1 victory over compatriot Elena Bovina, who was seeded 21st.

Flashback

1993: Pampa won two of three games against Randall as Michelle Abbott led the Lady Harvesters with 8 kills in high school volleyball action.

Candi Atwood and Serenity King had 6 kills each.

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas wasn't one of the nine teams that Josh Howard worked out for before the NBA draft. But the Mavericks had their eyes on the ACC player of the year the whole time.

The Mavericks picked Howard, a 6-foot-6 forward from Wake Forest, with the last pick of the first round Thursday night, the 29th overall.

"He definitely fills a need. And he has a different look of any player than we have," said Mavericks owner Mark Cuban. "We don't have a big, long-armed defensive guy."

The Mavericks got a player with a 7-foot-2 wingspan that could make an immediate contribution next season. Their scouts had watched him numerous times the last couple of years at Wake Forest.

While surprised to be picked by the Mavericks, Howard believes they could be a good match for him.

"They're a grown-up version of Wake Forest as far as running and gunning. They have good guards and I hope I can fit in well," Howard said. "I'll be playing behind some great people in Michael Finley and watching guys like Nick Van Exel and Steve Nash play. Hopefully, I can just learn from them."

Howard and Duke's Shane Battier are the only ACC players who finished their careers with 1,000 points, 500 rebounds, 200 assists, 200 steals, 100 blocks and 100 three-pointers. Howard averaged 19.5 points and 8.3 rebounds as a senior.

With their only other pick Thursday, the 57th and second-to-last in the draft, Dallas took 7-foot Xue Yuyang from China. The Mavericks immediately traded him to Detroit and will get Houston's second-round pick in 2004, which the Pistons got in a previous trade with the Rockets.

The Mavericks will add to the roster with rookie free agents. Cuban, not giving names, said there were several undrafted players the team had worked out and was already working to sign.

"It's easier to go and get kids that fell through," Cuban said. "There are still some good players out there."

Cuban said coach Don Nelson, who didn't speak to reporters Thursday night, was ecstatic about the selection.

The owner said the completion of Nelson's three-year coaching contract extension was a "lawyer thing, not a me and Nellie thing. We'll get through all of that."

Howard was the player the Mavericks wanted with their first pick, and the team — worried that Atlanta would take him as high as No. 21 — kept trying to make deals to move up in the order. But the Hawks past on Howard, and so did the other teams.

"We just keep on hoping and hoping and hoping, and he kept falling. By time it got to be our pick, we were really, really happy," Cuban said.

Cuban acknowledged that the Mavericks also tried to deal themselves into a much higher pick, but didn't say what other players the team was

Local All-Star Teams in district tournaments at Tulia and Canyon

PAMPA — The Pampa 9-10 year-old All-Star team heads to Tulia this weekend for the first round of the District Babe Ruth Tournament.

Pampa takes on North Randall Red at 1 p.m. Saturday in the opening game.

A first-game victory would pit Pampa against North Randall Blue at 7 tomorrow night.

The tournament runs through Wednesday with seven teams involved, including Plainview, North Randall Red, North Randall Blue, Tulia, Canyon, Logkney and Pampa.

The top two teams other than Plainview advances to the West Texas State Tournament next weekend in Plainview.

Plainview is automatically seeded for being the host site.

Pampa All-Star Team members are Steven Botello, Trent Carter, Channer Clendennen, Garrett Ericson, Tyler Hooper, Tyler Malone, Joseph Mechelay, Trevor Morgan, Shane Smith, Doug Smith, Koby Starnes and Kyle Turner.

The team manager is Donny Hooper. The coaches are Joe Mechelay and Carlos Regalado.

Cavaliers pick James to revive their franchise

NEW YORK (AP) — LeBron James went No. 1, Andres Gliniadaakis went No. 58.

In between there were trades, one big slippage and a few pronunciation problems.

An NBA draft that began with James, the high school phenom from Akron going to the Cleveland Cavaliers, ended with a record 21 international players being chosen in the two rounds.

"I think some of these teams made a mistake," said Polish center Maciej Lampe, who was projected as a lottery pick but fell all the way to No. 30 — the first pick of the second round — where he was selected by the New York Knicks.

Nobody was accusing the Cavs of making a mistake with their selection of James, who strode onstage wearing an all-white suit — appropriate garb for a player expected to be the team's savior.

The most heralded high school player of a generation, James is considered a can't-miss prospect with the skills of a guard, the body of a forward and the potential of a superstar.

"I'm one of the highest publicized players in the country right now, and I haven't even played one game of basketball in the NBA. I know I'm a marked man," James said.

Serbian 7-footer Darko Milicic was chosen second by the Detroit Pistons, and Carmelo Anthony, who led Syracuse to the national championship, was chosen third by the Denver Nuggets — capping the drama-less first 15 minutes.

"Darko Milicic is not going to have to come here and be the savior," said Joe Dumars, Detroit's president of basketball operations. "LeBron is going to have to be the savior in Cleveland, there's no getting around that. Carmelo is going to be expected to carry a huge load."

"We're going to push (Milicic) to be the best he can be. But, he's not going to be judged on whether he carried us this year."

We think that's an excellent situation for him and for us."

The Toronto Raptors, after listening to trade offers throughout the day, used the

No. 4 pick on 6-foot-11 freshman forward Chris Bosh of Georgia Tech.

Cancer survivor shares top spot at the St. Jude Golf Classic

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Darron Stiles has a yearly reminder of just how lucky he is to be playing golf for a living.

He visits with his doctor in Tampa, Fla., for X-rays to guard against the return of cancer that forced surgeons to use a bone graft from his right hip to repair his jaw. He has been healthy at each checkup, but Stiles said he probably still doesn't know just how serious the tumor found in 1989 really was.

"I'd love to see the chart and all that and all the pictures, but he won't show them to me," Stiles said.

That leaves Stiles busy enjoying his first full season on the PGA Tour, and he responded Thursday with a career-low 7-under-par 64 that gave him a share of a one-stroke lead with 49-year-old Jay Haas and tour rookie Richard S. Johnson in the suspended first round of the St. Jude Classic.

Watson's "field goals" add up to three-shot lead

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — When Tom Watson was a kid in Kansas City, his dad always called it a "field goal" when a long putt went in.

In the first round of the U.S. Senior Open, Watson split the uprights again and again.

With memories from his surprising performance at Olympia Fields still vivid, Watson shot a 5-under-par 66 on Thursday to take a three-stroke lead in the rain-suspended opening round of the U.S. Senior Open at Inverness Club.

"I don't know what got into me," he said. "Today was one of those days that everything worked well with the putter. I made a lot of long putts."

It was nothing new for Watson. Two weeks ago, in the opening round of the U.S. Open at Olympia Fields, he continually rolled in putts from across the green during a spirited 65 that gave him a share of the lead.

This round lacked the emotion of that one. There were no hugs with ailing caddie Bruce Edwards, just an occasional exchange of fist pumps after another long putt dropped found its target.

"Yes, Bruce and I have been through it," said Watson.

"Playing for a national championship as a senior, it's something special. As I said earlier this week, this is one of the top two senior tournaments we play, along with the Senior PGA. I have won one and I would like to win the other one."

Watson won the Senior PGA Championship in 2001.

A thunderstorm suspended play with 36 of the 156 players still on the course. The first round will be completed Friday morning. The second round will start as scheduled.

Bruce Lietzke was alone in second after a 69. Mike McCullough and J.C. Snead were the only other players to break par, each with a 70. The top four players all went off early in the morning.

Watson parred his first three holes and then started rolling. Up against the heaviest rough on the 13th hole (his fourth hole), he hit the ball with the blade of his pitching wedge and holed it from 15 feet.

On the next hole, he made a 45-foot putt with a big right-to-left break for another birdie. He made it three in a row with another tilting 25-footer.

Watson made two bogeys coming home on the front side, but offset them with four more birdies — including a 25-foot putt at No. 1 and a 35-footer at No. 5.

Playing partner Fuzzy Zoeller said Watson was the same player in the opening rounds of both Opens.

"The way he putted there is the way he putted today," Zoeller said.

Winner of five British Opens, two Masters and the 1982 U.S. Open, Watson is winless in three tries at the Senior Open.

Watson faded in the final three rounds to finish 12 shots behind Jim Furyk at Olympia Fields.

"I didn't have the tools," Watson cracked. "The tool box was shut."

Delgado powers Blue Jays past Orioles with 2 homers

By The Associated Press

Carlos Delgado is drawing some lofty comparisons. "You used to use the term Ruthian," Toronto manager Carlos Tosca said. "I think that was Bondslike."

Delgado hit a pair of two-run homers — one off the roof of a SkyDome restaurant high above the 400-foot mark in center field — in the Blue Jays' 13-8 victory over Baltimore on Thursday night.

Delgado tied his season high with five RBIs and has driven in a major league-best 86 runs to go with his AL-leading 25 homers.

"He's a monster. This guy is not human," said Baltimore outfielder Melvin Mora, who went 2-for-3 to raise his average to an AL-leading .370. "It's just incredible. He's MVP."

In other AL games, it was: Seattle 10, Anaheim 6; Oakland 13, Texas 0; Boston 6, Detroit 4; New York 4, Tampa Bay 3; Chicago White Sox 5, Minnesota 1; Kansas City 4, Cleveland 1; Oakland 13, Texas 0; Seattle 10, Anaheim 6; Baltimore 8, Toronto 2; N.Y. Yankees 8, Tampa Bay 5; Kansas City 3, Cleveland 1, 10 innings; Texas 9, Oakland 8; Minnesota 6, Chicago White Sox 5, 11 innings; Anaheim 6, Seattle 3.

Delgado homered in the second off Rodrigo Lopez and in the eighth off Buddy Groom to make it 12-8. He also had a sacrifice fly when Toronto batted around in a six-run first inning.

Hank Greenberg drove in 103 runs before the All-Star break in 1935, the best first half in major league history. Delgado has nearly three weeks to catch Greenberg.

"Numbers are great, but I personally want to get to the playoffs," Delgado said. "I know I can hit 40 home runs. I know can drive in over 100 runs. I've done it before, but I've never been to the playoffs."

Tom Wilson followed Delgado's homer in the eighth with a shot of his own. Wilson went 4-for-4 with a walk to help the Blue Jays split the four-game series.

Tanyon Sturtze (6-4) pitched four scoreless innings of relief for the win.

Mariners 10, Angels 6
At Anaheim, Calif. Edgar Martinez set the Seattle club record for career RBIs with a two-run homer, and Bret Boone also hit a two-run shot as Seattle beat Anaheim.

Randy Winn drove in the tying and go-ahead runs with a double during a five-run sixth inning.

Martinez has 1,153 RBIs — one more than Ken Griffey Jr. had before he was traded to Cincinnati in February 2000.

Gil Meche (10-3) allowed six runs and seven hits over six innings.

Athletics 13, Rangers 0
At Arlington, Texas. Scott Hatteberg, Eric Chavez and Terrence Long all homered in the third inning, and Tim Hudson (6-3) pitched three-hit ball for seven innings.

Juan Gonzalez was out of Texas' starting lineup for the third straight game. The two-time AL MVP is considering whether to accept a trade that would send him to the Montreal Expos.

Miguel Tejada and Ramon Hernandez also homered as Oakland hit a season-high five home runs and equaled a season best with 13 runs.

Texas' starter Ismael Valdes (6-4) allowed eight runs and 10 hits over 3 1/3 innings.

Red Sox 6, Tigers 4
At Boston. Pedro Martinez picked up his first win since May 15 as the Red Sox completed a sweep of baseball's worst team.

Trot Nixon drove in three runs for Boston, which outscored Detroit 30-8 in the four-game series.

Martinez (5-2), in his fourth start since a 26-day stay on the disabled list, struck out eight and allowed four runs, seven hits and three walks in 6 2/3 innings. He left his previous two starts with the lead but the bullpen lost both games.

White Sox 5, Twins 1
At Minneapolis. Mark Buehrle (5-10) won his third straight start with a five-hitter, striking out nine, for Chicago.

Jose Valentin went 2-for-4 with two RBIs, and D'Angelo Jimenez and Aaron Rowand each drove in runs for the White Sox.

Yankees 4, Devil Rays 3
At St. Petersburg, Fla.

Jason Giambi and Raul Mondesi hit two-run homers to back Mike Mussina (10-4), who allowed two runs and eight hits, struck out five and walked none.

Newly acquired reliever Dan Miceli made an immediate contribution as the Yankees won the last three of the four-game series, coming in with the tying runs on base and one out in the bottom of the eighth. He got out of the jam by getting Rocco Baldelli to fly out and Aubrey Huff to ground back to the mound.

Royals 4, Indians 1
At Cleveland, resurgent right-hander Jose Lima (2-0) pitched seven strong innings as Kansas City completed a three-game sweep.

The Royals retained first place in the AL Central, but did so without leading hitter Mike Sweeney, placed on the 15-day disabled list before the game with tightness in his upper back.

Rookie Aaron Guiel helped fill the void by hitting a two-run homer as the Royals improved to 24-6 within their division.

Three named to Rangers' shrine
ARLINGTON — Pitches Nolan Ryan and Charlie Hough, catcher Jim Sundberg and former manager Johnny Oates were announced Wednesday as the inaugural class of inductees for the new Texas Rangers Hall of Fame.

The group will be inducted during an on-field ceremony Aug. 2 before the Rangers play Cleveland.

Bronze plaques honoring the inductees will be permanently displayed at The Ballpark in Arlington.

Ryan recorded his 5,000th strikeout, 300th win and the last two of his seven no-hitters while with the Rangers.

Hough is the team's career leader in wins (139).

Sundberg, whose 1,512 games played are a team record, won six Gold Gloves.

Oates managed the team to three West Division championships.

Marlins' rookie beats Mets again

NEW YORK (AP) — Dontrelle Willis didn't need to be at his best to shut down the New York Mets for the second time in 10 days.

Facing the team he one-hit June 16, the Florida rookie scattered nine hits over seven innings to win his seventh straight start as the Marlins beat the Mets 6-1 on Thursday night.

"I didn't think he had his best stuff and he didn't, either," Marlins manager Jack McKeon said.

But Willis (8-1) stranded eight runners, and was never in danger of losing despite allowing the most hits of his short major league career.

"They made some good adjustments at the plate and they got some hits, but in key situations, I was able to get the outs," Willis said.

Willis, who struck out seven and walked two, is only the fourth pitcher since 1920 to win eight of his first 10 major league starts before his 22nd birthday. He'll be 22 in January.

Highly regarded Aaron Heilman (0-1) lost in his big league debut. Called up from Triple-A Norfolk before the game, he allowed five runs — just one earned — and six hits in six innings. He struck out two and walked two.

"It was just great," Heilman said. "I was just pleased to be here."

He got little help from his teammates, who made four errors. The Mets also threw three wild pitches, two by Heilman.

In other NL games, it was: Milwaukee 5, Chicago 3; Philadelphia 8, Atlanta 1; and St. Louis 11, Cincinnati 7.

Jose Reyes, the Mets' rookie shortstop, made a fielding error on Juan Encarnacion's sharp grounder to prolong the fourth inning of a scoreless game. After Heilman walked Alex Gonzalez to load the bases with two outs, rookie Miguel Cabrera hit a three-run double.

Florida made it 4-0 in the fifth on Ivan Rodriguez's sacrifice fly. Willis hit an RBI single in the sixth, and the Marlins added a run in the ninth on Graeme Lloyd's wild pitch.

New York had gone 15 innings without a run off Willis before breaking through in the sixth. Ty Wigginton tripled and scored on a single by Jason Phillips.

"Our approach was better this time around," Mets manager Art Howe said. "We got some hits but we couldn't put anything together."

Brewers 5, Cubs 3
At Chicago. Mark Prior struck out a career-high 16 in eight innings, but wound up with a no-decision when Milwaukee's Geoff Jenkins hit a three-run homer in the ninth.

Prior was brilliant, posting the highest strikeout total in the majors this season. But with his pitch count at 126, Cubs manager Dusty Baker pulled Prior with a 3-2 lead.

Cubs reliever Joe Borowski (1-1) gave up a leadoff single to Scott Podsednik in the ninth and walked Keith Ginter. Jenkins followed with a shot onto Sheffield Avenue.

Phillies 8, Braves 1
At Atlanta. Randy Wolf pitched six strong innings and Jim Thome and Mike Lieberthal homered for Philadelphia.

Horoscope BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, June 28, 2003.
Your work could transform before your very eyes. Don't resist the inevitable, just go with it. Otherwise, you could put your job in jeopardy when you least expect it. Learn to absorb the new and different, if possible. Much is going on behind the scenes, and you understand a lot more than the majority. You have much to offer, but pick and choose whom you allow in your immediate circle. Associates could be difficult early this summer. You start a new life cycle this year, which will last 28 years. You might be greeting more responsibility. Make choices carefully, with an eye to the long term. Fall provides greater happiness and openness. You also might make a major purchase. If single, you could meet someone very special this year. This bond might be a major relationship in your life. If attached, your relationship will flourish, especially if you make plenty of downtime together. CANCER understands you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
* You innately put your best foot forward and feel good about yourself. How you phrase a comment could make all the difference in the manner that it is received. Others express interest in your opinions on all subjects. You're in your glory. Tonight: Where your friends are.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
* Expressing your feelings is natural for you when it comes to your well-being. This quality remains one of your best traits. Others need to know where they stand. By expressing your boundaries, you help others do the same. Tonight: Where your friends are.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
* You're personality plus what you say falls on welcoming ears. Others absolutely enjoy hearing your opinions and ideas. Your charm draws many. You have a very positive interaction-with others. Tonight: Let it all hang out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Continue to play it cool. Make the day about one special friend who means a lot to you. Lie back. Someone does not always have the free time to share feelings and news. Use this moment to relax together. Take a walk at a favorite spot. Tonight: Nap and then decide.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
* Friends head in many different directions. The gregarious Lion does his or her best in social situations. Dance away and enjoy your friends and loved ones. You could be delighted by what comes up for you. Express how much you value a special person. Tonight: You are the party.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
* Respond to a boss or parent who means a lot to you. Think through a change that might involve an older relative or someone you really care about. Handle responsibilities, which might even include heading in to work. Tonight: Enough seriousness. Time to play.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
* Visualize. Let your creativity come out when planning your day. A lot goes on. Stay tuned in to your higher self by not reacting but also by expressing the depth of your feelings. Recognize how someone close might feel. Tonight: Try a new type of cuisine. Do something exciting.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
* Build on an existing relationship or friendship. Focus on the plusses versus the negatives, and you will draw the two of you closer. Investigate what might be going on with a key financial or emotional investment. Tonight: Togetherness counts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
* Others seek you out. Your popularity soars to a new dimension. You suddenly realize just how many people are fond of you. Others present you with a multitude of options. Have fun picking. Others really enjoy you. Tonight: Follow the gang out the door.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
* Pace yourself during the day, especially if you want to get together with others later. Enjoy yourself in the company of others. You find that fun surroundings whatever you do. The plans aren't important. Tonight: Take a nap, then decide.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
* Pressure occurs no matter which direction you go, but you can turn a situation around. Your playfulness and spirit make a big difference in what goes down. You have the ability to make light of what others deem as serious. Tonight: Play until you're too tired to continue.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
* Handle family first, worrying less about what might be going down elsewhere. Deal with domestic and personal issues right now. You might not find time in the near future to clear out as much. Schedule special time with a child or loved one. Tonight: Go for the Saturday night spirit.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTES - Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
I S L Q N G F E L L O W
One letter stands for another. In this sample, A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
