LIONS FROM 4 TOWNS ATTEND MCLEAN MEET

Members of Lions clubs of Pampa, McLean, Wheeler and Clarendon assembled in McLean at 8 o'clock Tuesday night for a meeting of group 3 clubs. Attendance from Pampa was 30.

The meeting was held in the basement of the First Methodist church. Supt. C. A. Crier of McLean was toastmaster at the banquet.

Officers present included Joe P. Ford of Big Spring, district governor, past district governor C. H. Walker of Pampa, Sam Braswell of Clarendon, past district governor and past international director.

Braswell was unanimously endorsed for third international vice-president.

Wheeler was selected as the place for the next zone meeting, the date to be announced later.

The program opened with group singing led by Chick Hickman of Pampa, followed by invocation by Rev. W. A. Erwin of McLean.

Reports of club activities were made during the business session, which followed the banquet.

Creed Bogan, McLean, introduced toastmaster C. A. Crier.

Sam Braswell made a speech, "Tribute to George Washington"; Jesse Dean Cobb and B. L. Floyd gave a cornet and baritone duet.

DALLAS, Feb. 23. (AP)—The senate committee investigating Attorney General William McCraw fired another fusillade of questions today at his former Dallas law partner, Tom C. Clark, now an assistant United States attorney general.

Clark was interrogated for the third successive day on matters contributing to the large increase in his earnings after McCraw became a state official. He admitted the increase was substantial and testified to the receipt of several big legal fees, but added he never exerted improper influence on any state official or legislator.

McCraw, who aspires to be Texas' next Governor, had hoped to appear in person to answer insinuations which he said had been made during the committee's session but indications were the group would recess before he returned from Washington.

Inclement weather which grounded a plane delayed McCraw's departure from Washington to Dallas today, but the Attorney General said he might leave by plane tonight, weather permitting.

"McCraw lives in Austin," said Sen. T. J. Holbrook of Galveston, "and he can appear before us at our next session there."

To Study Record. Officials of banks, with which Mr. and Mrs. McCraw have accounts, promised to comply with the committee's request for ledger sheets and deposit slips on those accounts.

Senator Joe L. Hill of Henderson, frequent critic of McCraw, said the bank records would be studied in executive session and purely personal matters would not be made public.

Shortly after the committee subpoenaed records on all Dallas accounts of the Attorney General and

SECURITY SHROUDS U. S. NAVY MANEUVER PLANS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. (AP)—The navy surrounded with wartime secrecy today its forthcoming fleet maneuvers in the Pacific, which will include more than 80,000 men and officers will test the fighting strength of 150 war craft.

Naval officials disclosed the secrecy order while the house naval committee heard Rear Admiral William B. DuBois, chief of naval construction, testify it would cost $2,000,000 to provide a separate fleet to defend the Atlantic coast.

The navy's order barred newspaper representatives from all the fighting craft which will maneuver over the Pacific from Alaska to Samoa. DuBois said the Panama canal from the middle of March to late April.

The only explanation given was that fleet problem No. 19, to be worked out in six weeks of mock warfare, was "highly confidential."

Publicity this year, the navy said, will be limited to interviews with Admiral Block before and after the war games.

Scenes In Arkansas Flood Areas

Thousands of residents have been forced to move to high ground as a result of breaks in the Stephen-Keel levee on the White River near Newport, Ark. NEA's photographer flew over the flooded district to make these vivid shots of the high water. 'Lien' on Board Bill Baby Ruled Down by Judge

CARLISLE, Pa., Feb. 23. (AP)—A "board bill baby" who spent five of his eight months in the home of neighbors—held as security for his own keep—cooed contentedly today in his mother's arms.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McCallister, farm folk from the South mountains, brought him back to his own crib in their simple five-room home after a court ruled against a "lien on flesh and blood."

McCallister, 40, a world war veteran, told Judge Fred S. Reese he left the baby at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Miller five months ago when Mrs. McCallister was in a Carlisle hospital.

"Two months later," he related, "when I went to get the baby, Miller told me he wanted some money for keeping it. I had never promised him any, but I thought he ought to have something."

McCallister said Miller demanded $2 a week.

Russian-Made Planes Release Bombs Above Formosan Air Base

SHANGHAI, Feb. 23. (AP)—Russian-made planes flown by pilots of undisclosed nationality carried out a Chinese air raid on the Japanese island colony of Formosa today, said Chinese dispatches from Hankow.

A Chinese "foreign legion of the air" containing numerous American, Russian, British and French volunteer fliers, recently has been reported active in China's aerial warfare.

The Chinese reports said 40 Japanese planes, two hangars and a gasoline storage plant were destroyed at the Taihoku air base on Formosa and heavy damage inflicted at strategic locations on the island's western shore.

They said 70 planes flew from a base somewhere on China's southeast coast and the raid probably was "a forerunner of similar raids to come."

The Chinese reports said the expedition struck with lightning speed from a height of about 15,000 feet and returned unscathed to its base.

TOKYO, Feb. 23. (AP)—Seven Chinese warplanes raided Japan's island colony of Formosa today, inflicting "numerous casualties," Domei (Japanese news agency) reported.

It was the first time since 1864, when a British-French-Dutch fleet bombarded Shimonoseki, that territory of the Japanese empire had been subjected to hostile foreign bombardment. It was the empire's first air raid.

An hour before noon, the raiders swung over the Japanese air base on the outskirts of Taihoku, Formosan capital, and dropped ten bombs. A city of 276,000, Taihoku is near the northern tip of the island.

The raiders then bombarded points in Shinchiku province, on the western coast of the island.

The 1864 bombardment of Shimonoseki, at the western entrance to Japan's inland sea, was in reprisal for Japanese shore batteries firing on foreign merchant ships, including American vessels.

In 1863 a British flotilla bombarded and partially destroyed Kag-

Boys Eating Mule Meat Begin Song

By DWIGHT L. PITKIN. TERUEL, Spain, Feb. 23. (AP)—A seven-year-old girl can't find her father and mother.

A girl, white-haired man, wounded in the shoulder, is glad the fighting is over. One day he came home and found his wife shot to death.

He stayed through weeks of siege and says he won't leave home now.

Two boys sing when they see the food trucks. They had been eating mule meat.

Except for a cleanup of snipers which victorious insurgents think may be hidden in the ruins of caves underneath this once-proud Aragon city, the battle of Teruel is ended.

Last night pack mules of the insurgent sanitary corps plodded through the streets, carrying dead and wounded. Squads of insurgent soldiers pushed over tottering walls and cleared away debris.

Shell-splintered trees littered roads leading into the city. Most of the buildings which had been Teruel's pride before the Civil war were in ruins.

Although damaged, the tower of the famous cathedral still was standing. The Aragon hotel, the seminary convent and the military barracks virtually destroyed.

Insurgents marched into the city yesterday, shouting, singing, and confident that they were protected by rings of troops in the outskirts. They occupied Teruel, which government forces had captured last December, after the trapped garrison of 1,000 men raised a white flag over the seminary ruins.

Two courses of caliche are to be laid for a distance of two miles on each side of the Salt Fork on the highway. The job is a Works Progress administration project, with a hundred workers employed.

JURORS DISMISSED IN 31ST DISTRICT COURT

District court was adjourned this morning when the jurors were dismissed for the week. Following failure of the case of J. S. Mackie vs. C. M. Jeffries to come to trial, illness of F. P. Works, Amarillo, one of the plaintiff's attorneys was the cause of the case not being heard.

Only two more weeks remain of the present term. The grand jury will meet again Monday, as the ninth week opens. The tenth week opens March 7 and is a non-jury week.

CHAMBERLAIN OPPOSES 'SMALL ISSUES' WAR

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 23. (AP)—Great Britain's new foreign policy of conciliation with Europe's dictators is based, Viscount Astor, English statesman, believes, on the conviction of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's supporters that "small issues" should not be the cause of another world war.

Lord Astor characterized the dominant foreign sentiment in England as favoring a policy of limited commitments as opposed to the group desiring to cooperate with France and Soviet Russia "in maintaining even by war the status quo in Europe under the guise of collective security."

BURGLAR FINDS LIFE IN MANSION THRILLING

CHICAGO, Feb. 23. (AP)—James Bleating, 28, found life in a mansion thrilling while it lasted.

There was no response when he knocked at the door of the Schwinn mansion Monday in search of a handout. Ignaz Schwinn, wealthy manufacturer, his family and servants were in Florida on vacation.

Bleating entered—through a window. A well stocked larder helped him get through a meal quite satisfactorily. Scented soaps and expensive toilet waters proved welcome adjuncts to a bath. A pair of Mr. Schwinn's silk pajamas fit pretty well, too.

This might have gone on until the Schwinn returned were it not for a bottle of whisky.

"That was my downfall," Bleating moaned at a police station last night. "I got stiff and really though I was a millionaire. So when two carpenters came to fix the window, I yelled to them to quit the racket; they were disturbing me. If I had kept my mouth shut—"

Paul Harrison Tells Why Hollywood Is Importing Glamor Gals--With An Accent

Mireille Balin was just a lonely immigrant girl who came to Hollywood with 28 trunks and a staff of servants. The film colony hasn't seen much of Mireille yet, but scouts report that when she appeared on the beach at Cannes the gendarmes had to throw a guard around her.

Editor's Note: This is the last of six stories on the foreign actresses imported by Hollywood, who place the accent on glamor.

By PAUL HARRISON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 22.—With a peasant kerchief tied over her reddish head, and with a pleased smile of wonderment on her pretty face Mireille Balin looks exactly like her means, she finally rented a 10-room cottage with an ordinary outdoor swimming pool.

Then, because everybody in this far-flung film center has to have a car of some sort, Mlle. Balin again dipped into her savings and bought an Hispano-Suiza no bigger than a ten-ton truck.

She "Seldom" Goes Out
Although she says that she does not have much monee—not so much, anyway, but that she has to work to get more—Mlle. Balin seems quite a lot better off than most other newcomers from Europe. Or maybe this one is a spendthrift. Of course she earned a great many francs during her three years of picture making in France.

The actress explained that she has been verree bussee here, what with three hours of English study every day, and a singing lesson, and makeup and screen tests, and seeing selected movies and reporting to Billy Grady, foreign talent supervisor.

This was the first interview Metro had permitted. It had not, however, withheld her from social circulation. She said:

"I nevaire go to parties or night clogs—only maybe two, three times a week."

In Paris, after posing for a few advertisements in color, Mlle. Balin was sought out and hired by the noted French director, Pabst. Her first picture, she said, was "Donkey Show." "Donkey Show?" "But yes—'Donkey Show.' She took my pencil and wrote it out—'Don Quixote.'"

Likes What She Likes
She became a star soon after that.

Made one appearance with Fernand Gravet. Her greatest success was "Pepe le Moko," which has been shown in some metropolitan centers of this country. Word has come to her, she says, that when her English has improved, Louis B. Mayer intends putting her into a picture with Spencer Tracy or Clark Gable.

"I hope eet ees true," she said. "Thees Tracy ees my best actor, but also Paul Muni. They say I am not to speak of Paul Muni because eet ees not for thees studio he works. But I like what I like—no?" Yes.

She has—or had—tremendous vitality and vivacity. Ate four or five meals a day and was never still a minute. New her appetite has dwindled to three meals, and she has lost five pounds, and cannot sleep at night. "No pep," mourned Mlle. Balin. "Pep—okay? I like slang. In two weeks maybe I am dead."

In films, she explained, she always has been a lecture vamp. She is not an actress dramatique. The makeup experts here have been conducting some alarming experiments with her. "They poot my eyebrows up; they poot my eyebrow down. They make my hair so (tight back), and so (curled to the shoulders) and so (wind-blown.) They geeve me ze beeg mouse (mouth). On ze screen I do not know myself!"

Often She "No Onnerstan"
Her belief is that she is not temperamental, but she also admitted that she is one of the "I-do-not-onnerstan" girls. This noisave business is an old and exasperating device employed by several imported sirens, notably Simone Simon, who have had trouble with their employers and directors.

Mireille Balin believes, at this time, that it's the easiest way to get along. She explained frankly that if someone tries to make her do something she does not want to do, she says, "I do not onnerstan." When asked a question she doesn't care to answer, she replies, "I do not onnerstan."

Miss Balin says she is neither married nor engaged. She wears what appears to have been a man's heavy platinum ring mounting a diamond of 1 1/2 carats. Asked about it, she grinned and said, "You can write that my dog gave eet to me."

That's her every-day ring. For Sundays, holidays and a flash at the Trocadero she has a diamond of 1 1/2 carats. Another present from her dog.

Actually, she has several dogs. Skye terriers. She explained that only the "husband and son" are here. In Paris remains the "wife, who always ees having the babies."

The green-eyed Mlle. Balin had a French father, an Italian mother, and was born at a villa near Monte Carlo. Charles Balin was a wealthy newspaper publisher. Mireille had a luxurious upbringing and an expensive finishing-school education. Hers was a celebrated figure around southern European resorts.

That figure hasn't yet been photographed in Hollywood, but returned travelers bear news of it. They declare that whenever she appeared on the beach at Cannes the gendarmes had to rope off and guard a space around her. Concessioners then would have a field day renting spyglasses.

WRONG PEW.

Everyone groaned. The Kansas Day club is a Republican organization.

VOTE UPHOLDS CHAMBERLAIN ITALIAN DEAL

LONDON, Feb. 23 (P)—British government opposition gathered strength today for continued attacks against the nation's new foreign policy of European appeasement outside the League of Nations.

As Prime Minister Chamberlain prepared to start British-Italian friendship talks, organizations representing the opposition labor party, trade unions and League of Nations peace associations arranged for further demonstrations like that in the House of Commons yesterday.

The opposition backed the idealism of Anthony Eden, who resigned the foreign secretaryship rather than pursue Italian friendship talks under circumstances which he held would indicate Britain was yielding to pressure from the Fascist Premier Mussolini.

Chamberlain, who held it his duty to seek peace with Mussolini and Germany's Hitler and avoid "the frightful question" of war, was reassured in his policy of practical dealings by a 350 to 168 vote of confidence from the House of Commons.

The conservative party premier planned to confer tomorrow with Viscount Halifax, acting as temporary foreign secretary, and with the Earl of Perth, British ambassador to Rome who was called back to London for instructions on the Italian talks.

Lord Perth was expected to return to Rome immediately after

LEADER IN VISUAL EDUCATION TO TEACH COURSE AT WTSC

CANYON, Feb. 23—In recognizing the increasing use of educational motion pictures, film slides, and lantern slides in the schools on the plains, West Texas State college next summer will bring to the campus one of the nation's leading authorities on the subject.

"ARE CAMELS REALLY DIFFERENT FROM OTHER CIGARETTES?"... a question of interest to every smoker

... When H. W. DALY, 34, rayon salesman, says "Yes, Camels are really different," millions of other smokers stand ready to back him up. And that explains why Camels are preferred by the largest body of smokers ever known.

"I've never been very fussy about cigarettes myself. Do you think that Camels are really as different as some people say, Bill?"

"You bet they are different, John! A fellow in any work as hard as selling has to figure a lot of angles on his smoking, such as how it agrees with him. And just notice how many salesmen smoke Camels. I changed to Camels—smoked 'em steadily—and I found a distinct difference in the way I enjoyed all-day smoking. Camels agree with me!"

A FRIEND DROPS IN to see how Bill is coming with his model racing sloop. Daly passes the Camels and answers a natural question about smoking. "That all-cigarettes-are-alike talk doesn't square with my experience. Believe me, steady smoking is the test that shows Camels in a class by themselves."

MARITA'S PLANNING a grand feed. "We enjoy entertaining," Marita says. "I like to have plenty of Camels at the table. Camels certainly help to cheer up one's digestion."

ON WEEK-ENDS, Bill goes in for photography. Week days he "pounds the streets." "I get plenty tired," he says, "but when energy fails I get a quick 'lift' with a Camel."

ICKES SPEECH INTERPRETED AS OFFICIAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—Secretary Ickes' call for Anglo-American unity against fascism and communism—avowedly in the role of a private citizen—received immediate interpretation by Washington observers today as a general expression of official hopes.

These observers pointed out that Britons who heard a radio speech by Ickes yesterday necessarily would judge these words against a background of his position as a member of President Roosevelt's cabinet.

"The community of interest that exists between Britain and American, as well as between other peoples who believe in Democracy, should be strengthened.

"Democracy can not live side by side in the same country with either fascism or communism. Totalitarianism, either of the right, or the left, is alien to the spirit that dominates the English-speaking Democracies of the world."

Ickes, emphasizing that he spoke only as an individual, said the President alone is "charged with responsibility for foreign affairs."

He was reported to have written his address before the resignation of Anthony Eden, Great Britain's foreign minister, but that occurrence and the general European situation served to arouse special interest in his comments.

His speech was carried by the British Broadcasting company to the greater part of the United Kingdom as the first of several programs by Americans.

President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull remained silent on European developments, but both were known to be studying them closely.

Senator Borah (R-Ida) said he believed England, by her gestures of friendship to Germany and Italy, had abandoned any hope that she could depend on America as an ally in war.

He declared American reaction to the question raised by Senator Johnson (R-Calif) as to whether the United States had a naval understand with England was so adverse to the idea that the British government realized it would have to look elsewhere for friends.

Retailers, credit managers and consumer credit bureau secretaries will gather for their thirty-eighth annual convention in Dallas May 22nd through the 25th, according to information received by Mr. Walter J. Daugherty, of Pampa Retail Merchants association, who will attend the meeting with other Pampans.

The most interesting topic to be discussed, and perhaps the theme of the convention, will be the problem of controlling consumer credit sales in keeping with fluctuating consumer income. Consumer credit, so far as the retailer is concerned, has come through all depressions perhaps better than any other part of business.

Credit executives are to be congratulated upon their alertness in safeguarding credit in the field of retailing. Today more than ever before there is more retail business done on a credit basis and the percentage of credit to cash is going to continue to increase for several years to come.

In this convention, where credit problems are dealt with in great detail, each line of retail business will devote a full day to the discussion of their individual problems. Separate group conferences have already been arranged for the department store, wearing apparel and shoe stores.

Another has been planned for the Petroleum Industry, while a third for the Public Utilities has been set. Physicians and Dentists will have a separate group meeting, as will the hotel credit executives. Plans are now in the making for additional group meetings of the building material men, the jewelers, furniture dealers, finance companies and cleaners and dyers.

DISAGREEMENT OVER RELIEF BILL LOOMS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. (AP)—A senate-house disagreement over the $250,000,000 emergency relief bill was in prospect today because of the senate's demand that the money be spent as rapidly as necessary.

T. R. FRIEND GUEST IN PANHANDLE RESIDENCE

Sale recently of the Hill farm at the south edge of Panhandle recalls that the fine old home enabled the late F. H. Hill and Mrs. Hill to entertain some prominent visitors in the early days.

Charles W. Fairbanks of Indianapolis, Ind., vice-president of the United States under Theodore Roosevelt from 1905 to 1909, was a guest in the home during his term in office.

Senator O. B. Colquitt and the late Governor Charles A. Culberson are others who enjoyed the hospitality of the Hills there.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Gordon of Overton bought the section and one half and now are in possession of the land. However, the house will not be turned over to them until later.

F. H. Hill bought the land in 1900 and erected the 14 room house in 1904. An architect designed the stairway, and it is said that there is none finer in the Panhandle of Texas.

During the past thirty years architects have asked to see the stairway to obtain ideas for houses.

4,000 DUE TO ATTEND PARTY FOR McNUTT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. (AP)—Paul V. McNutt, high commissioner to the Philippines, said today of reports that he aspired to the 1940 Democratic presidential nomination "I am not a candidate for any public office."

The former Indiana governor made this assertion at a press conference a few hours before he was to be the guest of honor at a spectacular reception arranged by Indiana political leaders who desire to give him a boot toward the White House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. (AP)—Indiana Democratic leaders, disdaining halfway measures, went into society on a grand scale today to give a "coming out" party for Paul V. McNutt, their 1940 presidential hope.

They took over a good share of the Mayflower hotel for a spectacular reception late this afternoon. Invitations went to 2,700 federal officials and other Washingtonians—"everybody who is anybody," commented one enthusiastic Indianan.

It was hinted broadly, however, that gatecrashers wouldn't be refused a chance to shake hands with the tall, white-haired high commissioner to the Philippines. As a result, the hotel chefs prepared tea-time tidbits for 4,000.

The Indiana visitors, who preceded McNutt to the capital, bustled in and out of their 38 suites, greeting acquaintances and holding impromptu conferences. They would not comment on the 46-year old McNutt's own aspirations, but Frank McHale, Indiana Democratic committeeman, said:

"His friends are ambitious for him."
The Indianans made it plain that no formal campaign was being started at this time, but with winks and knowing looks, they expressed the opinion this was a good opportunity to put their candidate in the spotlight.

McNutt, who has held the Philippine post since he left the Indiana Governor's chair last year, returned to the United States a few days ago for the expressed purpose of reporting to President Roosevelt on insular affairs.

Senator Minton was the official host at the reception, which centered in the hotel's large Chinese room. The party lacked the presence of two of the country's most prominent Democrats, President Roosevelt was in Hyde Park, N. Y., and National Chairman Farley was in Florida.

The coast of Venezuela was the first part of the American mainland to be sighted by Columbus.

There are 704 broadcast stations licensed or under construction in the United States.

THERE'S A RIGHT AND WRONG WAY TO SHOVE WITH YOUR CAR! YOUR MILEAGE MERCHANT ADVISES... Try to have the two cars slightly "staggered"—not exactly in line with each other. This often helps if bumpers lock, especially when the car with its bumper below can reach a drain or similar depression. Another way is for the car with its bumper on top to get up on a curb or "hump." All of that is "just in case." Now ask the poor fellow who wants your help to get into HIGH. Tell him to keep his clutch pedal down, letting it come back gradually only after you get his car under way. Do your pushing with your LOW gear. That's easiest on your car...for half a block. Then if the other fellow's car hasn't started, have him get into neutral and push him up to a nearby Mileage Merchant for Special Winter Blend Conoco Bronze like yours. That can't help but get him started... (the Mileage Merchant will know what to do if the battery has entirely given up the ghost). And then the rightest way to dodge further battery trouble, dangerous oil dilution—and embarrassment—is to make a point of getting sure-starting Conoco Bronze all winter! Continental Oil Co. TODAY'S SERMONETTE

The commandment which Christ gave to the man healed at the pool of Bethesda, was "Behold thou art made whole: Sin no more lest a worse thing befall thee." He gives that same injunction to every man whose sins are forgiven, the command to lead a new, a different life.—Chivers.

FOR A GREATER PAMPA

In another section of today's Pampa Daily NEWS will be found a number of special articles on Home Building.

This special edition is in line and in cooperation with the Board of City Development's 1938 objective to stimulate home ownership and home improvement in Pampa.

It is one of the BCD's most worthwhile objectives for this year, and President Reno Stinson and his board of directors are to be commended for supporting and encouraging a movement of this type.

The story of any city's permanency is told in its percentage of home ownership and in the interest which residents show in becoming home owners and making improvement in their property.

A number of new and beautiful homes are being constructed in Pampa today. The owners of these homes have expressed their faith in the future of Pampa. They have the confidence that is necessary to build a permanent city.

Pampa's future is assured. What the city needs is more homes, more home owners—and that is exactly what is happening.

The Board of City Development's Home Ownership and Home Improvement committee consisting of Tom Smalling and Mrs. H. H. Hicks is engineering the plan for educating the people of Pampa along the idea of being home owners.

Many are of the opinion that they are not financially able to build a home. It is surprising how easily it can be done.

It is the purpose of the BCD to make known the various plans by which one can own a home. The BCD also is planning a number of services to aid prospective home owners.

Information may be had by contacting Mr. Smalling or Mrs. Hicks or any of the officers of the Board of City Development.

The Pampa Board of City Development's Home Ownership and Home Improvement campaign deserves the wholehearted support of every single one of us.

It means a Greater Pampa—and after all, that is what we all are interested in.

REEFERS GO TO SCHOOL

In Asia the natives make a drug from hemp and call it hashish, and from this word is derived the English "assassin," because observers learned long ago that hashish put its addicts into precisely the correct emotional and mental state to commit murder and other crimes.

In Mexico the natives do things simpler, after the Mexican fashion, and just smoke the leaves of the hemp plant, which is known in that country and this as marijuana. And in Mexico City when the police come upon a particularly atrocious crime, a throat-cutting or an ax murder, they look at each other wisely and murmur: "Mr. marijuana."

In cigars and called variously reefers, nuggles, love-weed and joy-smoke, this marijuana has been adopted in the United States as an unpleasant custom. It is estimated by federal officials that there are as many as 100,000 addicts—mostly among high school pupils.

Both federal and state governments are taking praiseworthy, rapid steps to combat the sale of marijuana. This country has enough undesirable customs of its own without adopting any from neighboring republics.

"FREEDOM OF INITIATIVE"

In a prize-winning article for the best presentation of what is designated as "The American Way", the following statements were made:

"Freedom of initiative cannot safely be extended to any man or group of men who already wield more power than is safe for the liberties of their fellow-citizens."

Of course, the judges were the editors or owners of the magazine. If they believe that this is the principle that made America rich and prosperous, they certainly have an entirely different conception of what caused America to become a great nation from what the framers of the Constitution believed was necessary to make a great nation. We believe it was exactly the opposite; that no governing body should have a right to interfere in any way with the freedom of initiative of any man or group of men. How they can conceive that the voting majority, or the government, should have a right to curtail or stop or in any way check any man or any group of men adding

Tex's Topics

I overheard two men trying to reach a decision yesterday whether to go coyote hunting in an airplane or rabbit hunting in an automobile. . . One of them was Hol Wagner, the typographer, and the other was Rex Murphy, the dare-devil stunt man. . . Murphy figures that a coyote attains a speed of 35 miles an hour and that he can throttle his plane down to 90 miles an hour. . . This makes the plane travel 55 miles an hour faster the coyote. . . The boys would have to take their algebras along in order to find out where to aim and when to shoot.

I was just trying to figure out what a thrill it would be to hunt coyotes from an airplane cockpit. . . However, it would be bad to be flying around over the breaks out around LeFors and suddenly get excited about a coyote and take your hands off the controls in order to get a pot-shot. . . One imagines that the coyote would just laugh and laugh and laugh and what might happen. . . Personally, I would much prefer to go prairie dog hunting with a club. . . However, every man to his own liking and far be it from me to deprive a couple of dare-devils of their fun.

Like all fathers, I get sick when my son gets sick. . . So, I haven't been feeling tip-top for a couple of days because the Boy Wonder has bronchitis and laryngitis, the doctor says. . . We fathers think we are big stuff sometimes, but the person who really suffers when a child is ill, and the person who really does something besides talk about it—is the mother. . . She goes through all the worry and grief and suffers for the child and takes care of him and nurses him back to health on top of everything else. . . In a slipshod manner, most fathers try to be of some assistance during the illness of a son or daughter, but I think at the best we are more bother than we are worth at a time like that—at least, I am.

Guerilla attacks by Chinese may prove they are not the monkeys the Japanese thought them. . . Whale and blizzard stories from the San Francisco region indicate that California is now through with Florida and is after Alaska's thunder. . . Chances of world naval limitation seem slight. The big powers have fallen back on the slogan, "Don't give up the ships." . . London dogs have developed "road sense" and now look both ways before crossing the street. But it will be the same old story when road dog meets road hog. . . With one sixth of New York City on relief, it will not be long before the other five-sixths are calling for relief from relief.

Yesteryear In Pampa

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

Several hundred persons visited the Santa Fe's "Farm and Home Special" train which stopped in Pampa.

F. J. Mackie, superintendent of the plains division of the Santa Fe, was here conferring with a committee of local men with regard to a subway under the Santa Fe tracks.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Definite adoption of the dates for the first annual Pampa Frontier Days celebration was made. These dates were May 26, 27, and 28.

R. W. Lane, manager of the White House lumber company here was host to the public when the new plant was opened.

to the wealth of the world certainly is a new idea of progress.

The author makes no distinction as to what initiative might be restricted.

It would seem that this, instead of being the American way is the European or potentate way. It is the way of a dictatorship; that is afraid some man may get too powerful and in order to prevent any man from getting too powerful or too popular, he restrains his initiative. It would seem that this should be the prize winner of the antithesis, or rather the antimony of the American principles.

America was founded on using the aggregate initiative of everyone. It certainly was not conceived with the idea of leveling off to make things homogeneous. The plan was to permit people to become heterogeneous. Any system that levels off certainly is not true democracy, or the American way, even though it was awarded a prize by someone who happens to edit a national magazine.

COMPARATIVE FREIGHT RATES

A very interesting comparison of the cost of transporting one ton one mile on the railroad in 12 different countries has been compiled by the Wall Street Journal. It shows Japan has the lowest rate and France the highest. The cost of transporting one ton one mile in Japan is .77 of one cent; in the United States .94; the highest on the list is France with 3.48 cents per ton mile. Great Britain has a cost of 2.78.

It is evident from these comparative figures that the cost of transporting freight in the United States in which the wages are higher than in any other country with the possible exception of Canada, is not based on mismanagement or a lot of artificial capital so often referred to. It is true of course that a few individual railroads have, in the past, had a lot of water in their capital structure but the freight rates would indicate that they are not permitting earnings on this water. These figures are the charge and not the actual cost. In many cases, under the present circumstances, the United States rates are less than cost.

It is difficult for any country to have progress and compete with other countries when their freight rates are so abnormal as they are in France.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Perhaps it's merely a sign of spring, but more and more the top flight artists, actors and authors are going rural.

Hendrik Willem Van Loon has moved into a rambling house on Connecticut's salty shores and invites there pilgrims to his dutch teas. Irrepressible worker that he is, he continues his labors on his books and drawings while chatting with his guests. In the middle of a paragraph or half finished with a paragraph he will stop to give his guests a lecture on the past and future of the arts.

A short drive away is the countryside home of Peggy Wood, who has deserted it temporarily to appear in a play in London. It is a modernistic house, enclosed mostly in glass walls, and perches on the side of a hill overlooking a wide grove of trees.

Nearly hidden in a wooded dell the home of Mary Servos, who played the Queen to Leslie Howard's Hamlet. It is a big house, quite English countryside in appearance, and the walls are covered with original paintings and Van Gogh prints.

The Pennsylvania rural neighborhoods also are being settled by Broadway and Hollywood famous names, this parade being led by the witty but sad minstrel, Dorothy Parker.

Up the Hudson river, especially around Sneed's Landing and the High Top region where Ichabod Crane, the Headless Horseman and other Washington Irving characters are supposed to have roamed, is another such art settlement. Margaret Perry and Burgess Meredith do a riverside home there and so does Maxwell Anderson, who wrote quite an excellent play about the weird sights he imagined happened in the ghostly region.

Paradoxical as it may seem, this flight of the artists to the countryside is dictated largely by a desire for time and freedom in which to work. In the days when many lived in Greenwich Village studios, and later in the East Fifties near the murky waters of the East river, they found themselves more and more pressed for time in which to pursue their careers.

On Manhattan it was an easy matter for friends, business acquaintances, fans and hundreds of others to pursue them continually in their homes. Courteous though they liked to be, they discovered that these interruptions were continually interfering with their work. So they are fleeing to the countryside where they are far enough away from the crowd and isolated enough to find leisure to work.

That Benny Goodman concert won't be the only time this season that the classic rafters of Carnegie Hall vibrate in swing time. Duke Ellington is polishing his baton and his band for a session there come spring. And his orchestra probably will be augmented by a huge choir.

They're ransacking the lists for a professional name for Max Rosen, the 16-year-old swing harpist. Seems they're afraid he will be confused with the violinist.

"Hear a Bit, There a Bit," in the Canadian Record has this one's vote as the most interesting column he reads that tells things about people. Here are a few excerpts from last week's column:

Some apricots here are in full bloom—Mrs. H. B. Freeman, formerly Eleanor Hodges has a hobby of collecting dogs. She has hundreds of them in porcelain, glass, bone, etc.—Duck Harris and Tom Conatser are carrier pigeon fanciers. Tom often flies his pigeons from Canadian to the ranch. He recently loosed several at Pampa and Amarillo, and they had all returned home the next day. Buck has flown some of his pigeons from the ranch to Wichita, Kas., several times.—Chas. Ficks, who is a wearer of a C. H. S. jacket, says it was worth the broken nose he suffered playing football. Canadian has a Cain and an Abel. They are clumsy bulldog pups belonging to Dr. German. Cain nearly killed Abel over a delectable bone. These pups sleep in a tin roofed garage and the noise if the first rair nearly paralyzed them with fright.

The favorite column in The Shamrock Texan is "Yoo Hoo."
Astaire No Problem
 But his seeming laxness in research never affects the kissing problems of the movie cameraman. Period Now or Period Then, that worthy has a job with every kiss. He must never, for one thing, allow the hero's nose to hide the heroine's face. (He is saved from the reverse problem by the fact that any heroine with a nose capable of hiding a hero's face would not be in pictures.) He must also, in certain cases, so arrange his lights and angles that what appears to be a kiss on the screen really need not be a kiss at all but merely a pose designed to look like a kiss to the camera.
 The least of his kissing problems, however, remains Fred Astaire. Fred is a kissless star, no matter how romantic, in all his pictures.
Often in Jail
 When John Ford is directing a picture, you can visit the set and be fairly certain in advance you'll see a prison or dungeon or other dreary scene.
 It wasn't a dungeon in "Four Men and a Prayer" the other day—just a drab cellar armory where some tropical insurgents were storing guns against the day. But the heavy stone arches, the atmosphere of darkness, suggested a jail.
 Other Ford pictures, not always dominated by such sets, have had their share of them. "The Informer," remember? And "The Prisoner of Shark Island," and "The Plough and the Stars" and "The Hurricane."
 He isn't partial to jails. It just happens that any extra-terrestrial subject that comes along gravitates naturally in his direction, like one drop of quicksilver to another. Jails and dungeons seem to belong in those subjects.
 When John Ford undertakes a parlor-society-pink tie movie with Noel Coward dialogue Hollywood might as well shut up shop.

 June 2, 1932—Jerry and Frank Stevens form a partnership in a filling station in Chicago.

July 7, 1937—Jerry leaves the filling station on a fishing trip as Frank comes to work. Frank is killed in a holdup at the station at 8 p. m. At 8:45 p. m. Jerry returns home and finds police officers waiting to question him. He tells them he has fished out the cash box of $71, the day's receipts.
 He quarreled with Frank the day before the murder.
 Police then booked him as Frank's killer.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER, Pampa Daily News Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—In case Roosevelt hasn't made himself clear in his remarks as to prices and recovery, it may or may not be more illuminating to reveal what the administration ace economists told him in their preceding huddles.

There have been heavy kickbacks on previous Roosevelt statements, especially the one about cutting steel prices and maintaining steel wages, and an increasingly vociferous demand for a definite statement of business policy.

So Roosevelt called in the economic soothsayers and asked them to figure out just what they were sure of as to the depression—past, present and future.

Everyone agreed that out-of-balance price relationships were a prime depression factor. Such economists as Leon Henderson of WPA, now resting up from his price studies at John Hopkins Hospital, and Dr. Lester Lubin of the Bureau of Labor Statistics had been talking in that direction for a long time. Either they didn't speak loudly or distinctly enough or the President was hard of hearing.

Now, however, the world is informed that the administration has a real business policy. In addition to hammering at controlled, rigid, or monopolistic prices on the high side of the price level after the manner of Robert H. Jackson, emphasis is to be placed on the need of raising prices driven far down on the low side in the current depression.

The campaign to lower some prices and raise others is for the moment one of ballyhoo and psychology.

The economists brought their fever charts to the White House by royal command and cited one outstanding parallel in events leading up to the Hoover depression of 1929-33 and those preceding the Roosevelt depression of 1937-38?

Each time, they said, raw materials had jumped out of bounds. Normally, they explained, the raw material and the finished goods price levels run up and down the chart in the same relative direction.

In 1929, however, raw material prices rose above finished goods prices on the chart, and the raw material prices level dropped far below its previous relative position under the finished goods level. Finished goods thereafter also proceeded to decline steadily in price from 1929 to 1933, but neither so fast nor so far.

History repeats. Last in 1936 raw material prices, after moving along at about the same rate for 13 months of healthy recovery, again shot ahead of the finished goods level. Demand had speeded up—including that of the munitions industry. Drought had raised prices. Controlled price industries raised prices arbitrarily. Manufacturers, believing raw materials were going still higher, bought speculatively and forced prices still higher—until they became overstocked.
Reverse English.
 Pig iron increased from a 1935 index average of 103 to 126, scrap steel 109 to 154, building materials 87 to 97, farm products 81 to 94, hides 87 to 85, zinc 68 to 100, leather 85 to 100, tin 71 to 95.

Round and Round Again.
 So what? So overstocked manufacturers stopped buying over-priced material and raised their own prices in order to compensate for high-priced raw materials and higher wages. Raw material prices then tobogganed far below the finished goods price levels, as in 1930-33.

(They have dropped 16 per cent in the last year, finished goods only 2 per cent.)
 Result: Another spiral all around except in controlled prices. At least 30,000,000 persons depend on the business of producing raw materials on farms and in mines and forests. Unemployment, low prices for their products and higher prices for the finished goods they must buy hit them amidst, knocked their purchasing power galleywest.
Need Isance.
 Thus the market for finished goods from the factories dwindled and

How's Your Health?

By IAGO GARDSTON, M.D.

The hand is a remarkable organ—a complex of bones, muscles, tendons, ligaments, joint capsules, blood vessels and nerves. It is strong, mobile and capable of many intricate motions.
 It deserves special care and consideration not only for its "value" but also because it is so very much exposed to injury.

A good practice is to wear suitable gloves whenever there is coarse work to do. Those who must handle heavy or rough, irregular objects will do well to wear gloves with a tough leather palm.

Housewives and others who use abrasives, polishing fluids, paints, varnishes or other agents containing volatile fluids, can benefit by wearing rubber gloves. Even cotton gloves are of some value in protecting the hands against injury while working about the house in the garden, workshop or garage.

Should the hand be injured, proper first aid treatment is essential. The obviously severe injury is usually well treated. But the seemingly minor hurt is likely to be neglected and serious consequences may follow. Beware of all minor cuts, tears, puncture wounds and abrasions. Injuries about the fingernails deserve special attention.

The essentials of first aid in hand injuries, such as cuts, tears or abrasions, are:

Clean the wound thoroughly. Soap and water are excellent cleansing agents. First clean the parts surrounding the wound, then the wounded part.

Paint the injured tissues with tincture of iodine. Use a fresh solution. Old solutions are likely to be too concentrated because the alcohol solvent evaporates.

Cover the wound with clean gauze, and fasten the gauze in place. Whenever possible, keep the injured hand at rest, suspended, say, in a sling made of a large kerchief.

After 12 hours, if the injured part feels sore, looks red and is swollen, be sure to have the doctor look at it.

Puncture wounds should be encouraged to bleed by gently pressing the surrounding tissues. This type of wound should always receive prompt medical attention.

Abrasions of the skin, after having been cleaned and disinfected, may be covered with strips of zinc oxide adhesive tape.

factories began to lay off hundreds of thousands of men and women each month, leaving them unable to buy products of either factory or farm.

Finished goods, except those whose prices were artificially maintained, joined raw materials in the downward price race, as in 1930-33, but again with raw materials an easy winner. The general finished materials level is partly held up by controlled prices. Roosevelt, his cabinet members and his economists want to hammer down certain controlled prices and raise abnormally low uncontrolled prices.

They're still intent on breaking the prices of steel, cement, plaster and certain other building materials because they believe such a break can stimulate building other industries, employment, purchasing power—and indirectly the general price level.

MOST OF U. S. COTTON TO BE TEXAS GROWN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—Texas farmers have been tentatively allotted 9,839,627 acres under the 1938 farm act for cultivation in cotton, more than a third of the total national allotment of 26,300,000 acres.

The acreage curtailment for the state from its 1937 crop is roughly about 25 per cent, the approximate reduction made for the nation as a whole. In some states the reduction was almost 50 per cent. Texas had 12,896,000 acres planted in the staple last year.

Secretary Wallace estimated the nation should produce 10,129,000 bales under the new program if the yield is that of the average annual crop for the past 10 years. On the same basis, the Texas crop should yield about 2,800,000.

The state's allotment will be divided among counties on the basis of the acreage planted to cotton in each county during the years 1933-37, inclusive, taking into consideration the acres diverted from cotton. Additional allotment will be made if necessary to assure that no county shall receive less than 60 per cent of the sum of the acreage planted in 1937 and the acreage diverted from cotton under the 1937 program.

County allotments will be divided among farms on which cotton has been planned in any of the past three years as follows:

All farms which have not planted and diverted as much as five acres of cotton in any of the three years, will receive as their allotment the largest number of acres planted and diverted in any one of the three years. All farms on which five acres or more of cotton were planted and diverted in any of the three years, will receive as their allotment five acres and an additional amount which will bring the total allotment up to a percentage of the farm cropland (excluding acreages devoted to wheat, tobacco and rice) which will be the same for all farms in the county, or administrative area.

A small reserve acreage will be set aside for Texas to be made available for farms producing cotton in 1938 and which did not produce any cotton during any of the past three years. This makes it possible for land which may have been diverted to other crops under a soil building program for several years to be put back in cotton. It might apply to the rehabilitation of a farm which has lain idle more than three years. There is a limit to the acreage that may be allotted to a farm. It will not be greater than the cotton acreage planted and diverted in any of the years 1935 to 1937, inclusive.

176 MILLION WORDS SPOKEN IN FILIBUSTER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—About 176,000,000 words were spoken in the filibuster against the anti-lynching bill, senate shorthand reporters estimated today.

Until the senate voted 58 to 22 yesterday to put the measure aside, it had been the pending business since January 6.

The shorthand experts estimated the average speech of a senator is about 160 words a minute, but this slows down to 140 words during a filibuster, which is designed to kill time and prevent a vote.

Gallery employees counted 140 hours of actual debate and 49 roll calls.

Senator Ellender, Democrat, La., was the marathon performer, speaking against the bill for 40 hours, including one stretch of six daily sessions.

Living Atop A Waterfall

Deep in a glen in an unspoiled Pennsylvania forest and astride a water fall rises this unique lodge designed by Architect Frank Lloyd Wright for Edgar Kaufmann, Pittsburgh business man. Blending so well with the natural rock formations, that it appears to have sprung from them, is the exterior of the lodge, at top. In the center, is a detail from one of the numerous terraces where one may sit in the sun and study the forest. At the left, is the stairwell leading to the icy pool, scooped out of the bed of the stream. Note how the forest has been left uncut to hug the edges of the house. The lodge is situated near Bear Run, Pa. (Photos by Hedrich, Blessing Studio, Chicago; Courtesy The Architectural Forum.)

GOVERNMENT STRENGTHENS LOAN SYSTEM

WASHINGTON, D. C. Feb. 23—How the Federal Savings and Loan System, now including 1,328 members with assets of more than a billion dollars, is tending to unify and strengthen the entire savings and loan field was described here today by Dr. W. H. Husband, member of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which supervises the system.

Before establishment of the federal system some five years ago, Dr. Husband pointed out, the lending practices of home financing institutions varied as widely as the laws of the 48 states in which they operated. While many institutions still function under state charters, he said, there is an increasing uniformity of practice among them because of the relations many have with the Federal Home Loan Bank System and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

"It is not so much a matter of the comparative values of state and federal charters," Dr. Husband said, "as the need of the industry for some common bond which gives national recognition and prestige.

Nucleus of Business
"These federal associations along with the state-chartered institutions are the nucleus of the home-financing business. It is estimated that together they provide about 40 per cent of the institutional funds advanced for the accommodation of homes and residences of four units or less."

Federal associations, whether found in Maine or California, are conducted along virtually the same lines, he continued. All offer the "direct reduction" plan of loan. Under it, the borrower pays identical amounts at stipulated periods, part of the payment being applied on interest and part on principal. Thus he knows from the time he obtains his loan exactly when it will be liquidated.

All federal associations, too, protect their investors by insurance up to $5,000 for each account in the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, a government instrumentality. Finally, all are subject to strict and periodic examination by agents of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

The efforts of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to introduce standard practices, Dr. Husband continued, has not been limited to the federally-chartered institutions. In addition to them, nearly 2,700 other home financing institutions are members of the Federal Home Loan Bank system which gives them access to a national credit reservoir and tends to promote the use of similar business methods.

Problems raised by the federal housing program which contemplates the "tapping of the money market" for large amounts for home building brings "the industry face to face with such problems as higher value loans, lower interest rates and longer terms of amortization," Dr. Husband stated.

"An analysis of these problems will convince any operator in the field that the solution must be of a comprehensive type. It must be something large enough to give national recognition to the field, and at the same time, sufficiently flexible to permit local institutions to constitute the essential framework.

are incorporated in the program which is made available by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board." Declaring that the bank system had "already demonstrated its success," Dr. Husband pointed out that in the five and one-third years of its existence it has made advances to member associations totaling approximately $405,000,000. This is able to aid them in solving their problems by shifting funds from areas of over-supply to those where additional credit was needed. At the present time, he added, the system includes 3,938 members with total assets of $4,045,000,000, making it the largest home mortgage credit pool in the world.

Pampa's Youngest Retail Merchants

Carrier boys serving the Pampa Daily NEWS have been selected because of good training in their homes, their excellence in school work and because of their conduct as young gentlemen. Their contact with the public is expected to reflect these qualities. However, any breach of courtesy or good service should be reported to the Circulation Department at once.

Carrier boys for the Pampa Daily NEWS operate on THE LITTLE MERCHANT PLAN. They purchase their papers at a wholesale price and then sell the papers to their subscribers at a retail price—the difference between the wholesale and retail price being their profit. In order that the carrier boys may realize full profit from the sale of their papers, it is essential that their subscribers pay regularly and in advance. But upon payment, the carrier boys will cheerfully present each subscriber a complete RECEIPT.

If you have not received your daily paper by 6 p. m., telephone 666 before 7:00 o'clock and the Circulation Department will send your paper by special messenger. If your Sunday paper has not arrived by 8 a. m. call 666 before 10 a. m. for the same service.

PAMPA, ABERNATHY, CAREY, CANYON RANKED EVEN IN REGIONAL MEET

NO TEAM WILL BE FAVORITE OVER OTHERS

SPORTS

Pampa Daily News

PAGE EIGHT WEDNESDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 23, 1938.

SMU Loses To Texas And Drops Back To 3rd Place

There will not be much difference in the potential ability of Pampa, Abernathy, Canyon and Carey in the Interscholastic League's regional meet at Canyon Friday and Saturday, close observers said today.

The four teams are pretty well-matched and there is no outstanding favorite as there was last year when Coach Catfish Smith's Carey Cardinals, led by Carrol Foust, won the region and the state.

Canyon will have the advantage of being familiar with the court which will be Buffalo gymnasium; they will also be familiar with the officials, Davis Hill of White Deer and Frank Van Noy of Plemons. Hill has officiated at regional tournaments at Canyon for several years. They also called the district tournament at Canyon last week when Canyon crushed Amarillo in the final game.

Canyon's team was described by Olin E. Hinkle, former Pampa, now journalism professor in West Texas State college, as a "peppy bunch of midgets who are dangerous." It is the opinion of other observers who have seen the Eagles play that Pampa should defeat them.

The Eagles have split games with Phillips and other teams which are ranked below the Harvesters. Carey has new boys on the team, and are not expected to repeat.

Abernathy Tough.

Less is known of Abernathy, Pampa's first foe Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, than any of the other teams. The Antelope beat Ralls in the Lubbock tournament. Plainview's Bulldogs who were disqualified from entering the meet because somebody neglected to pay their Interscholastic League meet fee, have played and beaten the Antelopes, but the word from Plainview today is that Abernathy will be no pushover and that they will be hard to take out.

But the Harvesters are in the best mental and physical condition in more than a month. Their spirits are good; their morale is excellent; their health and bones are intact. Cox is moving around with more agility than common. The boys are in much better shape now than they were before the district tournament. The long grind of eight games played last week has left no traces of deterioration among the players.

No 'First Five.'

Coach Odus Mitchell who used every member of his squad in district tournament games is grooming his second string as carefully as he does the starters. This is one year that there is no "first five." Saturday night, coach used eight players in the final game, and there was little or no difference in the results of each when compared with any one of the others. So Coach Mitchell will take his entire squad to Canyon. The "first eight" on the team are Captain Claude Heiskell, Tippy Reynolds, Bobby Andis, Norman Cox, Pete Dunaway, Junior Postier, Jack Cunningham, Omer Harrell. Other members of the squad are Grover Lee Heiskell, Omer Duil, Jim Brown and A. C. Miller.

Byron Chody III Of Meningitis

Friends of Byron Chody, former Berger baseball pitcher, learned yesterday that he is critically ill in a Wichita, Kans., hospital and that little hope is held for his recovery. He is in the hospital with spinal meningitis, the message received by Sam Sealing, manager of Arkansas City, Kan., in the national tournament at Wichita last summer and made a real hit with fans. While with Huber of Berger, Chody was one of the members of the Pampa Road Runners and Pampa Oilers. His wife and two children, five years and five months, respectively, are with him in Wichita.

Stagehand Wins $50,000 Derby

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23 (AP)—Winner of the $50,000 Santa Anita Derby, the Maxwell Howard racing stable, run by turfdom's famous Earl Sande, set quietly about the task today of trying to ring up a victory in Santa Anita's other rich event—the $100,000 handicap.

The Earl, once America's manufacturer, saddled Stagehand for his smashing triumph in the derby yesterday—a race that saw Dauber run second, Sun Egret third, Legal Light fourth and such big names as Tiger, Sir Raleigh and Can't Wait finish out of the money.

Now Sande has Schemshter, full brother of the flashy black Stagehand, groomed to shoot into the handicap March 5. Stagehand was nominated for the mile and one quarter grind, but Sande indicated he may give the colt a rest before getting him ready for a fling at the Kentucky Derby later this spring.

PROMOTER SCHEDULES YEAR'S 'MUST SEE' WRESTLING CARD

(By The Associated Press)

The top-ranking Arkansas Razorbacks clash with the Southern Methodist Mustangs in a two-game series Friday and Saturday at Fayetteville. The Mustangs, losers to the University of Texas Longhorns 23-23 last night, are back in third place. Baylor, victors over Texas Christian University last night, moved into second place.

The Methodists, whose defense of their cage title was upset by the Texas University Longhorns last night, has four more games to play; Baylor has three more, and Arkansas, two.

While Arkansas and Southern Methodist University are battling it out Friday night, Rice will play T. C. U. and Saturday night Rice will play.

The Arkansas Razorbacks, just returned from Waco where they had to split a pair with the Baylor Bears, have only two days in which to prepare for the tussle with S. M. U. They must win both games to take the pennant. A split would tie Arkansas with the winner of the S. M. U.-Baylor game provided these teams win their other games.

The Methodists found the Texas defense too light last night for their usual scoring spree. At the half the score was 10-10. Moore, Longhorn guard, scored 12 points.

Baylor stayed in the fight for conference honors by virtue of a second-half rally last night that spelled defeat for T. C. U. The Baylor Bears trailed 18 to 19 at the intermission as T. C. U.'s Jack Reedy sank a field goal just before the gun. T. C. U. kept the pace with Baylor until about middle of the second half when the Bears began drawing away on well-aimed shots by Gernand and Shahan, that gave Baylor a 43 to 37 victory.

TOP GOLFERS WILL PLAY IN HOUSTON MEET

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT.

HOUSTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—Only 22 championship flight places awaited one of the sharpest bands of amateur golfers ever grouped together in Texas as the 18-hole qualifying round got under way today in the twenty-fourth annual Houston Country club tourney.

Far shooters were as common as highway billboards as the first threesome teed off on a course made heavy by rains that caused tournament officials to temporarily shorten the distance of one hole. A rain-swollen bayou on the par-four eighth hole cut it down to a par three from a temporary tee.

National Amateur Champion Johnny Goodman of Omaha, Neb., readying for an invasion of England with the Yankee Walker Cup team, got top billing, but a varied assortment of champions were in the field.

Goodman, once national open king, and now planning a shot at the British amateur, had two days of practice behind him. Two trips around the course netted 75% on the par 35-35-70 course. Par was cut a stroke by the altering of the eighth hole.

Two times winner of the title, Johnny Dawson, the California amateur who long has ranked as one of the nation's best, was listed among the strong favorites with Goodman; Reynolds Smith, Texas title and Walker Cup player; Don Schumacher of Dallas, Spec-Mississippi champion; David (Spec) Goldman, former national amateur finalist, and Edwin McClure, handsome defending champion of Shreveport, La.

Four former Walker Cup players, including the veteran George Rotan of Houston, member of the first American amateur team, were entrants. Walter Emery of Houston, runner-up for the American amateur in 1935; Ed White, also former national intercollegiate champion, young Bobby Eiegel, former southern champion, now bidding for a comeback.

Officials received last-minute messages from Charlie Yates of Atlanta and Freddie Hass Jr. of New Orleans, members of the current cup team, that they would be unable to attend.

Texas also liked the chances of Jack Minger, Dallas' former southern champion, ransy Harry Twid, former state title-holder; Bill Welch, winner of the Southwest conference title in 1936 and '37; blond Lonnie Wendland of San Antonio, former state municipal king; Billy Coffey, runner-up for the state title last year and now a student at Louisiana State university.

Speed of the field gave assurance that the first round would develop into a "sudden death" affair for many stars.

Denton Eagles Certain of Tie In Cage Race

DENTON, Feb. 23—When Coach Pete Shands' North Texas Cagers spilled the Stephen F. Austin Lumberjacks 33-26 in Denton last week they guaranteed themselves a mathematical tie for the Lone Star championship, their first Lone Star basketball title in the history of the loop and the first cage title of any kind they have won in 10 years.

Not since 1927 have the Eagles garnered a cage crown. In that year Coach John B. Reid's squad won the T. I. A. A. title as they had in 1926, 1923, and 1922. Reid was coach in '26, and Jimmy St. Clair, who later went to Southern Methodist, in the two earlier years.

The highest the Eagles have ever finished in Lone Star history prior to this year was in 1932, the year the present loop was organized, when they finished in a three-way tie with East Texas and San Marcos for second place.

Stephen F. Austin, who has held the title or tied for it every year since the Lone Star Conference was organized, won the title in 1932, 1933, and 1935; tied in 1934 with East Texas and Sam Houston; tied in 1936 with East Texas and tied in 1937 with Sam Houston.

GRID TRAINING WILL OPEN AT McLEAN TODAY

McLEAN, Feb. 23—Coach Bill Allen has issued a call for the McLean Tiger football prospects to report at Tiger field this afternoon to open spring training. Although a little snow remained on the field, the call had not been cancelled last night.

This year the Tigers will be out to reach the conference pinnacle after a successful season in 1937. They defeated the regional champions early in the season but lost to Wellington within the district during conference play, after making 15 first downs to 5 for the winners.

During the three years of Coach Allen's reign, the Tigers have lost only two conference games. About 35 boys are expected to report for spring training. This is the largest group ever to report for football in the school's history.

Seven first string lettermen will be missing but their understudies last season will be available along with several promising newcomers. Only non-conference game scheduled to date is with the Panhandle Panthers, regional champions, for early in September. The teams have played for the past 10 years with each winning five and losing five.

Coach Allen will have weight scales on his squad this season, especially in the backfield where he could field a quartet averaging more than 180 pounds. He may send some of that weight to the line, railbirds predict.

Boys who have called for uniforms in advance include: Backs—Jr. Braxton, 170; Bill Cash, 185; Randy Mantooth, 160; Myrtle Norman, 198; C. B. Lee, 155; Ray Humphries, 170; John Bond, 190; Billy West, 160; Sonny Boy Back, 150. Ends—Edward Cadra, 195; Norman Trimble, 160; Jack Anderson, 150; Jack Bogan, 145; Bailey, 150; Slim Windom, 175. Tackles—Mike Wingo, 180; Vester Lee Smith, 160; Ed Welba, 170. Guards—Clyde Glenn, 160; Leonard Roach, 160; Marvin Jones, 180; Billy Cook, 145; Herman Hugg, 150; Centers—Gene Wells, 175.

YOUNG CORBETT BEATS FRED APOSTOLI IN BLOODY BATTLE

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 23 (AP)—San Francisco's biggest boxing upset in many years today left young Corbett, veteran Fresno southpaw, a 10-round victor over Fred Apostoli, uncrowned middleweight king who was a 2½ to 1 favorite to wallop his aging conqueror.

Corbett, who won and lost the world's welterweight title before Apostoli started professional fighting, took five rounds of yesterday's outdoor battle, Apostoli battered his way to a pair, and three were even.

The Fresno, his right eye closed and his mouth and nose battered, appeared nearing the end of his resistance at the close of a punishing tenth round when referee Toby Irwin awarded him the decision.

A holiday crowd of 15,000 persons paid an estimated $25,000 to see the battle in Seals baseball stadium, the first outdoor fight here in three years.

Apostoli, nine years younger than Corbett and recent winner over

Marcel Thil of France and middleweight champion Freddie Steele in a non-title bout, was virtually unscathed by the leather barrage in which he took the seventh and eighth rounds with jolting head punches.

Corbett, who at 33 has had 17 years of ring experience, presented a left-handed offense that Apostoli, former bellhop, could not master. He won the first five rounds.

Apostoli, former national amateur middleweight champion, found the range with punishing blows in the seventh and eighth when most of the damage was done to Corbett's face.

The sixth, ninth and tenth rounds were even, and both fighters were slugging furiously at the final bell in a closing rush that had the spectators standing on their feet cheering.

Corbett (Ralph Giordiana) considered the victory over his fellow Italian the first step in an attempted comeback as a middleweight. He weighed 160 pounds to 159½ for Apostoli.

OBSERVERS DOUBT CAREY CAN REPEAT AS REGIONAL CHAMP

CANYON, Feb. 23—The opening game of the regional basketball tournament here Friday will begin at 2 p. m. with Abernathy, winner in District 3, meeting Pampa, winner in District 2.

Following this game, Carey, winner in district 4, will battle Canyon District 1 winner, at 3:15 p. m.

In the evening, the losers of the two afternoon games will play at 7 o'clock, and the two winners of the afternoon sessions will meet at 8:15 o'clock. The victor of the second evening game automatically will go into the finals. The loser of the second evening will play the winner of the first evening game, at 10 a. m. Saturday, to determine the other finalist.

The championship game will be played at 8 p. m.

This will be a "double elimination" tournament in that two defeats before reaching the finals will eliminate a team. One defeat in the finals eliminates the contender.

Bob Cox, freshman coach at West Texas State College, will direct the tournament.

In the district finals last Saturday, Canyon defeated Amarillo 42-20, Pampa won over Berger 29-28 in a thrilling finale, Carey defeated Crowell 33-24, and Abernathy won over Ralls 26-21.

Carey, winner in the regional in Cairo, Egypt, in February will meet here for the last two years, again is a potential favorite but

By GAYLE TALBOT. NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (AP)—Anything, or practically nothing, can happen at Madison Square Garden tonight, when Joe Louis exposes his heavyweight title for a maximum of 15 rounds against Natie Mann, a rugged, resolute young fighter from Connecticut.

A good righthand puncher, Mann might possibly lay one on the big negro's chin and pick up the marbles. On the other hand, the betting is about 3 to 1 that the affair will run true to form, that Louis either will knock Natie kicking or slice him up like a Virginia ham.

With the house scaled from a $16.50 top, prospects were for a near-sellout with gross receipts of better than $100,000. Louis always draws 'em, and 4,000 were reported en route from New Haven on special trains to watch their Mann take his cut at the championship.

It is, in some respects, one of the strangest heavyweight title bouts on record. Mike Jacobs announced the match somewhat casually a couple of months ago, but nobody appeared to take much notice until the last few days. All of a sudden it seems to have dawned that Louis actually is risking his crown against one of the better young fighters.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (AP)—Facts and figures on tonight's Joe Louis-Nathan Mann heavyweight championship fight.

Principals—Joe Louis, Detroit, world's heavyweight champion, vs. Nathan Mann, New Haven, Conn., challenger.

Place—Madison Square Garden, New York.

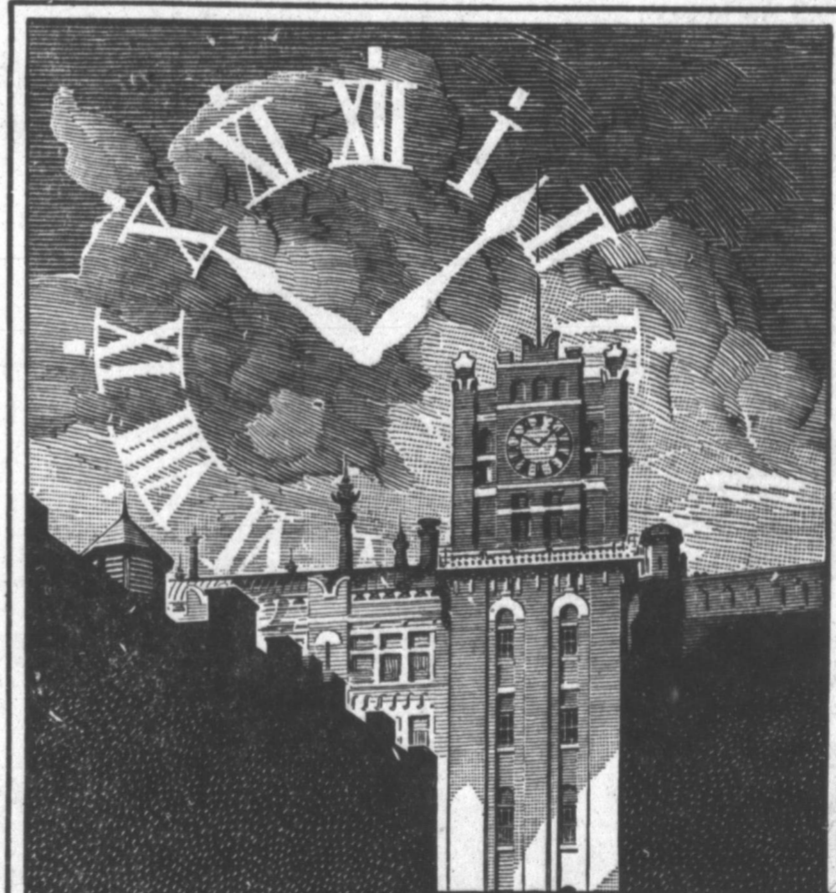

Time of main bout—10 p. m. EST. Length—15 rounds to a decision. Probable attendance—18,000. Probable receipts—$120,000. Division of receipts—Louis 40 per cent, Mann 12½ per cent. Broadcast—NBC-WJX network.

Some observers express doubt that the Cardinals, with almost a new team, can repeat.

Officials will be J. Davis Hill, principal at White Deer, and Frank Van Noy, who also worked in the district meet here last week.

A world radio conference in Cairo, Egypt, in February will study the increasing interference in short wave broadcasting.

Building Boom In Pampa In Prospect For This Year

MANY HOUSES BUILT HERE IN LAST MONTHS

Pampa faces an optimistic 1938 in the building line, predicted Sam Thomas, city building inspector, today. He has been contacting contractors, architects and lumbermen during the past week and all of them were of the opinion that 1938 would be another banner year for home building.

Not only were they of the opinion that the new government loan plan would stimulate home ownership but that people are waking up to the fact that it is cheaper to own a home than to rent and that banks and loan agencies look more favorably on the home ownership plan than before.

The Pampa Board of City Development has made home building one of its major projects for 1938 and information may be secured at headquarters in the city hall. Although building during January and to date has not been brisk, many Pampans are having plans drawn for spring building as soon as weather permits. Building permits to date this year have reached $28,500, or slightly under the amount last year at the same date. Weather has been a factor in keeping the amount of building down.

During recent months, however, several beautiful homes have been erected in Pampa and others are under construction. Ground was broken just before the recent storm for a $6,000 home to be erected by Ray Hagen on Christine street in the Cook addition. Construction of a home for Wiley Reynolds, on Charles street, was begun as the storm broke. No permit has been issued for the residence as yet, Inspector Thomas said.

Just completed and ready for occupancy is the beautiful one-story brick home of Charlie Clark on Mary Ellen street overlooking Central Park. A permit was issued for $7,000 for the building.

Recently finished was the spacious home of T. F. Smalling, also on Mary Ellen street. It was erected at a cost of $6,000. The architecture of the home is unusual and striking.

Also completed recently was the W. T. Fraser home on Charles street. It is a colonial type erected at a cost of $4,500.

In South Pampa L. W. Hoover is erecting five rent houses. Each of the buildings will be 12 by 30 feet. They are on West Craven street.

Several new homes have been erected in Cook Heights north of the Cook addition but out of the city limits. The Eays addition in Southeast Pampa has also been an active building section of the city.

Much repair work has been done in recent months according to Inspector Thomas. Contractors have several repair jobs pending, he said.

"I believe Pampa's 1938 building program will reach that of boom days," Inspector Thomas said. "The people are fast becoming educated and all we need is the cooperation of those who have the money to loan. The new government plan is sure to stimulate the home building plan."

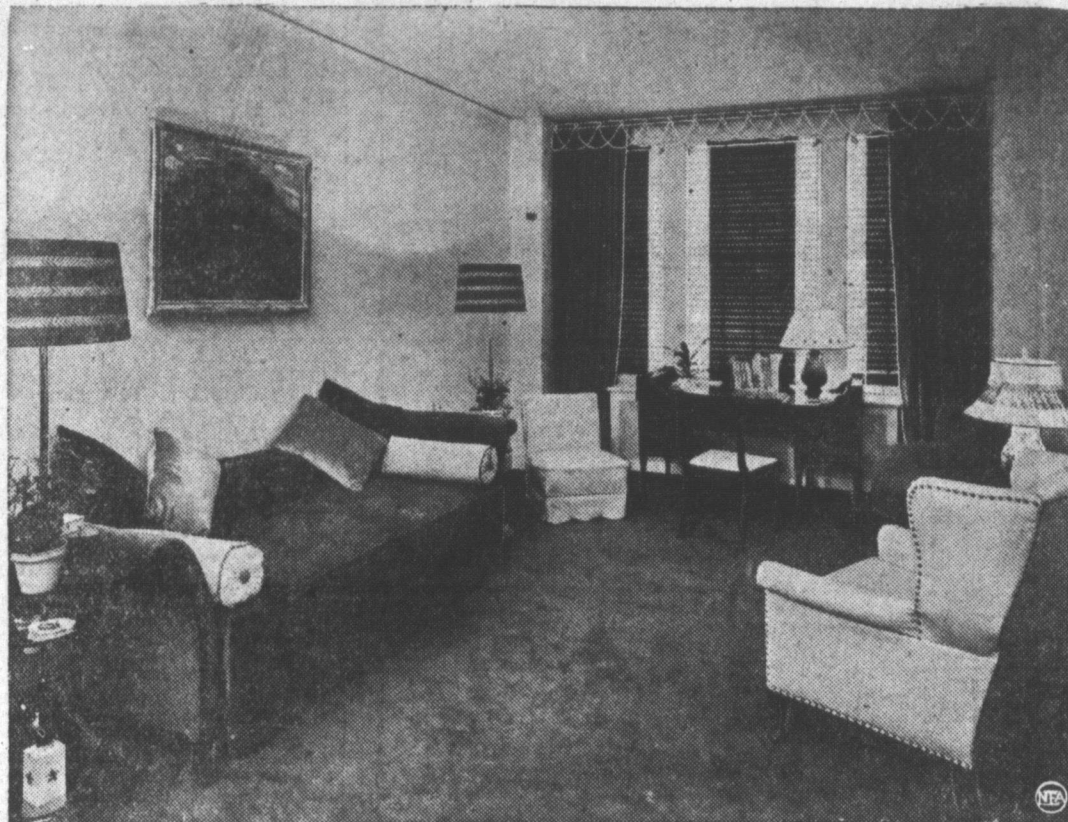

Ladies Aid Meets At Hawkins Home At Hawkins Home

SKELLYTOWN, Feb. 23.—The Ladies' Aid of the Community church met recently at the home of Mrs. Ray Hawkins for Bible study. The meeting opened with a prayer by Mrs. J. W. Lee. Mrs. Chester Strickland conducted the devotional. The short business meeting was in charge of Mrs. T. B. Barron, president.

The Bible study was taught from the first part of Numbers, by Mrs. Strickland. Those attending were a guest, Mrs. Tyler, and the following members: Mmes. H. C. Boyd, Chester Strickland, Del Henshaw, George Henshaw, E. C. Dickey, John Lee, J. H. Barnes, Bill Lot, T. B. Barron, Hinkley, J. C. Jarvis, Hazel Thurlow, and the hostess.

Bare Comfort Is Only a Delusion

This small green and white living room, decorated by Edna Kern, is cool and inviting without being bare looking. Soft walls, a forest green carpet, two white glove-leather chairs, green cellophane draperies over green Venetian blinds, edged with white, make the room cheery and livable. Both standing lamps are fitted with brackets for potted plants which Mrs. Kern thinks are important to any summer room.

By NEA Service.
NEW YORK—The annual summer campaign to strip the house of the winter furnishings in the name of coolness and less work has at least one outspoken foe, Edna H. Kern, decorator of many New York showplace apartments and homes.

"Do let your house look like a home, not a bare hospital receiving room," she urges.

"I see no excuse for the denuding frenzy with which many people take up rugs and tear down drapes in the fond hope that the

'nobody home' appearance will solve all hot weather problems. If there are enough heavy fabrics and furniture and warm colors to make an actual difference in temperature, something should be done to change permanently the decor."

Mrs. Kern doesn't like bare floors. She says that if you do decide to take up winter rugs, by all means to replace them with gay looking scatter rugs, preferably plain colored, or grass ones, in sane shades and designs.

"Don't order all your summer slip covers in pallid, washed-out looking colors. They really do not make a room look cooler, you know, and, after seeing them day after day, the average individual is likely to feel limp as the proverbial dishrag."

Mrs. Kern advises her clients to cover their furniture with lightweight fabrics in gay colors and color combinations. She thinks that bright shades, except red, make one feel more cheerful. And, when the thermometer soars to 90, anything which makes for cheer certainly is worthwhile. Blues and greens are especially worthy of consideration.

How To Build Home Under Federal Housing Policies

Do you want to build a home under the Federal Housing Act? Do you know how to go about it? First, you understand that the Federal Housing agency does not lend you the money, it merely underwrites you, and the lending companies make the loans.

Here's how to go about securing the loan:

1. Prepare the application, having an idea as to the kind of a house you want and one that will care for the needs of your family. You should also know in what district you expect to build.

2. Before buying the lot, talk the matter over with some one who is familiar with FHA policies. He will know whether the lot will be rated properly.

3. Select an architect to draw up your plans. This step is not essential, but is desirable.

4. After your plans have been drawn, estimates of the building cost should be secured from two or three sources, lumber dealers, contractors, etc.

5. The application is now ready for submitting through an approved lending agency. The application must be accompanied by a cashier's check based on $3 for every $1,000 of the amount applied for.

The minimum is $10, and if you are asking for $6,000 you will include a check for $18. This money helps to pay for administering the FHA work.

6. Wait for your commitment from the Federal Housing Act. The lending agency will be advised whether or not FHA will help you, and the lending company will inform you. After you have your commitment, the loan agency issues your loan, and you are ready to begin building.

gay cottons and linens come in beautiful colors and make ideal slip covers," the expert continues. "Do have chintz if you like it. The glaze will come off when you have the material cleaned or washed, but any good dry cleaning establishment can re-glaze it satisfactorily."

"Do, by all means, have flowers and green plants here and there. You can get inexpensive brackets to put on floor lamp stands, between windows, in the foyer. Fill these with pots of ivy or a mixture of crisp-looking vines."

In one summer living room, which Mrs. Kern decorated recently, plants take the place of Venetian blinds or filmy curtains. Set on a glass shelf at the bottom of each window, the vines are tucked in and out of a delicate wire frame, painted to match the walls and stretched from top to bottom of the window. For city dwellers, such a cool idea cuts down the curtain overhead, yet provides privacy.

poration's unprecedented low interest rates. In refinancing a million homes, the HOLC arranged for holders of mortgages to reduce their mortgages by $200,000,000 before they were taken over by the Corporation, saving borrowers an average of $200 on each home refinanced and at the same time enabling the mortgagees to liquidate their mortgages for cash. In addition, it is estimated that HOLC borrowers have saved $135,000,000, or approximately $135 per borrower, through the 5 per cent HOLC rate as compared to the higher interest rates they were paying to private lenders.

The grand total of interest saved, which will increase with the years, will not be known until the HOLC closes its operations. But the value of the lower interest rate and the aid extended home owners in their most troubled periods is evident in the manner in which they are reclaiming their homes, say HOLC officials.

Borrowers have paid back more than $350,000,000 in principal on their loans and over $400,000,000 in interest. More than 67 per cent of them either are entirely current or less than three months delinquent on principal and interest combined. In dollar volume, the HOLC is collecting approximately 86 per cent of money due.

The policy of reconditioning and repairing homes to make them satisfactory collateral for long-term mortgages has further benefited HOLC borrowers. Thousands of homes which were rapidly depreciating in value were redeemed through the expenditure of a comparatively small amount of money, considering the amount already invested in them. The extent of reconditioning is shown by the fact that the HOLC Reconditioning Division has awarded contracts for a total of more than $100,000,000.

The British army is experimenting with a new drill system which is said to quicken the pace by eliminating many of the old movements.

HOME OWNERS SAVE THROUGH HOLC LOANS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 23.—The average borrower on the lists of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, who was refinanced to the extent of approximately $3,000, has $324 more equity in his home than when he received his loan, and has saved $325, in addition, through the corporation.

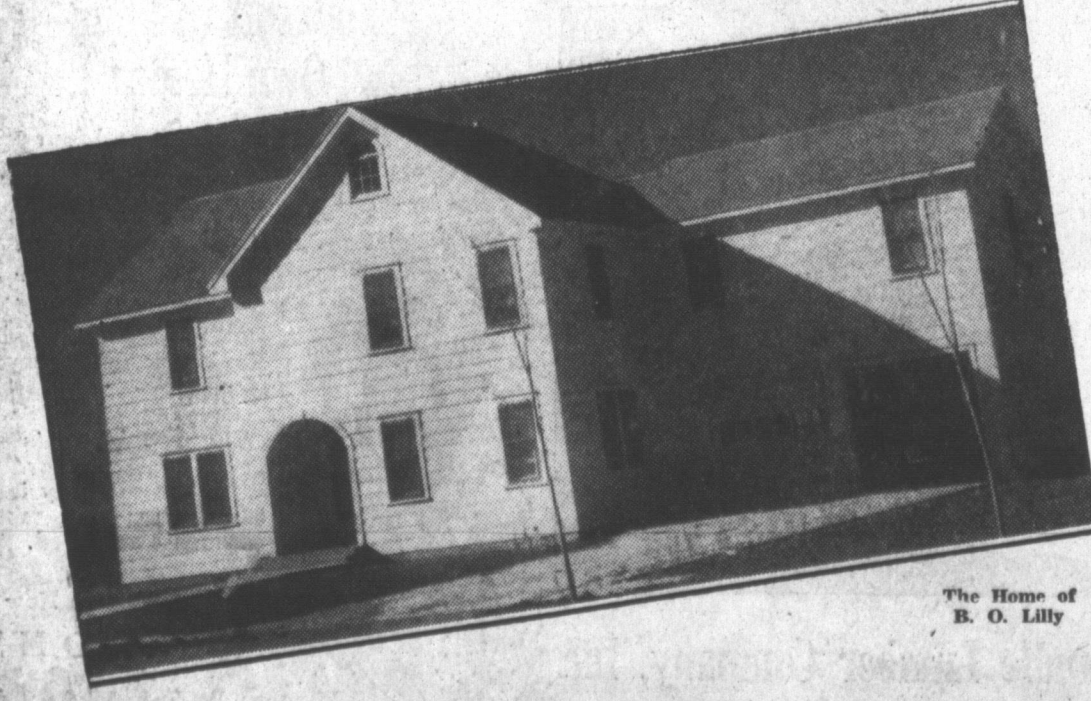

This estimate, made by HOLC officials, is based on payments on the principal already made, the negotiations which accompanied refinancing operations, and the Cor-

HOLC's 55,951 Housing Units Snapped Up By Renters

6,024 HOMES DISPOSED OF TO PURCHASERS

An increase of 27.9 per cent was shown last year in the average rental of rented homes owned by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, it was announced yesterday.

The average rental rose from $20.92 per month on January 1, 1937, to $26.75 on December 31.

This indication of the increased demand for homes in the lower-cost brackets was borne out, it was stated, by the readiness with which the corporation was able to obtain revenue from the homes which came into its possession. With 55,951 housing units available to yield income on December 31, the corporation reported 49,010, or 87.6 per cent, rented as of December 31, leaving only 12.4 per cent vacant. More than 20,000 of the units became available for income after June 30.

HOLC officials pointed out that because of redemption periods, homes do not come into the actual possession of the corporation in many states until months after foreclosure proceedings are started. In some states the process takes from one to two years.

"Only when the properties actually have been acquired are they available for reconditioning and repairs," said Harold Lee, deputy general manager of the corporation, in charge of property management. "Once they have been made attractive for rental or sale, we have had little trouble in disposing of them. The demand for homes obviously is increasing."

Rental collections on HOLC homes have averaged nearly 97.6 per cent for the period from January 1 to

Their Home's a Junk--and It'll Take Them On a 'Round-The-World Junket

By PAUL ROSS
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—America's most distinctive suburban house and its five occupants will be going to sea, soon.

It's a Chinese junk, the only one in the country and its the home of the Nilsons, reading from left to right, Captain Alfred, Missus, Robert, 5, Charles, 8 and David, 4.

Aside from the fact that the Nilsons, December 31, 1937, it was reported. Of $1,331,015 billed or accrued for the month of December, $1,286,485 was collected. This is 96.7 per cent of the total billed.

As of December 31, the HOLC has sold 6,024 homes for $22,027,586. Approximately 3,650 homes were sold since June 30.

Built at a cost of $5,000, the Chinese junk "Amoy" first belonged to a Dutch captain and his Chinese wife. Now she is the sea-going three-room-and-bath apartment of the Nilsons.

rather live here than anywhere on earth."

And the Captain chimes in, "Here we are our own masters. We do as we please, when we please. There are no taxes to pay, no landlord to fear, nobody can put us out and any port in the world is our home. That's a pretty good combination, I think."

The destiny of the Chinese junk seemed strangely intermingled with Nilson's. In 1923, he boarded her to work as a sailor. One day, Rita Bauer, a Brooklyn girl, came aboard as a sightseer. Among other things she saw Nilson and he saw her. They were married, bought the junk and spent their honeymoon cruising along the Eastern seaboard. Financial reverses put the Nilsons on land in 1928, and the Amoy in the hands of careless owners who spoiled her strange beauty. With better luck, Nilson found his ship again in 1936, moved aboard the family which had come along in the meantime and brought back the Amoy's looks.

BUILT in China, at the cost of $5,000, the junk has a hand-hewn samphorwood hull, an ironwood keel, Chinese pine masts, Chinese fir decks and bamboo braces for the sails. She is over 60 feet long, about 30 feet wide and sits on the water like a duck, front end deeper than behind. She has a draft of less than four feet, can outride a typhoon at sea, and has, several times. She does not float in the water but on it, duck-fashion, and she moves so easily that Captain Nilson and his boys sometimes row her. There is an engine to help in case her square red sails fail. She has managed to impart her

First, a year in Flushing bay at the World's Fair, then a couple more cruising in the Great Lakes, then the Big Adventure. Where will he and his family stop? Oh, everywhere. Even kids who have the good fortune to live on a Chinese junk must sleep, so Mrs. Nilson, clad in a Chinese brocaded silk house-coat-and-trousers tucks david, 4, and Robert, 5, into their roomy bunk which is part of the main cabin on the "Amoy." The delicate tracings on the panels overhead are genuine finger-paintings and illustrate scenes from the Chinese version of "Aladdin." The wooden sculpture at the upper left symbolizes the end of a period of drought. This unusual composite picture is the architect's conception of the great new Anglican cathedral as it will tower over a section of Liverpool.

sons like living on their junk, "Amoy," there's an important reason or it all. Captain Alfred Nilson's boyhood dreams are going to come true. When he was 17, he set sail for Australia—alone—in a launch. Once out side of the Golden Gate harbor, however, he found the launch's canvas insufficient for such a journey, so he turned back. But he did not put away his dream.

Since then, this six-foot son of the Vikings has married, become a father, learned the landlubber's profession and developed a trace of a punch. But he also acquired the junk "Amoy" and one day means to fill his boyhood ambition and sail around the world in her. No longer alone, it is true, for there are Mrs. Nilson and the three sturdy youngsters. But they'll be crew and helpmates. "No man ever had better company on such a jaunt," says the captain.

At the moment, the Captain, his wife, his kids and his ship are citizens of New Rochelle, a New York suburb, where the Amoy is moored at a wharf on Long Island sound. The two older boys, Charles, 8, and Robert, 5, go to school there. Mrs. Nilson, a small, dark-haired woman with somewhat oriental eyes, keeps "house" in the small, snug cabin, staterooms and galley of the ship. Nilson commutes daily to New York where he works as a radio engineer at Station WOR.

When they're not going to school, cooking or working, the Nilsons paint. Mrs. Nilson works in oils, the Captain in water-colors and Charles the oldest boy, in both.

On a sunny afternoon, they sit on the deck of the Amoy and sketch away at representations of the sky, the water and the ships that pass. "My stuff is only fair," says Nilson with a deprecating ges-

February Brings Mid-Winter Sales That Mean Big Savings To Shoppers

By MARION YOUNG

NEW YORK.—Have you been anxious to replace the old divan with a bright and lovely new one or with two love seats or a love seat and a chair? And how about the little table to go beside the chair that every one avoids because it looks so lonely over there by itself? Or perhaps it is a boudoir chair for the corner of your bedroom that your heart is set on.

Well, now is the time to get these things. In other words, this is the month of midwinter furniture sales. Buy whatever house furnishings you need NOW. Stores are filled with a breathtakingly handsome array of lovely pieces—priced to give the consumer a break.

Regardless of the amount of money you have to spend or what kind of furniture you need, look for pieces that will prove lasting as well as currently in style. And measure the space each is to occupy before you even consider buying. Also, if you plan to get new drapes and change your living room color scheme any time soon, select the new divan with the drapes you hope to buy in mind rather than the present ones.

There are many times when it is better to have another chair and a table rather than to overcrowd a small room with a full-length sofa. Also, sofas with full padding over deeply rounded backs and arms look much better than sofas with trim, slender lines and shallow curves, although both may be the same length.

Furniture such as the pieces used in this charming paneled living room are something to look for. All the important pieces are in Queen Anne walnut, a high style note of the present season. The drum and coffee tables, also in walnut, have tooled leather tops. (From Stiehl Galleries, New York)

Home Building In Pampa Expected To Experience One Of Biggest Boosts

Home building in Pampa and the Panhandle within the next few months is expected to experience one of the biggest booms in the history of the city and section, if the outspoken opinion of realtors, contractors, architects, lumber yard dealers and citizens in general is an index.

Chief cause of this talk of a building boom is the new Federal Housing Administration program announced recently by Congress. It is this revised Federal Housing Act which President Franklin D. Roosevelt believes will launch a projected $2,000,000,000 building boom in the United States.

And it is the revised Federal Housing Act that now makes it possible for the small salaried worker to build himself a home—a good home, one better than he ever dreamed of owning—with a down payment of only 10 per cent of the cost and with as long as 25 years to pay off the balance.

This feature of the program, many declare, will make it cheaper to build a house than to rent one.

It has been pointed out that there are those families who will pare their interest charges by making larger down payments and monthly payment than the minimum requirements. But the smaller requirement will make it possible for thousands of renters to change their status to homeowners, government officials stressed in announcing the new setup.

Would-be home owners of the Panhandle and of the nation generally are already clamoring for a part in the program. Swamped Federal Housing authorities have asked for the cooperation of money lenders, manufacturers, material dealers and workmen in caring for the heavy demands.

It was announced from Washington this week that in the last two weeks, "many thousands of letters and preliminary applications have poured into FHA offices in the field. There are pending applications for mortgage insurance on more than $50,000,000 of large-scale projects."

The new FHA measure affords more liberal mortgage and insurance provisions than FHA requirements heretofore. The FHA insures mortgages up to 90 per cent of the cost of homes costing $6,000 or less. And on homes costing more than that, the federal agency will insure 90 per cent of the first $6,000 and 80 per cent of the remainder.

Repaying of the loans over a 20-year period is provided, except in the case of homes which cost less than $6,000 and which are started before July 1, 1939. These may be amortized over 25 years. The mortgage insurance premium is one-fourth of one per cent on houses which cost $3,000 or less, and is one-half of one per cent on houses costing above $6,000. Interest rates are set at 5 per cent, based on the principal outstanding, it was announced.

"Not only will the new Federal Housing program be of great benefit to the people of small means, but it will be a boon to the comparative large business men," said one Pampa lumber dealer.

It is declared that there is a need for large apartment houses and similar structures in Pampa, and the revised act will make them possible. It was pointed out that very little building has been done in Pampa in recent years, and that the city is in need of scores of dwellings.

Instead of the former $16,000 limit, borrowers may now secure FHA backing up to $200,000, it was said. The new setup is already in effect, with loans being made.

Said another conversant with the loan program: "Pampa is on the verge of its biggest building boom, despite the talk of a recession. There is plenty of money here, and it will be spent. Don't forget that the Federal Housing Act now covers loans for repairing and modernizing homes, as well as for new construction."

"fit-back-in" effect. Good lounging chairs for the sofa group in a fairly large room should be somewhat higher from the floor, with higher backs, than the corner chair. In a small room the sofa group often looks better with a lighter open-arm chair at either side.

A Windsor desk, with a picture or book shelf above, is often more suitable than a secretary for rooms where height and bulk are needed. Kneehole desks are also good in such rooms, and where furniture is of the light 18th century type, a tambour desk is charming. In Colonial rooms the splint desk, is an attractive alternative.

An end table, instead of using all plain rectangular types, a small gateleg, with one leaf up often makes an interesting change in outline at the arm of a sofa or chair. So does a small octagon, drum or pie-crust table. Coffee tables should be fairly low; end table suitable to the height of the piece they serve. For a wall position, the Duncan Phyfe or Pembroke dropleaf tables are exceptionally good. Between windows, however, some times a little bachelor chest or lowboy, in mahogany or Queen Anne walnut, makes a better piece.

Two Periods Popular

TODAY'S furniture shoppers seem to be more modern or 18th century minded than anything else. Under these two headings are more types than you perhaps realize.

For instance, in addition to the familiar modern varieties, Swedish Modern and Classic Modern are prominently displayed. And "18th century" is a far more flexible term than it seems on first thought.

Early 18th century types include French Provincial—in both natural and bleached walnut and are also the handsome designs the mellow fruitwoods. There broadly spoken of as "Georgian

STREAMLINED COOKSTOVE OF 1938 FEATURES AUTOMATIC GADGETS

The kitchen has really gone modern. Modern ranges and refrigerators make the preparation of meals a pleasure.

The new 1938 range has features undreamed of in the old fashioned "cook stove" that mother used to use. A porcelain top that closes over the burners keeps the top of the stove free from dust and provides another kitchen table when the burners are not in use. A light on the back of the top gives a lighted stove in any kitchen. A built in timer can be set for any length of time the housewife may wish to cook any particular dish. Raising the top of the range discloses a griddle top for pancakes and other fried foods. By the simple pull of a chromium plated handle the griddle disappears and a broiler rises up in its place—a broiler that is absolutely smokeless and requires no scouring after use.

A thermo-well is also provided on the modern range. This is a well-like, insulated division which is equipped with kettles making it possible to cook three vegetables at once, or two vegetables and a fruit. The thermo-well has heat holding insulation which cooks three vegetables or fruit kettles with only ten minutes of fire—a great convenience as well as a saving of money since the danger of over cooking is practically eliminated. The time which the kettles cook is determined by the time the fire is burned.

The oven of the modern range is also insulated for comfort and economy. No longer must the housewife sweater in a steaming hot kitchen—the heat is retained in the oven where it belongs. As one modern housewife puts it, "It isn't being done but it is actually possible to sit on the top of a broiling hot oven in perfect comfort." This feature of insulation makes it possible to cook a four-pound roast with only 20 minutes of fire. The oven retains its cooking temperature for four hours. All that is necessary is to heat the oven, put the roast in, and take it out to serve when meal time comes. The modern range does the rest.

For Love of Polly

Yesterday: Jerry and Cabell Banks are put ashore in disguise at Ramsgate.

CHAPTER XVIII
After they had walked a little way, reveling in the feel of hard ground under their feet, they thought of food. Jerry said, "I think we're half starved, that's what we are. Let's find an inn."

"Not in this quarter, you fool. Too many Sunnys about. We must get away from the waterfront and buy civilian clothes before we eat a mouthful."

This they did. Later, as two civilians, they sat at a tavern table and tried to satisfy their half-starved bodies without making themselves ill.

When the meal had been eaten Jerry spoke. "Now I must get back to London, cross-country, and see about Polly."

"Go to London, you idiot? So you've the vanity to suppose she's still waiting there for you? You told me she thought you'd deserted her. Hasn't she any pride?"

"Yes," replied Jerry. "Polly's got more pride than normal. She'll not be waiting for me. But I must go to the Unicorn and Crown and try to trace her."

"See here!" exclaimed Cabell. "It's a piece of madness. You'll be picked up again. There'll be a reward offered for the tomorrow and London's where they'll stop it first. If you're caught, it will mean Dartmoor or the hulks."

"I'm going up to London," Jerry said. "Wait for me if you like."

And he went by the morning stage coach while Cabell Banks grumbly waited for him at an inn.

On the night of the second day Jerry returned, grim and practical. "Well?" said Cabell.

"Folly Chelsey left London for Dover some days ago. Mr. Toby, the tavern keeper, said she hoped to cross the Channel and join her cousin's ship at Cherbourg. He couldn't tell me where to look for her."

"What did he tell you?"
"That she'd be gone. That the trip would be useless. But I had to know. Banks. I couldn't have gone off not knowing. The trip was worth while for another way. Mr. Toby told me that woman who got me into this—you know the one I mean—got to suffering from a bad conscience and wrote a letter to Polly explaining how the press gang got me. The Tobys sent the letter down to Dover by next day's coach, so they think Polly may have got it. I like to think she did. . . . Cabell, lad, I'm sick for a sight of that girl!"

Cabell Banks shrugged patiently. "I believe you said you knew how to get us across the Channel. Could I trouble you to put your mind on it now?"

"Yes," said Jerry, coming back to earth. "Well, there's a place between here and Deal known as Clitte's cove. Jean Clitte puts in there after he's stopped at Corly, further south. Clitte's cove is where we must go. . . . How are your feet?"

They agreed to set out at once, on foot. Somewhere in the neighborhood of the cove they would wait for the smuggler to come in. They might take lodgings at a farmhouse, or, if this seemed incautious, they would hide out in a wooded ravine. Cabell invested in a pair of pistols for them and in knives of a serviceable sort. Thus equipped and with money in their pockets they had no fear of starving.

They turned their faces southward on the King's Highway where the road roughly followed the sea. A signpost pointed the way to Deal; the road stretched levelly before them. The necessity of walking all evening and most of the night did not disturb them. They were intoxicated with their new-found freedom.

After the long dark hours in a ship's hold it was rather like heaven to them to see the sky overhead and to feel the wind in their faces.

They continued to be of that mind even after they grew tired. They had brought food with them, and now and then they would crawl onto a stack of hay for rest and refreshment.

Yet the night had its drawbacks. Once they were started at suspiciously by a farmer in a cart, and questioned. And once they passed a hanged man dangling from a gallows, left there as a horrible warning to "All that pick pockets and live thereby" (so said the painted sign). . . . Near midnight they hid in a cove as several men went past on horseback. And wisely, these were robbers and could be plainly heard plotting to hold up the carriage of a local squire as he came down from London tomorrow night.

The two young men hidden in the cove felt tenderly of the money concealed on their persons and were in no hurry to come out.

Often the deep ruts and loose rocks sent them sprawling in the road, tearing their clothes and scratching their shins. But the going became even harder after they had to leave the highway. When the road turned inland they kept to the shore, for the cove they sought must be recognized by its relation to the sea.

They came upon it unexpectedly, recessed in a curve of the shore line. Jerry would have known it from the description he had had of it, but tonight there were surer signs to mark it. An ugly two-masted lugger lay off short, and in the ravine, lanterns bobbed in the darkness. "God in Heaven!" said Jerry reverently. "Can there be luck like this for us?"

"It seems improbable," Cabell replied. "And yet. . . ."

And yet there was a dory being lowered away from the lugger and making silently for the cove. Six men oared it. . . .

"Come on," Jerry said. "It's Clitte or some of his men. We'll meet them on the beach."

With this method of approach Cabell Banks disagreed. He argued, for all the world like a professor in a classroom, "If we hallo from up here and explain our presence, it will be safer. Out of range, you might say. They're apt to take us for customs agents if we walk into them."

Jerry saw the reason in this. He curbed his impatience and waited for the boat to beach. Then, cupping his hands around his mouth he called down, clearly but not loudly:

"Does Jean Clitte go there?"
There was a silence, broken only by the swish of the waves. Then a voice from below, rough and rasping: "Who asks?"

"Jerry Whitfield. If Clitte's there he'll remember me. We talked in London."

"Clitte's no been in London!"
"McGeen then! John McGeen was in London!"
A laugh below. "All right. Come ere and lend a hand. We aim to sail before day cracks."

Jerry and Cabell (and it was now through slipping shale and stone to the beach below.)

As they came onto the sand McGeen held up a lantern and stared into their faces. To Jerry, whom he recognized, he said: "You said there'd be a woman with you. Who's this?"

"My plans were changed for me. This man's my friend. He's all right. You promised passage for two. You'll be paid for two."

McGeen nodded abrupt assent and lowered his lantern. "Fall to!"

During the hour that followed they helped the smugglers land French brandy from the boat onto the shore and carry it to an abandoned thatched-roof cote in the ravine where it was received and checked by men whose dark outlines only could be distinguished. And from this hut they helped carry bales of what appeared to be English woollens and loaded them into the returning boat.

Several trips were made between lugger and shore. When Jerry and Cabell went out to the ship and boarded, at the last trip, they saw Clitte coming from the cabin and locking it carefully.

"The rascal doesn't trust us," Cabell said.

"Nor I him," Jerry answered. (To Be Continued)

FIRST 'CASUALTY' IN '40 CAMPAIGN CLAIMED

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (AP)—The New York Times in a special dispatch from Washington says "The first casualty" in the campaign for President that Paul V. McNutt, high commissioner to the Philippines, has returned home to promote, is Lt. Col. Davenport Johnson, an outstanding army aviator and combat aviator at Hamilton Field, Calif.

The Times story continues: "Because he flew Mr. McNutt and his aide, Wayne Coy, from Hamilton Field to Denver, in violation of army regulations, the officer has been assigned to a new post at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill."

Hamilton Field is one of the finest and most modern in the country, and Chanute Field exactly the opposite, a wartime project whose quarters and other buildings are described as delapidated to the point of 'falling in' on occupants."

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 23 (AP)—"Most peculiar" was Paul V. McNutt's comment here today on the War Department's transfer of Col. Davenport Johnson from command of Hamilton Field, Calif., to Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., which some published reports linked with Johnson's flying of the Philippine high commissioner from San Francisco to Denver last week.

"It is the most peculiar thing I ever heard of," said McNutt as he prepared to board a train for Washington.

McNutt asserted the flight, made in an army plane, was a "regular function of the War Department," adding: "That's where I go for my transportation."

The oldest mention of Robin Hood appeared about 1377, in the second edition of Piers Plowman.

NEW MEXICO ACCEPTS TEXAS HIGHWAY DARE

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Feb. 23 (AP)—Clyde Oden, chairman of the New Mexico Highway Commission, accepted a challenge by Texas highway officials to furnish "beer, barbecue and bull" if New Mexico lagged behind Texas in completion of its effort of modernizing U. S. Highway 80.

"You bet I accept the invitation," he said.

"I'll be there and you can bet Texas will pay for the party."

The "three-b" barbecue challenge was hurled at Governor Tingley and New Mexico highway officials as No. 2 in the current list of challenges between the neighboring states. A similar challenge for a barbecue party on the state line is in effect involving the El Paso-Carlsbad road.

Lead poisoning affects the whole body but especially the nervous system and the food forming tissues.

The largest codfish on record—211 pounds and more than three or four feet long—was caught on a line trawl off Massachusetts in 1895.

IT IS DANGEROUS

It is dangerous to sell a SUBSTITUTE for 666 just to make three or four cents more. Customers are your best assets; lose them and you lose your business. 666 is worth three or four times as much as a SUBSTITUTE.

SPROUTING SIGNS OF RECOVERY NOTICED ON BUSINESS HORIZON

By PAUL D. GESNER.
NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (AP)—Scattered signs of sprouting recovery were seen on the business horizon today by Wall Street trend-gaugers.

While no sudden overnight return to the high levels of activity prevailing last spring was indicated, harbingers of moderate improvement were noted on many fronts in a mid-quarter checkup.

These included:
1—Growing demand for raw materials.
2—Reports of better wholesale buying.
3—Some increase in orders for steel.

4—Signs of a break in the automobile trade jam.
5—Widening plans for residential and industrial building construction.

Added up, business analysts assert, they portend eventually brisker business throughout the nation and more jobs for the unemployed.

Cotton, most spectacular performer of raw materials during the past few days, has risen to the highest level since last fall. Cotton futures yesterday advanced another 65 to 90 cents a bale, and accompanying the rise was a scurrying for cotton cloth in Worth street. The volume of gray goods sales Monday was the largest for any single day in some months.

Hides, prime raw material in the manufacture of shoes, also have been moving faster, and trading in future contracts at New York last week on two consecutive days was the biggest in the history of the commodity exchange.

The rises in demand for cotton, cotton cloth and hides are regarded in financial circles as specially significant, in that most quarters have anticipated a sustained recovery in consumed goods would bring market improvement in the capital goods field.

Pampan Names Rules To Follow In Wiring House

HOME OWNERS SHOULD TALK WITH EXPERT

Progress in the science of lighting and the increased use of electrical appliances in the home have brought about changes in electric wiring requirements in the construction of new homes.

One contemplating the building of a new home finds himself today confronted with an entirely different problem, so far as electric wiring is concerned, to that of a few years ago.

Architects and contractors are familiar with the modern requirements as well as the city building code regulations.

"The layman will find it to his advantage to consult someone thoroughly experienced in modern requirements when planning his home," said Jim Collins, commercial manager for the Southwestern Public Service Company, who emphasizes that the builder who does not go thoroughly into the question of wiring before and later finds himself obliged to make changes in his plan will find it costly.

However, said Mr. Collins, about the cheapest part of any electrical wiring contract is the wire itself.

With electricity being used to perform more and more functions in the home, the wise builder will first plan the job with a greater number of loops, and, second, provide more outlets on each loop.

Should Be Permanent

A complete electrical job, expertly done, should be just as permanent as the home itself and should never require overhauling, said Mr. Collins. A little forethought will save much extra expense, because the builder who attempts to skimp in the original cost of an electrical job often finds later that he must make extensions and sometimes complete revisions of the wiring system to properly fill his needs.

Overloading of a loop, that is, attempting to make a loop provide a greater output of electricity than it is capable of handling, is one of the most common causes of electric service interruptions in the home.

More Outlets

When a home of average size is wired with No. 12 wire, which is capable of carrying a greater load than the customary No. 14, and when the wiring plan includes a sufficient number of loops, each originating in a central switch-box, then the only cause of an electric service interruption in that home must be as a result of defective cords or devices.

The tendency toward installation of more electric outlets, particularly base plugs, is the result of the increasing use of appliances. Radios, floor lamps, bedroom lamps, electric refrigerators, toasters, irons, mixers, sweepers and even shavers bring about the need for a sufficient number of base plugs in each room to supply current; to these appliances without the use of inconvenient and unsightly extension cords.

More Loops

Then, the increased load caused by the use of these appliances brings about the necessity for more loops and heavier wire on each loop, to avoid blowing out of fuse plugs.

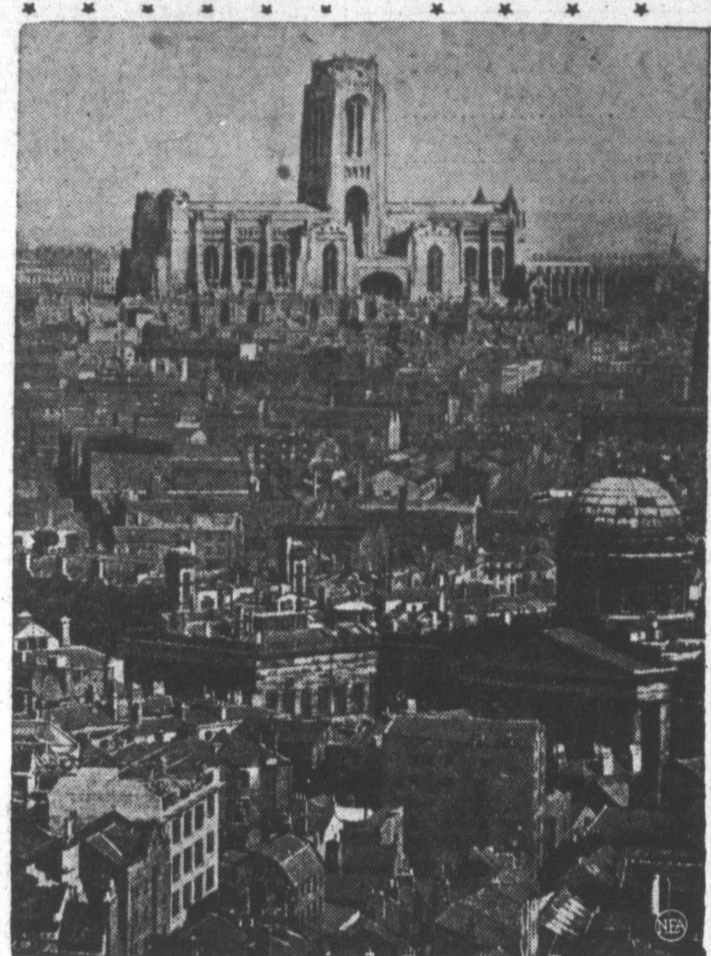

The difference in the cost of a good electrical job and an inferior one, Mr. Collins pointed out, will make only a very slight difference in the total cost of the building contract. He emphasized that the electrical job should be included in the financing of the home construction.

Although use of conduit in the wiring of a home makes for greater safety, many "knob and tube" jobs are found in better homes in Pampa. Such a job, properly installed with all connections thoroughly soldered and taped and with each circuit fully protected from contact with the other, can be made practically trouble-proof.

Conduit Used

In the construction of finer homes, where the owner desires to avoid use of overhead wires entering the house from the alley, conduct may be used for both power and telephone entrances. This is found desirable, especially where there is danger of trees growing to a height to permit their coming into contact with wires. This often results in the necessity of either raising the height of the wires or trimming tree-tops to avoid wearing off of insulation and resulting in "shorts" due to the wires coming in contact with each other.

Since the radio has come into common use, it is necessary now to build homes with more solid electrical connections and to use improved switches to avoid radio interferences.

Mercury switches and oil switches are among the highly improved devices having as their purpose the elimination of radio interferences caused by making and breaking electrical contacts.

Lighting Study

The trend in the construction of modern homes is to have someone who is expert in planning the lighting to make a study of the rooms and place electric lights at points where they will give the best light with the least offense to the eyesight.

Indirect lighting accomplishes this purpose to the greatest degree. The brightest light is not necessarily the best light. A properly controlled light will give more even lighting throughout the room and be more restful upon the eyes.

Manufacturers are now giving special attention to the matter of building fixtures which do not give a glaring light.

Injury to Eye

Looking directly at an unshielded light in a home is much the same as meeting an automobile with glaring lights at night. The result is offensive and injurious to the eye.

In the matter of selecting fixtures, one can choose those which best fit his bank account. A low-priced fixture, properly constructed, can be just as serviceable as the most elaborate and ornate.

In the final analysis, a high-priced electrical installation can be poorly done and one of nominal cost can be so expertly done that the result in lighting is superior to that of the former.

It is a matter of taking the greatest advantage of facilities available at a cost one can afford to obtain good lighting with safety.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 23.—Liverpool is building simultaneously two of the most magnificent cathedrals on earth.

One will be the great Roman Catholic cathedral of the north of England. The other will be the immense new Church of England cathedral. The Catholic cathedral is being built according to the plans of architect Sir Edward Lutyens, a Protestant. And the Anglican cathedral is being built according to the plans of Sir Gilbert Scott, a Roman Catholic.

Not since the 12th and 13th century has there been similar activity in the building of great monuments to Christianity.

The estimated cost of the Catholic cathedral when completed (perhaps not for 100 years, because of financial difficulties) is about $15,000,000. The great foundations and crypts are finished. The cathedral will be the largest in the world—its area four times that occupied by the famous St. Paul's in London. Its total length will be 670 feet. Height to the top of the cross surmounting the dome will be 473 feet.

More than 10,000 people may attend mass in sight of the High Altar, which will stand 12 feet above the floor. There will be 24 alters in all, so that wherever one stands, there will be an altar in direct line of vision. The dome of the church will be encased in stainless steel and a figure of Christ will surmount the facade, which will be illuminated at night so that it will be visible man miles out at sea.

THE Church of England Cathedral were authorized by Parliament as long ago as 1885. St. James's Mount, a high hill in the city, was chosen for the site and the foundation stone was laid in 1904. By 1910 the Lady Chapel was completed and consecrated. Work was carried on intermittently even during the war and the church, as such, was consecrated in 1924 in the presence of the late King George V.

The general style of the church is Gothic and the main building material is the warm rose-red sandstone found near Liverpool. The distinguishing feature of the building is its tall central tower, which will rest upon the intersection of choir nave and transept as many famous cathedrals, but upon the outer walls.

The central tower will be one of the tallest in the world—331 feet high. The church will seat 3500 people. The church is farther advanced than the Roman Catholic Cathedral but even so, the authorities told this writer they could give no date as to ultimate completion. As with the Catholics, it all depends upon inflow of money.

Better Light Makes Better Homes

GOD lighting is not expensive. Lighting fixtures have been improved rapidly... especially during the last five years, but simplicity in design has become popular so prices have come down.

Without doubt the new indirect lighting fixtures are the most beautiful and most effective lighting devices developed in the long history of lighting science, but prices are surprisingly low.

If you are still crippling along with old fashioned, glaring lights you will enjoy a visit to your electric dealers store, where you can try the soft well diffused, glareless light that comes from properly shaded indirect fixtures. Certainly you will find that indirect lighting is a bargain from the standpoint of beauty and comfort.
